¹⁴The Israelites descended from the town and went up to Achior, and having untied him, they led him to Bethulia, and took him to the rulers of the town, ¹⁵who in those days were Uziah the son of Micah of the tribe of Simeon, Chabris the son of Gothoniel, and Charmis the son of Melchiel. ¹⁶As they called for a meeting of all the elders of the town, the young people and the women also joined the assembly. They placed Achior in the midst of the assembled people and Uziah asked him what had happened. ¹⁷In reply he told them about the council meeting of Holofernes and all that he himself had said to the leaders of the Assyrians. He also told them of the threatening words of Holofernes against Israel.

¹⁸The people threw themselves down on the ground, worshiped God and called upon his help saying, ¹⁹“Lord God of Heaven, take into consideration the insolence of the Assyrians and have pity on your humiliated people. Look this day upon those who are consecrated to you.”

²⁰They encouraged Achior and congratulated him warmly. ²¹Then Uziah led him from the assembly into his own house and gave a meal for the elders. All through the night the people called upon the God of Israel, begging him to come to their aid.

7 ¹The next day Holofernes gave an order to the whole of his army and to those people who had come to his help to move camp in the direction of Bethulia, to occupy the mountain slopes and to wage war against the Israelites. ²All his valiant warriors moved that day; the forces of fighting men numbered one hundred and seventy thousand foot soldiers and twelve thousand cavalry, without counting the baggage and the men who looked after it as well as the crowd of people who accompanied them—a considerable crowd. ³They camped in the valley near Bethulia, near the spring; they spread out the whole width from Dothan to Belbain, and the length from Bethulia to Cyamon which faces Esdraelon.

⁴When the Israelites saw how numerous they were, they were extremely afraid and said to one another, “Without doubt this crowd is going to devour all the country, neither the high mountains nor the ravines nor the hills will be able to put a stop to their progress.” ⁵Nonetheless each one seized his fighting equipment; they lit fires on the tops of the towers and kept watch all that night.

⁶The second day, Holofernes lined up all his cavalry in front of the Israelites in Bethulia. ⁷He observed the approaches to their town, discovered the sources supplying water, seized them and stationed guards over them, then he returned to his army. ⁸The leaders of the Edomites, the commanders of the Moabites and the generals of the Seacoast approached Holofernes and said, ⁹“Let our Master listen to us, and your army will not suffer loss. ¹⁰This people of Israel really do not put their trust in javelins but in the height of the mountains which they inhabit, for it is not easy to reach the summit of their mountains. ¹¹Master, if you wish to save the lives of your men, do not fight against them in battle formation. ¹²Remain in your camp and keep all the men in your army safe but let us take possession of the spring which flows at the foot of the mountain, ¹³because it is from there that the people of Bethulia draw all their water. They will be dying of thirst and so they will hand over their town. We and our people will scale the summits of the neighboring mountains and set up outposts to prevent anyone from leaving the town. ¹⁴The famine will destroy them; men, women and children will be lying dead in the streets of their town before ever the sword is raised against them. ¹⁵So you will have punished them severely for having rebelled and for not having come out to meet you with offers of peace.”

¹⁶This advice pleased Holofernes and all his officers, and he agreed to do what they said. ¹⁷The Moabites, with five thou-

Jl 2:16

2K 19:4

Num
22:4

sand Assyrians, moved camp; they encamped in the valley and cut off the springs and the water supply from the Israelites.¹⁸ The Edomites and the Ammonites climbed up and camped on the mountain near Dothan; they sent some of their men to the south and to the east facing Egrebel, near Chusi, which is on the torrent of Mochmur. The rest of the Assyrian army encamped in the plain, covering the whole countryside. The camp site covered by their tents and their baggage spread out wide for they were an enormous crowd.

The discouragement of the people

• ¹⁹Disheartened, the people of Israel called upon the Lord their God because their enemies had encircled them and had cut off all means of escape.²⁰ All the Assyrian army, its foot soldiers, its chariots and horsemen surrounded them for thirty-four days.²¹ The inhabitants of Bethulia saw the water jars becoming empty and the wells running dry so that drinking water had to be rationed every day.²² The small children became weak with thirst; the women and the young collapsed in the streets and gateways of the town.²³ Then everyone—men, women, young people and children—gathered and accused Uzziah and the leaders of the town.

They called out with loud cries and said before all the elders,²⁴ “May God judge between you and us, for you are the cause of this misfortune by not engaging in peaceful negotiations with the Assyrians.²⁵ And now there is no one who can bring us any help; God has delivered us into the hands of these pagans in such a way that we lie dying before them from great thirst and misery.²⁶ You must call on the Assyrians and let the whole army of Holofernes pillage us.²⁷ It is better for us to become their booty, for then we shall become slaves, but at least we shall live and not have to see our women, our older children and the little ones die before our eyes.²⁸ We urge you by heaven and earth and by our God, the Lord of our ancestors, who punishes us according to our sins and the sins of our fathers: make this decision this very day.”

²⁹Altogether they raised a great lamentation in the midst of the assembly, and they cried out with a loud voice to the Lord God.

³⁰Then Uzziah said to them, “Have confidence, my brothers; hold out for five days more, during which time the Lord our God will show us his mercy, for he will not abandon us forever.³¹ If these days pass without his coming to our help, then we shall do what you say.”³² Then he dismissed the men, each to his post, and they went towards the ramparts and the towers of the town, and he sent the women and children back to their

14:12

20:5

• 7.19 When a community starts to look only at what is evil, its bad luck, it begins to lose faith in the future and forgets it has means for getting out of the situation.

God has delivered us into the hands of these pagans. The people of Bethulia declare their defeat beforehand because they only see the human side of the situation which is unpleasant, and do not remember God's promise (Lev 26 and Dt 28). They have prayed and have done penance, but in spite of all that, God is deaf to their pleas. The conclusion is obvious: “We are lost.”

In their discouragement, they only see their need and do not measure the consequences of what they are doing. They do not think that to surrender to Holofernes and to acknowledge Nebuchadnezzar as God is to disown God. All they see is that it is better to live as slaves than to die.

“I do not get anything by asking; God will not listen to me,” is what we usually hear disheartened people say, as the people of Bethulia did. This discouragement is especially contagious when it comes from the father of the family.

homes. Now there was a great depression throughout the town.

8 ¹The news of what had happened came in those days to Judith, daughter of Merari, son of Joseph, of Oziel, of Elkiyah, of Ananias, of Gideon, of Raphain, of Ahitub, of Elijah, of Hilkiah, of Eliab, of Nathanael, of Salamiel, of Sarasadai, of Israel. ²Her husband was Manasseh, of the same tribe and family. He had died during the harvesting of the barley ³as he was supervising the reapers who were binding the sheaves on the plain; he suffered sunstroke, took to his bed and died in Bethulia, his town. He was buried with his ancestors in the field which lies between Dothan and Balamon.

2K 4:18

Judith: the Jewess who never wavered in her faith

• ⁴As a widow, Judith remained in her house for three years and four months. ⁵She had built a room on the rooftop of the house where she lived. ⁶She covered herself in sackcloth, put on widow's garments and fasted all the days of her widowhood with the exception of the eves of the Sabbath, the Sabbath day, the eves of the new moons, the days of the new moons, and all the celebrations of the people of Israel. ⁷She was exceedingly beautiful and very pleasing to look at. Manasseh, her husband, had left her gold, silver, servants, cattle and fields and she remained the owner of all this estate. ⁸No one could say anything evil of her because she greatly feared God. ⁹She heard of the threatening

2K 4:1;
1K 21:2

Est 2:7

Dn 13:2

words which the people had addressed to their leaders because they were downcast, suffering from lack of water. Judith also heard all that Uzziah had promised in reply, how he had sworn to hand over their city to the Assyrians at the end of five days. ¹⁰So she sent the maidservant who looked after her affairs, to call Chabris and Charmis, two elders of the town, to come and see her. ¹¹They came to her house and she said to them, "Listen to me, you elders of Bethulia, for the words which you have spoken in front of the people today are not right. You did wrong to take an oath between God and yourselves, and to say that you would hand over the town to our enemies if, within a certain number of days, the Lord does not come to your help. ¹²Who are you to put God to the test and take God's place when you answered the people? ¹³That is not the way to call for his mercy, but rather, one that leads to his wrath. ¹⁴For if you cannot probe the depths of the human heart nor know what a man is thinking, how can you understand the God who has made all things? Do you know his mind or understand his thoughts? No, my brothers, do not annoy the Lord our God. ¹⁵For if he does not wish to come to our help within these five days, he has the power to protect us for as many days as he wishes or else to annihilate us in front of our enemies.

Is 40:18;
Ps 139:
16-17

Dn 3:17

• 8.4 The Lord achieves his plans through the humble; he reveals his plans to the little ones and the humble (Mt 11:25-30). We can observe the Lord's way of doing things throughout the Bible: for example, his choosing David (1 S 16) and something similar in 1 Maccabees 3:18-22. In spite of her wealth, Judith is an insignificant woman before Holofernes' military power.

Who are you to put God to the test? Faithfulness to God stands out in Judith's speech to the leaders of the city. She reproaches them for wanting to put time limits on God to fulfill their human plans. Today many Christians do the same with their gifts, when they wish to force God to grant them a specific favor.

If the enemies capture us... the whole of Judea will be taken. Those with problems must think not only of their own interest but also of other people's. Judith forces them to think about the rest of the nation and not only about their city, Bethulia. National solidarity compels them to resist.

¹⁶As for yourselves, do not challenge the designs of the Lord our God, for God cannot give in to threats as humans do, nor can any decision be imposed upon him as it can on a mere mortal. ¹⁷That is why, while waiting patiently for him to save us, let us beg him to come to our help. He will listen to our plea, if it pleases him. ¹⁸For it has not happened in our generation nor is there among us today any tribe or family or people or city that worships gods made by human hands, as happened in days past. ¹⁹It was for that reason that our ancestors were handed over to be slain by the sword and pillaged, and that they suffered great disaster at the hands of their enemies. ²⁰But we do not recognize any other god than the One God, therefore let us hope that he will not look with contempt on us or on any of our race.

²¹If the enemies capture us, so in the same way, the whole of Judea will be taken; our Sanctuary will be pillaged and we will answer for its profanation with our blood. ²²God will bring upon our heads the murder of our brothers, the bondage of our country and the devastation of our heritage. Wherever among the nations we shall be slaves, we shall be maltreated by those to whom we belong. ²³Our enslavement will not be changed in our favor, but the Lord our God will turn it into dishonor.

²⁴Now, my brothers, let us show our fellow countrymen that their lives depend on ours; that the safety of the Sanctuary, the Temple and the Altar rests with us.

²⁵Much more, let us thank the Lord our God who is putting us to the test as he did our ancestors. ²⁶Remember what he did with Abraham, all the trials to which he subjected Isaac and all those that happened to Jacob in Mesopotamia of Syria where he looked after the sheep of Laban, his mother's brother. ²⁷Is not God making us pass through fire as he did the others to prove their hearts? The Lord is not punishing us, but he scourges those who draw near to him in order to admonish them."

²⁸Uzziah said to her, "All that you have said has been said with wisdom and no one can contradict your words. ²⁹In fact it is not just today that your wisdom is evident, but ever since your early days all the people have recognized your intelligence and the natural goodness of your heart. ³⁰But the people were suffering great thirst so they forced us to carry out what we have said, and they have charged us with an oath which we cannot break. ³¹Since you are a devout woman, pray for us that the Lord will send rain to fill our reservoirs and we shall no longer be exhausted."

³²Judith said to them, "Listen to me, I will do something which will be handed down from generation to generation of the children of our race. ³³Tonight you will stand at the gate of the town and I will go out with my maidservant and, by the end of the time which has been fixed for you to hand over the town to our enemies, the Lord will visit Israel through my hand. ³⁴But do not try to find out what I shall do for I will not tell you, until I have fulfilled what I will do."

³⁵Then Uzziah and the leaders said to her, "Go in peace and may the Lord our God go before you so that you may take vengeance upon our enemies." ³⁶Then, leaving Judith's room, they went back to their posts.

9¹ Judith knelt and bowed her head to the ground, put ashes on her head and uncovered the sackcloth with which she was clothed. At precisely the same moment as incense was being offered in the House of God at Jerusalem, Judith invoked aloud the Lord God, she said, ²"Lord, God of my father Simeon, you placed a sword in his hand to punish the foreigners who did violence to a young girl. For they had abused her, uncovering her body to shame her and violating her womb to dishonor her. They did this though you said: This shall not be done.

³Because of this you handed over their leaders to be slain and their bed, reddened because of their deceit, was left red with their blood. You struck down the slaves with their leaders and the leaders themselves with their servants. ⁴You handed over their women to rape, their daughters to slavery and all their possessions to be shared among your favored sons who were filled with horror at this defilement of their blood and invoked your help.

⁵O God, my God, listen to me, a widow! It is you who made all things past, what is present and what is yet to come. It is you who consider things present and to come. Those things which you decided have been realized. ⁶The things you have planned have presented themselves saying: Here we are. In truth, all your ways are prepared and your decision is known from the beginning of time.

⁷Therefore see what a great multitude these Assyrians make with their army, how they pride themselves on their horses and their cavalrymen. They have placed great pride in the strength of their foot soldiers and their trust in their shields, javelins, bows and arrows. ⁸But they do not recognize that you, Lord, decide the outcome of wars. Lord is your name; wipe out their force with your power, and in your anger overthrow their superiority; for they intend to profane your Sanctuary, to defile your Tabernacle where your glorious Name resides, to overturn by force the horn of your Altar.

⁹Consider their pride, let your anger fall on their heads and give to my hands, the hands of a widow, the strength necessary for what I have decided. ¹⁰By my lying lips punish the slave with his master and the master with his servant; put an end to their arrogance by the hand of a woman.

¹¹Truly your strength is not in number nor your power in strong men for you are a God of the humble, the defender of the little ones, the support of the weak, the protector of the abandoned, the savior of those in despair.

¹²Yes, God of my fathers and God of the heritage of Israel, Ruler of the heavens and the earth, Creator of the waters, King of all creation, listen to my prayer.

¹³Give me tempting words to wound and kill those who have conceived cruel designs against your Covenant, your consecrated House, Mount Zion and the House which belongs to your children.

¹⁴Make the nation and all the tribes know that you are God, all-powerful and strong, and that, apart from you, there is no other protector for the people of Israel."

The exploits of Judith

10 ¹When Judith had finished her prayer to the God of Israel, ²she rose from the ground, and after calling her maidservant, she went down into the house where she usually spent the sabbath days and the feasts. ³She took off the sackcloth and her widow's clothes in which she was dressed. She washed her whole body with water, anointed it with rich perfume, combed her hair and placed a jewelled band around it. She dressed herself in the beautiful garments she had been accustomed to wear when her husband, Manasseh, was living. ⁴She put sandals on her feet, put on her anklets, bracelets and rings, her earrings and all her jewels. She made herself extremely beautiful in order to attract the attention of the men who would see her.

⁵She gave the servant a skin of wine and a jar of oil, she filled a bag with flour made from barley and some small cakes made from dried figs and fine flour. She wrapped up all these things and put the maid in charge of them. ⁶Then they set out in the direction of the gate of the town of Bethulia where they found stationed Uzziah and the elders of the town, Chabris and Charmis.

⁷As soon as the men saw her, her face so transformed and her clothes so different, they were full of admiration for her beauty and said to her, ⁸"May the God of our fathers grant that you may find favor and that your undertakings may be successful for the glory of the sons of Israel and the exaltation of Jerusalem."

She adored God and said to them, ⁹"Command that the gate of the town be opened for me and I will go forth in order to accomplish what you have just said." They ordered the young men to open the gate as she had asked. ¹⁰They carried out the command and Judith went out with her maidservant.

The townsmen watched her until she reached the foot of the mountain and

Gen 38:14; Ru 3:3

Is 3:16; Est 15:1

2Mac 7:35

Jdg 4:9

crossed the valley, then they lost sight of her. ¹¹Judith and the maid walked straight through the valley and a sentry for the Assyrians came to meet them.

¹²He stopped them and asked, "Who are you? Where have you come from? Where are you going?" She replied, "I am a daughter of the Hebrews; I am fleeing far from them because they are on the point of handing themselves over to be despoiled by you. ¹³I have come to present myself to Holofernes, the general-in-chief of your army, to speak to him in all sincerity. I will show him a way by which he can advance and become master of the whole mountain without losing a single man either from injury or loss of life."

¹⁴As soon as the men had heard her words and noticed her face (for she was strikingly beautiful) they said to her, ¹⁵"You have saved your life by hurrying to present yourself before our lord. Approach his tent; certain men from among us will accompany you until they have handed you over safely into his hands. ¹⁶When you stand before him, do not have any fear in your heart, but tell him what you have to say and he will treat you well."

¹⁷They chose one hundred men from their number; these men accompanied Judith and the maid and led them to the tent of Holofernes. ¹⁸In the whole camp the news of her arrival spread from tent to tent, and throughout the whole camp men came running. They made a circle round her as she stood waiting outside Holofernes' tent while someone informed him of her arrival. ¹⁹They were captivated by her beauty and, on seeing her, they praised the sons of Israel and said to one another, "Who can look down on the people who have such women? It would be a mistake to leave one man alive; they would be able to deceive the whole world."

²⁰Those who were sleeping near Holofernes and all his officers came out and led her into the tent. ²¹Holofernes was lying on his bed under hangings of purple and gold set with emerald and precious stones. ²²Having been informed about her, he moved towards the entrance of the tent, with silver lamps carried before him. ²³As Judith came before him and his officers, they all admired the beauty of her face. Throwing herself face downwards to the ground, she bowed before him; the servants of Holofernes raised her up.

11 ¹Holofernes said to Judith, "Have confidence, woman, have no fear in your heart, I do not harm any person who has chosen to serve Nebuchadnezzar, king of all the earth. ²And, if those of your people who dwell on the mountain had not ignored me, I should not have raised my sword against them; but they have brought this upon themselves. ³Now, tell me why you have fled from their midst and have come to us. Are you doing this to save yourself? Have confidence, your life is safe tonight and also in the future. ⁴No one will harm you, you will be well-treated as are all the servants of my lord, king Nebuchadnezzar."

⁵Judith replied, "Listen to the words of your servant, so that I may speak freely in your presence and I will not lie to my lord tonight. ⁶And if you follow the advice of your servant, everything will be accomplished by the hand of God and my lord will not fail in his undertakings. ⁷For just as truly as Nebuchadnezzar is king of all the earth and his presence is felt, and he has sent you for the correction of others, it is thanks to your power that not only do men serve him but also wild beasts, animals and the birds of the air live for Nebuchadnezzar and all his house.

⁸We have heard of your wisdom and prudence of mind and it is said throughout the world that you alone are the bravest man in the kingdom, powerful because of your knowledge and outstanding in military strategy. ⁹We have heard about the discourse delivered in your council by Achior, and of its terms, because the men of Bethulia took him in and he reported to them all that he had said in your presence. ¹⁰Now all-powerful lord, do not dismiss what he said but keep it in mind because it is true. Our nation will never be punished nor the sword used against it unless its people sin against their God. ¹¹Yet my lord will not be driven back and fail. Death will overtake them, for they have fallen into the sin that arouses the anger of God every time they commit it. ¹²As a result of the shortage of food and water, they have decided to lay hands on their animals.

Ru 3:11

Dn 2:38

Wis 8:15

Lev 26:6;
2Mac
8:36

They have resolved to eat those things which God in his laws forbade them to eat, including the first fruits of the harvest and the tithes of wine and oil which, after their consecration, had been put aside for the priests who minister before the face of our God in Jerusalem. ¹³They have decided to consume these things completely, although it is not lawful for any of the people even to touch them with their hands. ¹⁴They have sent messengers to Jerusalem—for those who dwell there have also done this—and they have charged these men to bring back this permission from the Council of the Elders. ¹⁵Now it will come to pass that when this permission arrives and the people will have acted upon it, on that same day they will be delivered over to you for their destruction. ¹⁶That is why I, your servant, having understood all this, have fled far from them. God has sent me to bring about, along with you, deeds that will strike terror throughout the whole world and cause those who hear them to talk. ¹⁷For your servant is a pious woman who serves God night and day. From now on I will remain near you, my lord. Each evening I will go out towards the ravine and I will pray to God and he will tell me when they have fallen into sin. ¹⁸Then I will report this to you, so that you will go forth with your whole army and there will be no man able to withstand you. ¹⁹Then I will lead you through Judea until I arrive in Jerusalem where I will set up your tent. You will lead them like sheep without a shepherd and not one dog will growl at you. I have been given a premonition of these things. It has been revealed to me, and I have been sent to make it known to you.”

²⁰Her words pleased Holofernes and all his officers. They admired her wisdom and said, ²¹“From one end of the earth to the other there is no woman like her for the beauty of her face and the wisdom of her words.” ²²Holofernes said to her, “God has done well to send you ahead of this people to show them that the power is in my hands and that destruction is the fate of those who despised my lord. ²³You are beautiful to look at and prudent in your words: if you do as you have said, your God shall be my God and you will live in the house of king Nebuchadnezzar, and be famous throughout all the world.”

12 ¹Then Holofernes had her brought into the place where his silver dishes were laid out and commanded them to serve her from his food and to give her his wine to drink. ²But Judith said, “I will not eat it for fear that it might be the occasion of my downfall. What I have brought with me is sufficient.” ³Holofernes said to her, “When you have finished the things that you have brought, where will we be able to get the same kind of food to give you, for there is no one of your race here?” ⁴Judith said to him, “As your soul lives my lord, your servant will not have finished what I have brought with me before the Lord will have carried out by my hand what he has decided to do.”

⁵Then the officers of Holofernes led her to the tent and she slept until midnight. She arose at the morning watch ⁶and sent a message to Holofernes, “Will my lord command that his servant be allowed to go out to pray.” ⁷Holofernes ordered his bodyguards not to prevent her from doing so.

She remained in the camp three days. Each night she went to the ravine of Bethulia and bathed herself in the spring which was in the camp. ⁸When she returned to the tent, she prayed to the Lord, the God of Israel, that he would guide her steps in the right path to bring about the release of her people; ⁹and now purified, once she had returned, she remained in the tent until she took her food towards evening.

In the tent of Holofernes

• ¹⁰Then on the fourth day, Holofernes gave a banquet for his personal servants without sending invitations to any of his officers. ¹¹He said to the eunuch Bagoas who

• 12.10 In the dialogue between Judith and Holofernes, note how Judith says “my Lord” giving these words a double meaning.

She does not lie, but she speaks in such a way that Holofernes takes it for himself meanwhile Judith means her Lord.

Lev
22:10

Num
27:17;
1K 22:17

Ru 1:16

Dn 1:8

14:24

looked after his affairs, “Go and persuade this Hebrew woman who is under your care to come eat and drink with us, ¹²for it would be a disgrace if we allowed such a woman to depart without having enjoyed her company. If we are not able to allure her, she will laugh at us.”

¹³So Bagoas left Holofernes and entered Judith’s tent, and said to her, “Will this beautiful slave not hesitate to come to my lord’s tent to be honored in his presence, merrily to drink wine with us and to become this very day like an Assyrian woman who dwells in the house of Nebuchadnezzar?” ¹⁴Judith said to him, “Who am I to go against the wishes of my Lord? All that pleases him I will hasten to do and that will be for me a joy until the day of my death.”

¹⁵Then she arose; she dressed in her beautiful garments and all the finery of a woman. Her servant went and spread on the ground, in front of Holofernes, the fleece which Judith had received from Bagoas for her daily use so that she could recline on it while she ate.

¹⁶So Judith entered the tent and took her place. The heart of Holofernes was ravished by her beauty, his whole being was captivated and he had a passionate desire to possess her. Ever since the first day he had seen her, he had been waiting for an occasion to seduce her. ¹⁷Holofernes said to her: “Drink and share our happiness.” ¹⁸Judith said, “I will drink then, my lord, because today my life has become more precious to me than on any other day since my birth.” ¹⁹She took what her servant had prepared for her and ate and drank in front of him. ²⁰Holofernes was bewitched by her and he drank a great quantity of wine, much more than he had ever drunk on any single day since his birth.

God works marvels

13 • ¹When it was late, the servants hurried away. Bagoas dismissed from the presence of his master those who were standing around, and closed the tent from the outside. All the men hurried to bed for they were tired from having drunk too much. ²So Judith was left alone in the tent with Holofernes who, sodden with wine, had collapsed onto the bed. ³Judith told her servant to stand outside the room and watch for her coming out because she would go out to pray, as she did each day. She also spoke to Bagoas in much the same way.

⁴Everyone left the tent of Holo-

• 13.1 The whole account that follows emphasizes the vigilant love of God who intervenes when it is necessary and who safely conducts our enterprises, even those apparently doomed to failure when we risk everything to save our brothers and sisters. In this sense it is true. We shall note however, that the trickery of Judith and the incredible rout of the Assyrians after the death of Holofernes are a dream of childish powerlessness. The account was composed after the time of the Maccabees from the memories of a crushed people, unable to resist the oppressor; it originated in the migrant Jewish communities who had lost their taste and capability for an armed struggle. The old dream of a magic resource rises again; here we have a miraculous intervention of God capable of overturning all situations and crushing evil forever.

Here it is easy to see a mixture of the human and the divine: limitless trust in God and the fabulous dreams of a child. Here once more the cross of Jesus and his resurrection, so strong and so discreet, will keep us within reality.

The account rings true however when the triumph of Judith makes little of the prestige and venerability of men, elders or priests, who pass for the leaders of God’s people. It is an act of reparation in favor of women in a thoroughly macho society: God has no thought for these alleged valiant or honored men; all they have to do is applaud an untitled woman.

fernes, not one—small or great—remained in the room. Judith, then, stood by Holofernes' bed and prayed in her heart, "Lord God all-powerful, help me now in what I will do for the glory of Jerusalem. ⁵For now is the time to support the cause of your people and to ensure that my undertaking brings about the ruin of the enemies who are drawn up against us."

⁶Then she moved towards the bedpost near Holofernes' head and took down the sword and, ⁷approaching the bed, she seized the hair of his head saying, "O Lord God of Israel, give me strength, this very moment!" ⁸Then with all her strength she struck his neck twice and cut off his head. ⁹She then rolled his body from the bed and took off the hangings from the columns. Then she went out at once and gave the head of Holofernes to her servant ¹⁰who put it in the bag in which she carried the food. Then they went out together as they used to do for prayer. After they had crossed the camp, they passed round the edge of the ravine, climbed the mountain to Bethulia and reached the gates of the town.

¹¹Judith called from a distance to those who were keeping guard at the gates, "Open, open the gates! God, our God, is with us! Today he has once again worked a miracle in Israel and exerted his power against our enemies." ¹²As soon as the townsfolk heard her voice, they called the elders and hurried down to the gates of the town. ¹³They all ran together, from the smallest to the greatest, for they were waiting for her return. They opened the gates and welcomed the two women; then, having lighted a fire so as to see them, they gathered around the two. ¹⁴She said to them in a loud voice, "Praise God, praise him! Praise God who has not withheld his mercy from the House of Israel. This very night he has crushed our enemies by my hand."

¹⁵And, taking out the head of Holofernes from the bag, she showed it to them saying, "Here is the head of Holofernes, general-in-chief of the Assyrian army, and here are the hangings under which he was lying in his drunkenness. The Lord has struck him down by the hand of a woman. ¹⁶As truly as the Lord lives, it was my face that seduced him to his undoing, but the Lord has protected me. This man could not sin with me to disgrace or dishonor me." ¹⁷All the people were greatly amazed, so they bowed down and worshiped God, saying with one voice, "Blessed are you, our God, who today have crushed the enemies of your people."

Blessed are you among all women

• ¹⁸Uzziah said to her, "My daughter, may the Most High God bless you more than all women on earth."

And blessed be the Lord God, the Creator of heaven and earth, who has led you to behead the leader of our enemies.

¹⁹Never will people forget the confidence you have shown; they will always remember the power of God.

Ps 66:20

2Mac
15:32;
Jdg 4:9Gen
14:19;
Jdg
5:24;
Lk 1:28;
1:42

• 18. May the Most High God bless you more than all women on earth. Luke will remember these words and will adapt them for Mary (Lk 1:42). With Luke we easily see in Judith's victory the image of another victory in which Mary "crushed the head of the serpent" in perfectly welcoming the Son of God and his patient work to redeem the world from the Devil's hands, as the Bible had announced (Gen 3:15). The hymn we refer to: You are the glory of Israel speaks more truly of Mary than of Judith.

Mt
26:13;
Lk 1:48;
1Mac
13:5

²⁰May God ensure your everlasting glory, and may he reward and bless you for you have risked your life when your race was humiliated.

You chose instead to do the best before God in order to prevent our downfall.”

And all the people said, “Amen! Amen!”

2Mac
15:33

14 ¹Judith said to them, “Listen, my brothers, take this head and hang it from the battlements of our rampart, ²then when dawn breaks and the sun rises over the earth, let each of you take his weapons and let all those able to fight go outside the town. And under the command of a captain, proceed as if you were about to go down into the plain in the direction of the Assyrian outposts, but you will not descend. ³The Assyrian guards will seize their arms, and go towards their camp to awaken the generals of the Assyrian army. These officers will run to the tent of Holofernes but will not find him; fear will then come upon them and they will flee from you. ⁴Then you and all those who dwell in the land of Israel will follow them and strike them down as they go. ⁵But, before you do this, call Achior the Ammonite so that he may see and recognize the one who despised the people of Israel, the man who sent him to you as to his death.”

15:16

⁶Achior was brought from the house of Uziah. As soon as he arrived and saw the head of Holofernes in the hand of one of the people, he fainted and fell face down on the ground. ⁷When they had lifted him up, he threw himself at the feet of Judith, bowed before her and said, “May you be blessed throughout Judea and among all the nations, who on hearing your name will be amazed. ⁸But now, tell me all that you did during these days.”

Standing in the midst of the people, Judith told him all that she had done from the day she set out until the moment in which she was now speaking to them. ⁹When she had finished talking, the people cried out with great joy, and this was heard throughout the town. ¹⁰When Achior saw all that the God of Israel had done, he immediately believed in him. He was circumcised and became a member of the community of Israel down to this day.

¹¹When the sun had risen and they had hung Holofernes’ head on the rampart, all the men took their arms and went out in groups to the mountain slopes. ¹²As soon as the Assyrians saw them, they warned their commanders. These men, in turn, went to inform the generals, the captains and all their officers. ¹³Then they all went to the tent of Holofernes and said to the steward in charge of his affairs, “Waken our Lord, for the slaves plan to come down and fight against us to their utter destruction. ¹⁴So Bagoas drew back the curtain and knocked, thinking that Holofernes was sleeping with Judith. ¹⁵As no one answered, he entered the room, and found Holofernes lying across the wooden footstool dead with his head cut off. ¹⁶He cried out with a loud voice and tore his clothes. ¹⁷He entered the tent where Judith had stayed but did not find her. Then he rushed out to the troops, shouting, ¹⁸“The slaves have deceived us! One Hebrew woman has put to shame the army of king Nebuchadnezzar, for Holofernes lies dead on the ground. ¹⁹When the officers of the Assyrian army heard these words, they were greatly distressed. They tore their garments and cried out with a loud voice in their camp.

15 ¹When those who were in the camp heard the cries, they were astounded. ²Terror and fear fell on them, they no longer controlled themselves but at the same moment they all broke rank and fled by way of the roads across the plain and the mountain. ³Those who were encamped in the mountains around Bethulia also began to flee. Then the men of Israel, all among them who were capable of fighting, fell on them. ⁴Uziah sent messengers to Betomasthaim, Choba, Kona, and throughout the land of Israel, to announce what had happened and to invite them all to fall upon the enemy and destroy them. ⁵When the men of Israel heard this, they threw themselves on the enemy and pursued them as far as Choba. Even those from Jerusalem came, as well as those from all the mountainous region, because they were told what had happened in the camp of their enemies. Those from Gilead and from Galilee caught them on the flank and struck great blows against them until they reached Damascus and its surrounding territory. ⁶As for the inhabitants of Bethulia who remained behind, they rushed into the Assyrian camp, pillaged it and thereby greatly enriched themselves. ⁷Once they returned from the carnage, the Israelite men took possession of what remained. Also the people from the villages and farms in the mountains and on the plains seized great booty because there was plenty that they could get.

2K 7:16;
1Mac
7:46

⁸Then the high priest Joakim and the council of the Elders of Israel in Jerusalem came to hear the good things which the Lord had done for Israel, and to see Judith and congratulate her. ⁹As soon as they had approached her they blessed her all together and said,

“You are the pride and joy of Jerusalem! You are the glory of Israel. You are the honor of our people.

¹⁰You alone have accomplished all this. You have done great things for Israel and God has blessed your work. May the almighty Lord bless you forever.”

And all the people said, “Amen!”

¹¹All the people pillaged the camp for thirty days. They gave Holofernes’ tent to Judith, with all his silver, his beds, his drinking vessels and all his furniture. She took them, and after harnessing her mule, she prepared her chariots and piled up all these goods in them.

¹²All the Israelite women also ran out to see her, they blessed her and a number of them formed a choir in her honor. She took olive branches in her hand and gave some to the women who accompanied her. ¹³She and the women with her made crowns of olive leaves. Then she went ahead of the people, leading the women in dance. All the Israelite men followed, clad in their armor, carrying crowns and loudly chanting hymns. ¹⁴Then Judith intoned this hymn of thanksgiving and the entire people of Israel echoed this praise.

The song of Judith

16 ¹Judith said, “Sing a song to my God with tambourines, sing in honor of God with cymbals.
Compose for him a psalm of praise.
Exalt and bless his Name!

²The Lord is truly a God who crushes war, who encamps in the midst of his people for he has snatched me from the hand of those who pursued me.

³The Assyrian came from the mountains of the north.

He came with the myriads of his army, his soldiers have filled the torrents and his cavalry covered the hills.

⁴He wanted to burn my land, to kill the young men by the sword,
to destroy my children at the breast, to hand over my little ones to slaughter and to rape my young maidens.

⁵The Lord Almighty has driven them back by the hand of a woman.

⁶Their hero has not been overcome by young warriors;
he was not struck down by the sons of the Titans,

or laid low by any great giants.
But it is Judith, the daughter of Merari, who by the beauty of her face has defeated him.

For the relief of the oppressed in Israel ⁷she took off her widow’s robes, anointed her face with perfume,

⁸put a jewelled band around her hair, and put on a linen dress in order to seduce him.

⁹Her sandals delighted his eyes, her beauty captivated his soul,
and the scimitar cut through his neck.

¹⁰The Persians trembled with fear at her boldness, and the Medes were upset by her daring.

¹¹Then my oppressed people shouted for joy;
my weak ones cried out,
the enemy was terrified;
they raised their voices; the enemy took to flight.

¹²The children of young women pierced them through and struck them down like fugitives, and so the enemy perished in a battle arranged by God.

¹³I will sing to my God a new song:
Lord, you are great and glorious, wonderfully strong, invincible!

¹⁴May the whole of your creation serve you,
for you spoke and all things were,
you sent forth your spirit and all things came into being:

No one can resist your voice.

¹⁵For the mountains with the waters will be shaken to their foundations, the rocks will melt like wax before you,
but to those who fear you you will always show mercy.

¹⁶The fragrance of any sacrifice is little to please you and the holocausts of fatted animals are as nothing before you, but he who fears the Lord is forever great.

¹⁷Woe to the nations which rise up against my people:

The Lord Almighty will punish them in the day of judgment, with fire and worms under their skin, and they will keep on weeping, suffering forever."

¹⁸When they arrived in Jerusalem, they worshiped God and, when the people had been purified, they presented their holocausts, freewill offerings and gifts. ¹⁹Then Judith offered all of Holofernes' belongings which the people had given her and she dedicated to the Lord the hangings from his room which she herself had taken. ²⁰So the people remained in Jerusalem, rejoicing before the Sanctuary for three months and Judith stayed with them.

²¹After these days were over, each one returned to his own house. Judith returned to Bethulia and devoted herself to her household. During her lifetime she was famous throughout the land.

²²Though many desired to marry her, she had no relation with any man since the death and burial of Manasseh, her husband.

²³She spent her old age in the house of her husband. And she set her maidser-vant free. She died in Bethulia at the age of a hundred and five and was buried in the grave of Manasseh, her husband.

²⁴All Israel mourned for her for seven days. Before her death she had divided her property among the relatives of her husband, Manasseh, and those of her own family.

²⁵No one again threatened the people of Israel while Judith lived, nor for a very long time after her death.

The book of Baruch was among the last books of the Bible to be written. It was written during the last century before Christ, in one of the Jewish communities outside of Palestine.

It includes several texts helpful to the dispersed Jews:

- a “prayer of the exiles” which intensified their longing for the Holy Land;
- a beautiful poem about wisdom (3:9–4:4);
- several texts inspired by the prophets of the exile;
- a “letter from Jeremiah,” which is a controversial text against idols (Bar 6).

Because it included some paragraphs written in Jeremiah’s style, it was attributed to Baruch, the prophet’s secretary (see Jer 36).

The prayer of exiles

1 ¹These are the words of the book written by Baruch, the son of Neriah, descended from Massiah, from Sedekiah, from Hasadiah, from Hilkiyah. ²They were written in the fifth year, on the seventh day of the month, at the time when the Chaldeans had taken Jerusalem and burned it.

2K 23:2;
24:8-17

³Baruch read the words of this book to Jeconiah, the son of Joachim, the king of Judah, in the presence of all the people who had come together to hear it read. ⁴He read it in the hearing of the nobles and the king’s sons, of the elders and all the people, from the smallest to the greatest—that is, all those who were living in Babylon near the River Sudi.

⁵Then the people wept and fasted and prayed before the Lord. ⁶They also collected money according to what each one could afford ⁷and this they sent to Jerusalem, to the priest Jehoiakim, son of Hilkiyah, the son of Shallum, and to the other priests and people who dwell in Jerusalem with him. ⁸This same Baruch had undertaken to carry back to Judea, on the tenth day of the month of Sivan, the sacred vessels which had been taken away from the Temple of the Lord. These were the silver vessels made by Zedekiah, son of Josiah, king of Judah, ⁹after Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, had carried off Jeconiah, the artisans, the nobles and the people of the land and had taken them captive to Babylon.

¹⁰The letter said: Look, we are sending you money; buy with it victims for the holocaust and for sin offerings and incense; prepare oblations and offer them on the Altar of the Lord our God. ¹¹Pray for the life of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and of Balthasar, his son, so that they may be successful in all that they do. ¹²Thus the Lord will give strength and light to our eyes. We will live under the protection of Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, and of his son, Balthasar. We shall have a long life serving them and we shall find favor before them.

Jer 17:26

¹³Pray to the Lord our God for us also, for we have sinned against the Lord our God, even to this day the anger of the Lord and his fury have not been turned away from us. ¹⁴Finally, read this book which we are sending to you, so that you can read it publicly in the House of the Lord on the day of the Feast and on other suitable days.

2:6;
Dn 9:7-8;
Ezra 9:7

¹⁵You will say: May everyone recognize the justice of our God but, on this day, shame and confusion befit the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem—¹⁶our kings and princes, our priests, our prophets, and our fathers, ¹⁷because we have sinned before the Lord. ¹⁸We have disobeyed him and have not listened to the voice of the Lord our God, nor have we followed the commandments which the Lord had put before us. ¹⁹From the day that the Lord brought our ancestors out of the land of Egypt until this day, we have disobeyed the Lord our God and we have rebelled against him instead of listening to his voice.

Lev 26:
14-39

²⁰Because of this, from the day on which the Lord brought our ancestors out of the land of Egypt, so as to give them a land flowing with milk and honey, the evils and the curse which the Lord pronounced by Moses, his servant, have dogged our footsteps right down to the present day. ²¹We did not listen to the voice of the Lord our God speaking through the words of the prophets whom he sent to us, ²²but each one of us followed his perverted heart, serving false gods and doing what displeases the Lord our God.

2 ¹That is why the Lord our God has carried out the word which he spoke against us, against the judges who have governed Israel, against our kings, our princes and the people of Israel and Judah.

²No one under the sky has ever seen the like of what happened in Jerusalem, according to what is written in the book of Moses. ³For people among us came to eat their son's and daughter's flesh. ⁴And he handed them over into the power of all the surrounding kingdoms, so that they were cursed and humiliated among the neighboring peoples among whom the Lord had scattered them. ⁵Submission and not command has been our lot, because we have sinned against the Lord our God and have not listened to his voice.

Dt 28:13

1:15

⁶Just is the Lord our God, whereas shame and confusion befit us and our ancestors right down to this day. ⁷All those evils which the Lord prophesied concerning us have fallen upon us. ⁸And we have not begged the Lord to make each of us turn away from the thoughts of our evil hearts. ⁹Then the Lord kept watch over the evils and allowed them to come upon us, for the Lord is just in all that he has commanded us to do. ¹⁰We have not listened to his voice nor followed the commands which the Lord has ordered us to keep.

¹¹And now, Lord God of Israel, you who brought your people out of Egypt with a strong hand, with miracles and wonders and great power, you who stretched out your arm and made for yourself a name such as you have today, ¹²we have sinned. We have been godless and unjust, Lord, careless about all your commands. ¹³May your fury be turned away from us, for there are very few of us left among the nations in which you have scattered us.

¹⁴Hear our supplication and our prayer, O Lord, deliver us for your own honor and let us find favor with those who deported us. ¹⁵Let all the earth know that you are the Lord our God, because Israel and its people bear your name. ¹⁶Lord, look down from your holy dwelling place and think of us; Lord, incline your ear and listen; ¹⁷Lord, open your eyes and consider: it is not the dead, lying in the netherworld, who will praise your glory and justice, ¹⁸since their spirit has been taken from their breast. Grieving under his burden, and walking bowed down and exhausted, the man with eyes sore from weeping and who is hungry—these are they, who can give you glory and justice, O Lord.

¹⁹For it is not on account of the merits of our ancestors and of our kings that we pour out our cry for pity before you, O Lord our God. ²⁰You have sent down on us your fury and your anger as you announced through your servants, the prophets, saying, ²¹“Thus says the Lord: Bend your shoulders and serve the king of Babylon and you will dwell in the land that I gave to your ancestors. ²²But if you do not listen to the voice of the Lord your God and serve the king of Babylon, ²³I will bring to an end in the towns of Judah and in Jerusalem the song of joy and gladness, the song of the bridegroom and the bride, and the whole country will become a desert without inhabitants. ²⁴We did not listen to your invitation to serve the king of Babylon and so you carried out what you had foretold by your servants, the prophets, that the bones of

Dn 9:15

Dn 9:18;
Tit 3:5Jer
27:11

Jer 7:34

Jer 8:1

our kings and our ancestors would be taken from their graves. ²⁵See, they have been exposed to the heat of the day and the cold of the night; they died in cruel sufferings, by famine, by the sword and by plagues. ²⁶And you have reduced the nation which bears your name to the state in which it is today because of the wickedness of the people of Judah.

²⁷However, you have acted towards us, O Lord our God, indulgently and with great tenderness, ²⁸as you foretold by your servant Moses, the day you ordered him to write down your Law in the presence of the children of Israel saying: ²⁹If you do not listen to my voice, this great and vast multitude will be reduced to a small remnant among the nations where I shall scatter them; ³⁰for I know well that they will not listen to me because they are a stiff-necked people. But in the land of their exile their hearts will be converted ³¹and they will know that I am the Lord their God. ³²And I will give them a heart and listening ears, that they may praise me in the land of their exile and remember my name. ³³They will repent of their stiff-necked obstinacy and their evil deeds, because they will remember what happened to their ancestors who had sinned before the Lord. ³⁴And I will lead them into the land which I have promised by oath to their ancestors, to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and they will take possession of it. I will increase their number and it will no longer diminish. ³⁵I will make with them an everlasting covenant; I will be their God and they shall be my people. I will no longer drive my people Israel from the land which I have given them.

3 ¹Almighty Lord, God of Israel, a soul in anguish and a discouraged spirit cries out to you. ²Listen, Lord, and have pity for we have sinned against you; ³for you reign forever while we perish forever. ⁴Lord, all-powerful God of Israel, listen then to the prayers of the dead of Israel. We are the sons of those who sinned against you, who did not listen to the voice of their God, and this is why disgrace has come upon us. ⁵Do not remember any longer the wrongdoing of our fathers, but remember at this time your power and your name; ⁶for you are the Lord, our God and we will praise you, Lord. ⁷That is why you have put your fear into our hearts and we call upon your name. And we will praise you in our exile for we have removed from our hearts all the wrong of our fathers who sinned against you. ⁸We are here today in our exile where you have scattered us to be insulted, cursed and condemned for the wrongdoing of our fathers, who separated themselves from the Lord our God.

Who has found wisdom?

⁹Listen, Israel, to the commands of life, give ear so as to learn prudence, ¹⁰Why, Israel! Why are you in the land of your foes? Why are you growing old in a foreign country, contaminated by pagans,

¹¹counted among those who go to the pit? Hos 9:4

¹²You have abandoned the source of Wisdom.

¹³If you had walked in the way of God, peace would be your dwelling place forever.

¹⁴Learn where is Wisdom, where is Strength and Understanding, that you may know, at the same time, where are length of days and life, light of the eyes and Peace.

¹⁵Who will find Wisdom's dwelling? Who will enter her storage rooms? Job 28:12; Sir 1:6; Job 28:20

¹⁶Where are the leaders of the nations, those who commanded the beasts of the earth, Dn 2:38

¹⁷who played with the birds of the heavens, who piled up silver and gold—in which people put their trust—and who never tired of collecting it?

• 3.9 This poem is inspired by chapter 28 of Job.

The author addresses believers who are very impressed by the culture and material wealth of the pagans among whom they live. He reminds them that authentic human wisdom is not mere technical knowledge, nor is it the art of making money or pure human reflection.

Wisdom consists in knowing what is God's plan in creating this world. What does God ask of humankind?

For Jewish believers, true wisdom was found in God's words, in their "Law." In their turn, Christians know that the wisdom ruling the universe is none other than the one known in the words and the person of Jesus.

¹⁸ Amassing money was their only concern, their business beyond measure.

¹⁹ But they have disappeared, they have gone down to the dead and others have risen in their place.

²⁰ A younger generation is there on the earth and enjoys the light, but they have not known the ways of knowledge;

they have not seen his tracks nor have they met him,

²¹ and their children after them did not leave their paths.

Jer 49:7 ²² No one in Canaan has heard of Wisdom, no one has seen her in Teman.

²³ The sons of Agar, who seek knowledge of the earth,

the traders of Madian and Teman,
the tellers of fables and philosophers, they have not known the path of Wisdom,

they have not discovered her ways.

²⁴ O Israel, how great is the house of God, how vast his dominion!

²⁵ It is great and has no limits.

It is lofty, wide and immeasurable.

²⁶ There were born the ancient and famous giants of high stature and skillful in war.

²⁷ God did not choose them, he did not teach them the ways of

Wisdom,
²⁸ and they perished because of their folly, because they lacked knowledge.

Dt 30:11 ²⁹ Who has ascended to Heaven that he may lay hold of her and bring her down from the clouds?

Sir 24:4 ³⁰ Who has crossed seas and found her, and bought her with the purest of gold?

³¹ There is no one who knows her path, no one who thinks of her way.

Job 28:23 ³² But he who knows everything recognizes her.

He has found her in his own intellect.

He who created the earth, for all time,
and has filled it with four-footed beings.

³³ He who sends the light, and it goes, who recalls it, and trembling it obeys.

Sir 43:9;
Ps 147:4 ³⁴ The stars shine, full of joy, to keep their night watches.

He calls them and they answer, "Here we are."

They shine with joy for their Creator.

³⁵ It is he who is our God, no other can be compared with him.

³⁶ He has found the way of understanding and has given her to Jacob his servant and to Israel his well-beloved.

Pro 8:31 ³⁷ Then Wisdom was seen on earth and lived among humans.

4 ¹ She herself is the book of the commands of God, the law which endures forever.

All who hold fast to her will have life but those who abandon her will die.

Sir 45:5 ² Come back, Jacob, and embrace her, walk towards brightness under her light.

³ Do not give up what is your glory or sell your privileges to any strange nation.

⁴ We are fortunate, O Israel, for we know what pleases the Lord!

Consolation for Jerusalem

⁵ Take courage, my people, you who preserve the memory of Israel. ⁶ You have been sold to the nations but not for your destruction; because you had aroused the anger of God, you were delivered to your enemies. ⁷ For you displeased your Dt 32:17 Creator in sacrificing to demons and not to God. ⁸ You have forgotten the Eternal God, the one who nourished you. You have filled Jerusalem with sadness, she who brought you up. ⁹ For she saw the anger of God fall on you and she said,

"Listen, you neighboring cities of Zion, God has sent me a great sorrow. ¹⁰ I have seen the captivity of my sons and daughters, which the Eternal one brought on them. ¹¹ I had nurtured them in joy; with tears and sadness I saw them leave. ¹² Let no one rejoice on seeing me a widow and abandoned by all. Because of the sins of my children I am now alone, because they have turned away from the law of God.

¹³ They have not remembered its precepts; nor have they walked in the ways of his commandments, and followed the discipline which leads to uprightness.

Is 49:21 ¹⁴ Let them come, the neighbors of Zion, and remember the captivity which the Eternal One laid on my sons and daughters.

¹⁵ For he caused a distant nation to come against them, a ruthless nation with an unknown language.

Jer 5:15 ¹⁶ They had no respect for the old, and no pity for the infant; ¹⁶ they took away the only son of the widow, as well as her daughter, and left her alone.

¹⁷ But as for myself, how can I help you? ¹⁸He who caused these evils to come upon you will deliver you from the hands of your enemies.

¹⁹Well, my children, go on your way; as for me, I am left alone.

²⁰I have taken off the garment of peace and put on again the sackcloth of penance and prayer. I will cry out to the Eternal One all the rest of my days.

²¹Come, take courage, my children, cry out to God. He will deliver you from the violence of the enemy.

²²Because I hoped for your salvation from the Eternal One, joy has come to me from the Holy One, because of the mercy that will come to you soon from the Eternal One, our Savior.

²³In tears and mourning, I saw you leave, but in joy and gladness God will bring you back to me forever.

²⁴As the neighbors of Zion have seen your captivity so they will soon see your salvation from God, when he manifests to you the great glory and the splendor of the Eternal God.

Ps 110:1 ²⁵Children, bear patiently this punishment which came on you from God. The enemy has persecuted you, but you will soon see his downfall and you will trample him underfoot.

²⁶My well-beloved children have walked by difficult paths, carried off like a herd stolen by enemies. ²⁷Take courage, my children, cry out to God, for he who sent you into exile will remember you.

²⁸Thus, as you distanced yourself from God, return to him and seek him ten times more earnestly. ²⁹For he who caused these evils to fall on you will bring you salvation and eternal joy.

Is 40:1 ³⁰Take courage, Jerusalem. He who has named you will console you.

³¹Cursed be those who did evil to you and rejoiced in your downfall. ³²Cursed be those cities in which your children were slaves, cursed the nation in which they had to live.

³³Just as that nation rejoiced in your downfall and took pleasure in your destruction so will she be afflicted and destroyed.

³⁴I will take from her the joy of being a numerous people; her pride will be turned into mourning.

• ³⁵A fire will descend on her from the Eternal One and burn for many days. She will be inhabited by demons for a long time.

³⁶Jerusalem, look towards the East, and see the joy which is coming to you from God.

Is 43:5 ³⁷Look, your children who were scattered are returning. They are assembling, coming together, from the East and from the West, at the voice of the Holy One, rejoicing in the glory of God.

Is 52:1 5 ¹Jerusalem, put off your garment of mourning and unhappiness, put on the splendor and glory of God forever.

²Wrap yourself in the mantle of holiness that comes from God, put on your head the crown of glory of the Eternal One.

Is 62:1 ³For God will show your splendor to every being under Heaven.

⁴He will call your name forever, "Peace in Justice" and "Glory in the Fear of the Lord."

⁵Rise up, Jerusalem, stand on the heights. Look towards the East and see your children gathered together from the setting of the sun to its rising, by the voice of the Holy One, rejoicing because God has remembered them.

⁶They left you on foot, taken away by the enemy. God will lead them back, carried gloriously like royal princes.

Is 40:4 ⁷For God has resolved to bring low every high mountain and the everlasting hills, to fill up the valleys and level out the ground, in order that Israel may walk in safety under the Glory of God.

⁸Even the forests and the fragrant trees will give shade to Israel at God's command. ⁹For God will lead Israel with joy by the light of his Glory, escorting them with his mercy and justice.

The Letter of Jeremiah

6 • A copy of the letter, which Jeremiah sent to those who were to be taken captive to Babylon by the king of the Babylonians, to let them know what God had ordered him.

• 4.35 Following the laments of verses 5-35, note the ending filled with hope and joy (4:36-5:9) which resembles chapters 60-62 of Isaiah.

¹“Because of the sins you have committed against God, you will be led captive to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar, king of the Babylonians. ²After your arrival in Babylon you will remain there for a number of years—a long time, for seven generations; but after that I shall bring you home in peace.

³In Babylon you will see gods of silver, gold and wood, carried on men’s shoulders and filling the people with fear.

⁴Take care not to copy what foreigners do and not to let yourselves be terrified by them ⁵when you see the crowds pressing in front and behind to adore them. ⁶Say rather to yourselves: ‘Master, it is you we are to adore.’ My angel is with you to take care of your lives.

23:20

Is 40:19;
Jer 10:4

⁷Their tongues have been polished by a craftsman and even if they are of gold and silver, they are false and are unable to speak. ⁸As for a maiden conscious of her appearance, these pagans make golden crowns for their gods. ⁹Yet at times the priests steal the gold and silver from their gods for their own use and for the prostitutes in their temples.

¹⁰They give clothes to these gods as if they were people, but they are only things of gold, silver and wood, which cannot defend themselves from rust or woodworm. ¹¹So, after clothing them in purple, they wipe their faces because of the thick dust of the temple that covers them.

¹²The god has a scepter like a governor of a province, but he cannot destroy the person who has wronged him. ¹³He carries sword and axe in his right hand, but he is helpless both in war and against thieves. ¹⁴This clearly proves they are not gods; have no fear of them.

¹⁵A broken pot is useless for anyone. So are those gods enshrined in their temples. ¹⁶Their eyes are full of the dust raised by those who enter. ¹⁷Just as doors are carefully closed on a man who has offended the king or on a convict sentenced to death, in the same way the priests lock and bolt the doors of the temple for fear of thieves. ¹⁸They light lamps, far more numerous than what they need for themselves, and yet the god sees no one. ¹⁹He is no more than any of the beams of the temple and some whisper that the inner part is gnawed by termites; worms out of the ground devour both the god and his clothes, but he feels nothing. ²⁰Their faces have become black because of the smoke of the temple. ²¹Owls alight on their heads and shoulders, swallows and other birds perch on them and cats prowl around them. ²²This tells you they are not gods, so have no fear of them.

²³If the rust on the gold that adorns them is not removed, they cannot shine. Yet what does it matter? Even when they were cast they felt nothing. ²⁴They may be bought at a high price but there is not a breath of life in them. ²⁵As they are without feet, they are carried on men’s shoulders, showing publicly their shame. What a confusion for their worshipers if the god falls! They must lift him up. ²⁶Once he has been stood up, he does not move. If tilted, he is helpless to straighten up. So you make offerings to these gods as you make to dead people.

Sir 30:18

²⁷The priests collect what has been offered for sacrifice, selling it, while the wives salt some of it but give nothing to the poor and helpless. Do you think these are true offerings? Even women giving birth or who are ritually unclean touch them. ²⁸See that they are not gods and have no fear of them.

Lev
15:19

²⁹How can they be called gods? Women carry offerings to things made of silver, wood and gold. ³⁰The priests remain seated in the temple, their garments torn, head and beard shaved, and no covering on their heads. ³¹They roar and cry in the presence of their gods as do certain people during funeral meals. ³²With the garments taken from the gods the priests clothe their wives and their children. ³³Whether they are treated well or shabbily, the gods can make no return, neither can they make or unmake a king. ³⁴They are incapable of bestow-

• 6.1 This discourse also serves as a warning for us against exaggerated devotion to the saints and too much interest in religious images.

In the midst of so many considerations which may seem tedious to us, note the judgment expressed in verses 27 and 37: a religion which shows no concern for orphans and widows is a false religion.

ing riches or money. If someone fails to keep a vow, he is not called to account.

Wis
16:13

³⁵They can neither save anyone from death nor rescue a helpless person from the clutch of the powerful. ³⁶They cannot restore sight to the blind or save someone in distress. ³⁷They will show no compassion to the widow nor do good to the orphan.

Ps 146:7

³⁸These pieces of wood plated with gold and silver are no more worthy than rocks hewn out of a mountain and their worshipers shall be humiliated. ³⁹How then can anyone believe they are gods? How can they be called gods?

⁴⁰The Chaldeans themselves have put them to shame. If they see someone who is dumb, unable to speak, they bring him before Bel, entreating him to make him speak, as if the god could hear them!

⁴¹And yet these thinking people are unable to abandon gods that are completely devoid of sense. ⁴²Women with cord round their waists sit in the street burning bran. ⁴³When one of them has been picked up by a passerby and has slept with him, she taunts her companion for not having been so highly regarded as herself and for failing to have her cord broken. ⁴⁴All that goes on anywhere near these gods is false. How can they be considered or declared to be gods?

⁴⁵They have been fashioned by craftsmen and goldsmiths; they are nothing more than what the artisans decided they were to be. ⁴⁶Those who made them haven't long to live; so how could the work of their hands be gods? ⁴⁷What they leave to their descendants is nothing more than illusion and shame.

⁴⁸For when war or other disasters come upon them, they discuss among themselves where they, with their gods, will hide. ⁴⁹How could anyone fail to be convinced that what cannot save from war and disaster is not a god? ⁵⁰Later on, these pieces of wood plated with silver and gold will be known to be false. It will be plain to all kings and nations that they are not gods, but merely the work of human hands and God does nothing through them. ⁵¹Is there anyone unconvinced that these are not gods?

⁵²They are incapable of establishing a king in a country or of sending rain to people. ⁵³They are unable to discern what is just or to rescue a person who has been wronged. They are as helpless as crows between the sky and the ground. ⁵⁴When fire breaks out in the temple of these wooden gods plated with silver and gold, the priests flee to safety but their gods are burnt with the beams in the midst of the flames. ⁵⁵They can neither resist a king nor a hostile army. ⁵⁶How can it be admitted or believed that they are gods?

⁵⁷These gods cannot escape either from thieves or brigands. These are more powerful and despoil them of their gold, their silver and their robes. Such gods are unable to defend themselves.

⁵⁸Better to be a king with a show of power, or even a household pot that is of some use to its owner than to be a false god; better even to be the door of a house that guards what is within, or a wooden column in a royal palace than to be a false god. ⁵⁹The sun, moon and stars that shine and serve us are obedient to God; ⁶⁰likewise the lightning that is beautiful to see, and the wind that blows over the country ⁶¹and the clouds passing over the earth at God's command, fire sent from on high to consume mountain and forest—all do what is commanded. ⁶²But these wooden objects can in no way compare with them, ⁶³that is why it must not be either believed or said that these are gods, since they are powerless to administer justice or benefit anyone in any way. ⁶⁴Since you know they are not gods, have no fear of them.

Gen 1:14

Sir 43:17

⁶⁵They can neither curse ⁶⁶nor bless kings, nor bring about signs in the heavens for the nations to see. They can neither shine like the sun nor give light like the moon. ⁶⁷Animals are of more worth, since by taking cover they can look after themselves. ⁶⁸So in no way whatever is it evident to us that these are gods; for that reason have no fear of them.

⁶⁹For like a scarecrow in a field of melons, these gods plated with silver and gold protect nothing. ⁷⁰Again these wooden gods may be compared to a thornbush in a garden where any bird can perch, or to a corpse thrown into a dark place. ⁷¹You know by the purple and scarlet robes rotting on them that they are not gods. They end up by being eaten away and become a disgrace to the country. ⁷²Better then a just man who has no idols, he will not be dishonored.

In the last centuries before Christ, Greek culture, spread by Alexander, penetrated into the countries of the Middle East (see introduction to Maccabees). The Greeks had a new way of viewing the freedom of the individual and nobility of spirit. They promoted scientific research and esteemed highly physical beauty, etc.

The Jews had to be open to this new way of thinking: when a people encloses itself in its national culture, without looking beyond it, it ends up being asphyxiated. Their culture was intimately linked to the words of God they had received for centuries, but the revelation of God was not finished and could no longer enclose itself within the molds of Hebraic culture.

The Book of Wisdom is the first important effort to express the faith and wisdom of Israel, not only in Greek, but also in a form adapted to Greek culture.

It gives an answer to the crucial questions of evil, pain and death; it sketches a proof of the existence of God that will inspire Paul and shows that God's mercy extends to all beings without exception.

Note especially the magnificent chapters 3–5 concerning the death of the just and hope in eternal life and also the hymn to wisdom in chapter 7.

The Book of Wisdom was written in Egypt between 80 and 50 before Christ by one of the many Jews who were living in the Greek world. It is one of the deuterocanonical books: see page 1089.

Seek life; know God

Mt 6:33

1 • ¹Love justice, you who rule over the world. Think rightly of God, seek him with simplicity of heart, ²for he reveals himself to those who do not challenge him and is found by those who do not distrust him.

Is 55:6;
65:1;
Jer
29:13;
Pro 8:17

³Crooked thinking distances you from God, and his Omnipotence, put to the test, confounds the foolish.

⁴Wisdom does not enter the wicked nor remain in a body that is enslaved to sin. ⁵The Holy Spirit who instructs us shuns deceit; it keeps aloof from foolishness and is ill at ease when injustice is done.

Rom
7:24;
8:2

• 1.1 God is more present to us than we are to ourselves. We need not look very far for authentic wisdom: it appears as spirit coming from God that becomes present to us interiorly but is only revealed to the just.

How can we express the nearness of the inaccessible and holy God? Here the author speaks of Providence, Wisdom, Justice, the Spirit of God. He speaks of them as if they were persons sent by God to look after us. In

Pro 8:31;
Tit 3:4

⁶Wisdom is a spirit, a friend to man, and will not leave the blasphemous unpunished, because God knows his innermost feelings, truly sees his thoughts and hears what he says.

Jer 23:24;
Ps 139:
7-12;
Acts 2:4

⁷For God's spirit has filled the whole world and he who holds together all things, knows each word that is spoken. ⁸So whoever speaks unjustly will not escape; the irrefutable sentence will reach him. ⁹The intentions of the unholly will be examined; what he has said will reach the Lord and his wickedness will be confounded.

¹⁰Remember that a jealous ear hears everything; even whispers are recorded.

15:24;
Ps 78:19

¹¹Beware then, of empty complaints and keep your tongue from faultfinding, since your most secret word will have consequences; a lying tongue brings death to the soul. ¹²Do not bring about your own death by your wrong way of living. And do not let the work of your hands destroy you.

¹³God did not make death, nor does he rejoice in the destruction of the living. ¹⁴Since he has created everything, all creatures of the universe are for our good; there is no deadly poison in them and the netherworld has no dominion over the earth, ¹⁵because justice is immortal.

Ezk
18:23;
18:32

The godless say there is no other life

• ¹⁶It is the godless that consider death a friend and call for it in every way. They have made a pact with it and they shall justly belong to it.

Pro 8:36;
Is 28:15;
Pro 8:36

2 ¹Led by mistaken reasons they think, "Life is short and sad and

Job 14: 1-2;
Ps 39: 5-7;

fact, it is a way of presenting God himself who, though he preserves his mystery, is close to people and to events.

God did not make death nor does he rejoice in the destruction of the living. His creation is good and at the service of humankind. Death does not come from God as is explained in 2:23, but rather from the envy of the devil. So, we are asked to look confidently to the Lord: to think well of him is to deny all these false questions: Why does God allow evil, death, earthquakes and tragedies? God wants only life.

• 16. By chance we were born. The "impious," meaning those who have freed themselves from the law of God and their conscience, are friends of death since they do not know true life. For them wisdom consists in profiting from life: let us enjoy the good things now.

Let us see the truth of what he says. Because the godless are the friends of death, they necessarily come to persecute and even kill the good. For them it is like a game to prove to what extent the righteous can remain firm, since they themselves believe in nothing. They need to destroy others to convince themselves that they alone benefit from life.

If the righteous is a son of God, God will defend him. The words in verses 16-20 reveal the situation of Jesus on the cross. Matthew, in particular, will recall them in 27:43.

This is also verified in the lives of real believers, a scandal to a materialist who enjoys inflicting suffering on those who make sacrifices for others. We have seen comfortable "Christians" rejoicing over the death of those who speak of justice and who, by their involvement, disturb the conscience of the satisfied.

The mentality of the godless who do not believe in the hereafter is, in some way, very much like that of the society in which we live. Let us set a trap for the righteous for he opposes our way of life. Secretly we all admire an upright person, but in any institution, her presence disturbs us—in the unions just as in the factories—because we cannot buy her conscience.

He does not live like others and behaves strangely. When this was written the Jews were not well-thought-of by pagans because of all the things in their lives that were different from the pagan customs. The same is true now, as well; even though believers try not to be distinct, their integrity and enthusiasm make them "strange."

Those who take his side shall experience death. Those who do evil begin to experience death. There is a physical wearing down caused Ecl 8:8; Job 7:9 there is no cure for death. It was never heard that anyone came back from the netherworld.

Ps 102:4 ²By chance we were born; when life is over, it will be as if we never existed. The breath in our nostrils is like a puff of smoke, and thought is no more than a spark resulting from the movement of the heart. ³Put this out and the body turns to ashes, the spirit melts away like idle air.

Ecl 1:11; 2:16; 9:5; Job 18:17-19 ⁴In time our name will be forgotten, no one will remember what we did. ⁵Life passes like the shadow of a cloud, disappears like mist chased by the sun and overpowered by its heat. Our days are like the passing of a shadow; from death there is no turning back, the seal is set: no one returns.

Is 22:13; 1Cor 15:32 ⁶Come then and enjoy all the good things; let us use creation with the zest of youth, ⁷making the most of choicest wines and perfumes and not passing by any flower of spring. ⁸Let us crown ourselves with rosebuds before they fade.

⁹Let everyone take part in our orgy; let us post everywhere the signs of our joy, for that is our due, the lot assigned to us.

Lev 25:35-37; 22:21; Lev 19:32 ¹⁰Let us oppress the upright man who is poor, and have no thought for the widow, or respect for the white hair of old age.

Jer 11:19; 20:10; Jn 5:16, 18; Mt 26:4 ¹¹Let our strength be our right, since it is proved that weakness is useless. ¹²Let us set a trap for the righteous, for he annoys us and opposes our way of life; he reproaches us for our breaches of the Law and accuses us of being false to our up-bringing.

¹³He claims knowledge of God and calls himself son of the Lord.

¹⁴He has become a reproach to our way of thinking; even to meet him is burdensome to us. ¹⁵He does not live like others and behaves strangely.

¹⁶According to him we have low standards, so he keeps aloof from us as if we were unclean. He emphasizes the happy end of the righteous and boasts of having God as father.

¹⁷Let us see the truth of what he says and find out what his end will be. ¹⁸If the righteous is a son of God, God will defend him and deliver him from his adversaries.

¹⁹Let us humble and torture him to prove his self-control and test his patience. ²⁰When we have condemned him to a shameful death, we may test his words."

²¹This is the way they reason, but they are mistaken, blinded by their malice. ²²They do not know the mysteries of God nor do they hope for the reward of a holy life; they do not believe that the blameless will be recompensed.

²³Indeed God created man to be immortal in the likeness of his own nature, ²⁴but the envy of the devil brought death to the world, and those who take his side shall experience death.

The just will live with God

3 • ¹The souls of the just are in the hands of God and no torment shall touch them.

by vice (alcoholism, licentiousness), but there is an even greater deterioration of enthusiasm, generosity and trust. "The person who sows for the benefit of his own flesh shall reap corruption and death from the flesh" (Gal 6:8). See also Romans 6:21.

The text considers what Jesus will do; that behind a mass of evils that tear humanity, and behind our disbelief there is a presence of "the Enemy" (see Mt 13:39; Heb 2:14-15).

• 3.1 The souls of the just are in the hands of God. This is the great revelation in this book. In the previous books of the Bible, the soul only means the breath of a person, that is to say, the life in him which disappears

Mt 11:27;
Wis 5:5;
Lk 22:70

Est 3:8;
13:4-5

Mt 5:11;
Jn 5:18

Ps 22:9;
Mt 27:43

Is 53:7;
Mt 26:
67-68;
27:12...

Gen 1:26;
2P 1:4

Gen 3;
Rom
5:12;
Jn 8:44

Dt 33:3;
Is 51:16;
Ps 89:22;
Jn 10:28

²In the eyes of the unwise they appear to be dead. Their going is held as a disaster; ³it seems that they lose everything by departing from us, but they are in peace.

⁴Though seemingly they have been punished, immortality was the soul of their hope. ⁵After slight affliction will come great blessings, for God has tried them and found them worthy to be with him; ⁶after testing them as gold in the furnace, he has accepted them as a holocaust.

⁷At the time of his coming they will shine like sparks that run in the stubble. ⁸They will govern nations and rule over peoples, and the Lord will be their king forever.

⁹Those who trust in him will penetrate the truth, those who are faithful will live with him in love, for his grace and mercy are for his chosen ones.

¹⁰But the godless who have ignored the upright and deserted the Lord, will meet the punishment their evil thoughts deserve.

¹¹Unhappy are those who put no value on wisdom and instruction, their hope is vain, their efforts useless, their work without profit; ¹²their wives are foolish, their children evil, their posterity cursed.

A truly fruitful life

• ¹³Happy the childless wife if she is blameless and has not been guilty of adultery; she will be found fruitful on the day of judgment.

¹⁴And happy the impotent man who has done no evil or harbored resentful thoughts against the Lord. His fidelity will be richly rewarded with a special place in the Lord's heavenly sanctuary.

¹⁵The toil of the righteous bears choice fruit; and wise discernment is a tree that does not wither.

¹⁶But the children born of adultery die young and the offspring of an unlawful union disappear.

¹⁷If they live long, they count for nothing and are finally despised in their old age. ¹⁸If they die young, it is without hope, and they cannot comfort themselves with thinking of the Judgment.

¹⁹Cruel is the fate of an evil race.

4 • ¹Better to have no children and to be virtuous. People like this are highly considered by God and by morat death. Now, the soul means the person who does not die when the body does.

Their going is held as a disaster. Whether the just die in the hands of violent people, or naturally die as we all do, the end of their lives seems to contradict God's goodness. It is a scandal that death can overcome the just. (We know that the just are those who fulfill the hopes that God placed in them.) It is only the body which dies. They are alive before God as Jesus will also state (Lk 20:38).

But they are in peace. They will forever enjoy what they hoped for here on earth. That is to say, we only see one side of death: we shall never know how everyone experienced his departure, even less how he awakened in God's world.

At the time of judgment we will see that the just are the only ones who have been truly alive. The death of the friends of God brings peace to those who were at their side. Through their death the martyrs bring the triumph of the cause for which they lived.

• ^{13.} Happy the childless wife if she is blameless. In the Bible we always find praise of the fruitful life, of a couple having several children and raising them to be fully human (see Ps 127 and 128). Here the question is revisited: what is a fruitful life? In Israel, being without children was seen as God's punishment and the Law excluded eunuchs (or castrated men) from religious worship. Yet one of the prophets took an opposite view (see Is 56:4).

• 4.1 Better to have no children and to be virtuous. Here we have the revelation of another way of being fruitful: seeking perfection. We know of childless couples and of sin-

Sir 41:5;
Ps 109:
9-10

Is 54:1

Is 56:3

Sir 16:4

Sir 16:3

Rom
8:18;
2Cor 4:17

Ps 17:3;
26:2;
Pro 17:3;
Job 23:10

Dn 12:3;
Mt 13:43

Dn 7:27;
Ps 149:7;
1Cor 6:2;
Rev 5:10;
20:4-6

Pro 28:5;
1Cor
13:12;
1Jn 3:2

tals. The memory of their life will never end.

²When virtue is present we imitate it; when it is absent we long for it; it is crowned in eternity for having triumphed in the blameless struggle.

Sir 23:25; 40:15
Ps 58:10
³The numerous progeny of the wicked will be of no use. Offspring of doubtful plants, they will not have deep roots or lay solid foundations. ⁴For a time they may produce, but their weak branches shaken by the wind will be uprooted by the storm. ⁵Their twigs will be broken off before grown, their fruit useless, unripe for eating and good for nothing. ⁶Children born of unlawful intercourse witness, when God examines them, to the wrongdoing of their parents.

⁷The upright, even if he dies before his time, will be at rest. ⁸Honorable age does not depend on length of days, nor is the number of years a true measure of life.

⁹A man's gray hair is understanding, and a spotless life is ripe old age.

Gen 5:24; Heb 11:5
¹⁰The upright was pleasing to God, who loved him, and since he was living among sinners, he was taken up. ¹¹God removed him lest evil impair his understanding and treachery seduce his soul. ¹²For the fascination of evil obscures true values and restless desire undermines a simple heart.

¹³Though his life soon ended, he traveled far. ¹⁴Because his soul was precious to the Lord, he was quickly removed from the wickedness around him.

¹⁵People saw but did not understand, and it did not occur to them that God's grace and mercy are with his chosen ones, his protection is for the holy.

Is 57:1

¹⁶The righteous who dies will condemn the ungodly who survives. A life fulfilled early in youth condemns the endless days of the wicked.

¹⁷They may see the death of the wise, but they will not understand God's design for him and why he has taken him to safety. ¹⁸They may see and sneer at him, but the Lord will also laugh at them ¹⁹when they have become a useless corpse, a loathsome and dead thing forever.

Ps 37:13; Pro 1:26

The Lord will dash them to the ground, voiceless, shaking them from their foundations; they will wither and suffer anguish; even their memory will fade.

²⁰They will come trembling for the reckoning of their sins and they will be confounded when confronted with their wickedness.

gle women who channeled their capacity for love and surrender toward others and succeeded in having spiritual children and family. A fruitful life is one spent for others or for God. When these lines were written, there were Jews going to the desert to form religious communities of single men, in order to pray and to hurry the coming of the Savior. Years later, Mary will dedicate her virginity to God and so, for Christians, she is the model of a virginity consecrated to God and with its own form of fruitfulness.

• 7. "Why did God take him? My husband was such a good man." A word that is often heard. No mortal accident can prevent God from giving all that he wished to each one.

God has given some of us the grace to grow more quickly and to reach in a few years the perfection that others only achieve after many years.

The upright was pleasing to God who loved him. The wife or the son whom God took did not belong to us. A strong bond of love between them and us developed with countless circumstances and memories, but a stronger love united them to the Lord who reserved them for himself.

Since he was living among sinners, God took him (see Gen 5:24). This is another answer to the premature death of our children: Who knows what they would have done with their lives? God knows best what suits everyone.

Judgment on the just and on the godless

Mt 13:43

5

• ¹Then the just man will stand with confidence facing those who oppressed him, making light of his labors.

²Seeing him they will be seized with a terrible fear, amazed to find him unexpectedly saved.

Stricken with remorse and distress, ³they will groan and say,

⁴“He is the one we mocked,
the one we reproached, fools that we were!

We considered his life foolishness,
and his death, the supreme humiliation,

⁵but see: he is counted among the children of God and is given his lot with the holy angels!

⁶How far have we wandered from the truth!
The light of the upright did not enlighten us nor did its sun rise for us.

⁷We trod the paths of injustice and death, traveling, more than enough,
through trackless deserts,
but we were unable to know the Lord’s ways.

⁸What good has our pride been?
What profit in the wealth we boasted about?

⁹All that has passed away like a shadow, like a fleeting rumor.

¹⁰Like a ship cutting the sea, leaving no trace of its course, and the mark of its keel—not seen in its wake;

¹¹like a bird flying across the sky leaving no trace of its flight;

it beats the light air with its pinions, cleaving a way by the force of its wings
but without a sign of its passing;

¹²or like an arrow shot at a target,

Ps 89:6;
Col 1:12

Is 58:8

Job 9:25

• 5.1 The prophets spoke of God’s judgment on many occasions, referring to a judgment on earth in which God would repay the sinner nations and groups, and redress human history.

This paragraph now speaks to us of an individual judgment after death. It insists especially on the case of martyrs: it must be said that during this epoch the memory of believers persecuted for their faith at the time of the Maccabees was still fresh. Let us not forget that if we can be at the same time Christians and at peace, in many countries our brothers and sisters suffer and often die, victims of persecutions about which the media says little.

How far have we wandered from the truth. On that day, we will not wear the mask we all have on earth, a mask which hides our hypocrisy and meanness. We will see ourselves in our nakedness and God the Father, the Lord and Knower of all, will reward or punish us. Then the wicked will see clearly that their lives were empty: scarcely born we have disappeared. Before God convicts them, they will judge themselves: their own sins will accuse them (4:20).

On the contrary, the upright live forever; the Most High has them in his care. We can with the displaced air closing in on itself and no one knowing what way it passed.

¹³It is the same for us; scarcely born we have disappeared.
What sign of virtue are we able to show, spent as we are in our own wickedness?"

¹⁴The hope of the godless is like chaff blown in the wind, like a light frost melted in the storm,
like smoke dispersed by the wind;
it fades like the memory of a guest of a single day.

Ps 1:4;
Is 29:5

¹⁵But the upright live forever, their reward is with the Lord,
and the Most High has them in his care.

Is 62:11

¹⁶This is why they receive, from the hands of the Lord, a royal crown, a splendid diadem.
He will shelter them with his hand and his arm will be their shield.

Is 28:5

¹⁷God's jealous love will display his weapon;
he will arm all creation to punish his enemies.

Is 59:17

¹⁸He will put on justice as his breastplate and right judgment as his helmet,

¹⁹invincible holiness will be his shield,

²⁰implacable anger his sword, and the universe will march with him against the foolish.

²¹Well-aimed bolts of lightning will strike the target; the clouds will be a curved bow shooting arrows.

them and the rivers engulf them without mercy. ²³A powerful wind will rise against them and blow them away like straw. In this way, lawlessness will bring the whole earth to ruin, and evildoing topple the thrones of the mighty.

Is 30:27;
64:1

²²The hailstones of his fury will rain on them, the ocean will rage against

NO TRUE WISDOM WITHOUT RELIGIOUS TRUTH

6 ¹Listen, O kings, and understand; rulers of the most distant lands, take warning. ²Pay attention, you who rule multitudes and boast of the numerous subjects in your pagan nations.

Ps 2:10;
Sir 33:19

³For authority was given you by the Lord, your kingship is from the Most High

Dn 2:21;
Rom
13:1;
Jn 19:11

who will examine your works and scrutinize your intentions.

⁴If, as officials of his kingdom, you have not judged justly or observed his law or walked the way God pointed out, ⁵he will oppose you swiftly and terribly;
his sentence strikes the mighty suddenly.

compare this with the judgment parable in Matthew 25:31, with this difference that Jesus distinguishes between those who have looked after their neighbors and those who have not, whereas here the persecutors and the persecu-ted face each other. They are facing one another for judgment again after the wicked triumphed over the just.

• 6.1 Here begins the "discourse to the kings about wisdom." As we said in the introduction of Ecclesiastes, it was common to attribute the books of wisdom to Solomon. This can also be seen in this book: the author pretends to be Solomon and puts the words about wisdom on Solomon's lips.

⁶For the lowly there may be excuses and pardon, but the great will be severely punished.

⁷For the Lord of all makes no distinction, nor does he take account of greatness. Both great and lowly are his work and he watches over all, ⁸but the powerful are to be judged more strictly.

⁹It is to you then, sovereigns, that I speak, that you may learn Wisdom and not stumble.

¹⁰For those who keep the holy laws in a holy way will be acknowledged holy, and those who accept the teaching will find in it their defense.

¹¹Welcome my words, desire them and they will instruct you.

¹²Wisdom is luminous and never tarnished; she willingly lets herself be seen by those who love her, and known by those who look for her. ¹³She hastens to meet those who long for her. ¹⁴Seek her in the morning and you will not be disappointed; you will find her sitting at your door.

¹⁵To meditate on Wisdom is understanding fully grown; whoever is on the watch for her will be free of anxiety. ¹⁶She goes in search of those who are worthy of her, graciously meets them on the way and is present in their every thought.

¹⁷The beginning of Wisdom is a sincere desire for discipline; concern for discipline is love of her, ¹⁸and loving her means keeping her laws; ¹⁹the observance of her laws assures one of immortality, and immortality brings us close to God.

²⁰In this way the desire for Wisdom leads to kingship.

²¹So then, sovereigns of nations, you who are fond of thrones and scepters, honor Wisdom if you wish to reign forever.

²²What Wisdom is and how she came to be, I will tell you. I shall hide nothing from you, but trace her from the beginning and clearly make her known.

²³I will not mislead you and hide the truth, for I am free of gnawing envy which has nothing in common with Wisdom.

²⁴The multitude of the wise could bring about the salvation of the world and a sensible king makes for the stability of his people; ²⁵so learn from what I say and profit from it.

7 ¹I, too, am a mortal man like others, a descendant of the first human being formed from clay. My flesh was molded in a mother's womb; ²her blood formed me for ten months from the seed of man, given in pleasure, the companion of sleep.

³Once born, I breathed the air common to everyone; I fell on the earth, the same for all; my first cry was like that of other infants.

⁴I was nourished, cared for and wrapped in swaddling clothes; ⁵indeed, no other king began life differently. ⁶For there is but one way into life for all and one way out of it.

I prayed and wisdom was given to me

• ⁷I prayed and understanding was given to me; I asked earnestly and the spirit of Wisdom came to me.

⁸I preferred her to scepters and thrones and I considered wealth as nothing compared with her.

⁹I preferred her to any jewel of inestimable value, since gold beside her is nothing but a few grains of sand, and silver but mud. ¹⁰I loved her more than wealth and beauty and even preferred her to light, because her radiance never dies.

¹¹She brought with her all other good things, untold riches in her hands. ¹²I rejoiced at all that came with Wisdom without knowing she was their mother.

¹³What I learned without self-interest I share freely and with no desire to conceal her value; ¹⁴for she is an inexhaustible treasure for man and those who possess

• 7.7 All this page is an invitation to seek Wisdom as one would seek a spouse: we remember that at this time sovereign rulers would "espouse" such and such divinity which allowed them at times to take possession, in the name of their spouse, of the treasures in its temple (2 Mac 1:14). Seeking the Wisdom of God is no different from what we do when we speak of union with Christ: we must not forget that he is uncreated Wisdom. This communion is not a matter of something sentimental: it is the costly and never-ending search for the one who is the Truth.

I preferred her to any jewel of inestimable value. See Matthew 13:44-45.

Job 34:17

Pro 29:4

Pro 8:17
Sir 4:12;
Pro 1:21Ps
139:15;
Job
10:11

1Jn 4:10

1K 3:4;
Sir 47:12

Lk 12:33

her have gained the friendship of God, commended to him by the fruits of her discipline.

¹⁵May God grant me to speak with discernment and reflect in a way worthy of the gifts I have received, for he is the guide of Wisdom and the corrector of the wise. ¹⁶For we are in God's hands, we ourselves, our words, our understanding and technical knowledge.

¹⁷He, in fact, has given me true knowledge of what is, of the world and the properties of the elements; ¹⁸the beginning, the end and the times in between; the alternation of the solstices and the succession of the seasons; ¹⁹the cycles of the year and the position of the stars; ²⁰the natures of animal species and the ways of wild beasts; the power of spirits and human reasoning; the varieties of plants and medicinal properties of roots.

The reflection of eternal light

• ²¹I have come to know everything we see and everything hidden, ²²because Wisdom, who designed them all, taught me.

In her is a spirit that is intelligent, saintly, unique, manifold, subtle, active, concise, pure and lucid. It cannot corrupt, loves what is good and nothing can restrain it; ²³it is beneficent, loving humankind, steadfast, dependable, calm though almighty. It sees everything and penetrates all spirits, however intelligent, subtle and pure they may be.

²⁴Wisdom, in fact, surpasses in mobility all that moves, and being so pure pervades and permeates all things.

²⁵She is a breath of the power of God, a pure emanation of the glory of the Almighty; nothing impure can enter her. ²⁶She is a reflection of eternal light, a spotless mirror of God's action and an image of his goodness.

²⁷She is but one, yet Wisdom can do all things and, herself unchanging, she renews all things. She enters holy souls, making them prophets and friends of God, ²⁸for God loves only those who live with Wisdom.

²⁹She is indeed more beautiful than the sun and surpasses all the constellations; she outrivals light, ³⁰for light gives way to night, but evil cannot prevail against Wisdom.

Sir 24:3

Heb 1:3;
Jn 1:9;
Col 1:15Ps
102:27;
104:30Jn 1:5;
16:33

• 21. See commentary of Proverbs 8:22: it is the same theme. Wisdom comes from God: it is the same Wisdom that gives order to the universe and which is the presence of God in us—his presence, as always, through his Son.

Nothing impure can enter her. Note the optimism found in this description. Because she is "holy and pure" the wisdom of God penetrates everything, even what is impure and imperfect, enlightening our slow and limited spirit. The Jews of the time learned from the Law that they had to remain "clean" and stay away from all that is "unclean": for example, when two people touched each other, the unclean person contaminated the other (see Lev 11:1; and Hg 2:11). Here, it is the wisdom of God that overcomes darkness and impurity (see Eph 5:13). Nothing is absolutely bad in itself: it is bad if it could have been better, and it is good if in a concrete way nothing better could have been accomplished.

Evil cannot prevail against Wisdom. The Christian, rooted in God's word, brings light where darkness ruled: he must be present and active, without fear of such involvement, wherever problems of his country, his work, his daily life are being decided. Light and justice will triumph and renew the face of the world.

She is a pure emanation of the Glory of the Almighty (v. 25). For the Hebrews "glory" was something "heavy," something that imposes itself and is not pure appearance. In the language of the Greeks, "glory" becomes what is radiant: the radiance of God in the universe, and still more "on the face of Christ" (2 Cor 4:6). Wisdom, mirror of God's activity and image of his perfection, is Christ, as Paul says in Colossians 1:5; Hebrew 1:3; John calls Christ "Word of God" (see Jn 1:1). See also introduction to Ephesians.

She enters holy souls, making them prophets and friends of God (v. 27). It was said in 2:24 that the devil corrupted creation by introducing death. Now, the Wisdom of God overcomes the ravage of death.

8 ¹Wisdom displays her strength from one end of the earth to the other, ordering all things rightly.

Sir 15:2 ²I loved her and sought her from my youth; I strove to have her as my bride for I had fallen in love with her beauty.

³Her nearness to God tells of her noble birth. Because the Lord of all has loved her, ⁴she is instructed in God's knowledge and chooses his works.

⁵If we desire riches in life, what is richer than Wisdom who is the active cause of everything? ⁶If the intellect shows itself in action, still more does she who fashions everything. ⁷If you love righteousness, every virtue is the fruit of her labor, for she teaches temperance, prudence, justice, fortitude—all that is most valuable in life.

⁸If someone is eager for experience, she knows what took place in the past and forecasts the future. She has the art of interpretation and knows how to solve riddles, she foresees signs and wonders, the end of ages and eras.

⁹This is why I decided to have her as companion for life, knowing she would be a wise counselor and encourage me in times of worry and distress.

1K 3:7 ¹⁰I thought: With her I shall have glory among the nations and, although young, honor among the elderly; ¹¹I shall be found penetrating in judgment and be admired by the powerful.

1K 3:16 ¹²If I am silent they will wait to hear me; if I speak, they will pay attention; though I speak at length they will put their hand on their lips.

Sir 39:9 ¹³Thanks to her I shall win immortality, and to those who come after me I shall leave an everlasting memory.

¹⁴I shall govern peoples, and nations will be subject to me. ¹⁵Terrible sovereigns will cower when they hear of my name, but to my people I shall show myself kind; in battle, courageous.

¹⁶When I come home I shall take my rest with her, for there is nothing bitter in her company and no suffering in sharing life with her, only pleasure and joy.

¹⁷Pondering over all this, I understood that I would achieve immortality by being united to Wisdom; ¹⁸I would have pure delight through friendship with her, inexhaustible riches in what she does, understanding from being in her company and renown from sharing her conversation. Then I set out to seek and possess her.

¹⁹I had a pleasant personality even as a child and ²⁰was good-natured or rather, being good, I had entered an undefiled body.

²¹But knowing that I could only possess Wisdom if she were given me by God—it was a mark of intelligence to know who was the donor—I turned to the Lord and implored him, saying with all my heart:

Give me your wisdom

9 • ¹God of our fathers and Lord of mercy, whose word has created everything and ²who in Wisdom formed man to govern your creation, ³to rule the world in holiness and justice, passing sentence with right judgment, ⁴give me Wisdom that sits beside your throne and do not reject me from among your children.

⁵For I am your servant, son of your handmaid, a weak and mortal man with little understanding of judgment and laws. ⁶Even the most perfect among us counts for nothing, unless he has received Wisdom that comes from you.

⁷You have chosen me as king for your people, as judge over your sons and daughters.

⁸You have ordered me to build a temple on your holy mountain and an altar in the city where you live, in imitation of the holy Tent that was yours from the beginning.

Sir 42:15;
1K 3:6

Gen 1:28

Ps
116:16

2S 7:13

• 9.1 The necessary condition for acquiring wisdom consists in having a humble and simple heart. To those who cooperate with him, God grants uprightness, prudence and even the authority to lead God's people.

Abraham and Moses were called to do great things.

This prayer refers to the event related in 1 Kings 3:6: the dream in which Solomon asked God for wisdom.

⁹With you is Wisdom that knows your works, that was present when you made the world and is aware of what is pleasing in your eyes and what is right according to your commandments.

¹⁰Send her from the holy heavens, dispatch her from your holy throne to work beside me so that I may know what is pleasing to you.

¹¹For she knows and understands everything; she will direct my actions with prudence and protect me with her power.

¹²Then my deeds will please you, and I shall judge your people in justice and be worthy of the throne of my father.

¹³Indeed, who can know the intentions of God? Who can discern the plan of the Lord?

¹⁴For human reasoning is timid, our notions misleading; ¹⁵a perishable body is a burden for the soul and our tent of clay weighs down the active mind.

¹⁶We are barely able to know about the things of earth and it is a struggle to understand what is close to us; who then may hope to understand heavenly things?

¹⁷Who has ever known your will unless you first gave him Wisdom and sent down your holy spirit to him? ¹⁸In this way you directed the human race on the right path; they learned what pleases you and were saved by Wisdom.

1Cor
2:16

Is 55:9;
Jn 3:12

Mt 11:27

Bar 4:4

Rom
11:34;

THE WISDOM OF GOD WORKS IN HISTORY

10 ¹Wisdom protected the father of the world, the first man to be formed, who was created alone. ²She delivered him from his fault and gave him power to govern all things.

³When a violent man turning in anger strayed from Wisdom, he perished in his fratricidal fury. ⁴Because of the violent man, the earth was submerged by the flood, but Wisdom again saved it by piloting an upright man on a frail piece of wood.

⁵Again when the nations, united in evil, had been thrown into confusion, it was Wisdom who singled out a righteous man, keeping him blameless before God and steadfast, despite his pity for his child.

⁶It was she who, when the godless perished, saved the righteous man and let him flee from the fire pouring

Gen
12:1-3;
22:1-19

Gen 4:8

Gen
7-8

• 10.1 The Wisdom of God is at work in world history. When an event takes place, we do not usually judge its global value: only time enables us to appreciate it. When we look at the history of a people like the Israelites, we see that God had a plan which developed step by step, even though the people were free and sometimes departed from God. Many elements are involved in the realization of God's plan: sin, punishment, penance and forgiveness.

She made him prosperous and successful in his toil (v. 10). This points more directly to Jacob. Divine Wisdom taught their children the works which were to bear fruit and be lasting; she also showed them the thousand ways which waste time. She taught them to live in the now and to discover in the present moment the resources and joys that God wanted to give them.

In spite of the fact that, many times, they did not see beyond the path to be traveled that day, and their daily struggle against their own lies seemed useless, wisdom prepared their paths beforehand. One day they will understand how their labors were joined with the labors of many other brothers and sisters to build the Future City.

In verse 3, the reference is to Cain; in verse 4 to Noah; in verse 5 to Abraham; in verse 6 to Lot; in verse 10 to Jacob; in verse 13 to Joseph, and in verse 16 to Moses.

Gen 19; 2P 2:6 down on the Five Cities. ⁷To this day the arid land, a smoking waste, witnesses to their perversity, for plants there bear unripe fruit and a pillar of salt stands as a monument to an unbelieving woman.

⁸For having ignored Wisdom, not only were they kept from knowing what is good, but their ruins were left as a monument to their foolishness so that their failure might never be forgotten.

Gen 28:10 ⁹But Wisdom rescued her servants from their trials. ¹⁰Along straight paths she led the upright man who fled from his brother's anger. She showed him God's kingdom and let him know the holy angels; she made him prosperous and successful in his toil. ¹¹Wisdom stood by him against the greed of oppressors and made him rich.

Gen 31:32; 31:23-29

Gen 32:25

¹²She protected him from his enemies and saved him from the traps they set for him; with Wisdom he triumphed in an arduous struggle, learning in this way that nothing is as strong as piety.

Gen 37-39

¹³She did not abandon the righteous man when he was sold; still more she kept him free from sin. ¹⁴She went down into the cistern with him; she did not leave him in chains, but made him the ruler of a kingdom, giving him authority over his oppressors. She denounced as liars those who accused him falsely and gave him everlasting honor.

¹⁵It was she who rescued an innocent and holy people from a nation of oppressors.

¹⁶She entered the soul of God's servant and through him withstood terrible kings with signs and wonders.

¹⁷To the holy people she gave the wages of their labor, leading them in a wonderful way, giving them shade during the day and the light of the stars at night.

13:21

¹⁸She brought them across the Red Sea, but drowned their enemies ¹⁹and later washed them ashore from the depth of the abyss.

14:21

²⁰So the righteous looted the godless, singing hymns, Lord, to your holy Name, and one in heart, they gave thanks for your saving hand. ²¹Wisdom gives speech to the dumb and makes infants speak clearly.

15

Ps 8:3; Mt 21:16

11 • ¹Wisdom gave success to their actions through a holy prophet; ²they crossed an uninhabited wilderness and pitched camp in inaccessible places.

³They stood up to their enemies and fought off the hostile. ⁴When they were thirsty they called on you and you gave them water from hard flint, from a rocky cliff, a welcome relief for the parched.

17:1

⁵The same creatures you used to punish their enemies were of benefit to them in their trouble.

⁶For their enemies an ever-flowing source of river water was polluted with blood—⁷a stern response to the decree ordering the slaughter of infants. But, against all hope, you gave your people water in abundance, ⁸showing them by the thirst they suffered, how you had punished their enemies. ⁹Their trials were no more than merciful reproofs. Through them, your people learned how severely the wicked were judged and punished.

1:15

Dt 8:2

¹⁰You tested them as does a father,

• 11.1 God's love for his people reveals itself when the very forces of nature serve to punish the Egyptians and save the Hebrews. This is shown with seven illustrations: animals, locusts and snakes, hail and manna, darkness and light, the firstborn, the sea (vv. 16-19). All this is amplified beyond measure and is not the part of the book that touches us most.

The same creatures you used to punish their enemies were of benefit to them in their trouble (v. 5). This can be a lesson concerning the forces ruling our world today. Organization, speed, technology, science, emancipation: all these are instrumental in the liberation of humankind if used with wisdom. All this can turn against us, when it is used while you examined their enemies like a stern king.

¹¹Their enemies suffered at the time and also later. ¹²When they remembered the past, theirs was a double grief and groaning. ¹³They came to see that it was the work of the Lord when they realized that their punishment had benefited the others.

¹⁴Long before, they had exposed Moses; they had rejected him in derision; but now they admired him because of what had happened, and after they had suffered a thirst far different from that of the righteous.

Rom 1:21 ¹⁵Their wickedness and foolish ideas led them astray, even to worshipping snakes and other repugnant animals; this is why you sent them hordes of similar creatures, ¹⁶teaching them that punishment takes the same form as the sin.

Job 41:10 ¹⁷In fact, your almighty power that created the world from formless matter did not lack means to unleash upon them bears and savage lions, ¹⁸or monsters freshly created, unknown and full of fury, breathing fire or noisily spitting smoke or flashing fearful sparks from their eyes, ¹⁹creatures not only capable of destroying them at a single blow but whose mere appearance could make them die of fright.

How God corrects his children

Is 40:12; Job 28:25 • ²⁰Even without this, they could have dropped dead at a single breath if pursued by your justice, or dispersed by the breath of your might; but you ordered all with measure, number and weight.

Is 40:15 ²¹You are able to show your power at any moment and who can resist the strength of your arm? ²²For the entire world lies before you, just enough to tip the scales, a drop of morning dew falling on the ground.

Sir 18:12 Ps 145:9 ²³But because you are almighty, you are merciful to all; you overlook sins and give your children time to repent. ²⁴You love everything that exists and hate nothing that you have made; had you hated anything, you would not have formed it.

²⁵How could anything endure if you did not will it? And how could anything last that you had not willed? ²⁶You have compassion on all because all is yours, O Lord, lover of life.

12 ¹In fact your immortal spirit is in all.

²And so by degrees you correct those who sin, you admonish them, reminding them how they have strayed so that turning away from evil they may trust in you, Lord.

³So it happened with those who once lived in your holy land. ⁴You hated them because of their detestable practices, their sorcery and unholy worship. ⁵They were used to the pitiless slaughter of children at the feasts in which they ate human flesh and blood and even bowels, while they fulfilled secret rituals.

Dt 20:16 ⁶Because these parents murdered their defenseless children, you wished our ancestors to destroy them, ⁷and the land dearest to you became the home of God's children who were worthy of it.

Ps 78:39 ⁸But you even showed mercy to these sinners because they were human beings. You sent hornets ahead of your army to gradually destroy them.

⁹You could have given the wicked over to the righteous in battle, or destroyed them in one blow by means of savage beasts or with a harsh command; ¹⁰but in punishing them gradually you gave them time to repent. Nevertheless you were aware of their evil nature, their without considering the goal God established for the world.

The passage from 11:5 to 15:19 is a long parenthesis contrasting God's ways, as a friend and master of humans with the foolishness in the worship of idols.

• 20. You ordered all with measure, number and weight. Because God's power is absolute, it is never a manifestation of violence: beauty, harmony and goodness are never lacking in all that comes from God.

Gen 9:25 innate malice and how fixed they were in their ways, ¹¹for it was a cursed race from the beginning.

Job 9:12; Rom 9:19 In any case, it was not through fear of anyone that you left their sins unpunished. ¹²For who dares say to you, "What have you done?" Who would dare to reject your sentence? Who could reproach you for destroying the nations you formed? Who would dare rise against you in defense of the guilty?

Dt 32:39 ¹³For there is no other god besides you, one who cares for everyone, who could ask you to justify your judgments; ¹⁴there is no other king or sovereign who could confront you and support those you punish.

¹⁵You are just and you rule all with justice; had you condemned those who should not be punished, you would have misused your power.

¹⁶Your strength is the source of your justice and because you are the Lord of all, you can be merciful to everyone.

¹⁷To those who doubt your sovereign power you show your strength and you confound the insolence of those who ignore it. ¹⁸But you, the Lord of strength, judge with prudence and govern us with great patience, because you are able to do anything at the time you want.

¹⁹In this way you have taught your people that a righteous person must love his human fellows; you have also given your people cause for hope by prompting them to repent of their sin.

²⁰For if you have been careful and patient in punishing the enemies of your people when they deserved to die, and have given them a time and a place to turn from their wickedness, ²¹with what strict attention have you not judged your people, you who bound yourself to our ancestors with oaths and covenants full of magnificent promises.

Mt 5:7; 7:2 ²²Yes, you punish us, but you punish our enemies far more severely to teach us when we judge others to remember your kindness, and when we are judged to count on your mercy.

²³Those who lived foolishly and wickedly, you tormented with their own abominations. ²⁴For they had strayed into error to the point of choosing vile and disgusting animals as gods, allowing themselves to be deceived like infants.

²⁵And, as to children with no sense, you sent them a punishment to mock them; ²⁶but if they took no warning from these corrections, they were soon to receive a punishment worthy of God. ²⁷In their suffering they became indignant at those animals they had taken as gods and who were now used to punish them. Then they saw clearly, and acknowledged as God, him whom before they had refused to know. That is why they suffered the supreme punishment.

Against those who worship images

13 • ¹The natural helplessness of humans is seen in their ignorance of God. The experience of good things did not lead them to the knowledge of Him who is. They were interested in his works, but they did not recognize the author of them.

²Fire, wind, air, the sphere of the stars, rushing water and the lights in the sky were held as the rulers of the world.

³If, charmed by such beauty, they took them for gods, let them know how far superior is their sovereign. ⁴And if they were impressed by their power and activity, let them understand from this how much mightier is he who formed them. ⁵For the grandeur and beauty of creatures lead us to ponder on their Author, greater and more magnificent.

3:14;
Rom
1:19;
Sir 17:8

Dt 4:19;
Job 31:
26-28

• 13.1 Materialists ignore God. The proud believe they can achieve everything on their own. They use things as their own, without giving them a deeper meaning and without seeing them as gifts from God.

Simple and humble people see the hand of God in everything. The water, the wind, the mountains remind them of the Perfect Being who created them; even more do the riches they discover in their loved ones. Human intelligence is meant to discover God who fills everything and is the end of everything. Paul will say something very similar in Romans 1:19.

⁶No doubt these people are not to be blamed severely, for possibly they strayed though they searched for God and desired to find him. ⁷They pondered over the created things that surrounded them and were captivated by the sight of such beauty.

⁸Even so they are not to be excused, ⁹for if they were able to explore the world, why did they not discover first the world's Sovereign?

¹⁰But unhappy, indeed, are those people who give to man-made artifacts the title of gods! Cursed is their hope in dead things, objects worked in gold and silver, likenesses of animals, and even useless stones carved long ago!

¹¹Take a woodcutter—he fells a tree that is easy to move, expertly strips off all the bark and with the wood makes a utensil needed in daily life; ¹²he uses the bits left over as fuel for cooking his food and he has a good meal. ¹³Then he picks up an utterly useless left-over piece, all gnarled and knotted, and carves it in his leisure time, using his professional skill to give it the shape of a man or ¹⁴maybe of a worthless animal. He covers it with ochre and paints the surface red, covering all its blemishes.

¹⁵He then makes a suitable niche for it in the wall and fastens it in place with iron nails.

¹⁶The craftsman is careful to keep it from falling, knowing that it is unable to help itself. It needs help because it is no more than an image.

¹⁷Even so, when it is a matter of his marriage, his children and his household, the man is not ashamed to pray to this lifeless object. He prays for his health to something without strength; ¹⁸for life he prays to what is dead, for help he implores something insensitive, for a successful journey he has recourse to what cannot walk, ¹⁹for his profit, his concerns and success in his craft he asks help of something that has no skill whatever in its hands.

14 ¹Imagine someone who is about to set sail and cross the raging sea. He calls upon a piece of wood far more fragile than the boat that carries him.

²In fact, this boat has been built with gain in mind and proceeds from the wisdom of the shipwright. ³But it is your providence, Father, that guides it, for you are the one who prepares a path through the sea and a safe way over the waves. ⁴By this we understand that you are able to save us from any danger, and even the unskilled are able to sail.

⁵People are the work of your wisdom and you do not want them to remain idle. So they trust their lives to a small plank of wood and cross the sea safe and sound on a raft.

⁶At the beginning of time when proud giants perished, the hope of the world took refuge on a raft and, led by your hand, left to the world the seed of a new race. ⁷Blessed be the wood by which salvation was carried out!

⁸But cursed be the idol and its maker, the idol made by human hands, this corruptible thing that is called a god, and the craftsman for having fashioned it.

⁹They are hateful to God, both the godless and the fruit of his godlessness; ¹⁰the maker will be punished together with his work.

¹¹Therefore the idols of the nations will also be judged. They have come to be the most abominable among the creatures of God. They are a stumbling block to the spirit of man, and the feet of the foolish are caught in the snare.

¹²The invention of idols was the origin of licentiousness; when they were invented, life became corrupt. ¹³For in the beginning they did not exist and they will not exist forever. ¹⁴Human vanity introduced them into the world, and God has set a term for them.

¹⁵Suppose a father, overwhelmed by grief for a child so swiftly taken from him, has an image made of him. From that time on a dead creature will be honored as a god, because the father handed on to his dependents secret rites and celebrations. ¹⁶Time will consolidate this unholy practice and eventually it will be observed by law.

It has also happened that sculptured images were venerated by order of sovereigns. ¹⁷Those who lived far away and were unable to honor them personally had copies made, that they might honor them as if present by means of their image.

¹⁸The ambition of the artist helped the veneration grow among those who did not even know the sovereign. ¹⁹As he

Ps
107:29

Gen 6:1;
Bar 3:
26-28

Dt 4:
25-28;
Acts
17:29

Is 40:20

Is 2:18

Bar 6:25;
6:57

Jer 2:27

Is 15:
Ps 115:4

34:16

wished to please his master, he made the portrait more attractive than reality,²⁰ and the people, seduced by the perfection of art work, began to worship someone previously honored as a man.

Dn 3:1

3:14

²¹In this way the image became a pitfall for the living, for people bent down, either by misfortune or tyranny, gave to stones and wood the incommunicable Name.

Rom

1:21;
1:24-32

²²But it was not enough for them to err in their knowledge of God; in the great trouble to which ignorance condemned them, they have called such an evil situation peace.

²³With the sacrificial murder of children in their initiations, with secret mysteries and wild ceremonial orgies, ²⁴they no longer keep their lives and marriages pure; they treacherously murder one another or wound others through adultery.

²⁵Everywhere it is a welter of blood, murder, fraud and theft, corruption, treachery, riots, perjury; ²⁶on all sides harassment of good people, forgetfulness of favors, the pollution of souls and sins against nature, widespread disorder in marriage, adultery, debauchery.

²⁷Indeed the worship of gods which do not even deserve a name, is the beginning, cause and effect of every evil.

²⁸Others delight in raving or uttering false prophecies; they live wickedly and casually perjure themselves. ²⁹As they deal with lifeless images, they do not fear any punishment for their false oaths, ³⁰but a double punishment awaits them: as idolators for their base concept of God, as frauds for taking false oaths in defiance of all that is holy.

³¹Though the idols by which they swore are powerless, justice that pursues sinners always overtakes the sin of the wicked.

34:6

15 ¹But you, our God, are kind and true; you bear evil patiently and order everything with mercy. ²Even when we sin we belong to you and acknowledge your power, but aware that we belong to you, we shall not sin.

Jn 17:3

³To know you is perfect righteousness and to acknowledge your power is the root of immortality.

⁴So we have not been led astray by a deceptive invention of human act—the sterile labor of painters—these idols daubed with colors, ⁵the sight of which stirs yearning in fools attached to the lifeless face of a dead image.

⁶Really, idol-makers and those who serve and worship them are looking for disgrace and deserve to have false hope.

⁷The potter, laboriously working the soft clay, fashions each object for our use, and from the same clay he shapes vessels, some for food, and others for what is thrown away. The potter makes vessels for both clean and unclean uses and decides to what purpose each one is shaped. ⁸The same way and from the same clay he fashions a helpless god; cursed labor of a man recently formed from clay, who will shortly return to clay when he is called to give up his soul.

⁹He has no thought of dying soon, no thought of the short duration of life. None at all. He competes with those who work on silver and gold and, like the smith, he feels proud to make a counterfeit of God.

¹⁰Ashes, that is what his heart is; his hope cheaper than dust; ¹¹his life worth as much as clay, for he has not acknowledged his Maker, who has breathed into him an active soul, a living spirit. ¹²He looks on life as a game and its duration a market full of bargains, for as he says, “a man must make the most of life whether by fair means or foul.”

¹³For these, more than others, know that they sin in fashioning with the same clay, vessels and sculptured gods.

¹⁴But utterly foolish and more pitiable than the soul of a newborn infant were the enemies that oppressed your people.

¹⁵They received as gods all the idols of the nations—idols that have no eyes to see, no nostrils to breathe the air, no ears to hear, no fingers to feel with, or feet that are able to walk. For these gods are the work of a man, a creature of borrowed breath made them.

¹⁶Man cannot even make a god that resembles himself; ¹⁷a mortal's unholy hands produce a dead god. He is, in fact, superior to what he worships, since he at least lives, but they will never live.

¹⁸People worship the most repulsive animals, the most stupid of all who, unlike other animals, are devoid of beauty; ¹⁹these are unattractive creatures who have missed the blessing of God and are not fit to give him praise.

Gen
3:19

Gen 2:7

Ps 115:4

Ps
104:29

How God treats his people and the Egyptians differently

16¹That is why this people received the punishment they deserved through similar animals and hordes of tormenting insects. ²But in contrast to this punishment it was kindness you showed to your people by providing quails—a delicious food—for them.

³As for the Egyptians, in spite of their fierce hunger, they were restrained by disgust from eating because of the repulsive sight of the creatures sent against them. But the Israelites after being deprived for a time were then given the finest food.

⁴It was necessary for their oppressors to suffer severe want, but enough for your people to know how the enemy was punished. ⁵Indeed when they experienced the fury of wild animals and the bites of writhing snakes, your anger did not endure.

⁶Their temporary affliction served as a warning; then they were given a sign of salvation to remind them of the prescriptions of your law. ⁷For whoever turned towards it was saved, not by the image he saw, but by you, Lord, the Savior of all.

⁸In that way you taught our enemies that it is you who deliver us from every evil. ⁹They were, in fact, killed by the sting of insects and flies for which there was no cure since they deserved punishment from these creatures. ¹⁰Your children instead were not overcome, even by the fangs of venomous serpents, for your mercy intervened and healed them.

¹¹Bites quickly healed reminded them of your commands, lest they fall into deep oblivion and forget your kindness.

¹²No herb, no ointment healed them but your word, Lord, that heals all.

¹³You are Lord of life and death; you bring down to the gate of the netherworld and bring back again. ¹⁴Man in his wickedness is able to kill but he cannot bring back the departed spirit or rescue the snatched soul. ¹⁵It is impossible to escape your hand.

¹⁶The goddess, refusing to acknowledge you, were scourged by the strength of your arm, lashed by relentless downpours, hail, and pitiless storms, and consumed by fire.

¹⁷But this was the most astounding: water, powerful to quench, made fire burn more fiercely. For the elements fight on the side of the righteous.

¹⁸At times the flame abated to spare the insects thrust against the wicked, that they might know they were pursued by God's sentence.

¹⁹At other times, in the midst of water the flame rose more fiercely than fire to destroy the harvest of an unholy land.

• ²⁰But to your people you gave the food of angels and from heaven sent bread already prepared and suiting all tastes, having every flavor. ²¹In this way you revealed your loving kindness to your children. ²²Satisfying all needs, this bread provided what each one wanted.

That food, having the appearance of snow and ice, resisted fire and did not melt; thus they understood how their enemy's harvest was destroyed by fire in the midst of hail, while lightning flashed in the falling rain. ²³This same fire seemed to forget its own nature in order to spare the food of the righteous.

²⁴Your creation is at your service for you are its Author. It works to punish the wicked and withdraws for the benefit of those who put their trust in you.

²⁵In the service of your bounty which attends to everything, creation made itself manifold and adjusted to the wish of everyone. ²⁶Then the children you love learned that it is not crops of whatever kind which nourish humankind, but your word that sustains those who trust you.

²⁷That food which resisted fire, simply melted in the warmth of a fleeting sunbeam, ²⁸teaching us that we must rise before the sun to give thanks and pray to you at dawn. ²⁹The hope of the ungrateful will melt like winter frost and flow away like water that is not being used.

17¹How great are your purposes and how difficult to explain! People who have not learned about them have gone astray.

ish way of seeing things prepared for what Jesus would say in John 6.

• 16.20 What an amplification of the manna that God gave the Hebrews in the desert! Such rhetoric scarcely moves us, yet this Jew-

16:9;
Num
11:10

Num21:4

Num
21:9;
Jn 3:14

8:16;
10:4;
Rev 9:3

Ps
107:20

9:24

16;
Ps 78:25;
105:40

Dt 8:3;
Mt 4:4

16:21

Rom
11:33

10:21

²While the godless thought they had the holy nation in their power, they themselves were prisoners, captives of a long night, shut in under their own roofs, banished from eternal providence.

³Although they counted on their sins remaining hidden under the veil of forgetfulness, they were scattered and at the same time dismayed and terrified by visions. ⁴The dark places where they sheltered could not protect them from fear, they heard horrific noises and were confronted with ghastly and mournful apparitions. ⁵No fire could give them light, while the sparkling radiance of the stars dared not shine on that horrible night. ⁶All that shone for them was an inextinguishable and terrifying fire and, in their terror, when this vision ended, they imagined their situation to be worse than it was.

⁷Their magic arts failed and their pretence to intelligence was utterly confounded; ⁸those who claimed to eliminate the fear and disturbance of the sick mind were themselves afflicted with a ridiculous fear.

⁹Although there was nothing to cause this fear, they were terrified by the buzz of insects and the hiss of snakes; ¹⁰they died convulsed with fear, refusing to look even at the air from which no one may escape. ¹¹Wickedness is cowardly and is condemned by itself; pursued by conscience it always assumes the worst. ¹²For fear is no more than giving up the help that reason is able to give. ¹³Inasmuch as this help is lacking interiorly, the unknown cause of one's torments seems greater.

¹⁴So all that night, a night issued from the powerless netherworld that took hold of them while they slept and made everyone powerless, ¹⁵they were either pursued by monstrous ghosts or paralyzed by a sudden, unexpected fear. ¹⁶Whoever had fallen lay there, shut in a prison not made of iron.

¹⁷Whether plowman or shepherd or someone working by himself, he had to submit to an inevitable fate; ¹⁸all were bound by the same chain of darkness.

Everything held them paralyzed by fear: the sighing of the wind and the tuneful song of the birds in spreading branches, the continuous noise of rushing water ¹⁹and the terrible crash of falling rocks, the swift, invisible bounding of animals and the terrifying roar of wild beasts, the echo rebounding from the mountains—all was a cause of fear.

²⁰The whole world shone in brilliant light and continued its work without hindrance; ²¹they alone were covered in the darkness of night, the image of night that would be their lot. But even heavier than the darkness was the burden they were for themselves.

18 ¹Meanwhile, for your holy ones there was great light. The Egyptians heard their voice without seeing them; they called them fortunate because they had not suffered; ²they also thanked them, for in spite of the injustice done to them they had not retaliated, and asked their pardon for previous wrongs.

³In contrast to this darkness, you gave your holy people a pillar of fire as a guide in their unmapped journey, as a mild sun during their glorious migration. ⁴The enemy deserved to be without light and imprisoned in darkness for having imprisoned your sons, the people through whom the imperishable light of your laws would be given to the world.

⁵They had intended to kill the infants of your holy people—and of those exposed only one child was saved. Because of that you retaliated by doing away with a multitude of their sons who perished together in the raging sea.

⁶That night had been foretold to our ancestors, and knowing in what promise they trusted, they could rejoice in all surety.

⁷Your people waited for both the salvation of the just and the downfall of their enemies, ⁸for the very punishment of our enemies brought glory to the people you have called—that is, to us.

⁹The holy race secretly offered the Passover sacrifice and really agreed on this worthy pact: that they would share alike both blessings and dangers. And forthwith they began to sing the hymns of their fathers.

¹⁰Then came discordant echoes from their enemies: plaintive voices mourning their children.

¹¹The same sentence struck slave and master alike; the common man and the king endured equal suffering. ¹²They mourned together for innumerable vic-

13:21

Is 2:3;
2:51:22;
14:26

11:6

tims, all stricken with the same kind of death.

The living were not enough to bury them, for the flower of their race had perished in an instant.

¹³Although sorcery had turned them into unbelievers, after the death of their firstborn they acknowledged that your people were the children of God.

Rev
19:11

¹⁴While all was in quiet silence and the night was in the middle of its course, ¹⁵your almighty Word leapt down from the Royal Throne—a stern warrior to a doomed world. ¹⁶Carrying your fearful command like a sharpened sword and stretching from heaven to earth, he filled the universe with death.

¹⁷Immediately they were overwhelmed with terrible dreams and hallucinations and assailed by sudden fears. ¹⁸Thrown half-dead, some here and some there, they made known why they were dying, ¹⁹for the dreams that had troubled them had also instructed them, lest they perish without knowing the reason for their misfortune.

²⁰Indeed the righteous, too, experienced death when a scourge struck a great number of them in the desert, but God's anger was short-lived.

²¹A blameless man hastened to their defense. Using the weapons of his sacred office—prayer and atonement incense—he confronted the divine Wrath, putting an end to their affliction, and was thus recognized as your servant.

²²He vanquished your Wrath, but not by physical strength or by the force of arms. He won over the Punisher by reminding him of the sworn promises and covenants made with our ancestors.

²³The dead were already piled up, one on top of the other, when he intervened, beating back Wrath and cutting it off from the living. ²⁴For the whole world was represented on his flowing robe, the glorious names of the fathers on the four rows of stones, and your majesty engraved on the diadem on his head.

²⁵The Destroyer, afraid of these, recoiled; a mere taste of Wrath had been sufficient.

19 ¹Instead, a pitiless fury raged against the wicked to the very end, for God knew beforehand what they would do: ²that after allowing them to leave and hastening their departure, they would then pursue them.

³While the Egyptians were still mourning at the graves of their dead, they had the mad idea of pursuing them as fugitives.

⁴A well-deserved fate drove them to this extreme, making them forget what had happened and completing their punishment with further torment. ⁵While your people would experience a miraculous journey, their oppressors would suffer an extraordinary death.

⁶All creation in its different forms was fashioned anew at your command, in order to protect your people. ⁷The cloud covered the camp with its shadow, dry land emerged where water had been. A safe passage was opened through the Red Sea, the tempestuous flood became a green plain ⁸where the whole nation of those protected by your hand passed across, witnessing your astounding deeds.

⁹They were like horses led to pasture, or like frolicking lambs, praising you, their Lord, who had delivered them. ¹⁰For they still remembered what they had seen in their exile: how the earth, in place of animals, had produced mosquitoes, and rivers, instead of providing fish, produced frogs.

¹¹Later your people were to see a new way for birds to appear, for when they hungered for food, ¹²quails came out of the sea to satisfy their need.

¹³Punishment befell the sinners after they had been warned by violent thunder; deservedly they suffered for their own wickedness, for they had given proof of a most cruel hatred towards strangers.

¹⁴Others had not welcomed unknown strangers, but the Egyptians enslaved guests who had been good to them.

¹⁵The former will be condemned for dealing badly with strangers; ¹⁶worse still, the Egyptians who had welcomed them with celebrations and treated them as equals, but later made them suffer cruelly.

¹⁷For this they were afflicted with blindness like the men of Sodom who came to the door of the righteous man Lot and found themselves in utter darkness, each one groping around to find his own door.

2Mac
6:14

Is 63:13;
Mal 3:20

8:12

16:13

Gen
45:17

Gen
19:11

¹⁸The elements interchanged their qualities as on a harp the notes change their tones while retaining their own pitch. Clearly this is what happened as is shown by a scrutiny of events.

¹⁹Creatures living on the land became aquatic and those that swam emerged on dry land. ²⁰Fire burned more fiercely in water when water ceased to quench.

²¹On another occasion flames did not burn frail animals that passed through them nor did they melt the heavenly food that normally would have melted like frost.

- ²²For in every way, Lord, you have exalted and glorified your people, never disdaining them, but standing by them always and everywhere.

Is 45:17;
45:25

This book is known by its two names: Sirach and Ecclesiasticus. The first one recalls its author, Jesus, the son of Sirach and the second name refers to its welcome by Christians for centuries. It was considered as the epitome of practical wisdom, more elaborate and more “religious” than the Book of Proverbs.

Written in Hebrew, it was later translated into Greek by the grandson of the author (see the preface of the book). In Jesus’ time, the book existed in the two languages although it was especially used by Greek synagogues and a few years later, Jews did not accept it as “Scripture.” The Church used the book although it only knew the Greek version and it was only in the 19th century that part of the Hebrew text was found. It is slightly different from the Greek translation that sometimes added a few verses and the different numbering of the verses added to the confusion. The Hebrew versions are not necessarily older or more faithful to the original than the Greek text. In that regard, we have made our choices without prejudice or absolute rule.

Foreword by the translator from Hebrew to Greek

• The Law, the Prophets and the other Writings which came later have transmitted to us so many and such great lessons that it seems fitting to praise Israel for its reputation in knowledge and wisdom. But it would not be enough to keep these truths for our own instruction: those who love wisdom want to be helpful in what they say and write to those who are not so familiar with her teachings.

My grandfather, Jesus, who devoted himself constantly to the reading of the Law, the Prophets and the later Writings of our fathers and had acquired a thorough familiarity with them, began himself to write something about their teachings and wisdom, in order that those people desiring to gain knowledge might take advantage of his writings and make even greater progress in living according to the Law.

You are therefore invited to read this book with kind consideration and attention, and to show indulgence where, in spite of my painstaking efforts in interpretation, I may appear to have badly conveyed the meaning. Those things, which in this book are written in Hebrew, lose their force when they are translated into another language. In fact, not only this book but the Law itself, the Prophets and the other Writings differ considerably from the original text.

• The Jews do not use the word “Bible.” They refer to the Bible as: “The Law, the Prophets and the Writings,” these being the three major headings of the sacred book. See a similar expression in Luke 24:44.

When I went to Egypt in the thirty-eighth year of king Euergetes and settled there, I found an example of this important teaching and I judged it very necessary to exercise great care and make serious efforts in translating this book.

I have therefore, during this time, devoted many sleepless nights and much study in order to finish this book and to publish it for the use of those who, though they live outside Palestine, wish to become lovers of wisdom and to conform their manner of living to the Law.

Wisdom comes from God

1 • ¹All wisdom comes from the Lord and endures with him forever.

²The grains of sand, the drops of rain and the days of eternity, who can count them?

³The height of heaven, the extent of the earth and the depths of the abyss, who can measure them?

⁴Wisdom was created before all things and the prudent intellect before the beginning of time.

⁶To whom was the source of Wisdom revealed? Who has known her secret designs?

⁸One alone is wise and greatly to be feared. The One who is seated upon his throne.

⁹The Lord himself created Wisdom. He looked on her and knew her value. He poured her out over all his works; ¹⁰upon all mortal beings, in accordance with his goodness. He lavished her on those who love him.

¹¹The fear of the Lord is our glory and honor, it is joy and a triumphant crown.

¹²The fear of the Lord gladdens the heart; it gives joy, gaiety and long life.

¹³For the one who fears the Lord all will go well at the end of his life, and he will be blessed on the day of his death.

¹⁴The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom; he put wisdom into the hearts of his faithful ones before their birth.

¹⁵Founded from eternity she has made her home among people and she will remain faithful to their descendants.

¹⁶The fear of the Lord is the fullness of wisdom. It will fill you with its fruits.

¹⁷It will fill your whole house with desirable things.

It will fill your houses with its riches.

¹⁸The fear of the Lord is the crown of wisdom.

¹⁹Wherever it is, peace and good health flourish; knowledge and prudence rain down. Wisdom exalts those who possess her.

²⁰The fear of the Lord is the root of wisdom. Its branches are long life.

²²Unjust violence cannot be justified, it will destroy itself by its own excesses.

²³The patient man will hold out until the appointed time; but finally joy will be given to him.

²⁴He will guard his words until the appointed time and in the end many will recognize his worth.

²⁵Proverbs rich in content are among wisdom's treasures but the sinner does not want to know about God.

²⁶Do you desire wisdom? Keep the commandments and the Lord will give her to you without measure; ²⁷for fear of the Lord is wisdom and learning; what pleases him is faithfulness and gentleness.

²⁸Do not put aside fear of the Lord; approach him with a sincere heart. ²⁹Do not be a hypocrite before others; watch well your words.

³⁰Do not praise yourself lest you fall and bring dishonor on yourself. For the 24:8;

Pro 8:22

Job
28:28;
Ps
111:10

• 1.1 In this poem, the author professes his faith. To those who think they are more modern because they seek human wisdom and doctrine, he simply declares that true wisdom consists in trusting God and fearing him.

He often speaks of fearing the Lord just as the Psalms do. This is different from the fear of pagans who imagine a resentful God.

To fear God is to see him always present and to take decisions in his presence. Whoever knows God is near fears to offend him because he is aware of his love and fidelity. To fear God signifies to respect him and to be mindful of him before all else.

Fearing the Lord is the opposite of fearing what others will say, fearing to be made fun of, or fear of failure. Those who fear the Lord give more importance to what God says, what he promises when he invites us to seek him and to save others.

Lord will reveal your secrets and throw you to one side in the midst of the assembly, if you have no fear of the Lord and your heart is full of deceit.

Fear God in time of trials

Rev 2:10;
2:3;
Jas 1:2

2 • ¹My son, if you have decided to serve the Lord, prepare yourself for trials. ²Keep your heart upright and remain resolute; do not be upset in the time of adversity.

Rev 3:21

³Hold fast to the Lord, do not separate yourself from him so that you may be successful to the end of your days. ⁴Accept all that happens to you, be patient when you are humbled, ⁵for as gold is tested in the fire, so those acceptable to God are tested in the crucible of humiliation. ⁶Have confidence in him and he will take care of you; follow the right path and hope in him.

1P 1:7

⁷You who fear the Lord, wait for his mercy and do not turn away lest you fall. ⁸You who fear the Lord, trust him and you will not lose your reward. ⁹You who fear the Lord, hope for all good things; hope for eternal joy and mercy.

Ps 22:5

¹⁰Remember what happened to your ancestors. Who has ever trusted in the Lord and been confounded? Who has persevered in fear of the Lord and been abandoned? Who has called upon him and not been heard?

34:6

¹¹For the Lord is compassion and loving-kindness; he forgives our sins and saves us in time of distress.

¹²Woe to faint hearts and weak hands, to the sinner who wavers between two paths.

¹³Woe to the fainthearted who lack confidence, because of this they will not be protected. ¹⁴Woe to you who have lost patience! What will you do when the Lord calls you to account?

¹⁵Those who fear the Lord do not disobey his commandments; those who love him faithfully keep his laws.

Jn 14:23;
14:15

¹⁶Those who fear the Lord seek to please him; those who love him are filled with his law.

¹⁷Those who fear the Lord keep their hearts ready and humble themselves in his presence saying, ¹⁸“Let us fall into the hands of the Lord and not into the hands of mortals, for great as his power is his mercy.”

2S 24:14

Duties towards parents

3 • ¹My children, it is your father who speaks, listen to me and follow my advice and so be saved. ²For the Lord established that children should respect their father; he confirmed the right of the mother over her children.

20:12;
Eph 6:1

³Whoever honors his father atones for his sins; ⁴he who gives glory to his mother prepares a treasure for himself.

⁵Whoever honors his father will receive joy from his own children and will be heard when he prays.

⁶Whoever glorifies his father will have a long life. Whoever obeys the Lord gives comfort to his mother.

⁷He serves those who brought him to birth as he would serve the Lord.

⁸Honor your father in word and deed so that his blessing may come on you. ⁹For a father’s blessing secures the future of his children, but a

Gen 49:
2-27

• 2.1 Those who want to serve God must be ready to face trials and contradictions. Authentic trust in God is demonstrated when things do not turn out well. Along with faith and perseverance, trust is the basic quality of the believer.

• 3.1 This is the best commentary on Moses’ commandment concerning children’s responsibilities toward their parents. To honor our parents means: to respect, to be understanding and to offer material assistance in their difficulties.

mother's curse destroys them at their roots.

¹⁰Do not rejoice at the humiliation of your father because his dishonor is no glory for you. ¹¹For a man's glory comes from his father's reputation; a mother who is not respected is a disgrace to her children.

¹²My child, take care of your father in his old age, do not cause him sorrow as long as he lives.

¹³Even if he has lost his mind, have patience; do not be disrespectful to him while you are in full health.

¹⁴For kindness done to one's father will never be forgotten, it will serve as reparation for your sins.

¹⁵In the day of adversity the Lord will remember it to your advantage; for just as ice melts in the heat, so will your sins melt away. ¹⁶The man who abandons his father is like a blasphemer; he who annoys his mother is cursed by the Lord.

Humility

¹⁷My son, conduct your affairs with discretion and you will be loved by those who are acceptable to God.

¹⁸The greater you are, the more you should humble yourself and thus you will find favor with God. ²⁰For great is the power of the Lord and it is the humble who give him glory.

²¹Do not seek what is beyond your powers nor search into what is beyond your ability. ²²Reflect on what you are commanded to do; there is no need for you to know things that are hidden.

²³Do not tire yourself in resolving useless questions since the knowledge you already have goes beyond human understanding.

²⁴For many have been led astray by their personal theories and false pretension has undermined reason.

²⁶The obstinate man will eventually fall into evil, and he who loves danger will perish therein. ²⁷The obstinate man will be weighed down with sufferings; the sinner heaps up sin upon sin.

²⁸For the sufferings of the proud man there is no remedy, the roots of evil are implanted in him. ²⁹The wise man reflects on proverbs. What the wise man desires is an attentive ear.

Almsgiving

³⁰As water extinguishes the burning flames, almsgiving obtains pardon for sins. ³¹The man who responds by doing good prepares for the future, at the moment of his downfall he will find support.

4 ¹My son, do not deny the poor his food and do not make the man who looks at you with pleading eyes wait.

²Do not sadden the hungry person nor annoy anyone who is in need. ³Do not exasperate an angry man nor withhold alms from the beggar.

⁴Do not drive away the beggar who is weighed down with afflictions, nor turn away your face from the poor; ⁵do not snub the needy nor give anyone a reason to curse you.

⁶If someone curses you in the bitterness of his heart, the Creator will hear his prayer.

⁷Make yourself acceptable to the community; bow your head before the one in authority.

⁸Listen to the poor man and reply to him with kind words and with peace. ⁹Deliver the oppressed from the hands of the oppressor. Do not be weak when you administer justice. ¹⁰Be like a father towards orphans and like a husband towards their mothers. Then you will be like a son of the Most High and he will love you more than your own mother.

¹¹Wisdom brings up her children and takes care of those who look for her. ¹²Whoever loves her loves life. Those who rise early in the morning in search of her will be filled with joy.

¹³Whoever possesses her will have glory and wherever he goes blessings will follow. ¹⁴Those who serve her are minis-

Pro 19:26

Mt 15:4

21:17

Phil 2:5;

Mt 20:26;

Jas 4:6

Zep 2:3

Ps 131:1

29:8-13;
Dt 17:
1-11Tb 12:9;
1P 4:8

22:22

Job
29:15Lk 6:35;
Jn 14:21

ters of the Holy One; those who love her are loved of the Lord. ¹⁵He who listens to her will have good judgment. He who obeys her will rest in safety.

¹⁶Whoever trusts in her will possess her and his children after him will inherit her.

Mt 7:14

¹⁷For in the beginning she will lead him by rough paths, causing him to fear and be terrified; she will plague him with her discipline until she can count on him; and she will put him to the test by her demands.

¹⁸Then she will lead him on a level path, give him joy and reveal her secrets to him.

¹⁹But if he wanders from the path, she will abandon him and allow him to be lost.

²⁰In every situation weigh the pros and cons and avoid evil. A wrong kind of shame could harm you. ²¹There is a shame which leads to sin and there is a shame which merits praise and respect. ²²Do not act against your better self to win favor from others. Do not let this kind of shame lead you into sin.

²³Do not remain silent when it is necessary to speak. Do not, through pride, hide your wisdom. ²⁴It is in speech that wisdom is recognized and learning in the spoken discourse.

²⁵Do not contradict the truth; rather confess your lack of knowledge.

Lev 5:5;
Num 5:7;
Jas 5:16

²⁶Have no shame in confessing your sins, do not swim against the tide.

²⁷Do not cringe before a fool; do not be influenced by the powerful.

²⁸Fight for the truth till death and the Lord will fight for you.

1Jn 3:18

²⁹Do not be daring in your speech, but lazy and negligent in works.

³⁰Do not be like a lion in your household, finding fault with your servants and oppressing those under you.

Acts
20:35

³¹Do not open your hand to receive and keep it closed when you should give.

Do not rely on wealth

11:24;
Lk 12:15
Ps 62:11

5 ¹Do not rely on your wealth. Do not say, "I am self-sufficient." ²Do not let yourself be carried away by greed and violence; they would make you their slave.

³Do not say, "Who can stop me?" For the Lord has power to punish you. ⁴Do not say, "I have sinned and nothing has happened!" For the Lord bides his time.

Ps 12:4

Rom 2:4;
3:25

⁵Do not be so sure of pardon when you are heaping sin upon sin. ⁶Do not say, "His compassion is great! He will forgive the vast number of my sins!" For with him is mercy but also anger; his fury will be poured out on sinners.

20:5

⁷Do not delay your return to the Lord, do not put it off from day to day. For suddenly the anger of the Lord will blaze forth and you will perish on the day of reckoning.

Lk 12:
35-40

⁸Do not rely on riches wrongfully acquired for they will be of no use to you on the day of wrath.

⁹Do not be swayed by every wind nor try to walk by every path, as does the sinner who is accustomed to lie. ¹⁰Remain firm in your convictions, and be consistent in your speech. ¹¹Be ready to listen, and know how to wait before giving your reply.

Mt 5:37;
Jas 5:12

Jas 1:19

¹²If you know what you are saying, answer your neighbor; if not, it is better to say nothing. ¹³Your words can bring you honor and dishonor; a man's tongue brings about his downfall.

¹⁴Do not let yourself be known as a scandalmonger or a deceiver. For if shame is the lot of the robber, severe condemnation is the lot of the liar.

¹⁵Do not sin in big things nor in little things, and from being a friend do not turn into an enemy. An evil reputation brings in its train shame and disgrace; such is the lot of the sinner who is accustomed to lying.

6 ¹Just as the wicked man inherits confusion and shame so will the sinner accustomed to lying. ²Do not give yourself over to your passions; they will turn against you and, like a bull, tear you to pieces. ³They will devour the foliage and destroy the fruit, leaving you like a dry stump. ⁴An evil passion will destroy the one who is held in its power; it will make him the laughingstock of his enemies.

• 5.1 At times, some Christians take advantage of God's infinite mercy to continue with their evil behavior (v. 6).

Friends

37:1-6 • ⁵A gentle word makes many friends, an agreeable tongue calls forth gracious replies. ⁶Let your friends be many; but your counselors, one in a thousand!

37:7-15

⁷If you would gain a friend, begin by testing him and do not put your confidence in him too quickly. ⁸For there is the friend who is such when it suits him but he does not remain faithful in the time of your adversity.

⁹There is the friend who becomes an enemy and, to your confusion, makes known why you quarreled.

¹⁰There is the friend who shares your table but does not remain faithful when things go against you. ¹¹In times of prosperity he will be like your shadow and he will speak freely to those of your household. ¹²But if you are humiliated, he will turn against you and will avoid meeting you.

¹³Distance yourself from your enemies and be careful about your friends.

¹⁴The faithful friend is a secure refuge; whoever has found one has found a treasure. ¹⁵A faithful friend is beyond all price; hold him as priceless. ¹⁶A faithful friend is a life-saving remedy, and those who fear the Lord will find one.

¹⁷Whoever fears the Lord will make true friends for, as a man is, such will his friend be.

¹⁸My son, dedicate yourself to learning from your youth, and you will grow in wisdom until old age. ¹⁹Work at it like the worker and the sower, cultivate wisdom and wait for her excellent fruits. For in cultivating her you will have some trouble, but soon you will enjoy her fruits.

²⁰Wisdom is very severe with the ignorant. Fools will not persevere. ²¹She will be like a heavy weight or a difficult test which he will quickly throw away.

²²For wisdom brings her own honor, she does not reveal herself to everyone. ²³Listen, my son, and receive my teaching, do not reject my counsel. ²⁴Put her constraints on your feet and her yoke on your neck. ²⁵Put your shoulder to the burden and bear her yoke; do not rebel against her chains. ²⁶Come to her with all your soul and with all your strength observe her ways. ²⁷Pursue her, search for her, she will make herself known to you; when you have her, do not let her go.

Mt 11:29

²⁸For, in the end, you will find in her your rest and she will become your joy. ²⁹Her constraints will strengthen your steps and her collar will be like a glorious garment. ³⁰Her yoke will become an ornament of gold and her chains like precious girdles of hyacinth blue. ³¹You will adorn yourself as with a garment of glory and you will put her on like a crown of jubilation.

³²If you wish, my son, you will be learned; if you pay attention, you will become clever. ³³If you love to listen, you will learn; if you really pay attention, you will become wise.

³⁴Be on your guard in the assembly of the elders and if there is a wise man there, attach yourself to him. ³⁵Be willing to listen to all discourses on divine things, and do not let the sayings of the wise escape you.

³⁶If you see an intelligent man, follow him from daybreak and let your feet beat a pathway to his door.

³⁷Meditate on the precepts of the Lord and apply yourself unceasingly to his commandments. He will strengthen your heart and the wisdom you desire will be given to you.

• 6.5 Here, we have a text concerning true friendship. Ben Sira invites us not to be naive or off guard.

We should reflect before confiding in a friend, but should also have this life-saving remedy which a true friend is, a grace that God grants to those who fear him. Also see 12:8-18 and 37:1-15.

6:18-37. We obtain wisdom through a disciplined life.

7:15. Ben Sira appreciates manual work, specifically work in the fields.

7 ¹Do no evil and evil will not take hold of you.

²Keep away from wrongdoing and it will leave you alone.

Gal 6:7;
Job 4:8
³Do not sow in the furrows of injustice for fear of reaping its harvest sevenfold.

Pro 25:6
⁴Do not demand authority from the Lord nor from the king a place of honor.

⁵Do not make yourself out to be a just man before the Lord nor a wise man in front of the king.

Lev 19:15
⁶Do not seek a position of responsibility lest you not be powerful enough to root out injustice and, overawed by a powerful man, you lose your integrity.

⁷Do not offend the city's assembly; do not grovel before the people.

⁸Do not commit the same sin twice; once is enough to bring punishment upon you.

Am 5:21
⁹Do not say, "When I sacrifice to God, the Most High will take into account the number of gifts and he will accept them."

Jas 1:6
¹⁰Pray with a strong spirit and do not neglect to give alms.

1S 2:7;
Lk 1:52
¹¹Do not despise a man when he is downcast, for there is one who casts down and who raises up.

¹²Do not lie about your brother; likewise, do not lie about your friend.

¹³Do not allow yourself any kind of lie for nothing good will come of it.

Mt 6:7
¹⁴Do not gossip in front of the council of the elders, nor keep on repeating your words in prayer.

Pro 24:27
¹⁵Do not hate hard work nor the tilling of the land as instituted by the Most High.

¹⁶Do not join the company of sinners, remember that the wrath of God will not be delayed.

2Mac
9:9;
Is 66:24
¹⁷Remain humble, because the godless are punished with fire and worms.

¹⁸Do not exchange your friend for money, nor a real brother for the gold of Ophir.

¹⁹Do not separate yourself from a wise and good woman, because a gracious wife is worth more than gold.

Dt 24:14
²⁰Do not maltreat the servant who works honestly, nor the laborer who works diligently. ²¹Love the intelligent slave as yourself and do not deprive him of his freedom.

²²Have you any cattle? Take care of them. If they are profitable to you, keep them.

²³Have you children? Educate them and teach them to obey from their childhood.

²⁴Have you any daughters? Guard their virginity and do not be indulgent towards them.

²⁵If you marry off your daughter you will have accomplished something of importance, but give her to an intelligent man.

²⁶Have you a wife who is according to your liking? Do not send her away. As for the one you dislike, do not trust her.

²⁷Honor your father with your whole heart and do not be forgetful of the sufferings of your mother.

²⁸Remember that they gave you birth. How can you repay them for what they have done for you?

²⁹Reverence the Lord with all your being and respect the priests.

³⁰Love your Creator with all your strength and do not abandon his ministers.

³¹Fear the Lord and honor the priest. Give him the share which has been commanded: the first harvest, the sin-offering, the shoulders of the victims, the holy offerings and the first fruits of sacred things.

³²Stretch out your hand to the poor and you will receive a blessing from the Lord.

³³May your gifts benefit the living and do not forget the dead.

³⁴Do not turn away from those who weep, and grieve with those who are in sorrow.

³⁵Do not neglect to visit the sick because it is for such acts that you will be loved.

³⁶In all your actions remember your last end and you will never sin.

Prudence and common sense

8 ¹Do not argue with a powerful man lest you fall into his hands.

²Do not quarrel with a rich man lest he throw his weight into the scale against you.

³Do not argue with a talkative person; do not heap up wood on his fire.

⁴Do not joke with an ignorant man for fear your ancestors will be insulted.

⁵Do not offend the man who repents of his sins, remember that we are all deserving punishment.

⁶Do not despise a man in his old age, because we ourselves will grow old.

Tb 4:4

Dt 14:29

Rom
12:15

Mt 25:36

Pro 10:15

Mt 7:1-5;
1Jn 1:
8-10

⁷Do not rejoice at the death of any man, remember that we shall all die.

⁸Do not neglect the teaching of the wise, apply yourself well to their precepts. Through them you will learn how to live and how to serve the great.

⁹Do not set aside the teachings of the elders for they also learnt it from their forebears; they will open up your understanding and enable you to reply at the right moment.

¹⁰Do nothing to arouse the sinner for fear of being burned by the flames of his fire.

¹¹Do not annoy the angry man for fear that he will twist your words to his own advantage.

¹²Do not lend to those more powerful than yourself; if you have lent anything, consider it as lost.

¹³Do not stand surety beyond your means; if you have done so, be ready to pay.

¹⁴Do not go to law with a judge because, due to his position, judgment will be given in his favor.

¹⁵Do not travel with an adventurer lest he impose himself on you and, as he does whatever he pleases, you both perish through his folly.

¹⁶Do not quarrel with a bad-tempered person nor get involved with him in a lonely place; blood counts for little in his eyes and, when he sees you defenseless, he will attack you.

¹⁷Do not take counsel with a fool because he will not be able to remain silent about what you have said.

¹⁸Do nothing which should be secret before a stranger because you do not know how he will react.

¹⁹Do not reveal your secrets to any man, he will not be grateful to you for doing so.

Man with women

9 ¹Do not be jealous of your own wife; do not give her reason to disgrace you.

²Do not put yourself into the power of any woman to the point where she can dominate you.

³Do not go near a woman of ill-repute for fear of falling into her nets.

⁴Do not dally with a singing girl for fear of being caught in her snare.

⁵Do not fix your gaze on a young girl for fear of being involved in her condemnation.

⁶Do not deliver yourself into the power of prostitutes lest you lose your inheritance.

⁷Do not glance about you in the streets of the town; do not loiter in lonely places.

⁸Turn your eyes away from a good-looking woman and do not stare at a beautiful foreigner. For the beauty of a woman has caused many to fall; in her presence love blazes up like a fire.

⁹Never sit near a married woman or drink wine with her, for fear that your feelings towards her be roused and that in your passion you slide towards your downfall.

¹⁰Do not abandon an old friend, for a new one has not the same value.

New wine, new friend; let them mature, then you will enjoy them with pleasure.

¹¹Do not envy the success of the sinner, you do not know what his end will be.

¹²Do not take pleasure in what pleases the godless, remember that they will be punished before they die.

¹³Keep well away from the man who has power to kill and you will not experience the fear of death. But if you go with him avoid all offense for fear that he will deprive you of life: realize that you are passing through deathtraps and that you are walking on top of the wall.

¹⁴As far as you can, be sociable and take counsel with learned men.

¹⁵Love to speak with intelligent men and let all your discourses be about the law of the Most High.

¹⁶Let just men be your companions at table; take pride in your fear of the Lord.

Job 31:1;
Mt 5:28

Lk 15:13

Pro 2:16

Ps 37;
73

• 9.1 Ben Sira lives in a society which holds women in contempt. It is a society which had not yet discovered the rich quality of married love, so there were great temptations for young and adult men who would easily be satisfied with occasional love. Thus Ben Sira has many warnings against women's seduction, but always as if they were in the first place culpable. See 23:12 and 42:12.

¹⁷An artisan is judged by his work and a leader of the community, by the wisdom of his words.

¹⁸A talkative man is dreaded in his town and the gossip makes himself disliked.

10 ¹The wise leader will teach his people; the government of the intelligent man will be well-ordered.

²As the leader is, so will his ministers be; as the leader of the city is, so will be its inhabitants.

³A king without wisdom will ruin his people; a city will prosper through the wisdom of its rulers.

⁴The government of the earth is in the hands of the Lord; in his own time he will raise up the right leader.

Rom 13:1 ⁵Human success is in the hands of the Lord and he clothes the rulers with his glory.

Pride

Lev 19:18 • ⁶Do not store up resentment against your neighbor, no matter what his offense; do nothing in a fit of anger.

⁷Pride is odious to both God and man; injustice is abhorrent to both of them.

⁸Sovereignty passes from one nation to another because of injustice, violence and wealth.

⁹How can there be such pride in someone who is nothing but dust and ashes? Even while he is living, man's bowels are full of rotteness.

¹⁰Look: the illness lasts while the doctor makes light of it; and one who is king today will die tomorrow.

¹¹Once a man is dead, grubs, insects and worms are his lot.

Dt 8:14 ¹²The beginning of man's pride is to separate himself from the Lord and to rebel against his Creator.

¹³The beginning of pride is sin. Whoever perseveres in sinning opens the floodgates to everything that is evil. For this the Lord has inflicted dire punishment on sinners; he has reduced them to nothing.

Lk 1:52 ¹⁴The Lord has overturned the thrones of princes and set up the meek in their place.

¹⁵The Lord has torn up the proud by the roots and has planted the humble in their place.

¹⁶The Lord has overturned the land of the pagans and totally destroyed them.

¹⁷He has devastated several of them, destroyed them and removed all remembrance of them from the face of the earth.

¹⁸Pride was not created for man nor violent anger, for those born of woman.

¹⁹Which race is worthy of honor? The human race.

Which race is worthy of honor? Those who fear the Lord.

Which race is despicable? The human race.

Which race is despicable? Those who break the commandments.

²⁰The leader is worthy of respect in the midst of his brethren, but he has respect for those who fear the Lord.

²²Whether they be rich, honored or poor, their pride should be in fearing the Lord.

²³It is not right to despise the poor man who keeps the law; it is not fitting to honor the sinful man.

²⁴The leader, the judge, and the powerful man are worthy of honor, but no one is greater than the man who fears the Lord.

²⁵A prudent slave will have free men as servants, and the sensible man will not complain.

²⁶Do not feel proud when you have only accomplished your work; do not put on airs when times are difficult for you.

²⁷Of greater worth is the man who works and lives in abundance than the one who shows off and yet has nothing to live on.

²⁸My son, have a modest appreciation of yourself, estimate yourself at your true value.

²⁹Who will defend the man who makes an attempt on his own life? Who will respect the man who despises himself?

³⁰The poor man will be honored for his wisdom and the rich man, for his riches.

³¹Honored when poor—how much more honored when rich!

Dishonored when rich—how much more dishonored when poor!

11 ¹The poor man who is wise carries his head high and sits among the great.

1S 16:7;
2Cor
10:10

²Do not praise a man because he is handsome and do not hold a man in contempt because of his appearance.

³The bee is one of the smallest winged insects but she excels in the exquisite sweetness of her honey.

⁴Do not be proud because of the clothes you wear; do not be proud when people honor you. Do you know what the Lord is preparing in a mysterious way?

Ecl 4:14;
10:6-7

⁵Many tyrants have been overthrown and someone unknown has received the crown.

⁶Many powerful men have been completely disgraced and famous men handed over into the power of others.

⁷Do not reprehend anyone unless you have first been fully informed, consider the case first and thereafter make your reproach.

Pro
18:13

⁸Do not reply before you have listened; do not interrupt the one who is speaking.

⁹Do not interfere in what is not your business; do not meddle in the disputes of sinners.

¹⁰My child, do not undertake too many activities. If you keep adding to them, you will not be without reproach; if you run after them, you will not succeed nor will you ever be free, although you try to escape.

Put your trust in God

• ¹¹There are those who exhaust themselves, tire themselves out and become anxious, yet in the end they are only the poorer.

¹²There are those who are weak, needing support, lacking goods and in great poverty, yet the eyes of the Lord look on them with favor. The Lord will redress their humiliation. ¹³He will raise their heads and many people will marvel on this account.

¹⁴Good and evil, life and death, poverty and riches, all come from the Lord.

Lk 12:16

¹⁷The just can count on the generosity of the Lord and his goodness will guide them forever.

¹⁸A man may become rich through being careful and miserly and this is his reward. ¹⁹The day on which he thinks, "I have earned my rest, now I can live on my possessions," he does not know how long he is going to live. He will have to die and leave his goods to others.

²⁰Remain faithful to your duty, give your life to it and grow old in your work.

Mt 6:25

²¹Do not be disconcerted at the success of sinners but have confidence in God and persevere in your own efforts. It is easy for the Lord in an instant to make the poor man rich.

Lk 12:16

²²The blessing of the Lord is the just man's reward and quickly, in an instant, his benediction will bear fruit.

²³Do not say, "What do I need? What more could I have or desire?"

Jn 16:21

²⁴Do not say, "I have all that is necessary, what misfortune can harm me now?"

²⁵On good days, one forgets the bad; and on bad days one forgets the good.

²⁶Even when the end draws near, it is easy for the Lord to reward a man according to the way he has lived.

²⁷The hour of adversity makes one forget pleasure; at the end of a man's life his deeds will be revealed.

²⁸Do not consider anyone as blessed before his death, for only then he will be known.

²⁹Do not invite just anybody into your house for many are clever deceivers.

³⁰Like a partridge in its cage acting as a decoy, so is the heart of the proud man; like a spy he watches out for your weaknesses.

• 11.11 These thoughts are not new in the Bible which encourages us on every page to trust in God. Ben Sira foretells what we will find on the lips of Jesus concerning wealth (see Lk 12:16).

And he says: Love the Covenant, dedicate your life to it. The Covenant means following the Law. Jesus, too, will speak of seeking the kingdom of God instead of being preoccupied with providing for the future.

Note the end of this text. The Book of Sirach, like certain parts of the Book of Job, affirms that God may wait until death to give a reward; but he does not risk speaking of what will follow: faith in the resurrection was as yet undeveloped.

³¹He changes good things into evil, he lays his traps and criticizes even the best things.

³²Just as a spark sets coals on fire, the wicked man prepares his snares in order to draw blood.

³³Beware of the wicked man for he is planning evil. He might dishonor you forever.

³⁴If you take a stranger into your house, he will cause you trouble; he will estrange you from your household.

12 ¹If you do good, know to whom you are doing it and you will receive thanks for your kindness.

²Do good to the godly man and you will receive a reward, if not from the man himself, at least from the Most High.

³Blessings are not for those who persist in evildoing, nor for those who refuse to show compassion.

⁴Give to the godly man, do not help the sinner; ⁵do good to the humble, do not give to the ungodly; deny him bread, do not give it to him lest he eventually dominate you. He will repay you with a double evil for all the good that you have done for him.

⁶For the Most High himself detests sinners and carries out his vengeance on the ungodly.

⁷Give to the good man but do not help the sinner.

⁸A friend does not become an enemy in the time of prosperity, nor does an enemy remain hidden in the time of adversity.

⁹When a man is doing well, his enemies are sad; when he is suffering misfortune, even his friends hasten to abandon him.

¹⁰Never trust an enemy, for his malice is like bronze covered in rust.

¹¹Even if he should act as a humble man and walk with head bowed down, watch yourself and be on your guard against him. Behave towards him as a man who polishes a bronze mirror.

Know that the rust will not remain until the end.

¹²Do not place him near you lest he overthrow you and take your place. Do not make him sit on your right hand lest he covet your seat. Let it not be that in the end you understand my words and regret not having listened to my advice.

¹³Who will have pity on the snake-charmer bitten by a snake or on those who go near wild beasts? ¹⁴It is the same for the man who joins company with a sinner and finds himself involved in his wrongdoing. ¹⁵The sinner will remain quietly with you for an hour but when you are distracted he will throw away his mask.

¹⁶The enemy is all sweetness in his speech, but in his heart he is planning to throw you in the ditch. The enemy has tears in his eyes but, if he finds an opportunity, he cannot have enough of your blood.

¹⁷If misfortune comes to you, you will find him there before you; pretending to help you, he will be scheming to get rid of you. ¹⁸He will wag his head in mockery and clap his hands, he will whisper unceasingly and will show his true face.

Beware of the great

13 ¹He who touches tar will be soiled; he who associates with an arrogant man will become like him.

²Do not carry too heavy a load; do not make friends with someone stronger and richer than you. Why put the earthen pot near the iron one? One will bang the other and break it.

³The rich man does wrong and is unconcerned; the poor man is insulted and apologizes.

⁴The rich man uses you as long as you are useful to him; when you have nothing left he deserts you.

Lk 6:35;
Mt 5:45

Pro
26:24

Pro
18:23

• 13.1 This long paragraph is an invitation not to seek the company of those above us. Often the rich, those above, are godless, without conscience. The author points out the dangers:

- those above take advantage of those who seek to become familiar with them;

- to be admitted into the friendship of the rich, we have to accept many humiliations and to forget our own dignity;
- contact with the rich will lead us to imitate their faults.

⁵He will stay with you as long as you have something; he will drain you without a second thought.

⁶If he really needs you he will deceive you, smile at you and raise your hopes; he will speak smooth words and say, "What would you like?"

⁷He will show his gratitude by entertaining you until he has taken all you possess, and he will make fun of you in the end. Afterwards, when he sees you, he will have nothing to do with you, shaking his head when he meets you.

⁸Take care not to be deceived and humiliated through stupidity.

⁹When an influential person invites you, delay and he will call you all the more.

¹⁰Do not go so far forward that you are pushed aside or so far back that you are overlooked.

¹¹Do not try to talk to him as an equal or trust his many words. With all this verbiage he is only trying to test you and, under pretense of kindness, he is weighing you up.

¹²He will repeat your words without pity and will not spare you either blows or chains. ¹³Be wary and take great care because you are walking with your own stumbling block.

¹⁵All that lives loves its own kind and each person, his own neighbor.

¹⁶Every animal relates to its own species and man to his own kind.

¹⁷What has the wolf in common with the lamb? It is the same with the sinner and the virtuous man. ¹⁸What kind of peace can exist between the hyena and the dog? What peace between the rich man and the poor man?

¹⁹Wild donkeys are the prey of desert lions; so, also, are the poor the prey of the rich.

²⁰The proud man hates humility; so, also, the poor man is detestable to the rich.

²¹When the rich man stumbles, his friends support him, but when the poor man falls, his friends desert him. Pro 19:4;
19:7

²²When the rich man gets into trouble, there are many who come to his rescue; if he speaks nonsense, they congratulate him. When the poor man makes a mistake, they criticize him; if he speaks sensibly, they pay no attention. ²³When the rich man speaks, all are silent and they praise his words to the skies. The poor man speaks and people ask, "Who is this?" And if he stumbles, they push him down. Pro
14:20

²⁴Wealth is good if there is no sin in it and poverty is evil when it is the reward for godlessness.

Enjoy life without being greedy

²⁵Man's heart is reflected in his face, for better or for worse. Pro
15:13

²⁶Does he show a happy face? All is going well to him. Has he found words of wisdom? He has reflected on suffering.

14 ¹Happy the one who has not sinned in speech or who feels no remorse for his faults.

²Happy is he whose own conscience does not condemn him and who has not fallen from his ideals.

³Wealth does not befit the small-minded man; why would you give the greedy man riches? ⁴He who hoards, depriving himself, is hoarding for others: others will enjoy his goods. Lk 12:16;
Job
27:16

⁵He who is mean to himself, with whom will he be good? He does not even enjoy his own riches.

⁶There is nothing worse than one who is mean to himself, this is how his evil repays him.

⁷If he does good, he does it without realizing it but, in the end, his evil will be revealed.

⁸Evil is the greedy-eyed man who does not pay attention to persons and looks down on people.

⁹The ambitious man is not content with what he has, wicked injustice shrivels up the heart.

¹⁰The envious eye covets the food of others; there will be misery and famine at his table.

¹¹My son, use well whatever you have and give worthy offerings to the Lord.

¹²Remember that death will not delay and your time has not yet been revealed to you.

¹³Be good to your friend before you die and be generous to him in any way you can.

¹⁴Enjoy happiness and do not reject lawful pleasure when it comes your way.

¹⁵Will you not have to leave to another the fruit of your works? The fruit of your labor, will it not be shared out by lot?

¹⁶Give, take and treat yourself well, for in the netherworld there are no pleasures to seek.

¹⁷All living things grow old like clothing. This is the eternal law: "You will die."

¹⁸Like green leaves on a bushy tree: some sprout and others fall off, so are the generations of flesh and blood: one dies and another is born. ¹⁹All finite things pass away and their maker with them.

Ecd 9:6;
Rev
14:13

Happy the one seeking wisdom

²⁰Happy the one who is intent on wisdom and who can reply to those who question him; ²¹who makes his own the ways of wisdom and meditates on her secrets; ²²who pursues her like a hunter, lies in wait by her paths, ²³peeps in at her windows and listens at her doors; ²⁴he sets up camp near her house, fixing his stakes in her walls.

²⁵He places his tent in the hands of wisdom; he stays in a happy lodging. ²⁶He places his sons beneath her protection and finds shelter beneath her branches. ²⁷He is shaded by her from the heat and makes his camp in her glory.

15 ¹Such is the one who fears the Lord; whoever embraces the Law will obtain wisdom. ²She will come out to meet him like a mother and greet him like a virgin bride; ³she will feed him with the bread of understanding and give him the water of wisdom to drink. ⁴He will rely on her and will not waver; he will lean on her and will not be let down.

Wis 6:16;
8:12

⁵Wisdom will make him greater than his friends and he will be able to speak in the full assembly. ⁶He will be crowned with happiness and joy. He will inherit an everlasting name.

Wis 8:10

⁷The fool will never possess her, and sinners will never set eyes on her. ⁸She is far away from pride, and liars will know nothing of her.

⁹Praise is not fitting on the lips of sinners since it does not come from the Lord. ¹⁰Praise must come from the wise man; so the Lord himself inspires it.

God made us free and responsible

• ¹¹Do not say, "It was God who made me sin." God does not cause what he hates.

Jas 1:
13-14

¹²Do not say, "He made me do wrong," for he has nothing to do with a sinner. ¹³The Lord hates all evil and those who fear him hate it as well.

¹⁴When he created man in the beginning, he left him free to make his own decisions. ¹⁵If you wish, you can keep the commandments and it is in your power to remain faithful.

¹⁶He has set fire and water before

• 15.11 This poem clearly declares that human beings are free and responsible. In his letter (1:13), James will recall the first sentence of this paragraph. In Deuteronomy 30:15-20, Moses already told his people: "Life and death are before you; choose."

At times the Bible seems to say that God pushes a person to sin in order to punish him later (see Ex 10:27; 2 S 24:1); yet there is no doubt that humans are free. The Israelites were so convinced that nothing is done without God, that they had trouble explaining how someone can sin without this being God's will. Even though they lacked the words to express it, they always saw human beings as persons responsible for their actions.

you; you stretch out your hand to which-ever you prefer.

¹⁷Life and death are set before man; whichever a man prefers will be given him.

¹⁸How magnificent is the wisdom of the Lord! He is powerful and all-seeing.

¹⁹His eyes are on those who fear him. He knows all the works of man.

²⁰He has commanded no one to be godless and has given no one permission to sin.

No happiness for the wicked

16 ¹Do not long for a brood of worthless children, and take no joy in godless sons.

²However many you have, do not rejoice in them if they have no fear of God.

³Do not depend on their having a long life, or trust in their number, because one is better than a thousand and their death is preferable to their being godless.

⁴A city can arise from one man who is prudent. Yet, even though the wicked become a great tribe, they will be destroyed. ⁵I have seen such things with my own eyes and my ears have heard of still greater things.

⁶Fire has come upon the meeting of sinners and God's wrath is kindled against rebellious people.

⁷God did not pardon the leaders of old who rebelled in their pride of strength.

⁸He did not spare the city where Lot lived; he detested their pride.

⁹He showed no pity on the people doomed to destruction; they were annihilated for their sins.

¹⁰In the same way, he dealt with the six hundred thousand men who, in the hardness of their hearts, had revolted.

¹¹Had there been only one stubborn man it would have been amazing if he had escaped unpunished, since mercy and anger belong to the Lord who is powerful both in forgiveness and in punishment.

¹²His justice is as great as his mercy and he judges people by their deeds.

¹³Just as the sinner will not escape with his booty, the patience of the upright man will not go unrewarded.

¹⁴God will reward every act of mercy; each person will be treated according to his deeds.

¹⁷Do not say, "I will hide from the Lord; who will remember me up there? I will not be recognized in the midst of so many. What am I in the immensity of creation?"

¹⁸Look: the sky and the heavens above the sky, the sea and the earth tremble when he comes.

¹⁹The mountains, together with the foundations of the earth, are filled with dread before his sight.

²⁰But nobody thinks of such things: who is interested in the ways of God?

²¹Most of his works go unnoticed and man does not see where the storm originates.

²²"Who tells us of the interventions of God? Who expects them? The Covenant is far away."

²³Such are the thoughts of the man of little sense, the foolish, dissolute man who loves his illusions.

²⁴Listen to me, my sons; acquire knowledge and apply your heart to my words. ²⁵I will expound the teaching step by step and impart knowledge carefully.

God the Creator

• ²⁶God created his works from the beginning and, as he made them,

• 16.26 Here we have an optimistic vision of humankind. God gave them power over all things on earth. This is why they must not give themselves to evil.

He put his own eye in their hearts (17:8): this means conscience and intuitions of the spirit (see Pro 4:23) which lets us see the work of God.

What is greatest in us is not reason which discusses and argues, but an intuition of the truth, which in a time seeks reasons to support it. When we forget about this intuition which is in fact the dynamic of scientific research, we are always capable of using reason in such a way that denies the evidence of the divine presence in the universe. It is this divine capacity that leads us to true wisdom.

Then, God had to reveal himself to us, so that this capacity to come to the truth would lead to sound knowledge, decisive in terms of the direction of our lives: in verses 11-14, the author refers to the gift of the Law to Israel through Moses.

Dt 11:26;
30:15

Pro
17:21;
19:13

Wis 3:19

Gen 6:1

Gen 19:
1-29

34:6

Rom
11:33

42:20-25

he assigned to each its place. ²⁷He arranged them for all time, their beginning and their unfolding. They do not hunger or grow weary and they never cease from their duties. ²⁸Not one has collided with its neighbor; they will never disobey his commands.

²⁹Afterwards, the Lord looked down on the earth and filled it with his riches. ³⁰He covered its surface with all kinds of living things which must return to it.

Ps
104:29

Gen 2:7;
Ecl 3:20; 12:7
Gen 6:3;
1:28;
Wis 9:2

Gen 1:27

17 ¹The Lord created man from the earth and let him return to earth. ²He settled a fixed time for them and a set number of days, giving them power over everything on earth. ³He endowed them with a strength like his own, making them in his own image.

⁴He put the fear of them in all living things, thus they had mastery over the animals and birds. ⁶He endowed them with knowledge; he gave them tongue and eyes, ears and a mind to think with.

⁷He filled them with wisdom and knowledge; he taught them good and evil. ⁸He put his own eye in their hearts so they would understand the greatness of his works. ¹⁰They will praise his holy Name and ⁹relate the magnificence of his creation.

¹¹He gave them revealed knowledge as well and handed over to them the Law of life. ¹²He established an everlasting covenant with them and let them know his judgments.

¹³Human eyes saw the splendor of the Glory of God; their ears heard the grandeur of his voice. ¹⁴He said to them, "Keep yourselves from all wrongdoing," and to each of them he gave commands regarding his neighbor.

¹⁵Their conduct is always before the Lord; they cannot escape his sight.

Wis 13:1;
Rom 1:19

Dt 4:11

¹⁷He has placed a leader over each nation, but Israel is the Lord's own portion.

¹⁹Their deeds are as clear as the sun to him, he always observes their ways.

²⁰Their misdeeds cannot be hidden from him, all their sins are before the Lord.

²²He holds a man's almsgiving dear as a priceless signet ring; he cherishes a good deed like the apple of his eye.

²³One day he will rise and reward them; he will place their prize on their heads.

²⁴He allows those who repent to return; he comforts those whose hopes are fading.

²⁵Be converted to the Lord and give up your sins, plead with him to lessen your offense.

²⁶Return to the Almighty, turn aside from wrongdoing and totally detest evil.

²⁷For who in the grave will praise the Almighty, if the living do not give him glory?

²⁸The dead man is as if he did not exist and cannot give praise; he who has life and health can praise the Lord.

²⁹How great is the mercy of the Lord and his forgiveness for those who turn to him!

³⁰Man cannot have everything in his power since he is not immortal.

³¹What is brighter than the sun? Yet it disappears. Man is no more than flesh and blood, yet he thinks of doing evil.

³²While the sun surveys the stars in the lofty sky, human beings remain dust and ashes.

Ps
115:17

The greatness of God

18 ¹He who lives forever created all without exception. ²The Lord alone will be found righteous.

⁴He has made no one powerful enough to proclaim his works; who then, will reveal his marvels?

⁵Who can calculate the power of his majesty and relate his great goodness?

⁶Nothing can be added to him or taken away; no one can fathom the wonders of the Lord.

⁷When man thinks he has finished, then he is only beginning and when he stops he is puzzled by it all.

⁸What is man? What is his purpose? What is the good in him and what the bad?

Ps
139:17

Ps 90:10
Ecl 5:1

⁹Take the length of his life: a hundred years is long. ¹⁰Like a drop of water from the sea, a grain of sand, such are his few years compared with eternity.

¹¹For this reason, the Lord has patience with them and pours out his mercy on them.

¹²He sees and realizes how miserable their end is and so he heaps his forgiveness upon them.

¹³Man's mercy is for his neighbor but the compassion of the Lord reaches all people; he rebukes, corrects, teaches and brings back his flock like a shepherd. ¹⁴He takes pity on those who accept correction and eagerly seek his will.

¹⁵My son, do not mix your favors with unkind remarks or your gifts with bitter words.

¹⁶Does not dew temper the heat? So, too, a kind word is much better than a gift.

¹⁷The gift is not as valuable as the words which accompany it, but a generous man brings both.

¹⁸The fool intends to please but insults, a grudging man's gift makes the eyes smart.

¹⁹Find out the facts before you speak; look after yourself before you become ill.

²⁰Examine yourself before judgment comes and, on the day of God's visitation, you will be forgiven.

²¹Humble yourself before you become ill and show repentance for your sins.

²²Let nothing prevent you from fulfilling your vow on time; do not wait until death to put things in order.

²³Prepare yourself before praying and do not be one of those who tempt the Lord.

²⁴Keep in mind the justice of the last days; God will turn his face from you on the day of vengeance.

²⁵When you experience abundance, remember the days of famine; when you enjoy riches, think of poverty and misery.

²⁶Time slips by between morning and evening, all things pass quickly before the Lord.

²⁷The prudent man is cautious in everything; when sin abounds he will keep away from wrongdoing.

²⁸Every sensible man recognizes wisdom and respects those who obtain her.

²⁹Those who speak sensibly are wise, and marvelous sayings flow from them.

³⁰Do not let your passions rule you and restrain your desires.

³¹If you satisfy your lusts you will make yourself the laughingstock of your enemies.

³²Do not take pleasure in great luxury, lest you become impoverished by its expense.

³³Do not impoverish yourself by feasting on credit when you have nothing in your pocket.

19 ¹A drunken worker will never be rich; he who is careless in small things will soon fall.

²Wine and women corrupt the best of men; whoever frequents prostitutes loses all sense of shame. ³He will be the victim of grubs and worms and lose his life because of his stupidity.

When to speak and when to be silent

- ⁴He who is too quick to trust others reveals a shallow mind, whoever sins injures himself.

⁵One who revels in pleasure will be condemned, ⁶hating gossip will save one from evil.

⁷Never repeat what you are told and you will come to no harm.

⁸Report nothing to friend or foe and, unless silence is sinful, reveal it to no one. ⁹They will listen, distrust you and you will end up being hated.

¹⁰Have you heard something? Let it die with you, remain calm; you will not burst with it.

¹¹A fool suffers like a woman in childbirth over something he is told.

¹²Like an arrow stuck in his thigh, such is a secret inside a fool.

• 19.4 In many passages throughout the book of Sirach, as in Proverbs, the author shows that controlling one's tongue is a prerequisite for dominating our person and our destiny (James 3).

¹³Speak with your friend: perhaps he has done nothing and, if he has, he will not do it again.

¹⁴Speak with your friend: perhaps he has not said anything and, if he has, he will not say it again. ¹⁵Speak with your friend for there is much slander; do not believe all that you hear. ¹⁶Often, unintentional slips are made; for who has never sinned by evil tongues? ¹⁷Speak with your neighbor before you heap accusations on him; then leave room for the Law of the Almighty.

²⁰All wisdom is in the fear of the Lord; in all wisdom is the fulfillment of the Law.

²²Knowledge of evil is not wisdom, and prudence is not found in the advice of sinners.

²³There is a cleverness that is loathsome; it belongs to the evildoer who lacks wisdom.

²⁴Better to lack sense and be full of the fear of the Lord, than to be clever in violating the Law.

²⁵There is an ingenious shrewdness which carries out injustice; it is the art of dissimulating in order to do evil. ²⁶One pretends to be grieving and weighed down with burdens but in his heart there is only cunning; ²⁷he hides his face and pretends to be deaf, but as soon as you are distracted, he will take advantage of you.

²⁸One does not sin when the means are lacking; at the first opportunity, he will do wrong.

²⁹You can tell a man by his appearance; the responsible man can be recognized by his face.

³⁰A man's way of dressing reveals who he is, as does his manner of laughing and walking.

The stupid and foolish

20 • ¹There are rebukes which are inopportune; there is the silence of a sensible man.

²Better to rebuke than nurse a grudge.

³He who recognizes his fault diminishes its consequences.

⁴Like a eunuch desiring to violate a girl, such is he who uses force in pretending to be just.

⁵One keeps silent and is thought to be wise, the other makes himself hated because of his gossiping.

⁶One remains silent because he does not know how to reply; the other keeps quiet, waiting for the right moment.

⁷The wise man keeps silent until the right moment; the chatterer and fool speak out of turn.

⁸He who speaks too much makes himself hated; he who wishes to impose himself stirs up ill will.

⁹Man can turn his troubles to his advantage; a lucky chance can turn to loss.

¹⁰There is a type of generosity which will not reward you and another which will repay you double.

¹¹One is humiliated for having had honors; another is humiliated, and then lifts up his head.

¹²One buys much with little money; another pays seven times its value.

¹³The wise man makes himself lovable through his words alone, while the favors of the fool are lost.

¹⁴The fool's gift is not to your advantage; he gives with greedy eyes. ¹⁵He gives little but puts on a great outward appearance and exclaims for all to hear; he lends today and recovers the loan tomorrow; he is a despicable man.

¹⁶The fool says, "I have no friends, no one welcomes my favors. ¹⁷Those who eat my bread have evil tongues." How often they will mock him, and by how many!

¹⁸Better to stumble on the ground than to make a slip with the tongue; this is how easily the wicked fall.

¹⁹The rough-mannered man is like an indiscreet story that ill-mannered people tell out of time.

²⁰The proverb told by a fool will fail, since he does not speak it at an appropriate time.

²¹One keeps himself from sin because he does not have the means to act; when

Pro
17:28

Lk 1:52

• 20.1 We must avoid two errors: correction with anger, because we fall into excesses, and being resentful in silence, without letting off steam.

he gets the chance, he will have no remorse.

²²One loses his soul out of false shame; he loses himself for fear of what a foolish man thinks. ²³Out of false shame he wants to win a friend; he gets an enemy, in fact, for nothing.

Pro 13:5 ²⁴Lying is a shameful defect in a man; fools are used to it.

²⁵Better to be a thief than a liar, yet both are heading for disaster.

Pro 12:22 ²⁶Habitual lying is detestable; disgrace never leaves the liar.

²⁷The wise man's words advance his cause; the shrewd man will gain favor with the powerful.

²⁸He who tills the earth increases his produce; he who pleases the great is forgiven his wickedness.

²⁹Presents and gifts blind a wise man's eyes; like a muzzle they silence the conscientious.

³⁰Concealed wisdom and hidden treasure: what good are these?

³¹The man who conceals his stupidity is better than one who conceals his wisdom.

21 ¹Have you sinned, my son? Do not do it again and beg forgiveness for your past sins.

²Escape from sin as you would from a snake; if you go near, it will bite you. Its teeth are like those of a lion and destroy human lives.

Pro 5:4 ³All evil is like a double-edged sword which inflicts wounds past remedy.

⁴Violence and pride bring down the rich; the arrogant man's house will be brought low.

⁵The poor man's prayer reaches the ears of the Lord and his judgment will not delay.

⁶Whoever hates correction goes the way of sinners; he who fears the Lord turns to him in his heart.

⁷The chatterer is known everywhere, but the discreet man recognizes his weakness.

⁸Building a house with borrowed money is like collecting stones for your own tomb.

⁹The meeting of sinners is like a pile of rope which will go up in fire and flames.

¹⁰The path of sinners is well paved but it ends in the fiery abyss.

Mt 7:13

¹¹He who keeps the Law is in control of his thoughts; the fear of the Lord brings wisdom.

¹²The man who is not clever will never be taught; but there is a cleverness which leads to bitterness.

¹³The wise man's knowledge spreads out like a flood and his advice is like a spring.

¹⁴The fool's heart is like a broken glass which cannot hold any teaching.

¹⁵If an educated man hears a wise saying he values it and adds another. If the good-for-nothing hears it he is annoyed and tosses it over his shoulder.

¹⁶The fool's talk weighs like a load while the wise man's words give rest.

¹⁷The assembly awaits the wise man's words; each one takes to heart whatever he says.

¹⁸The fool's wisdom is like a house in ruins, the knowledge of the fool amounts to nonsense.

The stupid and foolish

• ¹⁹As far as the fool is concerned, instruction is no more than handcuffs and fetters. ²⁰The idiot laughs aloud while the intelligent man merely smiles quietly.

²¹Instruction is like a golden ornament to the shrewd man, like a bracelet on his right arm.

²²The fool steps inside the house immediately, the experienced man would not be so bold. ²³The fool looks in through the door, the polite man remains outside. ²⁴Listening outside doors reveals a bad upbringing, the upright man would be ashamed of doing so.

²⁵Strangers speak thoughtlessly of everything, while wise men's words are carefully weighed. ²⁶The

• 21.19 The politeness of well-educated people shows their noble spirit. When we are truly wise, we instinctively discover the rules of good and noble conduct. As Saint Francis de Sales used to say: "Courtesy is the precious flower of charity."

heart of fools is in their mouth, but the mouth of the wise is in their heart.

²⁷When the godless man curses his opponent, the curse descends on himself. ²⁸The slanderer taints himself and makes himself hated by all around him.

22 ¹The idler is like a dirty stone, his disgrace is laughed at.

²The idler is like a heap of dung, all who touch it shake it off their hands.

³Badly brought up sons are the shame of their father, and daughters, a humiliation.

⁴A sensible daughter is a treasure to her husband, but the disgraceful one is a burden to her father.

⁵A shameless daughter brings disgrace on her father as well as her husband; both hate her.

⁶The untimely word is like music at a funeral but beating and correction guided by wisdom are never out of place.

⁹Teaching a fool is like gluing a broken jar, it is easier to awaken a man from deep sleep. ¹⁰Reasoning with a fool is like reasoning with a drowsy man; in the end, he will ask you, "What is it all about?"

¹¹Weep for the dead man since the light has deserted him, weep for the fool because understanding has deserted him.

Cry less for the dead man; he has found his rest but the fool's life is worse than death.

¹²Mourning the dead lasts seven days, but it lasts a lifetime for the fool and godless man.

¹³Do not waste words on the fool or go with the stupid man; beware of him lest he bring you trouble and his contact leave you contaminated. Stay away from him if you want rest and do not want to be worn out by his requests.

¹⁴What is heavier than lead? What is its name but "Fool"?

¹⁵Sand, salt and a load of iron are easier to bear than a fool.

¹⁶The wooden joint in a building is not dislodged by an earthquake; a determined heart, after careful reflection, will not be moved when crises come.

¹⁷A decision based on serious reflection stands like plaster on a firm wall.

¹⁸Stakes set on a height do not resist the wind; the fool's heart, frightened by his own imaginings, cannot withstand fear.

¹⁹Striking the eye brings tears; if you strike the heart, lucidity will come forth.

²⁰Whoever throws stones at birds scares them off; reproach a friend and you will kill the friendship.

²¹If you have drawn your sword against a friend, do not despair, it can be put back; ²²if you have spoken harshly to a friend, do not fear, reconciliation is possible; but in the event of insult, contempt, betrayal of a confidence or treacherous blow, any friend would desert you.

²³Win your neighbor's confidence when he is poor so that you may enjoy his goods with him when he grows rich; be loyal in his hour of trouble and you will win, in the end, a share in his inheritance.

²⁴Smoke and fumes precede the fire; so, too, insults herald the blows.

²⁵I will not be ashamed of protecting a friend nor will I avoid him; ²⁶if evil comes to me from him, all who hear of it will beware of him.

²⁷Who will put a guard on my mouth and effectively lock up my lips to prevent me from sinning and my tongue from hastening my ruin?

Ps 141:3

23 • ¹O Lord, Father and master of my life, do not abandon me to the thoughtless words of my lips or allow me to fall because of them.

²Who will deal out punishment to my thoughts and apply the discipline of wisdom to my heart? ³Let them not be indulgent at my sins or the mistakes of my mind, lest my errors increase and sins multiply, and I fall

Ps 141:5

The sin of the tongue (22:27) (or the lips) means, first of all, proud words and proud projects. This is always the beginning of all the other sins.

• 23.1 Prayer of the youth who discovers his weakness when faced with life's temptations. Prayer of the adult person who has experienced that evil is deeply-rooted in his into the hands of my enemies, to the joy of my foes.

⁴Lord, Father and God of my life, do not allow me to become haughty; ⁵keep greed far away from me.

⁶Do not let lust and lechery take hold of me; do not deliver me to filthy passions.

⁷Children, learn how to control your language; if you are able to watch over it, you will not be taken by surprise.

⁸The sinner will be caught in his own words, as happens to the proud man and to him who curses.

⁹Do not get used to swearing, taking the name of the Holy One.

¹⁰For, just as the slave who is constantly watched will not escape without blows so you, also, will not be found guiltless after constantly calling upon his name.

¹¹The man who swears habitually will be found full of sins, and disgrace will not depart from his house. If he fails to keep his oath due to carelessness, punishment will descend upon him; if he fails knowingly, his sin is double and if he has sworn falsely, he will not be forgiven; in any case, his house will be filled with disasters.

About impurity and adultery

• ¹²There is a way of talking which deserves death; let it not be used by Jacob's descendants. Virtuous people keep far away from it and do not wallow in sin.

¹³Do not accustom your mouth to foul language for it will be sinful talk.

¹⁴Remember your father and mother when you are sitting in the company of the great, lest you forget yourself in their presence and act like a fool. Then you would wish you had never been born, and curse the day of your birth.

¹⁵A man used to indecent talk will never be reformed in his lifetime.

¹⁶Two kinds of people multiply sins and a third attracts the Lord's anger:

A blazing passion which burns like fire will not be extinguished until it burns itself up.

A man who seeks pleasure from his own body, he will not give up until he catches fire; ¹⁷to the indecent man, all food tastes sweet and he will not be satisfied until death.

¹⁸The man unfaithful to the marriage bed who thinks like this, "Who sees me? Darkness surrounds me, the walls hide me; nobody can see me. Why should I worry? The Almighty will not take note of my faults."

¹⁹He fears the scrutiny of men and does not realize that the Lord's eyes are a thousand times brighter than the sun, that they watch the conduct of all men and penetrate into the most secret corners. ²⁰All things were present to him before they were created and so will they be after their end.

²¹This man will be punished in view of the whole city, he will be caught when he least expects it.

²²In the same way, the woman who is unfaithful to her husband and gives him an heir by another man will be punished. ²³First, she has disobeyed the Law of the Almighty.

Mt 5:34;
Jas 5:12

heart. An invitation to parents to look after their children's training.

• 12. Ben Sira speaks of impurity in the traditional sense: sin against chastity.

– In verses 12-15, he speaks of vulgar words and malicious conversations. As Jesus says in Matthew 12:34: the mouth speaks of what fills the heart.

– Verses 16-21 refers to extramarital relationships.

– Verses 22-23 deals with an adulterous woman, though it can also be applied to the adulterous man: 1) it is a sin against God; 2) it is a sin against the spouse; 3) it is a sin against the family's honor.

Secondly, she has sinned against her husband and thirdly, she is tainted with adultery, for she has had children by another man.

²⁴She will be taken before the assembly and questioned about her children. ²⁵The children will not be able to take root; their branches will not bear fruit. ²⁶She will leave behind a cursed memory and her shame will never be blotted out.

²⁷People who have seen her will know that nothing matters more than the fear of the Lord and nothing is sweeter than fulfilling his commands.

The hymn of wisdom

Job 28;
Bar 3:9;
Pro 1:20;
8;
9:1-6

24 ¹Listen to wisdom singing her own praises and extolling herself in the midst of her people. ²See, she opens her mouth in the assembly of the Most High, she glories in herself before the Almighty.

³I came out from the mouth of God and covered the face of the earth like a mist; although ⁴my dwelling place is in the highest heavens, my throne is within a pillar of cloud.

⁵I alone have seen and understood the vault of the skies and strolled through the depths of the abyss, ⁶taking possession of the raging sea and of the earth as well, with all its peoples and nations.

⁷In all of these, I looked for a place to rest; in which territory would I set up my abode?

⁸Then the creator of the universe commanded me, he who created me assigned the place of my rest, "Pitch your tent in Jacob; Israel will be your homeland."

⁹He created me from the beginning, before time began, and I will never cease to be, ¹⁰I celebrate in his presence the liturgy of his Holy Dwelling and this is why I settled in Zion.

¹¹The Lord let me rest in his beloved city and Jerusalem is the heart of my kingdom. ¹²I took root in the people God has favored, in the land of the Lord, in their inheritance.

¹³I grew like a cedar in Lebanon, as the cypress on Mount Hermon.

¹⁴I grew like the palm trees in Engedi and the rosebuds of Jericho; as a magnificent olive on the plains and like a plane tree I grew tall.

¹⁵I poured out my perfume like a fragrant flower, like exquisite myrrh I have given choice scent; like fragrant plants and as the smoke of incense which burns in the Sanctuary of God.

Pro 8:27;
Ps 132:8

• 24.1 This poem attributed to the Wisdom of God is similar to those in Proverbs 8 and Wisdom 7. What is emphasized here is the presence of Wisdom in God's people.

Two events from sacred history help us understand this presence of God himself through his Wisdom:

- the cloud which accompanied the Hebrews in the desert (see Ex 13:21);
- the Tent which served as sanctuary in the desert (see Ex 25).

The first image teaches us that God's glory so surpasses us, that we can only know something of God when he hides his glory in the cloud. The second image teaches us that the real dwelling of God is not something material that we call "heaven"; God dwells in this world in a mysterious and provisional way, as in a tent.

The Wisdom of God rules the universe and all the nations. It has inspired the sages and the religions of all countries and yet it came in a special way to Israel, which is its dwelling and inheritance. This prepares us for what John says in his Gospel 1:3 and 1:9: the Wisdom of God is Christ, and the people through whom it will be present is the Church.

Catholic liturgy has used this poem for the feasts of the Virgin Mary, because the words fit the role that God gave her in the Church. On the day of the Annunciation, she received the Wisdom in the name of all. This is why she has been granted to be the first of God's people and the mother of all others.

The last verses return to practical things: the Wisdom of God is found especially in the Law, that is, in the book of his words.

¹⁶I spread out my branches like a vine; these are Glory and Grace.
¹⁷As a vine I put out graceful shoots and my blossoms are riches and glory.

¹⁹Come to me, you who desire me and take your fill of my fruits. ²⁰To experience me is sweeter than honey and to possess me sweeter than any honeycomb. ²¹Those who eat me will hunger still; those who drink me will thirst for more. ²²Those who obey me will not be put to shame; those who serve me will not fall into sin.

²³All this is in the Bible, the Testament of the Most High God, the book of the Law which Moses entrusted to us, the inheritance of the congregations of Israel.

²⁵This Law feeds the springs of wisdom, like the Pishon or Tigris in the season of fruit. ²⁶Waters overflowing with understanding come from it, as from the Euphrates and Jordan at harvest time; ²⁷the floods of instruction run like the Nile or the Gihon in time of vintage.

²⁸He who comes first is unable to grasp her fully and neither will the last exhaust her. ²⁹For her thoughts are wider than the sea and her designs, deeper than the abyss.

I have not worked for myself alone

• ³⁰I, for my part, went forth like a brook from a river, a stream diverted into a delightful garden. ³¹I thought, "Let me irrigate my orchard and water my flowers." But now my brook has grown into a river and the river, into a sea.

³²May my teaching shine forth like the dawn; may I carry its light to faraway places. ³³I will spread my teaching like a prophecy and leave it to future generations.

³⁴See, all of you, that I have not worked for myself alone but for all those who seek wisdom.

25 ¹Three things delight me and are delightful to God and people: agreement between brothers, friendship between neighbors, and perfect harmony between husband and wife.

²There are three kinds of persons whom I detest and whose existence I cast away from me: a poor man full of pride, a rich man who is a liar, and an adulterous old man who is a fool.

³If you have saved nothing in your youth, what will you have in old age?

⁴What a great thing is old age with sound judgment, an old man who can counsel!

⁵What a great thing is wisdom in those who are old, or understanding and prudence in the great.

⁶Rich experience is the crown of the old, their pride is the fear of the Lord.

⁷I think of nine things which I consider happy and a tenth to which I will also refer: the man who finds his happiness in his children; the man who sees the ruin of his enemies in his lifetime. ⁸Happy the man who lives with a sensible wife; he who does not plow with a donkey and ox; he who has done no wrong in speech; he who does not serve an unworthy master. ⁹Happy he who has acquired good sense and is able to speak before an attentive audience! ¹⁰Great is he who has gained wisdom, but no one surpasses the man who fears the Lord.

¹¹Since the fear of the Lord excels everything, who can compare with the one who possesses it?

¹³Any wound rather than the wound of the heart; any wickedness rather than the wickedness of a woman; ¹⁴any sadness rather than that inflicted by an enemy; any vengeance rather than the vengeance of a foe.

¹⁵There is no poison worse than a

• 30. Ben Sira is a sage. After years of fidelity in his duty as father of a family, counselor and businessman, he marvels at all that he has received from divine Wisdom. He is well aware that his work is of exceptional importance for many believers in the future, and he gives thanks to God. The All-powerful has done great things for me (Lk 1:49).

snake's venom, there is no rage worse than an enemy's.

Pro 21:9;
21:19;
27:15
¹⁶Better to live with a lion and a snake than to share a house with a wicked woman.

¹⁷Wickedness disfigures a woman's appearance, it saddens the face, making her look like a bear.

¹⁸When her husband dines with his neighbor, he sighs bitterly, in spite of himself.

¹⁹All wickedness is nothing compared with a woman's wickedness. Let her lot be that of a sinner!

²⁰As a sandhill is to an old man's feet, so is the talkative woman to her quiet husband. ²¹Do not be fooled by a woman's beauty or fall in love with her.

²²Expect anger, reproach and plenty of shame when the wife rules the husband.

²³Dejected spirits, a sad face and unseen wounds, these are the work of a wicked woman. Idle hands and unsteady knees are found when a wife brings her husband no happiness.

1Tim
2:14
²⁴For sin began with woman and we all die because of the inheritance of the congregations of Israel.

²⁵Do not let water leak out or give free rein to a wicked woman. ²⁶If she does not do as you tell her, get rid of her.

Pro
31:10

26 • ¹Happy the husband of a good wife, the number of his days will be doubled. ²A woman of character is her husband's joy, he will live in peace all the years of his life.

³A good wife is the best of gifts, reserved for those who fear the Lord; ⁴rich or poor, he will have a serene heart and a happy face.

⁵Three things disturb me and a fourth frightens me: neighborhood gossip, a rioting mob, a false accusation, all these are worse than death. ⁶But the woman jealous of another woman brings heart-break, her tongue lashes out at every-one.

⁷A bad wife is like a badly fixed yoke; taking her is like grasping a scorpion.

⁸A drunken wife causes scandal; her disgrace will not remain hidden.

⁹A licentious woman is noticed by her secretive looks and recognized by her lively eyes. ¹⁰Keep a firm eye on a defiant daughter, so that she may not take advantage of some occasion.

¹¹Guard against the provocative woman and do not be surprised if she wishes to drag you into disgrace.

¹²She opens her mouth like a thirsty traveler to drink any water coming her way; she sits by any pole and opens her quiver to every arrow.

¹³A wife's grace gladdens her husband and her prudence refreshes his body. ¹⁴A wife who knows how to be silent is a gift from the Lord; the well-trained wife is invaluable. ¹⁵A modest wife is a favor among favors; the chaste wife is priceless.

¹⁶Like the sun rising over the mountains of the Lord, such is the enchantment of a good wife in a well-kept house.

¹⁷Like the light which shines from the sacred lampstand, such is a beautiful face in a well-shaped body.

¹⁸Like pillars of gold on a silver base, such are beautiful legs on sturdy feet.

¹⁹There are two things which grieve me and a third which makes me angry: a warrior who suffers want; intelligent men who are treated contemptuously; a man who turns from virtue to sin. The Lord singles this man out to strike him down.

²⁰The merchant can barely avoid greed; the shopkeeper cannot remain sinless.

27 ¹Many sin for love of gain, he who desires riches silences his conscience.

• 26.1 Ben Sira praises the perfect woman from a moral and physical viewpoint. With regard to this it would be necessary to show how the modern urban society is destructive of all those who are not in an independent situation. It is true for both man and woman, even if the latter does not know the slavery and endemic misery of Ben Sira's time. Today's cities offer an immense field of action for Christian family groups.

²Just as the stake is settled between two stones, so sin wedges itself between buying and selling. ³The house of him who does not keep himself firmly in the fear of the Lord will soon be knocked to the ground.

⁴When a sieve is shaken the dirt falls through; so, too, the defects of a man are seen when he begins to speak.

⁵The kiln tests the potter's handiwork; a man is tested by his conversation.

Mt 7:16 ⁶A well-tended tree is shown by its fruits so a man's feelings can be detected in what he says.

⁷Praise no one before he has spoken, since this is the acid test.

⁸If you pursue righteousness, you will achieve it and wear it like a festive garment.

⁹Birds associate with their own kind, so, too, does truth greet those who are faithful.

¹⁰The lion lurks in wait for its prey; so, too, does sin lie in wait for those who do wrong.

¹¹The wise man's conversation follows wisdom all the time. In contrast, the fool changes like the moon.

Ecd 7:3-6 ¹²When among fools, be sparing with your time; among thoughtful people, be lavish with it. ¹³The conversation of fools is hateful, their laughter is coarse and raucous.

¹⁴No one can bear those who swear all the time. Their quarrels make you cover your ears.

¹⁵Blood is spilt when proud men quarrel and their insults are painful to the ear.

¹⁶He who betrays a secret is no longer trusted; he will no longer find reliable friends. ¹⁷Love your friend and be loyal; if you have revealed his secrets, go with him no longer. ¹⁸It is like having lost some of your relatives: his friendship to you has died.

¹⁹Like a bird, you have let your friend go, you will not get him back. When you open your hand, the bird flies off; ²⁰do not pursue him: he is far away and has fled like a gazelle from the snare. ²¹For a wound can be bandaged and an insult forgiven, but if you betray a secret there is no hope.

²²The man who winks an eye is plotting evil, no one can persuade him to change. ²³He is all sweetness to your face, praising your words, but behind your back he speaks differently and twists your words.

²⁴I hate many things but nothing more than this man; the Lord, also, hates and curses him.

²⁵When one tosses a stone in the air it falls back on his head; whoever deals a treacherous blow, wounds himself.

²⁶He who digs a pit will fall into it; he who sets a snare will be caught in it.

²⁷If you do evil, evil will befall you and you will not know from where it comes.

²⁸The proud man makes use of mockery and insults, but vengeance lies in wait for him like a lion.

²⁹Those who gloat over the downfall of good men will fall into the snare; suffering will consume them before they die.

³⁰Grudge and wrath, these also are abominations in which sinful people excel.

Don't bear grudges

28 ¹He who demands revenge will suffer the vengeance of the Lord who keeps a strict account of his sins. ²Forgive the mistakes of your neighbor and you may ask that your sins be forgiven.

Mt 5:23;
6:12

³If a man bears resentment against another, how can he ask God for healing? ⁴If he has no compassion on others, how can he pray for forgiveness for his sins? ⁵As long as he, mere flesh, is resentful, who will obtain his pardon?

Mt 18:23

⁶Remember your end and give up hatred; keep in mind your final corruption in the grave and keep the commandments. ⁷Remember the commandments and do not bear grudges against your neighbor. Remember the covenant with the Most High and overlook the offense.

Lev
19:17;
23:4

⁸Refrain from quarreling and you will avoid sin; the hot-headed man sparks off disputes.

⁹The sinner causes trouble between friends, sowing discord among peaceful people.

¹⁰Fire burns when fuel is thrown on it; stubbornness drags out the discussion.

The more powerful the man, the greater his rage; his anger will be in proportion to his riches.

¹¹A sudden quarrel sparks off a fire; a hasty dispute leads to bloodshed.

¹²Blow on a spark and it ignites; spit on it and it dies out: both come from your mouth.

Jas 3:
1-12

¹³Cursed be the gossip with his spiteful tongue. He has destroyed many who lived peacefully. ¹⁴The vicious tongue has demolished many and hounded them from nation to nation. It has ruined powerful cities and laid low great households.

¹⁵The vicious tongue has cast out wives who were beyond reproach, depriving them of the fruit of their work.

¹⁶Whoever listens to it will never find rest or be able to live in peace.

¹⁷The whip leaves a mark but the lash of the tongue shatters bones.

¹⁸Many have been felled by the sword but many more have perished by the tongue.

¹⁹Happy he who has escaped it and has not been exposed to its fury, who has not been weighed down by its yoke or been tied up in its chains.

²⁰For it is a yoke of iron and its chains are bronze. ²¹It brings a miserable death. Actual death is better! ²²But it will not tyrannize those who keep faith, it will not consume their soul.

²³Those who desert the Lord will be its victims, it will burn them without being burnt up itself; it will lunge at them like a lion, and rip them apart like a leopard.

²⁴Look, you put a fence around your property and protect your silver and gold. ²⁵In the same way, make weights and scales for your words and put a bolted door at your mouth.

²⁶Beware of a slip of the tongue when you speak, lest you fall in front of those who lie in wait for you.

29 • ¹Lending to your neighbor is an act of mercy, going to his aid fulfills the commandments.

²Learn to lend to your neighbor when he is in need and, in turn, repay him any loan on time.

³Keep your word, remain faithful and you will find what you need on every occasion.

⁴Many think of a loan as a quick deal and put those who help them in a fix.

⁵The moment they receive it, they kiss the hand of the moneylender and humble themselves in deference to his wealth. But on the day repayment is due, they prolong the time, repay with reproaches and blame the current situation.

⁶If they can repay, they pay barely half and the moneylender will be grateful for that much. They have robbed him of his money and, moreover, he has gained enemies, for they repay him with curses and insults and reproaches instead of gratitude.

⁷Many a good person refuses to lend, not for any malicious reason: he is afraid of being cheated without cause.

⁸Nevertheless, be kind to those who have fallen on hard times, do not keep them waiting for your help.

⁹For the commandments' sake, help the poor man; see his need and do not turn him away empty-handed.

¹⁰Better to spend your money on a brother or friend than to let it rust under a stone, to your discredit.

¹¹Use your money according to the commandments of the Most High and you will find it more valuable than gold.

¹²Fill your barns with good deeds and these will rescue you from misfortune.

¹³They will fight for you against your enemy better than any strong shield and mighty spear.

¹⁴A good man goes surety for his neighbor; the scoundrel leaves him to his fate.

¹⁵Do not forget the favors of your guarantor: he has risked his life for you.

¹⁶The sinner wastes his guarantor's money; the ungrateful man forgets the one who saved him. ¹⁷Acting as guarantor has ruined many a good man and has tossed him like the waves of the sea.

¹⁸It has banished powerful men and forced them to wander among foreign nations.

Tb 12:
8-9;
Mt 6:19;
19:21

Jas 5:3

Tb 4:9;
Lk 16:9

• 29.1 Verses 2-6 deal with those who ask for loans and do not pay back.

Alms and, in a broader sense, all that we do for others without charge is the best assurance against misfortune. On this subject see Tobit 4:9 and Luke 16:9.

¹⁹The sinner is anxious to be a guarantor but he will be condemned as a loan shark.

²⁰Help your neighbor as far as you can but beware of falling into the same plight.

²¹Some things you cannot live without: water, bread, clothes and a house for shelter.

²²Better a poor man's life in his wooden shack than lavish banquets in another man's house.

²³Be content with whatever you have, be it great or small; this is better than to go elsewhere and be reproached as an outsider.

²⁴It is hard to go from house to house; ²⁵when you are an outsider, do not risk opening your mouth. You will eat and drink without much welcome and, on top of that, hear bitter remarks: ²⁶"Come, stranger, set the table and whatever you have, give it to me to eat."

²⁷"Be off, stranger, make room for somebody more important; my brother is coming to see me, I need the house."

²⁸It is hard for a good man to have hospitality denied him and to be treated like a debtor.

Correct your child

30 ¹The man who loves his son makes use of the rod; later on he will be proud of him. ²The man who corrects his son will reap the benefit and be proud of him among his acquaintances. ³By instructing his son he makes his enemy envious; he will be well pleased with him in the company of his friends.

⁴If such a father dies it is as if he had not died, for he leaves behind him another man like himself. ⁵In life he had the joy of his company and he is not sorrowful when death comes.

⁶He leaves it to his family to take revenge on his enemies and to return gifts to his friends.

⁷The man who coddles his son will be constantly bandaging his wounds; at his every cry he will be troubled.

⁸Just as a badly broken-in horse cannot be mounted, so a spoiled son becomes insolent. ⁹Pamper your child and later he will terrify you; play with him and he will bring you sorrow.

¹⁰Do not laugh at him lest you have to suffer and grind your teeth.

¹¹Do not let him be independent as a child, ¹²but rather bruise his ribs while he is still young, lest he grow stubborn and refuse to obey.

¹³Be strict with your son and persevere in this, so as not to suffer because of his misconduct.

¹⁴Better a poor man healthy and fit, than a rich man tormented in body.

¹⁵Health and vigor are worth more than gold, a robust body, more than great wealth. ¹⁶No riches are preferable to physical well-being, and no joy is greater than a cheerful heart.

¹⁷Death is better than a wretched life and eternal rest preferable to lasting sickness.

¹⁸Dishes of food placed on an empty tomb are like good things offered to one who cannot eat.

Job 7:13

Tb 9:6

• 30.1 Here Ben Sira touches a point on which the destiny of a people depends. Everyone complains that there are few responsible people. We experience good intentions everywhere, but where are the people who can persevere in doing good and carry out their good intentions? The major cause of a lack of maturity in willpower is found in the total lack of parental authority. A three-month-old baby knows that if he keeps crying he will force the mother to pick him up. When he is two years old, a child knows how to threaten, scream, have a tantrum, with the assurance that, in the end, his parents will give in: "What can we do? The child does not want it."

Ben Sira knows that only children who are subject to discipline and whose whims are not satisfied by their parents, only they will come to real freedom, because they are able to persevere in doing good.

Christianity, of course, is not founded on the observance of law. Yet, though every believer may experience something of the "spirit," we will have trouble reaping its fruits if we are not disciplined.

¹⁹What good is a sacrifice offered to an idol? It can neither eat nor smell. So is it with the one whom the Lord has stricken; ²⁰he sees with his eyes and groans, like a eunuch embracing a virgin and sighing.

²¹Do not give yourself over to sadness or torment yourself with brooding.

²²Joy of heart is life to a man; gladness gives him length of days.

²³Delight your soul and console your heart; chase sorrow far away, for sorrow has destroyed many and never did good to anyone.

²⁴Jealousy and anger shorten your life; worry makes you old before the time.

²⁵A cheerful and kindly person will have a good appetite and enjoy his food.

Pro
15:15

31 ¹The sleeplessness that wealth brings makes a man lose weight; his worries drive sleep away.

²The cares of the day prevent sleep; in the same way, serious illness makes rest impossible.

Happy the one who doesn't go after gold

³The rich man toils to increase his wealth and then sits back and lives in luxury; ⁴the poor man toils to survive and is in want as soon as he leaves off.

⁵He who loves gold cannot be righteous; whoever runs after gain will be led astray. ⁶Many have been ruined because of gold; disgrace went to meet them.

⁷Gold is a snare for those who are possessed by love of it. The senseless will be caught in it.

⁸Happy is the rich man who has not sinned in this way and has not gone after gold! ⁹Who is he? Let us say: Fortunate man! For he has given a wonderful example.

¹⁰Who has been tested in this and found perfect? He has reason to be proud. Who could have sinned but resisted, who could have done wrong and did not do it? ¹¹His fortune is firmly established and the assembly will acknowledge his generosity.

Dinner parties

• ¹²Are you seated at a lavish banquet? Don't be over-ready to eat and don't say, "What a feast!"

¹³Remember that a greedy eye is an evil thing. What is worse than such an eye? That is why it was condemned to weep.

¹⁴Do not stretch out your hand to everything you see or be quick in reaching for a dish. ¹⁵Judge the needs of your fellow guest by your own and in all things act prudently.

¹⁶Eat what is set before you like an educated person and don't be a glutton, lest you be detested.

¹⁷Like a well-mannered man, be the first to stop; don't be voracious if you are to avoid difficulties. ¹⁸If important people are present, do not be the first to serve yourself.

¹⁹A little is sufficient for a well-bred person; your breathing moreover will be easier when you go to bed. ²⁰Healthy sleeping is for the moderate eater. He rises early and feels fit! Sleeplessness and stomach trouble attend the over-indulgent. ²¹If you are obliged to eat too much, go off and vomit and you will be at ease.

²²Listen to me, my friend, and do not neglect what I say; in the end you will see the truth of it. Be moderate in all that you do and you will be without illness.

²³A generous host is appreciated: he is justly praised, ²⁴but everyone will complain about a stingy host and their complaints will be justified.

²⁵Do not try to show how much wine you can take, for wine has been the ruin

• 31.12 The Bible does not condemn the use of wine: it was made for our delight (see Ps 104:15). Only those consecrated as nazirs abstain from wine. The New Testament will not condemn wine either: such is the meaning of Jesus' first miracle in Cana (Jn 2).

Nevertheless, the books of Wisdom have many warnings against drunkenness. See what Paul has to say in Ephesians 5:18 and 1 Corinthians 5:11.

of many. ²⁶As the furnace tests the temper of steel, so wine proves hearts and makes proud men quarrel.

^{1Tim}
^{5:23} ²⁷Wine is life for man if taken in moderation. What is life without wine? ²⁸Wine makes for a glad heart and a cheerful mind, if taken moderately and at the right time. ²⁹But if taken to excess it brings bitterness of soul, excitement and a fumbling step.

³⁰Drunkenness inflames the anger of a stupid person to the point of scandal. It reduces his strength and brings him blows. ³¹Do not reproach a neighbor during a wine feast, and don't look down on him when he is merry; do not speak harshly to him or annoy him by asking him to settle a debt.

32 ¹Have you been chosen to preside at a party? Don't give yourself airs! Just be like everyone else in the group; see to their needs and then sit down. ²When you have done what you should, take your place and enjoy yourself with the others. They will congratulate you for a job well done.

³If you are older, speak as befits your age, but know what you are talking about and do not interrupt the music.

⁴If there is a concert, refrain from speaking; it is not the time for playing the wise man. ⁵A musical concert at a wine banquet is like a ruby set in gold. ⁶As an emerald signet set in a work of gold, so is the music with good wine.

⁷If you are young, speak if you have to, but not more than twice and only if requested. ⁸Keep to the point and say it all in a few words. Show that you are well informed but not over-anxious to speak.

⁹Do not try to be the equal of eminent people and do not chat when someone else is speaking.

¹⁰As lightning goes before thunder, the reputation of a modest man goes before him.

¹¹Leave the party at the right time and do not be slow about it; no lingering, go straight home!

¹²There you may relax and do as you please, but do not sin by bragging.

¹³And thank your Creator for the enjoyment of all good things.

¹⁴Whoever fears the Lord will accept his correction, and those who rise at dawn will win his favor.

¹⁵The man who follows his Law will be nourished by it, but the hypocrite will find it a stumbling block.

¹⁶Those who fear the Lord will please him and their good deeds will shine as a light.

¹⁷The sinner refuses correction and excuses himself for doing what he wants.

¹⁸A person of judgment reflects beforehand; the stubborn and proud man goes ahead without worrying about anything.

¹⁹Never act without first reflecting, and you will have no regrets.

²⁰Do not go along a rough road lest you stumble on stones. ²¹And do not be too sure of your step on a smooth path.

²²Beware even of your own children.

²³Be careful in whatever you do. In so doing you keep the commandments.

²⁴Those who trust in the Law will keep the commandments and those who obey the Lord will come to no harm.

33 ¹Evil will not go to meet the one who fears the Lord; if he is in danger he will be rescued.

²The wise man never departs from the Law; he who only pretends to keep it is like a storm-tossed boat.

³An intelligent man has faith in the Law, which for him is as trustworthy as an oracle.

⁴If you want people to listen to you, prepare what you have to say; recall what you have learned before you give an answer. ⁵A cartwheel! That is what the feelings of a fool are like. His mind resembles a turning axle.

⁶A mocking friend is like a wild horse, neighing when anyone rides him.

⁷Why is one day holier than another, when the light of the sun shines on every day of the year? ⁸By the Lord's decision they were made different; he arranged the different seasons and feasts.

⁹Some of these he chose to make holy, others he made ordinary days. ¹⁰All human beings come from clay just as Adam himself was formed. ¹¹In the fullness of his wisdom the Lord made each one unique and diversified his conditions.

¹²Some he made holy, keeping them near to himself. Others he cursed and humiliated, removing them from where they were.

¹³As clay in the hand of the potter to

1S 14:41;
1Mac
3:48

1S 2:6;
Lk 1:51

Is 29:16;

Rom 9:21 be molded as he pleases, so are all in the hands of the Creator to be dealt with as he sees fit.

42:24; Ecl 3:1-8 ¹⁴Good is the opposite of evil, and life, of death, and the sinner is the opposite of the upright. ¹⁵Consider all the works of the Most High and you will see how they go in pairs, by opposites.

¹⁶As for me I have been the last to keep watch, like a gleaner following the grape-pickers. ¹⁷By the blessing of the Lord I have taken the lead and like the grape-picker I have filled the winepress. ¹⁸Note that not only for myself have I toiled, but for all who seek instruction. ¹⁹Hear me, rulers of the people, leaders of the assembly hear!

²⁰Neither to son, wife, brother nor friend give power over yourself during your life. Do not give your property to another in case you regret it and have to beg them to return it.

²¹As long as you live and there is breath in you, do not give power over yourself to anyone. ²²It is preferable for your children to be dependent on you, than that you be obliged to depend on them. ²³Be master of all that you do; let not others stain your reputation.

²⁴Wait until the end of your days, until death is near, to distribute your inheritance.

Your slaves

Pro 26:3 ²⁵Fodder, stick and burdens are for the donkey; bread, correction and work are for the slave.

²⁶Put your slave to work and you will have peace. Let him take it easy and he will want to be free. ²⁷Yoke and harness will bow the neck. For a criminal slave there are torture and the stocks.

²⁸Send him to work or he will be idle, and idleness teaches much evil. ²⁹Give him work that is appropriate for him; if he does not obey, put his feet in chains.

³⁰But do not be over-demanding with anyone and do nothing without discernment.

³¹You have a slave? Let him be like you; for you bought him through blood.

³²You have a slave? Treat him like a brother. You need him as you need yourself. ³³If you ill-treat him and he escapes, where will you go to look for him?

Dreams

34 • ¹The foolish are deceived by vain and false hopes; dreams give them wings.

²To rely on dreams is like grasping a shadow or chasing the wind. ³What you see in dreams are only reflections: a person sees his own image.

⁴What clean thing can come from what is unclean? What truth comes from what is false? ⁵Divinations, omens and dreams are empty like the fantasies of a woman in labor.

⁶Unless they come as messengers of the Most High, do not pay attention to them. ⁷For dreams have led many people astray. Those who hoped in them have fallen.

⁸Not so the Law, which never fails but comes true. Wisdom from the truthful lips of God is the highest truth.

⁹One who has traveled knows a great deal, and a man of wide experience will talk soundly. ¹⁰A person who has not had trials knows very little. But the traveled man is competent in many ways. ¹¹I have made many discoveries on my travels and understood more than I can express. ¹²I have often been in danger of death but have been saved thanks to my experience.

¹³The spirit of those who fear the Lord will live, for their hope is placed in the One who saves.

¹⁴He who fears the Lord is in dread of nothing. He will not be cowardly for he is his hope. ¹⁵He who fears the Lord is a happy person. To whom does he turn? Who is his support?

Job 14:4

Ecl 5:6

• 34.1 Previously in Israel, dreams were very important. Here we have a reaction against dreams. Without denying that, in some cases, God can guide or warn the believer through a dream, the author teaches that we must not be guided by dreams: the sure way is to fulfill God's Law (see commentary on Gen 37).

Ps 33:18;
34:16

¹⁶The eyes of the Lord are on those who love him. For them he is powerful protection, strong support, shelter against scorching wind and the midday sun. He is a safeguard against stumbling and assurance against a fall. ¹⁷He lifts up the soul and gives a sparkle to the eyes; he gives healing, life and blessing.

Offerings pleasing to God

- ¹⁸An offering to God from stolen goods is a stained offering, the sacrifices of the wicked do not please God.

Am 5:21;
Is 1:11;
Ps 50:8

¹⁹The Most High takes no pleasure in the offering of the godless. It is not the number of victims that obtains pardon for sin.

²⁰Offering to God from what belongs to the poor is like slaughtering a son in the presence of his father.

²¹Bread is life to the poor; he who takes it from them is a murderer.

Lev
19:13;
Jer
22:13

²²He who deprives others of a livelihood kills them, and whoever withdraws the salary of a worker is guilty of blood.

²³If one builds and the other destroys, what do they gain besides trouble? ²⁴If one prays and the other curses, whose voice will the Master listen to?

²⁵If a man is cleansed after touching a corpse and then touches it again, what good was there in his cleansing?

²⁶If anyone fasts for his sins and then commits the same sins, who will hear his prayer? What value is there in his fasting?

35 ¹Keeping the Law is worth many offerings. Being faithful to the commandments is like a peace offering.

²Returning kindness is an offering of fine flour; giving alms is a sacrifice of praise.

Lev 2:1

³Renouncing sin pleases the Lord, and shunning injustice is a sacrifice of atonement.

⁴Do not appear before the Lord with empty hands. The commandment requires that you bring an offering.

⁵When the offering of the righteous is burned on the altar, the fat drips down and a fragrant aroma rises to the Most High.

Lev 16:1

⁶The sacrifice of the just man pleases God and will not be forgotten. ⁷Honor the Lord with a generous heart and do not be stingy with the first fruits of your harvest.

⁸Offer your gifts with a smiling face and when you pay your tithes do it gladly.

Lev 21:3

The Lord will not delay

- ⁹Give to the Most High as he has given to you; give generously to the Lord according to what you have; ¹⁰the Lord will repay, he will reward you sevenfold.

Dt 16:1

¹¹If you attempt to bribe him with gifts he will not accept them; do not rely on offerings from dishonest gain.

2Cor 9:7;
Dt 14:22

¹²The Lord is judge and shows no partiality. ¹³He will not disadvantage the poor, he who hears the prayer of the oppressed. ¹⁴He does not disdain the plea of the orphan, nor the complaint of the widow.

Dt 10:17

¹⁵When tears flow down her cheeks,

• 18. What infuriates the sacred author is that after they have stripped the humble, the rich come to the Temple to offer their magnificent presents.

• 35.9 We must generously assist in the cost of worship as long as it is not a way of forgetting our responsibilities concerning injustice in our world. The Lord is pleased with our sacrifices but, above all, he hears the prayer of the orphan and sees the tears of the widow.

is she not crying out against the one who caused her to weep?

22:21;
Pro 23:
10-11

¹⁶The one who serves God wholeheartedly will be heard; his petition will reach the clouds. ¹⁷The prayer of the humble person pierces the clouds, and he is not consoled until he has been heard. ¹⁸His prayer will not cease until the Most High has looked down, until justice has been done in favor of the righteous.

Job
16:18

¹⁹And the Lord will not delay, nor will he be patient with the wicked, ²⁰but he will crush the backbone of the merciless and have vengeance on the nations, ²¹until he has completely destroyed the hordes of the violent and broken the power of the wicked, ²²until he has repaid each one according to his deeds, ²³until he has judged his people and made them rejoice because of his mercy.

²⁴Blessed is his mercy in the time of adversity! It is like rain clouds during a drought!

Ps 79;
Jer 10:25

Prayer for the deliverance of Israel

36 • ¹Have mercy on us, Master, God of all, and look on us; make every nation stand in fear of you.

²Take action against the pagan nations and let them see your power.

Ezk
38:22

³You have shown them your holiness through what happened to us, so now let us see your great power in acting among them.

Is 45:14;
1K 8:43

⁴Let them acknowledge, as we have acknowledged, that there is no God but you, Lord.

⁵Give new signs, do fresh wonders, stretch out your hand and be glorified in your strength.

⁶Kindle your fury and rouse your anger, destroy your opponents, crush your enemy.

⁷Hasten the day, remember your covenant so that we may speak of your great deeds. ⁸Let the survivors be consumed in fiery wrath, let those who oppress send to perdition. ⁹Crush the heads of hostile rulers—those who say they alone count.

¹⁰Gather all the tribes of Jacob, give them back their inheritance as in the beginning.

¹¹Have pity, Lord, on the people known by your Name, on Israel whom you called your firstborn.

4:22

¹²Show compassion to the holy city, to Jerusalem where you rest.

2S 5:9

¹³Fill Zion with the fame of your wonders, and your people with your glory.

¹⁴Confirm the promises made to your people long ago and fulfill the promises made in your name.

¹⁵Reward those who wait for you and fulfill the words of your prophets.

¹⁶Hear the prayer of your servants, Lord; hear your priests giving Aaron's blessing to your people.

Num
6:22

¹⁷So that all on earth may acknowledge that you are Lord and everlasting God.

• 36.1 The author shares the ideas of his contemporaries who think only of the salvation of the world through the salvation of the Jewish people. He believes in the promises of the prophets: God will do justice and will gather together the dispersed children of Israel.

This hope has always been the strength of the Jewish people. After Christ the Jews were dispersed as the Gospel foretold. Counting on God's promises and the certitude of their unique vocation they were often able to resist dispersion and assimilation.

The New Testament shows us that all of God's promises to his people have been fulfilled in Jesus. It is on the basis of this certitude that we must re-evaluate the words of God. At first they all seemed centered on the gift to Israel of material land within the limits of Palestine. The prophets show that things were not so simple, and Jesus teaches his apostles that salvation history is a process of deaths and resurrections.

Choosing a wife

¹⁸The stomach takes in all kinds of food but one food is better than another.

¹⁹Just as the tongue can distinguish the flavor of meat, so does the alert mind detect lies.

²⁰A crooked heart causes sorrow, but an experienced person knows how to get even with him.

Pro 5:15 ²¹A woman will accept any husband but some daughters are better than others.

²²Woman's beauty rejoices people and is beyond all that could be wished for.

²³If she is kindly-spoken and gentle he is the most fortunate of men.

²⁴When a man marries he acquires a fortune, someone who understands him and who will help and support him.

Pro 15:4 ²⁵When there is no hedge the property will be destroyed; and when a man has no wife he is a fretful wanderer.

²⁶Who would trust a clever robber flitting from town to town? ²⁷And who would trust a man without a nest, who lodges wherever nightfall finds him?

Friends and counselors

6:5-17 37 ¹Every friend says, "I am your friend, too," but some friends are only friends in name.

²Is it not a deadly grief when a companion or friend turns into an enemy?

³O evil intention! From where have you sprung, to cover the earth with deceit?

⁴One kind of comrade takes advantage of his friend's good fortune; in time of trouble he turns against him. ⁵Another kind shares his friend's suffering, for the sake of a meal; when it comes to a fight, he thinks only of saving himself.

⁶Do not neglect a friend or forget him once you are wealthy.

⁷All advisers give advice but some seek only their own gain.

⁸Distrust the person who offers advice, lest he take advantage of you; first of all, ask yourself what he lacks, and what his own interest suggests to him.

⁹Perhaps he says to you, "You are on the right road," while he keeps his distance, to see what happens to you.

¹⁰Do not seek advice from one who looks at you suspiciously; hide your plans from those who envy you.

¹¹Do not consult a woman about her rival, or a coward about war, or a merchant about exchange rates, or a buyer about selling, or a jealous man about gratitude, or a selfish person about generosity, or an idler about any kind of work, or a casual worker about finishing a job, or a lazy servant about an important task. Do not rely on these people for any advice.

¹²But go to a trustworthy man whom you know to be a keeper of the commandments, whose soul reflects your own and who will suffer with you, if you fail.

¹³In the end, keep to your own heart's advice, since no one deserves to be trusted more than your heart.

¹⁴For a man's soul often gives better advice than seven watchmen placed on a height.

¹⁵Besides all this, implore the Almighty to guide your steps in the truth.

¹⁶A plan must be at the beginning of all work; reflection comes before every action.

¹⁷When you decide, four ways are open before you: ¹⁸good, evil, life and death. Your own decision makes the choice.

¹⁹A clever man may teach many but do no good for himself.

²⁰A man may be wise, but if his words are rejected he will end up starving, ²¹not having won the favor of the Lord and being destitute of all wisdom.

²²Another man is wise for himself. He himself takes advantage of his wisdom.

²³The truly wise man teaches his people, and they benefit by his knowledge.

²⁴The wise man is full of blessings; those who see him call him happy.

²⁵Man's days are numbered but Israel's days are countless.

²⁶The wise man will win the confidence of his people; his name will live forever.

²⁷My son, test yourself during the course of your life; see what is harmful and avoid it.

²⁸For everything does not suit everybody, nor is everyone satisfied with all things.

²⁹Do not be insatiable in every pleasure, or be excessive in what you eat; ³⁰for overeating leads to sickness and gluttony brings indigestion. ³¹Many have died be-

Pro 16:9

Pro 18:21

1Cor 3:2;
6:12;
Heb 5:12

cause of gluttony; he who takes care prolongs his life.

The doctor

38 • ¹Give due honor to the doctor, for you need him and God himself established him.

²Healing, in fact, comes from the Most High; the gift of healing comes from the Sovereign.

³The doctor's expertise gives him prestige and wins for him the admiration of the powerful.

⁴The Lord created the medicinal herbs which grow on the earth, and these a sensible person will not despise.

⁵Remember that he used a simple wooden rod to purify water and so make known his power to everyone.

⁶It is he who gives knowledge to humans so that his power be glorified; ⁷the doctor uses it to heal and comfort, the chemist to make his mixtures. ⁸In that way the Lord's work never ceases and well-being prevails on the earth.

⁹My son, when you are sick do not be anxious; pray to the Lord to heal you. ¹⁰Give up bad habits, keep your hands unsoiled, and purify your heart from all sin.

¹¹Offer incense and a memorial gift of fine flour and rich offerings according to your means. ¹²Then consult the doctor; remember that he was established by the Lord, so do not disregard him—you need him. ¹³There are cases when good health depends on doctors. ¹⁴They, too, will pray to the Most High to grant them success in healing in order to save life.

¹⁵May he who sins before his Maker, fall into the hands of the doctor!

Grieving

¹⁶My son, weep for the dead, lament to express your sorrow and bury the dead with fitting ceremony, and do not fail to honor his tomb.

¹⁷Weep bitterly, cry out with full voice, and observe the period of mourning in accordance with the merits of the deceased. Let it be for one or two days, and so avoid criticism, and then be consoled in your grief.

¹⁸For sorrow may lead to death and a dejected heart loses its vitality.

¹⁹Let your affliction cease with the funeral; a life of sorrow is intolerable.

²⁰Do not let your heart give way to grief; bear up and think of your own end.

²¹Remember! There is no coming back, you do the dead no good, but rather harm yourself.

²²Keep in mind my sentence which will be yours as well: mine yesterday, yours today!

²³When the dead person is at rest, let his memory be one of peace; be comforted on his account once his spirit has departed.

Craftsmen and wise men

²⁴A law student acquires wisdom during his leisure hours; free from business he is capable of becoming wise.

²⁵How can the man who guides a plow become wise, he whose pride lies in snapping a whip and driving a bullock, who works continually and talks of nothing but cattle? ²⁶His heart is set on plowing furrows and all his attention is given to fattening heifers.

²⁷It is the same for all craftsmen and skilled workers who toil day and night, professional engravers and designers of seals. All are intent on creating different designs and reproducing the model, and they work even at night in order to succeed.

²⁸So, too, is the smith standing beside the anvil intent on forging iron; his face is scorched by flames from the fire and he struggles in the heat of the furnace; the clang of the hammer is deafening; his eyes are fixed on the model to be copied,

Jer 9:17;
Ezk
24:15;
Mk 5:38

• 38.1 We must pray to be healed of a disease, but without neglecting the help of doctors as some people do. This is clearly stated in the Bible.

he makes every effort to work well and spends time at night in bringing his task to perfection.

²⁹It is the same for the potter seated at his work, his foot turning the wheel, always concentrating on what he is molding, every movement purposefully controlled. ³⁰His arm kneads the clay, his feet make it pliable. All his attention is needed in applying the glaze and at night he sees to the cleaning of the furnace.

³¹All these craftsmen depend on their hands for gaining skill in their different crafts. ³²Without them a city could not be built; no settlers or travelers would come to it.

³³But they are not to be found in the councils of people, nor do their words carry weight in an assembly. They do not occupy the judge's seat and they are not familiar with the Law.

³⁴They are not cultured people or skilled in judgment and they are not found among authors of proverbs.

They uphold creation and civilization, and their prayer is in their life's work.

Ps 1:2

39 ¹Quite different is it with the person who spends his life reflecting on the Law of the Most High. He examines the wisdom of the sages in times past and in his free time he studies prophecies.

²He keeps in mind what people of renown have said and penetrates the mystery of parables. ³He searches for the inner meaning of proverbs and is interested in the secret of parables.

⁴He is at the service of the great and is seen in the company of leaders. He travels in foreign lands and has experience of both the good and the evil in mankind.

⁵Early in the morning his heart is set on turning to the Lord, his Maker, and raising his being to the Most High. He opens his mouth in prayer and makes supplication because of his sins.

Is 11:2

⁶If such is the will of the great Lord he will be filled with the spirit of discernment. He will then speak words of wisdom and celebrate the Lord in prayer.

⁷He will acquire just judgment and knowledge and reflect on the Lord's hidden mysteries.

⁸In his teaching he discloses what he has learned and glories in the law of the Lord's covenant.

⁹Many people praise his discernment and never will he be forgotten. His memory will not fade and his name will live on from generation to generation.

¹⁰Nations will proclaim his wisdom and the assembly will celebrate his praise.

¹¹As long as he lives his name will be more glorious than a thousand others, and when he dies that fame will be enough.

All creation is good

¹²I wish to share still more of my reflections; I am filled with them just as the moon is said to be full.

¹³Hear me, devoted people, and grow as a rose planted near a stream.

¹⁴Spread fragrance around you like incense; blossom and perfume the air like a lily; sing a hymn and bless Yahweh for all his works.

¹⁵Magnify his Name and proclaim his praise with song and lyre, expressing this with thanksgiving.

¹⁶How magnificent are the works of the Lord! All his commands are appropriately timed and satisfy every need.

No one should say: "What is this? Why is that?" All must be studied in its time.

¹⁷At his word the waters ceased to flow and piled up, his voice caused the reservoir of water to open; ¹⁸at his order his every wish is fulfilled, and no one hinders his work of salvation.

¹⁹The deeds of all are before him, nothing is hidden from his eyes; ²⁰he sees all from eternity to eternity and nothing surprises him.

²¹No one must say: "What is that? Why is it so?" for everything is created for a purpose.

²²His blessing covers all things and like a river drenches the land as in a flood. ²³Similarly he may pour out his wrath on the nations, just as he has turned fresh water into salt.

²⁴If his ways are smooth for holy people they are full of obstacles for the wicked. ²⁵From the beginning, good things have been created for the good and likewise evil things for the wicked.

²⁶Most necessary for man's life are water, fire, iron and salt, wheaten flour, milk, honey, the juice of the grape, oil and clothing.

Wis 1:7

Gen
19:24;
Ps
107:33

²⁷All these are good for those who are good, but for sinners they become evil.

²⁸Certain winds are created as a means of punishment and in their fury they are a scourge, unleashing their violence in the time of destruction and satisfying the wrath of their Creator.

²⁹Fire, hail, famine and death have all been created for punishment.

³⁰The fangs of wild beasts, scorpions, vipers and the avenging sword for the destruction of the wicked, ³¹all joyfully carry out his commands, all are ready when need arises and at a given moment they will not fail to obey his word.

³²For that reason I reflected and from the beginning I decided to write:

³³All the works of the Lord are good and he will satisfy every need in due time.

³⁴You must not say: This is less good than that, for in its time everything will serve a purpose.

³⁵So now, with all your heart and in full voice, sing and bless the Name of the Lord.

The misery of human life

Job 7:1;
14:1-2

40 ¹Painful is the lot of all humans, a heavy yoke is upon the sons of Adam from the day they leave their mother's womb to the day they return to the mother of us all.

²What is on their mind, what they fear in their heart, is the day of their death.

³From the king, glorious on his throne, robed in purple and wearing a crown, ⁴to the lowliest person sitting in dust and ashes and covered with sackcloth, there is anger, envy, trouble and unrest, fear of death, rivalry and quarrels.

Job 7:4;
Ecl 2:23;
8:16

⁵And at night when we lie down we have fresh worries: ⁶scarcely are we at rest and asleep when we are troubled by dreams as vivid as if it were day and we were fleeing from a battle. ⁷When it is time to wake up, we feel surprised to find that there is nothing to fear.

⁸This is the fate of every living creature, man and beast, but for sinners it is seven times worse, ⁹in death, bloodshed, strife, sword, misfortune, famine, affliction and calamity.

¹⁰All these were created for the wicked, and the flood as well was sent on their account.

Ecl 1:7

¹¹Everything that comes from the earth goes back to the earth, and what comes from the waters returns to the sea.

¹²All bribery, all injustice will disappear but good faith will last forever.

¹³The unjust riches will vanish like a stream that dries up; they will crash like a clap of thunder during a downpour.

¹⁴A generous man has reason to rejoice, whereas sinners go to their ruin.

¹⁵The children of the ungodly will not be blessed with large families; they are like plants taking root on sheer rock, ¹⁶like reeds in water and along the riverbank, withering sooner than other plants.

¹⁷Kindness is like a garden of blessings and charity endures forever.

¹⁸Life is pleasant both for an independent person and a self-reliant worker, but still better off is the one who finds a treasure.

¹⁹The name of a man who has children or who has established a town will live on, but to have found wisdom is a greater good.

Owning cattle and plantations brings fame, but a perfect wife is a richer blessing.

²⁰Wine and music gladden the heart, but better still is the love of wisdom.

²¹The flute and harp make fine music, but even more appreciated is a pleasant voice.

²²Gracefulness and beauty delight the eye, but not as much as the fresh growth of fields.

²³It is always good for friends and companions to meet, better still for husband and wife.

²⁴Brothers and protectors are useful in hard times, but it will be of greater help to have been a giver of alms.

²⁵Gold and silver make for security but good advice is better.

²⁶Wealth and strength give confidence, but good counsel is more esteemed than either.

You cannot suffer loss when you fear the Lord, with it you have all the support you need.

²⁷The fear of the Lord is like a garden of blessings; it clothes a person better than any glory.

²⁸My son, do not live the life of a beggar; it would be better to die than to beg.

²⁹When a man is always eyeing another's table, it cannot be said that he is really living, for he is defiling himself with another's food; an intelligent and educated man will avoid this.

³⁰That for which a shameless man begs may seem sweet to his mouth but his inner being is burning.

Death

41 ¹Death! What a bitter thought for someone who lives happily among his possessions, a prosperous and successful man who is still able to enjoy his food!

²Your sentence, Death, is welcome to a needy person whose strength is failing, who is old, worn out, and full of worries; to one who is angry and without hope!

³Do not be afraid of Death's sentence; think of those who have gone before you and those who will follow.

⁴The Lord has decreed it for every living creature; why should you rebel against the good pleasure of the Most High?

Whether you live for ten, a hundred or a thousand years, no one in the netherworld is concerned.

⁵Abominable people, such are the children of sinners who gather in the houses of the ungodly.

⁶The inheritance of sinners will perish; their prosperity will be a lasting reproach.

⁷An ungodly father will be insulted by his children, for they hold him responsible for their disgrace.

⁸Woe to you, wicked people who have forsaken the law of the Most High! ⁹At birth you are born to be cursed and you will be cursed at death.

¹⁰All that comes from the earth returns to the earth, and the ungodly go from curse to ruin.

¹¹People grieve because their bodies will perish, but even the evil names of sinners will be blotted out.

¹²Have regard for your reputation, for it will live on, of greater value than a thousand hoards of gold. ¹³Few perhaps are the days of the just man's life but an honored name endures forever.

Ecl 7:1

True and false shame

¹⁴My children, keep my teaching and live in peace. Of what use is hidden wisdom and unseen treasure?

20:30-31;
Mt 5:
14-16

¹⁵It is better for a man to hide his foolishness than to hide his wisdom.

¹⁶Therefore, feel shame according to what I say. It is not always fitting to feel shame, but this is not understood by everyone.

¹⁷Be ashamed of licentiousness before your father and mother, and of a lie before a ruler or an important person.

¹⁸Be ashamed of criminal behavior before a judge, and of iniquity before an assembly of people.

¹⁹Feel ashamed of dishonesty before your partner or friend, and of a theft in the place where you live.

²⁰Be ashamed before the truth of God and his covenant. Be ashamed of keeping the loaves for yourself, ²¹of being unable to give and to receive, of not returning a greeting, ²²of staring at a prostitute, of rejecting a compatriot,

²³of depriving someone of what is his, of gazing at another man's wife, ²⁴of being too familiar with your maid-servant—keep away from her bed!

²⁵of insulting words to a friend—

do not follow up a gift with a reproach!

²⁶of repeating what you have heard and betraying secrets.

²⁷On these occasions feel genuine shame and you will be respected by all.

42 ¹But do not let yourself be led astray by any of the things that follow. ²Do not be ashamed of the law of the Most High and his covenant, of judging even the wicked fairly,

³of keeping accounts with a traveling companion, and of sharing your inheritance with friends,

⁴of checking weights and scales, ⁵of making a profit whether small or great, of bargaining with traders, and of being strict with children, of severe corporal punishment for a servant who deserves it.

⁶With a prying wife or when many people are around, it is wise to make use of seal and lock!

⁷For deposits it is essential to reckon by number and weight and keep a written record of what you give and receive.

⁸Do not be ashamed of correcting someone who is foolish or stupid or an old man who has become childish.

Doing that, you prove that you are a well-educated person and you will be generally respected.

Dt 24:1

• ⁹A daughter causes her father hidden worries; anxiety on her account keeps him awake:

Is she young? She may not marry. Is she married? She may be disliked.

¹⁰Is she a virgin? She may be seduced and become pregnant in her father's house!

Is she married? She may be unfaithful or unable to have children!

¹¹Your daughter is unruly? Watch her well, or she may make you a laughing-stock to your enemies, the talk of the town and a public disgrace.

¹²Do not be taken by human beauty and do not sit down in the company of women; ¹³for just as a moth comes out of a garment, woman's wickedness comes out of a woman.

¹⁴Better a man's wickedness than a woman's kindness; women bring shame and disgrace.

Ecl 7: 26-28

SECOND PART: GOD'S WISDOM IN HISTORY

Wonders of nature

Gen 1:3

• ¹⁵Now I shall remind you of the works of the Lord and relate what I have seen.

The Lord's works depend on his word, and creation obeys his will.

¹⁶The sun shines on everything and the work of the Lord is filled with his glory.

¹⁷Not even to his holy ones has the Lord given full knowledge of all his marvelous works.

The Lord, Master of the universe, has ordained that all should stand firm in his glory.

¹⁸He penetrates both the depth of the abyss and the human heart and knows their secrets.

For the Most High has full knowledge and ordains the signs of the heavens.

¹⁹He knows the past and foretells the future and reveals the traces of the world's mysteries.

²⁰No thought escapes him, no word is hidden from him.

²¹He has ordered the marvelous works of his wisdom, from ever and for ever. Nothing can be added, nothing can be taken away and he has no need of counsel.

Ps 139:1

Ecl 3:14

• 42.9 Sirach's original text, written in Hebrew, was much longer in verse 9 and said: "Her room should have no windows and she should not be able to see the entrances to the house." Such advice is one more proof of the male domination in Hebrew culture which the Greek translator did not dare show his readers who were more liberal-minded. However inspired the authors of the Bible were, God did not miraculously free them from the limitations of their culture.

• 15. Modern civilization separates people from nature. In their work, many people see fluorescent lights more often than they see the sun. Many do not know either the silence or the sounds of nature, because noise has invaded everything. However, as soon as we know something about science, we think we know the mysteries of the universe. In our cities, it is increasingly more difficult for us to experience the mystery and the beauty of the universe.

God speaks to us through his creation as authentically as he does in the words of Christ. The languages are different, in the same sense that music tells us something in a way that is different from words. Those who know how to see God in the universe are also able to discover him in great human achievements: dams, electronic computers, buildings, new materials, etc. What emerges from human hands also belongs to God's creation.

²²All his works are beautiful, even to the smallest spark of light.

²³All this lives and endures forever: all is useful and obedient to his will.

Ecl 3:1 ²⁴All things are in pairs, one opposite the other, and nothing he makes is in any way deficient.

²⁵One thing emphasizes the excellence of the other; who could ever weary of admiring his glory?

Ps 19: 2:6 43 ¹The pride of the heights above is the clear firmament. How glorious is the spectacle of the heavens!

Ps 8:4 ²When the sun rises and appears, it proclaims: "I am your marvelous work, Most High!"

³At noon, it dries up the land; who can bear its burning heat?

⁴You may stoke a furnace to produce heat, but three times greater is the heat of the sun burning the mountains, and sending out fiery vapors, blinding the eyes with its rays.

⁵How great is the Lord who made it and whose word directs its rapid course!

Gen 1:14 ⁶He also made the moon, exact in marking the months and the passage of time. ⁷With its full light gradually decreasing, the moon determines and rules over the feast days. ⁸The month also Ps 89:38; 104:19 takes its name from the moon. How marvelously does it increase in its phases, providing a signal for the heavenly hosts, brightly shining in the expanse of the sky!

⁹The bright radiance of the stars accounts for the beauty of the sky. What a brilliant ornament they are for the heights of the Lord!

Bar 3:35 ¹⁰At the command of the All Holy they stand as appointed and never fail to keep watch.

Ezk 1:28; Gen 9:13 ¹¹Look at the rainbow and praise the One who made it. How magnificent it is in splendor!

¹²It forms a circle of glory in the sky, a bow that is bent by the hands of its Maker.

Job 38:22 ¹³At his order the snow falls and lightning strikes according to his decrees.

¹⁴The storerooms of heaven are opened and clouds fly away like birds.

¹⁵It is his power that thickens the clouds, making them freeze and break into hailstones.

^{16a}He has only to look and the mountains are shaken; ^{17a}the voice of his thunder terrifies the earth.

^{16b}At his will the south wind blows, ^{17b}as do cyclones and hurricanes from the north.

¹⁸The snow flutters down like birds and alights on the ground like locusts.

The eye marvels at the beauty of its whiteness and the mind is amazed to see it fall.

¹⁹He sprinkles frost on the earth like salt; it freezes and becomes like thorny spikes.

²⁰The cold north wind blows and turns the water into ice.

Ice forms on all stagnant water giving it a freezing coat of armor.

²¹He wears down the mountains and scorches the desert, withering the green grass as if by fire.

²²A mist is a timely remedy, and dew after the heat restores it all to life.

²³According to his plan he stilled the great deep and planted islands in it.

²⁴Those who cross the seas tell of its dangers, and we listen in astonishment to what they relate:

²⁵It is all about strange and marvelous adventures with marine animals and monsters of all kinds.

²⁶Thanks be to God, all turns out well and everything is held together by his word.

²⁷We shall not give further examples; one last word: He is everything.

²⁸Where shall we find the strength to glorify him? For he is the Mighty One, greater than all his works.

²⁹The Lord is awesome and sovereignly great, and admirable in his power.

³⁰Let your praise exalt the Lord as best you can, he is greater than you could even express.

Honor him with all your strength and do not tire, for you can never praise him enough.

³¹Who has seen him and can describe what he has seen? Who can glorify him as he merits?

³²Many mysteries greater than these still remain, for we have only seen a fraction of his works.

³³The Lord has created all things and to the godly he has given wisdom.

Ps 147:16

Ps 104:5

Ps 104:25; 107:23

In praise of ancestors

¹Mac
2:51-64;
Heb 11

44 • ¹Let us now glorify illustrious men, the ancestors of our people.

²The Lord gave them great glory according to his own greatness from the beginning.

³Some ruled kingdoms and were renowned for their achievements, others were wise and able to counsel, or spoke as prophets.

⁴They led the people with their warnings or with their knowledge of the popular writings.

⁵Some cultivated music and poetry, ⁶others were rich and powerful men living peacefully in their homes.

⁷All were highly respected in their days and honored by the people they lived with.

⁸The names of some lived on and people still praise them today; ⁹others are not remembered and have disappeared as if they never existed. It is the same for their children.

¹⁰But now consider the godly men whose good deeds have not been forgotten. ¹¹Those who came after them benefited from the rich legacy they left; ¹²their race remained faithful to the Covenant, their children followed their example. ¹³Their family will endure forever and never will its glory be tarnished. ¹⁴Their bodies were buried in peace but their memory lives through generations. ¹⁵People will speak of their wisdom and the assembly will celebrate their praise.

¹⁶Enoch pleased the Lord and was taken up, calling future generations to repentance.

Gen 5:24;
Heb 11:5

¹⁷Noah was found to be perfectly just; at the time of divine anger he was the ransom; through him a remnant was left on earth after the flood. ¹⁸Eternal covenants were made with him to ensure that never again would life be destroyed by flood.

Gen 6:9;
1P 3:20;
2P 2:5

Gen 9:9;
8:21-22

Abraham, Isaac and Jacob

• ¹⁹No one has been found to equal Abraham in glory, the great ancestor of many nations. ²⁰He was faithful to the Law of the Most High who made a covenant with him, a covenant that was marked on his flesh, and on the day he was tested he was found faithful. ²¹That is why God promised by oath to bless all the nations through his descendants, that he would make them as numerous as the dust of the earth and exalt his posterity like the stars. He promised that their land would stretch from sea to sea, from the River to the ends of the earth.

Gen 12:2;
Rom 4:1;
4:13-18

Gen
17:10

²²The Lord renewed his Covenant with Isaac for the sake of his father, Abraham. ²³This Covenant and the blessing of humanity he made to rest on the head of Jacob.

Gen
22:18;
1Mac
2:52;
Heb
11:17;
Acts
3:25;
Gal 3:8-9

He assured Jacob of his blessing, giving him the land that would be his and determining the portions to be shared among the twelve tribes.

Moses, Aaron

45 ¹From Jacob's descendants the Lord brought forth an upright man

• 44.1 After the hymn to God whose glory is revealed through his creation, the author will present to us God's work in his chosen people, Israel.

In his poem of praise of the ancestors, we have a glimpse of all the famous people of Israel: kings, liberators, prophets, sages, poets. The author notes that there are many courageous and just people who died and whose deeds and virtues will not be recorded after them. He knows that even if all the descendants of a famous man disappear, as in the case of Moses, the people of Israel hold on to the promises of eternity. In this book there is still no sign of faith in a resurrection of persons (except possibly in 48:11 and all hope is fixed on the future of the chosen people).

• 19. In what follows, Ben Sira remembers the most prominent people of sacred history. He attributes to them according to the ideas of his days. He was living in an age when priests had the most important role and the entire life of the Jews revolved around the Temple. So, he gives the priority to the priests, to Aaron, Phinehas and Simon II, whom he had known personally.

In 48:11, as in Malachi 3:23, we find the Jewish belief that Elijah would return in the days of the Messiah. For the Jews, Elijah was the man who raised the dead and who had been preserved from death by God. Ben Sira hopes to regain life to see the happy days of salvation.

who won the favor of everyone and was loved by God and men—Moses. Blessed be his memory! ²The Lord gave him glory equal to his holy angels and power that terrified his enemies. ³At Moses' word he halted disaster; the Lord exalted him in the presence of kings. He gave him commandments for his people and let him glimpse something of his glory.

⁴He chose him from among the living to become holy by being faithful and humble. ⁵God let him hear his voice and led him into darkness, where face to face he gave him the commandments, the law of life and knowledge, to teach Jacob the covenant and make his decrees known to Israel.

⁶He raised up Aaron, the brother of Moses, a holy man like Moses, of the tribe of Levi. ⁷He made an eternal covenant with him and conferred on him the priesthood of the people.

He honored him by giving him majesty and putting a glorious robe upon him. ⁸His vestments and ornaments were splendid in their perfection—breeches, cloak and ephod. ⁹As a fringe to his vestment he gave him pomegranates and many golden bells to tinkle as he walked and to be heard in the Temple as a reminder to his people.

¹⁰The Lord gave Aaron sacred vestments of gold, blue and purple, the work of artists, the pectoral of judgment, the Urim and Thummim, scarlet yarn spun by a craftsman, ¹¹precious stones with engravings in a setting of gold, the work of a jeweler, to serve as a memorial with their graven inscriptions of the tribes of Israel. ¹²He gave him the turban with a golden diadem engraved with the words of his consecration, a superb ornament, expertly crafted and a delight to the eyes.

¹³Such things had never been seen before Aaron's time; no outsider ever put them on or ever will, only his children and descendants.

¹⁴His sacrifices were to be completely burned twice daily, in perpetuity.

¹⁵It was Moses who consecrated him and anointed him with holy oil. It was for him an eternal covenant and for his descendants, for as long as the heavens would last, to serve the Lord as his priests and bless the people in his name.

¹⁶He chose him from among all the living to offer sacrifice to the Lord and sweet smelling incense as a memorial, to make atonement for the people.

¹⁷The Lord gave him authority to interpret his commandments and utter decisions, to teach Jacob the divine words and enlighten Israel with his Law. ¹⁸Outsiders conspired against him and were jealous of him in the desert—Dathan, Abiram and their followers and the supporters of Korah, all violent men full of hate. ¹⁹The Lord saw it and was angry; in his wrath he destroyed them. He wrought wonders against them, consuming them in the flames of fire.

²⁰He increased Aaron's glory by giving him a heritage. He allotted to him the first fruits and to begin with, bread in abundance. ²¹For their food is the sacrifice offered to the Lord, which he gave to Aaron and his descendants.

²²But he was to inherit no land as patrimony, no special portion was to be his own, for the Lord himself is his portion and inheritance.

Phinehas

²³As for Phinehas, son of Eleazar, he is the third in glory, for he was full of zeal in the fear of the Lord when he stood firm among a rebellious people with noble courage and made atonement for Israel.

²⁴Consequently, a covenant of peace was concluded with him, making him the leader of the sanctuary and of his people. He and his descendants were to have the dignity of high priesthood forever. ²⁵It is not like the covenant established with David, the son of Jesse, of the tribe of Judah, for the kingship passes only from father to one of his sons, but the heritage of Aaron passes to all his descendants.

²⁶May the Lord give them wisdom of heart to judge his people with justice, so that their prosperity may not dwindle and their glory may live on in their descendants!

Joshua and the judges

46 ¹Joshua, son of Nun, was a valiant warrior and as a prophet he was the successor of Moses. He lived up to his name, proving himself to be a savior of God's chosen people, punishing the enemies that attacked them and leading Israel to claim their land.

²How magnificent to see him, arm

8:8;
10:1819:1;
24:1828:42;
28:31-35

28:2

28:36

Lev 8:1

Lev 16:1

Num
16:1;
17:15Num 18:
12-13Num
18:20

Num 25:7

raised and with sword ready to attack the cities!

³Who before him had such staying power? He was, indeed, Yahweh's warrior. ⁴Was it not he who held back the sun, making one day as long as two? ⁵He called on the Most High when the enemy pressed on every side, and the Mighty Lord responded with hailstones of exceptional size. ⁶He attacked the enemy nation and destroyed the assailants at the pass of Beth-horan, so that the nations might know the strength of Joshua and that they were fighting against the Lord.

⁷Joshua was loyal and devoted to the Almighty in the time of Moses, he and Caleb, son of Jephunneh. They stood firm against the assembly and tried to keep them from sinning by silencing their wicked murmuring.

⁸Because of this, they were the only two spared out of six hundred thousand people on foot. And they took possession of their inheritance in a land flowing with milk and honey.

⁹The Lord gifted Caleb with strength; this he enjoyed to the end of his days, and he went into the hill country that was given to his children in heritage. ¹⁰With this it was clear to all Israel that it is good to follow the Lord. ¹¹After that came the judges. Although each of them won his own renown, all were men of faithful heart who did not turn away from the Lord. Blessed be their memory! ¹²May their bones spring to life from the tomb and the names of these illustrious men live on in their children!

Samuel

¹³Samuel was a prophet and beloved of the Lord. He established the kingdom and anointed rulers to govern his people.

¹⁴He judged the assembly according to the Law of the Lord and the Lord protected Jacob. ¹⁵He was accepted as prophet because of his faithfulness, and proved that his words were of a trustworthy seer.

¹⁶He called on the Almighty Lord when the enemy pressed from all directions and he offered a sucking lamb.

¹⁷Then with a mighty roar the Lord thundered from heaven ¹⁸and destroyed all the enemy's leaders and the tyrants of Philistia.

¹⁹Before his time came for eternal rest, Samuel called men to witness before the Lord and his anointed: "I have not taken anyone's belongings, not even his sandals," and there was no one to accuse him.

²⁰Even after he died, he prophesied and revealed to the king his death. From the grave he spoke as a prophet to blot out the wickedness of his people.

David

47 ¹After him the Lord raised Nathan to prophesy in the time of David.

²As fat is selected from the peace offering, so David was chosen from among the Israelites.

³He played with lions and bears as if they were lambs or young goats.

⁴He was still young when he slew a giant to restore the honor of his people; with a sling he aimed a stone that killed the arrogant Goliath.

⁵He invoked the Lord Most High, who gave him strength to slay a mighty warrior, and so exalt the power of his people.

⁶So they glorified him for his ten thousands and praised him as a blessing from the Lord when he was chosen king.

⁷For he wiped out his enemies on all sides and annihilated his adversaries, the Philistines, crushing their power forever.

⁸In all that he did he gave thanks to the Most High, and showed his love for his Maker by singing with all his heart.

⁹He placed singers accompanied by harps before the altar to make beautiful music; ¹⁰he gave splendor to feasts and even greater magnificence to the more solemn occasions, exalting the holy Name of the Lord and having the sanctuary ring with his praises from early morning.

¹¹The Lord forgave David's sins and established his power forever; he made a covenant with him for the benefit of the kings and gave him a glorious throne in Israel.

Solomon

¹²A wise son succeeded him and fared well because of him.

¹³Solomon reigned during times of peace, and God gave him rest from war to enable him to build a house for his Name, a sanctuary that would stand forever.

1S 12:3

1S 28:6-25

2S 7:2

1S 17:49

1S 18:7

2S 23:1

2S 7:1; 12:13; 24:25

1K 5:17-18

¹⁴How wise you were in your youth, Solomon! as full of understanding as a river. ¹⁵Your spirit covered the earth, you filled it with proverbs and parables. ¹⁶Your reputation reached distant islands and you were loved for your peace. ¹⁷Your songs, proverbs, parables and interpretation drew the admiration of the world.

¹⁸In the name of the Lord God, called the God of Israel, you accumulated gold like tin and gathered silver like lead.

¹⁹But you gave your body to women and became the slave of your senses; ²⁰you stained your reputation and defiled your descendants, bringing wrath and disaster upon your children because of your foolishness.

²¹So the nation was divided; from Ephraim came a kingdom in revolt.

²²But God's mercy never fails nor does he forget his promises; he did not deprive his chosen one of descendants nor destroy the race of the one he loved. So to Jacob he gave a remnant and allowed David's family to survive.

²³Solomon rested with his forefathers and left one of his sons to rule after him, the most foolish of men and without intelligence; this was Rehoboam who drove the people to rebellion.

²⁴As for Jeroboam, son of Nebat, it was he who caused Israel to sin and taught Ephraim the way of evil.

From then on their sins increased and later brought about their exile, ²⁵for they were intent on doing every sort of evil until vengeance fell on them.

Elijah and Elisha

48 ¹Then came the prophet Elijah like a fire, his words a burning torch.

²He brought a famine on the people and in his zealous love had them reduced in number.

³Speaking in the name of the Lord he closed the heavens, and on three occasions called down fire.

⁴How marvelous you were, Elijah, in your wondrous deeds! Who could ever boast of being your equal? ⁵By the word of the Most High you brought a dead man back to life; ⁶you brought kings to destruction and thrust famous men from their beds.

⁷You heard a rebuke at Sinai and sentences of punishment at Horeb; ⁸you anointed kings to be avengers and prophets to succeed you.

⁹You were taken up by a whirlwind of flames in a chariot drawn by fiery horses.

¹⁰It was written that you should be the one to calm God's anger in the future before it broke out in fury, to turn the hearts of fathers to their sons and to restore the tribes of Jacob.

¹¹Happy are those who will see you and those who die in love, for we too shall live.

¹²Such was Elijah, taken up in a whirlwind, and Elisha was filled with his spirit.

During his life no leader could shake him, no one dominated him. ¹³Nothing was too difficult for him and even in death his body prophesied. ¹⁴In life he worked wonders, in death his deeds were amazing.

¹⁵Despite all this, the people were not converted and did not turn away from sin; not until they were deported far from their country and scattered over the earth.

¹⁶The people were greatly reduced in number but they still had a ruler from the line of David. Some of them were upright people, others became sinful.

¹⁷Hezekiah fortified his city and brought water within its walls, tunneling the rock with iron tools to construct cisterns.

¹⁸During his reign Sennacherib began his campaigns and sent off Rabshakeh, and insolent and arrogant as he was, he raised his arm against Zion.

¹⁹Then their courage was shaken, their hands trembled, they felt anguish like women in labor. ²⁰They stretched out their hands and called on the merciful Lord.

From heaven the Holy One quickly heard them and saved them by the hand of Isaiah. ²¹The Lord struck the Assyrian camp and his angel wiped them out.

²²For Hezekiah did what was pleasing to the Lord and was firm in following the ways of David, his father, as the great and faithful prophet Isaiah ordered, a man of trustworthy vision.

²³In his time the sun went back and he lengthened the life of the king.

²⁴In the power of the spirit he foresaw the last things and consoled the afflicted people of Zion. ²⁵He revealed what would happen until the end of time and made

2K 2:11

Mal 3:24

2K 2:9

2K 20:20;
Is 22:11;
32:5

2K 18:13

Is 40:1

1K 10:1

1K 12

1K 12:26;
2K 17:21

1K 17:1

1K 18:38

1K 17:17

hidden events known before they occurred.

Other kings and prophets

49¹The memory of Josiah is like blended incense carefully prepared by the perfumer; it is like delicious honey to every mouth, like music during a banquet.

²He followed the right way in converting the people and removing the horror of idolatry. ³He set his heart on the Lord and succeeded in having godliness prevail over wickedness.

⁴With the exception of David, Hezekiah and Josiah, the kings were very sinful men. they abandoned the Law of the Most High bringing an end to the kings of Judah.

⁵They surrendered their power and their honor to foreign nations. ⁶Their enemies set fire to the holy city, making its streets desolate ⁷as Jeremiah had foretold.

Jer 1:10

Ezk 1—3;
9—10

⁸It was Ezekiel who saw the vision of Glory when the Lord showed it to him above the chariot of the cherubim. ⁹He also remembered Job, the one who always followed the way of justice.

¹⁰As for the twelve prophets, may their bones spring to life from the tomb, for they comforted the people of Jacob and saved them with confident hope.

Hag 2:23

¹¹Can we ever adequately praise Zerubbabel who was like a ring at the finger of God, and ¹²likewise Joshua, son of Jozadak? They were men who, in their days, built the Temple to the Lord, a sanctuary destined for everlasting glory. ¹³Lasting too is the memory of Nehemiah, who rebuilt our ruined walls, provided gates and bars and rebuilt our homes.

• 49.16 Suddenly, before praising the high priest Simon, his contemporary, Ben Sira remembers origins. In the beginning, the first man. Surpassing the current ideas of the Jews who, until then, did not look much further than their own history, Ben Sira thinks about the first human, the father of all humanity. Adam represents all sinful humanity, called to salvation. He is the first human also, who bears in himself the destiny of all the rest. In Romans 5:12-20, Paul will speak of Christ as the New Adam. Of him one can say: "Adam is above every living being."

¹⁴No one on earth was created to equal Enoch for he was taken up from the earth.

¹⁵And never was there a man like Joseph, the greatest among his brothers, the leader of his people; his bones were honored.

• ¹⁶Shem and Seth were exalted among men, but Adam's glory was greater than any other living being.

Simon the priest

50¹The High Priest Simon, son of Onias, repaired the sanctuary and fortified the Temple during his lifetime.

²He laid the foundations for the high double wall and for the fortifications surrounding the Temple.

³In his days a reservoir for water, a cistern as great as a sea, was excavated.

⁴Anxious lest his people might perish, he fortified the city against a siege.

• ⁵How magnificent he was when, surrounded by his people, he emerged from the inner sanctuary ⁶like the morning star amidst the clouds, like the full moon, ⁷like the sun shining on the Temple of the Most High or a rainbow in a glory of clouds!

Lev
16:13

⁸He was like a rose in spring, a lily beside a stream, a green shoot on a summer day, ⁹or incense burning in the censer.

He could be likened to a massive, golden vase adorned with every kind of precious stone, ¹⁰to an olive tree heavy with fruit, or to a cypress ris-

• 50.5 Let us underline this lengthy portrait of Simon, the high priest. Ben Sira, who carried out responsibilities and knew life, feels no shame in expressing his great admiration for the Temple rituals. As for any Jewish believer, the sacred vestments, the music and the solemn ceremonies reveal something to him about the world of God which is splendor, happiness, celebration and praise.

The last paragraph serves as the conclusion of this part of the book (chaps. 44–50). Ben Sira blesses his readers using the same words that Simon addressed to the people on their knees.

ing to the clouds, ¹¹when, robed in ceremonial garb and in perfect splendor, he went to the sacred altar filling the court of the sanctuary with glory.

¹²There he would receive from the hand of the priests the portions of the sacrifice, as he stood by the hearth of the altar encircled by his brethren like a young cedar on Lebanon.

¹³It was as if he was surrounded by palm trees when all the sons of Aaron in their splendor, with the offerings to the Lord in their hands, stood before the assembly of Israel.

¹⁴When he had completed the service at the altar and presented with dignity the offering to the Almighty and Most High, ¹⁵he took the cup in his hand and poured out a libation of the juice of the grape at the foot of the altar, a pleasing aroma to the Most High, King of the world.

¹⁶Then the sons of Aaron shouted; they blew their trumpets of solid silver, making a great noise as a memorial before the Most high.

¹⁷Then suddenly all the people bowed down with their faces to the ground and adored the Lord, the Almighty and most High God.

¹⁸The choir as well sang his praises, making beautiful music.

¹⁹And the people made supplication to the Most High and prayed to their merciful Lord, until the ceremony was over and the service of the Lord completed.

²⁰The High Priest then came down and raised his hands towards the whole assembly of the people of Israel to give them in a loud voice the blessing of the Lord and to have the honor of pronouncing his name.

²¹Then for a second time the people bowed in worship to receive the blessing of the Most High:

²²"And now, bless the Lord of the universe who everywhere does great things, who exalts our days from birth and is merciful to us.

²³May he give us happiness and grant peace to Israel in our days and forever!

²⁴May he continue to give us his blessings and be a savior to us in our days."

²⁵There are two nations I greatly dislike, the third is not a nation: ²⁶they are the inhabitants of Mount Seir, the Philistines and the foolish people who live in Shechem.

²⁷Instruction in understanding and knowledge, that is what Jesus the son of Sira, the son of Eleazar of Jerusalem, has written in this book as he poured out the wisdom of his heart.

²⁸Happy the one who pays attention to this teaching and gains wisdom by taking it to heart.

²⁹Doing that, he will be strong in all circumstances, for the light of the Lord is his path.

Prayer of Jesus, son of Sirach

51 • ¹I will give thanks to you, O Lord and King; I praise you, my God and Savior, I give thanks to your Name.

²For you are my protector and helper, you have delivered my body from destruction, from the snare of the wicked tongue and from lips that speak lies.

• 51.1 This thanksgiving for liberation is a complement to the book of Ben Sira. The listing of the dangers from which God can free people, recalls for us the heroes of the Old Testament: Daniel in the lions' den, Daniel and his friends in the furnace, Joseph imprisoned, Susanna, David.

This is used for the feasts of martyrs in the liturgy of the Church. Their death (see Wis 3:1) was liberation from evil. Like Jesus, martyrs did not escape from evil and death, but they conquered both, overcoming natural fear and forgiving their enemies.

Num
10:2-10

Num 6:
23-27

15:2

In the presence of those who stood against me, you were my helper, my deliverer.

³In the fullness of mercy and the glory of your Name, you delivered me from the teeth of those ready to devour me, from the hand of those wanting to take my life and from my many trials. ⁴You rescued me from choking fire on every side; you saved me from a fire I had not kindled.

⁵You delivered me from the depths of the netherworld, from an impure tongue and lying words, ⁶from vicious slander reported to the king. I was near to death, I was already at the gates of the netherworld.

⁷They surrounded me on every side with no one to help me. I looked for human comfort and there was none.

⁸Then, Lord, I remembered your mercy and your deeds from all eternity, knowing that you deliver those who hope in you and save them from the hands of their enemies.

⁹I sent up my prayer from the earth, begging to be delivered from death.

¹⁰I called on the Lord, the Father of my Lord: "Do not forsake me in the day of my affliction, when I am helpless against arrogant enemies; I will praise your name continually and sing to you my thanksgiving."

¹¹And my prayer was heard, you saved me from destruction and delivered me from an evil plight.

¹²That is why I will give you thanks and praise and bless the Name of the Lord.

¹³In my youth, before I set out on my travels, I openly sought wisdom in prayer; ¹⁴before the Temple I asked for her and I will pursue her to the end of my days.

¹⁵While she blossomed like a ripening cluster, my heart was delighted in her; my feet followed the right path, because from my youth I searched for her.

¹⁶As soon as I began listening to her she was given to me, and with her, much instruction.

¹⁷With her help I made progress and I will glorify him who gives me wisdom, ¹⁸for I decided to put it into practice and ardently seek what is good. I shall not regret it.

¹⁹My soul has struggled to possess her. I have been attentive to observe her, the Law, and after my faults I have stretched out my hands to heaven and lamented my ignorance of her.

²⁰My love of her increased and I found her in repentance. It was through her from the beginning that I learned to possess my heart. She will not forsake me.

²¹With my whole being I sought her; that is why I won what is best.

²²In return for this, the Lord has given me words to praise him.

²³come near, you who are without understanding and join her school.

²⁴Why do you say you are deprived of all this and that your souls are thirsty?

²⁵This is what I say: Buy this without money; ²⁶put your neck under her yoke and let your minds receive instruction; it is very near and within your reach.

²⁷See for yourselves: my toil has been slight and I found deep rest.

²⁸Be instructed, whatever the cost, and you will gain what is better than gold.

²⁹Let your soul find joy in the mercy of the Lord, and do not be ashamed to praise him.

³⁰Do your work within the appointed time, and the Lord in his time will give you your reward.

PAGE 1192 – BLANK

THE FIVE BOOKS OF THE PSALMS

The Psalms come from the collections of songs used in the Temple of Jerusalem. Although tradition has it that David regulated the liturgy just as he composed all the psalms, it is more likely that the Levites—the “Sons of Asaph and Yedutun”—who were in charge of the sacred music of the Temple, had a greater role in the writing and selection of the psalms. With the passage of time, the psalms took on an overlay of personal piety, collective lamentations and the expressions of another era.

As the prayer book of ancient Israel, the psalms fed Jewish piety as they did the prayer of Jesus. To this day, they form the foundation of Christian liturgical prayer used by countless religious, priests and deacons as well as an increasing number of laity.

Not all Christians may find in the psalms the fulfillment of their own aspirations, but adapting them for prayer, or better still, allowing them to educate and form one’s spiritual life may prove to be more valuable. If we are to enter into a conversation with God, we would benefit more by listening to Him and meditating his inspired words than by speaking of our own worries.

The Psalms have come through the ages as a powerful means of prayer. If they do not always satisfy our own sense of prayer, it is not necessarily a bad thing. If they manage to unbalance even slightly our ingrained habits of piety, that is not a small gift. These psalms may be capable of renewing our language and symbolism in a world where God is often a stranger and people would prefer to be left alone, to pursue their own interests.

The Psalms have been collected into five books as one can see from the endings of each book (cf Ps 41, 72, 106). Within different collections one sometimes finds nearly identical Psalms and we can consider them as pairs.

The numbering of the psalms is slightly different in the Hebrew and Greek editions. We have used the Hebrew numbering and placed the Greek number in parenthesis—the one most often used in our Latin Liturgy.

The Songs in the Bible

Together with the psalms we should also indicate other prayers which we find in most parts of the Bible and which we usually call “canticles”:

- of Moses: Ex 15
- 2nd of Moses: Dt 32
- of Anna: 1 S 2
- of Isaiah: Is 12
- of Hezekiah: Is 38
- of Habakkuk: Hb 3
- of the three servants: Dn 3:52
- of Tobit: Tb 13
- of Sirach: Sir 36
- of Mary: Lk 1:46
- of Zechariah: Lk 1:68
- of Simeon: Lk 2:29
- Ephesians: 1:3-14; 3:14-20
- Revelation: several passages
- See also 2 S 23; Ne 9:6; Is 26:7; 59; 63:7; Jer 20:7; Jdt 16:13; Wis 9:1; Sir 23:1; 51.

PSALMS

PSALM 1

The two ways. What you sow in life you will harvest. Those who keep God's law will be happy here and in the next life. Whoever refuses it will not prosper.

¹ Blessed is the one who does not go where the wicked gather,
or stand in the way of sinners,
or sit where the scoffers sit!

Jer 21:8;
Dt 30:15;
Pro 4: 18-19;
Mt 7:
13-14

² Instead, he finds delight in the law of the Lord
and meditates day and night on his commandments.

Jos 1:8;
Ps 119

³ He is like a tree beside a brook producing its fruit in due season, its leaves never withering.
Everything he does is a success.

Jer 17:8;
Ezk 19: 10-11;
Rev 22:2

⁴ But it is different with the wicked.
They are like chaff driven away by the wind.

Job
21:18;
Ps 35:5;
Is 40:24

⁵ The wicked will not stand when judgment comes,
nor the sinners when the righteous assemble.

⁶ For the Lord knows the way of the righteous
but cuts off the way of the wicked.

112:10

• 1 The first psalm speaks of happiness, just as Jesus' first discourse began with "Happy!" (or being blessed, "Fortunate").

We often find the theme of two ways in the Bible (Dt 30:15; Jer 21:8; Pro 4:18; Mt 7:13). It expresses our personal responsibility which will be clearly seen on the day of judgment. Whatever the appearances may be at times, true happiness is for those who are faithful to the will of God.

Jesus is the green and productive tree, par excellence. All that is good, great, beautiful and holy in the heart of a person blossoms on the tree of the cross.

PSALM 2

Verses 6–9 are like an oracle of God warning all nations that he himself has crowned his Son in Zion, the holy hill of Jerusalem. He asks every king to submit. This king is, of course, the Messiah, “God’s Anointed” (we call him the Christ). His cause is that of the innumerable poor who await his justice throughout the entire world.

The kings of the earth, the rulers are not the only ones who persecute, but all those who wield power over people’s minds, who create public opinion among the masses, and the mafias, the powers of darkness. God confronts them and with him the victorious Anointed One who is called the Son.

The two kingdoms. This struggle between the kings of the earth and God’s Anointed announces the Book of Revelation. God has come among us. His presence is a challenge to those who would like to be lords of the earth. There will be no lasting peace here below

- ¹Why do the nations conspire?
Why do the peoples plot in vain?
²The kings of the earth brace themselves and the rulers together take their stand against the Lord and his anointed.
³They say, “Let us break their bonds!
Let us cast away their chains!”
⁴The One enthroned in heaven laughs;
the Lord looks at them in derision.
⁵Then in anger he speaks to them, terrifying them in the fury of his wrath:
⁶“Behold the king I have installed, in Zion, upon my holy hill!”
⁷I will proclaim the decree of the Lord.
He said to me: “You are my son.
This day I have begotten you.
⁸Ask of me and I will give you the nations for your inheritance, the ends of the earth for your possession.
⁹You shall rule them with iron scepter and shatter them as a potter’s vase.” ¹⁰Now therefore, learn wisdom, O kings;
be warned, O rulers of the earth.
¹¹Serve the Lord with fear and fall at his feet;
lest he be angry and you perish
when his anger suddenly flares.
Blessed are all who take refuge in him!

110:
Acts 4:
25-28
Rev
19:19;
Ps 83:6

149:8

Is 40:
15...23;
Ps 59:9

2S 7:14;
Ps 89:27;
Acts 13:33;
Heb 1:5;
5:5

Gen 12:7;
Is 49:6;
Dn 7:14

110:5;
Rev 19:15;
2:26-27

Wis 6:1

34:9;
Pro 16:20

PSALM 3

How many are my enemies! King David, like all Christians, has an ally more powerful than all his enemies together: God.

- ²O Lord, how great in number are my foes!
How numerous are they who rise against me!
³How many are they who say of my soul:
“There is no help for him in God!”
⁴But you are my shield, O Lord, my glory, you lift up my head.
⁵Aloud I cry to the Lord,
and from his holy hill he answers me.
⁶If I lie down to sleep,

2S 15:13

18:3;
Dt 33:29;
Ps 62:8;
27:6;
110:7;
Sir 11:13
Pro 3:24;

again I awake, for the Lord supports me;
⁷no fear of the thousands standing against me.

Ps 4:9

23:4;
27:1

⁸Arise, O Lord!

Deliver me, O my God!

You strike all my enemies on the jaw,
 you have broken the teeth of the wicked.

7:7;
9:20;

58:7

⁹Salvation comes from the Lord.

May your blessing be upon your people!

PSALM 4

Evening prayer. An evening prayer for those who trust God in the midst of their difficulties, remembering how many times God has come to their assistance. Gratitude for favors received leads us to ask for more; this request will be more trustful; trust will bring us peace and joy in our difficulties. Evil and misfortune come in many ways, but prayer always brings strength.

²Answer when I call, O God, my justice!

When I was in distress, you gave me solace.

Have compassion on me and hear my plea.

³And you people, how long will you harden your hearts?

How long will you delight in deceit and go in search of falsehood?

⁴But you must know that the Lord has shown his kindness to me.

When I call to him, he hears me.

⁵Be angry, but don't offend.

Keep your words to yourself, when you are in bed, and be still.

Eph 4:26

⁶Offer the sacrifice commanded by the Law and put your trust in the Lord your God.

51:21

⁷Many ask, "Who will give us a happy time?
 Would that his favor shine upon us!"

Num
6:25;
Pro

⁸You, O Lord, have put joy in my heart;
 more than by giving me wine and food.

16:15;
Dn 9:17

⁹I lie down and sleep in peace,
 for you alone, O Lord, make me feel safe and secure.

3:6

PSALM 5

Morning prayer. Let us begin the day by asking God to be our light and our strength; going also to the house of God, his temple where his light and his strength are within our reach.

86:6; 84:4
²O Lord, listen to my words and hear my complaint, ³give heed to my sighs, my King and my God.

⁴From daybreak you hear my voice, from dawn I am in your presence watching for you.

⁵You are not a God who delights in wickedness; evil has no place in you.

Pro 6: 16-19;
 Mt 7:23;
 Rev 21:8
⁶The arrogant cannot stand before you. You hate all who do evil;

⁷you destroy all who speak falsehood, who thirst for blood and live on lies; all of them the Lord detests.

138:2;
 1K 8: 44, 48;
 Dn 6:11
⁸But I, by your love and grace, may come into your house. In reverence I bow down and worship at your holy temple.

23:3;
 Is 26:7
⁹Lead me, O Lord, through your path of righteousness; make your way straight before me, for my enemies lie in wait.

¹⁰Not a word of their mouth can be trusted, for their heart is full of mischief. Their tongue flatters with deceit, but their throat is an open grave.

¹¹O Lord, make them pay for their guilt. Let their snares trap them. Cast them out for their many sins—for their offense and rebellion.

69:37;
 119:132
¹²But for those who take refuge in you, let them ever sing and rejoice. Let your deliverance shield them, that they may praise you in gladness—those who love your name, O Lord.

¹³You bless all who live in righteousness; your favor covers them as a shield.

PSALM 6

Prayer of the afflicted. This psalm is the prayer of a sick person. When she asks to be freed of her sickness she reaffirms her unshaken trust and will to have nothing to do with evil.

Jer 10:24;
 Ps 38:2
²O Lord, in your anger do not reprove; nor punish me in your fury.

Jer 17: 14-15
³Have mercy on me, O Lord, for I have no strength left. O Lord, heal me, for my bones are in torment.

⁴My soul also is greatly troubled. How long, O Lord, how long? How long will you be?

⁵Come back to me, O Lord, save my life; rescue me for the sake of your love.

Is 38:18;
 Ps 88: 11-13
⁶For no one remembers you in the grave; who will praise you in the world of the dead?

⁷I am weary with moaning; I weep every night, drenching my bed with tears.

⁸My eyes have grown dim from troubles; I have weakened because of my foes.

⁹Away from me, you evildoers, for the Lord has heard my plaintive voice.

¹⁰The Lord has heard my plea; the Lord will grant all that I pray for.

¹¹Let my enemies fall back in shame, all of a sudden—the whole bunch of them!

119:115;
 Mt 7:23

PSALM 7

Free me from my persecutors. A cry that comes from the depth of the soul, demanding justice.

²O Lord, my God, in you I take shelter; deliver me and save me from all my pursuers, ³lest lions tear me to pieces with no one to rescue me.

⁴O Lord, my God, if my hands are stained with guilt—⁵if with evil I have repaid good, if I have plundered unjustly my opponent, ⁶let the enemy hound me, let him crush me to the ground and lay down my liver in the dust.

⁷ Arise, O Lord, in your wrath; rise up against the fury of my foes. Awake, O my God and judge the nations, for the time of judgment has come.

⁸ Let the nations gather around you; and you take your seat high above them.

⁹ Proclaim, O Lord, my righteousness; you see that I am blameless.

¹⁰ Bring to an end the power of the wicked, but affirm the just, O righteous God, searcher of mind and heart.

¹¹ You cover me as a shield, Oh God, for you protect the upright.

¹² A righteous judge is God, his anger ever awaiting those who refuse to repent.

¹³ God has his sword ready and sharpened, his bow bent and arrows aimed.

¹⁴ He has in hand, always ready, his deadly weapons and fiery darts.

¹⁵ Look at the one who conceived iniquity and is pregnant with miscarriage will result.

¹⁶ He digs a pit and makes it deep, he will fall into the trap he made.

¹⁷ His evil intent recoils upon his head; his wicked design comes back in his face.

¹⁸ I will rejoice in the Lord for his justice, and sing to the Most High in gratitude and praise.

Is 50:11

Is 59:4;
Job
15:35

9:16;
35:8

Job 4:8;
Sir 27:
25-27

Jer
11:20

3:4

34:6-7

PSALM 8

Our liberal culture knows only individuals, “human beings” eager to enjoy life at the level of their fortune and good health.

Individuals, being “pots of earth among other pots of earth,” struggle to affirm their own identity. They dream of being totally independent. This psalm on the contrary emphasizes the dignity of the human person which awakens at the call of God and develops under his watchful eye.

The text of verses 5–7 would be betrayed by inclusive language because the expressions “the mortal” and the “son of man” are at the same time individuals and humankind.

Speaking of humans, the Bible sees them both as persons and as one body: Adam, Man, or Humankind. The head of this unique body is Christ, he who is to be the keystone of all creation. See how the apostles apply to Jesus the words of this psalm: Matthew 21:16; 1 Corinthians 15:27; Ephesians 1:22; Hebrews 2:6-8.

No one can build himself if he has not yet sought his mission in the world. He is nothing without his brothers and sisters who struggle or vegetate in the ant-hills of the entire world.

Glorify God and dignity of humans. The universe reveals the glory and the beauty of God. In becoming one of us, the Son of God has put humans above all material creation and emphasized the fundamental equality of all humans.

² O Lord, our Lord,
how great is your name throughout the earth!
And your glory in the heavens above.

³ Even the mouths of children and infants exalt your glory in front of your foes and put to shame enemies and rebels.

⁴ When I observe the heavens,
the work of your hands,
the moon and the stars you set in their place—

⁵ what is man that you be mindful of him,
the son of man, that you should care for him?

⁶ Yet you made him a little lower than the angels;

you crowned him with glory and honor
⁷ and gave him the works of your hands;
you have put all things under his feet—

⁸ sheep and oxen without number and even the beasts of the field,
⁹ the birds of the air, the fish of the sea,
and all that swim the paths of the ocean.

¹⁰ O Lord, our Lord, how great is your name all over the earth!

19:2-3;
104

Mt 21:16;
11:25

144:3;
Job 7:
17-18;
Heb 2:
6-9

Gen 1:26;
Sir 17:1-4;
Wis 2:23

1Cor
15:27

PSALM 9

God, refuge of the oppressed. Recalling the examples of the past, the psalmist affirms: "The hope of the poor will not be destroyed."

138:1 ²Let my heart give thanks to the Lord, I yearn to proclaim your marvelous deeds, ³and rejoice and exult in you, and sing praise to your name, O Most High.

⁴For my enemies fell back in retreat, they stumbled and perished before you. ⁵You have upheld my right and my cause, you have sentenced from your throne, O just judge.

⁶You have turned back the nations; you have destroyed the wicked; you have blotted out their names forever.

Gen 19: 23-25 ⁷Your enemies lay in endless ruin, their cities trampled, their memory perished.

⁸But the Lord reigns forever, having set up his throne for judgment.

96:13; 98:9 ⁹He will judge the nations with justice and govern the peoples in righteousness.

Is 25:4; Ps 37:39 ¹⁰The Lord is a rampart for the oppressed, a refuge in times of distress.

36:11 ¹¹Those who cherish your name, O Lord, can rely on you, for you have never forsaken those who look to you.

¹²Sing praises to the Lord enthroned in Zion, proclaim his deeds among the nations.

¹³For he who avenges blood remembers, he does not ignore the cry of the lowly.

¹⁴Have mercy on me, O Lord. See how they afflict me. Oh, lift me up from the gates of death, ¹⁵that I may declare your praise, that I may rejoice in your salvation in the gates of Zion.

¹⁶The pagans have sunk into the pit they have dug, their own feet ensnared by the trap they laid.

¹⁷The Lord has shown his presence, he has judged and the wicked plotters have been trapped by the work of their hands.

¹⁸To the netherworld the wicked will depart, all the nations that have no thought of God.

¹⁹For the needy will not always be forgotten, nor the hope of the poor perish forever.

²⁰Rise, O Lord! Do not let mortals prevail; let the nations stand on trial before you.

²¹Bring terror, O Lord, strike at them; let these pagans realize that they are but humans.

PSALM 10 (9)Continuation of the preceding psalm.

22; 74:1 ¹Why, O Lord, do you stand afar? Why hide from us in times of distress?

²The wicked are in power; the weak suffer harassment; the poor become victims of evil schemes.

³Exploiters boast in their power and greed; the covetous blasphemes and defies God.

⁴In their pride the wicked say, "There is no God." They see no further.

⁵The wicked prosper in their

• 9 Psalms 9 and 10 of the Hebrew text are only the two halves of the Greek or Latin Bible text. This causes the disarrangement in the numbering of the psalms which begins here. Psalm 9 denounces the enemies of Israel. Psalm 10 denounces the wicked within the community. Those who exploit the widow and the orphan, the foreigner and the traveler, are in fact the enemies of God.

• 10 The rich and the powerful may think that God is far away, that he is passive, and

Job 16:18

Wis 16:13

7:16

50:22

Pro 23:18

7:7

10:18

10:13

Job 22:13; Ps 14:1; 36:2

ways, your laws are far from their minds; haughtily they sneer at their rivals, ⁶all of them saying in their heart, “Nothing will trouble me. I am secure, powerful and happy.”

Rom 3:14 ⁷Their mouths are filled with cursing, deceit and threats; spite and mischief are under their tongues.

⁸They lie in ambush near the villages, murdering the innocent and the unfortunate, spying upon their next victim.

17:12; Hos 6:9; Ps 140:6 ⁹The evil one lurks in secret, like a lion in its covert, waiting to seize his prey and drag him off in a net.

¹⁰Lying prone or crouching, he waits and the unfortunate falls into his power.

44:25; 73:11; 94:7; Ezk 9:9; Job 22:13 ¹¹He thinks to himself: “God has forgotten; he has hidden his face and will never see this.”

¹²Rise, Lord, O God, raise your hand, do not forget the lowly.

¹³Why do the wicked revile God and say, “He cannot make me account”?

¹⁴But you see those in misery, O God, and you take it in hand. The unfortunate commits himself to you; the orphan turns to you for help.

¹⁵Break the power of the wicked— seek out their wickedness till there is none to be found.

¹⁶The Lord is king forever and the pagans have vanished from his land.

29:10; 145:13; 146:10

¹⁷For you hear, O Lord, the longings of the lowly, and you strengthen their hearts; ¹⁸you give heed to the orphans and the oppressed. Let no human raise from earth and strike terror.

PSALM 11 (10)

When foundations fall to ruin, what can the righteous do? That is what the tempter suggests, “Do not swim upstream, everyone does it; do as they do and say nothing. Flee to the mountain, simple one; you have seen nothing, forget about injustice and see to your own business, or instead go to your religious practices!”

Let us pray for those who struggle against organized oppression, for those who awake each day to the threat of terrorism.

The just fear nothing. If God is with us, who will condemn us? May he deliver us from fear when we face those who threaten and crush others.

¹In the Lord I take refuge. How, then, can you say to me,

7:2; 141:8

“Flee to the mountains like a bird; ²for the wicked are bending their bows and fit their arrows to the string. They get ready to shoot in the dark, they take aim at the upright of heart.

37:14

³When foundations fall to ruin, what can the righteous do?”

⁴The Lord is in his holy place— our God whose throne is in heaven. He looks down to earth to observe the race of Adam.

5:8; Hb 2:20; Ps 2:4; 103:19; 102:20

⁵The Lord searches both righteous and wicked. He hates those who delight in violence.

⁶Upon the wicked, he will rain coals of fire and brimstone; a burning blast will be their lot.

Gen 19:24; Ezk 38:22; Rev 20: 9-10 that perhaps, he does not exist. But God hears the cry of the oppressed. It is very easy to become rich in spirit in a consumer world: every Christian must ask himself to what extent he is not responsible for the injustice and discrimination which we witness.

⁷For the Lord is righteous;
he loves justice.
The upright will see his face.

75:9;
Is 51:
17-22;
Jer 25:15

PSALM 12 (11)

Against the world of lies. Lies, propaganda and the false prophets of the easy life conceal the injustice of every day. God's word is true, and it will judge the world. In the Word-of-God-made-man, there is no yes and no: in him all the promises of God have become a yes.

Mic 7:2 ²Help us, O Lord, none of the godly are left, the faithful have vanished. ³Everyone lies; with flattering lips they speak from a double heart.
Jer 9:2-8 ⁴May the Lord cut off insincere lips, every glib tongue that utters deceit.
31:19 ⁵Many say, "Our strength lies in our tongue, we know how to speak, who will lord it over us?"
Is 33:10 ⁶"The poor are despoiled and the needy suffer, now I will save them," says the Lord. "I will give them security."

⁷The promises of the Lord are sure and lasting—silver refined in the furnace seven times and freed from dross.

18:31;
Pro 30:5

⁸Hold us, O Lord, in your keeping;
protect us always from this generation, ⁹for the wicked prowl on all sides, and the basest are exalted.

PSALM 13 (12)

Personal prayer, persevering prayer will surely be heard.

Look and listen to me. God does not forget his children: he has resurrected Christ.

²How long, O Lord, will you forget me and hide your face from me?
³How long must I suffer pain in my soul and grief in my heart all the day long?
How long shall my enemy triumph over me?

6:4;
89:47;
Lm 5:20;
Ps 10:11;
27:9;
30:8

⁴Look upon me and answer, O Lord my God! Give light to my eyes, lest I sleep the sleep of death;
⁵lest my enemy say,
"I have routed him,"
lest my foes rejoice of my fall.

38:17

⁶But I put my trust in your unfailing love, my heart will rejoice on seeing your salvation.
I will sing to the Lord,
for he has been good to me!

52:10

PSALM 14 (13)

Without respect for neighbors, without respect for God.

¹The fool says in his heart,
"God does not exist."

53

All have strayed, all are perverted,
there is no one who does good.

²The Lord looks down from heaven upon the race of Adam, to see if there are any who seek God and act wisely.

³They have all turned aside:
corrupt—all of them alike.

⁴Will they ever learn—these doers of evil?
For they devour my people,
—that is their food—
and do not call upon the Lord.

⁵But suddenly terror strikes them:
God was on the side of the just!

⁶You may confound the hope of the poor, but the Lord is their refuge.

⁷Oh would that I see
Israel's salvation coming from Zion!
When the Lord brings home the exiles, what joy it will be for Jacob,
what happiness for Israel!

PSALM 15 (14)

This psalm repeats in its own way the word of the prophet Hosea: "I prefer mercy to sacrifice." To the question, who will dwell in your tent? he replies with a list of ten virtues of justice: service of God and justice are two facets of a same attitude.

Lord, who shall dwell in your tent? May the Lord help us to follow his commandments.

¹O Lord, who will dwell in your tent and reside on your holy mount?

²Those who walk blamelessly and do what is right, who speak truth from their heart ³and control their words, who do no harm to their neighbors and cast no discredit on their companions,

⁴who look down on evildoers
but highly esteem God's servants;

who at all cost stand by a pledged word, ⁵who do not lend money at interest and refuse a bribe against the innocent.

Do this, and you will soon be shaken.

PSALM 16 (15)

The Israelites lived among pagan nations, but even among the people, many shared the pagan superstitions while professing their faith in one God. When they took part in sacrifices

The Lord is my inheritance. God is my share of inheritance: I chose him as my only Lord and I will rejoice in him for all eternity.

¹Keep me safe, O God, for in you I take refuge.

²I say to the Lord,
"You are my Lord, my only good."

offered to local gods, they mixed idolatry with the practice of true faith.

The author of this psalm is doubtless a Levite, a priest. In the past when God divided the Promised Land among the tribes, he said to the Levites: "I will be your part of inheritance." Now he guides this Levite amidst the compromises of a people more unfaithful than faithful.

The commitment of the psalmist is so unconditional that he does not think that even death can sever his relationship with God (vv. 10-11).

You will not abandon my soul to the grave. The psalmist is certain that God can deliver him from this dark, sad place, which, according to the belief of that time, was the dwelling place of the dead. He will place him at his right forever.

From the beginning, Christians took these words as applying especially to the risen Jesus (Acts 2:25 and 13:35).

Loyalty to God does not mean hostility towards those who follow another religion. This loyalty asks of us on the contrary to look more closely at our attachment to all the little gods that encumber our life. Let us not sacrifice our Christian identity on the altar of money.

PSALM 17 (16)

³The gods of the earth are but nothing, cursed be those who delight in them.

⁴Those who run after foreign gods only have their sorrows multiplied.

Let me not shed blood for them, nor their names be heard on my lips.

⁵O Lord, my inheritance and my cup, my chosen portion—hold secure my lot.

⁶The best part has been allotted to me. Delightful indeed is my inheritance!

⁷I bless the Lord who counsels me; even at night my inmost self instructs me.

⁸I keep the Lord always before me; for with him at my right hand, I will never be shaken.

⁹My heart, therefore, exults, my soul rejoices; my body too will rest assured.

¹⁰For you will not abandon my soul to the grave, nor will you suffer your holy one to see decay in the land of the dead.

¹¹You will show me the path of life, in your presence the fullness of joy, at your right hand happiness forever.

Jer 7:18;
23:13;
Hos 2:19;
Zec 13:2

Num
18:20

109:31;
Acts 2:
25-28

Acts
13:35

Pro 5:6; 15:24

Outcry of the innocent.

¹Hear a just cause, O Lord, listen to my complaint. Give heed to my prayer for there is no deceit on my lips.

²Let my defense come forth from you; your eyes see what is right.

³You have probed my heart, searched me at night, tested me by fire, and you have seen no wickedness in me.

⁴I have not sinned by my words as others do;

I have kept your word and followed your ways.

⁵Hold firm my steps upon your path, that my feet may not stumble.

⁶I call on you, you will answer me, O God; incline your ear and hear my word.

⁷For you do wonders for your faithful, you save those fleeing from the enemy as they seek refuge at your right hand.

7:9;
26:1;
61:2

7:10;
139:1-3, 23;
Job 7:18

Job
23:12

⁸ Keep me as the apple of your eye;
under the shadow of your wings hide me,
⁹ far from my violent pursuers,
from the onslaught of the wicked despoilers.

Dt 32:10;
Ps 36:8;
57:2;
61:5;
63:8

¹⁰ Their mouths speak arrogantly;
they have shut their hearts to mercy.
¹¹ Now they surround me and track me down, their eyes eager to see me overthrown.
¹² Like lions made fierce by hunger,
they want only to kill and tear.
¹³ Arise, O Lord, confront them, overthrow them!

10:9

May your sword deliver me from the wicked.

¹⁴ O Lord, strike them with your hand and give them no share with the living.
May their belly be filled with what you have stored for them, and their children have more than enough to leave to their descendants.

¹⁵ As for me, righteous in your sight,
I shall see your face and, awakening, gaze my fill on your likeness.

11:7;
Rev 22:4

PSALM 18 (17)

A liberator gives thanks to God. This psalm celebrates a victory. Enthusiasm, fervor, gratitude: God has shaken the universe to come to my help.

² I love you, O Lord, my strength.
³ The Lord is my rock, my fortress,
my deliverer and my God.
He is the rock in whom I take refuge.
He is my shield, my powerful savior, my stronghold.

31:3-4;
144:2;
Dt 32:4

⁴ I call on the Lord, who is worthy of praise:
he saves me from my enemies!

⁵ A deadly flood surrounded me, devilish torrents rushed at me;

116:3

• 18 We find in 2 Samuel 22 a version only slightly different from this psalm attributed to David.

The author thanks God who has given him the victory, he recognizes with gratitude his intervention. This intervention is expressed in a poetic way like a glorious appearance of God in the heights of heaven (see Hb 3).

Verse 3. My powerful Savior: literally: my triumphant horn.

Verse 10. He bent the heavens and came down. It is what he did when his own Son came among us to deliver humanity from its enemies.

Verse 11. In the traditions of the Middle East, the cherubs were the winged monsters charged to escort the gods. For the Israelites they drew God's chariot or carried his throne.

Verse 29. Jesus said: "I am the light of the world," and we repeat with the psalmist: You give light to my lamp.

⁶ caught by the cords of the grave,
 I was brought to the snares of death. Pro
13:14;
14:27

⁷ But I called upon the Lord in my distress,
 I cried to my God for help; and from his temple he heard my voice,
 my cry of grief reached his ears.

⁸ Then the earth reeled and rocked;
 the foundations of the mountains shook;
 they trembled at his fury. 19:16, 18;
Hb 3:
3-13

⁹ Smoke rose from his nostrils, from his mouth a devouring fire throwing off live embers.

¹⁰ He bent the heavens and came down 144:5
 with dark clouds under his feet.

¹¹ He rode on a cherub and flew, 104:3
 borne on the swift wings of the wind.

¹² Veiled with darkness surrounding him, he made misty rain clouds his tent. 97:2;
Dt 4:11

¹³ Then from the brightness of his presence hail and fiery embers broke forth.

¹⁴ From heaven the Lord thundered;
 the voice of the Most High resounded. 29;
77:18-19

¹⁵ Sending out a hail of arrows, he scattered 144:6
 them;
 flashing forth bolts of lightning, he routed
 them.

¹⁶ The beds of the seas appeared, 15:8
 the foundations of the world were laid bare at the rebuke of the Lord, at the blast of his breath.

¹⁷ Reaching down from above,
 he drew me out of the deep waters.

¹⁸ Too strong for me were my enemies, 142:7
 but he rescued me from my adversaries.

¹⁹ They launched their attack on an opportune day,
 but the Lord was my support.

²⁰ He has set me out in the open,
 he saved me because he cares for me!

²¹ The Lord rewarded me for my justice,
 according to my righteousness.

²² For I have been faithful to the Lord's way and have not departed from my God.

²³ All his ordinances are before me,
 I have always followed his statutes.

²⁴ Before him I have done uprightly and kept myself from iniquity.

²⁵The Lord treats me according to my merits, according to the cleanness of my hands.

²⁶With the faithful you are faithful;
with the blameless you are blameless; ²⁷with the pure you are pure but with the crooked you are astute.

Pro 3:34

²⁸For you raise up the humble and bring down the arrogant.

²⁹Lord, you give light to my lamp.
O my God, you brighten my darkness.

³⁰Yes, with you I charge the armed bands, and by my God I leap over the wall.

³¹This God—his way is perfect;
the word of the Lord can stand fire.
He is a shield for those who seek refuge in him.

Pro 30:5;
Ps 12:7

³²There is no other God but Yahweh.
There is no other rock but our God.

Is 44:6, 8

³³He is the God who girds me with strength and prepares my ways.

³⁴He makes my feet as swift as the deer's;
he sets me securely on the heights.

Hb 3:19

³⁵He trains my hands for war and my arms to bend the bronze-bow.

144:1

³⁶You give me your shield for protection, your right hand upholds me,
and your help makes me great.

³⁷You enlarge the space before me,
my step will not falter.

³⁸I pursue my enemies and overtake them,
I do not turn back till I have destroyed them.

³⁹Thrusting them through,
I do not give them time to rise;
they fall under my feet.

⁴⁰You give me strength for the battle;
you subdue my adversaries beneath me;

⁴¹you put my enemies to flight and destroy those who hate me.

⁴²They cry for help, but no one comes.
They cry to the Lord; he does not answer them.

⁴³I pulverize them as dust before the wind;
like mud in the streets I trample them.

⁴⁴You delivered me from my people's quarrels and made me head over the nations.

2:8-9

They came to serve me—people I have not known.

⁴⁵ At the sound of my voice, they rose to obey, foreigners fawned before me.

⁴⁶ Staggering out of their fortresses, they came to me cringing and trembling.

⁴⁷ The Lord lives! Praised be my rock!
Exalted be my savior God—

⁴⁸ the God who grants me vengeance and subdues the peoples for me.

⁴⁹ He delivers me from my foes;
he exalts me above my adversaries;
he rescues me from violent people.

⁵⁰ For this I extol you, O Lord, among the nations;

I will sing praise to your name, saying:

⁵¹ “He has given victories to his king;
he has shown his love to his anointed ones,
to David, and to his descendants forever.”

47:4

Rom 15:9

89:5, 30

PSALM 19 (18)

This psalm is an invitation to sing the glory of God. This is manifested by the wonders of the heavens, especially the sun (vv. 1-7), and the Law (vv. 8-15). These two parts were doubtless, in former times, two different psalms.

The order in the vault of the sky is like a symphony. Do we know how to listen to it? Do we join other creatures in praising God our Creator? Do we perceive also the melody of the gospel message (Rom 10:18)? The Law of the Lord is more precious than gold, and sweeter than honey, it speaks to us of God and invites us to submit ourselves totally to him.

Verse 15. The term redeemer signified “avenger.” It also means savior.

In the “Imitation of Christ,” there is a section indicating other marvels of God:

Happy the one who listens to the Lord when he speaks to us interiorly, accepting from his lips the word of life and of happiness!

Happy the eyes that are closed to what is spectacular so as to be more attentive to the interior vision!

Recollect yourself in this way, my soul, shut the door of your senses, so that you may hear what the Lord, your God says to you.

² The heavens declare the glory of God;
the firmament proclaims the work of his hands.

³ Day talks it over with day;
night hands on the knowledge to night.

⁴ No speech, no words, no voice is heard—

⁵ but the call goes on throughout the universe, the message is felt to the ends of the earth.

⁶ High above, he pitched a tent for the sun, who comes out as a bridegroom from his pavilion,
or like a racer joyfully runs his course.

⁷ Rising from one end,
it makes its circuit of the heavens,
and sets at the other end;
and nothing is hidden from its heat.

⁸ The law of the Lord is perfect:
it gives life to the soul.
The word of the Lord is trustworthy:
it gives wisdom to the simple.

⁹ The precepts of the Lord are right:
they give joy to the heart.
The commandments of the Lord are clear:
they enlighten the eyes.

50:6;
89:6;
97:6;
Rom 1:20Rom
10:18;
Sir 43:
1-5

¹⁰The fear of the Lord is pure,
it endures forever;
the judgments of the Lord are true,
all of them just and right.

12:7;
Jas 1:27

¹¹They are more precious than gold—pure gold of a jeweller;
they are much sweeter than honey which drops from the honeycomb.

119:127;
119:103

¹²They are a light to your servant,
in keeping them they win a great reward.

¹³But who can discern one's own errors?
Forgive the failings of which I am unaware.

¹⁴Preserve me from willful sin;
do not let it get the better of your servant.
Then shall I walk blameless and innocent of serious sin.

¹⁵May the words of my mouth and the meditations of my heart find favor in your sight,
O Lord—my redeemer, my rock!

PSALM 20 (19)

The people pray to God for his king in difficult times. This psalm invites us not to count too much on our own feats, but much more on the power of God. What the psalm says is doubtless valid for our politicians.

May the Lord protect those who struggle to bring about the kingdom of truth, just as he protected Christ, our King.

Prayer of the Jews for their king.

²May the Lord answer you in the day of distress;
may the name of Jacob's God give you protection.

³May he send you help from the sanctuary and give you support from Mount Zion.

2:6

⁴May he remember all your oblations and look favorably on your burnt offerings.

⁵May he grant you your heart's desire and fulfill all your plans.

⁶In your victory let us shout for joy and raise our banner in the name of our God.
May the Lord grant all your requests.

⁷Now I know that the Lord saves his anointed;
he has answered him from his holy heaven with victories from his right hand.

18:51

⁸Some boast of chariots, some of horses;
but we boast in the name of the Lord our God.

33:16-17;
147:10;
Hos 1:7

⁹Their forces will collapse and be crushed, but ours shall rise, and stand firm.

¹⁰When we call, answer us, O Lord, make the king victorious!

20: 61:6-8 PSALM 21 (20)

Thanksgiving for our king. He asked you for life and you have given it: he will live for ever.

63:12 ²The king rejoices in your strength, O Lord, and exults in your saving help.

through the love of the Most High, he will not be shaken.

Pro
20:28

20:5 ³You have granted him his desire; you have not rejected his request.

⁹Your hand, O Lord, will reach your enemies, and lay hold of all your foes.

⁴You have come to him with rich blessings; you have placed a golden crown upon his head.

¹⁰Your mere appearance will turn them into a blazing furnace. Your wrath will engulf them like a fire.

2K 20: 1-7 ⁵When he asked, you gave him life—length of days forever and ever.

¹¹You will wipe their fruit from the earth and destroy their posterity.

45:4; 96:6 ⁶He glories in the victory you gave him; you shall bestow on him splendor and majesty.

¹²Though they plot evil against you and devise wicked schemes, they will never win;

72:17; Gen 12: 2-3 ⁷You have given him eternal blessings, and gladdened him with the joy of your presence.

¹³they will turn back in fear, when you aim arrows at them.

61:8; 89:2; ⁸The king trusts in the Lord, and ¹⁴Be exalted, O Lord, in your strength! We will sing in praise of your might.

57:12

Is 52:13—53:12 PSALM 22 (21)

The prayer of Christ on the cross.

Mt 27:46; Is 49:14; 54:7 ²My God, my God, why have you forsaken me? Why are you so far from me, from the sound of my groaning?

⁸All who see me make a jest of me; they sneer and shake their heads.

Mt 27: 29:31; 27:39

³My God, I call by day, but you never answer; by night and I find no rest.

⁹“He put his trust in the Lord, let the Lord rescue him! If the Lord is his friend, let him help him!”

37:5; Wis 2: 18-20; Mt 27:43

Is 6:3 ⁴Yet you are enthroned the Holy One, the praise of Israel.

¹⁰Yet it is you who drew me from the womb and kept me safe at my mother’s breasts.

⁵In you our fathers trusted, and you delivered them.

¹¹I have been yours from birth; from my mother’s womb you have been my God.

Jdg 3: 9-15 ⁶They cried to you and they were saved; they trusted in you and were not overcome.

¹²Be not far from me for trouble is near, and there is no one to help me.

38:22

Is 53:3 ⁷But I am a worm and not human, scorned by everyone, despised by the people.

¹³A herd of bulls surround me—strong bulls of Bashan closing in on me,

• 21 The preceding psalm asked help for the king; this psalm in turn gives thanks for the victory gained. We know how to ask, but do we know how to thank?

When we read the Bible, it seems that with so many of God’s blessings, the kings of Israel should have had more success than they did. The Word of God is true: God’s friends discover with surprise that if they persevere in fidelity, God works marvels for them.

• 22 This prayer is a passage from night to day. The first part is gloomy, the second is like a sunrise which gives new life and puts joy in the heart of humans. It is the long lament of the persecuted, who, on the edge of the abyss are given assurance and certitude.

From the beginning, Christian tradition has applied this psalm to Jesus himself. In fact, we find here the passion of Jesus: the bulls, the lions, the dogs are the enemies; only a worm, 17:12 ¹⁴their mouths open, like lions roaring for their prey.

¹⁵I am like water draining away; all my bones are out of joint, my heart melts away like wax.

¹⁶My throat is dried up like a potsherd; my tongue clings to my palate. You have laid me down in the dust of death.

¹⁷Round about me are vicious dogs, villainous rogues encircling me. They have tied up my hands and feet.

¹⁸They can count all my bones, for they are looking and watching me,

Mt 27:35; Jn 19:24 ¹⁹dividing my garments among them and casting lots for my raiment.

²⁰O Lord, be not far from me! O my strength, come quickly to my help.

²¹Deliver my soul from the sword, my life from the powerful grip of the dog.

7:3; 17:12; 57:5; 2Tim 4:17 ²²Rescue me from the jaws of the lion, my soul from the horns of the wild bull.

35:18; 40:10; Heb 2:12 ²³I will proclaim your name to my brothers, I will praise you in the assembly, ²⁴"All you who fear the Lord, praise him! All you offspring of Jacob, glorify him! All you sons of Israel, revere him!

²⁵For he has not scorned or loathed the afflicted in his misery. He has not hidden his face from me but has listened when I cried to him."

²⁶I will praise you in the great assembly, fulfill my vows before all who revere you.

²⁷The lowly will eat and be satisfied. Those who seek the Lord will praise him. May your hearts live forever!

²⁸The whole earth will acknowledge and turn to the Lord; the families of nations will worship him.

²⁹For dominion belongs to the Lord and he reigns over the nations.

³⁰Before him all those who rest in the earth will bow down, all who go down to the dust.

My soul will live for him. ³¹My descendants will serve him and proclaim the Lord to coming generations; ³²they will announce his salvation to a people yet unborn, "These are the things that he has done."

Heb 5:7

35:18

72:8-11

Ob 1:21; Zec 14:9; Rev 11:15

48:14; 71:18

78:6; 102:19; Eph 2:7

PSALM 23 (22)

The good shepherd. The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want. The table and the cup of Christ are before me. I have received better than the anointing of holy oil, that of the Spirit (Jn 2:27). It is not the repose of death that I await but the resurrection that brings me to the Father.

it is the humiliation of blows and the infamy of the cross; and his clothes were divided just as he said.

Jesus himself made this psalm his own when from the cross he uttered this cry: "My God, why have you forsaken me?" Jesus himself felt he had appealed to God in vain... And yet, in the midst of this terrible darkness, a light in the soul of Jesus does not waver. He knows that in spite of this silence, the Father is always with him and all the second part of the psalm is a song of trust which ends in a cry of triumph.

The Crucified of Good Friday is transformed to the Glorious Lord and his reign will be universal. Jesus had said: "When I am lifted up from the earth, I will draw all things to myself."

Christian life is a passage from death to life. What is marvelous is that through Jesus we can always bring good from evil, happiness from suffering and even from death.

Verse 26. I will fulfill my vows: it is a matter of sacrifices and of thanksgiving.

Verse 27. It is an allusion to the banquet that God has prepared for his elect: Isaiah 25:6; Luke 22:30.

Your rod, your staff: one is to open a way through the undergrowth, the other to defend the flock.

¹The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want.
²He makes me lie down in green pastures.
 He leads me beside the still waters,
³he restores my soul.
 He guides me through the right paths for his name's sake.

Lk 15:3-7;
 Jn 10:1-30;
 Heb 13:20;
 1P 2:25;
 Rev 7:17
 25:11;
 31:4;
 Ezk 20:9

⁴Although I walk through the valley of the shadow of death,
 I fear no evil,
 for you are beside me:
 your rod and your staff comfort me.

⁵You spread a table before me in the presence of my foes.
 You anoint my head with oil;
 my cup is overflowing.

78:19;
 133:2;
 Lk 7:46

⁶Goodness and kindness will follow me
 all the days of my life,
 I shall dwell in the house of the Lord
 as long as I live.

PSALM 24 (23)

The earth and its fullness belong to the Lord. A procession goes forward towards the Temple: the Israelites carry the Ark of the Covenant to the place where God himself, the Creator of the universe, will dwell in their midst.

Lift up, O gateways, your lintels, open up, you ancient doors, that the King of glory may enter! Let us contemplate this mystery. The All-powerful comes to live among us and reside in the humble dwelling place we prepare for him. He becomes man in the womb of Mary.

Who is this King of glory? On the day of his resurrection and ascension, Christ became the King of glory. He went up to the Holy Mountain and was the first to enter the eternal dwelling place of God. All those who share his upright life and seek God with a sincere heart will follow Jesus in glory and share his eternal happiness.

Verse 2. Allusion to the vision the Israelites had of the world: the earth was like a disk resting on columns.

The destiny of humankind. God created the universe to display his riches but the world is not completed, until God has visited humankind, and the New Man, the Son of God has revealed himself.

The earth and its fullness belong to the Lord,
 the world and all that dwell in it.

89:12;
 1Cor 10:26

²He has founded it upon the ocean and set it firmly upon the waters.

75:4;
 104:5;
 Job 38:4-6

³Who will ascend the mountain of the Lord?
 Who will stand in his holy place?

15

⁴Those with clean hands and pure heart, who desire not what is vain,
 and never swear to a lie.

26:1

⁵They will receive blessings from the Lord,
 a reward from God, their savior.

⁶Such are the people who seek him, who seek the face of Jacob's God.

⁷Lift up, O gateways, your lintels,
 open up, you ancient doors,
 that the King of glory may enter!

118:19-20

⁸Who is the King of glory?
 The Lord, the strong, the mighty,
 the Lord, valiant in battle.

Verse 10. Yahweh Sabaoth, or Yahweh of the armies, the armies of celestial spirits, and also the armies of Israel.

⁹Lift up your lintels, O gateways,
open up, you ancient doors,
that the King of glory may enter!

¹⁰Who is the King of glory?
The Lord of Hosts,
he is the King of glory!

PSALM 25 (24)

Calling on God in trials. The Bible does not know despair. We can be broken by sorrow, anxiety, the weight of sin, but there is always an escape. All our paths, even the worst, can finally lead to a love stronger than all the powers of this world.

86:4 To you, O Lord, I lift up my soul.

²In you my God I trust; let me not be put to shame, let not my enemies exult over me.

³Those who hope in you will never be humbled; those who turn away from you will suffer disgrace!

27:11; 86:11 ⁴Teach me your ways, O Lord; make known to me your paths.

Jn 14:4-6; 16:13 ⁵Guide me in your truth and instruct me, for you are my God, my savior; I hope in you all day long.

⁶Remember your compassion, O Lord, your unfailing love from of old.

79:8; 106:3 ⁷Remember not the sins of my youth, but in your love remember me.

⁸Good and upright, the Lord teaches sinners his way.

⁹He teaches the humble of heart and guides them in what is right.

¹⁰The ways of the Lord are love and faithfulness for those who keep his covenant and precepts.

23:3; 103:3 ¹¹For the sake of your name, Lord, forgive my iniquity, for it is great.

¹²To those who fear the Lord, he will teach the way to choose.

¹³They will live in prosperity, and their descendants will inherit the land.

37:9;
Is 60:21

¹⁴The Lord gives advice to those who revere him and makes his covenant known to them.

¹⁵My eyes are always on the Lord, for he will free my feet from the snare.

123:1;
141:8;
31:5

¹⁶Turn to me and have compassion, for I am lonely and afflicted.

86:16;
119:132

¹⁷Free my heart of bitterness; relieve me of this distress.

¹⁸See my pain and sufferings, and forgive all my sins.

119:153;
32:5;
85:3

¹⁹See how my enemies have increased and how violently they hate me.

²⁰Deliver me from them; let me not be put to shame, for I have trusted you.

²¹Let integrity and uprightness be my protection, for all my hope, O Lord, is in you.

²²Redeem, O God, redeem Israel from all its troubles!

• 25 Remember your compassion, O Lord, your unfailing love from of old. Remember not the sins of my youth. The love of God for us has been eternally expressed by the blood of Jesus. God will never forsake his people. Every mass celebrates this covenant between God and us in the blood of Jesus.

PSALM 26 (25)

17:1; 15:2 Declare me innocent, O Lord, for I have lived with integrity; I have put my trust in the Lord, I shall never waver.

17:3 ²Prove me, O Lord, put me to the test; examine my soul and my heart.

³For your love is ever before my eyes, and I live in truth and faithfulness.

1:1-2 ⁴I do not associate with the deceitful nor do I go with hypocrites;

⁵I hate the party of the corrupt and avoid the company of the wicked.

73:13; 30:17-21; Dt 21:6-7; Mt 27:24 ⁶I wash my hands free of guilt and walk in procession round your altar,

Prayer of the just. Let us make our own the prayer of the just that reaffirms his fidelity. Let us not count on our own merits, like the Pharisee. Let us rather give thanks for this new person that we have become through baptism: Christ has purified and has enriched us.

⁷singing hymns of praise and thanksgiving and proclaiming your wondrous deeds. 9:2

⁸O Lord, I love the house where you dwell, the place of your Glory.

⁹Let me not share the fate of sinners, nor lose my life with the violent; 28:3

¹⁰their hands are guilty of crimes, their right hands are weighed down with bribes.

¹¹But I will walk in integrity, redeem me, O God, be gracious to me.

¹²My foot stands firm in the straight path, I will praise you, O Lord, in your assemblies.

PSALM 27 (26)

In the struggles of this life, the believer is not discouraged because she clings to the hope the Lord has in store for her at the end of the conflict.

A trust without limits: Though my father and mother forsake me, yet will the Lord receive me.

To such a God the psalmist can say: One thing I seek... (to) dwell in the house of the Lord. All the struggles, trials and temptations will not let us forget the house of the Lord at the end of the road.

I will make the victor into a column in the sanctuary of my God. I will write on him the name of my God... and my own new name (Rev 3:12).

Close to God, there is no fear. It is your face, Lord, that I seek... I hope to see the goodness of the Lord in the land of the living.

¹The Lord is my light and my salvation —whom shall I fear?

The Lord is the rampart of my life; I will not be afraid.

²When the wicked rush at me to devour my flesh, it is my foes who stumble, my enemies fall.

³Though an army encamp against me, my heart will not fail; though war break out against me, I will still be confident.

⁴One thing I ask of the Lord, one thing I seek—that I may dwell in his house all the days of my life, 23:6; 42:3; 63:3 to gaze at his jewel and to visit his sanctuary.

⁵For he will keep me safe in his shelter in times of misfortune; 17:8; 31:21; 64:3; 61:3

• 26 I wash my hands, such was a liturgical act; it is a way of expressing the absence of faults.

he will hide me beneath his roof, and set me high upon a rock.

⁶Then my head will be lifted up over the enemies round about me.
I will offer sacrifices at his Tent with shouts of joy;
I will sing and make music in praise of the Lord.

⁷Hear my voice when I call, O Lord, have mercy on me and answer.

⁸My heart says to you,
“I seek your face, O Lord.”

⁹Do not hide your face from me nor turn away your servant in anger.
You are my protector, do not reject me abandon me not, O God my savior!

13:2;
44:25;
69:18;
88:15

¹⁰Though my father and mother forsake me, yet will the Lord receive me.

Is 49:
14-15

¹¹Teach me, O Lord your way;
lead me along a straight path.

86:11;
25:4, 12

¹²Save me from the plot of my enemies, for false witnesses have risen against me to pin me down in their violence.

¹³I hope, I am sure, that I will see the goodness of the Lord
in the land of the living.

¹⁴Trust in the Lord, be strong and courageous —yes, put your hope in the Lord!

37:34;
130:5-6;
31:25;
Jos 1:9;
1Cor
16:13

PSALM 28 (27)

O my Rock, do not be deaf to my call!

¹To you, O Lord, I call; my rock, be not deaf to me.

For if you heed me not, I shall go down to the pit like the rest.

²Hear my cry for mercy as I call to you for help, as I lift up my hands toward your innermost sanctuary.

³Drag me not away with the wicked, with those who do evil, who mouth words of peace while they sow mischief and confusion.

⁴Punish them for their evil designs and wicked deeds; give them their due reward. ⁵Since they have no regard for the works of the Lord, he will tear them down and never let them rise again.

Is 5:12;
Ps 52:7

⁶Blessed be the Lord! He has heard my cry for help.

⁷The Lord is my strength, my shield, my heart was sure of him, I have been helped and my heart exults, with my song I give him thanks.

⁸The Lord is the strength of his people, the saving refuge of his anointed.

29:11;
1S 2:10

⁹Save your people, and bless your inheritance, be their shepherd and carry them forever.

23:1;
Is 40:11

PSALM 29 (28)

It only takes a big storm to let us know the limits of our powerful organs and our liturgies. The psalm begins with a call to the sons of God, that is, to the celestial beings who form God's court. The people of the Old Testament had not renounced the assembly of the gods of their pagan neighbors, but since Yahweh reigned above them all, these were no more than angels and cosmic powers.

The storm: the Lord is passing. God speaks through the tempest. It is there that he shows his power and his glory.

¹ Give the Lord, O sons of God, give the Lord glory and strength,

96:7-8

² give the Lord the glory due his name;
worship the Lord in great liturgy.

18:11-16;
77:18-19;
97:2-4;
19:16...19;
Hb 3;
Job 37:2-5

³ The voice of the Lord is over the waters;
the God of glory thunders,
the Lord thunders over vast waters.

⁴ How powerful is the voice of the Lord,
How splendorous is the voice of the Lord.

⁵ The voice of the Lord tears up the cedars, the Lord is shattering the cedars of Lebanon.

⁶ He makes Lebanon skip like a calf, and Sirion like a young wild bull.

114:4;
Dt 3:9

⁷ The voice of the Lord breaks forth with flashes of fire,

⁸ the voice of the Lord makes the wilderness quake,

The Lord is shaking the wilderness of Kadesh.

⁹ The voice of the Lord makes the oaks shudder, the Lord strips the forests bare,
and in his temple all cry, "Glory!"

¹⁰ Over the flood the Lord was sitting;
the Lord is king and he reigns forever.

Gen 6—9

¹¹ May the Lord give his people strength;
may the Lord bless his people with peace!

28:8;
68:36

PSALM 30 (29)

I will praise you because you have freed me.

Nothing is definitive in this life. The Lord alternates joys and sorrows according to what we need for the development of our faith. We are, at times, surprised: the trials discourage us as if God no longer existed, and when God gives favors, we dare not believe them to be true.

² I extol you, O Lord, for you have rescued me; my enemies will not gloat over me. from the grave, you gave me life when I was going to the pit.

³ O Lord my God, I called to you for help, and you healed me.

⁵ Sing to the Lord, O you his saints, give thanks and praise to his holy name.

97:12

• 30 Verse 10 mentions what had become the scandal of believers. Is it possible that the dead go forever to this underworld (they called it Sheol) and that God who is so faithful might forget them?

Is 54:7-8 ⁶For his anger lasts but a little while, and his kindness all through life.

Weeping may tarry for the night, but rejoicing comes with the dawn.

⁷Once in my prosperity I said, "I shall not be troubled."

27:9; 104:29 ⁸Yet it was you, O Lord, who made me stand on the rock; as soon as you hid your face, I wavered!

⁹To you, O Lord, I called; to you I begged for mercy:

6:6 ¹⁰"What good would there be in my destruction, in my going down to the pit?

Would my dust give you praise?

Would it prove your faithfulness?

¹¹Hear, O Lord, and have mercy on me; O Lord, be my protector."

¹²But now, you have turned my mourning into rejoicing; you have taken off my sackcloth and wrapped me in the garments of gladness.

¹³And so my soul, no longer silent, now sings praise without ceasing. O Lord my God, forever will I give you thanks.

126:5-6;
Is 35:10;
Jer 31:13

71:1-3 PSALM 31 (30)

I seek refuge in you, Lord. Into your hands I commend my spirit.

²In you, O Lord, I take refuge, may I never be disgraced; deliver me in your justice.

³Give heed to my plea, and make haste to rescue me. Be a rock of refuge for me, a fortress for my safety.

18:3; 23:3 ⁴For you are my rock and my stronghold, lead me for your name's sake;

25:15; 142:8 ⁵free me from the snare that they have set for me. Indeed you are my protector.

Lk 23:46; Acts 7:59; 1P 4:19 ⁶Into your hands I commend my spirit; you have redeemed me, O Lord, faithful God.

⁷You hate those who worship worthless idols; but I put all my trust in the Lord.

⁸I will rejoice and be glad in your love, for you have seen my affliction; you know the agony of my soul.

18:20; 118:5 ⁹The hand of the enemy did not grab me; you gave me room to move.

6:8 ¹⁰Be merciful to me, O Lord, in my affliction; my eyes have grown dim with sorrow, my body emaciated.

¹¹For my days are wracked with grief, and my years worn out in anguish. My strength fails because of my misery.

¹²I have become an object of reproach for my foes, a horror for my neighbors, a fear to my friends. Those who see me in the streets flee from me.

¹³I am like the dead, unremembered; I have become like a broken pot, thrown away, discarded.

¹⁴I hear whispering among the crowd, rumors that frighten me from every side—their conspiracies, their schemes, their plot to take my life.

¹⁵But I put my trust in you, O Lord, I said: "You are my God;"

¹⁶my days are in your hand. Deliver me from the hand of my enemies, from those after my skin.

¹⁷Make your face shine upon your servant; save me in your love.

Jer 6:25;
Mt 26:
3-4

22:11;
63:2

4:7;
67:2;
119:135;
80:4, 8, 20;
Num 6:25

• 31 Luke attributes these words to Jesus on the cross. A little further on we find other words, "You are my God," which are also in Psalms 22, and closely linked to the Passion. It will be our last hope at the moment of death.

¹⁸Let me not be dishonored, O Lord, for I have called on you; but let the wicked lie dishonored and go to the pit never to speak.

¹⁹Let lying lips close in silence, these speaking against the just with malice and arrogance.

²⁰How great is the goodness which you have stored for those who fear you, which you show, for all to see, to those who take refuge in you!

^{27:5} ²¹In the shelter of your presence you hide them from human wiles; you keep them in your dwelling, safe from the intrigues of wagging tongues.

²²Blessed be the Lord for his wonderful love! He has strengthened my heart.

²³I said in my fright: "I have been cut off from your sight!"

Yet when I was crying, you heard; when I called for mercy, you listened.

²⁴Love the Lord, all you his saints! The Lord preserves his faithful, but he fully requites the arrogant.

^{27:14} ²⁵Be strong and take courage, all you who hope in the Lord.

Jon 2:5

27:14

PSALM 32 (31)

It is good to clarify what was not really sin but caused guilt. On the other hand, nothing is gained in denying a fault and still less a sin. In Christian language, sin signifies that we committed a wrong not with a law but towards someone we love.

Our well-being, in the truest meaning of the word, depends on the quality of our relationship with God: what sin has destroyed will only be restored by trust in God who pardons the humble and the repentant. When we ask God to heal someone, we do not separate health of body from health of soul. It is what the following prayer for the anointing of the sick expresses:

Jesus, our Savior, we ask you, through the power of the Holy Spirit to cure the illness from which this person suffers, heal his wounds, pardon his sins, rid him of all that torments his body and soul; give him again spiritual and physical health so that, healed through your goodness, he may return to his work.

Relief after the confession of sin. Buried sin ruins our conscience. Confession is always a liberation.

Blessed is the one whose sin is forgiven, whose iniquity is wiped away.

25:18;
Rom
4:7-8

²Blessed are those in whom the Lord sees no guilt and in whose spirit is found no deceit.

Jn 1:47

³When I kept my sin secret, my body wasted away, I was moaning all day long.

39:2-4

⁴Your hand day and night lay heavy upon me; draining my strength, parching my heart as in the heat of a summer drought.

⁵Then I made known to you my sin and uncovered before you my fault, saying to myself, "To the Lord I will now confess my wrong." And you, you forgave my sin, you removed my guilt.

51:5;
2S 12:13;
1Jn 1: 9-10

⁶So let the faithful ones pray to you in time of distress; the overflowing waters will not reach them.

⁷You are my refuge; you protect me from distress and surround me with songs of deliverance.

⁸I will teach you, I will show you the way to follow. I will watch over you and give you counsel.

33:18

⁹Do not be like the horse or the mule—senseless and led by bit and bridle.

¹⁰Many woes befall the wicked, but the Lord's mercy enfolds those who trust in him.

¹¹Rejoice in the Lord, and be glad,
you who are upright;
sing and shout for joy,
you who are clean of heart.

33:1

PSALM 33 (32)

This psalm opposes the projects of nations, what they thought, and the projects of God, what he thinks (vv. 10-11).

The language of this psalm may seem simplistic to many: is the world really so docile to God's wishes? It is a problem of faith. Faith does not enable us to see through rose-colored spectacles what is not rosy; but the vision of a forest is not the same for the one who goes through the bushes and for the one who looks at it from a helicopter.

The psalm speaks of foreign nations who threaten the people of God. It is a great privilege to belong to his people!

God's Providence watches over us always.

Happy the nation that has the Lord for God! The Lord watches over those who fear him.

¹Rejoice in the Lord, you who are just, praise is fitting for the upright.

32:11

²Give thanks to him on the harp and lyre, making melody and chanting praises.

³Amid loud shouts of joy, sing to him a new song and play the ten-stringed harp.

96:1;
98:1;
144:9;
149:1;
Is 42:10;
Rev 5:9;
14:3

⁴For upright is the Lord's word and worthy of trust is his work.

⁵The Lord loves justice and righteousness;
the earth is full of his kindness.

89:15;
119:64

⁶The heavens were created by his word, the breath of his mouth formed their starry host.

Gen 1:
1-8;
2:1, 4;
Heb 11:3

⁷He gathered the waters of the sea into a heap, and stored the deep in cellars.

Job 38:
8-11, 37

⁸Let the whole earth fear the Lord, let the inhabitants of the world stand in awe of him.

67:8;
102:16

⁹For he spoke and so it was,
he commanded, and everything stood firm.

148:5;
Is 48:13

¹⁰The Lord frustrates the plans of the nations and brings to nothing the peoples' designs.

2:2

¹¹But his plan stands forever, and his heart's design through all generations.

Pro 19:21

¹²Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord—

144:15;
Dt 7:6

the people he has chosen for his inheritance.

¹³The Lord looks down from heaven and sees the whole race of mortals.

14:2

¹⁴From where he sits he watches
all those who dwell on the earth—

¹⁵ he who fashions every heart observes all their deeds. 94:9-11;
139:1-16;
Gen 2:
7-8

¹⁶ A king is not saved by a powerful army, nor a warrior rescued by his great strength. 20:8;
Am 2:
14-16

¹⁷ Don't think that a horse will save you;
its great strength does not assure victory.
¹⁸ But the Lord's eyes are upon those who fear him, 32:8; 34:16

upon those who trust in his loving-kindness ¹⁹ to deliver them from death and preserve them from famine.

²⁰ In hope we wait for the Lord, for he is our help and our shield. 115:9-10

²¹ Our hearts rejoice in him,
for we trust in his holy name.

²² O Lord, let your love rest upon us, even as our hope rests in you.

PSALM 34 (33)

Taste and see, etc. Let our experience be that of 15:21; 11-16
the poor and the humble. God is near to those who have no other support but him. When there will be no assurance, God will be obliged to take charge of those to whom he owes fidelity.

² I will bless the Lord all my days;
his praise will be ever on my lips. 16:7;
145:1

³ My soul makes its boast in the Lord;
let the lowly hear and rejoice.

⁴ Oh, let us magnify the Lord, together let us glorify his name!

⁵ I sought the Lord, and he answered me;
from all my fears he delivered me.

⁶ They who look to him are radiant with joy, their faces never clouded with shame.

⁷ When the poor cry out, the Lord hears and saves them from distress.

⁸ The Lord's angel encamps and patrols to keep safe those who fear him. 35:5-6; 91:11;
14:19;
23:20

⁹ Oh, see and taste the goodness of the Lord! 1P 2:3;
Ps 2:12

Blessed is the one who finds shelter in him!

¹⁰ Revere the Lord, all you his saints, for those who fear him do not live in want. 23:1

¹¹ The mighty may be hungry and in need, but those who seek the Lord lack nothing.

¹²Come, listen to me, my children;
I will show you how to fear the Lord. Pro 1:8

¹³If you desire long life, if you want to enjoy prosperity, 1P 3:
10-12

¹⁴keep your tongue from falsehood, keep your lips from deceit;

¹⁵turn away from evil and do good;
seek peace and pursue it. 37:27

¹⁶The eyes of the Lord are fixed on the righteous;
his ears are inclined to their cries. 33:18

¹⁷But his face is set against the wicked to destroy their memory from the earth.

¹⁸The Lord hears the cry of the righteous and rescues them from all their troubles.

¹⁹The Lord is close to the brokenhearted and saves the distraught. 51:19

²⁰Many are the troubles of the just, but the Lord delivers them from all.

²¹He keeps all their bones intact, and none of them will be broken. Jn 19:36

²²Evil will slay the wicked;
the enemies of the just will be doomed.

²³But the Lord will redeem the life of his servants; 25:22
none of those who trust in him will be doomed.

PSALM 35 (34)

Prayer of a just person when persecuted.

O Lord, attack those who attack me;

fight against those who fight against me.

²Come to my aid with armor and shield;

³stand with your spear and war ax, halt my pursuers. Say to my soul, "I am your deliverer."

71:13;
40:15

⁴Let them be shamed and dishonored, those who seek my life. Let them be routed and destroyed, those who plot my ruin.

1:4;
83:14;
34:8

⁵Let them be like chaff before the wind, when the Lord's angel drives them away.

73:18

⁶Let their escape path be dark and precipitous, with the Lord's angel always at their heels.

⁷They set their net against me for no cause, they dug a pit for me without reason. 9:16

⁸Let ruin come upon them unexpectedly, let them be entangled in their own snare; let them fall into the trap of their own making. Is 47:11;
Ps 7:16;
140:6

⁹Then will my soul rejoice in the Lord and exult in his salvation.

¹⁰My whole being will exclaim, "O Lord, who is like you? You deliver the oppressed from those too strong for them, you rescue the poor and the needy from their oppressors." 71:19;
77:14

¹¹False witnesses take the stand, 27:11;
Mt 26:
59-60

accusing me of crimes of which I am innocent.

38:21; 109:5 ¹²For my kindness they return evil, bringing my life to despair.

¹³When they were sick, I wore sackcloth and fasted; I prayed hard with head bowed, 38:7 ¹⁴as if I were bereft of a friend or brother; I shed tears in grief, as one mourning the death of his mother.

¹⁵But when I stumbled they gathered in glee and, began to strike me; like strangers they disowned me and accused me falsely.

¹⁶Like an ungodly circle of mockers, they gnashed their teeth and made me the butt of all their ridicule.

22:26 ¹⁷How long, O Lord, will you look on? Deliver my life, my only one, from these lions. ¹⁸Then I will thank you in the great assembly; I will praise you in the mighty throng.

69:5; Jn 15:25 ¹⁹Do not let them gloat over me—those who, unprovoked, have become my foes. Do not let them wink maliciously—those who hate me without cause.

²⁰Sowing discontent with their tongue and mind, they devise false accusations against the peace-loving people of the land.

²¹They open wide their mouths against me: “Aha, aha!” they say, “We have seen it with our own eyes!”

38:22; 22:12 ²²But you, O Lord, who have seen, do not keep silent. Do not stand far from me.

7:7; 44:24 ²³Stir yourself up, stand up for my rights and my cause, my God and my Lord!

²⁴Declare me innocent, O Lord, my God, according to your justice.

Let them not gloat over me.

40:14-17; 70:3-4 ²⁵Never give them reason to say, “We have trampled him down!”

²⁶Let them be utterly disgraced and confounded, who exult over my calamity. Let them be ashamed and dishonored, who rejoice at my distress.

²⁷But let them be glad and rejoice, who are in sympathy with my cause. And may they ever say, “Great is the Lord, who has justified his servant.”

71:24 ²⁸Then will my tongue proclaim your righteousness, and sing your praises all day long.

PSALM 36 (35)

The wickedness of the sinner and the goodness of God. Even the wickedness of sinners urges us to trust in God’s goodness.

Rom 3:18 ²Wickedness speaks to the wicked in the depths of his heart: there is no fear of God before his eyes.

³Blinded by conceit, he fails to see his guilt.

⁴With mouths full of malice and deceit, they no longer think of doing good.

⁵They plot mischief even in bed; committed to a life of sin, they know not how to reject evil.

57:11; Eph 3:18-19 ⁶Your love, O God, reaches the heavens; your faithfulness, to the clouds.

⁷Your justice is like the mighty mountains; your judgment like the unfathomable deep. You preserve, O Lord, humans and beasts.

17:8; 91:4 ⁸How precious, O God, is your constant love! Mortals take refuge in the shadow of your wings.

23:5; 63:6 ⁹In your house they find rich food

• 36 The first part (vv. 2-5) shows us evil as a personified power. The second (vv. 6-13) tells us that the power of God is still greater.

and they drink from your spring of delight.

56:14;
89:16

¹⁰For with you is the fountain of life, in your light we see light.

¹¹Bestow on your faithful your love and give salvation to the upright of heart.

¹²Let not the foot of the arrogant trample on me, nor the hand of the wicked drive me away.

¹³But what! See how the evildoers lie fallen, flung down and never to rise again.

PSALM 37 (36)

Happiness for the just, ruin for the wicked. “Do not get worried when you think of the wicked.” Neither power nor riches give access to the inheritance that God promised to his children.

73;
Job 21: 1-26;
Pro 24:19

¹Do not be annoyed with evil people nor be envious of wrongdoers.

90:6;
103:15;
Is 40:7

²For they will fade as any green herb and soon be gone like withered grass.

³Trust in the Lord and do good, dwell in the land and live on it.

⁴Make the Lord your delight, and he will grant your heart's desire.

⁵Commit your way to the Lord; put your trust in him and let him act.

⁶Then will your revenge come, beautiful as the dawn, and the justification of your cause, bright as the noonday sun.

4:5;
62:6

⁷Keep calm before the Lord, wait for him in patience; do not fret if others succeed when they carry out evil schemes.

⁸Refrain from anger, turn away from wrath; fret not, for it only leads to evil.

25:13

⁹Remember this: the wicked will perish, but those who hope in the Lord will inherit the land.

¹⁰Wait a moment: the wicked are no more. Though you look for them, they cannot be found;

¹¹but the humble will inherit the land and enjoy peace in abundance.

Is 57:13;
Mt 5:4

¹²The wicked plot against the virtuous and gnash their teeth at them; ¹³but the Lord laughs at the wicked, for he sees their day coming.

35:16;
112:10

¹⁴The wicked draw their swords and bend their bows; they aim at the poor and the afflicted, they get ready to slay the righteous.

2:4

¹⁵But their bows will be shattered; the sword thrust into their own heart.

7:13;
11:2

¹⁶The little that the righteous possess is better than the abundance of the wicked.

Pro
15:16;
16:8

¹⁷For the arms of the wicked will be broken, and the righteous will be upheld by the Lord.

¹⁸The Lord watches over the lives of the upright; forever will their inheritance abide.

1:6

¹⁹They are not crushed in times of calamity; when famine strikes, they still are satisfied.

²⁰But the wicked will perish; the enemies of the Lord will vanish like smoke, disappear like the wild flowers.

• 37 The psalm is addressed not only to believers, but to a people of God concerned about its land.

Do not be discouraged when others cause you difficulties; or when they multiply little vexations intended to make you leave. Keep calm and have courage. The children of a people who lives in solidarity and believes in God's promises will be masters one day.

Time works for God; the tree that the Father did not plant will be uprooted. History turns against those who impose their truth.

²¹The wicked borrow and do not repay, but the righteous have mercy and share.

Mt 25:
34, 41

²²They will inherit the land—those whom the Lord blesses; but those whom the Lord curses he will cut off.

Pro
20:24

²³The Lord is the one who makes people stand, he gives firmness to those he likes. ²⁴They may stumble, but they will not fall, for the Lord holds them by the hand.

3:6

²⁵From my youth to old age, I have yet to see the righteous forsaken or their children begging for alms.

²⁶He lends and gives, and his children are blessed. The whole day he succeeds.

34:15

²⁷Do good and shun evil, so that you will live secure forever.

²⁸For the Lord loves justice and right, and never forsakes his faithful ones. The wicked instead will perish and their breed will be cut off.

²⁹The righteous will possess the land; they will make it their home forever.

³⁰The mouth of the virtuous utters wisdom and his tongue speaks of what is right.

³¹His steps have never faltered, for the law of God is in his heart.

³²The wicked spies on the just man and lies in wait to slay him.

³³But the Lord does not hand him over, or let him be condemned when he is tried.

³⁴Hope in the Lord and follow his way, for he will exalt you and give you the land. You will see how the wicked perish.

³⁵I have seen an oppressor mighty, towering like a cedar of Lebanon.

Ezk 31:
10-12

³⁶But when I passed by again, he was no longer there. I looked for him but could not find him.

³⁷Mark the blameless, watch the upright, and you will see that there is a future for the person of peace.

³⁸But all sinners will be destroyed; the future of the wicked will be shattered.

³⁹The Lord is the salvation of the righteous; in time of distress, he is their refuge.

9:10

⁴⁰The Lord helps them, and rescues them from the oppressor; he saves them for they sought shelter in him.

PSALM 38 (37)

Prayer in time of trouble. When illness or misfortune comes, we begin to reflect; we then discover that the greatest misfortune is to be a sinner.

6:2

²O Lord, rebuke me not in your rage, punish me not in your fury.

Job 6:4;
16:13

³Your arrows have struck me; your hand has come down heavily upon me.

Is 1:5-6

⁴Your anger has spared no part of my body, my sin gives no peace to my bones.

⁵For my transgressions overwhelm me; they weigh me down like an unbearable load.

Ezra 9:6

⁶My wounds stink and fester within me, the outcome of my sinful folly.

⁷Stooped and bowed down, I go about mourning all day.

35:14;
42:10

⁸My loins burn, my flesh is dis-

• 38 The third of the so-called seven Penitence Psalms: Psalms 6, 32, 38, 51, 102, 130, 143. The greater the sin, the greater must be our trust in God.

I confess my transgression, I repent of my sin (v. 19). The Old Testament does not clearly distinguish sin from misfortune: if someone is sick and has trials, it is surely because there is a debt with God. In theory, of course, it is not true: beware of guilt when things go wrong for us! In fact, the sick person is always a sinner; his weakness will help him to know the truth.

102:4-6 eased, ⁹my body, worn out and utterly crushed; I groan in pain and anguish of heart.

¹⁰All my longing, O Lord, is known to you; my sighing is not hidden from you.

6:8 ¹¹My heart pounds as my strength ebbs; even the light has deserted my eyes.

31:12; 41:10; 88:9, 19; Job 19: 13-19; Lk 23:49
35:20, 25 ¹²My friends avoid me because of my wounds; my neighbors stay far off.

¹³Those who seek my life lay snares for me; those who wish to hurt me speak of my ruin and plot against me all day long.

39:2-3 ¹⁴But like a deaf-mute, I neither hear nor open my mouth.

¹⁵I am like one whose ears hear not and whose mouth has no answer.

¹⁶For I put my trust in you, O Lord; you will answer for me, Lord God.

¹⁷I pray, "Don't let them gloat over me, nor take advantage of my helplessness when my foot slips." 35:15, 19

¹⁸For I am about to fall, my pain is ever with me. ¹⁹I confess my transgression, I repent of my sin. 32:5

²⁰Many are my foes; many are those who hate me for no reason, 35:19; 69:5

²¹those who pay me for evil for good and harass me because I seek good. 35:12

²²Forsake me not, O Lord, stay not far from me, O my God. 22:2; 71:18

²³Come quickly to help me, O Lord, my savior! 22:12; 35:22; 22:20; 40:14

PSALM 39 (38)

We are nothing before God. Although in giving us his Son, God has given us everything, we possess nothing and continue to wait for everything from his mercy. Show me how frail and fleeting is my life.

²I said, "I will watch my ways and keep my tongue from sin; I will muzzle my mouth in front of the wicked."

32:3; 38:14 ³So I did. But as I kept silent, their happiness made my anguish grow.

⁴My heart began to burn within, and finally, I blurted out:

89:48 ⁵"Lord, let me know when my end will come, let me know the number of my days; show me how frail and fleeting is my life."

62:10; 90:9-10; Job 7: 6-21; 14:1-5 ⁶You allow me to live but a short span; before you, all my years are nothing. Human existence is a mere whiff of breath.

⁷Humans are mere shadows that go about relentlessly. Being but a breath they toil and rake in wealth, not knowing who will take it next.

⁸But now, O Lord, what do I await? All my hope rests in you.

⁹Rescue me from all my sins and let me not be derided by fools.

¹⁰I shall keep silent and not open my mouth, since this is your work.

¹¹Only remove from me your scourge; for I am done in with your blows.

¹²When you want to correct the mortals and punish their sin, you eat like moth what they hold dear. Mortals are a mere puff of wind! Job 13:28

¹³Hear, O Lord, my supplication, listen to my cry for protection; do not be deaf to my lamentation. For I dwell with you as an alien, a pilgrim, as all my ancestors have been. 119:19; Gen 23:4; Lev 25:23; 29:15; Heb 11:13; 1P 2:11

¹⁴Turn from me awhile, that I may find relief, before I depart and be no more." Job 7: 19, 21; 10:20-22; 14:6

PSALM 40 (39)

The Bible tells me to do your will. The Letter to the Hebrews (10:5) places on the lips of Jesus verses 7-9 which express his perfect obedience. May we also be able to say: "Here I am!"

²With resolve I waited for the Lord; he listened and heard me beg.

18:5; 69:3
³Out of the horrid pit he drew me, out of deadly quicksand. He settled my feet upon a rock and made my steps steady.

33:3; 52:8
⁴He put a new song in my mouth, a song of praise to our God. Many will see and be awed and put their trust in the Lord.

1:1; Jer 17:7
⁵Blessed is the one who relies on the Lord and does not look to the proud nor go astray after false gods.

35:10; 71:15; 139:17-18; Jn 21:25
⁶How numerous, O Lord, are your wonderful deeds! In your marvelous plans for us you are beyond compare! How many they are—I cannot tell them or count their number.

Heb 10:5-7; Is 50:5; Ps 51:18-19; 69:31-32; Am 5:22; Hos 6:6
⁷Sacrifice and oblation you did not desire; this you had me understand. Burnt offering and sin offering you do not require.

⁸Then I said, "Here I come! as the scroll says of me. ⁹To do your will is my delight, O God, for your law is within my heart."

22:23; 35:18
¹⁰In the great assembly I have proclaimed your saving help. My lips, O Lord, I did not seal—you know that very well.

78:4
¹¹I have not locked up in my heart your saving help, but have spoken about it—your deliverance and your faithfulness;

I have made no secret of your truth and of your kindness in the great assembly.

¹²Do not withhold from me, O Lord, your mercy; let your love and faithfulness preserve me constantly.

¹³For troubles beyond number have closed in on me; I am all covered by sins and I cannot see. They are more than the hairs of my head, and I am losing courage.

¹⁴May it please you, O Lord, to rescue me. Make haste, O Lord, to help me!

¹⁵May those who seek my life be brought to shame and disgrace; may those who want me destroyed be turned back in confusion.

¹⁶May those who taunt me with, "Aha, aha!" be filled with shame and consternation.

¹⁷But may all those who seek you rejoice and be glad in you; and may all who love your saving grace continually say, "The Lord is great."

¹⁸Though I am afflicted and poor, yet the Lord thinks of me. You are my help and my savior—O Lord, do not delay!

• 40 Two prayers have been combined in this psalm. The first is verses 2-12 (or 13).

With resolve I waited for the Lord. Who speaks in this psalm? If one compares it to the Poems of the Servant (Is 49-53) or to Psalms 22 and 68, it seems that it is not a matter of only one person. The psalm expresses the thanksgiving of the believing minority of God's people, agents of God for the salvation of the world. It is also a fact that in the Bible someone, a savior or the Savior always embodies the people or the faithful group. This psalm then is in a special way applicable to Christ, even if it expresses the prayer of the people of God in their trials.

Out of the horrid pit he drew me. Many will see and be awed and put their trust in the Lord. The Church is in the hands of God and he will not spare it from trials along the way. Could it, without that, be the instrument of salvation? God asks all of us to accept in different ways this vocation of sacrifice, but it is only perfectly accomplished in the case of Christ: Then I said, Here I come!

From verse 14, we have the text of Psalm 70: verse 13 was probably part of it.

PSALM 41 (40)

Prayer of an abandoned sick person. Sick, ridiculed, betrayed: such is the one who says this prayer. Perhaps we know him and he is beside us waiting for our support.

²Blessed the one who has regard for the poor; the Lord delivers him in time of trouble.

³The Lord protects him, preserves his life, and gives him happiness in the land; he yields him not to the will of his foes.

⁴The Lord helps him when he gets sick, and heals him of all his ailments.

⁵I have pleaded, "O Lord, have mercy on me; heal me, in spite of all my iniquity."

⁶My enemies ask of me in malice, "When will he die and his name perish?"

When they come in to see, they talk emptily gathering slanderous gossip.

No sooner have they left, that they tell their comments.

⁷Then all my enemies whisper together, imagining the worst for me:

⁸"A deadly disease has fastened on him. He will never get up again!"

⁹Even my most trusted friend, with whom I shared my food, has lifted his heel against me.

¹⁰But you, O Lord, have mercy on me; lift me up to give them recompense.

¹¹This will assure me that I enjoy your favor: if my enemies do not triumph over me, ¹²if you uphold my integrity and let me stand in your presence forever.

¹³*Praise the Lord, the God of Israel, from all eternity and forever! Amen. Amen!*

27:12

6:3;
30:331:12-14;
38:17-2038:12;
55:14;
Mk 14:18;
Jn 13:1872:18;
89:53;
Ne 9:5;
Dn 2:20;
Lk 1:68PSALM 42 (41)

An exiled Levite, a priest remembers with what joy he went in the past on a pilgrimage to Jerusalem. We, too, are exiles here below, as long as we do not see the face of God. It is well that we are not too quickly satisfied with a few beautiful ceremonies.

When shall I go to contemplate the face of the Lord? In exile, the psalmist remembers the years of grace.

²As a deer longs for flowing streams, so my soul longs for you, O God.

³My soul thirsts for God, for the living God. When shall I go and see the face of God?

⁴Day and night my tears have been my food, as people ask me day after day, "Where is your God?"

Jl 1:20
36:10;
63:2-3;
84:3, 8;
Jn 4:10-14;
7:37;
Ps 17:15
79:10;
115:2;
Mic 7:10;
Mal 2:17

⁵Now as I pour out my soul,
I remember all this—how I used to lead the faithful in procession to the house of God, amid shouts of joy and thanksgiving,
among the feasting throng. 27:4

⁶Why are you so downcast, my soul,
why so troubled within me?
Hope in God, for I will praise him again,
my savior and my God. 43:5;
Mk
14:34;
Jn 12:27

⁷My soul is downcast when I remember from these lands of Jordan and Hermon,
“Where are you, small mountain?” Lm 3:20

⁸Deep calls to deep as your cataracts thunder;
your waves and torrents have gone over me. 88:8;
Jon 2:4

⁹May the Lord bestow his love by day, by night his song is upon my lips—
a prayer to the God of my life.

¹⁰I say to God, my rock,
“Why have you forgotten me?
Why do I go about mourning,
oppressed by the enemy?” 18:3;
43:2

¹¹My whole being suffers in mortal agony, as my adversaries continually taunt me,
“Where is your God?”

¹²Why are you so downcast, my soul,
why so troubled within me?
Hope in God, for again I will praise him—
my savior and my God.

PSALM 43 (42)

The author of this psalm recalls with nostalgia the Temple in Jerusalem and the splendid ceremonies of past times. He is now living in a foreign land, where his words, his culture, his faith mean nothing to anyone. “Where is your God?” they say, and he asks himself: “Who am I?”

A fervent call to God and cries of hope are features of this psalm, like a refrain repeated three times.

Who among us would not be able to personalize this psalm? Human pro-

Continuation of the previous psalm. Here we have the fervent prayer that the believer—immersed in adversity—addressed to God in order not to waver in his faith.

¹Make justice, O God, and defend my cause against an ungodly people;
deliver me from the wicked and deceitful. 74:22;
119:154

²You are my God, my stronghold,
why have you cast me out?
Why should I go about mourning,
oppressed by the enemy? 44:10, 24;
60:12;
74:1;
42:10

³Send forth your light and your truth;
let them be my guide,

gress, be it ever so great and salutary, brings new problems and stirs up in us new desires. We are at times mindful that we have been created for something greater: nothing of that fully gratifies us, and death is always at the end. How can we revive those moments when we knew true joy?

let them take me to your holy mountain, to the place where you reside.

⁴Then will I go to the altar of God, to God, my gladness and delight. I will praise you with the lyre and harp, O God, my God.

⁵Why are you so downcast, my soul, why so troubled within me? Hope in God, for again I will praise him— my savior and my God.

42:6, 12

PSALM 44 (43)

National lament. The believing people has suffered a defeat and complain to God.

78:3 ²With our ears, O God, we have heard; our ancestors have declared to us the works you did in their days of old. ³You drove out the nations and settled them in their land; you conquered the peoples to make room for them.

78:55;
80:9Dt 8:
17-18;
Hos 1:7

⁴For it was not with their own sword that they conquered the land nor were they victors by their own hand; but it was by your right hand and arm and by the light of your countenance; for you truly loved them.

74:12

⁵It is you, my King and my God, who ordain victories for Jacob.

1K 22:11;
Ps 60:14;
108:14

⁶Through you we batter down our foes; through your name we shatter our enemies.

⁷For it is not in my bow that I trust, nor in my sword to make me victorious.

⁸But it is you who give us victory, you who bring our adversaries to shame.

37:39-40;
132:18

⁹It is always in God that we find glory. Forever shall we praise your name.

¹⁰Yet now you have rejected and humbled us; you no longer go forth with our armies.

60:12

¹¹You have let our enemies drive us back and our adversaries plunder us.

Jdg 2:14

• 44 Everywhere, including Christian countries, Christians are only a minority among a mass of people of other religions, or far removed from faith in Christ. That is why we remember with nostalgia other times when everyone professed the same faith and took part in religious celebrations.

The Jews were in a similar situation when this psalm was written. It must have been the time of the Maccabees, when a minority of believers were trying to uplift Israel in the face of Syrian persecution and the resignation of the majority.

In a poetical contrast, the psalmist opposes the failure of the faithful troops to the triumphant conquest of Palestine six centuries earlier when the Israelites left Egypt under the leadership of Moses and Joshua (vv. 2-9).

Verses 10-17: These humiliated people express anguish at having lost God himself: he no longer does the wonders he did before to prove that he alone is God.

Yet this passionate complaint (vv. 24-25) is not without hope: the psalmist is convinced that God is all-powerful and his love is faithful (v. 27). It is the same for us. We have good reason to be discouraged: how many counter testimonies! How many apostolic efforts that seem to fail; how God seems to let his Church get stuck in the mud of old, lifeless structures! How the mission to the masses has been forgotten! Will God not come back? Whatever may be the responsibility of Christians in the actual situation, God still knows how to draw a greater good from it.

Lev 26:33 ¹²You have let us be driven for slaughter like sheep, scattered among nations as captives.

Is 52:3 ¹³You have handed us over to them for nothing: the sale was of no benefit for you.

79:4 ¹⁴You have made us the butt of our neighbors' insult, the scorn and laughingstock of those around us. ¹⁵You have made us a byword among the nations; they look at us and shake their heads.

69:8 ¹⁶All day long my disgrace is before me and shame covers my face, ¹⁷at the voice of the one who mocks and reviles, in the presence of the enemy and the avenger.

¹⁸All this has happened to us, although we have not forgotten you, nor have we been untrue to your covenant.

¹⁹Our heart has not turned back nor have our steps faltered; ²⁰yet you have crushed us in the desert of the snakes and covered us with deep darkness.

²¹Had we forgotten the name of our God and stretched forth our hands to an alien god, ²²God would have discovered this, for the secrets of the heart are not hidden from him.

²³For your sake we are slain all day and accounted as sheep for slaughter.

²⁴Awake, O Lord! Why are you asleep? Arise! Reject us not forever.

²⁵Why hide your face from us? Why forget our misery and woes?

²⁶Our souls are humbled in the dust, our bodies smashed to the ground.

²⁷Come to our help, deliver us for the sake of your kindness.

Jer 17:10

Rom 8:36

Is 51:9

10:11

119:25; 7:6

3:8; 35:2

PSALM 45 (44)

This psalm could have been written on the occasion of the marriage of a king of Israel with a foreign princess, but perhaps it was a poetic call to the chosen people to fully enter into a covenant with its God, its spouse. God made himself present through his King-Messiah, anointed by him (v. 9). Israel is party to the divine marriage, followed by all the nations who accept the revelation of God and salvation. Verses 13-16 take up the same expressions that we find in Isaiah 60-62.

All this can apply to the Church and to each of us also. Baptism was nothing less than a total gift to Christ. For our part the gift remained with words and gestures, but we already belonged to him and a whole life is not too long for that to become a reality.

Listen, O daughter, pay attention; forget your father's house and your nation. When marriage takes place, much has to be abandoned. Here, it is the same: one day God will be all for all, but to reach that, one has to forget country and family, one must change

For the king's wedding. Human love is a mystery that touches the mystery of God himself. God wishes to be united with humanity as a husband to his wife: he has already done so in the person of Christ.

²My heart is moved by an exalted theme as I deliver my ode to the king, my tongue as nimble as a writer's pen.

³You are the finest among all others, your lips are anointed with graciousness, for God has blessed you forever.

Ezk 28: 12, 17

⁴Gird your sword upon your thigh, O mighty one, array yourself with splendor and majesty.

⁵Glorious and triumphant, ride on for the sake of truth, for a just cause.

You will see marvelous deeds of your right hand.

⁶Your arrows are sharp, O king, they pierce the hearts of your enemies; nations fall beneath your feet.

⁷Your throne, O God, will last forever; a scepter of justice is your scepter.

Is 11:3-5; Heb 1:8-9

⁸You love righteousness and hate wickedness; therefore God, your God, has anointed you

1S 16: 6-13

one's way of thinking and one's habits for those of God.

Forget your fathers, and think of your sons. We can see here Jesus' promises to those who leave all to serve him.

with the oil of gladness, above your fellow kings.

⁹Your robes are fragrant with myrrh, aloes and cassia. The music of strings gladdens your palace adorned and glowing with ivory.

1K 22:39

¹⁰Among your ladies of honor are daughters of kings; at your right hand, in gold of Ophir, stands the queen.

Song 6:8

¹¹Listen, O daughter, pay attention; forget your father's house and your nation, ¹²and your beauty will charm the King, for he is your lord.

Ru 1:16

Eph 5:24

¹³The people of Tyre will bow before him. The wealthiest nations will seek your favor.

72:10-11

¹⁴All glorious as she enters is the princess in her gold-woven robes.

¹⁵She is led in royal attire to the king, following behind is her train of virgins.

¹⁶Amid cheers and general rejoicing, they enter the palace of the king.

¹⁷Forget your fathers and think of your sons, you will make them princes throughout the land.

Gen 17:6;
35:11

¹⁸I will make your name famous through all generations; may all nations praise you forever!

PSALM 46 (45)

This psalm is one of those that recall the miraculous deliverance of Jerusalem in the time of Isaiah (Is 36–37).

We will not fear... though the mountains quake and totter. The Hebrew poetry always associates nature and political events. The history of Israel has been a troubled history: marked by internal crises and enemy invasions. Yet, it is not a chaotic history. This history is guided by an invisible hand, powerful and tender—the hand of God.

A river brings joy to the city of God. The pool of Shiloah, where the water entered through a tunnel in the God is with us. A river whose streams bring joy to the city of God. To the upheavals mentioned in the first stanza the psalmist contrasts a vision of tranquility, the Holy City, Jerusalem, the Church.

²God is our strength and protection, an ever-present help in affliction.

62:9

³We will not fear, therefore, though the earth be shaken and the mountains plunge into the seas, ⁴though its waters foam and roar, though the mountains quake and totter.

Is 54:10;
Job 9:5-6

93:3

For the Lord of hosts is with us, the God of Jacob, our stronghold.

⁵There is a river whose streams bring joy to the city of God, the holy place where the Most High dwells.

interior of the ramparts assured the life of the city at the time of a siege: symbol of the secret protection of God. Ezekiel will recall the source which flows out of the Temple, symbol of life and fecundity.

At the sound of his voice, the earth melts away. And it is still true when God feels at home with us: if we had many reasons to fear, suddenly the scene changes and all is certitude and peace.

He has put an end to wars. The spiritual Israel (the Church) will be there again to proclaim the wonders of God when the armies and imperial powers will have fallen.

⁶God is within, the city cannot quake, for God's help is upon it at the break of day.

68:17;
125:1

⁷Kingdoms tottered, nations were in turmoil;

Rev
11:18;
Ps 29:3

at the sound of his voice the earth melts away.

⁸For with us is the Lord of hosts, the God of Jacob, our refuge.

Is 7:14;
8:10;
Ps 9:10;
48:4

⁹Come, see the works of the Lord—the marvelous things he has done in the world.

66:5

¹⁰He has put an end to wars, broken the bows and splintered the spears, set the shields and chariots afire.

76:4;
Hos 2:20

¹¹Be still, know that I am God. I am exalted among the nations, exalted over the earth!

Dt 32:39

¹²With us is the Lord of hosts, the God of Jacob, our refuge.

PSALM 47 (46)

To the king of all the nations. The Lord comes at the end of time to begin his reign.

²Clap your hands, all you peoples; acclaim God with shouts of joy.

Zep 3:
14-15

³For the Lord, the Most High, is to be feared; he is a great king all over the earth.

68:36;
76:8

⁴He brings peoples under our dominion and puts nations under our feet.

⁵He chose our inheritance for us—the pride of Jacob whom he loves!

⁶God ascends amid joyful shouts, the Lord amid trumpet blasts.

24:7-10

⁷Sing praises to God, sing praises! Sing praises to our King, sing praises!

30:5

⁸God is king of all the earth; sing to him a hymn of praise.

⁹For God now rules over the nations, God reigns from his holy throne.

Is 6:1

¹⁰The leaders of the nations rally together with the people of the God of Abraham. For in his hands are the great of the earth, God reigns far above.

Is 2:2

PSALM 48 (47)

The Church-Zion: mountain of God. Zion is the other name for Jerusalem, the Holy City. God favored it and protected it on several occasions. Let the faithful rejoice: God watches over it!

²Great is the Lord,
most worthy of praise in the city of God,
his holy mountain. 96:4

³Beautifully elevated, it is the joy of all the earth Mt 5:35

—Mount Zion, heavenly mountain, the city of the great King.

⁴Here within her lines of defense,
God has shown himself to be a sure fortress.

⁵The kings assembled together, advanced toward the city.

⁶But as soon as they saw it, they were astounded; 68:13

they panicked and took to flight.

⁷Seized with fear, they trembled, like a woman in travail, 15:14

⁸or like the ships of Tarshish, shattered by a strong wind from the east. Jer
18:17

⁹As we have heard, so have we seen, in the city of the Lord of hosts,
in the city of our God,
the city God founded forever.

¹⁰Let us recall your unfailing love,
O God, inside your temple.

¹¹Let your praise as does your name, O God, reach to the ends of the earth. 113:3
Your right hand is ever victorious.

¹²Let Mount Zion rejoice, let the villages of Judah be glad, 97:8
for your justice prevails.

¹³Walk around Zion, count her towers,

¹⁴consider her ramparts, examine her castles, 78:4

that you may tell the next generation

¹⁵that such is God;

God is our guide forever.

• 48 This psalm, like Psalm 46, mentions the miraculous deliverance of Jerusalem.

The holy mountain, the text reads: Mount Zion in the far north—ancient traditions considered the mountains of the north as the residence of the gods.

Walk around Zion: this refers, perhaps, to the very ancient religious practice of walking around a sanctuary and touching the wall.

PSALM 49 (48)

The irresponsibility of the rich. “Beware of every desire to possess, for even when one has everything, it is not possessions which give life.”

²Hear this, all you peoples!

Pro 8:4

Listen, all you inhabitants of the world,

³high and low together,

rich and poor alike!

⁴My mouth will speak wisdom, my deep thoughts will bring discernment.

78:2

⁵To a proverb I will incline my ear, and solve my riddle to the rhythm of my lyre.

⁶Why should I fear when evil days come,
when wicked deceivers ring me round—

⁷those who trust in their wealth and boast of their great riches?

Jer 9:22;
Lk 12:
16-21

⁸For no ransom avails for one's life, there is no price one can give to God for it.

⁹For redeeming one's life demands too high a price, and all is lost forever.

Mt 16:26

¹⁰Who can remain forever alive and never see the grave?

¹¹For we see that the wise die, and pass away like the fool and the stupid leaving to others their fortune and wealth.

Sir 11:19

¹²Their graves are their eternal homes, from generation to generation,
no matter how big the tracts of land they own.

¹³People of wealth have no thought, they will be silenced like the beasts.

Ecl 3:
18-21

¹⁴This is the fate of people trusting themselves, the future of those who rely on their strength.

¹⁵Like sheep led to the grave,
they have death as their shepherd and ruler;
quickly their form will be consumed in the world of the dead, which is their home.

¹⁶But God will rescue my soul from the grave by receiving me unto himself.

Hos
13:14

¹⁷Fear not when someone grows rich, when his power becomes oppressively great,
¹⁸for nothing will he take when he dies;
his wealth and pomp he will leave behind.

1Tim 6:7

¹⁹Though he praised himself in his lifetime,
“All will say that I have enjoyed life,”

²⁰ he will join the generation of his forebears, who will never again see the light.

Job 10:
21-22

²¹ People of wealth have no thought,
they will be silenced like the beasts.

PSALM 50 (49)

Serve God with a sincere heart. God is coming to judge his people. He condemns those who replace the obedience of the heart with offerings and material sacrifices, and those who recite the commandments instead of practicing them.

¹ The God of gods, the Lord has spoken, he summons the earth from the rising of the sun to its setting.

Jos
22:22;
Dt 10:17

² God has shone from Zion, perfect in beauty.

48:3;

Dt 33:2

³ God is no longer silent, he comes;
before him is a devouring fire,
around him a raging storm.

83:2;
Dt 32:22;
Dn 7:10;
Job 40:6

⁴ He calls to the heavens above,
and to the earth below,
that he may judge his people:

⁵ “Gather before me my faithful ones, who made a covenant with me by sacrifice.”

24:4-8

⁶ The heavens will proclaim his sentence, for God himself is the judge.

⁷ “Hear, O my people, for I am speaking.
I will accuse you, O Israel,
I am God, your God!

81:9

⁸ Not for your sacrifices do I reprove you, for your burnt offerings are ever before me.

⁹ I need no bull from your stalls, nor he-goat from your pens.

¹⁰ For I own all the beasts of the forest and the animals of my thousand hills.

¹¹ All the birds of the air I know;
all that move in the fields are mine.

¹² I need not tell you if I were hungry, for mine is the world and all that it contains.

24:1

¹³ Do I eat the flesh of bulls or drink the blood of goats?

¹⁴ Yet offer to God a sacrifice of thanks, and fulfill your vows to the Most High.

Hos 14:3;
Heb 13:15;
Mt 5:33

• 50 For a long time, it has been a subject of reflection and discussion for the people of God to know what, in God’s eyes is more important: the offering of sacrifices or keeping the Law? The psalm demands honoring God with sacrifices, but clearly gives priority to an upright life.

¹⁵Call on me in time of calamity;
I will deliver you, and you will glorify me.”

¹⁶But God says this to the wicked:
“What right have you to mouth my laws,
or to talk about my covenant?

¹⁷You hate my commands and cast my words behind you.

¹⁸You join a thief when you meet one;
you keep company with adulterers.

Rom 2:
21-22

¹⁹You have a mouth of evil and a deceitful tongue.

²⁰You speak ill of your brother, and slander your own mother’s son.

²¹Because I was silent while you did these things,

you thought I was like you.

But now I rebuke you and make this charge against you.

²²Give this a thought, you who forget God, lest I tear you to pieces with no one to help you.

Hos 5:14

²³Those who give with thanks offerings honor me,

91:16

but the one who walks blamelessly,
I will show him the salvation of God.”

PSALM 51 (50)

For certain people, Christians included, the word “sin” is out of date. Sin is only a weakness of our nature or the product of evil social structures and so the remedy lies with doctors, psychiatrists and sociologists. The cross of Jesus is there: it is a sign of the existence of sin and its total destruction.

Not for nothing has God educated the people of the Old Testament throughout the centuries, giving them a sense of sin. This psalm has kept the ancient terms: guilt, sin, fault, evil actions but has gradually put aside what came from fear, or what was a failure to observe the law, in order to point out what was essential: that which is evil in your sight and which is a betrayal of God who loves us.

You desire truth in the heart! To recognize sin is to enter into truth. A broken spirit will be the proof of our

Have mercy on me, Lord. Let us admit our sin before the God of truth. Our humiliation will not be without hope, since we know God is able to give us a new heart.

³Have mercy on me, O God, in your love.
In your great compassion blot out my sin.

41:5;
Is 43:25;
44:22

⁴Wash me thoroughly of my guilt;
cleans me of evil.

Ezk
36:25;
37:23

⁵For I acknowledge my wrongdoings and have my sins ever in mind.

Job
31:33

⁶Against you alone have I sinned;
what is evil in your sight I have done.

Lk
15:18;
Rom 3:4

You are right when you pass sentence and blameless in your judgment.

⁷For I have been guilt-ridden from birth,
a sinner from my mother’s womb.

Jn 9:34;
Rom
7:14

⁸I know you desire truth in the heart, teach me wisdom in my inmost being.

⁹Cleanse me with hyssop and I shall be clean, wash me, I shall be whiter than snow.

Is 1:18

love. The cry to God to give us a pure heart will be the expression of our faith.

In your great love, O Lord, have mercy on me. God is not loved, or he is poorly loved. The experience of pardon is the door which gives access to knowing God, as will be said in Romans 5-6. And the result of this will be that the Spirit of God will be given to us, making us steadfast and joyful.

Deliver me from the guilt of blood. The evil or the crimes we have committed make us fear death: we carry it within us. From this comes the desire of reparation, to start again, to save others. I will teach them your ways. That will depend more on God than on us.

This psalm refers to the adultery of David (2 S 11): it was in fact written much later when God's people in general became aware of the experience of its sin. At the end it reaffirms that the God of truth is not interested in our religious gestures if our inner being has not been deeply moved. Such an affirmation was at that time difficult to accept and that is why someone wanted to correct it by adding verses 20-21 so as not to shock the good people who came to pray in the Temple.

The whole psalm breathes an atmosphere of serenity (10-14) because God does not want the death of the sinner, but rather that he may live. The sinner, pardoned and sure of God's constant pardon, will be the witness of divine mercy in an embittered and pessimistic world.

When in the Church, we receive the sacrament of pardon, we meet Jesus himself, the Savior who intercedes, and the Father who pardons. Each of our confessions is a joyful celebration of God's mercy and a source of renewal.

¹⁰ Fill me with joy and gladness; let the bones you have crushed rejoice.

Ezk 37: 1-14

¹¹ Turn your face away from my sins and blot out all my offenses.

¹² Create in me, O God, a pure heart; give me a new and steadfast spirit.

Ezk 11:19; 36:26; 2Cor 5:17

¹³ Do not cast me out of your presence nor take your holy spirit from me.

Is 63:11

¹⁴ Give me again the joy of your salvation and sustain me with a willing spirit.

¹⁵ Then I will show wrongdoers your ways and sinners will return to you.

¹⁶ Deliver me, O God, from the guilt of blood, and of your justice I shall sing aloud.

¹⁷ O Lord, open my lips, and I will declare your praise.

¹⁸ You take no pleasure in sacrifice; were I to give a burnt offering, you would not delight in it.

¹⁹ O God, my sacrifice is a broken spirit; a contrite heart you will not despise.

Ezk 6:9

²⁰ Shower Zion with your favor: rebuild the walls of Jerusalem.

102: 14-18

²¹ Then you will delight in fitting sacrifices, in burnt offerings and bulls offered on your altar.

4:6

PSALM 52 (51)

God will destroy the wicked person.

³ Why boast of your wickedness, strong man? Why boast all day long ⁴ that you are plotting crimes?

Your tongue is like a sharp razor; ⁵ you love evil more than good, and falsehood more than truth. ⁶ You love words that inflict harm, O you deceitful tongue!

⁷ But God will bring you down forever; he will snatch you, tear you away from your tent; he will uproot you from the land of the living.

Job 18:14; Pro 2:22

• 52 The psalmist asks God to do justice against an oppressor. The fall of an unjust system is a judgment of God, but we know that it is not only a question of a group of good people confronting a wicked group.

40:4 ⁸The good will know fear at the sight; they will say concerning his fate:

Pro 11:28 ⁹“See the one who would not rely on God, but trusted in riches and drew strength from wickedness.”

1:3; 92:13; 13:6 ¹⁰But I am as a green olive tree that thrives in the house of God: I trust in God’s unfailing love forever and ever.

¹¹I will praise you forever for all you have done, and proclaim your good name before the faithful ones.

PSALM 53 (52)

The world without God.

²The fool says in his heart, “There is no God.” They are corrupt, their ways are wicked; not one of them does good.

³From heaven God looks down upon the people, to see if there is anyone who seeks God and understands.

⁴None! They have all fallen away. Depraved—they are all alike. There is no one who does good, no, not even one.

⁵Will these evildoers never learn? They devour my people just as they devour food and never call on God.

⁶There they are—afraid when there is nothing to be feared. God will scatter their bones; they will be put to shame because God has rejected them.

⁷May I see Israel’s salvation coming forth from Zion! When God restores his people’s fortune, Jacob will be glad, Israel will rejoice.

PSALM 54 (53)

³By your name, O God, save me; you, the Valiant, uphold my cause.

⁴Hear my prayer, O God; listen to the words of my mouth.

86:14 ⁵Strangers are against me—the ruthless seek my life; they have no regard for God.

⁶See, God is my helper; the Lord upholds my life.

⁷May their evil plots rebound on them; in your faithfulness destroy them!

⁸Freely will I offer sacrifice to you and praise your name, O Lord, for it is good.

⁹You have delivered me from calamity, and I look down on my foes.

52:11

118:7

PSALM 55 (54)

Prayer of the persecuted. The supremacy of money, violence, luxury, prostitution and the exploitation of people. In the midst of a perverted society, the just feel trapped and threatened. Cast your care upon the Lord.

17:1; 86:6 ²Listen to my prayer, O God, do not be deaf to my pleading; ³give heed to me and answer me.

I am greatly troubled ⁴at the outcry of the enemy and the clamor of the wicked.

• 53 This psalm is almost identical to Psalm 14.

• 54 In verse 1, we see that the name of God and his strong intervention are almost identical (see Mk 16:17; Acts 3:6; Phil 2:9). If we place our trust in the name of Jesus, our prayer will not be in vain.

I am distraught at the way they revile me and persecute me in their fury.

⁵My heart agonizes within me; the terrors of death fall upon me. ⁶I tremble in fear—horror has got the better of me.

⁷I said, “If I had wings like a dove, I would fly away and be at rest;

⁸I would seek a home in the desert ⁹or hurry to find a cave for shelter from the tempest.”

¹⁰O Lord, shatter their plans. In the city I see strife and violence; ¹¹day and night they prowl about its walls, while inside, evil prevails.

¹²Forces of tyranny and treachery are at work undermining the city.

¹³If it were a rival insulting me, I could bear with him; if it were a foe in pursuit of me, I could hide from him.

¹⁴But it is you, an equal of mine, my bosom friend, my companion

¹⁵whose fellowship I enjoyed as we walked together in the house of God.

¹⁶Let death come upon them suddenly, let them go down to the grave alive, for within them evil and mischief thrive.

¹⁷But in God I seek refuge; the Lord will rescue me.

¹⁸Morning, evening, and even at noon, I cry out my grievance and moan; surely he will hear my voice.

¹⁹He will deliver me in safety from my opponents, for they are many.

²⁰God who is enthroned forever will hear me and humble them, for they do not repent nor do they stand in awe of God.

²¹My friend has attacked his associates and has violated his pact with them.

²²His words were smoother than butter, yet war was in his heart; his utterances, more soothing than oil, were swords ready and drawn.

²³Place your burden on the Lord, and he will sustain you, for he never allows the upright to fall.

²⁴But you, O God, will cast the wicked into a pit; bloodthirsty and treacherous, they will not live out half their days. As for me, I trust in you alone, O Lord.

PSALM 56 (55)

The just will not fall. Prayer of the millions of oppressed who live, and no doubt will die crushed. You, Lord, have gathered our tears!

²O God, show your mercy to me, for my foes are in hot pursuit; they press their attack on me all the time.

³My accusers pursue me all day long, many attack me. ⁴But when I am afraid, O Mighty One, I put my trust in you, ⁵In God whose word I praise, in God I trust without fear. What can mortals do against me?

⁶All day long they hatch their evil plans, plotting mischief to injure my cause.

⁷They conspire and lurk around, watching my every move, bent upon taking my life.

⁸They must not be allowed to go unpunished; therefore, O God, in your fury bring the nations down.

⁹You have a record of my laments; my tears are stored in your wineskin. Are they not written on your scroll?

¹⁰My enemies turn back when I call on you for help; now I know that God is for me.

¹¹In God whose word I praise, ¹²in

Dn 6:11

29:10

5:10;
57:5

1P 5:7

102:25

Jer
18:23

9:4

Heb 13:6; Ps 118:6 God I trust without fear. What can mortals do against me?

¹³I am bound to you by vows, O God; I shall offer my thanksgiving.

¹⁴For you have rescued my soul from death and my feet from stumbling, that I might walk in God's presence in the light of the living.

Job
33:30

PSALM 57 (56)

O Lord, I live in the midst of lions.

17:8 ²Have mercy on me, O God, have mercy, for my soul takes refuge in you; I will find shelter in the shadow of your wings till the disaster has passed.

43:3 ³I call on God the Most High, on God who has done everything for me: ⁴may he send from heaven a savior and put my oppressors to shame. May God send me his love and faithfulness.

17:12; Dn 6:17; Ps 64:4 ⁵I lie prostrate in the midst of lions that greedily devour people, their teeth are pointed spears and arrows, their tongues, sharpened swords.

108:6 ⁶Be exalted, O God, above the heavens! Your glory be over all the earth!

⁷They have set a snare for my steps; my soul was bowed down in distress. They dug a pit along my path, but they themselves fell into it.

⁸My heart is steadfast, O God, my heart is steadfast. I will sing and make music.

⁹Awake, my soul, awake, O harp and lyre! I will wake the dawn.

¹⁰I will give thanks to you, O Lord, among the peoples; I will sing praise to you among the nations.

¹¹For your love reaches to the heavens, and your faithfulness, to the clouds. ¹²Be exalted, O God, above the heavens! Let your Glory be over all the earth!

Lm 1:13;
Ps 7:16

108:2-6

36:6

PSALM 58 (57)

God judges judges. God denounces leaders who establish and maintain a corrupt order instead of being agents of his justice.

82:2 ²You gods, are your decrees just, and are your judgments upright?

³No, you willfully commit crimes; you deal in violence and corruption.

⁴Even from the womb the wicked go astray; from birth they are wayward liars.

Dt 32:33; Ecl 10:11 ⁵They are poisonous like deadly snakes, deaf as the adder ⁶that blocks its ears so as not to hear the charmer's voice casting spells.

3:8 ⁷Break the teeth in their mouths, O God; tear out the fangs of the lions, O Lord.

Job 11:16; ⁸Let them vanish like spilled water; let them be trodden down like grass that withers.

⁹Let them be like snails that sink into slime, like untimely births that never see the sun. ¹⁰Like green grass that is burned before the thorns are dry—let them be swept away!

¹¹The upright will rejoice when they are avenged; they will bathe their feet in the blood of the wicked.

¹²Then will people say, "Surely the righteous are rewarded; surely there is a God who gives judgment on earth."

Ps 18:15

Job 3:16

35:27;
68:24

1:3;
Job
19:29

• 58 The rulers and those responsible for social justice are called gods because they represent God in carrying out their functions.

PSALM 59 (58)The city is in the hands of the violent.

1S 19: 2 Deliver me from my enemies, O
11-17 God, from those who rise up against me.

3 Deliver me from evildoers; rescue me from the bloodthirsty.

Pro 1:11 4 Look, they lie in wait for my life; the mighty conspiring against me, for no fault of mine, O Lord.

7:7 5 I have done them no wrong, yet they prepare to attack me. Rise and help me, look on my plight, 6 O Lord God of hosts, God of Israel! Arise and punish the nations; have no mercy on the wicked traitors.

22:17 7 Each evening they return, howling like dogs, prowling about the city. 8 To their mind, God does not hear or see their wicked deeds.

2:4 9 But you, O Lord, laugh at them; you look down upon the wicked.

10 O my Strength, I look up to you, for you, O God, are my fortress.

54:9 11 My loving God will come to help me and let me see my enemies fall.

12 But slay them not, lest my people forget; just shake them by your power, and bring them down, O Lord, our shield.

13 Give us your help against the foe, for human help is worthless.

For the curses and lies they utter, 14 destroy them in your vengeance, destroy them till they are no more. Then it will be known that God rules over Jacob to the ends of the earth.

15 Each evening let them return, howling like dogs, prowling about the city, 16 roaming about for food, growling and never filled.

17 But I will sing of your might; in the morning I will sing of your love. For you have been a fortress to me, a refuge in time of distress. 18 O my Strength, I will sing praises to you, for you, O God, are my stronghold; you are a loving God.

PSALM 60 (59)Petition after a defeat.

44:10 3 O God, you have rejected us and have broken our defenses; you have been angry, but now turn back to us.

Hag 2:6 4 You have shaken the land and torn it open; mend its cracks for it totters.

Is 51:17 5 You have made your people suffer; you have given us wine that makes us stagger.

6 You set the banner behind us and your people fled from bow and arrow.

7 Help us and listen to us, that your beloved may be rescued. 108:7-14

8 God has spoken in his sanctuary: "In triumph I will divide up Shechem and parcel out the Valley of Succoth.

9 Gilead is mine; Manasseh is mine; Ephraim is my helmet, Judah my scepter. Gen 49:10

10 Moab is my washbasin; upon Edom I cast my sandal; over Philistia I shout in triumph."

• 59 Is God far from evil places? Does he do nothing there? Is there no prayer, no witness which can move them?

• 60 Perhaps it is difficult for us to understand this psalm. The people have been humiliated and are complaining to God that it is his fault. Then, in the Temple, a priest or a prophet proclaims a comforting message from God: he is going to war and his arms will be the tribes of Israel: Gilead, Ephraim, Judah... and he will trample the neighboring countries... Edom, Moab...

¹¹Who will take me to the fortified city? Who will lead me to Edom?

¹²Have you not rejected us, O God? You no longer go with our armies.

¹³Give us aid against the foe, for human help is not worth a straw.

¹⁴With God we will gain victory; he will crush the enemy for us.

56:5

PSALM 61 (60)

²Hear my cry, O God; listen to my prayer.

³I call to you from the ends of the earth; my heart grows faint. Set me high upon a rock; ⁴be my refuge, a strong tower against the enemy.

⁵Let me dwell in your tent forever and take refuge in your wings' shelter.

⁶Indeed you have heard my vows,

O God, and the wish of those who fear your name.

⁷Increase the days of the king's life; prolong his years for many generations.

⁸May he ever be enthroned in God's presence; let your love and loyalty watch over him.

⁹So I will sing praises to your name and fulfill my vows day after day.

21:5

Is 16:5;
Pro
20:28

66:13

PSALM 62 (61)

My soul rests in God alone. God has revealed two of his dominant qualities: power and goodness. Would we like them to be active? Let us believe and open our hearts.

Still another psalm that seems far removed from believers in peaceful countries. The psalms are the prayer of a people always struggling and suffering violence. Look at the televised news, and the violence of the world will be sufficiently present for us to pray this evening, the prayer of the real world that struggles to survive.

God has spoken one word, and I have heard two things. God revealed at the same time two of his dominant qualities: power and goodness.

²My soul finds rest in God alone; from him comes my salvation.

³He alone is my rock and salvation; with him as my stronghold, I shall not be overcome.

⁴How long will you assail with your threats, all of you, to bring someone down—as you would pull a wall or smash a fence?

⁵Indeed they plan to topple me. They take pleasure in telling lies; with their mouths they bless, but in their hearts they curse.

⁶Find rest in God alone, O my soul; from him comes my hope.

⁷He alone is my rock and my salvation; with him as my stronghold, I shall not be overcome.

⁸On God rests my salvation and my honor; he is my refuge, my mighty rock.

⁹Trust in him at all times, my people;

Is 12:2

89:27

71:5

Gen
49:18

Is 26:4

• 61 The king of Israel has trouble and he says his prayer or someone says it for him. How much, perhaps, do we ask of God daily, for house, husband, children and the cat. God knows it is better not to hear everything but it pleases him that we want to call on him: in fact, he is all that we lack.

pour out your hearts before him;
God is our refuge.

¹⁰People of low rank are only a breath, important people, merely an illusion.
If weighed together they are nothing, even lighter than a puff of wind.

39:6-7;
Is 40:15

¹¹Do not set your heart on extortion, nor your hopes upon corrupt gain.
Even if wealth accumulates,
keep your heart detached.

Job 31:25;
Mt 19:22;
1Tim 6:17

¹²God has spoken one word, and I have heard two things:
that power belongs to God,

¹³and yours, O God, is also mercy:
you reward each one according to his deeds.

28:4;
Jer 17:10;
25:14;
32:19;
Ezk 18:30;
Hos 12:3;
Job 34:11;
Pro 24:12;
Sir 11:26;
16:12, 14;
Rom 2:6;
2Tim 4:14

PSALM 63 (62)

We become weary of everything. No human love is entirely satisfying, for the shadow of separation or of death is over it. Only the one who is source of living water and not a cracked cistern can satisfy human thirst. Saint Augustine has expressed it in a celebrated phrase: "You have created us for yourself, Lord, and our hearts are restless until they rest in you."

Our works, of course, count more for God than do our words, but in some way our desires are still more important. They mark an available space for God in us, the day he would wish to make us rich. Jesus and Mary in her Magnificat declare blessed those who hunger and thirst for God, and unhappy those who are satisfied.

Happy are we if at certain moments of our life, while meditating on the word of God, praying, or responding generously to God's call, we have had an experience of God through the feelings which manifest him: peace, joy, security, inner conviction, fullness... Then we can kindle in others the love and thirst for God.

My soul thirsts for you. Contrast between daily life, so often tedious, and the experience of God discovered in solitude.

²O God, you are my God, it is you I seek;
for you my body longs and my soul thirsts,
as a dry and weary land without water.

42:3;
143:6

³Thus have I gazed upon you in the sanctuary,

to see your power and your glory.

⁴Your love is better than life,
my lips will glorify you.

⁵I will bless you as long as I live, lift up my hands and call on your name.

145:2;
119:48

⁶As with the richest food my soul will feast;
my mouth will praise you with joyful lips.

36:9

⁷When I remember you on my bed
I think of you all through the night,

⁸for you have been my help;
I sing in the shadow of your wings.

17:8

⁹My soul clings to you,
your right hand upholds me.

Dt 13:5

¹⁰In vain they are after my life,
they will go down to the depths of the earth;

¹¹they will be delivered to the sword, and become the prey of jackals.

¹²The king will rejoice in God.
All who swear by God's name will boast:
"At last slanderers' tongues have been silenced."

21:2

PSALM 64 (63)Punishment for those who slander.

²Hear, O God, my voice as I plead, protect my life from the enemy's threat.

11:2;
Jer 9:2

³Hide me from the scheming of the wicked, from the designs of the evil-plotters, ⁴who sharpen their tongues like swords and aim bitter words like arrows, ⁵shooting at the innocent from cover, shooting suddenly without fear.

Is 29:15

⁶They invite each other to evil-doing, they conspire to lay snares, saying, "No one will see us, ⁷who will uncover our scheme?"

Who peers into man will uncover them.

⁸And now God fires his arrows at them and suddenly they are struck down. ⁹Their own tongue brought them to ruin and all who see them shake their heads.

¹⁰Everyone will stand in awe; they proclaim the works of God and ponder on his deeds.

¹¹The upright will rejoice and take refuge in the Lord; the upright of heart will glory in him.

5:12;
32:11

PSALM 65 (64)You visit the earth and fill it with abundance.

Thanksgiving for the harvest of a fertile year.

This material abundance the psalm invokes makes us think of another kind of abundance that God assured his friends. The Church also knows about spring rains, the summer harvest and songs of happiness.

That should not make us forget that God is at work through seasons and rainfall. If the majority of Christians and Church communities no longer dare to ask God for the weather needed for harvest, that is not a proof that our faith is now more spiritual but that we unfortunately feel at ease with a helpless God.

²Praise belongs to you, O God, in Zion; here people come to fulfill their vows.

³All mortals bring to you their evil deeds, to you, who answer prayers.

⁴Though our faults prevail over us, you forgive our sins.

78:38

⁵Blessed is the one you choose to approach you
and take to dwell in your courts.
In your house we are satisfied with the good things of your holy temple.

⁶With awesome deeds of righteousness you answer us, O God our savior, hope of all the ends of the earth and of distant islands.

⁷By your power you set up the mountains.

⁸By your strength the seas were calmed; you lull their roaring waves and the turmoil of the nations.

24:2;
119:90

89:10;
107:29;
Mt 8:26

⁹Those who dwell at the ends of the earth stand in awe of your marvelous deeds.

67:5

• 64 Everyone will stand in awe. We should not despise the fear of God, unless we belong to those perfect people who have become pure love of God. A child is not educated without correction. The great majority of humans are not angels, and they need to see that justice is effective. How many people have seen the justice of God rise in the eastern countries! Ask him to let it rise in our western world.

You make joyful the dawn and the coming of dusk.

¹⁰You water the land and care for it,
enriching it with natural resources.
God's stream is filled with water;
so you prepare the earth
to give us its fruits.

Hos
2:10;
Jl 2:19;
Ps 46:5

¹¹You drench the furrows in the land and level the ridges,
you soften the soil with showers and bless its crops.

Is 30:23

¹²You crown the year with your goodness;
abundance flows everywhere.

Am 9:13

¹³The deserts have become pasture land,
the hills are clothed with gladness, ¹⁴the meadows covered with flocks, the valleys decked with grain—
they shout and sing for joy.

96:12

PSALM 66 (65)

The psalmist knows that God has not only created nature but that he protects his people from a hostile world, and he recalls his saving wonders.

"We thank you, Lord God, Master of the universe, who are and who were, for you have begun your reign, making use of your invincible power. The nations raged but your wrath has come, the time to judge the dead and reward your servants the prophets, the saints and those who honor your Name—whether great or small—and destroy those who destroy the earth" (Rev 11:17-18).

Thanksgiving after a struggle. The leader of the community is at the head of the procession: he thanks God who has freed his people of their trials.

Shout with joy to God, all you on earth;
²sing to the glory of his name;
proclaim his glorious praise.

98:4

29:2

³Say to God, "How great are your deeds!
How formidable your power that makes your enemies cower!
⁴All the earth bows down to you,
making music in praise of you,
singing in honor of your name."

18:45

⁵Come and see God's wonders, his deeds awesome for humans.
⁶He has turned the sea into dry land, and the river was crossed on foot.
Let us, therefore, rejoice in him.

46:9

14—15;
Jos 3;
Ps 114:
3, 5

⁷He rules by his might forever, his eyes keeping watch on the peoples,
his arm holding the rebels in check.

⁸Praise our God, O nations,
let the sound of his praise be heard, ⁹for he has preserved us among the living and kept our feet from stumbling.

121:3

¹⁰Why did you test us, O God;
and refine us like silver?

26:2;
Zec 13:9

¹¹You let us fall into the snare;
you burdened us with disgrace.

¹²You allowed a nobody to rule over us, and we have gone through fire and water,
but you have brought us to safety at last.

¹³I will bring offerings to your house in fulfillment of my vows— 22:26

¹⁴those I made when assailed with troubles.

¹⁵I will offer holocausts of fatlings, 51:21 sending up smoke of burning rams, and a sacrifice of goats and bulls.

¹⁶All you who fear God, come and listen; 9:2
let me tell you what he has done.

¹⁷I cried aloud to him,
extolling him with my tongue.

¹⁸If I had nurtured wickedness in my heart, Jn 9:31
then he would not have heard.

¹⁹But God has listened; 17:1
he gave heed to my prayer.

²⁰May God be blessed!
He has not rejected my prayer;
nor withheld his love from me.

PSALM 67 (66)

All the nations will know you.

²May God be gracious and bless us; Num 6: 24-25
may he let his face shine upon us,

³that your way be known on earth Acts
28:28
and your salvation among the nations.

⁴May the peoples praise you, O God,
may all the peoples praise you!

⁵May the countries be glad and sing for joy, 98:9
for you rule the peoples with justice and guide the nations of the world.

⁶May the peoples praise you, O God,
may all the peoples praise you!

⁷The land has given its harvest; 85:13
God, our God, has blessed us.

⁸May God bless us and be revered, to the very ends of the earth.

PSALM 68 (67)

Triumphal procession of the God of victories.

To the eyes of the believer, the history of the Church is a new triumphal march. The risen Christ present through his Spirit leads her to heaven, where he has prepared a place for her.

Num 10:35	²Arise, O God, scatter your enemies; let your foes flee before you.	army!” ¹³The kings and their armies flee, yes, they flee, they flee!	48:5-6
32:11	³As smoke is blown by the wind, so blow them away; as wax melts before the fire, so let the wicked perish before you.	¹⁴A woman at home divides the spoils: wings of dove covered with silver, their pinions with shining gold.	Job 38: 22-23
15:21	⁴But let the righteous be glad and exult before God; let them sing to God and shout for joy.	¹⁵When the Lord routed the kings, snow fell on the Dark Mountain.	Am 4:1 78:68
146:9; 22:21-22	⁵Sing to God, sing praises to his name; open the way to him who rides upon the clouds; the Lord is his name. Rejoice in his presence.	¹⁶O mighty mountain of Bashan, high and rugged mountain, ¹⁷why look with envy upon the mountain where God chooses to reign, where the Lord will dwell forever?	Jos 5: 13-15
Hb 3:3-6; Heb 12:26; Dt 33:2; Jdg 5:5	⁶Father of orphans and protector of widows—such is our God in his holy dwelling.	¹⁸With myriads of powerful chariots, the Lord came from Sinai into his sanctuary.	Eph 4:8
	⁷He gives shelter to the homeless, sets the prisoners free, but keeps the rebels in their jail.	¹⁹He ascended the high mountain, leading captives in his train, taking people as tributes, even rebels, to his dwelling.
	⁸O God, when you went forth, when you led your people through the desert, ⁹the earth trembled, the heavens poured down rain, at the presence of God, the God of Israel.	²⁰Blessed be the Lord, God our savior, who daily bears our burdens!
	¹⁰Then you gave a rain of blessings to comfort your weary children.	²¹Ours is a God who saves; our Lord lets us escape from death.	Jdg 5:2
	¹¹Your people found a dwelling and in your mercy, O God, you provided for the needy.	²²But he crushes the heads of his enemies, the hairy crowns of the criminals.	2K 9:36
	¹²The Lord has dispatched messengers: “The Lord has shattered an	²³The Lord said, “I will bring them back from Bashan, back from the depths of the sea, ²⁴that you may bathe your feet in blood, and the tongues of your dogs may have their share of your foes.”

• 68 We have here a very ancient psalm, fairly picturesque, although in certain places the text may be obscure, having been badly preserved.

This psalm was sung in processions going up to Jerusalem. The faithful knew God was with them and the procession was like the entry of the triumphant God into his Temple.

This explains the images we find in this psalm. The Lord God has come from Sinai to the Holy Land, mounted on the clouds, or on the cherubim. He has been at the side of his people, and his miracles in the desert startled nature (vv.9-10). The enemy kings are defeated: this is a reference to the victory of Deborah at the torrent of Kishon (Jdg 4). The psalmist then remembers the choice of God’s mountain, Jerusalem (vv. 16-17). This choice causes jealousy in the great mountains.

All ends with a vision of the future full of hope. God who rides on the clouds will manifest himself to all the nations. In the liturgy, this psalm is used for the Ascension of the Lord.

²⁵I remember the procession of the King, of my God, as they came into the sanctuary: ²⁶the singers in front, the musicians last, between them maidens playing tambourines.

²⁷Praise God in the great congregation, praise the Lord in the feasts of Israel.

²⁸There in the lead is the least of them, the tribe of Benjamin; the princes of Judah in a body; the princes of Naphtali, and of Zebulun.

²⁹Summon your power, O God, with the strength you have wielded for us.

³⁰To your temple in Jerusalem, kings will come with gifts.

³¹Rebuke the beast that dwell in the reeds, and the herd of bulls. Humble them; let them bring gold and silver. Scatter the nations who delight in war.

³²Let wealth come from Egypt; let Ethiopia extend its hands to God.

³³Sing to God, O kingdoms of the world; sing praises to the Lord, ³⁴to him who rides the ancient heavens and speaks in the voice of thunder.

³⁵Proclaim the might of God; he is great in Israel, powerful in heavens.

³⁶Awesome in his sanctuary is the God of Israel. He gives his people power and strength.

Blessed be God!

18:11;
Dt 33:26

29:11

PSALM 69 (68)

The waters reach up to my neck. God's servant almost submerged by the waters of suffering and death calls to the Lord for help. Christ has applied to himself several terms of this prayer. After having been saved from death, he will be the happiness of all who seek God.

²Save me, O God, for the waters have come up to my neck.

³I am sunk in the miry depths where there is no foothold; I have come into deep waters, swept and engulfed by the flood.

⁴I am weary from calling for help; my throat is hoarse and parched. My eyes have grown dim looking for my God.

⁵More than the hairs of my head are those who hate me for no reason; mighty are those who attack me, many are my enemies without cause. What I did not steal I am forced to restore.

⁶Had I done wrong, O God, you would know it; my faults would not be hidden from you.

⁷Let me not bring disgrace to those who hope in you, O Lord God of hosts; may I cause no dishonor to those who seek you, O God of Israel —⁸since I am held in contempt for your sake, and shame has covered my face.

⁹I have become a stranger to my kindred, an alien to my mother's sons.

¹⁰Zeal for your house consumes me as fire and those who insult you insult me as well.

¹¹When I humbled myself with fasting, I was scorned for it.

6:7;
Jer 45:3;
Ps 119:
82, 123

35:19;
Jn 15:25

Job 19: 13-15

119:139;
Jn 2:17;
Rom 15:3

109:
24-25

• 69 The prayer of a believer who, no doubt, would be less a target of mockery and affront from his circle if he were not known as a Christian. Zeal for your house consumes me as fire and those who insult you insult me as well (v. 10). Let us not think too quickly that if we are persecuted, it is because we are believers; and yet Jesus said that must be. Humiliation—often justified—will accompany the graces and the glory which God gives his children (2 Cor 4:7).

¹²When I put on sackcloth, I was made a laughingstock.

¹³I have become the talk of those who sit at the gates, the topic of the drunkards' songs.

¹⁴But I pray to you, O Lord, at a time most favorable to you. In your great love, O God, answer me with your unfailing help.

¹⁵Rescue me, lest I sink in the mire; deliver me from the storm and the deep waters.

¹⁶Let not the flood engulf me, nor the deep suck me in, let not the pit close its mouth upon me.

¹⁷In your mercy, O Lord, give me a good answer; in your great compassion, turn to me.

¹⁸Hide not your face from your servant; answer me at once for I am in distress.

¹⁹Come and rescue me; set me free from my enemies.

²⁰You know the disgrace I suffer, and you know my oppressors and my humiliations.

²¹Dishonor has driven me to despair; I looked for sympathy and there was none, for comforters and there was no one.

²²They gave me poison for food and vinegar to drink.

²³May snares be set for them in their banquets and traps in their sacred feasts.

²⁴May their eyes grow dim, so that they will not see; may their loins be stricken with palsy.

²⁵Pour out your fury upon them, and let your burning anger overtake them.

²⁶Make their camp desolate; may no one dwell in their tents,

²⁷for they persecute the one you have wounded, and increased the pain of the one you have struck.

²⁸Charge them with crime upon crime, and do not acquit them.

²⁹Blot them out of the book of life, and do not enroll them among the upright.

³⁰But I myself am humbled and wounded; your salvation, O God, will lift me up.

³¹I will praise the name of God in song; I will glorify him with thanksgiving.

³²This will please the Lord more than an ox or a bull with horns and divided hoofs.

³³Let the lowly witness this and be glad. You who seek God, may your hearts be revived.

³⁴For the Lord hears the needy and does not despise those in captivity.

³⁵Let heaven and earth praise him, the seas and whatever moves in them.

³⁶For God will save Zion and rebuild the cities of Judah. His people shall dwell in the land and possess it;

³⁷the children of his servants shall inherit it, and those who love his name will dwell in it.

Acts 1:20

32:32;
Dn 12:1;
Phil 4:3;
Rev 3:522:27;
34:3102:17;
Is 44:26Is 65:9;
Ps 5:12

PSALM 70 (69)

The cry of the persecuted.

²Be pleased, O God, to rescue me! Make haste to help me!

³Let those who seek my life be put to shame and disgrace. Let those who want me destroyed be turned back in confusion.

• 70 This psalm is almost a repetition of Psalm 40:14-18; here, Lord is replaced by God. This is due to the fact that before they were included in the Bible, the psalms circulated in different collections.

⁴Let those who say, “Aha, Aha!”
to me feel consternation.

⁵May all who seek you be glad and rejoice in you. May all who love your saving power say evermore, “Great is the Lord!”

⁶But I am afflicted and needy;
come to me quickly, O God, my help and my Savior. O God, do not delay!

PSALM 71 (70)

Prayer of an elderly.

31:2-4

¹In you, O Lord, I seek refuge; let me not be disgraced.

²In your justice help me and deliver me, turn your ear to me and save me!

³Be my rock of refuge, a stronghold to give me safety, for you are my rock and my fortress.

⁴Rescue me, O my God, from the hand of the wicked, from the grasp of cruel and violent people.

⁵For you, O Lord, have been my hope, my trust, O God, from my youth.

⁶I have relied on you from birth:
from my mother’s womb you brought me forth. My praise is of you continually.

⁷I have become like a portent to many, but you are my strong refuge.

⁸My mouth is filled with your praise, announcing your glory day by day.

⁹Do not cast me off in my old age, do not desert me when my strength fails.

¹⁰For my enemies speak ill of me;
awaiting my death they set plans.

¹¹They say, “God has forsaken him; let us pursue and seize him, for no one will rescue him.”

22:12;

38:23;

40:14;

70:2

¹²O God, be not far from me; my God, make haste to help me!

40:15;

35:4

¹³Let my accusers be destroyed in shame; let those who seek my ruin be covered with disgrace and scorn.

¹⁴Then I may trust in you and praise you.

¹⁵My lips will proclaim your intervention and tell of your salvation all day, little though it is what I can understand.

¹⁶I will come to your strength, O
Lord, and announce your justice,
yours alone.

¹⁷You have taught me from my youth and until now I proclaim your marvels.

¹⁸When I grow old and gray, do not leave me, O God; give me time to declare your might, your power to all generations to come.

22:31

¹⁹Your justice, O God, reaches to heaven; you have done great things.
Who is like you, O God?

²⁰Many have been my hardships and misery, but once more you come to revive me; from the depths of the earth you will bring me up again.

²¹You will restore me and comfort me again.

²²I will praise you with the harp, for your faithfulness, O my God; I will sing your praise with the lyre, O Holy
One of Israel.

²³My lips will rejoice, and my soul, too, which you have rescued.

²⁴I will recall your intervention the whole day long, “Yes, those who sought to do me harm have been confused and put to shame.”

35:28

• 71 We shall have a better knowledge of the love of God at the end of our lives, and it will be easy for us to remember the wonders

he worked for us. May God grant us true consolation at the end of our present life.

PSALM 72 (71)

The ideal kingdom will never be a reality here below. The risen Lord will inaugurate it at the end of time. Faith, however, lets us discover the signs of the coming of the kingdom: humanity goes forward towards its unification; the desire for justice and peace for all grows stronger in every nation.

The King of Peace brings good news to the poor (Lk 4:18). He defends the rights of the lowly. He proclaims a new age when God will reconcile humanity; the weak have the right to live, and there is food for all.

Our world is far from the realization of the universal charter of human rights, and it is not for us to wait passively for this reign. God is so thoughtful towards humanity, created in his image, that he wishes humans to be associated with all his works, including the realization of the eternal city.

This will be, evidently, a gift of God, but not a simple gift as was the apparition of the universe. It will be the crowning of what humans have begun to do on earth.

Verse 8: from sea to sea, which means from the Mediterranean to the Dead Sea; and the river is the Euphrates in the north.

Verse 10: Tarshish is the Spain of Gibraltar, the end of the Mediterranean world to the west. Sheba and Seba represent Arabia and Ethiopia.

Praised be the Lord! (v. 18). Let us remember that our psalms were at first divided into five books and each of these five books ended with a “doxology”—a short formula of praise. See the same at the end of Psalms 41 and 89.

The King of Peace. Waiting for the King of Peace, he who will do justice for the humble. The expectation of universal peace after so much obstinacy in murdering one another.

O God, endow the king with your justice, the royal son with your righteousness.

89:15

²May he rule your people justly and defend the rights of the lowly.

³Let the mountains bring peace to the people, and the hills justice.

⁴He will defend the cause of the poor, deliver the children of the needy,
and crush the oppressor.

⁵He will endure as the sun and as the moon through all generations.

⁶He will be like rain falling on the fields, or showers watering the earth.

37:11

⁷Justice will flower in his days, and peace abound till the moon be no more.

⁸For he reigns from sea to sea,
from the River to the ends of the earth;

Zec 9:10;
Sir 44:21;
Jos 1:4

⁹his foes are crushed before him,
and his enemies lick the dust.

¹⁰The kings of Tarshish and the islands render him tribute,
the kings of Sheba and Seba bring gifts,

1K 10:1

¹¹all kings bow down to him,
and all nations serve him.

¹²He delivers the needy who call on him,
the afflicted with no one to help them.

Job
29:12

¹³His mercy is upon the weak and the poor, he saves the life of the poor.

¹⁴He rescues them from oppression and strife, for their life is precious to him.

¹⁵May he live long,
may gold from Sheba be given him.
May people always pray for him,
and blessings be invoked for him all day.

Mt 2:11

¹⁶May grain abound throughout the land, waving and rustling as in Lebanon;
may cities teem with people, as fields with grass.

¹⁷May his name endure forever;
may his name be as lasting as the sun.
All the races will boast about him,
and he will be blessed by all nations.

¹⁸ Praised be the Lord, God of Israel, who alone works so marvelously.
¹⁹ *Praised be his glorious name forever;
may the whole earth be filled with his glory!
Amen. Amen.*
²⁰ This concludes the prayers of David, son of Jesse.

PSALM 73 (72)

“Why have I been honest?” asks the father of a family who finds it difficult to live and feels insulted by the luxury of the dishonest rich.

How suddenly they are destroyed.
The wicked disappear while God leads his friends to share his glory.

Yet I am always with you. At this point the psalm comes to what is essential. It is not enough to say that the dishonest rich will have to pay and it is not always true. The experience of the presence of God here below compensates for whatever trials there are, and the psalmist, even if he dares not affirm that there is another life, is convinced that God, for his part, will not abandon him to death.

Why are the wicked successful? It is more a scandal than a temptation when the believer sees the wicked succeed in everything: the violent, the unscrupulous, those who have money and can corrupt, masters of deceit. “Wait for the end,” says the psalmist.

¹ Surely God is good to Israel,
I mean, to the clean of heart.

² But, as for me, I almost stumbled,
I nearly lost my foothold,

³ for I was envious of the arrogant, when I saw the wicked prosper.

37:1

⁴ For they suffer no pain;
they are strong and sound of body,
⁵ free from troubles common to mortals;
they are not stricken by human ills.

⁶ That is why pride becomes their necklace, and violence the robe that covers them.

⁷ Evil comes from their callous hearts,
boundless evil from their corrupt minds.

Job
15:27

⁸ They scoff and speak with malice, and they threaten arrogantly.

⁹ Their mouths defy the heavens and their tongues dictate on earth.

¹⁰ People, therefore, look up to them because they are well-watered.

¹¹ “Does God see?” they say.

10:11

“Has the Most High some knowledge of this?”

¹² Such are the wicked—always carefree while they rake in riches.

¹³ In vain have I kept my heart clean and washed my hands in innocence

26:6

¹⁴ if all day long I am stricken and punished every morning.”

¹⁵ Had I spoken like this,
I would not be acting as one of your children.

¹⁶ Although I tried to understand this,
it was difficult for me,

¹⁷ until I entered the secrets of God.

119:130

Then I perceived their approaching doom.

¹⁸You place them on slippery ground and make them fall into the pit.

¹⁹How suddenly they are destroyed, completely swept away in terror!

²⁰As one awakes from a nightmare,
so when you arise, O Lord,
you shake them off like a dream.

²¹When my heart was embittered, and my spirit distraught

²²it was folly, not wisdom;
I did not know you better than the beasts.

²³Yet I am always with you;
you hold my right hand,

²⁴you guide me on the way you chose and your Glory brings me along.

²⁵I have no one in heaven but you;
on earth I desire nothing but you.

²⁶My flesh and my heart waste away for you, O God, O my rock, you are mine forever.

²⁷Those who abandon you will perish;
you destroy all who are unfaithful to you.

²⁸But as for me, my joy is to be near God;
I have made the Lord my refuge, and I will proclaim all his works.

PSALM 74 (73)

Arise, Lord and defend your cause! What a mystery for our faith: the silence of God in face of our follies!

^{23:1} O God, have you rejected us forever? Why vent your anger on the sheep of your own fold?

^{Dt 32:9} ²Remember the people you have formed of old, the tribe you have redeemed as your inheritance. Remember Mount Zion where you once lived.

³Climb and visit these hopeless ruins, the enemy has ravaged everything in the sanctuary.

⁴Your foes have roared triumphantly in the holy place, and set up their banner of victory.

⁵Like lumbermen felling trees,
⁶ they smashed the carved paneling with hatchets, hammers and axes.

⁷They defiled your sanctuary and set aflame the dwelling place of your name.

⁸They said in fury, "Let us destroy

^{2K 25:9;}
^{Is 64:10}

• 74 The great trials and persecutions at the time of the Maccabees had been a challenge to God: could he not and should he not act? It is the same in those places where the Church is really persecuted. With verse 14, we find the ancient legends about creation: God split in two the sea monster, the wicked goddess Rahab, and thrown her to the sea turtles to be eaten.

them all.” They razed to the ground all the shrines of God in the land.

77:9; Lm 2:9
⁹With no signs and no prophets, no one can tell how long this will last.

¹⁰How long, O God, will the foe blaspheme? How long will the enemy revile your name?

¹¹Why do you hold back your right hand? Why keep your hand hidden?

¹²Are you not O God, my king since birth, you who bring salvation to the land?

¹³You split the sea in two by your power; you broke the monsters’ heads in the water; ¹⁴you crushed the heads of Leviathan and fed him to the dolphins.

17:1-7; Num 20: 2-13; Jos 3
¹⁵You opened up rivers and springs and dried up ever-flowing streams.

¹⁶You own the day as well as the night; you have set the course of the sun and the light.

¹⁷You fixed the earth’s borders, you created summer and winter.

¹⁸Remember, O Lord, how the lawless scoff at your name, a party of fools cast you off.

¹⁹Do not betray your turtledove to the beast, do not forget forever the life of your poor.

²⁰See how they keep your covenant in the dark caves of the land.

²¹Do not let the oppressed be put to shame; may the poor and needy praise your name.

²²Arise, O God, and defend your cause, see how the thoughtless laugh at you all day long.

²³Do not forget the clamor of your foes, the continuous uproar of your enemies.

PSALM 75 (74)

God will come to judge. Through the cross and resurrection of Christ, God has already judged the world; to the just he has given the assurance that they will triumph.

²We give you thanks, O God, we give thanks. Those who invoke your name will recount your wonderful deeds.

³“At a set time I will judge fairly.

⁴The earth wobbles with its inhabitants, but I will restore its foundations.

⁵To the proud I say, ‘Boast no more.’ And to the wicked, ‘Raise not your head. ⁶Do not lift yourself so high, do not insult God.’”

⁷God comes, though not from the east or the west, nor from the mountains or desert;

⁸God comes to judge, putting one down and lifting up another.

⁹In the hand of the Lord is a cup of spiced and foaming wine; he pours it out for the wicked to drain to the dregs.

¹⁰As for me, I will rejoice forever and sing praises to the God of Jacob.

¹¹He will break the power of the wicked, but the power of the virtuous will be exalted.

11:6;
 Rev
 14:10

PSALM 76 (75)

After a victory. God has defeated the kings who were attacking Jerusalem, the Holy City. This victory prefigures another when in the end, the humble will be liberated.

²God is now famous in Judah, in Israel his name is great.

³Salem is indeed his tent; he has made Zion his dwelling place.

Gen
 14:18;
 2S 6

⁴There he broke the flashing arrow, the shield and sword, the spear and bow.

⁵You are glorious and majestic, enthroned on everlasting mountains.

⁶The stouthearted lie despoiled, sleeping their last sleep,
not one able to lift a hand.

⁷At your rebuke, O God of Jacob, both rider and horse lay stunned.

⁸But you—how terrible you are!
Who can oppose the fury of your onslaught?

⁹You thundered judgment from the heavens;
while the earth trembled and lay still,

¹⁰as you, O God, arose to judge, to save all the humble of the earth.

¹¹Pagan nations will bring you praise, their survivors will celebrate your name.

¹²Make vows to the Lord, your God, and fulfill them; let the peoples bring offerings to the Fearsome One,

¹³who breaks the spirit of rulers,
and is formidable to the kings of the earth.

PSALM 77 (76)

I remember the deeds of the Lord. We tend to see the past as more wonderful than it actually was. The passage of time will let us see that God is just as present and active in our own day.

²I cry aloud to God—aloud that he may hear me.

³In the day of trouble I seek the Lord, and stretch out my hand untiringly, my soul refusing to be consoled.

⁴When I think of God I sigh; when
I meditate my spirit fails.

⁵You keep my eyes watchful; I am so troubled I cannot speak, ⁶I remember the days of old. I consider the years of long ago ⁷and the whole night my soul remains disturbed, my spirit wonders,

⁸“Will the Lord keep silent forever?
Will he never show his favor again?”

⁹Has he locked his love and ended his promise for all time?

¹⁰Is God forgetting his mercy? Has he in anger withheld his compassion?”

• 77 The Most High no longer acts as before. The psalmist meditates on God’s marvels in the past, and then returns to his own time. It would seem that God abandons his people in the midst of insoluble difficulties. The fact is that the past is seen more beautiful than it was, even in the Bible. Similarly, the actual crises in the Church could be seen as collapse, but the next generation will find that there has been a resurrection. Likewise, in the life of every believer, there are moments when God reveals himself and lifts us, and others when he asks for our fidelity even though he offers no encouragement.

¹¹This is what makes me distraught—that the Most High no longer acts as before.

¹²I remember the deeds of the Lord; I recall his marvels of old.

¹³I meditate on all your work, and consider your mighty deeds.

¹⁴Your way, O God, is most holy. Is there any god greater than you, our God?

¹⁵You alone are the God who works wonders, who has made known his power to the nations.

¹⁶With power you have redeemed your people, the descendants of Jacob and Joseph.

¹⁷When the waters saw you, O God, they were afraid, the depths of the sea trembled.

¹⁸The clouds poured down rain; the skies resounded with thunder; your arrows flashed from every side.

¹⁹Your thunder crashed in the midst of the whirlwind; your lightning lit up the world; the earth shook and trembled.

²⁰Your path led through the sea, your way through the great water, but your footprints were nowhere to be seen.

²¹You led your people as a flock by the hand of Moses and Aaron.

19:16;
Ps 97:4

PSALM 78 (77)

How many times did they tempt God! This psalm draws a lesson from the history of Israel: God's blessings and the ingratitude of his people.

Dt 32:1 Give heed, O my people, to my teaching; listen to the words of my mouth!

49:5; Mt 13:35 ²I will speak in parables, I will talk of old mysteries ³which we have heard and known, which our ancestors have told us.

44:2 ⁴We will not keep them hidden from our children; we will announce them to the coming generation: the glorious deeds of the Lord, his might and the wonders he has done.

Dt 4:9; 6:20-25 ⁵He issued decrees for Jacob and set up a law in Israel, which he commanded our ancestors to teach their children,

⁶so the next generation would learn and teach their own children.

⁷They would then put their trust in God, and not forget his deeds and his commands.

⁸And not be like their ancestors, stubborn and rebellious people, a people of inconstant heart whose spirit was fickle.

⁹Well-armed with bow, the Ephraimites took flight when the time came to do battle.

I remember the deeds of the Lord, I recall his marvels of old. We say with Paul: "Why will God, who has given his Son for us, not give us all with him?" Let us remember our past, the past of our nation and of our Christian community and let us search to discover God's patience and to see in our misfortunes the consequence of our sins. In particular, the division of Christians into so many churches should make us feel that we have not been faithful to the teaching of Christ.

• 78 Ephraim... Jacob... Joseph. We must not forget that for centuries, Israel was divided into two kingdoms. The strongest, the one in the north called the kingdom of Israel, considered itself the true heir of the ancestor Jacob-Israel, and the chief tribe was that of Ephraim, son of Joseph.

Doubtless the psalm was written in this kingdom before it disappeared. When it was again taken to the Temple of Jerusalem, in the kingdom of Judah, verses 67-72 were added. The first part showed the disobedience of the people in the north, and then ended with the kindness of God for those of the south—for us, of course, who are still here.

¹⁰It is because they did not keep God's covenant and refused to live by his law.

¹¹They forgot the marvels he had done, ¹²what their ancestors had seen in the land of Egypt, in the fields of Zoan.

¹⁴ ¹³He divided the sea and led them across; he made the water stand like a wall.

^{105:39; 13:21} ¹⁴By day he led them with a cloud, and by night with a fiery light.

^{Num 20: 2-13; 17:1-7 114:8} ¹⁵In the desert he split rocks to give them abundant drink.

¹⁶He made streams come out of a rock and caused water to flow like a river.

^{95:8-9; 16; Dt 6:16} ¹⁷Yet they sinned even more against him and rebelled against the Most High in the desert. ¹⁸They tested God, demanding the food they craved.

¹⁹They blasphemed against God, saying: "Can God spread a table in the desert?"

²⁰He made water flow out of the rock; can he also give his people bread or meat?"

²¹When the Lord heard this he was enraged; a fire raged against Jacob, his anger flared against Israel, ²²for they had no faith in God nor trust in his deliverance.

^{Jn 6:31} ²³Yet he commanded the skies above and opened the doors of heaven; ²⁴he rained down manna upon them and fed them with the heavenly grain.

^{1Cor 10:3} ²⁵They ate and had more than their fill of the bread of angels.

^{Num 11:31} ²⁶Then from heaven he stirred the east wind, and by his power let loose the south wind, ²⁷to rain down meat on them like dust.

Birds as thick as the sand on the seashore ²⁸fell inside their camp, lying all around their tents.

²⁹They ate till they were satisfied, for he had given them what they craved.

³⁰But even before they were finished, while the food was still in their mouths, ³¹God's anger rose against them; he slew the strongest among them and laid low the flower of Israel.

³²In spite of all this, they kept on sinning and did not believe, ³³so he swept away their days suddenly as a storm, and their years in terror. ³⁴When he slew them, they repented and sought him earnestly.

³⁵They remembered that God was their rock, the Most High, their redeemer.

³⁶But they flattered him with their mouths, they lied to him with their tongues, ³⁷while their hearts were unfaithful; they were untrue to his covenant.

³⁸Even then, in his compassion, he forgave their offenses and did not destroy them.

Many a time he restrained his anger and did not fully stir up his wrath.

³⁹He remembered that they were but flesh, a breeze that passes and never returns.

⁴⁰How often did they rebel against him in the wilderness, how often did they grieve him in the desert!

⁴¹Again and again they tested him, and provoked the Holy One of Israel.

⁴²They did not remember his power in redeeming them from the oppressor; ⁴³neither his marvels shown in Egypt nor his wonders in the fields of Zoan, ⁴⁴when he turned the rivers to blood and the oppressors had nothing to drink.

⁴⁵He sent swarms of flies that devoured them, frogs that devastated them.

⁴⁶He gave their crops to the caterpillar and their produce to the locust.

⁴⁷He destroyed their vines with hail and their sycamores with frost.

⁴⁸He struck their herds with plague and their flocks with thunderbolts.

⁴⁹He unleashed his fury against them, his wrath, indignation and strife—a band of destroying angels.

⁵⁰Giving vent to his anger, he did not spare them from death, but gave them over to the plague.

^{105:36} ⁵¹He struck down Egypt's firstborn, manhood's firstfruits in the tents of Ham.

⁵²Then he led forth his people like a flock, and guided them like sheep through the desert.

⁵³He led them safely, they did not fear, but the sea engulfed their enemies.

⁵⁴He brought them to his holy land, to the mountain his right hand had won.

^{Jos 23:4} ⁵⁵He drove out peoples before them and gave them the land as their inheritance; they pitched their tents in it.

⁵⁶But they challenged and rebelled against God the Most High, and disobeyed his decrees.

⁵⁷They were unfaithful like their ancestors, deceitful and crooked as a twisted bow.

⁵⁸They angered him with their high places; they aroused his jealousy with their idols.

⁵⁹Filled with wrath, God rejected Israel.

⁶⁰He abandoned his dwelling at Shiloh, the tent where he dwelt among humans.

⁶¹He led his glory into captivity, his ark into the hand of the enemy.

⁶²He gave his people over to the sword, so furious was he at his inheritance.

⁶³Fire devoured their young men; their maidens were deprived of wedding songs.

⁶⁴As their priests fell by the sword, no lament was heard from their widows.

⁶⁵Then the Lord awoke, shouting, as from sleep induced by wine; ⁶⁶he struck his enemies on their back and put them to everlasting shame.

⁶⁷He rejected the house of Joseph, and did not choose the tribe of Ephraim, ⁶⁸but the tribe of Judah and Zion, his beloved mountain.

⁶⁹He built his sanctuary like heaven, like the earth he founded forever.

⁷⁰He chose David his servant and took him from the sheepfolds; ⁷¹from tending the sheep and their young, he brought him to shepherd Jacob, the people of Israel, his inheritance.

⁷²And with upright heart David pastured them; with skillful hands he led them.

1S 4:
10-11

87:2

1S
13:14;
16:11-131Mac
7:17

PSALM 79 (78)

How long will your anger last? Let God do justice to his people. The Lord owes us nothing since we are sinners.

^{74;}
^{2K 25:9} O God, the pagans have invaded your inheritance; they have defiled your holy temple and reduced Jerusalem to rubble.

^{Jer 19:7;} ²They have given your servants' corpses to the birds, and the flesh of your saints to the beasts of the earth.

³They have poured out the blood of your faithful like water around

• 79 Here again is a psalm born of the religious persecution at the time of the Maccabees. The Bible liked to consider the psalms as prayers composed by David. When the apostles quote a psalm, they say: "God said through the mouth of David..." The psalms Jerusalem, and there was no one to bury them.

44:14 ⁴Mocked and reviled by those around us, we are scorned by our neighbors.

89:47 ⁵How long will this last, O Lord? Will you be angry forever? Will your wrath always burn to avenge your rights?

Jer 10:25; 1The 4:5 ⁶Pour out your anger on the nations that do not acknowledge you; on the kingdoms that do not call on your name.

⁷For they have devoured Jacob and laid waste his homeland.

⁸Do not remember against us the sins of our fathers.

Let your compassion hurry to us, for we have been brought very low.

⁹Help us, God, our savior, for the glory of your name; forgive us for the sake of your name.

¹⁰Give not the nations a chance to say, "Where is their God?" Before our eyes let them know that you avenge the blood of your servants.

¹¹Listen to the groans of the prisoners; by the strength of your arm, deliver those doomed to die.

¹²Return our neighbors sevenfold, O Lord, the taunts with which they have taunted you.

¹³Then we, your people, the flock of your pasture, will thank you forever. We will recount your praise from generation to generation.

42:4;
Jl 2:17

100:3

PSALM 80 (79)

Let your face shine on us! God is our shepherd: has he forgotten his people? When the Church is discredited, the salvation of Christ seems to be a failure. Lord bring us back and convert us!

18:11; 1S 4:4 ²Listen, O shepherd of Israel, you who lead Joseph like a flock, you who sit enthroned between the cherubim.

³Shine forth before Ephraim, Benjamin and Manasseh. Stir up your might and come to save us.

⁴Restore us, O God of hosts; make your face shine upon us, that we may be saved.

⁵O Lord of hosts, how long will your anger burn against the prayers of your people?

⁶You have fed them with the bread of woe, and have given them tears to drink in their sorrow.

⁷You have made us the scorn of our neighbors and the laughingstock of our oppressors.

⁸Restore us, O God of hosts; make your face shine upon us, that we may be saved.

⁹You had a vine you brought from Egypt. You drove nations out, to plant it in their land.

¹⁰On the ground that you cleared, it took root, and filled the land.

¹¹Its shade covered the mountains, its shoots went through the mighty cedars, ¹²its branches reached out to the sea and its shoots to the River.

Lk 23:35

Is 5:1

72:8

are in fact the prayer of a people that lived and suffered.

This psalm reminds God that his honor is at stake: what does he think? Are we ready to accept that the glory of God includes failure and at times, humiliations for his people?

• 80 This psalm refers to the years of trial for the kingdom of Israel at the time of Elisha. Ephraim, Benjamin and Manasseh were the more important tribes of the northern kingdom. In the former century, it extended from the Mediterranean to the Euphrates (v. 12).

Verse 18 refers to the King.

Jer 12:
7-13

¹³Why, then, have you broken down its walls, so that all who pass by pluck its fruits?

¹⁴The beasts of the forest ravage it and all creatures of the field feed on it.

¹⁵Turn again, O Lord of hosts, look down from heaven and see; care for this vine, ¹⁶and protect the stock your hand has planted.

¹⁷Let those who burned it down perish at your rebuke.

¹⁸But lay your hand on your instrument, on the son of man whom you make strong for yourself.

¹⁹Then we will never turn away from you; give us life, and we will call on your name.

²⁰Restore us, O Lord, God of hosts; make your face shine on us, that we may be saved.

PSALM 81 (80)

Open your mouth and I shall fill it. “If my people would listen to me, I would subdue their enemies.” We lack dynamism to evangelize and change the world: this is because we still have idols even in our apostolate planning.

²Sing joyfully to God, our strength; acclaim aloud the God of Jacob.

³Start the music, strike the timbrel, play melodies on the harp and lyre.

⁴Sound the trumpet at the new moon, on our feast day when the moon is full.

⁵This is a decree for Israel, an ordinance of the God of Jacob, ⁶a statute he wrote for Joseph when he went out of Egypt.

They heard a voice they did not know: “Open wide your mouth and I will fill it, ⁷I relieved your shoulder from burden; I freed your hands.

⁸You called in distress, and I saved you; unseen, I answered you in thunder; I tested you at the waters of Meribah.

⁹Hear, my people, as I admonish you. If only you would listen, O Israel!

¹⁰There shall be no strange god among you, you shall not worship any alien god, ¹¹for I the Lord am your God, who led you forth from the land of Egypt.

¹²But my people did not listen; Israel did not obey.

¹³So I gave them over to their stubbornness and they followed their own counsels.

¹⁴If only my people would listen, if only Israel would walk in my ways,

23:14

95:8;
17;
Num 20

20:1

Jer 3:17;
7:24

¹⁵I would quickly subdue their adversaries and turn my hand against their enemies.
¹⁶Those who hate the Lord would cringe
before him,
and their panic would last forever.
¹⁷I would feed you with the finest wheat and satisfy you with honey from the rock.”

Dt 32:13

PSALM 82 (81)

God assembles the gods of the world, those who, at the head of the nations share the task of supreme judge. God reminds them of the sacred rights of the people. The rulers are also mortals and will have to render an account.

All the earth's foundations are shaken. The Bible does not separate the physical from the moral world. The evil of humans destroys the order of nature and brings about disasters.

Sons of the Most High (v. 6). In many places the biblical text mentions the “sons of God.” This hebraic expression could be translated “divine beings” and most of the time refers to angels. The rulers have been called to share the dignity of those heavenly spirits but God’s judgment may deprive them of it.

God judges the judges.

God presides in the divine council;
he gives judgment among the gods:

89:6;
4:16

²“How long will you judge unjustly and show partiality to the wicked?”

Mic 3

³Give justice to the weak and the orphan;
defend the poor and the oppressed.

Jer 5:28;
Job
29:12

⁴Rescue the helpless and the needy;
deliver them from the hand of the wicked.”

23:6

⁵Without knowledge and understanding, they walk about in darkness;
all the earth’s foundations are shaken.

⁶“You are gods,” I said,
“you are all sons of the Most High.”

Jn 10:34

⁷But now you will die like the others;
you will all fall like any mortal.

⁸Rise, O God, judge the earth,
you who guide all the nations.

PSALM 83 (82)Everyone is against us.

²Do not be silent, O God, hold not your peace, be not unmoved!

44:24;
50:3;
109:1

³See how your enemies are astir;
those who hate you rear their heads.

Jer
11:19

⁴Craftily they plot against your people, they conspire against those you protect.

⁵They say, “Let us finish them as a nation. Let the name of Israel be forgotten!”

⁶With one heart they devise a scheme and form an alliance against you: ⁷the people of Edom and the Ishmaelites, Moab and the progeny of Hagar,

⁸Gebal and Ammon and Amalek,
Philistia, with the people of Tyre.

Jos 13:2

⁹Those from Sur are in league with them and lend support to Lot’s descendants.

¹⁰Deal with them as you did with Midian, with Sisera and Yabin at the river Kishon;

Jdg 6–8

¹¹they perished at Endor and became dung for the ground.

¹²Make their nobles like Oreb and

Jdg
7:25;
8:21

• 83 Verses 10-13 refer to the wars of liberation of Israel at the time of the Judges (chaps. 4 and 7).

Zeeb, all their chiefs like Zebah and Zalmunna, ¹³who said, “Let us seize the pasture lands of God.”

¹⁴O my God, make them like leaves caught in a whirlwind, like chaff helpless before the wind.

¹⁵As fire consumes the forest, as flames set the mountains ablaze, ¹⁶drive them out with your tempest and terrify them with your storm.

¹⁷Cover their faces with shame, O Lord, that they may seek your name.

¹⁸Let them be dismayed and abashed forever; let them perish in disgrace.

¹⁹Let them know that you alone, whose name is the Lord, are the Most High over all the world.

97-9

PSALM 84 (83)

Every believer is a pilgrim in search of the eternal homeland. Sometimes we feel the need to join the great marches and pilgrimages when people both relive and reaffirm their faith.

Happy are those who live in your house: the priests and Levites in charge of celebrations and music.

I would rather be left at the threshold... Better to sleep outdoor in the courtyard of the Temple than ask a citizen of Jerusalem for lodging—one who might be arrogant and unable to share the joy of a pilgrim.

I want to see the living God. The joy of the pilgrimage and of going up to the Temple.

²How lovely are your rooms,
O Lord of hosts!

³My soul yearns, pines,
for the courts of the Lord.
My heart and my flesh cry out for the living God.

42:3, 9;
122:1

⁴Even the sparrow finds a home, and the swallow a nest
where she may lay her young,
at your altars, O Lord of hosts,
my King and my God!

5:3

⁵Happy are those who live in your house, continually singing your praise!

⁶Happy the pilgrims whom you strengthen,
to make the ascent to you.

⁷As they pass through the Valley, they make it a place of springs,
the early rain covers it with blessings.

⁸They go from strength to strength till they appear before God in Zion.

Ezk
34:26;
Jl 2:23

⁹O Lord of hosts, hear my prayer;
give ear, O God of Jacob!

¹⁰Look upon our shield, O God;
look upon the face of your anointed!

¹¹One day in your courts is better than a thousand elsewhere.
I would rather be left at the threshold in the house of my God than to dwell in the tents of the wicked.

¹²For the Lord God is a sun and a shield;
he bestows favor and glory.

The Lord withholds no good thing from those who walk in uprightness.
¹³O Lord of hosts,
blessed are those who trust in you.

PSALM 85 (84)

This psalm, written when the Israelites had returned from captivity in Babylon adopts the most universal terms of the human vocabulary: liberty, life, joy, salvation, love, justice, peace, happiness.

This return of the exiled Jews, however, was only one step towards authentic liberation. Nothing is definitive and each phase in the realization of God's plan leads us to another stage. God's people are forever being called to go further ahead. Even the actual reign of the risen Christ and the work of salvation accomplished by the Church are only an image of the eternal kingdom.

God loves our earth. When we feel troubled and discouraged by so much that is ugly around us, let us come back to the declaration of this psalm: You have favored your land, O Lord; justice bends down from heaven; our land will yield its fruit.

Salvation comes from God, but it is brought by a man, Christ, freely welcomed by a woman in the name of humanity. With the incarnation, it is not possible to believe in God without believing in humankind.

Justice and peace have embraced. The salvation that God brings us is a marriage between heaven and earth, a shared project between God and humans. Christ is simultaneously the plenitude of God and the fruit of the earth.

²You have favored your land, O Lord;
you have brought back the exiles of Jacob.
³You have forgiven the sin of your people;
you have pardoned their offenses.

126;
53:7

⁴You have withdrawn your wrath and turned from your burning rage.

⁵But restore us, God our savior;
put away altogether your indignation.

80:4

⁶Will your anger be ever with us, carried over to all generations?

⁷Will you not give us life anew, that your people may rejoice in you?

⁸Show us, O Lord, your unfailing love and grant us your saving help.

⁹Would that I hear God's proclamation, that he promise peace to his people,
his saints—lest they come back to their folly.

¹⁰Yet his salvation is near to those who fear
him,
and his Glory will dwell in our land.

Is 51:5;
24:16;
Ezk
11:23;
43:2;
Jn 1:14

¹¹Love and faithfulness have met;
righteousness and peace have embraced.

89:15;
97:2

¹²Faithfulness will reach up from the earth while justice bends down from heaven.

Is 45:8

¹³The Lord will give what is good,
and our land will yield its fruit.

67:7;
Zec 8:12

¹⁴Justice will go before him,
and peace will follow along his path.

Is 58:8;
Zec 9:10

• 86 Here is a very tranquil psalm, without cursing and cries of anguish: the son of your servant has enemies, of course, but in the setting of a small town. But his sorrow is no less great because of that.

We add here some verses from the Imitation of Christ: Christ calls us to share his anguish.

Many are in love with my kingdom, but few are ready to carry my cross.

Many want my consolation, but few want my tribulations. I find many companions at my table, but few to share my privations.

Everyone would like to rejoice with me, but few wish to suffer with me.

PSALM 86 (87)

Prayer in affliction. The servant of God, worn out by trials and anguished by death, implores the help of the One who is pure goodness.

40:18 Listen, O Lord, and answer me, for I am afflicted and needy.

25:20 ²Preserve my life for I am God-fearing; save your servant who trusts in you.

³Have mercy on me, O Lord, for I cry to you all day.

25:1 ⁴Bring joy to the soul of your servant, for you, O Lord, I lift up my soul.

⁵You are good and forgiving, O
Lord, caring for those who call on you.

5:2-3 ⁶Listen, O Lord, to my prayer, hear the voice of my pleading.

77:3 ⁷I call on you in the time of my trouble for you will answer me.

15:11;
Ps 35:10;
89:9;
Jer 10:6
Rev
15:4;
Ps 22:28
⁸None is like you among the gods, your works are beyond compare.

⁹All the nations you have made will come; they will worship before you, O Lord, and bring glory to your name.

¹⁰For you are great, and wonderful are your deeds; you alone are God.

¹¹Teach me, O Lord, how to walk in your truth, that my heart may fear
your name.

¹²I give thanks to you, O Lord my God; I will glorify your name forever, ¹³for great has been your love for me, you have saved me from the grave.

¹⁴O God, the insolent are against me; a band of cut-throats, evildoers who do not hold you in reverence.

¹⁵But you, O Lord God, are merciful, slow to anger, loving and faithful.

¹⁶Turn to me, take pity on me;
give your strength to your servant,
and save the child of your handmaid.

¹⁷Give me a sign of your grace, that my foes may see to their disgrace, that you, O Lord, are my help and comfort.

26:3;
27:11

88:7

54:5

34:6;
Ps 103:8;
145:825:16;
116:16PSALM 87 (86)

Here so-and-so was born. God passes in review the people of all races and inscribes them in his book as true children of his holy city. But of Zion it shall be said: She is the mother. The new Jerusalem is the Church, the mother of all. Mary, mother of the Savior, is the image of the Church; she is also the mother of all the faithful.

We should not say that the people of every religion belong to the Church without knowing it. Only at the end of God loves the gates of Zion. The psalmist recalls that God has chosen Jerusalem–Zion as the capital of his people and the mother of the nations.

He himself has built it in his holy mountain;
²the Lord prefers the gates of Zion to all of Jacob's towns.

³Great things have been foretold of you, O city of God:

⁴Between friends we speak of Egypt and Babylon;
and also Philistia, Tyre, Ethiopia:
“Here so-and-so was born.”

48:2

Many follow me to the breaking of bread,
but few to drinking the cup of my passion.

Many venerate my miracles, but few are devoted to the ignominy of my cross.

Many love me as long as they are without trials.

Many praise me and bless me as long as they receive favors.

But if I hide and leave them for a while, they complain and sink into depression.

On the other hand, those who love me for my own sake and not because of a particular interest, bless me in time of trial and anguish of heart, just as in their time of great joy.

history, the Church will be at the center of all the problems of humanity. It is only in the after-Church that all will take part in the song and dance.

⁵But of Zion it shall be said,
 “More and more are being born in her.”
 For the Most High himself has founded her.

⁶And the Lord notes in the people’s register:
 “All these were also born in Zion.”

Is 4:3;
 Ezk 13:9

⁷And all will dance and sing
 joyfully for you.

PSALM 88 (87)

Prayer of the sick person close to death. It would seem that knowing Christ, we cannot sink into despair. There are, however, days when heaven is closed for us as it was for Jesus in his agony.

²O Lord, my God, I call for help by day; before you I cry out by night.

³May my prayer come to you; incline your ear to my cry for help.

⁴My soul is deeply troubled; my life draws near to the grave. ⁵I am like those without strength.

Counted among those going down into the pit—⁶I lie forsaken among the dead, like those lying in the grave, like those you remember no more, cut off from your care.

⁷You have plunged me into the darkest depths of the pit.

⁸With your wrath heavy upon me, you have battered me with all your waves.

38:12

⁹You have taken away my closest friends; you have made me repulsive to them. I cannot escape from my confinement.

¹⁰My eyes have grown dim with grief; spreading out my hands to you, I call upon you every day, O Lord.

¹¹Are your wonders meant for the dead? Will ghosts rise to give you thanks?

6:6;
 Is 38:18

¹²Is your love and faithfulness remembered among those gone to the netherworld?

¹³Are your wonders known in the dark, your salvation in the land of oblivion?

¹⁴But to you, O Lord, I cry for help; every morning I pray to you.

¹⁵O Lord, why do you reject me, why do you hide your face?

¹⁶Afflicted and close to death from youth, I have suffered terrors and helplessness.

¹⁷Your wrath has swept over me; your assaults have destroyed me.

¹⁸Now they surround me like a flood; and completely engulf me.

¹⁹Bereft of loved ones and now alone, only darkness is my companion.

Job
 19:13

PSALM 89 (90)

Your love and your fidelity. God is faithful: he directs history and he guides our lives according to his promises which never fail.

²I will sing forever, O Lord, of your love and proclaim your faithfulness from age to age.

³I will declare how steadfast is your love, how firm your faithfulness.

⁴You said, “I have made a cove-

• 88 A psalm that seems quite pessimistic. Yet the sick person has not lost confidence. The vision he has of the “beyond death,” that which the Jews themselves had up to a short time before the coming of Jesus, was hardly encouraging (vv. 5, 10, 12).

nant with David, my chosen one; I have made a pledge to my servant.

2S 7: 8-16; 23:5; Acts 2:30
 5 I establish his descendants forever; I build his throne for all generations.”

6 The heavens proclaim your wonders, O Lord; the assembly of the holy ones recalls your faithfulness.

7 Who in the skies can compare with the Lord; who of the heaven-born is like him?

8 A God feared in the council of the holy ones, awesome to those who approach him.

9 O Lord God of hosts, who is like you, clothed in might and faithfulness?

65:8 74:14; Job 26:12
 10 You reign over the surging sea; you calm its raging waves. 11 You split Rahab like a carcass; with your strong arm you routed your foes.

24:1 12 Yours are the heavens and the earth; you founded the world and everything in it.

13 You created the north and the south—Tabor and Hermon rejoice at your name.

14 You have a powerful arm, mighty and exalted is your right hand!

97:2 15 Justice and righteousness are the foundation of your throne; love and faithfulness go before you.

16 Blessed is the people who know your praise. They walk in the light of your face. 17 They celebrate all day your name and your protection lifts them up.

18 You give us glory and power; and your favor gives us victory.

19 Our king is in the hands of the Lord; the God of Israel is our shield.

2S 7:8 20 In the past you spoke in a vision; you said of your faithful servant:

“I have set the crown upon a mighty one; on one chosen from the people.

21 I have found David my servant, and with my holy oil I have anointed him.

22 My hand will be ever with him and my arm will sustain him, 23 no enemy shall outwit him nor the wicked oppress him.

24 I will crush his foes before him and strike down his adversaries.

25 My faithfulness and love will be with him, and by my help he will be strong.

26 I will set his hand over the sea, his right hand over the rivers.

27 He will call on me, ‘You are my Father, my God, my Rock, my Savior.’

28 I will make him the firstborn, the highest of the kings of the earth.

29 I will keep my covenant firm forever, and my love for him will endure.

30 His dynasty will last forever, and his throne as long as the heavens.

31 If his sons forsake my law and fail to follow my decrees, 32 if they violate my statutes and do not keep my commandments,

33 I will punish their crime with the rod and their offenses with the scourge; 34 yet I will not withdraw my love from him, nor will I withdraw my faithfulness.

35 I will be true to my promises and not break my covenant. 36 Did I not swear by my holiness? I will not lie to David.

1S 16; Acts 13:22

2S 7:14; Ps 2:7; 18:3

Rev 1:5

2S 7:14

• 89 Love and fidelity are the theme of this psalm. These two dominant qualities of God are emphasized throughout the Bible. Love or grace, goodness, tenderness, mercy; fidelity or loyalty, truth. The day after the great defeats, the author of this psalm remembers God’s promises: Where is the Savior-King who is to give glory and prosperity to his people? Similarly today, the believer sometimes asks: Lord, what has happened to your promises? Why is there no bread for your children? Where is your justice? Why does your Church not live the Gospel?

³⁷His dynasty will last forever, and his throne endure as the sun before me.

Rev 1:5 ³⁸It will shine forever like the moon, the unfailing watch of heavens.”

³⁹But now you have rejected, disowned and raged at your anointed.

⁴⁰You have disregarded your covenant and cast off the crown of your servant.

80:13-14 ⁴¹You have destroyed his walls and reduced his strongholds to rubble. ⁴²The victim of despoilers, he has become the scorn of his neighbors.

⁴³You have exalted the right hand of his foes; you have made his enemies rejoice.

⁴⁴You have turned the edge of his sword, and have not stood by him in battle. ⁴⁵You have wrenched the scepter from his hand and flung his throne to the ground.

⁴⁶You have shortened the time of his splendor and covered him with shame.

⁴⁷How long, O Lord, will you hide? How long will anger burn like a fire?

⁴⁸Consider how short my life is, how shadowy the human destiny.

⁴⁹What mortal can live and never see death? Who will escape from the netherworld?

⁵⁰O Lord, where is your former great love, the faithfulness you pledged to David?

⁵¹Remember, O Lord, how your servant is despised, how I suffer the scorn of the peoples, ⁵²the taunts with which your enemies have mocked every step of your anointed.

⁵³*Blessed be the Lord forever! Amen, Amen.*

79:5

41:14;
72:19;
106:48;
Lk 1:68

PSALM 90 (89)

Our days pass like a sigh. Our earthly life is short and frail before the face of the eternal God. He is our refuge and can give meaning to our existence. Let us ask him to fill it with wisdom, which is to love him, praise him and serve him.

¹Lord, you have been our refuge through all generations.

²Before the mountains were formed, before you made the earth and the world, from eternity to eternity—you are God.

Gen 3:19 ³You turn humans back to dust, saying, “Return, O mortals!”

2P 3:8 ⁴A thousand years in your sight are like a day that has passed, or like a watch in the night.

⁵You sow them in their time, at dawn they peep out. ⁶In the morning they blossom, but the flower fades and withers in the evening.

⁷Your fury consumes us like fire, and we are helpless before your anger.

⁸Our evils lie before you who scrutinize our hidden sins.

⁹Our days pass away in your wrath; our years are gone in no time.

¹⁰Seventy years to our life or eighty if we are strong, yet most of them are sorrow and trouble; speeding by, they sweep us along.

¹¹Who knows the extent of your anger? Who has seen the end of your wrath?

¹²So make us know the shortness of our life, that we may gain wisdom of heart.

¹³How long will you be angry, O Lord? Have mercy on your servant.

¹⁴Fill us at daybreak with your goodness, that we may be glad all our days.

¹⁵Make joy endure as the misery did, and the years in which we were afflicted.

Ecl 12:
1-7

¹⁶Let your work be seen by your servants and your glorious power by their children.

¹⁷May the sweetness of the Lord be upon us; may he prosper the work of our hands.

PSALM 91 (90)

The prayer of the pilgrims who pass the night in the patios of the Temple.
They are the guests of the Lord and they count on his continual protection.

Night prayer. A prayer that the believer prays with assurance that God protects those who trust in him.

¹You who dwell in the shelter of the Most High,

who rest in the shadow of the Almighty,

²say to the Lord, "My stronghold, my refuge, my God in whom I trust!"

³He will rescue you from the fowler's snare and from the deadly pestilence.

18:3

⁴He will cover you with his pinions and give you refuge under his wings.

Dt 32:11;
Ps 17:8;
Ru 2:12;
Mt 23:37

⁵You shall not fear the terror of the night nor the arrows that fly by day,

Song 3:8;
Pro 3:25

⁶nor the pestilence that stalks by night, and the plague that destroys at noonday.

Dt 32:24;
Jer 15:8;
Sir 34:16

⁷A thousand may fall at your side, ten thousand at your right hand,
but nothing shall befall you,
his faithfulness is your shield.

⁸Open your eyes:
you will see how the wicked are repaid.

⁹If you have made the Lord your refuge,
the Most High your stronghold,

¹⁰no harm will come upon you,
no disaster will draw near your home.

Pro
12:21;
Dt 7:15

¹¹For he will command his angels to guard you in all your ways.

Mt 4:6;
Heb 1:14

¹²They will lift you up with their hands
so that your foot will not hit a stone.

Pro 3:23

¹³You will tread on wildcats and snakes and trample the lion and the dragon.

Is 11:8;
Job
5:22;
Lk 10:19

¹⁴"Because they cling to me, I will rescue them," says the Lord.

9:11

"I will protect those who know my name.

¹⁵When they call to me, I will answer;
in time of trouble I will be with them;
I will deliver and honor them.

Jer 33:3;
Is 43:2

¹⁶I will satisfy them with long life and show them my salvation."

Dt 4:40;
Pro 32:3;
10:27;
Job 5:26;
Ps 50:23;
23:6

PSALM 92 (91)

The martyr St. Polycarp said to his judges: "How could I curse Christ? For eighty years he has always been good to me." The saints are those who leave the most lasting impact on human history.

The just will rise like a palm tree. Enthusiasm of the one whose life is built on faithfulness. He has seen the fall of many fortunes and much glory.

²It is good to give thanks to the Lord, 33:1-3 to sing praise to your name, O Most High,

³to proclaim your grace in the morning, to declare your faithfulness at night,

⁴accompanied by music from the lyre and the melody of lute and harp.

⁵For you make me glad with your deeds, O Lord, and I sing for joy at the work of your hands.

⁶How great are your works,

O Lord, how deep your thoughts!

8;
139:6;
139:
17-18;
Wis 13:5

⁷The senseless will not know, nor will the stupid understand them.

Wis
13:1;
Ps 73:22

⁸For though the wicked prosper and evildoers flourish like grass, they are doomed to vanish for good.

37:35-36

⁹But you, O Lord, are exalted forever.

¹⁰Time will come when your enemies will perish, evildoers will be scattered. 68:2-3

¹¹You have made me stronger than the wild ox; 91:8

you have poured fresh oil on me.

¹²I look down on my enemies; I take for granted their doom.

¹³The virtuous will flourish like palm trees, they will thrive like the cedars of Lebanon. 1:3

¹⁴Planted in the house of the Lord, they will prosper in the courts of our God. 52:10

¹⁵In old age they will still bear fruit they will stay fresh and green,

¹⁶to proclaim that the Lord is upright, "He is my Rock," they say, "he never fails." Dt 32:4

PSALM 93 (92)

Robed in splendor, the Lord rules. God rules as the Creator of the universe. God reigns in the person of the risen Christ who already redirects the powers of history.

¹The Lord reigns, robed in majesty; the Lord is girded with strength. The world now is firm, it cannot be moved.

47:8;
96:10;
97:1;
99:1;
Is 52:7;
Ps 104:5

²Your throne stands from long ago, O Lord, from all eternity you are. 90:2

³The floods have lifted up, O Lord, the floods have lifted up their roaring, the floods have lifted up their pounding waves.

18:5

⁴Mightier than the thunder of great waters, mightier than the breakers of the sea,
the Lord on high is mighty!

29:10

⁵Your decrees can be trusted;
holiness dwells in your house day after day without end, O Lord.

1K 9:3

PSALM 94 (93)

Against evil rulers. We believe in the redemption, let us also believe in the judgment. But before any judgment, God is the one who cares for all.

¹O Lord God, vengeance is yours;
O God who avenges, show yourself!

²Judge of the world, repay the proud with what they deserve.

³How long shall the wicked, O
Lord, how long shall the wicked exult?

⁴Pouring out words of arrogance, evildoers make a show of their insolence.

⁵They crush your people, O Lord, they oppress your inheritance.

⁶They murder the widow and the lonely, they massacre the helpless;

⁷"The Lord does not see," they say,
"the God of Jacob does not care."

⁸Remember this, you stupid people, when will you understand, you fools!

⁹He who made the ear, will he not hear? He who formed the eye, will he not see?

¹⁰He who rebukes nations, will he not punish them?

¹¹The Lord knows the thoughts of humans, that they are a puff of wind.

¹²Fortunate the one you correct,
O Lord, the one you teach your law;

¹³you give them relief from disress while a pit is dug for the wicked.

¹⁴The Lord will not reject his people nor will he forsake his heritage.

¹⁵Justice will return to the just,
and the upright will follow in its wake.

¹⁶Who stands up for me against the wicked? Who stands by me against evildoers?

¹⁷Had the Lord not helped me, I would have fallen into the silence of death.

¹⁸No sooner did I say, "My foot is slipping," your kindness, O Lord, held me up.

¹⁹The more worries and trouble assailed me, the more you consoled me.

²⁰You shun wicked rulers who impose injustice by law.

²¹They plot together against the virtuous and condemn the innocent.

²²But the Lord is my stronghold,
my God, my rock of refuge.

²³He will repay them for their evil and destroy them for their wickedness;
the Lord, our God, will blot them out.

Rom
11:2;
1S 12:22

1Cor
3:20

119:71;
Job 5:17

10:11

PSALM 95 (94)

Come, sing to the Lord. When we come to praise God, let us prepare to listen to his word; and try to do his will in daily life.

¹Come, let us sing to the Lord, let us make a joyful sound to the Rock of our salvation. Dt 32:15

²Let us come before him giving thanks, with music and songs of praise.

³For the Lord is the great God,
the great King above all gods. 47:3; 96:4;
Job 36:22;
Dn 2:47

⁴In his hand are the depths of the earth and the mountain heights.

⁵The sea is his, for he made it, and his hand shaped the dry land. 24:1-2

⁶Come and worship; let us bow down, kneel before the Lord, our Maker. 100:3; 23:1-4;
80:2;

⁷He is our God, and we his people;
the flock he leads and pastures. 19:5;
Heb 3:7-11

Would that today you heard his voice! Num 20:2-13;

⁸Do not be stubborn, as at Meribah,
in the desert, on that day at Massah, ⁹when your ancestors challenged me,
and they put me to the test. Dt 33:8;
Ps 81:8;
17:1-7;
Dt 6:16;
9:22

¹⁰For forty years they wearied me and I said,
“They are a people of inconstant heart;
they have not known my ways.” Num 14:34;
Ps 78:8, 37;
Dt 32:5, 20;
Job 21:14

¹¹So I declared on oath in my anger,
“Never shall they enter my rest.” Num 14:30;
Dt 12:9

PSALM 96 (95)

More than on the splendor of the universe, human society is founded on justice that glorifies God: there is joy in creation when God establishes his kingdom among us. Yes, joy of the universe, until then devastated by our exaggerated ambitions. Joy of nations that have discovered why they exist.

God loves justice.

¹Sing to the Lord a new song, sing to the Lord, all the earth! 98:1; 33:3

²Sing to the Lord, bless his name;
proclaim his salvation day after day. 98:2;
105:1

³Recall his glory among the nations, tell all the peoples his wonderful deeds.

⁴How great is the Lord and worthy of praise!
Above all gods he is to be feared. 48:2;
145:3;
95:3

⁵For all other gods are worthless idols, but Yahweh is the one who made the heavens. 95:3;
Is 40:17-20;
Ps 97:7;
1Cor 8:4-6

⁶Splendor and majesty go before him;
power and glory fill his sanctuary.

⁷ Give to the Lord, you families of nations, give to the Lord glory and strength. 29:1-2

⁸ Give to the Lord the glory due his name;
bring gifts and enter his courts.

⁹ Worship the Lord with holy celebrations;
stand in awe of him, all the earth. 29:2;
114:7

¹⁰ Say among the nations, "The Lord reigns!"
He will judge the peoples with justice. 93:1; 9:9

¹¹ Let the heavens be glad, the earth rejoice; let the sea and all that fills it resound; 98:7

¹² let the fields exult and everything in them; let the forest, all the trees, sing for joy. Is 55:12

¹³ Let them sing before the Lord who comes to judge the earth. 98:9
He will rule the world with justice and the peoples with fairness.

PSALM 97 (96)

We often find it hard to share the enthusiasm and joy of the psalmist who sees so clearly the world divided between the good and the wicked. We rather see the world covered by a fog where each one has his own excuses and share of wickedness. The confusion is temporary, however, there is good seed and there are weeds, and each one goes towards what he prefers. God hates evil as much as he loves himself, and what cannot return to God should be destroyed.

God reigns and the idols disappear. Already light shines on the just. Already it shines on the person of the risen Christ.

¹ The Lord reigns; let the earth rejoice;
let the distant islands be glad. 93:1; 96:10-11;
99:1

² Clouds and darkness surround him; justice and right are his throne. Dt 5:22;
Ps 85:11;
89:15

³ Fire goes before him, burning his foes on every side. 18:9; 50:3

⁴ His lightning lights up the world;
the earth watches and trembles. 77:19

⁵ The mountains melt like wax before the Lord, the Lord of all the earth. Mic 1:4;
Ps 68:3

⁶ The heavens proclaim his justice, all peoples see his glory. 50:6

⁷ Shame on worshipers of idols, on those proud of their worthless images.
Let all spirits bow before him. 96:5;
Heb 1:6

⁸ Zion hears and rejoices, and the cities of Judah exult,
because of your judgments, O God. 48:12

⁹ For you are the Master of the universe, exalted far above all gods. 83:19;
95:3

¹⁰ You who love the Lord, hate evil, for he preserves the lives of his faithful,
he delivers them from their foes.

¹¹ He sheds light upon the upright, and gladness upon the just. 112:4

¹²Rejoice in the Lord, you who are blameless, and give praise to his holy name. 30:5

PSALM 98 (97)

Sing a new song to the Lord. Humanity has found the way to liberation and salvation:
 – in the coming of Christ, God-made-man;
 – in his resurrection.

^{96:1; Is 42:10; Ps 86:10; 34:10; Is 51:5} ¹Sing to the Lord a new song, for he has done wonders; his right hand, his holy arm, has won victory for him. and sing praise, ⁵with melody of the lyre and with music of the harp. 147:7

²The Lord has shown his salvation, revealing his justice to the nations. ⁶With trumpet blast and sound of the horn, rejoice before the King, the Lord! Num 10:10

^{Lk 1:54; Is 52:10} ³He has not forgotten his love nor his faithfulness to Israel. The farthest ends of the earth all have seen God’s saving power. ⁷Let the sea resound and everything in it, the world and all its peoples. 96:11; 24:1

^{66:1; 100:1} ⁴All you lands, make a joyful noise to the Lord, break into song ⁸Let rivers clap their hands, hills and mountains sing with joy ⁹before the Lord, for he comes to rule the earth. He will judge the world with justice and the peoples with fairness. 89:13; Is 55:12 96:13; 9:9; 67:5

PSALM 99 (98)

Holy is the Lord!

^{93:1; 18:8, 11; 80:2} ¹The Lord reigns and the nations tremble. He is enthroned upon the cherubim; the earth gets distraught. ⁶Among his priests were Moses and Aaron, and Samuel among those who called on his name. They called to the Lord, and he answered them. 1S 7:9; 12:18

^{48:2; Is 12:6; Ps 113:4} ²Great is the Lord in Zion; he is high over all the nations. ⁷In the pillar of cloud he spoke to them, and they kept his statutes and the decrees he gave them. 91:18-19; 33:9; Num 12:5

^{111:9} ³May they give glory to your name, great and terrible: “Holy is he: ⁴this is the mighty King who loves justice.” ⁸O Lord our God, you responded to them; you were a patient God for them, but you punished their wrongs. 34:6-7

For you come to install fairness, to establish in Jacob right and justice. ⁹Extol the Lord our God; worship at his holy mountain. Holy is the Lord our God! 3:5; Lev 19:2

^{132:7; Rev 15:4} ⁵Extol the Lord, our God; worship at his footstool. Holy is he! And mighty!

• 99 Yes, he is holy! This exclamation will appear three times in the psalm. Let us take the vision of Isaiah if we want to find the meaning of the word “holy.” It signifies, according to some, that God is totally different, removed from what is not “of him”: he is the “totally other.” That is true. It might be necessary to add here what the word “high tension” means for us: a mysterious power which upsets all our mechanisms, magnetizing all its surroundings, drawing sparks from bodies thought to be inert, striking down whoever approaches it (2 S 6:7).

This sovereign holiness has a beauty which leaves us speechless with a love that dispels our resistance and oppressive heaviness. It will not prevent God from giving himself totally to us in definitive marriage. The true fear of God, the fascination that his mystery has on us (we shall live it for eternity) has nothing to do with fear or defiance. The formidable aspect of death—necessary for returning to God—helps us to gauge what separates us from him.

PSALM 100 (99)

All the earth acclaim the Lord. Let all the earth sing, and you, serve him with joy.

66:1
Dt 28:47
Dt 4:39;
32:6;
Eph 2:10;
Ps 95:7;
Ezk 34:31

¹All you lands, acclaim the Lord!
²Serve the Lord with gladness;
come before him with joyful songs.
³Know that the Lord is God; he created us and we are his people, the sheep of his fold.

5:8;
118:19;
96:2
Jer 33:11;
Ps 106:1;
117:2

⁴Enter his gates with thanksgiving, his courts with praise. Give thanks to him and bless his name.
⁵For the Lord is good; his love lasts forever and his faithfulness through all generations.

PSALM 101 (100)

A king examines his conscience. I wish to train myself to follow the perfect way, but you, will you come to me?

71:22
1Tim 3:4
139:21;
Jd 1:23
Eph 5:11;
Pro 11:20
Pro 21:4

I will sing of your love and justice;
to you, O Lord, I will sing praise.
²I will walk the way of integrity—
O Lord, when will you come to me?
With a blameless heart I will walk within my house.
³I will not set before my eyes anything that is base. I hate the deeds of faithless people; I will have no part in them.
⁴I will banish all wicked hearts,
and evil I will not know.
⁵He who deals with others trea-

119:63
26:4-5
Pro 20:26;
Rev 21:27

cherously, I will silence. He who talks and acts arrogantly, I will not endure.
⁶I will choose from the faithful of the land those who may dwell with me; only the upright shall be my servant.
⁷No double-dealer shall live in my house; no one who utters falsehood shall stand before my eyes.
⁸Each morning I will clear the land and silence all the wicked; I will uproot all the evildoers from the city of the Lord.

PSALM 102 (101)

Prayer in time of affliction.

39:13;
88:3
69:18;
27:9;
31:3;
71:12;
56:10;
143:7
90:6;
Is 40:7

²O Lord, hear my prayer; let my cry for help come to you.
³Do not hide your face from me when I am in trouble. Turn your ear to me; make haste to answer me when I call.
⁴For my days are passing away like smoke, my bones burning like a furnace.
⁵Like withered grass, my heart is blighted, and I forget to eat my bread.

6:7;
Job
19:20
44:17
42:4;
80:6

⁶Because of my great grief I am reduced to skin and bones.
⁷I am like an owl in the wilderness, like a vulture among the ruins.
⁸I awake moaning like a lonely
bird on the housetop.
⁹All day long I am taunted by my enemies; they use my name as a curse.
¹⁰The bread I eat is ashes, my drink is mingled with tears, ¹¹for your

• 101 In beginning his daily work, the believer sets out to live according to the truth, to struggle for justice, while hoping for the coming of the Lord.

cry of a forsaken, sick person, and a prayer for the rebuilding of Jerusalem.

Verse 10 says: The bread I eat is ashes, which means: I'm fasting, I'm going without bread and I'm covering myself with ashes.

• 102 This psalm blends two poems: the wrath, your fury; for you have thrown me aside.

109:23; 144:4; 103:15
 12 My days are vanishing like the shadows at night; I wither away like grass.

9:8; Lm 5:19; Ps 135:13
 13 But you, O Lord, you sit forever; your name endures through all generations.

14 Arise, have mercy on Zion; this is the time to show her your mercy.

Ne 2:3
 15 For your servants cherish her stones, and are moved to pity by her dust.

16 O Lord, the nations will revere your name, and the kings of the earth your glory,

Is 60:1
 17 when the Lord will rebuild Zion and appear in all his splendor.

18 For he will answer the prayer of the needy and will not despise their plea.

22:31-32
 19 Let this be written for future ages, "the Lord will be praised by a people he will form."

14:2; Dt 26:15; Ps 113:6; Is 63:15
 20 From his holy height in heaven, the Lord has looked on the earth ²¹ to hear the groaning of the prisoners, and free those condemned to death. 79:11

²² Then the name of the Lord will be declared in Zion, and his praise in Jerusalem,

²³ when the peoples and the kingdoms assemble to worship him. Is 60:3-4

²⁴ My walk has exhausted me, he has cut short my days.

²⁵ I cry to him, "My God, do not take my life in mid-course, you whose days are from age to age." Is 38:10

²⁶ In the beginning you laid the earth's foundation, the heavens are the work of your hands. Is 51:6-8; Heb 1:10-12

²⁷ Although they perish, you will remain; they will all wear out like a garment, you change them like clothes: they pass away,

²⁸ but you remain the same, your years unending. Is 65:17; Rev 20:11; 21:1; 2P 3:10

²⁹ Your servants' children will dwell secure; their posterity will endure without fail. 69:37

PSALM 103 (102)

The Lord showers his blessings upon you. This psalm looks on God, humans, and God's mercy toward humankind: from these three, praise is born.

104:1, 35
 1 Bless the Lord, my soul; all my being, bless his holy name!

103:8
 2 Bless the Lord, my soul, and do not forget all his kindness; ³ he forgives all your sins and heals all your sickness; ⁴ he redeems your life from destruction and crowns you with love and compassion; ⁵ he gives fulfillment to your years, and renews your youth like the eagle's.

⁶ The Lord restores justice and secures the rights of the oppressed. 146:7

⁷ He has made known his ways to Moses and his deeds to the people of Israel. Rom 3:2

Is 40:31
⁸ The Lord is gracious and merci-

34:6-7; Ps 86:15; 145:8; Jas 5:11

• 103 Because of their origin and their inconsistency, humans are dust. They are also God's creation and God's children. God is all-powerful but his authentic greatness is his infinite capacity to love, to increase the flame of his love from his own fire. God's characteristic is to be mercifully forgiving. In this regard, the psalmist uses a simple but grandiose image: the enormous distance between heaven and earth, the east and the west, is less representative of the greatness of God than of his merciful love. Christians will discover many resonances in this psalm:

 – God is indulgent because he knows we are but dust, but also because he wanted to experience the human condition including suffering, death and even temptation.
 – His pardon can be seen: the cross of Jesus Christ surmounting the world and history to the end of time.
 – His covenant with Israel: definitive and universal.

ful, abounding in love and slow to anger; ⁹he will not always scold nor will he be angry forever. ¹⁰He does not treat us according to our sins, nor does he punish us as we deserve. ¹¹As the heavens are high above the earth, so great is his love for those fearing him; ¹²as far as the east is from the west, so far does he remove from us our sins. ¹³As a father has compassion on his children, so the Lord pities those who fear him. ¹⁴For he knows how we are formed, he remembers that we are dust. ¹⁵The days of mortals are like grass; they bloom like a flower of the field; ¹⁶but the wind passes over it, and it is gone, his field will not see him again.

¹⁷But the Lord's kindness is forever with those who fear him; so is his justice, for their children's children, ¹⁸for those who keep his covenant and remember his commands, for those who put them into practice.

¹⁹The Lord has set his throne in heaven; he rules, he has power everywhere.

²⁰Praise the Lord, all you his angels, you mighty ones who do his bidding, you who obey his word.

²¹Praise the Lord, all his hosts, all his servants who do his will.

²²Praise the Lord, all his works, everywhere he rules.

Job 7:10;
8:18100:5;
Lk 1:50;
20:6

Dt 33:9

11:4;
22:29Dn 3:59;
Ps 148:8;
Lk 1:19

148:2

145:10;
Dn 3:57

PSALM 104 (103)

The universe praises its Creator. In contemplating the universe, the believer feels full of admiration and optimism. All comes from God, and this universe is also for humankind. God is now completing his creation through the work of humans and the radiant light of his witnesses: "Send your Spirit to renew the face of the earth."

Not only does all come from God but all belongs to him and speaks of him. Atoms, nature, shapes and colors, everything is a radiation of his own riches: light is your garment; the clouds, your chariot; the firmament, the tent of your dwelling. The beauty of the cosmos is the cloud that hides God's beauty.

Even if today we have a scientific vision of the world, this Psalm, 2,500 years old, retains its value. The world we know is much vaster, diverse and marvelous. How could we ever think that it has formed itself or that it is the product of an accident?

God continually sustains every being and holds it in his hands. What would become of them should he in an instant take away his Spirit? Just think ¹Bless the Lord, my soul!

Clothed in majesty and splendor;
O Lord, my God, how great you are!

²You are wrapped in light as with a garment;
you stretch out the heavens like a tent,
³you build your upper rooms above the waters.

You make the clouds your chariot and ride on the wings of the wind; ⁴you make the winds your messengers, and fire and flame your ministers.

⁵You set the earth on its foundations, and never will it be shaken.

⁶You covered it with the ocean like a garment, and waters spread over the mountains.

103:22;
2S 7:22

18:10

Is 19:1;
Ps 18:11

Heb 1:7

119:90

– All the good that has come to us through Christ goes far beyond what the psalmist had hoped for: the truth of the Gospel and the grace of redemption leading us to eternal life.

– The permanence of the Church, the crowd of witnesses to Jesus Christ, those of yesterday and those of tomorrow, and finally our own experience of God in this life.

These are some of our reasons for hoping in God and for celebrating his immense glory.

what happens when there is a power failure—no longer is there light, energy, movement—it is rather as if the world ceased to exist.

Invitation to optimism. All creatures are good and are linked together in harmony. One by one the psalmist names with admiration the great cosmic powers and almost with tenderness the birds, wild animals and fish. This psalm has a deeply human touch: everything exists for the benefit of humanity. Humankind is called to be the consciousness that understands the universe and is able to admire it, the voice that praises the Creator, the artisan called to beautify it and organize it for the service of people, all people. Our psalms and songs of praise would be useless if they did not express human effort to build a world reflecting the purity and infinite riches of God.

“He formed me from of old, from eternity, even before the earth. When he laid the foundations of the earth, I was close beside him, the designer of his works and I was his daily delight, forever playing in his presence, playing throughout the world and delighting to be with humans” (Pro 8:23, 30-31).

⁷But at your rebuke the waters flee, at the sound of your thunder they take to flight.

⁸Brought to the mountains, they flow down again to settle in the valleys.

⁹You set a limit they could not cross, never again to flood the earth.

Jer 5:22;
Gen 9:11

¹⁰You make springs gush forth in valleys winding among mountains and hills,

74:15;
Dt 8:7

¹¹giving drink to the beasts of the field,
quenching the thirst of wild donkeys.

¹²Birds build their nests close by and sing among the branches of trees.

¹³You water the mountains from your abode and fill the earth with the fruit of your work.

Acts
14:17

¹⁴You make grass grow for cattle and plants for man to cultivate, that he may bring forth food from the earth:

147:9;
Gen 1:30

¹⁵wine to gladden his heart,
oil to make his face shine,
and bread to make him strong.

4:8;
Jdg 9:13;
Pro 31:7;
Gen 18:5

¹⁶The Lord waters his trees to their fill, the cedars of Lebanon which he planted.

¹⁷The birds build their nests,
the stork has its home in the pine trees.

¹⁸High mountains are for wild goats,
the cliffs a refuge for badgers.

Pro
30:26

¹⁹You made the moon to mark the seasons, and the sun that knows when to set;

74:16;
Gen 1:16

²⁰when you bring the darkness of the night,
all the beasts of the forest begin to prowl:

²¹the young lions roaring for their prey claiming their food from God.

²²When the sun rises, the beasts steal away, returning to rest in their dens.

Job 37:8

²³Man then goes out to his work,
and toils till evening comes.

²⁴How varied O Lord, are your works!
In wisdom you have made them all—the earth full of your creatures.

Job 5:9;
Pro 3:19;
8:22-31;
Jer 10:12;
51:15

²⁵Behold the sea, wide and vast,
teeming with countless creatures, living things both great and small,
²⁶a strange world reserved for the ships, for Leviathan, the dragon you made to play with.

²⁷They all look to you for their food in due time. 145:15; 136:25

²⁸You give it to them, and they gather it up; you open your hand, they are filled with good things. Lk 12:24

²⁹When you hide your face they vanish, you take away their breath, they expire and return to dust. 30:8

³⁰When you send forth your spirit, they are created, and the face of the earth is renewed. 33:6; Gen 2:7; Jdt 16:14

³¹May the glory of the Lord endure forever; may the Lord rejoice in his works! Gen 1:31

³²He looks on the earth, and it quakes; he touches the mountain, and it smokes. 18:8; 144:5

³³I will sing to the Lord all my life; I will sing praise to God while I live. 146:2

³⁴May my song give him pleasure, as the Lord gives me delight. 19:15

³⁵May sinners vanish from the earth, and may the wicked be no more. Bless the Lord, my soul!

PSALM 105 (104)

The beginning of Salvation History. Remembering the past can be a prayer if we try to see the work of God and thank him for it.

¹Give thanks to the Lord, call on his name; make known his works among the nations. Gen 26:3; Sir 44:22

²Sing to him, sing his praise, proclaim all his wondrous deeds. Is 24:5

³Glory in his holy name; let those who seek the Lord rejoice. Gen 28:13; Ps 47:5

⁴Look to the Lord and be strong; seek his face always. Dt 7:7; 26:5

⁵Remember his wonderful works, his miracles and his judgments, Gen 23:4; Heb 11:13

⁶you descendants of his servant Abraham, you sons of Jacob, his chosen ones! Gen 12:10-20

⁷He is the Lord our God; his judgments reach the whole world.

⁸He remembers his covenant forever, his promise to a thousand Gen 41:54 generations, ⁹the covenant he made with Abraham, the promise he swore to Isaac.

¹⁰He confirmed his decree to Jacob, to Israel his eternal covenant: Is 24:5

¹¹“To you I will give the land of Canaan as part of your inheritance.” Gen 28:13; Ps 47:5

¹²When they were few in number, strangers in the land, ¹³wandering from nation to nation, ¹⁴he allowed no one to oppress them, and for their sake he rebuked kings: Dt 7:7; 26:5

¹⁵“Touch not my anointed ones,” he warned, “do my prophets no harm!” Gen 23:4; Heb 11:13

¹⁶Then he sent a famine and ruined the crop that sustained the land; Gen 12:10-20

Gen 45:5; Acts 7:9 ¹⁷he sent a man ahead of them, Joseph, who was sold as a slave;

Gen 41:9-13; Wis 10:14 ¹⁸his feet in shackles, his neck in irons ¹⁹till what he foretold came to pass, and the Lord's word proved him true.

Gen 41:39-44; Acts 7:10 ²⁰The king sent for him, set him free, the ruler of the peoples released him. ²¹He put him in charge of his household and made him ruler of all his possessions, ²²that he might train his princes and teach his elders wisdom.

Gen 46:6 ²³Then Israel came to Egypt, Jacob settled in the land of Ham.

1:7; Dt 26:5 ²⁴The Lord made his people fruitful and much stronger than their foes,

1:8-22 ²⁵whose hearts he turned to hate his people, to deal deceitfully with his servants.

3:10; 4:14-16 ²⁶Then he sent Moses his servant and Aaron whom he had chosen.

78:43; Jer 32:20 ²⁷They performed his signs among them, his miracles in the land of Ham.

10:21-22 ²⁸He sent darkness to the land, but they rebelled against his words.

7:19-21; Ps 78:44 ²⁹He turned their waters into blood, causing their fish to die.

7:28; Ps 78:45 ³⁰Their land teemed with frogs, invading even the king's bedroom.

8:12-13 ³¹He spoke, and flies and gnats swarmed throughout the country.

³²He gave them hail for rain, and lightning flashed over the land.

³³He blighted their vines and fig trees, shattered the trees in the countryside.

³⁴He spoke and locusts came, grasshoppers without number; ³⁵they devoured all the vegetation and the produce of the soil; ³⁶then he smote all the firstborn, the firstfruits of their manhood.

³⁷He led Israel out of the alien land, laden with silver and gold, and none were left behind.

³⁸Egypt was glad when they departed, so filled were they with dread.

³⁹He spread a cloud as covering, and fire to give them light at night.

⁴⁰They asked for food; he gave them quails and fed them with bread from heaven.

⁴¹He opened the rock, and water gushed out, flowing like a river through the desert.

⁴²For he remembered his promise to Abraham, his servant.

⁴³So he led forth his people with joy, his chosen ones with singing.

⁴⁴He gave them the lands of the nations, and let them take the fruit of others' toil, ⁴⁵that they might keep his statutes and remain obedient to his laws.

9:13-35; Ps 78:47; Rev 8:7

10:12-15; Ps 78:46; Jl 1:4

12:29; Ps 78:51; Wis 18:12

Gen 15:14; 12:35-36

12:33; 15:16

14:19-20; Ps 78:14

16:12-13; Ps 78:18, 27; Wis 16:2, 20

17:6; Num 20:8-11;

Ps 78:24-25; 78:15-16; Is 48:21

2:24; Lk 1:54-55

15:1-21

Dt 4:38; 6:11;

Ps 78:54-55

78:7

PSALM 106 (105)

Another look at the history of Israel. Like Psalm 78, this psalm contrasts the mercy of God and Israel's rebellions. God punishes but he always gives his grace again.

Alleluia!

107:1; 100:5; 118:1, 29; 136:1; 16:34, 41; Ezra 3:11; Sir 18:4 ¹Give thanks to the Lord, for he is good, for his love endures forever.

²Who can count the Lord's mighty deeds, or declare all his praises?

³Blessed are they who always do just and right.

⁴Remember me, O Lord, when you show favor to your people; rescue me when you deliver them; ⁵ let me see the triumph of your faithful, let me share the joy of your nation, and join your people in praising you.

⁶We have sinned like our ancestors; we have done wrong and acted wickedly.

⁷When they were in Egypt, our ancestors had no regard for your wondrous deeds; they forgot the

Jer 3:25

78:11; Ne 9:17

112; Is 56:1-2; Jas 1:25

- abundance of your love; they rebelled against the Most High by the Sea of Reeds.
- Ezk 20:9 ⁸Yet he saved them for his name's sake, to make his mighty power known.
- 66:6 ⁹He rebuked the sea, and it dried up; he led them through the deep as on dry land.
- 14; Lk 1:71 ¹⁰He saved them from hostility, freeing them from the hand of the enemy.
- 14:28 ¹¹Waters covered their pursuers, and none of them was left alive.
- 14:31; 15:1-21 ¹²Then they believed his promises and all at once sang his praises.
- 95:9 ¹³But soon they forgot his works and did not wait for his counsel.
- ¹⁴They gave way to wanton craving and tempted God in the desert.
- ¹⁵He gave them what they wanted, then sent them a wasting disease.
- Num 16 ¹⁶In the camp they grew envious of Moses and Aaron, the holy one of the Lord.
- Num 16:32 ¹⁷So the earth opened, swallowed Dathan, and buried the company of Abiram; ¹⁸fire broke out against them, burning up the wicked.
- Num 16:35; Heb 10:27 ¹⁹They made a calf at Horeb and worshiped the molten image.
- 32:4 ²⁰They exchanged the glory of God for the image of a bull that eats grass.
- Jer 2:11; Rom 1:23 ²¹They forgot their Savior God, who had done great things in Egypt, ²²wonderful works in the land of Ham, and awesome deeds by the Sea of Reeds.
- Dt 32:18; Jer 2:32; Ps 78:42 ²³So he spoke of destroying them, but Moses, his chosen one, stood in the breach before him to shield them from destruction.
- 105:27 ²⁴Yet they despised the promised land, for they had no faith in his word.
- Num 14:2; Dt 1:25-28 ²⁵They grumbled in their tents and would not listen to the voice of the Lord.
- ²⁶So he swore to them with his hand raised that he would let them perish in the desert, ²⁷scatter their descendants among the nations and disperse them over the lands.
- Num 25; Dt 26:14; Tb 4:17 ²⁸They joined the rites of Baal-peor and ate sacrifices to lifeless gods.
- ²⁹Their deeds provoked the Lord to anger, and a plague broke out among them.
- ³⁰But Phinehas stood up and intervened, and the plague came to an end.
- Num 25:7-8; Sir 45:23-24 ³¹This was credited to his uprightness, making him remembered for all ages.
- Num 25:11-13 ³²Angered by them at Meribah's waters, the Lord took it out on Moses ³³for the rash words he uttered, when they rebelled against God.
- 95:8-9; 17:1-7; Dt 4:21 ³⁴They dared not destroy the pagans, as the Lord commanded; ³⁵they mingled with these nations and learned to do as they did.
- Is 63:10; Dt 32:51; Num 20:12 ³⁶In serving the idols of the pagans, they were trapped ³⁷into sacrificing children to demons, ³⁸shedding the innocent blood of their sons and daughters to the idols of Canaan, polluting the country with blood.
- Jdg 1:21-33; Dt 7:1, 16 ³⁹They defiled themselves by what they did, playing the harlot in their worship.
- Jdg 3:5-6; Lev 18:3 ⁴⁰The anger of the Lord grew intense and he abhorred his inheritance.
- Jdg 2:11-13; 23:33; Dt 7:16; Wis 14:11 ⁴¹He handed them over to the nations, and their foes ruled them with arrogance.
- Lev 18:21; Dt 32:17; Bar 4:7; 2K 16:3; 17:17; 1Cor 10:20 ⁴²Brought by the enemy into subjection, they suffered the agony of oppression.
- Is 57:5; Jer 7:31; 19:4; Ezk 16:20 ⁴³He delivered them many a time, but they went on defying him and sinking deeper into their sin.
- 34:16; Jer 3:6-8; Ezk 20:30 ⁴⁴But he heard their cry of affliction and looked on them with compassion.
- Jdg 2:16-17 ⁴⁵Remembering his covenant, he
- Lk 1:72

relented for their sake, because of his great love.

⁴⁶He let them be pitied by all those who held them captive.

⁴⁷Save us, O Lord, our God, gather us from among the nations, that we may give thanks to you and praise your holy name.

⁴⁸*Blessed be the Lord, God of Israel, from eternity to eternity. Let all the people say, "Amen!" Praise the Lord!*

89:53;
Lk 1:68

PSALM 107 (106)

A third look at the history of Israel. Like the two preceding psalms, this one recalls the past, and draws another lesson from it: each time they cried to the Lord, he listened to them. "Let us give thanks for his love."

¹Give thanks to the Lord, for he is good, for his love endures forever.

²Let the redeemed of the Lord say this, those he redeemed from the hand of the foe, ³those he gathered from the lands, from east and west, from north and south.

⁴Some strayed in the wilderness and were lost, far away from the city.

⁵They wandered about hungry and thirsty, their lives ebbing away.

⁶Then they cried to the Lord in anguish, and he rescued them from their distress.

⁷He led them by a straight way to a city where they could dwell.

⁸Let them thank the Lord for his love and wondrous deeds for humans.

⁹He quenches the thirst of the soul and satisfies the hunger of the heart.

¹⁰They lived in the darkness of death like prisoners suffering in chains, ¹¹for they rebelled against the word of God and despised the counsel of the Most High.

¹²Their backs bent in hard labor, they fell down, and there was no one to help.

¹³Then they cried to the Lord in anguish, and he rescued them from their distress.

¹⁴He brought them out of the dark and gloom, and he tore asunder their bonds.

¹⁵Let them thank the Lord for his love and wondrous deeds for humans.

¹⁶For he breaks open gates of bronze and batters down bars of iron.

¹⁷They were sick because of their wrongs, they were afflicted for their iniquities.

¹⁸Unable to take any food they drew near the gates of death.

¹⁹Then they cried to the Lord in anguish, and he rescued them from their distress.

²⁰He sent forth his word and healed them, and rescued them from destruction.

²¹Let them thank the Lord for his love and wondrous deeds for humans.

²²Let them offer sacrifices of thanksgiving, and declare his deeds in joyful song.

²³Those who went to the sea in ships, merchants on the mighty waters, ²⁴saw the marvels of the Lord, his wonderful deeds in the deep.

²⁵For he spoke and stirred up a storm whipping up the waves of the sea.

²⁶Flung upward and plunged to the depths, they lost courage in the ordeal; ²⁷reeling like drunkards, they were adrift, in spite of all their seamanship.

²⁸Then they cried to the Lord in anguish, and he rescued them from their distress.

Is 45:2

50:14;
Heb
13:15

Sir 43:
24-25

1K 8:50;
Jer 42:12

Dt 30:3;
2Mac
1:27;
16:35

106:1;
100:5

106:10

106:47;
Is 11:12;
43:5

Dt 8:15;
32:10

Is 49:10;
41:17

34:18;
Hos 5:15;
Is 63:9

Dt 6:10

146:7;
Lk 1:53

Is 9:1

106:43

89:10; Lk 8:24 ²⁹He stilled the storm to a gentle breeze and hushed the billows to silent waves.

³⁰How glad they were! He brought them safe and sound to the port where they were bound.

³¹Let them thank the Lord for his love and wondrous deeds for humans.

22:23, 26 ³²Let them extol him in the congregation, praise him in the assembly of the people.

Is 50:2 ³³He turned rivers into wastelands, flowing springs into parched grounds, ³⁴and fruitful valleys into salt-flats, because of the wickedness of their inhabitants.

114:8; Is 41:18 ³⁵Yet he also turned deserts into watersheds and parched land into flowing springs.

³⁶There he let the hungry settle and found a city where they could dwell.

³⁷They planted vineyards, they sowed fields, and from them got fruitful harvests.

³⁸By his blessing their numbers increased, and their herds and flocks did not diminish.

³⁹But then they dwindled and were humbled through oppression, sorrow and distress.

⁴⁰And he who pours contempt upon princes and makes them wander in trackless wastes ⁴¹rescued the needy from their affliction and made their families flourish like flocks.

⁴²The upright see it and are glad, but the wicked are silenced.

⁴³Let the wise consider all this and understand the Lord's infinite love.

Am 9: 13-15

Dt 7:13

Job 12: 21, 24

113:7; 146:7

63:12; Job 22:19

Jer 9:11; Hos 14:10

PSALM 108 (107)

Song of victory.

57:8-12 ²My heart is ready, O God! I will sing praise and make music. Awake my soul!

³Awake, harp and lyre! I will awake the dawn.

18:50 ⁴I will thank you, O Lord, among the nations. I will sing praise to you among the peoples.

36:6; Is 55:9 ⁵For great is your love above the heavens, your faithfulness beyond the skies.

113:4 ⁶Be exalted, O God, above the heavens. Let your glory be over the earth.

60:7-14 ⁷Give help and save us by your right hand, and rescue those you love.

⁸God has spoken in his sanctuary: "In triumph I will divide up Shechem and parcel out the Valley of Succoth.

⁹Gilead is mine; Manasseh is mine; Ephraim is my helmet, Judah my scepter.

¹⁰Moab is my washbasin; upon Edom I cast my sandal; over Philistia I shout in triumph."

¹¹Who will take me to the fortified city? Who will lead me to Edom?

¹²O God! Have you really rejected us? You no longer go with our armies.

¹³Give us aid against the foe, for the help of mortals is not worth a straw.

¹⁴With God we will gain victory; he will crush the enemy for us.

60:3

118:8

18:30; 44:6-9

PSALM 109 (108)

Have no pity for them. Someone who only had words of friendship has been accused and slandered. He asks justice from God who does not forsake his own. God will show no mercy for those who are merciless.

28:1; 35:22 Break your silence, O God whom I praise, ²now that the wicked and deceitful hurl their false accusations at me.

69:5 ³They assail me with words of hatred; they attack me for no valid cause.

⁴They return my friendship with slander, and yet I pray for them.

35:12 ⁵They repay me evil for good, and hatred for my love.

Zec 3:1 ⁶Appoint a wicked man against him; find an accuser to repeat this curse:

⁷“Let him be found guilty when tried; let his own plea condemn him.

Acts 1:20 ⁸May his days be numbered, his office be taken by another.

⁹May his children lose a father and his wife a husband.

¹⁰May his children go begging, driven out of their ruined homes.

Job 5:5 ¹¹May the creditor seize all his belongings and strangers plunder the fruits of his toil.

¹²Let no one extend kindness to him or take pity on his orphaned children.

Job 18: 17, 19; Sir 41:11 ¹³May his posterity be destroyed, their names blotted out in the next generation.

Jer 18:23; Lm 1:22 ¹⁴May his father’s evil be remembered before the Lord; may his mother’s sin never be effaced.

34:17 ¹⁵May their sins be ever before the Lord, and their memory cut off from the earth.”

¹⁶For he did not remember to show kindness, but hounded the poor, the needy, and the brokenhearted to their death.

¹⁷He loved to curse; may he be cursed. He loathed blessing; may it be far from him.

¹⁸He wrapped himself in cursing; may it soak into his body like water, penetrate his bones like oil.

¹⁹May it be like a garment he wears, like the belt he ties around himself.

²⁰May the Lord reward my accusers with this, and others who speak evil of me.

²¹But as for me, O God my Lord, for your name’s sake, act on my behalf, deliver me, in the goodness of your love.

²²For I am poor and needy, my heart is stricken within me.

²³Like an evening shadow, I fade away; like a locust, I am swept away.

²⁴My knees have become weak from fasting, my body is wasted of its substance.

²⁵I have become the butt for the scorn of my foes; people shake their heads at me in derision.

²⁶Help me, O Lord my God, and save me for the sake of your love.

²⁷Let them know that this is your hand, that it is you, Lord, who do this.

Num 5:22

79:9; 106:8; Jer 14:7

40:18

22:7-8

70:2

71:13

• 109 It is perhaps the psalm that most scandalizes Christians, well-educated as we are. An attempt has been made to change the translation (instead of a curse, verses 6-20 would be a charitable way of saying what could happen to the evildoer). It has been excluded from the breviary. Whose fault is it, if it is part of the Bible and the word of God?

We have not yet completely come to the new Gospel age (we continue to kill each other in a “nice way” in Christian countries) and certainly no one has attained it. They all have the right to pray. These curses are a cry to the justice of God who understands them and who—yes, he too—knows how to curse.

²⁸They may curse, but you will bless; when they attack, they will be disgraced; but may your servant rejoice!

²⁹Let my accusers be clothed with dishonor; let them be wrapped in their own shame.

³⁰To the Lord, I will give my thanks; I will praise him in the great assembly.

³¹He stands at the right hand of the needy, to save them from those who condemn them.

PSALM 110 (109)

Most probably, this psalm was first written for Simon Maccabee: see the commentary on Melchizedek in Hebrews 7. It was charged with a prophetic message and we can no longer read it without relating it to Christ.

The Lord said to my Lord. Sometimes we feel we are trapped, as if in prison, by the problems of life. This psalm is like a flash of lightning illuminating the prison and showing us an unexpected escape towards heaven. In spite of some obscure expressions, the overall meaning is clear: from Zion will come the one, as the warlike tone of verses 5-6 indicates, who will be victorious over all the hostile powers. He has lapped up the water from the brook which is an allusion to Judges 7:4—the warriors who can cope with trials. The struggle will be hard, but God will finally ask him to sit at his right and all will be subject to him.

“Melchizedek” is the mysterious person in Genesis (14:18)—whose ancestors are not mentioned—but to whom Abraham offered the tenth part of his conquests. Melchizedek, king and priest, is already Christ (Heb 7).

PSALM 111 (110)

An alphabetical psalm, the twenty-two letters of the Hebrew alphabet begin the twenty-two verses. Other psalms are also written in this way (e.g. Psalms 34; 37; 119).

Word of the Lord to my Lord. The basic force ruling history and the destiny of the world is the victory of Jesus Christ, the Son of God who was made man so that we might share his eternal glory.

¹The Lord said to my Lord, “Sit at my right hand till I make your foes your footstool.”

²From Zion the Lord will extend your mighty scepter
and you will rule in the midst of your enemies.

³Yours is royal dignity
from the day you were born in holy majesty.
Like dew from the womb of the dawn,
I have begotten you.

⁴The Lord has sworn,
and he will not take back his word:
“You are a priest forever in the order of Melchizedek.”

⁵The Lord is at your right hand to crush the kings on his day of wrath.

⁶He will judge the nations,
heaping up corpses,
smashing heads on the wide plain.

⁷He has lapped up the water from the brook,
this is why he will lift up his head.

God creates, saves and guides us.

¹*Alleluia!*
I thank the Lord with all my heart in the council of the just, in the assembly.

²The works of the Lord are great and pondered by all who delight in them.

³Glorious and majestic are his deeds, his righteousness endures forever.

⁴He lets us remember his wondrous deeds;
the Lord is merciful and kind.

2;
Mt 22:44;
Acts 2:
34-35;
Heb 1:13;
10:12-13;
1Cor
15:25;
1P 3:22

2:6, 9

Gen
14:18;
Ps
132:11;
Heb 5:6;
7:17, 21

2:9;
16:8;
Is 63:6
68:22

138:1;
149:1

92:6;
139:14;
Rev 15:3

112:3;
Is 51:6

103:8;
112:4

- ⁵ Always mindful of his covenant, he provides food for those who fear him. 105:8
- ⁶ He shows his people the power of his arm by giving them the lands of other nations. Jer 27:5
- ⁷ The works of his hands are faithful and just, trustworthy are all his precepts, 19:8; 93:5
- ⁸ ordained to last forever, bearers of truth and uprightness. Is 40:8;
Ps 19:10
- ⁹ He has sent his people deliverances and made with them a covenant forever. Lk 1:68;
Ps 105:10;
Dt 28:58;
Lk 1:49
His holy name is to be revered!
- ¹⁰ The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom; Job 28:28;
Pro 9:10;
Sir 1:16
prudent are those who live by his precepts.
To him belongs everlasting praise.

PSALM 112 (111)

Like the preceding one, this psalm is alphabetical. It uses the same terms, but this time praises the just person, the image of God.

Praise for the just.

- ¹ Alleluia! 1:1-2;
128:1;
Sir 34:14
Blessed is the one who fears the Lord, who greatly delights in his commands.
- ² His children will be powerful on earth;
the upright's offspring will be blessed. 25:13;
102:29
- ³ Wealth and riches are for his family,
there his integrity will remain. 111:3, 5;
Pro 3:16
- ⁴ He is for the righteous a light in darkness, he is kind, merciful and upright. Is 58:10;
Job 22:28
- ⁵ It will be well with him who lends freely, who leads a life of justice and honesty. 37:26;
Lk 6:35
- ⁶ For the righteous will never be moved;
he will be remembered and loved forever. 15:5
- ⁷ He has no fear of evil news, for his heart is firm, trusting in the Lord.
- ⁸ His heart is confident, he needs not fear, he shall prevail over his foes at the end. 118:7
- ⁹ He gives generously to the poor, his merits will last forever and his head will be raised in honor. 2Cor 9:9
- ¹⁰ The wicked will see this and be furious:
they will gnash their teeth in seething envy. 35:16;
1:6
The desire of the wicked will fail.

PSALM 113 (112)

Poor and humble people, praise the Lord! What distinguishes God from humans is not the infinity of his creation, but his way of being with us, his preference for what many despise. God likes to choose poor instruments to achieve his great deeds of grace.

¹ Alleluia!

Praise, O servants of the Lord,
praise the name of the Lord!

134:1;
135:1;
Dn 3:85

² Blessed be the name of the Lord
now and forever!

³ From eastern lands to the western islands, may the name of the Lord be praised!

⁴ The Lord is exalted over the nations, his glory above the heavens.

57:6;
97:9

⁵ Who is like the Lord our God, who sits enthroned on high,

35:10

⁶ but also bends down to see on earth as in heaven?

11:4;
14:2;
102:20

⁷ He lifts up the poor from the dust and the needy from the ash heap.

1S 2:8;
Lk 1:52

⁸ He makes them sit with princes, with rulers of his people.

⁹ He gives a home to the barren woman, and makes her a joyful mother.
Praise the Lord!

Is 54:1

PSALM 114 (113 A)

The departure from Egypt. The power of God-Savior manifested itself in the first Passover, the departure from Egypt. The resurrection of Christ has touched the universe in a different way.

¹ Alleluia!

When Israel came out of Egypt,
the family of Jacob
from a people of foreign language,

12;
15:17

² Judah became his sanctuary,
Israel his possession.

³ At his sight the sea fled and the Jordan retreated;

⁴ the mountains skipped like rams,
the hills frolicked like lambs.

29:6

⁵ Why is it, sea, that you flee?
Jordan, that you turn back?

⁶ Mountains, that you skip like rams?
Hills, that you frolic like lambs?

⁷ Tremble, O earth, at your Master's presence, at the presence of the God of Jacob, ⁸who turned the rock into a stream, and the flint into a spring.

96:9;
99:1

105:41;
 107:35;
 Dt 8:15

PSALM 115 (113 B)

We must constantly denounce the idols of ordinary people as well as the idols of those who pretend to be free of every prejudice. Here is a thought of the poet, Paul Claudel:

"Blessed are you, O my God, who freed me from all the idols and who made me adore you alone, and not Isis or Osiris, or Justice, Progress, Truth, Divinity, Humanity, the Laws of Nature, of Art or of Beauty.

And who has not permitted these things to exist, things that are not, or are the vacuum left by your absence. I know that you are not the God of the dead, but of the living.

Lord, I have found you! The one who finds you no longer tolerates death."

God's people have no idols. Since we have been given to know the one and true God, let us leave aside all that is not God.

¹Not to us, O Lord, not to us, but to your name be the glory,
 for the sake of your love and faithfulness.

Is 48:11;
 Ezk 36:22

²Why should the pagans say,
 "Where is their God?"

79:10;
 42:4

³There in heaven is our God;
 whatever he wishes, he does.

135:6

⁴Not so the hand-made idols,
 crafted in silver and gold.

135:15-18;
 Is 44:9-20;
 46:6-7

⁵They have mouths that cannot speak, eyes that cannot see,

Wis 15:15;
 Rev 9:20

⁶ears that cannot hear,
 noses that cannot smell.

⁷They have hands but cannot feel,
 feet, but cannot walk;
 neither can they make a sound in their throat.

⁸Their makers will be like them,
 so will all who trust in them.

Wis 14:8

⁹O Israel, trust in the Lord;
 he is your help and your shield!

135:19-20;
 130:7;
 33:20

¹⁰You, family of Aaron, trust in the Lord;
 he is your help and your shield!

Num
 18:20

¹¹You who fear the Lord, trust in him;
 he is your help and your shield!

22:24;
 135:20

¹²The Lord remembers us and will bless us;
 he will bless the family of Israel;
 he will bless the family of Aaron;

¹³he will bless those who fear the Lord, both the small and the great.

Jer 31:34;
 Wis 6:7;
 Rev 11:18

¹⁴May the Lord shower blessings, on you and your children as well.

134:3;
 Gen 14:19

¹⁵May you be blessed by the Lord,
 Maker of heaven and earth.

¹⁶Heaven belongs to the Lord,
 but the earth he has given to humans.

¹⁷It is not the dead who praise the Lord,
 for they have gone down to silence;

6:6

¹⁸but it is we, the living, who bless the Lord, from now on and forever. 113:2

PSALM 116 (114-115)

Jesus prayed this psalm at the beginning of his passion, and certain words take on a different meaning when we relate them to Jesus: He has saved me from death; I will raise the cup of salvation; the death of his faithful ones is precious to the Lord. The mass—the presence among us of Christ’s sacrifice—is “eucharist” or thanksgiving.

You have freed me from death. “I shall walk in the presence of the Lord in the land of the living.” We sing our thanksgiving with all those God has saved from death, with our Lord Jesus Christ.

¹ Alleluia!

I am pleased that the Lord has heard my voice in supplication, ²that he has not been deaf to me,
the day I called on him.

³When the cords of death entangled me,
the snares of the grave laid hold of me,
when affliction got the better of me,
⁴I called upon the name of the Lord:
“O Lord, save my life!”

18:5

Jl 3:5;
Ps 6:5

⁵Gracious and righteous is the Lord;
full of compassion is our God.
⁶the Lord protects the simple:
he saved me when I was humbled.
⁷Return, O my soul, to your rest,
for the Lord has taken care of you.

⁸He has freed my soul from death,
my eyes from weeping,
my feet from stumbling;
⁹I will walk before the Lord
in the land of the living.

Is 25:8;
Ps 56:14

¹⁰I have kept faith even when I said,
“I am greatly afflicted.”
¹¹I have said in my dismay,
“To hope in humans is vain.”

2Cor 4:13

31:23;
Rom 3:4

¹²How can I repay the Lord
for all his goodness to me?
¹³I will lift up the cup of salvation and call on the name of the Lord.

13:6

¹⁴I will fulfill my vows to the Lord
in the presence of all his people.

50:14

¹⁵It is painful to the Lord to see the death of his faithful.

72:14

¹⁶O Lord, I am your servant,
truly your servant, your handmaid’s son.
You have freed me from my bonds.

119:125;
143:12;
86:16;
Wis 9:5

¹⁷I will offer you a thanksgiving sacrifice;
I will call on the name of the Lord.

107:22;
105:1

¹⁸I will carry out my vows to the Lord
in the presence of his people, ¹⁹in the courts of the house of the Lord,
in your midst, O Jerusalem.

56:13;
Jon 2:10

PSALM 117 (116)

Less than a quarter of a psalm, but all is there: goodness (grace, favor) and fidelity (truth) that is the truth of God.

¹ Alleluia!

Praise the Lord, all you nations;
all you peoples, praise him.

²How great is his love for us!
His faithfulness lasts forever.

Rom
15:11

103:11;
100:5

PSALM 118 (117)

This psalm was sung when the processions entered the Temple of Jerusalem. The people and their leader alternated with the choir of the Levites. At the end the priests gave Aaron's blessing (Num 6:22). What does Israel sing? Their thanksgiving to God who saves them from death or raises them, thanksgiving to God who chooses the poor and the despised of this world to build his kingdom with them.

The stone rejected by the builders... A way of repeating the announcement of Isaiah 28:16. Who would dare to do this, if not the risen Christ? (see Mt 21:42; Acts 4:11).

I will not die, I will live! The stone rejected by the builders has become the keystone. Jesus applies to himself the symbol of the rejected stone (Mt 21:42; 1 P 2:4), and when he enters the Temple, the children sing: Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord.

¹ Alleluia!

Give thanks to the Lord,
for he is good,
his loving kindness endures forever.

²Let Israel say,
"His loving kindness endures forever."

³Let the house of Aaron say,
"His loving kindness endures forever."

⁴Let those who fear the Lord say,
"His loving kindness endures forever."

⁵In anguish I cried to the Lord;
he answered by setting me free.

⁶With the Lord beside me I need not fear.
What can humans do to me?

⁷The Lord is with me, ready to help;
I can look in triumph upon my enemies.

⁸It is better to take refuge in the Lord than to trust in the help of humans.

⁹It is better to take refuge in the Lord than to trust in the might of princes.

¹⁰All the nations surrounded me;
in the name of the Lord I crushed them.

¹¹They surrounded me on every side;
in the name of the Lord I crushed them.

¹²Like swarms of bees they encircled me;
but like burning thorns they died down;
in the name of the Lord I crushed them.

¹³I was pushed hard and about to fall, but the Lord came to my help.

106:1;
100:5;
136

115:9-11;
135:
19-20;
Lk 1:50

4:2;
18:7, 20;
120:1

27:1;
56:12;
Is 51:12;

Rom
8:31;
Heb 13:6

146:3

22:13

¹⁴The Lord is my strength and my song;
he has become my salvation. 15:2;
Is 12:2

¹⁵Joyful shouts of victory are heard in the tents of the just:
“The right hand of the Lord strikes mightily,
¹⁶the right hand of the Lord is lifted high,
the right hand of the Lord strikes mightily!” 98:1; 15:6;
Acts 2:33

¹⁷I shall not die, but live to proclaim what the Lord has done.

¹⁸The Lord has stricken me severely,
but he has saved me from death.

¹⁹Open to me the gates of the Just,
and let me enter to give thanks. 24:7-10;
Is 26:2

²⁰“This is the Lord’s gate, through which the upright enter.” Rev
22:14

²¹I thank you for having answered me, for having rescued me.

²²The stone rejected by the builders has become the cornerstone. Is 28:16;
Zec 3:9;
4:7;

²³This was the Lord’s doing and we marvel at it. Mt 21:42;
1P 2 4-8;
Eph 2:20;
1Cor 3:11

²⁴This is the day the Lord has made;
so let us rejoice and be glad.

²⁵Save us, O Lord, deliver us, O Lord!

²⁶Blessed is he who comes in the Lord’s name!
We bless you from the house of the Lord. Mt 21:9;
23:39;
Jn 12:13;
Ps 129:8;
134:3

²⁷The Lord is God; may his light shine upon us.

With branches, join in procession up to the horns of the altar. 18:29;
Is 60:1;
Lev 23:40;
Ne 8:15;
2Mac 10:7

²⁸You are my God, and I give you thanks. 99:5;

You are my God, and I give you praise. Is 25:1

²⁹Give thanks to the Lord, for he is good;
his steadfast love endures forever!

PSALM 119 (118)

Psalm about the Law. This psalm, the longest in the Bible, repeats without tiring that to follow the word of God is life and happiness.

¹Blessed are they whose ways are upright, who follow the law of the Lord. 112:1;
128:1;
Lk 11:28

²Blessed are they who treasure his word and seek him with all their heart.

³They do no wrong; they walk in his ways.

⁴You have laid down precepts to be obeyed. ⁵O, that my ways were steadfast in observing your statutes!

⁶Then I would not be put to disgrace, having paid attention to all your decrees.

⁷I will praise you with an upright spirit when I learn your just precepts by heart.

⁸I mean to observe your commandments. O, never abandon me.

Pro 1:4 ⁹How can young people remain pure? By living according to your word.

¹⁰I seek you with my whole heart; let me not stray from your commands.

Dn 7:28; Lk 2:19, 51 ¹¹In my heart I have kept your word, that I may not sin against my Lord.

1:2 ¹²Praise to you, O Lord; instruct me in your statutes, ¹³that with my lips I may declare all your spoken decrees.

Wis 7:11 ¹⁴I delight in following your laws, more so than in all riches.

¹⁵I will meditate on your precepts and concentrate on your ways.

Rom 7:22 ¹⁶In your laws I will rejoice and will not neglect your words.

¹⁷Be kind to your servant, that I may live to follow your word.

¹⁸Open my eyes that I may see the marvelous truths in your law.

39:13 ¹⁹Do not hide your commandments from me, a wanderer on earth.

²⁰My soul is consumed with desire for your ordinances at all times.

²¹You reprove the accursed ones who stray arrogantly from your commands.

²²Remove from me their scorn and contempt, since I have followed your precepts.

²³Although princes conspire against me, your servant will observe your decrees.

²⁴Your laws are my delight, my counselors who uphold me.

44:26 ²⁵In the dust I lie prostrate; lift me up, as promised by your word.

²⁶When I explained my ways, you responded; instruct me then in your precepts.

²⁷Explain to me all your ordinances, and I will meditate on your wondrous deeds.

²⁸My soul is weary with sorrow; strengthen me according to your word.

²⁹Keep me away from deceitful paths; be gracious and teach me your law.

³⁰I have chosen the way of truth; I have set my heart upon your laws.

³¹Since I cling to your decrees, O Lord, save me from disgrace.

³²I will run in the way of your commands, for you have freed my heart.

³³Explain to me, O Lord, your commandments, and I will be ever faithful to them.

³⁴Give me understanding, that I may observe your law with all my heart.

³⁵Guide me in obeying your instructions, for my pleasure lies in them.

³⁶Incline my heart to follow your will and not my own selfish desire.

³⁷Turn my eyes away from vanities and direct them to your life-giving word.

³⁸Fulfill your promise to your servant, so that others may revere you.

³⁹Ward off the reproach I fear, for your law is good.

⁴⁰Oh, how I long for your precepts! Renew my life in your righteousness.

⁴¹Give me your unfailing love, O Lord, your salvation as you have promised.

⁴²Strengthened by my trust in your word, I can answer my enemy's reproach.

⁴³Take not the word of truth from my mouth, for I would also lose my hope in your word.

Dt 11:22;
Jer
13:11

Jer 9:23

Is 33:15

Mt 10:19

Ezra 7:10 ⁴⁴May I always keep your word for ever and ever; ⁴⁵I shall walk in freedom, having sought out your laws.

⁴⁶I will proclaim your word before kings, and I will not be confused or ashamed.

Jn 4:34 ⁴⁷For I delight in your word, which I fear. ⁴⁸I will lift up my hands to you, and meditate on your commandments.

105:42 ⁴⁹Remember your word to your servant, your word which has given me hope.

1Mac 12:9; Rom 15:4 ⁵⁰My consolation in suffering is this: that your promise renews my life.

⁵¹Although the arrogant mock me without end, I faithfully cling to your word.

⁵²When I remember your ordinances of old, I find comfort in them, O Lord.

⁵³I feel indignant at the wicked who have forsaken your law.

⁵⁴Your decrees are the theme of my song, in this my place of exile.

63:7 ⁵⁵Each night I call on your name, O Lord, and renew my vow to keep your word.

Ecl 12:13 ⁵⁶This has been my practice; I have kept your precepts.

16:5 ⁵⁷You are my portion, O Lord; I have promised to obey your word.

⁵⁸With all my heart I have sought your face; be gracious to me according to your promise.

⁵⁹I have considered my ways and have turned my steps to your paths.

⁶⁰I hasten and no longer delay in keeping your commands.

⁶¹The wicked have me trapped in their snares, but I have not forgotten your laws.

42:9 ⁶²At midnight I rise to praise you for the justice of your ordinances.

⁶³I am an ally for those who fear you, for those who keep your precepts.

⁶⁴The earth is full of your love, O Lord! Teach me your decrees. 33:5

⁶⁵You have been good to your servant, Lord, in accordance with your words.

Jas 1:5 ⁶⁶Give me knowledge and good judgment for I trust in your commands.

Pro 15:33 ⁶⁷Before I was afflicted I went astray, but now I obey your word.

⁶⁸You are good, and your works are good; teach me your decrees.

⁶⁹I am slandered by the arrogant, but I keep your precepts within my heart.

17:10; Is 6:10 ⁷⁰Their hearts have become dull, but I delight in your laws.

⁷¹It is good for me to have been afflicted, for I have deeply learned your statutes.

19:11 ⁷²Your law is more precious to me than heaps of silver and gold.

Job 10:8 ⁷³Give me insight to know your commands, since I have been formed by your hands.

107:42 ⁷⁴Those who fear you will be glad, seeing that I hope in your word.

⁷⁵I know, O Lord, that your laws are just, and there is justice in my affliction.

⁷⁶Comfort me then with your un-failing love, as you promised your servant.

⁷⁷Let your mercy come to give me life, for your law is my delight.

⁷⁸Humble the arrogant who oppress me as I meditate on your precepts.

⁷⁹Let those who fear you turn to me, they will understand your statutes.

⁸⁰May my heart be blameless in your decrees, that I may not be ashamed.

⁸¹My soul longs for your protection; your word is my hope of salvation.

- 101:2 ⁸²I have kept watch for your promise. “When will you comfort me?” I ask.
- ⁸³I have become as dry as a wine-skin, yet I have not forgotten your statutes.
- 7:2 ⁸⁴How long must your servant endure? When will you judge my persecutors?
- 57:7 ⁸⁵The arrogant have dug pitfalls for me in defiance of your law.
- 33:4; 111:7-8 ⁸⁶Your law indeed is trustworthy, when they persecute me, help me.
- ⁸⁷They have almost put an end to me on earth, and yet I have not forsaken your precepts.
- ⁸⁸In your kindness give me life, that I may keep your commands.
- Is 40:8 ⁸⁹O Lord, your word stands forever, firmly fixed in the heavens.
- 104:5 ⁹⁰Your faithfulness lasts throughout the ages—as long as the earth you created.
- Jer 33:25 ⁹¹Your ordinances last to this day for all things are made to serve you.
- ⁹²If your law had not been my pleasure, I would have perished in affliction.
- ⁹³Never will I forget your precepts, for with them you give me life.
- 100:3 ⁹⁴Save me for I am yours, since I seek your statutes.
- ⁹⁵The wicked lie in wait to destroy me, but I look to your word for salvation.
- Sir 24:29 ⁹⁶I saw that all perfection is limited but your command is boundless.
- ⁹⁷How I love your law, meditating on it all day!
- Dt 4:6 ⁹⁸Your command—mine forever—has made me wiser than my enemy.
- ⁹⁹I have more insight than my teachers for I meditate on your decrees.
- Wis 8:10 ¹⁰⁰I have more understanding than the elders for I abide by your precepts.
- ¹⁰¹I turn my feet from evil paths, that I may keep step with your word.
- ¹⁰²I have not departed from your decrees for you yourself have instructed me.
- ¹⁰³How sweet are your promises to my taste, sweeter than honey to my mouth!
- ¹⁰⁴Your precepts have given me knowledge, and I hate all that is false.
- Pro 6:23 ¹⁰⁵Your word is a lamp to my feet, a light for my path.
- ¹⁰⁶I have taken an oath to keep your just commands.
- ¹⁰⁷I have suffered much, O Lord; renew my life according to your word.
- ¹⁰⁸Accept my offerings of praise, O Lord, and teach me your decrees.
- ¹⁰⁹I am ready to sacrifice my life for your Law that is always in my heart.
- ¹¹⁰Though the wicked have laid a snare for me, I do not stray from your precepts.
- Jer 15:16 ¹¹¹Your statutes are my heritage forever, they are the joy of my heart.
- ¹¹²From age to age, I am determined to fulfill your decrees until the end.
- Sir 2:12 ¹¹³I detest double-dealing people, but I treasure your law.
- ¹¹⁴You are my shield, my refuge; my hope is in your word.
- ¹¹⁵Leave me, you evildoers; let me keep the commandments of my God.
- ¹¹⁶May your promise uphold me that I may live; let me not hope in vain.
- ¹¹⁷Support me and I shall be safe, and faithfully keep your decrees.
- ¹¹⁸You spurn all who stray from your decrees, for vain is their deceit.
- ¹¹⁹You discard all the wicked as dross; that is why I love your statutes.

¹²⁰My flesh trembles in fear of you;
I stand in awe before your laws.

¹²¹I have done what is just and right;
do not leave me to my oppressors.

¹²²Guarantee the well-being of your servant;
let not the arrogant oppress me.

¹²³I strain my eyes searching your saving help, watching for the fulfillment of your just promise.

¹²⁴Treat your servant with compassion, and instruct me in your decrees.

¹²⁵Give me knowledge; I am your servant who desires to understand your statutes.

¹²⁶It is time for you, O Lord, to act, for they have broken your law.

¹²⁷I love your commandments more than gold—the finest gold.

¹²⁸Because my steps are guided by your precepts,
I hate all false ways.

¹²⁹Wonderful are your decrees;
my soul cannot but keep them.

¹³⁰As your words unfold, light is shed, and the simple-hearted understand.

¹³¹I gasp in ardent yearning for your commandments that I love.

¹³²Turn to me then and be gracious as to those who love your name.

¹³³You promised to direct my steps;
free my path from evil.

¹³⁴Rescue me from human oppression, and help me keep your precepts.

¹³⁵Favor me with your smile and teach me your statutes.

¹³⁶My eyes shed streams of tears for those who disobey your law.

¹³⁷O Lord, you are just, and your judgments right.

¹³⁸You have pronounced your decrees in justice and faithfulness.

¹³⁹I burn with zeal, seeing how my foes ignore your words.

¹⁴⁰Your promises have been tested;
therefore our servant loves them.

¹⁴¹Though I am lowly and despised,
I do not forget your precepts.

¹⁴²Your justice is eternal and your Law is true.

¹⁴³In calamity and in anguish, your ordinances are my delight.

¹⁴⁴Your statutes are just forever; give me understanding, that I may live.

¹⁴⁵I call with all my heart; answer me,
O Lord: help me keep your statutes.

¹⁴⁶I call upon you, save me and I will do your will.

¹⁴⁷Before dawn I rise and cry for help;
all my hope is in your word.

¹⁴⁸I lie awake through the night to ponder on your promises.

¹⁴⁹Hear my voice, in your unflinching love;
in your justice, O Lord, preserve my life.

¹⁵⁰My persecutors close in with evil intent;
they are far from your Law.

¹⁵¹But you, O Lord, are near, and all your commandments are true.

¹⁵²Long have I known that your decrees were founded to last forever.

¹⁵³Look upon my suffering and rescue me,
for I have not forgotten your Law.

¹⁵⁴Plead my cause and redeem me; and, as you promised, give me life.

¹⁵⁵Salvation is far from the wicked, for they do not seek your statutes.

¹⁵⁶Great is your compassion, O Lord; renew my life according to your word.

¹⁵⁷Many foes persecute me, but I have not turned away from your law.

69:10

Wis 8:21

57:9

Dt 4:7

Mt 5:18

69:17

95:10 ¹⁵⁸I look upon the faithless with loathing, because they do not obey your ruling.

¹⁵⁹See how I love your precepts; give me life, O Lord, in your kindness.

Jn 17:17 ¹⁶⁰The essence of your word is truth, everlasting are your just ordinances.

¹⁶¹Rulers persecute me for no cause, yet my heart stands in awe of your words.

Is 9:2; Mt 13:44 ¹⁶²Your word filled me with joy: I found there great riches.

¹⁶³I hate and abhor falsehood, but I love your law.

¹⁶⁴Seven times a day I praise you for your just ordinances.

1Jn 2:10 ¹⁶⁵Lovers of your Law have found great peace; nothing can make them stumble, not even distress.

¹⁶⁶O Lord, I wait for your salvation, and I keep your commands in faith.

¹⁶⁷My soul clings to your words for I truly cherish them.

¹⁶⁸I obey your precepts and your decrees; my ways are always before you.

¹⁶⁹Let my cry come to you, O Lord; give me understanding according to your word.

¹⁷⁰May my prayer come before you; rescue me as you have promised.

¹⁷¹Let my lips overflow with praise, for you teach me your decrees.

¹⁷²Let my tongue sing of your good news, for all you say is true.

¹⁷³Let your hand be ready to help me, for I have chosen your precepts.

¹⁷⁴I long for your salvation, O Lord; I delight in your law.

¹⁷⁵Long may I live to sing your praise, may your ordinances always be my help!

¹⁷⁶Like a stray sheep I wandered about—come and look for your lost servant. See that I have not forgotten your commands.

Rom
7:12

Is 53:6;
Ezk
34:6;
Lk 15:4;
1P 2:25

PSALM 120 (119)

The pilgrims who went up to the Temple were not without their troubles: some were not at peace with their neighbors; others complained that they were not living with believers but with pagans. They wanted the peace that God gives to those who draw near to him.

The Psalms 120–134 have the same title: “Song of Ascents.” The pilgrims, surely, sang them while going up to the Jerusalem Temple. That is why we find at times an antiphon that the crowd of pilgrims would repeat.

“Song of Ascent”

¹I called to the Lord in my distress, and he answered me.

²Deliver me, O Lord, from lying lips and from deceitful tongues.

³How shall he pay you back, O deceitful and lying tongue?

⁴He will punish you with arrows hardened over the glowing coals!

⁵Woe is me who live with barbarians, and dwell amid plunders.

⁶My soul is sick of dwelling among those who hate peace;

⁷I want peace, but they only think of quarrels.

34:7;
86:7;
118:5;
Jon 2:3
31:19;
Sir 51:2

109:2

109:5

PSALM 121 (120)

God is faithful, he watches by day and by night. On the road to Emmaus, Jesus accompanies them but they do not recognize him.

"If God is with us, who could be against us?"

Prayer for the beginning of a difficult task: a conversion, a vocation, the beginning of a family, risks taken for the good of all.

God will not fail you. On the way to Jerusalem the pilgrims think about the hardship of the journey, the difficulty of the road, the heat of the day, the risk of brigands. They know God is with them and that he protects them.

¹I lift up my eyes to the mountains—from where shall come my help?

²My help comes from the Lord,
maker of heaven and earth.

³Will he let your foot slip,
the one watching over you?
Will he slumber?

⁴No, the guardian of Israel
neither slumbers nor sleeps.

⁵The Lord is your guardian, the Lord is at your side and you in his shade;

⁶Sunstroke will not be for you by day, nor the spell of the moon by night.

⁷The Lord guards you from every evil;
he will protect your life.

⁸The Lord watches over your coming and going both now and forever.

123:1;
133:3;
3:5; 20:3

124:8;
134:3

66:9

1K 18:27

91:1;
Is 25:4;
Lk 1:35;
Ps 16:8;
109:31

Rev 7:16

41:3;
97:10

Dt 28:6;
Ps 125:2;
131:3

PSALM 122 (121)

A cry of enthusiasm and joy of a pilgrim arriving at the Temple. Admiration for the building, joy in seeing the crowd, and something deeper: a happiness in sharing the experience with other believers.

The Temple is the sign of God's presence among his people, Jesus found himself there with his Father. For centuries, Christian pilgrims have walked thousands of kilometers to find the places where God has revealed himself, Compostela, Lourdes, Fatima or Medjugorje. It is a fact that true worshipers will worship the Father in spirit and truth (Jn 4:21), but they are still flesh and blood and God often waits for them at the end of a march without which their effort would not have been a real one. Prayer of the believer who admires the presence of God in the Church, and also of those who seek the joy that accompanies faith.

We will go to the house of the Lord.

¹I rejoiced with those who said to me,
"Let us go to the house of the Lord!"

²And now we have set foot within your gates, O Jerusalem!

³Jerusalem, just like a city, where everything falls into place!

⁴There the tribes go up,
the tribes of the Lord, the assembly of Israel,
to give thanks to the Lord's name.

⁵There stand the courts of justice
the offices of the house of David.

⁶Pray for the peace of Jerusalem:
"May those who love you prosper!

⁷May peace be within your walls and security within your citadels!"

⁸For the sake of my relatives and friends
I will say, "Peace be with you!"

⁹For the sake of the house of our Lord,
I will pray for your good.

27:4;
42:5

48:13-14

1K 7:7;
19:8

26:8

PSALM 123 (122)

Prayer of the afflicted.

The cry of petition and hope of the Jews who, on returning from exile, are humiliated and despised by their pagan neighbors.

How often in the Gospel do we hear the same cry of the afflicted!

Think especially of the Canaanite woman: "Lord, have pity on me!" She pursues Christ with desperate insistence for she feels it is now or never.

PSALM 124 (123)

With admiration and gratitude, the people of God remember how they overcame their trials because God was with them. An invitation to give thanks. In the Gospel, of the ten lepers who were healed, only one came back to thank the Lord. If we haven't the heart to thank God, it is because we do not know how to discover the wonders in our own life and in the world.

It is strange, that in the communities of the poor and the persecuted, the prayers of thanksgiving are interminable.

PSALM 125 (124)

The pilgrims admire the walls of Jerusalem—high and reinforced. It is an image of God's protection. Prayer for dark moments, when we feel powerless in the face of injustice and organized violence, when faced with cor-

Psalm of hope. We know that our very good Father always hears us. Let us fix our eyes on the Lord without tiring until he says, "Your faith has saved you."

¹To you I lift up my eyes, to you whose throne is in heaven.

121:1;
Mt 5:34;
6:9

²As the eyes of servants look to the hand of their master, as the eyes of maids look to the hand of their mistress, so our eyes look to the Lord our God,
till he shows us his mercy.

25:15;
141:8;
145:15

³Have mercy on us, O Lord, have mercy on us,
for we have our fill of contempt.

44:14-17

⁴Too long have our souls been filled with the scorn of the arrogant, with the ridicule of the insolent.

Pro 16:18

We have escaped from the hunter's snare. "The very hairs of your head are numbered, you are worth much more than the birds."

¹Had not the Lord been on our side—
let Israel say—

94:17;
129:1

²had not the Lord been on our side,
when people rose up against us,

³then they would have swallowed us alive;
such was their anger against us.

35:25;
Jer 51:34;
Pro 1:12

⁴A bit more and the flood would have engulfed us,

32:6;
42:8;
69:2-3; Is 8:7-8

the torrent would have swept over us,

⁵the raging waters would have swept us away.

⁶Blessed be the Lord,
who did not let us be devoured.

28:6;
31:22

⁷Like a bird our soul escaped from the snare of the fowler;
the snare was broken and we were freed.

91:3

⁸Our help is in the name of the Lord, who made heaven and earth.

20:8;
33:21;
Pro 18:10;
Ps 115:15;
121:2;
146:6

Trust in the Lord.

¹Those who trust in the Lord are like Mount Zion, immovable, it stands forever.

Pro 10:25

²As mountains surround Jerusalem, so the Lord encompasses his people.

Dt 32:10;
Zec 2:9;
Mt 28:20

ruption and stupidity—perhaps even in the Church.

³The scepter of the wicked will not remain over the land allotted to the upright, for then the upright might be led to put their hands to evil deeds.

⁴Be good, O Lord, to those who are good, to those who are upright in heart.

18:25-27

⁵But those who turn to crooked ways, the Lord will drive out with the evildoers. May peace remain upon Israel.

Mt 7:23

PSALM 126 (125)

Prayer on the return from exile—the great trial of the people. Happiness and surprise at the end of captivity, something that seemed unbelievable: “We thought we were dreaming.”

We cannot help thinking of the Virgin Mary: “The Lord has done wonders for me, holy is his name,” or of Peter freed from prison. Today, many sow in tears; it is not the same one who sows and who reaps the harvest.

They will come back in joy carrying their sheaves. The mystery of life springing up from death. Hope for the afflicted, for those who are disappointed because of the little fruit of their labor.

¹When the Lord brought the exiles back to Zion,

14:7;
85:2

we were like those moving in a dream.

²Then our mouths were filled with laughter, and our tongues with songs of joy.

Job 8:21

Among the nations it was said, “The Lord has done great things for them.”

³The Lord had done great things for us, and we were glad indeed.

⁴Bring back our exiles, O Lord, like fresh streams in the desert.

⁵Those who sow in tears will reap with songs and shouts of joy.

Is 25:8-9;
Rev 21:4

⁶They went forth weeping, bearing the seeds for sowing, they will come home with joyful shouts, bringing their harvested sheaves.

Jer 31:9;
Is 65:19;
Bar 4:23;
Jn 16:20

PSALM 127 (126)

The believer lives life day by day. She does not neglect giving time to prayer, family, friendship and sharing Christian community life. She does not damage health by overworking. She is aware that families with larger incomes and one child who have nothing to share are not always the ones who best make ends meet, and that the richest homes are not the happiest. The Father asks us to work but also wants us to keep the sabbath.

What is built without God is lost time. It is useless spending all our days in search of security for the future, if blind and unresponsive, we pass by the events and joys that the present moment has in store for us.

¹Unless the Lord builds the house, in vain do its builders labor. Unless the Lord guards the city, in vain does the guard stay awake.

Pro 3:5-6;
10:22;
Mt 6:
25-34;
Jn 15:5

²It is in vain that you rise early and stay up late, putting off your rest, toiling for your hard-earned bread; God gives it to his loved ones, and they sleep.

Gen 3:19;
Mt 6:11;
Pro 3:
24-26;
Ecl 2:24

Sons are a gift from the Lord. The Bible does not forget that each one of us has received everything from family and country. Not to pass on life and education to a new generation, is not to pay a debt, for sure, but it is also to lose one's life.

³Sons are a gift from the Lord;
the fruit of the womb is a reward.
⁴Like arrows in the hands of a warrior are the sons of one's youth.

Dt 28:11;
Pro 17:6;
Ps 128

⁵Blessed is the man who has filled his quiver with arrows of this kind, their foes will not silence them when they contend in court.

Job 29:5

PSALM 128 (127)

The blessing of the home. In contrast to those who are anxious and impatient, the believer tries to see the good side of life. He recognizes the blessings God has given his home. A large family is God's blessing for those who have chosen it and have accepted its responsibilities.

"Set your heart first on the kingdom and justice of God, and all these will also be given to you" (Mt 6:33).

¹Blessed are you who fear the Lord and walk in his ways.

112:1

²You will eat the fruit of your toil;
you will be blessed and favored.

112:3

³Your wife, like a vine,
will bear fruits in your home;
your children, like olive shoots will stand around your table.

Pro 31;
Job 29:5;
Ps 144:12

⁴Such are the blessings bestowed upon the man who fears the Lord.

⁵May the Lord bless you from Zion.
May you see Jerusalem prosperous all the days of your life.

134:3;
20:3;
122:9;
Gen 50:23;
Job 42:16;
Pro 17:6

⁶May you see your children's children, and Israel at peace!

125:6

PSALM 129 (128)

From its youth, the people of God were persecuted. In the end, their enemies were dispersed, but they remained. To hold on in spite of the difficulties of life is a form of true hope.

¹How they have oppressed me from my youth—

124:1

let Israel say,

²how they have oppressed me from my youth—

118:13;
Jn 16:33

they have not put me down.

³Upon my back plowers have plowed long and deep furrows

Is 51:23

⁴But the Lord, who is just,
has shattered the yoke of the wicked.

35:4;
40:15

⁵May all who hate Zion

be thrown into confusion.

⁶May they be like grass in the garden, which withers before you uproot it.

Is 37:27

⁷No reaper sets his hands on it,
no one gathers it to fill his arms,

⁸nor says of them the passersby,

“The blessing of the Lord be upon you!”

118:26

We bless you in the name of the Lord!

PSALM 130 (129)

The prayer during a long expectation. Years of a human life, generations perhaps in the life of a nation. Have we already asked for twenty years?

I waited for the Lord; I put my hope in his word. It was true for the Jews expecting national liberation, it is also valid for us: have we received and are we enjoying all that God has promised us?

All has been given us in hope. As the watchman waits for the dawn, so the believer waits for a coming of Christ—the coming that she longs for.

From the depths I cry to you. A penitential psalm, but above all, a prayer of trust in God.

18:5-7; 69;

Jon 2:3;

Lm 3:55

¹Out of the depths I cry to you, O Lord,

²O Lord, hear my voice!

Let your ears pay attention to the voice of my supplication.

5:2-3;

55:2-3;

6:40;

7:15;

Ne 1:6...

³If you should mark our evil,
O Lord, who could stand?

Job 9:2;

Nh 1:6

⁴But with you is forgiveness, and for that you are revered.

Mic 7:18;

34:7;

1K 8:39-40

⁵I waited for the Lord, my soul waits, and I put my hope in his word.

56:5;

119:81

⁶My soul expects the Lord more than watchmen the dawn.

Is 21:11;

26:9

⁷O Israel, hope in the Lord, for with him is unfailing love and with him full deliverance.

Is 30:18;

Ps 68:21;

86:15;

100:5;

103:8

⁸He will deliver Israel from all its sins.

25:22;

Mt 1:21;

Col 2:14;

Tit 2:14

PSALM 131 (130)

Childlike trust in God. A simple and humble prayer full of trust, which reminds us of the serenity of a child in its mother's arms. Is not this what Jesus praised and is God less mother than father?

¹O Lord, my heart is not proud nor do I have arrogant eyes.

I am not engrossed in ambitious matters, nor in things too great for me.

Mic 6:8;

Ps 139:6

²I have quieted and stilled my soul like a weaned child on its mother's lap;
like a contented child is my soul.

Mt 18:3;

Hos 11:4;

Is 66:12-13

³Hope in the Lord, O Israel,
now and forever.

PSALM 132 (131)

Do not forget the descendants of your servant David.

¹Remember David, O Lord, and all his readiness, ²how he swore an oath to the Lord, to the Mighty One of Jacob.

³“I will not enter my house nor get into my bed,

⁴I will give no sleep to my eyes, no slumber to my eyelids, ⁵until I find a place for the Lord, a dwelling for the Mighty One of Jacob.”

⁶Then came the news, “The Ark is in Ephrathah, we found it in the fields of Jaar.”

⁷Let us go to where he dwells and worship at his footstool!

⁸Arise, O Lord, and come to your rest, you and the ark of your might.

⁹May your priests be arrayed in glorious mantle; may your faithful ones shout in gladness.

¹⁰For the sake of your servant, David, do not turn away the face of your anointed.

¹¹The Lord swore to David a promise, and he will remain true to it: “I will keep your descendance on your throne.

¹²If your sons keep my covenant and the decrees I have taught them, their sons, too, will sit forever upon your throne.”

¹³For the Lord has chosen Zion; he has desired it for his dwelling:

¹⁴“This is my resting place forever; this I prefer, here will I dwell.

¹⁵I will bless its fruits, its bread, and the poor will be satisfied.

¹⁶I will clothe its priests with glory and its faithful will sing in gladness.

¹⁷From here a savior shall come forth, a son of David; here shall shine forever the lamp of my anointed.

¹⁸In shame will I clothe his enemies, but upon his head a crown shall shine.”

110:4;
2S 7:
12:16;
17:11-14;
Ps 89:20;
Acts
2:30

68:17

6:41;
Is 61:10;
Jer 31:14

Ezk
29:21;
Is 11:1;
Jer 33:15;
Zec 3:8;
Lk 1:69

PSALM 133 (132)

What a marvel: fraternal love! Our unity in God’s service as well as Christian friendship that is lasting and deep are gifts of the Holy Spirit dwelling in our hearts. “Love and be united so that the world may believe.”

This is yet another psalm inspired by the sight of the Temple where the Levites and the priests, the “sons of Aaron,” celebrated the cult together and sang continual praise. There will always be the need of Christian communities vowed to the service of God.

¹How good and delightful to see kindred living together in unity!

²It is like precious oil poured upon Aaron’s head, running down his beard onto the collar of his robes.

³It is like the dew of Hermon coming down the mountains of Zion, where the Lord confers his blessing: life everlasting.

87

30:25, 30

Hos 14:6;
Dt 28:8;
30:20;
Ps 36:10

PSALM 134 (133)

A song of praise. This was perhaps used in the Temple during a night ceremony, when the priests replaced each other in praising God.

At times, Jesus spent the entire night in prayer. Jesus went up a hill to pray alone.

¹Come, bless the Lord, all you servants of the Lord,

135:1-2

We can think of our companions who work during the night, of those who are sick and cannot sleep, so that their work, their fatigue, their sufferings may be a song of praise to the Lord.

who minister by night in the house of the Lord, in the courts of the house of our God.

²Raise your hands to the sanctuary and bless the Lord.

³May the Lord bless you from Zion, he who made heaven and earth.

141:2;
Is 30:29;
9:33;
23:30
128:5;
118:26;
Num 6:24

PSALM 135 (134)

Praise the Lord who chose us for himself.

¹ Alleluia!

Praise the name of the Lord. O servants of the Lord, ²praise him, you who serve in the house of the Lord, in the courts of the house of our God.

³Praise the Lord, for he is good, praise his name, for it is beautiful;

⁴for the Lord has chosen Jacob as his own, Israel as his possession.

⁵I know that the Lord is great, that our Lord is above all gods.

⁶Whatever the Lord pleases, he does—in heaven and on earth, in the seas and in their depths.

⁷He raises clouds from the ends of the earth; he hurls down lightning with the rain; and from his vaults he lets loose the wind.

⁸It was he who killed the firstborn in Egypt, both people and beasts.

⁹It was he who worked signs and wonders in your land, O Egypt, against Pharaoh and all his officers.

¹⁰He destroyed mighty nations and slew powerful kings—

¹¹ Sihon, king of the Amorites, Og, king of Bashan, all the kings of Canaan.

¹²He gave their land as an inheritance to Israel, his people.

¹³Your name, O Lord, will endure forever; your renown, O Lord, throughout the ages.

¹⁴For the Lord vindicates his people and shows mercy to his servants.

¹⁵The nations' idols are but gold and silver, the work of human hands.

¹⁶They have mouths that cannot speak, eyes that cannot see, ¹⁷ears that cannot hear; neither is there breath in their mouths.

¹⁸Their makers will be like them, so will all who trust in them.

¹⁹Bless the Lord, house of Israel; bless the Lord, house of Aaron; ²⁰bless the Lord, house of Levi; bless the Lord, all you who fear him.

²¹Blessed be the Lord from Zion, he who dwells in Jerusalem.

102:13

Dt 32:36

115:4-6

115:8

115:9-11

PSALM 136 (135)

Give thanks to the Lord. Thanksgiving hymn used for the Passover, feast of the liberation of God's people.

¹ Alleluia!

Give thanks to the Lord, for he is good, his kindness endures forever.

²Give thanks to the God of gods, his kindness endures forever.

³Give thanks to the Lord of lords, his kindness endures forever.

⁴He alone does great marvels, his kindness endures forever.

⁵In wisdom he made the heavens, his kindness endures forever.

⁶He set the earth upon the waters, his kindness endures forever.

⁷He made the great lights, his kindness endures forever,

72:18;
15:11

Pro 3:19;
8:27-29

24:2

Gen 1:16

134:1;
113:1

33:12;
19:5;
Dt 7:6

18:11;
Ps 95:3

115:3

Jer 10:13;
51:16

136:10;
12:29

136:17-22

7:3

Dt 10:17

	⁸ the sun to rule over the day, his kindness endures forever,	¹⁷ He struck down great kings, his kindness endures forever,
	⁹ the moon and stars to rule the night, his kindness endures forever.	¹⁸ and killed mighty kings, his kindness endures forever,
78:51; 135:8	¹⁰ He slew the firstborn of Egypt, his kindness endures forever,	¹⁹ Sihon, king of the Amorites, his kindness endures forever,	Dt 2:30
	¹¹ and brought Israel out, his kindness endures forever,	²⁰ and Og, king of Bashan, his kindness endures forever.	Dt 3:1...
Dt 4:34	¹² with strong hand and outstretched arm, his kindness endures forever.	²¹ He gave their land as an inheritance, his kindness endures forever,	44:3
14:21...	¹³ He split the Sea of Reeds, his kindness endures forever,	²² a heritage to Israel his servant, his kindness endures forever.	Is 41:8; 44:21
	¹⁴ and made Israel pass through it, his kindness endures forever,	²³ He remembered us in our humiliation, his kindness endures forever,	Lk 1:48
	¹⁵ drowning Pharaoh and his army, his kindness endures forever,	²⁴ and freed us from our oppressors, his kindness endures forever,	106:43; Lk 1:71
	¹⁶ and led his people through the desert, his kindness endures forever.	²⁵ he who gives food to all creatures, his kindness endures forever.	104:27; 145:15-16
Dt 8:2, 15		²⁶ Give thanks to the God of heaven, his kindness endures forever!	Dn 2:18

PSALM 137 (136)Could I forget you, Jerusalem?

¹ By the streams of Babylon, we sat and then wept as we remembered Zion.	Ezk 3:15; Lm 3:48
² When on the poplars we hung our harps	Is 24:8; Jer 25:10;
³ our captors asked for song.	Lm 5:14
Our tormentors wanted songs of joy: “Sing to us one of the songs of Zion!”
⁴ How could we sing the Lord’s song in a strange and alien land?
⁵ If I forget you, O Jerusalem, may my right hand fall useless!	Jer 51:50
⁶ May my tongue cleave to my palate if I remember you not, if Jerusalem is not the first of my joys.	122:1
⁷ Remember, Lord, the Edomites —what did they do when Jerusalem fell? They said, “Tear the city down, tear it down to its foundations!”	Ezk 25: 12-14; 35; Ob 1: 10-14; Lm 4: 21-22
⁸ O daughter of Babylon, you will be sacked happy is he who repays you and does to you what you have done to us!	Is 47:1; Jer 50— 51; Rev 18:6
⁹ Happy is who seizes your infants and dashes them against the rocks!	Is 14:22; Hos 14:1

PSALM 138 (137)

Your hands lead all for my good. A prayer for the times when we are pleased with God and we would like heaven and earth to share our joy and thanksgiving.

¹I thank you, O Lord, with all my heart, for you have heard the word of my lips.
I sing your praise in the presence of the gods. 9:2

²I bow down towards your holy temple and give thanks to your name, for your love and faithfulness,
for your word which exceeds everything. 5:8

³You answered me when I called;
you restored my soul and made me strong. Is 40:29

⁴O Lord, all kings on earth will give you praise, when they have heard your words. 68:33;
Mal 1:11

⁵They will celebrate the ways of the Lord,
“great is the glory of the Lord!”

⁶From above, the Lord watches over the lowly;
from afar, he marks down the haughty. Is 57:15

⁷If I walk in the midst of trouble, you give me life. 23:5
With outstretched arm,
you save me from the wrath of my foes,
with your right hand you deliver me.

⁸How the Lord cares for me!
Your kindness, O Lord, endures forever. 57:3;
100:5
Forsake not the work of your hands.

PSALM 139 (138)

God everywhere, in all, knows all. A prayer filled with admiration of God’s wisdom: “Everything is uncovered and laid bare to the eyes of Him to whom we render account” (Heb 4:13).

There is a way of contemplating the presence of the all-powerful God which crushes us. There is another way which fills us with assurance. The Bible cannot contemplate this unfathomable mystery of God without immediately coming back to the struggles of the real world: its God has a passion for justice, and the faithful person cannot be satisfied with half-measures or compromise with evil. This accounts for the declaration which shocks some but we can guess its inspiration which is always valid: “I hate them, they have become my foe.” It is actually a hatred of evil.

¹O Lord, you know me:
you have scrutinized me. Jer 12:3

²You know when I sit and when I rise; beforehand you discern my thoughts. 2K 19:27;
Job 31:4;
Ps 44:22;
Heb 4:13

³You observe my activities and times of rest;
you are familiar with all my ways.

⁴Before a word is formed in my mouth,
you know what it is all about, O Lord.

⁵From front to back you hedge me round, shielding me with your protecting hand.

⁶Your knowledge leaves me astounded, it is too high for me to reach.

⁷Where else could I go from your Spirit?
Where could I flee from your presence?

⁸You are there if I ascend the heavens;
you are there if I descend to the depths.

Am 9:2-3;
Job 11:
8-9;
23:8-9;
Jer 23:
23-24;
Pro 15:11

⁹If I ride on the wings of the dawn and settle on the far side of the sea, ¹⁰even there your hand shall guide me and your right hand shall hold me safely.
¹¹Shall I say, "Let darkness hide me,
I prefer the night as my light?"

¹²But darkness for you is not dark and night for you shines as the day.

Job
12:22;
Dn 2:22
Job 10:8

¹³It was you who formed my inmost part and knit me together in my mother's womb.

¹⁴I thank you for these wonders you have done,
and my heart praises you for your marvelous deeds.

¹⁵Even my bones were known to you when I was being formed in secret, fashioned in the depths of the earth.

¹⁶Your eyes saw the course of my days;
they were all recorded in your book before any of them came to be.

Mal 3:16;
Dn 7:10;
Ps 69:29;
Job 14:5;
Rev 20:12

¹⁷How difficult it is to grasp your thoughts,
O God!

Their number cannot be counted.

Job 11:7;
Sir 18:5-7;
Rom 11:33

¹⁸If I tried to do so, they would outnumber
the sands;

40:6

I am never finished with you.

¹⁹If only you would slay the wicked, O God, and drive away from me the violent!

119:115

²⁰They rebel falseheartedly, your foes blaspheme your name.

Job 21:14

²¹I hate those who hate you, O Lord, and loathe those who defy you.

119:158;
5:11

²²I hate them deeply,
they have become my foes.

²³Search me, O God, and know my heart;
try me and know my thoughts.

17:3;
26:2

²⁴See if my steps are going astray, and lead me in your eternal way.

5:9;
143:10

PSALM 140 (139)Free me from the wicked.

²O Lord, deliver me from the evil one, protect me from violent people, ³forever plotting evil and stirring up strife.

Rom 3:13 ⁴They have tongues sharp as a serpent's and venomous lips.

⁵Save me, O Lord, from the hands of the wicked, preserve me from the hands of the violent, who have planned to trip my feet.

Jer 18:22; Ps 57:7; Sir 12:16 ⁶The arrogant have set a snare for me; they have spread out their nets to entrap me along my path.

31:15 ⁷I say to the Lord, "You are my God." Hear, O Lord, my voice in supplication.

⁸O God, my Lord, my strength and salvation, in the day of battle you shield my head.

⁹Do not grant, O Lord, the desires of the wicked; do not let their evil schemes succeed.

¹⁰Let my attackers be overwhelmed by the mischief they prepared and not lift up their heads.

¹¹Let burning coals rain upon them; let them be cast into the depths, never to rise again.

¹²Do not let the slanderer thrive on earth; let disaster hunt down the violent.

¹³I know that the Lord upholds the cause of the afflicted, and justice will be done to the poor.

¹⁴The just shall praise your name, the upright shall dwell in your presence.

Gen 19:24; Num 16:31; Ps 11:6

55:24

11:7; 16:11; 17:15

PSALM 141 (140)

Do not lead us into temptation. May God grant us that we resist the seduction of the world around us but that also we listen to those who correct us.

¹Lord, I call on you, hasten to help me! Listen to my plea when I call to you.

29:39; 30:8; Num 26:4 ²Let my prayer rise to you like incense, as I lift up my hands as in an evening sacrifice.

³O Lord, set a guard at my mouth, keep watch at the gate of my lips.

⁴Let not my heart be drawn to evil; let me not be enticed into evil acts in company with sinners, and let me not partake of their delights.

Pro 9:8; 25:12; 27:6-9 ⁵Rather the reproach and the just scourge, than the oil of the wicked anointing my head.

⁶When their rulers are flung upon the rock, only then will these wicked learn that I was tolerant with them, ⁷when the earth opens to swallow them and their bones are scattered at the edge of the netherworld.

⁸But my eyes are turned to you, O God, my Lord; strip me not of life, for you are my refuge.

⁹Keep me from the trap they have set for me, keep me from the net laid by evildoers.

¹⁰Let the wicked fall into their own snares, while I alone escape safe and free.

7:16; 35:8; Pro 26:27

PSALM 142 (141)

Prayer during trials. The prayer of someone in the most dire poverty. This psalm is applicable to the passion of Christ and St. Francis of Assisi prayed it when he was dying.

²I cry aloud to the Lord,
in a loud voice I beseech the Lord.

³Before him I pour out my sorrows,

before him I lay bare my troubles
⁴and my spirit grows faint.
 But you know my path.

139:24;
 141:9

Along the way I walk they have hidden a trap for me.
⁵Look to my right and see:
 no one recognizes me.
 I have lost all means of escape;
 no one wants to help me.

121:5

⁶I cry to you, O Lord;
 I say, "You are my refuge,
 my portion in the land of the living."

91:2, 9;
 16:5

⁷Listen to my groaning,
 for I am in deep despair.
 Rescue me from my pursuers,
 for they are too strong for me.

79:8

⁸O, set me free from captivity, that I may praise your name!
 Then the righteous will gather about me when they see that you took care of me.

88:9;
 Lm 3:7

PSALM 143 (142)

Repetition of preceding psalm.

¹O Lord, hear my prayer, listen to my cry for mercy; answer me, you who are righteous and faithful.

102:3;
 28:1;
 88:5

²Do not bring your servant to judgment, for no mortal is just in your sight.

Job 9:2;
 14:3-4;
 Eccl 7:20;
 Rom 3:20

³The enemy has pursued me, crushing my life to the ground, sending me to darkness with those long dead.

7:6;
 Lm 3:6

⁴And so my spirit fails me, my heart is full of fear.

142:4;
 Job 17:1

⁵I remember the days of long ago;
 I meditate on what you have done and consider the work of your hand.

77:6;
 77:13

⁶I stretch out my hands to you, and thirst for you like a parched land.

63:2

⁷O Lord, answer me quickly: my 10:1;

 69:18;

spirit is faint with yearning. Do not hide your face from me; save me from going down to the pit.

⁸Let the dawn bring me word of your love, for in you alone I put my trust. Show me the way I should walk, for to you I lift up my soul.

17:15;
 25:1-2;
 86:4

⁹Rescue me from my enemies, O
 Lord, for to you I flee for refuge.

¹⁰Teach me to do your will, for you are my God. Let your Spirit lead me on a safe path.

25:4-5

¹¹Preserve me, O Lord, for your name's sake; free me from distress, in your justice.

¹²You who are merciful, crush my enemies and destroy all my foes, for
 I am your servant.

54:7;
 116:16

PSALM 144 (143)

Happy the people whose God is the Lord! The first part of this psalm repeats verses of other psalms, especially Psalm 18. The second part, with simple images, reflects a yearning for heaven, where there will be no more tears or grief.

18:47; 18:35
18:3; 18:48
¹Blessed be the Lord, my rock, who trains my hands for war and my fingers for battle—²my loving God, my fortress; my protector and deliverer, my shield where I take refuge, who conquers nations and subjects them to my rule.

8:5
³O Lord, what are humans that you should be mindful of them, the race of Adam, that you should care for them?

39:6-7; Job 14:2
⁴They are like a breath, their days pass like a shadow on earth.

18:10; 104:32; Is 63:19
⁵Bend your heavens, O Lord, and come down; touch the mountain and make it smoke.

18:15
⁶Flash forth lightning and rout the foe; shoot your arrows and scatter them.

18:17
⁷From above, reach down and draw me out of the deep waters, from the hands of foreigners ⁸whose mouths speak falsehood, whose words are full of deceit.

33:2-3
18:51
⁹I will sing a new song to you, O God, I will make music on the ten-stringed harp, ¹⁰for you who give victory to kings and deliver David, your servant.

¹¹Rescue me from the evil sword and from the hands of foreigners, whose mouths speak falsehood, whose words are full of deceit.

¹²May our sons be like plants well-nurtured and full grown, and our daughters like pillars that adorn the corners of the temple.

¹³May our barns be full, with every kind of provision.

Lev 26:4-5; Dt 7:13
May our sheep increase by thousands, even by tens of thousands, in our pastures.

Lev 26:6; Is 65:19
¹⁴May our cattle be strong and fruitful; and may there be an end to raids and exile, to cries of distress in our streets.

29:11; 33:12
¹⁵Happy are the people so blessed; happy the people whose God is the Lord!

PSALM 145 (144)

Bless the Lord forever. This psalm is like a litany: God is justice, faithfulness, goodness, the author of wonders. It invites us to discover the immense riches of God in his work and his revelation in the person of Christ.

44:5
I will extol you, my God and King; I will bless your name forever.

34:2; 68:20
²I will praise you day after day and exalt your name forever.

48:2; 95:3; Job 36:26
³Great is the Lord, most worthy of praise; and his deeds are beyond measure.

71:18; 78:4
⁴Parents commend your works to their children and tell them your feats.

⁵They proclaim the splendor of your majesty and recall your wondrous works.

⁶People will proclaim your mighty deeds, and I will declare your greatness.

⁷They will celebrate your abundant kindness, and rejoice in singing of your justice.

103:8
⁸Compassionate and gracious is the Lord, slow to anger and abounding in love.

103:13; Wis 1:13-14
⁹The Lord is good to everyone; his mercy embraces all his creation.

¹⁰All your works will give you thanks; all your saints, O Lord, will praise you.

you satisfy the living according to their needs.

93:1; 29:11
 11 They will tell of the glory of your kingdom and speak of your power, 12 that all may know of your mighty deeds, your reign and its glorious splendor.

17 Righteous is the Lord in all his ways, his mercy shows in all his deeds.

Dt 32:4

Dn 3:100; Ps 102:13; 1Tim 1:17; Rev 11:15
 13 Your reign is from age to age; your dominion endures from generation to generation.

18 He is near those who call on him, who call trustfully upon his name.

Dt 4:7; Jer 29:13; Is 58:9

The Lord is true to his promises and lets his mercy show in all he does.

19 He fulfills the wish of those who fear him; he hears their cry and saves them.

34:18

94:18; 146:8
 14 The Lord lifts up those who are falling and raises those who are beaten down.

20 For those who love him, the Lord has compassion; but the wicked, he will destroy.

Jdg 5:31

104; 27-28; Mt 6:25
 15 All creatures look to you to be fed in due season; 16 with open hand

21 Let my mouth speak in praise of the Lord, let every creature bless his holy name, for ever and ever.

PSALM 146 (145)

The Lord frees the oppressed. The extent of human anguish—the hungry, the prisoners, the oppressed—has reached such a point that the powerful of this earth alone are incapable of finding a solution for it. Only God can give the world justice, peace, and hope. He has sent me to give Good News to the poor; to announce freedom to prisoners...

Let us not be drawn away by pastimes which devour time, but let us look at reality. The world is full of evil and injustice and God asks us to do what he does: to “straighten what is crooked.”

Let us proclaim without fear that God is the one who liberates the poor. The more we are convinced of this, the more shall we try to share the Lord’s thoughts, placing our lives at the service of the marginalized, the hungry and the humiliated.

¹ Alleluia!

Praise the Lord, my soul!

² I will sing to the Lord all my life;
 I will sing praise to God while I live.

104:33; 7:18

³ Do not put your trust in princes, in a great one who cannot save.

Is 2:22

⁴ Not sooner his spirit has left,
 that he goes back to the earth;
 on that very day, any plan comes to nothing.

90:3; 104:29; Ecl 12:7; 1Mac 2:63

⁵ Blessed are they whose help is the God of Jacob,

Jer 17:7; Ps 2:12

whose hope is in the Lord their God,

⁶ maker of heaven and earth,
 the sea and all they contain.

24:1; 121:2; 124:8

The Lord is forever faithful;

⁷ he gives justice to the oppressed and gives food to the hungry.
 The Lord sets the prisoners free.

103:6; 68:7; Is 49:9; 61:1

⁸ The Lord gives sight to the blind, the Lord straightens the bent.

145:14; 11:7

⁹The Lord protects the stranger, sustains the widow and the orphan.

22:20;
22:21;
Ps 68:6

^{8c}The Lord loves the virtuous, but he brings to ruin the way of the wicked.

¹⁰The Lord will reign forever,
your God, O Zion,
from generation to generation. Alleluia!

15:18;
Ps
145:13

PSALM 147 (146-147)

For the Jews, Jerusalem was more than a capital: it was the Holy City where God dwelt in his Temple. His presence protected the city and the people against hostile forces: Jerusalem is really the Church. Our God fills the distance between the order of the universe and the life of each one of us. He calls the stars by name and helps the humble. He is intimately near to each one of his children but he comes to them through the reality—so humanly deceiving in many cases—of his Church.

The Jews marveled at the transformation of water into ice: how could God so transform the elements? In the same way we marvel, when suddenly God melts situations in our world that seemed permanently solidified.

Rejoice, Jerusalem! Let the Church rejoice because the Lord has “strengthened the bars of her gates.” The powers of evil and death will not overcome her. The Lord blessed her children and gave them his peace, not that of the world. He feeds his Church with his word and the best of wheat: his body-made-bread of life.

¹ Alleluia!

92:2

How good it is to sing to our God,
how sweet and befitting to praise him!

²The Lord rebuilds Jerusalem;
he gathers the exiles of Israel;

Is 11:12;
56:8;
Jer 31:10

³he heals their broken hearts and binds up their wounds.

Jer 33:6;
Is 61:1;
Job 5:18

⁴He determines the number of stars,
he calls each of them by name.

Is 40:26;
Bar 3:35

⁵The Lord is great and mighty in power;
his wisdom is beyond measure.

Is 40:28

⁶The Lord lifts up the humble, but casts the wicked to the ground.

1S 2:7-8

⁷Sing to the Lord with thanksgiving, make music on the harp for our God.

⁸With clouds he covers the sky, and provides the earth with rain;
he covers the hills with grass,
and with plants for man to cultivate.

104:10-14;
104:27-28;
Jer 14:22;
Jl 2:23;
Job 5: 9-10

⁹He provides food for the cattle, even for the young ravens when they call.

Job
38:41;
Mt 6:26

¹⁰He is not concerned with the strength of a horse;

20:8-9;
33:16-18

nor is he pleased in the speed of a runner;

¹¹The Lord delights in those who fear him and expect him to care for them.

¹²Exalt the Lord, O Jerusalem;
praise your God, O Zion!

¹³For he strengthens the bars of your gates and blesses your children within you.

Jer 33:10;
Is 65:18;
Ps 48:14

¹⁴He grants peace on your borders and feeds you with the finest grain. Lev 26:6;
Ps 81:17
¹⁵He sends his command to the earth and swiftly runs his word. 29:3; 33:9;
107:20;
Is 55:10-11
¹⁶He spreads snow like wool;
 he scatters frost like ashes. Job 6:16;
37:10;
38:22
¹⁷He hurls down hail like pebbles;
 who will stand before his icy blasts?
¹⁸But he sends his word and melts the snow;
 he makes his breeze blow,
 and again the waters flow.
¹⁹It is he who tells Jacob his words, his laws and decrees to Israel. Dt 33:3-4 ²⁰This he has not done for other nations, so his laws remain unknown to them. Dt 4:7-8;
Acts 14:
16-17
Alleluia!

PSALM 148 (147)

Alleluia!

¹*Alleluia!* Praise the Lord from the heavens; praise him in the heavenly heights. Gen 1;
Ps 104
²Praise him, all his angels; praise him, all his heavenly hosts. 103;
20-21;
Job 38:7
³Praise him, sun and moon;
 praise him, all you shining stars.
⁴Praise him, you highest heavens and you waters above the skies. 1K 8:27;
Gen 1:7
⁵Let them praise the name of the Lord, at whose command they were made. Jer 31:
35-36
⁶He established them forever and gave each a fixed and lasting duty.
⁷Praise the Lord from the earth,
 you sea creatures and all the depths, ⁸clouds and snow, hail and lightning, storm winds that do his bidding, Is 44:23
⁹you mountains and all you hills, you fruit trees and cedars, Is 43:20
¹⁰you wild beasts and tame animals, you creeping things and winged fowl.
¹¹Kings of the earth and nations,
 princes and all rulers of the world, ¹²young men and maidens, old and young together—¹³let them praise the name of the Lord. Jer
31:13
 For his name alone is exalted; his majesty is above earth and heaven. 108:6;
113:4
¹⁴He has given his people glory;
 he has given a praise to his faithful, to Israel, the people close to him. Alleluia. 89:18;
Dt 7:6;
Eph 2:13

• 148 Once more: Praise God! It would seem that peoples more simple than ourselves have never finished praising God. Would something be wanting when we are assured of everything and our eyes constantly enjoy the marvels we have fabricated?

PSALM 149 (148)

National hymn. The people of God know that they are called to glory and happiness. They will be the instruments of God's justice. God uses his poor, gathered by Christ, to judge the world and bring it to salvation.

¹ Alleluia!

Sing to the Lord a new song, sing his praise in the assembly of his saints.

² Let Israel rejoice in his Maker, let the people of Zion glory in their King!

³ Let them dance in praise of his name and make music for him with harp and timbrel.

⁴ For the Lord delights in his people;
he crowns the lowly with victory.

⁵ The saints will exult in triumph;
even at night on their couches.

⁶ Let the praise of God be on their lips, and in their hands two-edged swords,

⁷ to wreak vengeance on the nations and punishment on the peoples,

⁸ to bind their kings in chains and their nobles in iron fetters,

⁹ to execute on them the written sentence:
this is the glory of all his saints. Alleluia!

40:10

87:7;
150:4;
68:26;
81:3Is 61:9;
62:4-5;
1S 2:8Ne 4:10-12;
2Mac
15:27;
Rev 19:15
Zec 9:
13-16PSALM 150 (149)

The book of psalms ends with a song performed by the whole orchestra which is symbolic: to be complete, the praise of God requires the participation of all nations, of all races, of all civilizations, and of all cultures. "Let everything that breathes sing praise to the Lord." Revelation will repeat it (5:13), "To him who sits upon the throne and to the Lamb, be praise, honor, glory and power for ever and ever."

Universal symphony!

¹ Alleluia!

Praise God in his sanctuary;
praise him in the vault of heaven.

² Praise him for his mighty deeds;
praise him for his own greatness.

³ Praise him with trumpet blast;
praise him with lyre and harp.

⁴ Praise him with dance and tambourines;
praise him with pipe and strings.

⁵ Praise him with clashing cymbals;
praise him with clanging cymbals.

⁶ Let everything that breathes sing praise to the Lord.
Alleluia!

Rev 5:13

PAGE 1312 – BLANK

The New Testament is a collection of 27 books of the Bible written in the seventy years following the resurrection of Jesus. The Church of the apostles saw in them an authentic expression of their faith. The Church has officially recognized these books as inspired by God, as the Word of God. Just as in the Old Testament these books did not simply fall from heaven, rather we owe them to the apostles and the evangelists of the early Church. They make no pretense to answer all our questions concerning the faith, but are a collection of testimonies where we discover the person of Jesus, the way in which the early Church saw itself animated and impelled by the power of his resurrection. It was God's will that Christians of every age would know Jesus and his work of redemption through these powerful testimonies.

But, why a New Testament after the Old?

Simply because each forms a part of salvation history and the revelation of God within history. The cross of Jesus separates these two phases.

In the Old Testament a people is being formed. They grow through their experience, and after having hoped for the thousand and one things that all people look for, they understand that what really matters is to hope for and to seek a Kingdom of Justice where people will be made new. When we read Sacred History, we see the direction it takes and discern different stages and key people. Israel discovers the great value of existence and of social life. We understand why it took them many centuries to discover something of the beyond. We grasp why the prosperity of the ancient kingdom of Israel could not last and why it was necessary for the people of God to gain insight and interiority into what they were losing in earthly power and glory. We see why, after many saviors, the unique Savior came for them while experiencing the final crisis under Roman oppression and the radicalization of political forces.

Thus, the message of Jesus was a call to overcome the narrow-mindedness of their nationalism and fanaticism in order to find here and now the kingdom and the justice of God. The history of Israel had to flow into a new era with a universal people of God, who would be rich in the knowledge of the Father and the Son. Such a people would practice non-violence that can overcome divisions and oppression. We know that the Jewish nation collapsed after a few years: it was the end of one world and the rupture of destiny.

The New Testament does not replace the Old. Jesus' preaching does not make the warnings of the prophets irrelevant. Love does not replace justice. The salvation promised to the Jewish people is not replaced by a "salvation of souls," but rather the Gospel is presented as the liberating truth which redirects history and moves all civilizations toward the goal of reunion and reconciliation in Christ of all human powers and creative energy in the universe.

When attempts to evangelize the Jews in Palestine failed, the first Jewish Christians turned with added incentive to other peoples and announced the Gospel to them. Within a few years, the church began to spread throughout the known world then, that is to say, the nations of the Greco-Roman empire. At first, it was a common belief among Christians that the message would shortly reach the ends of the world, and Jesus would return in glory for judgment. In the seventies this illusion disappeared: history would last longer than they had expected.

The Christian communities began to gather what had been written down to preserve the preaching of the apostles. They also spent time recalling significant experiences of the first Christians. Of the books thus produced, the church approved those which expressed the faith as it was received from the apostles and rejected others which, although very commendable, did not seem to transmit the most fundamental and universal message of the faith.

HOW THE GOSPELS WERE WRITTEN

The Documents

All the publications of the New Testament and the Gospels in particular, whether they be in English, Spanish, or any other language are translations of original texts written in Greek. Ancient manuscripts containing these texts were copied a number of times, until each of these texts was fixed with the invention of printing; it was probably in 1456 that Guttenberg printed the first Bible.

Those copying the manuscripts could not avoid making some mistakes. By comparing the various manuscripts, grouped according to their differences and their origin, critics can determine what were the original texts which the Catholic Church recognized as the expression of the apostolic faith and as the word of God. The question remains: who wrote these first Gospels and what was their source?

Some beautiful manuscripts of the New Testament from the fourth century have been preserved. They are confirmed by many other much older documents which contain paragraphs or sometimes complete books of the New Testament. Moreover, Christian writers of the second and third centuries oftentimes quote the sacred text upon which they have commented. John's Gospel is considered as dating from the years 90-100, and fragments have been discovered in Egypt, very far from the place of origin. The fragments are dated from the years 120-130.

In what follows, we will pay special attention to the Gospels, though they are not the most ancient writings of the New Testament. When the first three gospels were written, in the years 50-70, Paul had already sent his original letters.

The Authors of the Gospels

It is interesting to note that the first historians of the Church already made special mention of those considered by tradition as the authors of the three synoptic evangelists.

In 110, Papias of Hierapolis (near Ephesus) wrote: "Mark, Peter's interpreter, wrote with precision, though not in an orderly manner, all that he recalled about the sayings and deeds of the Lord. He accompanied Peter who taught according to the needs of the moment, not in the form of a composition and he made no mistakes in including some things as he remembered them. Matthew put together the sayings of the Lord in Hebrew and from then on everyone translated them according to his ability."

In 185, bishop and martyr Saint Irenaeus wrote: "Matthew published a gospel among the Hebrews and in their language, while Peter and Paul went out to evangelize Rome and establish the Church. After they left, Mark, a disciple and Peter's translator, wrote down Peter's preaching. Luke, Paul's companion, also wrote a book about the Gospel preached by Paul."

These ancient sources about which we could add more, were thoroughly examined by many modern biblical scholars, and lately they have once again been accepted as information of historical value.

Moreover, it would be a mistake to think that the Gospels had been written in one piece by men like Matthew, Mark or Luke who at a given time decided to record by means of the written word the active ministry and the teaching of Jesus.

From the Oral Tradition to Our Gospels

We know that Jesus died when he was still young and that he died without having written anything. Jesus had dedicated most of his time to forming the twelve apostles whom he had chosen. They lived with him, as was the custom of disciples with Jewish teachers. Jesus had them learn his teaching by heart. Instead of multiplying discourses, Jesus repeated the essential truths in many ways. We cannot doubt that, after the days of Pentecost, their concern was to give form to these instructions of Jesus, which were to be the catechesis of the early Church.

At the beginning the apostles witnessed to what they had seen and heard. Gradually there emerged a need to have a written record of their testimony to safeguard the memory: we ourselves often do this when, during a meeting, the sharing of the participants is recorded for the benefit of those not present.

The Christian communities of Palestine spoke Aramaic or Hebrew according to regions and environment. It follows that the first accounts were drawn up in these two languages. Gradually the texts referring to what Jesus said and did were regrouped; in this way the first Christian communities passed from an oral testimony to a written text: that of the Gospels.

At that time the Greek speaking Christian communities had become a majority and primitive texts were translated into that language.

The Gospel of John

The first three evangelists not only differ in their focus but also in rather different presentations of the deeds and words of Jesus; each actually has his own theology, his own special way of knowing Jesus and it is this profound view, this personal testimony which finally justifies the differences.

In the Gospel of John we find parts of an ancient Gospel as simple as Mark's, with more deeds than words of Jesus, which may have been addressed to the Christian communities of Samaria, and which were written in Aramaic. This was the foundation on which John developed long discourses of Jesus showing that salvation transforms humankind and renews creation.

CAN WE BELIEVE WHAT THE GOSPELS SAY?

Most of us have probably asked this: why do we have four testimonies instead of one, and what are they worth? Following what we have just said it will be easy to understand what follows:

- Not all the deeds and words of Jesus are found in the Gospel.

- In relating the words of Jesus, each evangelist expresses them in his own way and adapts them for the better understanding of his readers.

- The events are not always told in the order in which they took place; and things that Jesus said on different occasions can be mixed together in the same passage.

This is not to say that we cannot believe the testimony of the evangelists. We are not given a “photo,” a recording of Jesus' words, but rather four different views that complement each other. Why worry if there are certain contradictions in details. If at the gate of Jericho there was one blind man or two, what difference does it make in the basic message?

The unique place of the Gospels in Literature

The Gospels are exceptional and unique work among the literary writings of all time. Any comparison with other writings of its time, Christian or otherwise, shows a tremendous contrast—in the Gospels, simplicity and the desire to be temperate, in the other texts, what is marvelous, complex and “not down-to-earth.” A modern philosopher—not a believer—wondered why there were not more miracles in the Gospels. The Gospels carry within them the guarantee of their own authenticity. Taking into account what was said in the previous paragraph, modern criticism has not been able to find falsehood in the Gospels, even though it has scrutinized them with a magnifying glass for more than a century. What is more: the Gospels leave us with a deep sense of meaningfulness each time we are capable of opening ourselves to them.

Those who doubt

Still, those who question the testimony of the Gospels are many. At times it is because they think they see contradictions in the Gospels; more often, because it seems impossible for them to accept miracles. Even among believers who study the Gospels, some have reservations concerning the historical value of anything that could be termed a miracle in the literal sense.

This may be due to the fact that they have been trained in a “scientific” culture which relies only on human resources in order to solve every problem. In a world that covers itself with insurance, little is expected from God and God does not multiply miracles.

They reason the following way: if I cannot now see anything similar to what happened in the Gospel, how am I to believe that such things happened even then? Everything might be different if they were involved in poor or persecuted Christian communities. There they might witness the constant interventions of God for the benefit of those who can only hope in him alone. Actually, in these communities it is said: if today God works such miracles, why would he not have performed them in the time of Jesus and by his order?

In fact it is impossible to study the Gospel “impartially,” as we would do with any ordinary book, for it questions all of our life and not merely our ideas on any point. If we share the same faith of the apostles, we should have no difficulty accepting the sacred books while remaining aware of the critical questions. But if we do not fulfill the conditions that would allow us to “see God,” we feel uneasy until we find some reason to “reduce” the Gospel’s testimony to something which to us seems reasonable; that is to say that it will not question our stance in life itself. That is why many persons, though they admire the Gospels and refuse to consider it a lie, search for a thousand reasons to deny what seems shocking to them; its testimony of God-made-man; a God who moves around among people and who raises the dead.

Some objections

Therefore they especially cling to two main arguments:

– They say that the Gospels were written many years after the death of Jesus when popular imagination had already placed a halo around him. And so, they do not reveal the reality of Jesus to us, but rather the faith of the Church in the first century. (Let us remember what we said about the date when the Gospels were written.)

– They also say that the Gospels were writings destined for the catechesis and teaching of Christians: the facts they relate are aimed at supporting what is taught. Hence it is not important whether Jesus walked on the water or not; the episode was written to show that Jesus possessed divine power.

But what about the apostles? They had been Jesus’ witnesses, and their function was to remain his official witnesses within the Church. They knew what had actually happened; would they have remained silent while some were distorting the history of Jesus? The guarantee of the Gospel is found in the very structure of the Catholic Church, which was never a group of spontaneous believers carried away by enthusiasm or opportunism.

The Gospels came from the tradition of the apostles, and the Church retained them because it recognized this tradition in them. In those very years and during the following century, other “gospels” were written: “the gospel of Peter,” “the gospel of Thomas,” “the gospel of Nicodemus,” “the proto-gospel of James.” The Church, however, did not accept them because of the fantastic events recorded in them, or because of theological orientation which did not conform to the teaching received from the apostles.

PAGE 1318 – BLANK

MATTHEW

INTRODUCTION

Who was Matthew, also known as Levi? We read in the Gospel that he was a tax collector and that Jesus made him one of his apostles (Mt 9:9) and (Mk 2:13). The earliest witnesses (Papias around 130; Irenaeus around 180; Origen around 200) attribute to him a Gospel written in Hebrew that was still known at the time of Saint Jerome (fourth century). We only know the Greek version of this Gospel that must have been written during the same years by Matthew or by one of his collaborators.

In all probability, this Gospel was written in a Christian community where there were Christians of Jewish and Greek origin, perhaps in Antioch (see Acts 12:1; 19:1; 13:1). This was the time when the high priest, Ananias, had James, the Bishop of Jerusalem, stoned to death. At that time, Christians were excluded from the synagogues and they were no longer protected by Roman laws that had allowed the Jews not to offer sacrifices to Roman gods. Within a short time, they would be persecuted by Nero (64–65).

This Gospel attempts to show that Christians should not be concerned if their own people are rejecting them now. The official community that refused to believe was left outside of the Kingdom to which those who acknowledged the Messiah had access. This minority received the “goods things of the Covenant” that had been promised by the prophets. From then on, they will have to share them with all believers who will seek to join the Church whatever their origin may be.

From this perspective, the whole history of Jesus is presented as a conflict that ends up in a separation.

Matthew has singled out the figure of Jesus as a preacher and as a teacher of Scripture. Matthew is especially interested in the words of Jesus and in his Gospel; Jesus’ words are more numerous than in the other Gospels. On the other hand, his gestures and miracles are presented in the most schematic way possible.

Therefore, we should not be surprised that Matthew built up his Gospel around five “discourses” in which he gathered the words that Jesus had said on different occasions. These discourses are: The Sermon on the Mount: Matthew 5–7. This “Magna Carta” of the children of God is completed by ten signs of power that announce our liberation from sin: chapters 8 and 9.

– Instructions to the Missionaries: Matthew 10. These instructions are completed by the controversies that oppose Jesus and his adversaries (chaps. 11–12).

– Parables of the Kingdom: Matthew 13. Then comes the blinding of the Pharisees, while the faith of the Twelve and of Peter enables Jesus to establish his Church.

– Warnings to the Christian community: Matthew 18. The fundamental law of fraternal forgiveness is completed by various instructions. The guides of the Jewish people are closed, showing by contrast what the guides of the Christian people will have to be.

– How to live while waiting for the end of the world: Matthew 24 and 25.

Matthew put the first two chapters on the infancy of Jesus to serve as an introduction. First, he recalls how Joseph adopted the child born of the Virgin Mary as the son of David. Then we have accounts of a special type, in which Matthew shows little concern for the historicity of the facts, since his intention is to present a theological teaching by way of images. These two chapters form a whole (1:1–4:16) with the activity of John the Baptist who introduces the Son of God in his public life.

The roots of Jesus

Lk 3:
23-38

1 • ¹This is the account of the genealogy of Jesus Christ, son of David, son of Abraham.

²Abraham was the father of Isaac, Isaac the father of Jacob, Jacob the father of Judah and his brothers.

1:34;
2:4;
Gen
38:29;
Ru 4:13

³Judah was the father of Perez and Zerah (their mother was Tamar), Perez was the father of Hezron, and Hezron of Aram. ⁴Aram was the father of Aminadab, Aminadab of Nahshon, Nahshon of Salmon.

Ru 4:13

⁵Salmon was the father of Boaz. His mother was Rahab. Boaz was the father of Obed. His mother was Ruth. Obed was the father of Jesse.

2S 12:24

⁶Jesse was the father of David, the king. David was the father of Solomon. His mother had been Uriah's wife.

⁷Solomon was the father of Rehoboam. Then came the kings: Abijah, Asaph, ⁸Jehoshaphat, Joram, Uzziah, ⁹Jotham, Ahaz, Hezekiah, ¹⁰Manasseh, Amon, Josiah.

¹¹Josiah was the father of Jehoniah and his brothers at the time of the deportation to Babylon.

¹²After the deportation to Babylon, Jehoniah was the father of Sathiel and Salathiel of Zerubbabel.

¹³Zerubbabel was the father of Abiud, Abiud of Eliakim, and Eliakim of Azor. ¹⁴Azor was the father of Zadok, Zadok the father of Akim, and Akim the father of Eliud. ¹⁵Eliud was the father of Eleazar, Eleazar of Matthan, and Matthan of Jacob.

¹⁶Jacob was the father of Joseph, the husband of Mary, and from her came Jesus who is called the Christ—the Messiah.

¹⁷There were then fourteen generations in all from Abraham to David, and fourteen generations from David to the deportation to Babylon, and fourteen generations from the deportation to Babylon to the birth of Christ.

2K 24:12;
36:9;
36:20

• 1.1 Many books in the Bible are careful to show that the events and persons they speak about are rooted in earlier history, for the whole Bible draws its strength from a continuity of history and from the fidelity of God to his promises. That is the meaning of this list of ancestors. Matthew prefers to call it, as do the other books of the Bible: the document of the origins.

Luke 3:23 has another genealogy of Jesus that aims to emphasize his solidarity with the whole human race.

There are 42 names on the list, arranged in three series of 14 names each, a symbolic number for the Jews. It is obvious that it is not a complete list.

Jesus is the son of Abraham. Abraham is the father of the believers. God promised to unite all nations around his race. Jesus is also the son of David: all Israel knew that the Savior would be a descendant of David.

The first series of names appears in Ruth 4:18. The second is made up of kings, descendants of David, mentioned in the Book of Kings. The Bible does not say anything about the descendants of Zerubbabel (Ezra 2:3).

The list extends to Joseph, the adoptive father of Jesus (v. 16). Among the Jews, this adoption was sufficient for Jesus to be considered, like Joseph, son of David.

Four names included in the list belong to women, all described in the Bible: Tamar, who gave everything so as not to lose the divine blessings; Rahab, a foreign prostitute whom the Bible praises (Jos 2); Ruth, another foreigner of exemplary conduct; and the widow of Uriah, the beautiful Bathsheba, who shared David's sin.

All of this background discreetly announces him who came down to save sinners and to open the Kingdom of Israel to the multitudes coming from the pagan world.

The Savior is the flower and fruit of our earth and of the chosen race at the same time (Is 45:8). God led the Jewish people to a degree of human and religious maturity where the coming and teaching of Jesus would take on its full meaning.

We must understand that we are in solidarity with Christ first of all through human ties. The history of the present time, as well as the history of our families, prepares the second coming of Christ to humankind.

Jesus born of a virgin mother

(Lk 1:27)

Lk 1:27;
Mt 2:5;
2:11

•¹⁸ This is how Jesus Christ was born: Mary his mother had been given to Joseph in marriage, but before they lived together, she was found to be pregnant through the Holy Spirit.

¹⁹ Then Joseph, her husband, made plans to divorce her in all secrecy. He was an upright man, and in no way did he want to discredit her.

²⁰ While he was pondering over this, an angel of the Lord appeared to him in a dream and said, "Joseph, descendant of David, do not be afraid to take Mary as your wife. She has conceived by the Holy Spirit, ²¹ and now she will bear a son. You shall call him 'Jesus' for he will save his people from their sins."

1:25;
Lk 1:31;
Acts
3:16;
4:12

²² All this happened in order to fulfill what the Lord had said through the prophet: ²³ The virgin will con- ceive and bear a son, and he will be called Emmanuel, which means: God-with-us. ²⁴ When Joseph woke up, he did what the angel of the Lord had told him to do, and he took his wife to his home. ²⁵ So she gave birth to a son and he had not had marital relations with her. Joseph gave him the name Jesus.

Is 7:14
Lk 1:31;
2:21

Wise men from the east

2 • ¹ When Jesus was born in Bethlehem, in Judea, during the days of king Herod, wise men from the East arrived in Jerusalem. ² They asked, "Where is the newborn king of the Jews? We saw the rising of his star in the East and have come to honor him."

Num
24:17

³ When Herod heard this he was greatly disturbed, and with him all Jerusalem. ⁴ He immediately called a meeting of all high-ranking priests and scribes, and asked them where the Messiah was to be born.

• 18. The wording of verse 16 should be noted. Jesus is not the son of Joseph. The beginning of the paragraph intends to remind us that Jesus is both a legitimate son of David through Joseph and the Son of God conceived through the Holy Spirit by a virgin-mother.

These short and almost bashful sentences do not dare to unveil the mystery of Mary, the virgin through whom life on earth touches God and offers itself as an oblation. A messenger breaks through the night and speaks with silent words: the world is open to the active presence of God.

Mary was engaged. Engagements gave to the Jewish people practically every right of marriage, especially conjugal rights. The only difference was that women continued to live under the parents' tutelage and in their parental home. The Jews were markedly a "macho" society. A woman necessarily belonged to a man, either to her father, her husband, or her son. Mary was already the wife of Joseph, but she could not be under his authority until he brought her to his home (vv. 20 and 24).

With reference to the virginity of Mary, see Luke 1:26.

The virginity of Mary was not in keeping with the Jewish mentality that gave first place to fecundity. It was not so unusual that Joseph would accept such a situation. At this time certain Jews belonging to the party of the Essenes lived celibacy, as did the monks.

Joseph made plans to divorce her in all secrecy. The Gospel is not precise as to his reasons for so doing. In any case it is unthinkable that people might have doubted Mary's fidelity.

The intervention of the angel in the Gospel is not to reassure Joseph but to inform him of his role in the plan of God: "You shall call him 'Jesus', and you will receive him as your son." Joseph was a "descendant of David" and Jesus adopted by Joseph would be a legitimate descendant of David. Most probably Mary did not even belong to the tribe of Judah, which was that of David, but like her cousin Elizabeth, she belonged to a family of priests of the tribe of Levi.

• 2.1 From the first Christian generations there have been popular narratives trying to relate all that was not known about Jesus and not part of the Gospel. These closely resembled the Jewish stories of the childhood of Abraham and Moses. The wise men, the star and the massacre of the children of Bethlehem

Jn 7:42

Mic 5:1;
2S 5:2

⁵“In the town of Bethlehem in Judea,” they told him, “for this is what the prophet wrote: ⁶*And you, Bethlehem, in the land of Judah, you are by no means the least among the clans of Judah, for from you will come a leader, the one who is to shepherd my people Israel.*”

⁷Then Herod secretly called the wise men and asked them the precise time the star appeared. ⁸Then he sent them to Bethlehem with the instruction, “Go and get accurate information about the child. As soon as you have found him, report to me, so that I too may go and honor him.”

⁹After the meeting with the king, they set out. The star that they had seen in the East went ahead of them and stopped over the place where the child was. ¹⁰The wise men were overjoyed on seeing the star again. ¹¹They went into the house, and when they saw the child with Mary his mother, they knelt and worshiped him. They opened their bags and offered him their gifts of gold, incense and myrrh.

¹²In a dream they were warned not to go back to Herod, so they returned to their home country by another way.

Escape to Egypt

• ¹³After the wise men had left, an angel of the Lord appeared in a dream to Joseph and said, “Get up, take the child and his mother and flee to Egypt, and stay there until I tell you, for Herod will soon be looking for the child in order to kill him.”

¹⁴Joseph got up, took the child

Lk 2:16;
Ps 72:10;
Is 60:1-6

2:22

1:20;
2:19

have sprung directly from those stories and it is useless today to study astronomical maps to find a comet that was visible at that time.

In this chapter then, Matthew uses these stories without the slightest problem about their authenticity. He uses them to show how Jesus lived in his own way what his people had undergone. That accounts for the quotations from the Old Testament with each one repeating the phrase: “in this way... was fulfilled....” It is a way of saying that the texts should be reread. They spoke of the people, and at the same time they announced the coming of Jesus. In a way, he would live what had already been lived—journeying, searching, rejoicing, and grieving—but with him all would have a new meaning.

The Wise Men could have been respected priests and seers of Zoroastrian religion. Here they stand for all the non-biblical religions. While the Jewish priests, chiefs of the people of God, do not receive notice of the birth of Jesus, God communicates the news to some of his friends in the pagan world. This lesson is good for all times: Jesus is the Savior of all people, and not only of those who belong to the Church.

The star reminds us that God calls each one according to him or her own personality. Jesus calls the fishermen of Galilee after a miraculous catch of fish; the pagans who look at the stars, God calls by means of a star. God knows how to communicate with us by means of events and through our own ideals, which guide us as stars. Whatever be the way, it will lead us to the one who is the light of God.

• 13. In relating the story about the slaughter of innocent children and the flight into Egypt, Matthew quotes two verses from the prophets Hosea and Jeremiah about the trials and sufferings of God’s people in past times. Jesus must live in exile and anguish, as did his ancestors. Persecution begins with his birth and will follow him till his death. Mary (and Joseph to a lesser degree) was associated with Jesus’ sufferings and saving mission.

Christian tradition has always held that the “Innocents” associated with the Passion of Christ without having wished it also shared in his glory without having merited it. This invites us to be mindful of the fact that the mysterious love of God envelops millions of massacred children and other hundreds of millions killed before seeing the light of day. What should we think of so many stifled possibilities? Individuals and society responsible for this disaster suffer the consequences; but God has all destinies in hand, he knows them in advance, and no one by destroying life is able to limit God’s generosity. No matter how much innocent blood the enemies of the Gospel spill, they will not be able to extinguish the Church or to block God’s plans.

Hos 11:1

and his mother, and left that night for Egypt, ¹⁵ where he stayed until the death of Herod. In this way, what the Lord had said through the prophet was fulfilled: I called my son out of Egypt.

¹⁶ When Herod found out that he had been tricked by the wise men, he was furious. He gave orders to kill all the boys in Bethlehem and its neighborhood who were two years old or under. This was done in line with what he had learned from the wise men about the time when the star appeared.

Jer 31:15

¹⁷ In this way, what the prophet Jeremiah had said was fulfilled: ¹⁸ A cry is heard in Ramah, wailing and loud lamentation: Rachel weeps for her children. She refuses to be comforted, for they are no more.

Joseph and Mary return to Nazareth

• ¹⁹ After Herod's death, an angel of the Lord appeared in a dream to Joseph and said, ²⁰ "Get up, take the child and his mother and go back to the land of Israel, because those who tried to kill the child are dead." ²¹ So Joseph got up, took the child and his mother and went to the land of Israel.

4:19

²² But when Joseph heard that Archelaus had succeeded his father Herod as king of Judea, he was afraid to go there. Joseph was given further instructions in a dream, and went to the region of Galilee.

• ²³ There he settled in a town called Nazareth. In this way, what was said by the prophets was fulfilled: He shall be called a Nazorean.

Is 11:1;
53:2;
Jdg 13:5;
Lk 2:39;
Acts 2:22

• 19. The return to Nazareth. Here we have the end of these stories that are intended to introduce us to the Gospel. They announce the mission of Christ: savior misjudged by his own, hounded by authority, he will turn towards the pagan nations. For Galilee was considered by the Jews of Judea as half-foreign and pagan (4:15). Jesus was to remain thirty years in this small village where he grew up and worked as a "carpenter" (Mk 6:3) while the world waited for salvation.

• 23. He shall be called a Nazorean. Matthew plays with this word that brings to mind nezer, or shoot (Is 11:1) and nazorite (Num 6). In those days there were religious groups who preached and baptized, as did John, and they were considered nazorites. Jesus was both nezer and nazorite.

Many people wonder what Jesus did between the ages of twelve, when he was seen in the Temple (Lk 2:41), and thirty, the approximate age of Jesus when he began his ministry. False pretenders take advantage of this Gospel's silence to speculate that Jesus went to India to learn magic and how to work miracles from the Hindu wonder workers, or even that he visited some outer-space goblins. It does not take much to imagine things!

Let us remember, first of all, that the Gospel is not a biography of Jesus, a narration of his life from birth to death. It seeks only to tell us the most important deeds and words of Jesus by which he gives us his message. It does not tell us what Jesus looked like, whether he was tall or stout, blond or dark, and many other things that did not interest the first Christians. The Gospels of Mark and John open with Jesus' baptism by John, after which Jesus began teaching. Later on, Matthew and Luke wrote a little about Jesus' childhood to help us understand the secret of his person.

Secondly, let us read Matthew 13:54-56. The people of Nazareth, astounded by his deeds, do not say: surely Jesus has learned this in foreign countries because he was abroad so much. They wonder: what has happened to the carpenter's son? We have known him for a long time... what has happened to him?

Thirdly, we can say that to speak the word of God is at the same time to speak a word of human experience. The prophets speak words of God, not as a tape recorder, but as people who feel something and have something to cry out. Jesus could not speak the word of God if he had not acquired, as a man, an exceptional wisdom of what is inside man (Jn 2:25). The years Jesus spent in Nazareth were not really lost. He absorbed the culture of his people and observed events affecting his nation experiencing manual labor, human relations, feelings, suffering and oppression. Jesus had to experience all these things to be our savior, so that

John the Baptist prepares the way*(Mk 1:1; Lk 3:1; Jn 1:19)*Mk 1:1-8;
Lk 3:1-18;
Jn 1:19

3 • ¹In the course of time John the Baptist appeared in the desert of Judea and began to proclaim his message, ²“Change your ways, the kingdom of heaven is now at hand!” ³It was about him that the prophet Isaiah had spoken when he said: A voice is shouting in the desert, ‘Prepare a way for the Lord, make his paths straight!’

Mk 1:15

Is 40:3

⁴John had a leather garment around his waist and wore a cloak of camel’s hair; his food was locusts and wild honey. ⁵People came to him from Jerusalem, from all Judea and from the whole Jordan valley, ⁶and they were baptized by him in the Jordan as they confessed their sins.

12:34;
23:33;
Lk 21:23;
Rom 1:18;
2:5;
5:9;
Eph 5:6;
Col 3:6;
Rev 6:16Jn 8:33;
Rom 4:12;
7:8

⁷When he saw several Pharisees and Sadducees coming to where he baptized, he said to them, “Brood of vipers! Who told you that you could escape the punishment that is to come? ⁸Let it be seen that you are serious in your conversion, ⁹and do not think: We have Abraham for our father. I tell you that God can raise children for Abraham from these stones! ¹⁰The axe is already laid to the roots of the trees; any tree that does not produce good fruit will be cut down and thrown in the fire.

7:19;
Lk 13:7;
Jn 15:6Mk 6:17;
Jn 1:26;
Acts 1:5;
11:16;

¹¹I baptize you in water for a change of heart, but the one who is coming after me is more powerful than me; indeed I am not worthy to carry his sandals. He will baptize you in Holy Spirit and fire. ¹²He has the winnowing fan in his hand and he will clear out his threshing floor. He will gather his wheat into the barn, but the chaff he will burn in everlasting fire.”

13:24;
19:4;
Mt 11:3;
Jn 1:15;
1:33
Is 41:16Jesus baptized by John(Mk 1:9; Lk 3:2; Jn 1:29)*

• ¹³At that time Jesus arrived from Galilee and came to John at the Jordan to be baptized by him. ¹⁴But John tried to prevent him, and said, “How is it you come to me? I should be baptized by you!”

Mk 1: 9-19;
Lk 3:
21-22;
Jn 1:29

¹⁵But Jesus answered him, “Let it be like that for now, so that we may fulfill the right order.” John agreed.

¹⁶As soon as he was baptized, Jesus came up from the water. At once, the heavens opened and he saw the Spirit of God come down like a dove and rest upon him. ¹⁷At the same time a voice from heaven was heard, “This is my Son, the Beloved; he is my Chosen One.”

Is 42:1;
Mt 12:18;
17:5Jesus tempted in the wilderness(Lk 4:1; Mk 1:12)*

4 • ¹Then the Spirit led Jesus into the desert that he might be put to the test by the devil. ²After spending forty days and nights without food, Jesus was hungry.

Mk 1: 12-13;
Lk 4:1-13Heb 2:18; 4:15

his words would be true, weighty and valuable for all times.

• 3.1 We have just said that the real beginning of the Gospel is the preaching of John the Baptist. Here Matthew compares Jesus with John, John’s baptism with that of Jesus. See commentaries on Mark 1:1 and Luke 3.

• 13. In this baptism Jesus identifies himself with his people, more precisely with this world of “untitled” people who went to hear a call to conversion. For him it is an occasion of deep religious experience recalling that of the great prophets. What the voice says gives Jesus his mission. He will be Son and Servant of the Father (Ps 2 and Is 42:1).

• 4.1 The commentary of this event is partly found in Luke’s Gospel (4:1-13).

Jesus is then Son of God in the sense this word had in his time: he is sent as king, prophet and savior and he knows it. How will he live this and how will God act towards his Son? He will be put to the test in the desert. In reality Jesus would undergo this test through-

27:40 ³Then the devil came to him and said, "If you are the Son of God, order these stones to turn into bread." ⁴But Jesus answered, "Scripture says: One does not live on bread alone, but on every word that comes from the mouth of God."

Is 52:1 ⁵Then the devil took Jesus to the holy city, set him on the highest wall of the temple, and said to him, ⁶"If you are the Son of God, throw yourself down, for scripture says: God has given orders to his angels about you. Their hands will hold you up lest you hurt your foot against a stone." ⁷Jesus answered, "But scripture also says: You shall not put to the test the Lord your God."

Dt 6:16; 1Cor 10:9 ⁸Then the devil took Jesus to a very high mountain, and showed him all the nations of the world in all their greatness and splendor. And he said, ⁹"All this I will give you, if you kneel down and worship me." ¹⁰Then Jesus

Dn 3:5;
Mt 2:11;
18:26;
1Cor
14:25;
Rev 4:10;
22:8

answered, "Be off, Satan! Scripture says: Worship the Lord your God and serve him alone!"

Dt 6:13

¹¹Then the devil left him, and angels came to serve him.

(Mk 1:14; Lk 4:14)

¹²When Jesus heard that John had been arrested, he withdrew into Galilee. ¹³He left Nazareth and went to live in Capernaum, a town by the lake of Galilee, at the border of Zebulun and Naphtali.

Mk 1: 14-15;
Lk 4:14

¹⁴In this way the word of the prophet Isaiah was fulfilled: ¹⁵*Land of Zebulun and land of Naphtali, crossed by the Road of the Sea, and you who live beyond the Jordan, Galilee, land of pagans:*

Is 8:23—
9:1

¹⁶*The people who lived in darkness have seen a great light; on those who live in the land of the shadow of death, a light has shone.*

Lk 1:79

out his ministry: his opponents would ask for signs and miracles, and his own disciples would want him to center more on himself. It is this permanent test that is here presented in a figurative way. The Gospel intentionally places this temptation in the desert at the beginning, and affirms that Jesus defeated the evil spirit before he had begun his mission.

After spending forty days and nights without food, Jesus was hungry. This duration of forty days (which symbolically represents the forty weeks a child remains in its mother's womb in preparation for a new birth) was already present in the life of Moses and Elijah: Exodus 24:18; 1 Kings 19:8. This fast is for Jesus what the command to sacrifice his son had been for Abraham, and for Moses the rebellion of a thirsty people or the incident of the golden calf. In a moment of full lucidity, when Jesus felt physically exhausted and spiritually strengthened by his fast, the devil tried to convince him that it was impossible to carry out his mission with the means God had proposed.

Strange as it is, the Gospel presents this encounter of Jesus with the tempter (devil) as a discussion on biblical texts between masters of the Law. The purpose, no doubt, is to show us that even biblical texts may lead us astray if we are without a spirit of obedience to God. The three temptations recall to mind those of the Hebrews in the desert (Ex 16:2; Ex 17:1; Ex 32). At the waters of Massah they grumbled against God for leading them where the going was difficult; later they put God to the test: "Could not he do something for them?" Finally they exchanged God and his Glory for another god of their own making: a golden calf. Jesus replies by quoting three texts from Deuteronomy, a book that speaks at length of the rebellion of the people of God in the desert. The perfect obedience of the Son contrasts with the infidelity of the Father's chosen people.

Jesus is victor in this trial, but after him the Church will have to confront these same temptations. She could be tempted to satisfy human desires instead of offering true salvation. Jesus teaches us to be strong against the tricks of the devil in using, as he did, the word of God.

The angels came to serve him. After rejecting the temptations, Jesus finds total peace. His purity of heart opens up for him a spiritual world hidden from human eyes, a world as real as the material things and beings surrounding him. In this spiritual world, as Son of God he is king among the spirits who are

•¹⁷ From that time on, Jesus began to proclaim his message, “Change your ways: the kingdom of heaven is near.”

Mk 1: 16-20; Lk 5:1-11; Jn 1:40
¹⁸ As Jesus walked by the lake of Galilee, he saw two brothers, Simon called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the lake, for they were fishermen. ¹⁹ He said to them, “Come, follow me, and I will make you fish for people.”

²⁰ At once they left their nets and followed him.

13:47
²¹ He went on from there and saw two other brothers, James, the son of Zebedee, and his brother John in a boat with their father Zebedee, mending their nets. Jesus called them.

²² At once they left the boat and their father and followed him.

Mk 1:39; 3:7-8; Lk 4:14-15, 44; 6:17-18; Mt 9:35; 12:15; 14:35; Mk 3:7-8; 6:54
²³ Jesus went around all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, proclaiming the good news of the kingdom, and curing all kinds of sickness and disease among the people.

Mk 6:55
²⁴ The news about him spread through the whole of Syria, and the people brought all their sick to him, and all those who suffered: the possessed, the deranged, the paralyzed, and he healed them all. ²⁵ Large crowds followed him from Galilee and the Ten Cities, from Jerusalem, Judea, and from across the Jordan.

Mk 3:7

The Beatitudes

(Lk 6:17)

5 • ¹ When Jesus saw the crowds, he went up the mountain. He sat down and his disciples gathered around him. ² Then he spoke and began to teach them:

Lk 6: 17-23; Mk 3:13; Lk 9:1

³ Fortunate are those who are poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

⁴ Fortunate are those who mourn, they shall be comforted.

⁵ Fortunate are the gentle, they shall possess the land.

Ps 37:11

⁶ Fortunate are those who hunger and thirst for justice, for they shall be satisfied.

Is 51:1; Sir 24:21

⁷ Fortunate are the merciful, for they shall find mercy.

18:33; Jas 2:13

⁸ Fortunate are those with a pure heart, for they shall see God.

Ps 24:4; 33:20

servants of his Father (see commentary on Dn 12:6).

• 17. Change your ways. The Greek word is oftentimes translated as “convert”, or “repent”. In 3:11 we put “change of heart”, which is the closest to the Greek word. This term can be understood in many ways. In the mouth of John the Baptist, “Be converted” means “turn away from your sins.” With Jesus, “conversion” means a renewal of life from inside out. The Gospel will tell us that this renewal follows the discovery of God’s mercy and is the work of his Spirit within us (see commentary on Mk 1:14).

The kingdom of heaven is near. The Jews at that time said “kingdom of Heaven” instead of “kingdom of God” (see commentary on Mt 5:1). Jesus proclaims that God comes to reign among us meaning that we receive definitive salvation.

The Ten Cities (v. 25). This is the territory also called Decapolis, where Jews and non-Jews were mixed. Let us note that Jesus’ ministry begins, not at the heart of Israel, but where is felt the presence of that majority of humankind who have not yet received the word of God.

• 5.1 Jesus went up the mountain. Matthew places this discourse somewhere in the hill country bordering the lake of Tiberias. The reason for mentioning a mountain is to remind us of Mount Sinai where Moses received the Law (Ex 19). In this first “discourse of Jesus” (see Introduction) Matthew presents him as a Master giving to Israel and to all humankind the new and definitive Law. The formula: but I say to you is repeated six times in order to highlight the contrast between the Law of Moses and the New Law.

Fortunate! This first paragraph introduces the new people of God; to them the Law is given. Let us not forget that for the Bible, the Law is not only a matter of commandments; it includes also God’s interventions and declarations which have made Israel a special people, called to a world mission. The Law had been ⁹Fortunate are those who work for peace, they shall be called children of God.

¹⁰Fortunate are those who are persecuted for the cause of justice, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

¹¹Fortunate are you, when people insult you and persecute you and speak all kinds of evil against you because you are my followers. ¹²Be glad and joyful, for a great reward is kept for you in God. This is how this people persecuted the prophets who lived before you.

Heb 12:4;
Jas 3:18;
1P 3:14

Jas 1:2

10:22;
1P 4:14;
Heb
11:32;
Jas 5:10

given to the “children of Abraham and Israel” who were guided out of Egypt by Moses. Exclamations like these abound: How fortunate you are, Israel! Meaning: What luck to have been chosen! And How privileged you are to be God’s people among all other nations! You are indeed fortunate for it is to you that God has spoken (Dt 33:29; Ps 144:15; Bar 4:4).

Right away the Gospel speaks of a converted people of God. No longer the people of the twelve tribes, with their land, their language, their frontiers, their national ambitions, but rather those God will seek among all nations. Who are these chosen ones who surely must consider themselves overjoyed to be so called? They are the poor, those who weep, those who have often been tempted to curse their misfortune, their sins, and their personal conflicts.

Here Matthew gives us eight beatitudes, while Luke 6:20-26 has only four. It is not important, however, for they form but one theme. The main difference between Matthew and Luke arises from the fact that their beatitudes are addressed to two different groups.

Luke presents the Beatitudes in the way they were proclaimed by Jesus. In Luke, Jesus addresses the whole assembly of common people, speaking as one of them. Like the prophets he speaks boldly and clearly: you, the poor, are the first beneficiaries of the promises of God.

Matthew instead adapts Jesus’ words to his audience of Christian believers. The Church had already spread and Christian communities brought together all kind of people: slaves, ordinary people and wealthy ones. Matthew tells them that the Gospel is significant for each of them. It is not only by being poor that they will please God, but also by their inner attitude and way of life. He says: Fortunate are those who are spiritually poor, adding the pure of heart, those who work for peace...

Luke points out those to whom the Gospel gives priority: the masses who are poor, the workers, the peasants and the marginalized. Matthew for his part teaches those already within the Church how they should behave to be worthy of the God who chose them.

Those said to be “fortunate” are not so because of what they suffer: the expression would not ring true. They are fortunate because they are admitted to the Kingdom.

The kingdom of heaven is theirs (v. 3) and following immediately: they possess the land. There is no real contradiction, it is only apparent.

First of all we must understand the term Heaven as used in Jesus’ time. Being exceedingly respectful of God, the Jews would not pronounce his name, referring to him with other words like Heaven, The Glory, The Power... The kingdom of Heaven means literally the kingdom of God, like the Father of Heaven means simply: God the Father. On reading the word Heaven, remember that Jesus usually meant by this word, not the reward we will obtain after death “in heaven,” but the kingdom of God that comes to us on this earth together with Jesus.

Likewise we translated as a great reward is kept for you in God (v. 12) the sentence that says “is kept for you in heaven.”

The real meaning of the land must also be understood. This land, for the Bible, was Palestine, because it was there that God would come to save his people. The Gospel, in turn, does not oppose what is material with what is spiritual: actually, the term “spiritual” is not used at all throughout the Gospel. When God spoke through the prophets, he promised his people a world where all their needs would be satisfied: banquets with wine aplenty (Is 25:6), long life, a land well-watered, freedom from oppression, a kingdom of justice. Over and above all that, God would live among his people and to them he would communicate his Spirit: They will be my people and I will be their God (Ezk 37:27).

In the Beatitudes, the kingdom of God is at the same time the land of Palestine promised to the children of Abraham and the land where peace reigns for God is present there. Those who hunger for justice will be given both bread and the holiness of God, because in the Bible justice also signifies: being as God wishes us to be. Because of this Jesus tells us that we shall be satisfied or consoled. Our consolation

Salt and light

(Mk 4:21; Lk 14:34; 8:16; 11:33)

Mk 9:50;
Lk 14:
34-35;
Lev 2:13;
Num
18:19

• ¹³You are the salt of the earth. But if salt has lost its saltiness, how can it be made salty again? It has become useless. It can only be thrown away and people will trample on it.

Is 49:6;
Jn 8:12;
9:5;
Phil 2:15
Lk 8:16;
11:33;
Mk 4:21

• ¹⁴You are the light of the world. A city built on a mountain cannot be hidden. ¹⁵No one lights a lamp and covers it; instead it is put on a lampstand, where it gives light to everyone in the house. ¹⁶In the same way your light must shine before others, so that they may see the good you do and praise your Father in heaven.

Jn 3:21;
15:8;
1Cor
10:31

on earth is to know and see that God loves us and cares for us and in spite of all, can overturn the situation of the oppressed. It is also to know that even when it seems he does not hear our prayer, our cross has meaning and purpose. Finally we must not forget that in our future life God will give us more than we could ever hope for or merit. It is certain, however, that Matthew more than Luke, has reorientated the language of Jesus, inviting us to look higher than what is immediate.

Waiting lasted until the coming of Jesus. Jesus tells us that a new age has begun: God is with us and his Kingdom is already here for those with a clean heart, meaning that their desires have been purified: they will see God.

Fortunate—the persecuted. Matthew, like Luke, develops this last beatitude, for, no matter where we are, we cannot live the Gospel without suffering persecution.

• 13. Jesus has just designated those who are called to the Kingdom. First of all he will clarify their mission: to be the light of the world and not merely a light in the world. This does not mean that all people are to enter the Church, but that the Church has to be salt and light to the world. The Bible mentions salt as the element that preserves food. The covenant of salt was the covenant of God with those who were to serve him forever (Num 18:19). So the disciples of Jesus are called salt of the earth because through them the world benefits from the lasting Covenant with God. They must continually enkindle in the world the de-

More perfect law

• ¹⁷Do not think that I have come to annul the Law and the Prophets. I have not come to annul them but to fulfill them. ¹⁸I tell you this: as long as heaven and earth last, not the smallest letter or dot in the Law will change until all is fulfilled.

Rom
3:31;
10:4

Lk 16:17;
21:32;
Mt 24:35;
Jas 2:10

¹⁹So then, whoever breaks the least important of these commandments, and teaches others to do the same, will be the least in the kingdom of heaven. On the other hand, whoever obeys them, and teaches others to do the same, will be great in the kingdom of heaven.

²⁰I tell you then, if you are not righteous in a much broader way

Rom
10:3;
Phil 3:9

sire and struggle for true justice and perfection, and not allow human societies to become satisfied with mediocrity.

You are the light: Jesus does not mean “You are the best in the world,” but “God has chosen you to be a minority and through you he will make himself known.” You will experience, (both you and the Church) much that you would perhaps prefer to avoid, but which will be for the world, a sign from God.

• 14. Children of light: Ephesians 5:8; 1 Peter 2:12; 1 Thessalonians 5:4.

• 17. Here begins the presentation of the new Law. It is far from what is often sought in a religion: practices to observe, fasts, prayers, good works with which one wins salvation. Jesus says little about this because the Bible has dealt at length with this subject, and the study of the Bible itself shows that these laws and practices are always linked to a certain culture, and have to be adapted to the times.

Law (v. 18): At times this word indicates all the religion of Israel. The Law and the Prophets: was a way of indicating the whole Bible.

Not the smallest letter or dot in the Law will change until all is fulfilled (v. 18). Jesus does not refer to the commandments. Rather he affirms that the religion founded on the Old Testament’s Scripture was a temporary, yet necessary, step in the history of salvation. The prophecies had to be fulfilled; the rites and sacrifices of that religion expressed in a veiled than the teachers of the Law and the Pharisees, you cannot enter the kingdom of heaven.

• ²¹ You have heard that it was said to our people in the past: Do not commit murder; anyone who does kill will have to face trial. ²² But now I tell you: whoever gets angry with a brother or sister will have to face trial. Whoever insults a brother or sister deserves to be brought before the council. Whoever calls a brother or a sister “Fool!” deserves to be 20:13;

Dt 5:17;
Lk 12:57

Eph 4:26;
Jas 1:
19-20

thrown into the fire of hell. ²³ So, if you are about to offer your gift at the altar, and you remember that your brother has something against you, ²⁴ leave your gift there in front of the altar, go at once and make peace with him, and then come back and offer your gift to God.

Mk 11:25;
Rom 13:9

²⁵ Don't forget this: be reconciled with your opponent quickly when you are together on the way to court. Otherwise he will turn you over to the judge, who will hand you over to manner the mystery of sin and mercy that would be fulfilled in the person and the work of Jesus. With him comes the perfect and definitive fellowship of God with humankind.

Lk 12:
58-59

For us as well, observing the laws of the Bible is not an end in itself. They are an expression of real love and are its guidelines. In obeying them we become receptive to the Spirit who will lead us. In this way we discover a “righteousness” or perfection far superior to the canonists of the time: the teachers of the Law and the Pharisees.

In verse 19 Jesus is referring to the commandments.

In verse 20, If you are not righteous in a much broader way, Jesus refers to the spirit of the Law.

Just when he is about to teach a new way of understanding the Law of God, Jesus warns us against the temptation of the easy way. Many could misinterpret the words of Jesus and say: It would be better if religion were less demanding and easier to practice! Because of this, Jesus points out that anyone who does not intend to fulfill the entire Law will not enter the Kingdom; nor will those who have ready excuses for their laziness: these commandments are not so important! To those who obey the Law, Jesus shows the spirit of the Law. For such as these the Gospel is not a comfortable road, but the call to a more perfect life.

• 21. Here we have the beginning of the opposites: You have heard... but now I tell you. This formula will be repeated six times.

Jesus alludes to the reading of the Bible which takes place each Sabbath in the synagogues; just as in the Church today each week has its assigned readings. It was the Hebrew text or its Aramaic translation (the spoken language) that was used. The leaders of the synagogue or visitors passing through gave a commentary. Jesus was known for speaking often in the assemblies and it is highly probable that he would have often said: You have heard (vv. 21, 27, 38) and I tell you, for he spoke with authority (Mt 7:29).

Jesus does not question the demands of the Bible, nor is he satisfied with a mere commentary; the law of Christ is a call for purification of heart, that is, of our intentions and our desires. It is a fresh enlightenment born of a new experience of God. When we turn towards the Father (and that is the great innovation: the imitation of God the Father: 5:48), we discover how imperfect are the human criteria of morality. Therefore, let us not call sin only that which is seen or condemned as such by people. Indeed my sins are all the bad thoughts that I keep inside and that produce evil fruits when the opportunity comes. See also Matthew 12:34.

Until you have paid the last penny (v. 26). Repairing the damage means more than just returning the money I have illegally taken. I must also question why I am so weak that I am carried away by any desire.

Often we recognize how lukewarm our love for God is and how short-lived our perseverance in doing good. This is the result of many years of wrongdoing. We are able to forget about the wrong we have done, but we fail to repair the damage caused to our whole person. Although we may feel happy and unconcerned, we carry a load within ourselves from the unsettled debts and accounts.

If we are not purified during this life, we will be during or after our death. The Church calls this painful purification “purgatory.” The transformation that should take place in us (1 Cor 15:51) is impossible unless the Spirit has completely burned out (Mt 3:11) our roots of evil.

the police, who will put you in jail.
26 There you will stay, until you have paid the last penny.

20:14 • 27 You have heard that it was said: Do not commit adultery. 28 But I tell you this: anyone who looks at a woman too lustfully has in fact already committed adultery with her in his heart.

18:8-9; Lk 17:1 29 So, if your right eye causes you to sin, pull it out and throw it away! It is much better for you to lose a part of your body than to have your whole body thrown into hell. 30 If your right hand causes you to sin, cut it off and throw it away! It is better for you to lose a part of your body than to have your whole body thrown into hell.

Dt 24:1; Mal 2:14-16; Mk 10:4 • 31 It was also said: Anyone who divorces his wife, must give her a written notice of divorce. 32 But what

I tell you is this: if a man divorces his wife, except in the case of unlawful union, he causes her to commit adultery. And the man who marries a divorced woman commits adultery.

19:9; Mk 10:11-12; Lk 16:18; 1Cor 7:10-11

Oaths

• 33 You have also heard that people were told in the past: Do not break your oath; an oath sworn to the Lord must be kept. 34 But I tell you this: do not take oaths. Do not swear by the heavens, for they are God's throne, 35 nor by the earth, because it is his footstool, nor by Jerusalem, because it is the city of the great king. 36 Do not even swear by your head, because you cannot make a single hair white or black. 37 Say yes when you mean yes, and say no when you mean no. Anything else you say comes from the devil.

20:7; Lev 19:12; Dt 23:22; Mt 23:16

Is 66:1; Mt 23:22; Jas 5:12

Ps 48:3

2Cor 1:17-19

• 27. Do not commit adultery. For many, conjugal fidelity is a burdensome and old-fashioned law, which they merely admire in others. Jesus replaces fidelity among the laws of the interior world, where God, the Faithful One is to reign.

If your right eye... Here we must underline the opposition between: your hand, your eye, and: you. In another place Jesus will say that we must be able to give up everything, but here he dares to add: even your physical integrity.

All of us are looking for happiness, promotion and security, but what are those criteria worth? All strive to live fully their life and enjoy without limits their own health and body, but here Jesus tells us that true life is elsewhere and that true self creates itself while accepting mutilations of the present life.

Is it only a matter of sacrificing what could drag us to "major fault and sin"? The word of Jesus goes far beyond. As much as we complain about the misery and meaninglessness of our life, we conserve it at any cost with the hope of still enjoying this world. What if real sin were to avoid any risk and self-sacrifice when God is calling?

Jesus speaks of a hell of fire, because there is nothing worse than this final result: a lost life that has not been fruitful, and the abortion of our eternal self.

• 31. Anyone who divorces his wife... See commentaries on Mark 10:1; Matthew 19:3.

Here this saying of Jesus is given as an example of the courageous decisions that a Christian may be called upon to make. God sometimes asks for heroic sacrifices. The one who does not choose the difficult way necessarily loses something of the Gospel.

Except in the case of unlawful union. These words are not found in the other quotations of this saying of Jesus. Why did Matthew put them? In fact there are two possible interpretations.

First, it can be understood that one spouse has an extra licentious relationship, and then the other is allowed to separate.

Second, it can be understood that the one entering the Church through baptism is living with an unlawful union, and then this marriage or concubinage does not tie him.

• 33. Do not take oaths. This sentence must not be understood: "You shall never take an oath", but: "In a general way, don't take oaths."

Many invoke the name of God on any occasion. Is it because they truly know him and have him in mind? If we use his name casually, it is because we do not experience the weight of his presence. What a lack of respect to call on God to testify to our sincerity when we do

Love of enemies*(Lk 6:29)*21:24;
Lev 24:20;
Dt 19:21

• ³⁸ You have heard that it was said: An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. ³⁹ But I tell you this: do not oppose evil with evil; if someone slaps you on your right cheek, turn and offer the other. ⁴⁰ If someone sues you in court for your shirt, give him your coat as well. ⁴¹ If someone forces you to go one mile, go two miles with him. ⁴² Give when asked, and do not turn your back on anyone who wants to borrow from you.

Lk 6:29;
Jn 18:22;
1Cor 6:7

Lk 6:31

Lev 19:18

• ⁴³ You have heard that it was said: Love your neighbor and do not not even recognize all that is false and unclean within us!

All the rest comes from the devil, and even the preoccupation of defending and justifying oneself in the eyes of others. See also Matthew 23:16; James 5:12.

• 38. An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. We read this in the Bible because in the world of that time it was a wholesome maxim (Dt 19:18-21). It claimed to put a limit to the thirst for vengeance and reminded judges and the community itself of the duty to defend its members against those who abuse the weak.

Do not oppose evil with evil. Jesus asks us to approach an adversary in the same way as this adversary may be approaching us: who is the wicked one?

Offer the other cheek: be the first to be free of the web of violence. As in judo, surprise the other by making the very move he was not expecting: he may then see that he was mistaken. Jesus has no doubt that this renunciation of violence and of our own interests obliges the Father to intervene and come to our aid. Do not forget that Jesus wants us to “see God” at work in our lives.

If someone forces you to go one mile. Jesus speaks to farmers who are humiliated and oppressed by foreign armies. Many times they are obliged to carry the burden of the soldiers. Their usual reaction is resigned submission concealing hatred and desire for revenge. Would they be capable of responding to such a counsel? It is certain that had they practiced it, they might have saved their nation from destruction.

do good to your enemy. ⁴⁴ But this I tell you: love your enemies, and pray for those who persecute you, ⁴⁵ so that you may be children of your Father in Heaven. For he makes his sun rise on both the wicked and the good, and he gives rain to both the just and the unjust.

⁴⁶ If you love those who love you, what is special about that? Do not even tax collectors do as much? ⁴⁷ And if you are friendly only to your friends, what is so exceptional about that? Do not even the pagans do as much? ⁴⁸ As for you, be righteous and perfect in the way your heavenly Father is righteous and perfect.

Lk 6:
27-36;
Job 31:29;
Acts 7:60;
Rom
12:20;
Pro 25:21;
23:4Lev 19:2;
Dt 18:13;
1P 1:16;
Jas 1:4

• 43. Love your neighbor. Here we come to the last of the opposites between the Old Law and the New. The Old Testament spoke of loving a neighbor and this was a matter of solidarity among the members of the people of God. With the Gospel the word “love” is not only given a wider dimension: it introduces us into a world totally different. Solidarity within the group is supported by an instinct inscribed in nature. This love however does not cross the frontiers that separate social groups: these only exist and find their identity in opposing others.

Do not do good to your enemy: The text is not found in the Bible as it stands but its equivalent is in several places (Dt 7:2). Referring to enemies of the nation rather than to personal enemies, we are asked to be wary of them, not to help them and even to exterminate them, rather than share their errors. If in many countries today it is understood that there is no frontier for love, it must be recognized that this ideal is a fruit of the Gospel: Jesus has enlightened our minds by asking us to model the love of our neighbor on the universal love of God the Father. We have only to open a newspaper to see that this love of neighbor, whatever it be, and even if it comes from a social, national or religious group, in enmity with ours, remains incomprehensible to the majority, even in Christian countries. When we realize that there is a place for everyone in the present world and that God directs everything for the benefit of all, we see things as God does and are perfect as the Father is perfect.

Love your enemies: Mk 12:31; Lk 10:27; Rom 13:9; Gal 5:14; Rom 12:20; Lk 23:34; Acts 7:60; Rom 12:14; Eph 5:1.

Doing good for God alone

23:5;
Lk 16:
14-15;
Jn 5:44

Am 4:5

6[•] ¹Be careful not to make a show of your righteousness before people. If you do so, you do not gain anything from your Father in heaven. ²When you give something to the poor, do not have it trumpeted before you, as do those who want to be seen in the synagogues and in the streets, in order to be praised by the people. I assure you, they have been already paid in full.

Ps 139:
2-3

³If you give something to the poor, do not let your left hand know what your right hand is doing, ⁴so that your gift remains really secret. Your Father, who sees what is kept secret, will reward you.

⁵When you pray, do not be like those who want to be seen. They love to stand and pray in the synagogues or on street corners to be seen by everyone. I assure you, they have already been paid in full. ⁶When you pray, go into your room, close the door, and pray to your Father who is with you in secret; and your Father who sees what is kept secret will reward you.

2K 4:33;
Dn 6:11

• Our Father...

(Lk 11:1; Mk 11:25)

⁷When you pray, do not use a lot of words, as the pagans do, for they believe that the more they say, the more chance they have of being

• 6.1 After the six opposites (“but I say to you”), Matthew gives us three examples of another secret without which we shall not see God: work for him alone without wanting anyone to know, and in such a way that we ourselves will have immediately forgotten what we have done.

Those who make a show. The expression appears three times with reference to good deeds, prayer and fasting. Jesus uses a word often translated as “being hypocrites,” which refers in a general way to those who make a show, or who are shallow, and make fun of the things of God.

It is perhaps difficult not to want to be seen by others, but it is far more difficult to do good without looking at oneself and being satisfied because: “I am good.” It is, nevertheless, the way of enabling us to enter into the secrets of God.

• 7. The value of prayer does not lie in the quantity of words and the mere repetition of formulas, as if accomplishing a task. The value of prayer lies chiefly in our inner attitude of faith and love of God. We should try to lift our mind and heart to God as a Father and a friend, a God who loves us and is always waiting for us to share a silent moment with him. To pray is not to talk much, but to surrender our lives into God’s loving hands.

Jesus gives the Our Father to his disciples as the perfect prayer coming from the heart of God’s children, expressing as it does, what they should ask and the order in which the requests should be made. Actually we have two texts of the Our Father; Luke’s text is shorter (11:1). Many hold that Matthew gives a slightly enlarged formula and better composed which was generally used in the first Christian generation, but this is not at all certain. In Matthew’s text there are twelve verses expressing seven petitions: two perfect numbers. Three (God’s number) that refers to God, four (earth’s number) that refers to our needs. In the language spoken by Jesus, the key word is come: Your kingdom come.

The contemporaries of Jesus used the word Heaven to signify God, because they would not pronounce his name. Jesus says likewise: Father in Heaven, meaning: God the Father.

For us the limitless sky by day and by night is the image of a wonderful world where God is everything. In calling on our Father in Heaven, we do not mean that he is far or near, above or below or inside. We only intend to raise our spirits to Him. We recognize that our words are not worthy, that our concerns are selfish and limited, when we compare them with the breadth of His thoughts and the generosity of His love. That we can address him and call him Father is not something natural, but a very special privilege. “My Father,” says Jesus; also: “Your Father.” For he is the only one, and we are adopted children, by the mercy of God who allowed us to be born again (Jn 3:1).

The Bible speaks of God, and also of the Name of God. All of creation is but a manifestation of God, and he fills this universe. He is not contained in it, nor is he in a determined 6:32; Lk 12:30 heard. ⁸Do not be like them. Your Father knows what you need, even before you ask him.

Lk 11: 1-4; Ezk 36:23; Jn 17:6 26:39 ⁹This, then, is how you should pray:

Our Father in heaven,
holy be your name,

¹⁰your kingdom come,
your will be done
on earth as in heaven.

Pro 30:8 ¹¹Give us today our daily bread.

¹²Forgive us our debts, just as we have forgiven those who are in debt to us.

¹³Do not bring us to the test,
but deliver us from the evil one.

¹⁴If you forgive others their wrongdoings, your Father in heaven will also forgive yours. ¹⁵If you do not forgive others, then your Father will not forgive you either.

18:21;
18:35;
26:41;
Jn 17:15

Mk 11:25;
Eph 4:32;
Col 3:13;
Sir 28: 1-5

place. Because of this, we speak of his Name as a way of designating his active presence, radiance, and splendor which covers everything. It is rather like acknowledging that there is a distance between what we know of him and what he is.

Holy be your name! May your Name be known and proclaimed Holy! May your splendor and generosity be seen in those who become your children. May your perfection be recognized through their good works (5:16). May your presence and your riches be welcomed by those who keep your word, according to John 14:23. The Father only wants to pour out his holiness and happiness on the children he has chosen and loved. He wants to seal us with his Name so that, day and night, we will be united with him, like the Father and the Son are united by the Holy Spirit.

Your kingdom come. With the coming of Jesus, that kingdom has come near to us. God reigns in every place where people have known him through the teaching of Jesus. There he can act without danger of being misinterpreted for he is now known for what he is. The believers now perceive him, not as a God who imposes obligations, or as a Savior more powerful than the evil ones, but they recognize him in the gift of his Son, in the humiliation of the Son and in their mutual love. From this discovery, love and mercy pour forth and, in time, we will see on earth some fruits of this kingdom. The reconciled children of God are a leavening element in society, and the whole of humanity with its projects, labor, economic and political plans moves towards a common goal: everyone and everything must return to the Father.

Whether we are good, bad or indifferent, the kingdom of God will come, with or without our help, because it is actually already here.

Your will be done. These are the words of Jesus in Gethsemane (Mt 26:39). This prayer condemns many of our prayers through which we want to force God to act. Some people consider themselves to have faith because they always wait for God to solve their problems. The children of God instead lift up their spirit to him so that God's will may be, at last, their own will.

On earth as in heaven. This applies to the previous three petitions. It reminds us that everything in this world that is created and subject to time depends on another, uncreated world, where time does not exist and which is nothing less than the mystery of God. There the Father, source of the divine being, enjoys his infinite perfection in the mutual gift of the divine persons. In him there is neither sadness nor resentment and before him are the elect: he sees them, as they will be after the resurrection. He sees the universe unified in Christ and his will fulfilled and glorified by all. We, who live in time, are in anguish because of an imperfect situation, in a world in labor where evil appears to triumph. We pray that everything may come about according to the initial plan of God, as it truly will.

We ask the Father for the bread he has promised to those who listen to his word. Modern people believe that their material welfare depends only on their own effort. The Bible, however, says that it depends on both God and us. Alone we can bring some economic miracles about for a while, but we may waste the accumulated riches. Only by listening to the word of God (Dt 8:3) will people have bread and be able to distribute it. A person who expects from God, not his or her bread but our bread, will strive to find work, to work in useful ways, and to promote justice where he is working.

What should we say? The bread "we need" or our "daily" bread or sustenance? The original text uses a difficult word that has different meanings. Many have understood that the children of God feel the need of much more than what is asked for the body and that the eucharist was already meant as it is in the miracle of the multiplication of the loaves.

Is 58:5

• ¹⁶When you fast, do not put on a miserable face as do the hypocrites. They put on a gloomy face, so that people can see they are fasting. I tell you this: they have been paid in full already. ¹⁷When you fast, wash your face and make yourself look cheerful, ¹⁸because you are not fasting for appearances or for people, but for your Father who sees beyond appearances. And your Father, who sees what is kept secret, will reward you.

(Lk 11:34; 12:13)

23:5

• ¹⁹Do not store up treasures for yourself here on earth, where moth and rust destroy it, and where thieves can steal it. ²⁰Store up treasures for yourself with God, where no moth or rust can destroy it, nor thief come and steal it.

Lk 12:
33-34;
Jas 5:2-3;
Sir 29:11

19:21;
Col 3:1

The Our Father speaks of debts that we must forgive (v. 12). In verse 14, we read wrongs. Jesus considers debts and wrongs as the same thing. When we forgive someone who asks for forgiveness, we are not doing that person a favor, nor do we deserve any credit for doing it; we actually free ourselves from some rancor or hatred that is poisoning us. Inasmuch as we stick to our rights, we hold fast to this world. God wants to forgive us and bring us closer to him, but how can he if we remain anchored to the things of this world?

Jesus speaks to the poor who are accustomed to being burdened with debts, which many times they cannot settle. They are obliged to live together with neighbors they have not chosen. All this increases the occasions for offending one another. Many people today live very independent lives and hold as an ideal not to owe anything to anyone. This independence can make it harder for us to understand God's mercy towards us, poor as we really are before God.

Do not bring us to the test. Thus speak those who know their weaknesses and little faith.

We will be more prudent if we know that the enemy is not simply evil, but the evil one. Somebody stronger than ourselves is watching to deceive us, to make us lose faith and fall, as soon as we feel sure of ourselves and abandon the means given by Jesus for perseverance in the faith and in the Church.

See another shorter text in Luke 11:1.

• 16. Here Jesus neither justifies nor condemns fasting. He himself fasted: 4:2; 9:15; 17:21. Fasting is unworthy when done to obtain human approval rather than God's.

All religions know fasting. It is a way of calling upon God, especially when great misfortunes come upon us (Jl 2:12); it befits people who feel guilty, and want to move to compassion the One who forgives them (Jon 3:5). It also teaches self-control and integrates our energies in preparation for divine communication (Ex 34:28).

Scripture puts limited emphasis on fasting. The prophets asserted that fasting without justice towards the neighbor is of no use: Isaiah 58; Zechariah 7:4.

From the time of Gandhi, persons and groups have also used fasting as a means of social pressure, as a political weapon to call attention to some demands. This is all right, although it is different from the religious fast of which Jesus speaks. The difference is that a religious fast is addressed to God, not to public opinion (Mt 6:18), and it entails an inner disposition of conversion and sorrow for personal sin on the part of the fasting person.

• 19. Do not store up treasures. The Gospel says: "Do not treasure treasures," treasures meaning those savings held in reserve rather than something that is loved. For centuries the majority of human beings rarely had personal reserves: the family or the clan took charge of the reserve in times of adversity. Today each one is in charge of his own resources; it is perhaps better, but how do we escape the obsession of a secure future? Once more Jesus invites us to believe in the Providence of the Father: if we have his interests at heart, he will look after ours.

Store up with God. The Gospel says "in Heaven", and we know that Heaven is one of the names of God.

There also your heart will be. (In the Jewish culture the heart is where judgments and decisions are made). I do not possess things but they possess me and by degrees impose on me a certain life-style.

There also your heart will be. It is this certitude that motivates any effort made towards "evangelical poverty." It is a question of being as free as possible for action and for love. Jesus calls us to disinterested action and at the ²¹For where your treasure is, there also your heart will be.

Pro 20:27;
Lk 11:
34-35;
Mt 5:15

• ²²The lamp of the body is the eye; if your eyes are sound, your whole body will be in the light. ²³If your eyes are diseased, your whole body will be in darkness. Then, if your light has become darkness, how dark will be the darkest part of you!

Set your heart on the kingdom

(Lk 12:23; 16:13)

Lk
16:13;
Ps 62:11

• ²⁴No one can serve two masters; for he will either hate one and love the other, or he will be loyal to the first and look down on the second. You cannot at the same time serve God and money.

Lk 12:
22-31

²⁵This is why I tell you not to be worried about food and drink for yourself, or about clothes for your body. Is not life more important than food, and is not the body more important than clothes? ²⁶Look at the birds of the air; they do not sow, they do not harvest and do not store food in barns, and yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Are you less worthy than they are?

10:31

²⁷Can any of you add a day to your life by worrying about it? ²⁸Why are you so worried about your clothes? Look at how the flowers in the fields grow. They do not toil or spin. ²⁹But I tell you that not even Solomon in all his wealth was clothed like one of these. ³⁰If God so clothes the grass in the field, which blooms today and is to be burned tomorrow in an oven, how much more will he clothe you? What little faith you have!

1K 10

³¹Do not worry and say: What are we going to eat? What are we going to drink? or: What shall we wear?

³²The pagans busy themselves with such things; but your heavenly Father knows that you need them all.

6:7;
Lk 12:30

³³Set your heart first on the kingdom and justice of God, and all these things will also be given to you. ³⁴Do not worry about tomorrow, for tomorrow will worry about itself. Each day has enough trouble of its own.

Is 51:1;
Wis 1:1

16:4

same time warns us against inordinate attachment to persons, to ideas and possessions: we are to be ready for anything but must never get attached to the fruits of action.

• 22. Here eye is the conscience. To be bright-eyed signifies generosity, to be dark-eyed signifies meanness. Jesus emphasizes what he has just said: a misinformed conscience leads us astray and turns us in on ourselves.

• 24. No one can serve two masters. This opening line helps us understand what follows, that Jesus wants us to be free, not of concerns but of all worries, in order to serve God.

Scripture had already taught that we must choose between God and false gods. Jesus affirms that money is a false god, because it offers happiness and security for the future, but robs us of our only riches, that is, the present time. Caught up in making money, we are unable to live truly and freely; we neglect our personal growth and family life, keep silent before evil and lie. We ignore our neighbor and grovel before the powerful.

Why are you so worried? After worrying much because we do not have money, or because we are having a hard time, or because our work is being delayed, we are ashamed at meeting simple persons who share the little they possess with others poorer than they, without feeling sad or thinking they have done something great. Liberation is the work of God throughout history, and we, shall we have enough faith to free ourselves from so many worries?

The comparison with the flowers and the birds does not mean that we can fold our arms and be idle, because when God gave us arms and brains, it was for us to use them. Rather Jesus teaches that, if God takes care of and beautifies the smallest of creatures, how much more will he care for us that our lives may be beautiful and perfect.

Set your heart first on the kingdom. It is a matter of concrete realities: the kingdom

Don't be a judge*(Lk 6:37; 11:9; 6:31; 13:23)*Lk 6: 37-42;
1Cor 4:5Mk 4:24;
Jn 8:7Rom 2:1;
14:41Cor 5:12;
Jas 4:11

7 • ¹Do not judge, and you will not be judged. ²In the same way you judge others, you will be judged, and the measure you use for others will be used for you. ³Why do you look at the speck in your brother's eye, and not see the plank in your own eye? ⁴How can you say to your brother, 'Come, let me take the speck from your eye,' as long as that plank is in your own? ⁵Hypocrite, take first the plank out of your own eye, then you will see clearly enough to take the speck out of your brother's eye.

• ⁶Do not give what is holy to the dogs, or throw your pearls to the pigs: they might trample on them, and even turn on you and tear you to pieces.

• ⁷Ask and you will receive; seek and you will find; knock and the door will be opened. ⁸For everyone who asks, receives; whoever seeks, finds; and the door will be opened to him who knocks. ⁹Would any of you give a stone to your son, when he asks for bread? ¹⁰Or give him a snake, when he asks for a fish? ¹¹As bad as you are, you know how to give good things to your children. How much more, then, will your Father in heaven give good things to those who ask him!

¹²So, do to others whatever you would that others do to you: there you have the Law and the Prophets.

• ¹³Enter through the narrow gate: for wide is the gate and broad is the road that leads to destruction, and many go that way. ¹⁴How narrow is the gate that leads to life, and how

Lk 11:9;
Mt 18:19Mk 11:24;
Jn 14:1415:7;
16:23;
Jas 1:5;
1Jn 3:22;
5:14Lk 6:31;
Jas 1:17;
Rom 13:8

Lk 13:24

Acts
14:22

means the transparentness of God in our life; his justice is a "putting in order" under his attention of all that we are and all that we do. A risk to run for a young person, or a couple: to begin to think of the future, family and apostolic activity according to the criteria of the Gospel, no longer under pressure of Malthusian fear or the race to maintain their life-style.

• 7.1 No doubt when Jesus spoke these words it was with the same meaning as in 5:43. Usually those who consider themselves as good, or belonging to the group of the converted, judge and criticize those of a different standing. It is a form of pride that spiritual authors call the "fault of beginners." So strongly inscribed is it in human nature that many among the "just" of the Bible have expressed their disapproval of the "sinner" who did not observe the law of God. Contrariwise the new law tells us not to consider ourselves superior or be judges of those who take a different road, or who are led by God to do so. Do not judge. We must exercise good judgment in order to distinguish between the good and evil around us. Though it is a factor of success never to displease anyone, we must have the courage to tell others the wrong that they do. Here "to judge" means to condemn.

When we look at our own lives, we realize that those who helped us grow were those who supported and understood us, not those who judged and condemned us.

Do not judge. See Romans 2:1; 14:4; 1 Corinthians 5:12; James 4:11.

• 6. Do not give what is holy to the dogs, or throw your pearls to the pigs. Jesus addressed this warning to his followers living in a hostile world. They should not tell everything to everyone. God has given each of us wonderful gifts: we must not share them with everyone at once, believing that it will bring them to faith.

• 7. See commentary on Luke 11:9; Mark 11:24; John 14:13; 15:7; James 1:5.

• 13. Enter through the narrow gate. Maybe someone was asking Jesus: "Who will be saved?" (Mt 19:25). In no instance did Jesus say whether those who would share in eternal life would be many or few. He did say many times that very few would be chosen from among the many called. That means that among the many people privileged to meet him, very few would experience the Gospel's riches and bring forth fruit in themselves and for others. The chosen or approved rough the road; few there are who find it.

The tree is known by its fruits

(Lk 6:43)

• ¹⁵Beware of false prophets: they come to you in sheep's clothing, but inside they are wild wolves. ¹⁶You will recognize them by their fruits. Do you ever pick grapes from thorn-bushes, or figs from thistles?

¹⁷A good tree always produces good fruit, a rotten tree produces bad fruit. ¹⁸A good tree cannot produce bad fruit, and a rotten tree cannot bear good fruit. ¹⁹Any tree that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown in the fire. ²⁰So you will know them by their fruit.

Wise and foolish builders

(Lk 6:46; 13:26; Mk 1:22)

• ²¹Not everyone who says to me, 'Lord! Lord!' will enter the kingdom of heaven, but the one who does the will of my heavenly Father. ²²Many will say to me on that day, 'Lord, Lord, did we not speak in your name? Did we not cast out devils and perform many miracles in your name?' ²³Then I will tell them openly, 'I have never known you; away from me, you evil people!'

²⁴"So then, anyone who hears these words of mine, and acts accordingly, is like a wise man, who built his house on rock. ²⁵The rain poured, the rivers flooded, and the wind blew and struck that house, but it did not collapse because it was built on rock. ²⁶But anyone who hears these words of mine, and does not act accordingly, is like a fool who built his house on sand. ²⁷The rain poured, the rivers flooded, and the wind blew and struck that house; it collapsed, and what a terrible fall that was!"

are those who persevere and strive for perfect freedom.

For wide is the gate and broad is the road that leads to destruction, and many go that way. They stray from leading a life in which Jesus is everything for them. They waste the gifts of God entrusted to them and apparently become useless for the Kingdom. Yet, even so, they are not deprived of God's mercy.

• 15. Most probably Matthew gives us these words of Jesus for the benefit of certain believers in the early Church who considered themselves as charismatic prophets. They may well have received gifts of the Spirit but have degenerated since then. In a wider sense Jesus' words address all who encourage division, untruth and violence, even when they pretend to serve a just cause.

Prophets wore a sheepskin by way of a cloak: a wolf could hide in one. The world has always had a number of "false prophets," usually prophets of easy life, and if the Word of God condemns them, many would say that their words have been misinterpreted. It would be well however to ask ourselves why our holy and sacred liberalism tends to sow death in all domains and smothers in so many the ability to believe and hope.

Do you ever pick grapes from thorn-bushes? Jesus invites us to look at the facts before coming to conclusions. We find it hard to carefully observe the reality in which we live. We prefer to discuss and debate about ideas rather than to analyze particular situations. Jesus, accustomed to manual labor, distrusts ideas and theories.

• 21. Many will say to me on that day. Matthew probably quotes this sentence pointing out to the charismatic prophets who disturb his communities by not obeying precepts that are addressed to everyone.

Whether we teach or work miracles, these abilities and ministries given us for the good of the community do not assure us that we are in the grace of God. True faith works through love (Gal 5:6) and moves us to fulfill all the Law: James 2:8.

Anyone who hears these words of mine (v. 24). Jesus means those who listen to his words and are converted: they believe themselves already saved. If they do not use their initial enthusiasm to build their lives on solid foundations, such as scriptural meditation, generosity, resistance to evil inclinations, sharing in the Christian community—then everything will tumble down later.

Ezk
22:28;
2P 2:1;
Lk 6:26;
Gal 1:8
Lk 6:
43-44;
Mt 12:33;
Mk 9:40;
Lk 9:50;
Mt 10:16;
Jn 10:12;
Acts 20:29

Sir 27:6;
Jas 3:12

3:10;
Lk 3:9;
13:7;
Jn 15:6
12:33

Lk 6:46;
Rom 2:13;
Jas 1:22;
1Jn 2:17

Jer 14:14;
27:15;
Mk 9:38

Ps 6:9;
Mt 10:33;
2Tim
2:12;
Mt 13:41;
25:41

Lk 6:
47-49;
Jas 1:22

Ezk 13:
10-14

Mk 1: 21-22; Lk 4: 31-32

•²⁸When Jesus had finished this discourse, the crowds were struck by the way he taught, ²⁹because he taught with authority, unlike their teachers of the Law.

Cure of a leper
(Mk 1:40; Lk 5:12)

Mk 1: 40-45; Lk 5: 12-16; Mk 1:35; Lk 4:42

8¹When Jesus came down from the mountain, large crowds followed him.

²Then a leper came forward. He knelt before him and said, "Sir, if you want to, you can make me clean."

³Jesus stretched out his hand, touched him, and said, "I want to, be clean again." At that very moment the man was cleansed from his leprosy. ⁴Then Jesus said to him, "See that you do not tell anyone, but go to the priest, have yourself declared clean, and offer the gift that Moses ordered as proof of it."

Lev 14: 2-32; Mt 9:30; 12:16; Mk 7:36; Lk 17:14

The faith of the centurion
(Lk 7:1; Jn 4:46)

Lk 7:1-10; Jn 4: 46-53

•⁵When Jesus entered Capernaum, an army captain approached him to ask his help, ⁶"Sir, my servant lies sick at home. He is paralyzed and suffers terribly." ⁷Jesus said to him, "I will come and heal him."

⁸The captain answered, "I am not worthy to have you under my roof.

Just give an order and my boy will be healed. ⁹For I myself, a junior officer, give orders to my soldiers. And if I say to one, 'Go!' he goes; and if I say to another, 'Come!' he comes; and if I say to my servant, 'Do this!' he does it."

¹⁰When Jesus heard this he was astonished, and said to those who were following him, "I tell you, I have not found such faith in Israel. ¹¹I say to you, many will come from east and west and sit down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob at the feast in the kingdom of heaven; ¹²but the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown out into the darkness; there they will wail and grind their teeth."

Lk 13: 28-29; Mt 25:10; 19:30; Mk 10:31

Lk 13:23

¹³Then Jesus said to the captain, "Go home now. As you believed, so let it be." And at that moment his servant was healed.

9:29; 15:28

¹⁴Jesus went to Peter's house and found Peter's mother-in-law in bed with fever. ¹⁵He took her by the hand and the fever left her; she got up and began to wait on him.

Mk 1: 29-31; Lk 4: 38-39; Mk 9:27; Acts 3:7

¹⁶Towards evening they brought to Jesus many possessed by evil spirits, and with a word he drove out the spirits. He also healed all who were sick. ¹⁷In doing this he fulfilled what was said by the prophet Isaiah:

Mk 1: 32-34; Lk 4: 40-41; Mk 3:10

Is 53:4; Jn 1:29

• 28. With this paragraph Matthew closes the first Discourse wherein he gathers words of Jesus that might serve as a "call to all people of good will." A new Discourse will begin in chapter 10.

• 8.1 In this new section of his gospel (8:1-9:35) Matthew has placed a collection of miracles. For him, these miracles are not only extraordinary events: they contain lessons on what a disciple of Jesus is. To begin with: the cure of a leper; on the part of Jesus this is an act of courage, and an act that openly violates the law of purity (see Mk 1:40).

Then, the faith of the centurion, a Roman officer (v. 5). Jesus speaks of the Jews who will be excluded from the kingdom of God. That may also be the case of the new heirs of the Kingdom who are the Christians of the West.

• 5. See commentary on Luke 7:1.

The heirs of the kingdom (v. 12). These words are intended to express the Jewish term used by Jesus: the sons of the Kingdom, that is: those who belong, or: those who side with, are associated with the Kingdom. Because all of Jewish life was aimed at inheriting the kingdom promised to them.

Among the Jewish people, at that time, religion was taught by the religious community. There was no problem of personal conversion; the children of Jewish families became Jewish

He bore our infirmities and took on himself our diseases.

Mk 4:35; Lk 8:22
Lk 9: 57-60
2Cor 8:9
1K 19:20

¹⁸When he saw the crowd press around him, Jesus gave orders to cross to the other shore. ¹⁹A teacher of the Law approached him and said, "Master, I will follow you wherever you go." ²⁰Jesus said to him, "Foxes have holes and birds have nests, but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head."

²¹Another disciple said to him, "Lord, let me go and bury my father first." ²²But Jesus answered him, "Follow me, and let the dead bury their own dead."

Jesus calms the storm

(Mk 4:35; Lk 8:22)

Mk 4: 36-41; Lk 8: 23-25

²³Jesus got into the boat and his disciples followed him. ²⁴Without warning a fierce storm hit the lake, with waves sweeping the boat. But Jesus was asleep.

6:30; 8:10

²⁵They woke him and cried, "Lord save us! We are lost!" ²⁶But Jesus answered, "Why are you so afraid, you of little faith?" Then he stood up and rebuked the wind and sea; and it became completely calm.

²⁷The disciples were astonished. They said, "What kind of man is he? Even the winds and the sea obey him."

believers. The Jewish teachers did not belittle faith, but in fact they always spoke about practices and commitment.

Jesus does not belittle the practices, but it is faith that he admires and praises; see Matthew 9:2; 9:22; 9:28.

Many will come (v. 11). Likewise for us, practices and religious habits will not introduce us to the Kingdom. We must discover the loving presence of the Father while experiencing the power of Jesus' word and controversial deeds.

They will be thrown out into the darkness (v. 12). Let us not immediately think of hell: Jesus is using the style of the prophets. Staying with the appearance of a learned religion, one goes everywhere except where life is.

The demoniacs and the pigs

(Mk 5:1; Lk 8:26)

²⁸When Jesus reached Gadara, on the other side, he was met by two men, possessed by devils, who came out from the tombs. They were so fierce that no one dared to pass that way. ²⁹Suddenly they shouted, "What do you want with us, you, Son of God? Have you come to torture us before the time?"

³⁰At some distance away there was a large herd of pigs feeding. ³¹So the demons begged him, "If you drive us out, send us into that herd of pigs." ³²Jesus ordered them, "Go!" So the demons left and went into the pigs. The whole herd rushed down the cliff into the lake and drowned.

³³The men in charge of them ran off to the town, where they told the whole story, also what had happened to the men possessed with the demons. ³⁴Then the whole town went out to meet Jesus; and when they saw him, they begged him to leave their area.

Jesus cures a paralytic

(Mk 2:1; Lk 5:17)

9 ¹Jesus got back into the boat, crossed the lake again, and came to his hometown. ²Here they

• 9.1 See commentary on Mark 2:1; Luke 5:17.

They praised God for giving such power to human beings (v. 8). This formula is rather clumsy. The crowd is astonished to see how God's saving power is manifest among people, and through a man, Jesus. Matthew has no wish to separate the Church from Christ: every Christian community received the gifts of God for healing and reconciliation. It is known that the ministers of the Church have special authority to pardon, but the grace of God also flows in many other very different channels. (1 Cor 5:3-5; 2 Cor 2:5-11). When we establish relations of mercy and trust, and accept fraternal correction humbly, when there is mutual forgiveness between spouses, Christ is the one

Mk 5:
1-20;
Lk 8:
26-39

Lk 4:34;
Acts 16:17

Mk 2: 1-12;
Lk 5:
17-26

8:6; Acts 9:33; Lk 7:48 brought a paralyzed man to him, lying on a bed. Jesus saw their faith and said to the paralytic, "Courage, my son! Your sins are forgiven."

Jn 10:33 ³Then some teachers of the Law said within themselves, "This man insults God." ⁴Jesus was aware of what they were thinking, and said, "Why have you such evil thoughts? ⁵Which is easier to say: 'Your sins are forgiven' or 'Stand up and walk'? ⁶You must know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins." He then said to the paralyzed man, "Stand up! Take your stretcher and go home." ⁷The man got up, and went home.

Dn 7:10; Jn 5:27 Acts 9:35 ⁸When the crowds saw this, they were filled with awe, and praised God for giving such power to human beings.

Jesus calls Matthew

(Mk 2:13; Lk 5:27)

Mk 2: 13-17; Lk 5: 27-32; Mt 18:12 ⁹As Jesus moved on from there, he saw a man named Matthew at his seat in the custom-house, and he said to him, "Follow me!" And Matthew got up and followed him. ¹⁰Now it happened, while Jesus was at table in Matthew's house, many tax collectors and sinners joined Jesus and his disciples. ¹¹When the Pharisees saw this, they said to his disciples, "Why is it that your master eats with sinners and tax collectors?"

11:19; Lk 7:34; 15:1; 19:7 1Tim 1:15 ¹²When Jesus heard this, he said, "Healthy people do not need a doctor, but sick people do. ¹³Go and find out what this means: What I want is mercy, not sacrifice. I did not come to call the righteous, but sinners."

12:7; Hos 6:6 who forgives and pardons, and what is forgiven among us on earth, is forgiven in heaven (Mt 18:18).

- 9. See commentary on Mark 2:13.

¹⁴Then the disciples of John came to him with the question, "How is it that we and the Pharisees fast on many occasions, but not your disciples?"

¹⁵Jesus answered them, "How can you expect wedding guests to mourn as long as the bridegroom is with them? The time will come, when the bridegroom will be taken away from them, and then they will fast.

¹⁶No one patches an old coat with a piece of unshrunk cloth, for the patch will shrink and tear an even bigger hole in the coat. ¹⁷In the same way, you don't put new wine in old wineskins. If you do, the wineskins will burst and the wine will be spilt. No, you put new wine in fresh skins; then both are preserved."

A woman healed, a child raised to life

(Mk 5:21; Lk 8:40)

Mk 5: 21-43; Lk 8: 40-56; Mt 8: 3; Mk 6: 5; Lk 13: 13 ¹⁸While Jesus was speaking to them, an official of the synagogue came up to him, bowed before him and said, "My daughter has just died, but come and place your hands on her, and she will live." ¹⁹Jesus stood up and followed him with his disciples.

²⁰Then a woman, who had suffered from a severe bleeding for twelve years, came up from behind and touched the edge of his cloak; ²¹for she thought, "If I only touch his cloak, I will be healed." ²²Jesus turned, saw her and said, "Courage, my daughter, your faith has saved you." And from that moment the woman was cured.

²³When Jesus arrived at the official's house and saw the flute players and the excited crowd, he said,

- 18. See commentary on Mark 5:21.

She touched the edge of his cloak (v. 20). As a good Jew, Jesus had fringes on his cloak (Num 15:38; Mt 23:5).

Mk 2: 18-22; Lk 5: 33-39; Mt 11:18; Lk 18:12

Rom 7:6; 2Cor 5:17

Mk 5: 21-43; Lk 8: 40-56; Mt 8: 3; Mk 6: 5; Lk 13: 13

Lev 15:25

Acts 19:12; 3:16

Jn 11:11

²⁴ “Get out of here! The girl is not dead. She is only sleeping!” And they laughed at him. ²⁵ But once the crowd had been turned out, Jesus went in and took the girl by the hand, and she stood up. ²⁶ The news of this spread through the whole area.

Mk 1:34

20:29-34

• ²⁷ As Jesus moved on from there, two blind men followed him, shouting, “Son of David, help us!” ²⁸ When he was about to enter the house, the blind men caught up with him, and Jesus said to them, “Do you believe that I am able to do what you want?” They answered, “Yes, sir!”

20:34;
8:13;
5:28

²⁹ Then Jesus touched their eyes and said, “As you have believed, so let it be.” ³⁰ And their eyes were opened. Then Jesus gave them a stern warning, “Be careful that no one knows about this.” ³¹ But as soon as they went away, they spread the news about him through the whole area.

Mk 7:36

³² When they had just left, some people brought to Jesus a man who was dumb, because he was possessed by a demon. ³³ When the demon was driven out, the dumb man began to speak. The crowds were astonished and said, “Nothing like this has ever been seen in Israel.” ³⁴ But the Pharisees said, “He drives away demons with the help of the prince of demons.”

12:22-24;
Lk 11:
14-15;
12:10;
11:29Mk 7:
32-37;
9:17;
2:12

Mk 3:22

• ³⁵ Jesus went around all the towns and villages, teaching in their synagogues and proclaiming the good news of the kingdom, and he cured every sickness and disease. ³⁶ When he saw the crowds, he was moved with pity, for they were harassed and helpless like sheep without a shepherd. ³⁷ Then he said to his disciples, “The harvest is abundant, but the workers are only few. ³⁸ Ask the master of the harvest to send workers to gather his harvest.”

Lk 10:1;
Mt 4:23;
12:15;
Lk 4:44;
Mk 6:54;
Lk 6:17Mk 6:34;
Mt 14:14;
15:32;
1K 22:17Lk 10:2;
Jn 4:
35-38

• 27. Two blind men followed him, shouting. In what manner, if they were blind? Stumbling and being carried by others perhaps. When you sin, shout to the Lord and keep on looking for Christ.

• 35. With this paragraph that briefly summarizes the ministry of Jesus in Galilee, Matthew intends to show that indeed the kingdom of God is there: evil has been given a fatal blow.

He was moved with pity, because they were like sheep without a shepherd. See Numbers 27:17; Ezekiel 34:5; Zechariah 10:3; John 4:35; Mark 6:34; and Luke 10:2.

HEALINGS

God himself, in Jesus, had come down to cure humankind. Because this work would be very long and painful, it was necessary to provide some visible signs to help people believe in this almost imperceptible healing.

Jesus ought to heal sick persons and, even in our days, the Christian community should give signs of what they preach. They must cure today's world of its sicknesses. The gifts of healing are not limited to healing bodily ills and the devil is responsible for more than individual maladies.

People seek after those who can cure their illnesses, and so great crowds followed Jesus. For him, however, sickness as well as the exploitation of the human person, hunger and war, are only fruits and signs of a deeper illness attached to our heart, which is sin. Constant work and the unity of all people of goodwill are sufficient to remedy some of our misfortunes, but the only way to eradicate evil at its roots is to restore human persons to their dignity as children of God. This requires a personal transformation that comes from God sending us his Spirit.

Jesus asks each of us to serve humankind with our own talents. He needs also workers for the harvest of the Kingdom, that is, to gather into the Church those who receive a call from God. “Pray,” says Jesus, “and you will perhaps hear God’s call.”

Of course, each Christian community prays to God and the Spirit brings forth the charisms and ministers and pastors that are needed. Here Jesus asks us to pray for workers in the mission field: they are and always will be too few, especially those who evangelize and build the Church among the poor.

The twelve apostles

(Mk 3:13; Lk 6:12)

Mk 3: 13-19; Lk 6: 12-16; Mk 1:34; 6:7; Lk 9:1

10 • ¹Then he called his twelve disciples to him, and gave them authority over the unclean spirits, to drive them out and to heal every disease and sickness.

Jn 1:35; Acts 1:13

²These are the names of the twelve apostles: first Simon, called Peter, and his brother Andrew;

Jn 1:40; 1:43

³James, the son of Zebedee, and his brother John; Philip and Bartholomew, Thomas and Matthew, the tax collector; James, the son of Alphaeus, and Thaddaeus; ⁴Simon, the Canaanite, and Judas Iscariot, the man who would betray him.

26:25; 27:3; Jn 6:64

Jesus sends out the first missionaries

(Lk 9:1; 10:1; Mk 6:7)

Mk 6:7; Lk 9:1; 10:1; 9:53; Jn 4:9; Acts 8:5

⁵Jesus sent these twelve on mission with the instructions: "Do not visit pagan territory and do not enter a Samaritan town. ⁶Go instead to the lost sheep of the people of Israel.

Jer 50:6; Mt 15:24

⁷Go and proclaim this message:

The kingdom of heaven is near. ⁸Heal the sick, bring the dead back to life, cleanse the lepers, and drive out demons. You received this as a gift, so give it as a gift. ⁹Do not carry any gold, silver or copper in your purses. ¹⁰Do not take a traveler's bag, or an extra shirt, or sandals, or a staff: workers deserve their living.

¹¹When you come to a town or a village, look for a worthy person, and stay there until you leave.

¹²When you enter the house, wish it peace. ¹³If the people in the house deserve it, your peace will be on them; if they do not deserve it, your blessing will come back to you.

¹⁴And if you are not welcomed, and your words are not listened to, leave that house or that town, and shake the dust off your feet. ¹⁵I assure you, it will go easier for the people of Sodom and Gomorrah on the day of judgment, than it will for the people of that town.

4:17;
Lk 10:9

Is 55:1;
Acts 8:20

Lk 9:3; 10:4;
Num 18:31;
1Cor 9:14

Mk 6:
10:11;
Lk 9:4-5;
10:5-12

Acts
13:51;
18:6

11:24;
Gen 19:24;
2P 2:6;
Jd 1:7

• 10.1 Till then, Jesus had spoken only in the synagogues around Capernaum. Now he attracts fame and followers and begins to draw multitudes. In that moment he establishes the group of the Twelve. He needs them to prepare meetings, to spread his doctrine, to multiply the miraculous signs effected among the sick.

At the same time, Jesus is planning his Church and wants to give it a head: this will be the group of the apostles. They will be the witnesses of Jesus among people, so he teaches them a way of living a common life that will serve as a pattern for the Church.

These are the names of the twelve. The Jewish nation was integrated into twelve tribes. This is why Jesus calls twelve apostles: he wants them to understand that they are the foundation of the new people God will form (Ps 102:19). See Luke 22:30; Revelation 21:14.

He called those he wanted (Mk 3:13). These, in turn, will call others. In the Church everyone can do "apostolic work," but no one makes himself into an apostle, an official witness of Christ: one has to be called to this responsibility.

Regarding these twelve, see commentary on Mark 3:16.

• 5. From the paragraph beginning in 9:35, Matthew was preparing this third "Jesus' discourse" (see Introduction). Jesus has begun his mission; he forms and sends out missionaries.

Apostles means "sent" and "mission" also means "being sent." The Father has sent his Son to earth, and the Son, in turn, sends his apostles. The Father sends messengers of his word, but he also sends his Spirit to touch the hearts and minds of those who listen. Through the Spirit they recognize the word of God in the poor preaching of these messengers who have received no great instruction. The Spirit will give signs: healings and astounding graces supporting the witness of the missionaries.

The successors of the apostles will be missionaries like them. They will not be primarily the administrators of an established Church, but living poorly among the poor, they will es-

Mk 13: 9-13; Lk 21: 11-19; Acts 20:29; Rom 16:19; 24:9

You will be persecuted
(Lk 12:11; Mk 13:9; 8:38)

• ¹⁶Look, I send you out like sheep among wolves. You must be as clever as snakes and as innocent as doves. ¹⁷Be on your guard with people, for they will hand you over to their courts, and they will flog you in their synagogues. ¹⁸You will be brought to trial before rulers and kings because of me, so you may witness to them and the pagans.

• ¹⁹But when you are arrested, do not worry about what you are to say, or how you are to say it; when the hour comes, you will be given what you are to say. ²⁰For it is not you who will speak, but the Spirit of your Father in you.

²¹Brother will hand over brother to death, and a father his child; children

Lk 12: 11-12

4:10; Jn 15:26; Acts 4:8

Mic 7:6

establish new Churches (see 1 Cor 3:10; 12:28). This new chapter will speak of a mission, the major responsibility of a Christian community. In the first part (vv. 5-16) Jesus addresses the first missionaries of Galilee. In the second part (vv. 17-42) we find Jesus' words pronounced in different circumstances that Matthew adapts for his readers at the very time in which the Church begins to be persecuted in the Roman world.

See commentary on Mark 6:7 and Luke 10:1.

Do not visit pagan territory. Let us not forget that many pagan communities were established in Galilee together with the Jewish ones. Jesus follows his Father's plan of salvation as described in the Bible. The Savior should first gather the strayed sheep of Israel, and then bring salvation to all the pagan nations: Isaiah 49:6; 60:1-10; Zechariah 14:16; Matthew 15:24.

Whoever welcomes you (v. 40). To reject the messengers is to ignore the call of the Father and to lose the greatest opportunity of one's life.

• 16. THE MARTYRS

Matthew here puts advice that Jesus gave to his witnesses on how to confront persecution. Jesus himself spent long weeks hidden away and his first missionaries probably had to take similar precautions. In relating these instructions Matthew has perhaps adapted them a little to the situation of Christians of his time; he has not invented them.

We have just spoken of witnesses, and martyr in Greek means: witness. Some of these martyrs were before long glorified, but the majority remain unknown. They have often been disfigured by calumny (5:11; Lk 21:17) isolated even from the Christian community and later eliminated. In certain cases entire Christian communities were massacred as in the time of the Roman empire. Today in certain countries such atrocities continue without the media even mentioning it. In many other cases, persons or Christian groups became martyrs that had assumed a risky position. When Stephen was assassinated (Acts 7) the apostles were not pursued, and many may have taken Stephen to be a fanatic. When the young Christian women of the Roman Empire were persecuted for having decided to remain virgins many said: Why do they flout their family duties? When the Catholics of England, France or China refused to form national churches separated from communion with Rome, were they not rebelling against the laws of their nation?

Maybe we must recognize that martyrdom is a grace and is not given to everyone. Many would be ready to give their life for Christ, but confronted with situations of violence or corruption, they do not see the necessity to expose a scandal and so submit in order to avoid the worst. Others, on the contrary, understand that God is asking them to witness (v. 18) to the Good News that is opposite to what is imposed. In so doing they face the repression by which Society defends itself. Revelation affirms that the murder of witnesses advances Salvation History.

• 19. Brother will hand over brother to death... (v. 21) you will be hated by all. This is usual in a climate of terror. Without going so far, witnesses to Christ may find themselves unappreciated by a majority, in their own Church, while perhaps their persecutors are acclaimed (Lk 6:26). In time the Holy Spirit will reveal the truth, but the majority of those witnesses, the lowly, often those who suffer most and are the greatest, will remain unknown until the day when Jesus himself will acknowledge them before his Father (v. 32).

In reality, Jesus does not only speak of those who are massacred. Far more numerous and 24:9, 13 will turn against parents and have them put to death. ²²Everyone will hate you because of me, but whoever stands firm to the end will be saved.

16:28; 24:27; 25:31; 26:64; Mk 13:26 • ²³When they persecute you in one town, flee to the next. I assure you, you will not have gone through all the towns of Israel before the Son of Man comes.

Lk 6:40; Jn 13:16; 15:20 • ²⁴A student is not above his teacher, nor a slave above his master. ²⁵A student should be glad to become like his teacher, and the slave like his master. If the head of the family has been called Beelzebul, how much more the members of the family! So, do not be afraid of them.

Lk 12: 2-7; Mt 5:15; Lk 8:17; 11:33 • ²⁶There is nothing covered that will not be uncovered, and nothing hidden that will not be made known.

²⁷What I am telling you in the dark, you must speak in the light. What you hear in private, proclaim from the housetops.

• ²⁸Do not be afraid of those who kill the body, but have no power to kill the soul. Rather be afraid of him who can destroy both body and soul in hell. ²⁹For only a few cents you can buy two sparrows, yet not one sparrow falls to the ground without your Father knowing. ³⁰As for you, every hair of your head has been counted. ³¹Do not be afraid: you are no less worthy than many sparrows!

• ³²Whoever acknowledges me before others I will acknowledge before my Father in heaven. ³³Whoever rejects me before others I will reject before my Father in heaven.

• ³⁴Do not think that I have come to establish peace on earth. I have not come to bring peace, but a

1P 3:14;
Rev 2:10;
Jas 4:12

1S 14:45;
Acts
27:34
6:26;
12:12

Mk 8:38;
Lk 12:
8-9;
9:26;
2Tim 2:12;
Rev 3:5

Lk 12:
51-53;
2:34;
22:36

doubtless nearer to us are those who have had to conquer fear (26; 28; 31) of being his witnesses on the streets, in schools and in every area of this perverted and evil world. (Gal 1:4; Phil 2:15).

Do not worry. The witnesses of Jesus do not work on their own, and the more they are identified with Jesus in persecution and in prison, the more they are assisted by the Spirit. By worrying while preparing their legal case, they would hinder the freedom of the Spirit and also lose the peace that the Spirit grants the persecuted.

• 23. You will not have gone through... Possibly this sentence would have been better placed in the first part of the speech, which is about the mission in Galilee. But it may refer also to Christians of Jewish origins who were persecuted by the Pharisees at the time Matthew wrote his Gospel.

Matthew gives this sentence a broader meaning: though people may cast out the future missionaries, they will never be short of work until the second coming of Jesus.

• 28. We are cowards and Jesus is aware of this. He has already said, "Do not fear," when he invited us not to look for security in money. Now, dealing with the fear of repression, he adds, "If you cannot free yourselves from cowardice, consider where the greater threat comes from, from God or people?"

This is the only time Jesus refers to "fear of God." When the Old Testament mentioned fear of God, it generally meant giving due respect to God. Respect is far from fear. Respect is an attitude proper to a free person. God does not threaten to throw us into hell; rather he reminds us that to lose him is to lose ourselves also, and this is hell.

• 32. Whoever acknowledges me. After stressing the sovereign power of his Father, Jesus puts himself on the same level: He will decide our eternal fate. Jesus refers not only to recognizing him in the ultimate sense, that is, by not denying our Christian faith before others; his words also convey a day-by-day demand. We must not be ashamed to act or talk as people of faith, to go public about our Christian convictions when necessary.

• 34. Do not think that I have come to establish peace. The peace of the believer comes from the certainty of being loved by God: the angels of Bethlehem said so: Luke 2:14.

Mic 7:6 sword. ³⁵For I have come to set a man against his father, and a daughter against her mother, a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law. ³⁶Each one will have as enemies those of one's own family.

Lk 14: 26-27; Mk 8:34; Lk 9:23, 12:9; Df 33:9
³⁷Whoever loves father or mother more than me is not worthy of me. And whoever loves son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me.

16:24-25
³⁸And whoever does not take up his cross and come after me is not worthy of me. ³⁹Whoever finds his life will lose it; but whoever loses his life for my sake will find it.

Mk 8: 34-35; Lk 9: 23-24; 17:33; Jn 12:25
⁴⁰Whoever welcomes you welcomes me, and whoever welcomes me welcomes him who sent me.

Mk 9:37; Lk 9:48; Jn 12: 10:16; 44-45; Gal 4:14
⁴¹The one who welcomes a prophet as a prophet will receive the reward of a prophet; the one who welcomes a just man, because he is a just man, will receive the reward of a just man.

1K 17:9; 2K 4:8
⁴²And if anyone gives even a cup of cold water to one of these little ones, because he is my disciple, I assure you, he will not go unrewarded.”

Mk 9:41; 9:38; Lk 9:49; 11:23

Jesus and John the Baptist

(Lk 7:18; 16:16; 10:13)

11 ¹When Jesus had finished giving his twelve disciples these instructions, he went on from there to teach and to proclaim his message in their towns. ²When John the Baptist heard in prison about the activities of Christ, he sent a message by his disciples, ³asking him, “Are you the one who is to come, or should we expect someone else?”

⁴Jesus answered them, “Go back and report to John what you hear and see: ⁵the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are made clean, the deaf hear, the dead are brought back to life, and good news is reaching the poor; ⁶and how fortunate is the one who does not take offense at me!”

⁷As the messengers left, Jesus began to speak to the crowds about John: “When you went out to the desert, what did you expect to see? A reed swept by the wind? ⁸What did you go out to see? A man dressed in fine clothes? People who wear fine

Lk 7: 18-28

Is 26:19; 35:5-6; 42:18; 61:1

13:57; 26:31; Jn 6:61

21:32; Mk 9:13; Lk 16:16

Jesus gives no peace to the world, because the rest of the world is made up of confusion, half-truths, people who live midway between greed and fear of risking. The peace of the world, whether in a family or in society, veils unjust conditions imposed by the strongest, or a shared mediocrity. The Gospel awakens everywhere a critical spirit; so that the presence of only one Christian living by the truth is enough to worry many persons: John 3:20; 15:18.

The Gospel moves us to make decisions with greater freedom, disregarding the criticism of those close to us whenever we are convinced that they cannot understand the Gospel values which motivate us. Take, for example, a pregnant girl resisting her parents' advice to obtain an abortion. Christians have been persecuted in many countries for teaching that divine law is above parental authority, which was considered the supreme authority. Thus it happened with the ancient Romans and, more recently, in Korea and China.

Moreover, the devil stirs up persecutions against every person who becomes converted, in order to scare her and make her turn away.

He is not worthy... (v. 37). Jesus addresses this to others besides missionaries or persons with an exceptional mission. Each one must break away from forms of dependency within the family, which do not nurture the human and spiritual growth of the members. One who loves Christ finds a thousand and one opportunities to free himself from activities, entertainments and worries about his own family, which keep both him and the family at a mediocre level.

• 11.1 See commentary on Luke 7:18.

Jesus has sent the first missionaries: for Matthew it is the time to show how the Kingdom comes—the coming of which they have proclaimed. The visit of the disciples of John will help us to understand what Jesus brings and what cannot be expected of him.

The paragraph which follows in 11:25 will show in its way that what is all-important in the Kingdom is the person of Jesus himself.

14:5; 21:26; Lk 1:76; Dt 18:15; Jn 1:15; 6:14
 Mal 3:1; 23:20
 clothes live in palaces. ⁹What did you really go out to see? A prophet? Yes, indeed, and even more than a prophet. ¹⁰He is the man of whom Scripture says: I send my messenger ahead of you to prepare the way before you.

Lk 16:16; Mt 5:18
 Lk
 16:16; Mt 5:18
 I tell you this: no one greater than John the Baptist has come forward from among the sons of women, and yet the least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he. ¹²From the days of John the Baptist until now, the kingdom of heaven is something to be conquered, and violent men seize it.

Mal 3:23; Mk 9:11; Lk 1:17; Jn 1:21; Rev 2:7
 Lk 7:31-35
 Up to the time of John, there was only prophesy: all the prophets and the Law. ¹⁴And if you believe me, John is that Elijah, whose coming was predicted. ¹⁵Let anyone with ears listen!

Lk 7:31-35
 Now, to what can I compare the people of this day? They are like children sitting in the marketplace, about whom their companions complain: ¹⁷'We played the flute for you, but you would not dance. We sang a funeral song, but you would not cry!'

Lk 1:15; Mt 3:4; 9:14; 9:11; Lk 15:1; Mt 19:17
 For John came fasting, and people said, 'He is possessed.' ¹⁹Then the Son of Man came, he ate and drank, and people said, 'Look at this man! A glutton and drunkard, a friend of tax collectors and sinners!' Yet the outcome will prove Wisdom to be right."

Lk 10:13-15; Mt 13:58; Jn 15:24; 12:37; Mk 6:6; Ls 23:1-18; Ezk 26-28; Am 1:9; Zec 9:2; Est 4:1; Jl 3:4; Is 14:13, 15; Gen 19; 2P 2:6; 10:15
 • ²⁰Then Jesus began to denounce the cities, in which he had performed most of his miracles, because the people there did not change their ways. ²¹"Alas for you Chorazin and Bethsaida! If the miracles worked in you had taken place in Tyre and Sidon, the people there would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes. ²²But I assure you, for Tyre and Sidon it will be more bearable on the day of judgment than for you. ²³And you, Capernaum, will you be lifted up to heaven? You will be thrown down to the place of the dead! For if the miracles which were performed in you had taken place in Sodom, it would still be there today! ²⁴But I tell you, it will be more bearable for Sodom on the day of judgment than for you."

Good news is reaching the poor... (v. 5). Jesus' message includes a preferential love of God for the poor and for those who share with them in their poverty. The Gospel is not for them also, but for them first.

EVANGELIZATION OF THE POOR AS A PRIORITY

Good news is reaching the poor (v. 5). This text is to be read together with Luke 1:52; 4:18; 6:20; 10:23.

It would be wrong to interpret this text as thinking that God only asks of us to catechize less instructed people, or those of lower condition in life. In the time of Jesus the Pharisees already thought their duty was to teach simple and uneducated people; Jesus instead sent his apostles, poor among the poor, to enable them to discover the presence and working of God the Father. The concrete life of the rural and urban poor is the context in which fundamental experiences occur that will renew the world and the spiritual life of everyone.

Verse 6. See another way of translating this sentence in Luke 7:23.

Verse 11. No one greater than John the Baptist has come forward. This verse refers to a prophet or to a political leader.

Verse 12. This sentence could also be translated: "The kingdom of heaven is advancing forcefully." The kingdom of God is the moving force that makes history progress, taking advantage of both gentle and violent changes in human life. The believers are called to participate actively in this constant transformation. Death and resurrection are at work among us and all over the world.

• 20. Chorazin and Bethsaida: these two cities were the seats of higher schools of religion but had not received the Gospel. Tyre and Sidon: two pagan cities, cursed by the prophets.

Take my yoke upon you

(Lk 10:21)

Lk 10:
21-22;
Jn 7:
48-49;
1Cor 1:
17-29

•²⁵ On that occasion Jesus said, “Father, Lord of heaven and earth, I praise you, because you have hidden these things from the wise and learned, and revealed them to simple people. ²⁶ Yes, Father, this is what pleased you.

28:18;
Jn 3:35;
13:3;
17:2;
Phil 2:9;
Wis 2:13;
Jn 1:18;
10:15

²⁷ Everything has been entrusted to me by my Father. No one knows the Son except the Father, and no one knows the Father except the Son, and those to whom the Son chooses to reveal him.

Sir 24:19

²⁸ Come to me, all you who work hard and who carry heavy burdens, and I will refresh you. ²⁹ Take my yoke upon you and learn from me, for I am gentle and humble of heart and you will find rest. ³⁰ For my yoke is good, and my burden is light.”

Jer 31:25;
Hos 10:11;
Pro 3:17;
Jer 6:16

1Jn 5:3;
Gal 5:1;
Acts
15:10

Jesus, Lord of the Sabbath

(Mk 2:23; 3:1; Lk 6:1; 14:1)

Mk 2:
23-28;
Lk 6:1-5;
Dt 23:26

12 • ¹ It happened that Jesus walked through the wheat fields on a Sabbath. His disciples were hungry, and began to pick some heads of wheat and crush them to eat the grain. ² When the Pharisees noticed this, they said to Jesus, “Look at your disciples! They are doing what is prohibited on the Sabbath!”

20:10;
Dt 15:14

³ Jesus answered, “Have you not read what David did, when he and his men were hungry? ⁴ He went into the house of God, and they ate the bread offered to God, though neither he nor his men had the right to eat it, but only the priests. ⁵ And have you not read in the Law, that on the Sabbath the priests in the Temple break the Sabbath rest, yet they are not guilty?”

1S 21:
2-7;
Lev 24:
5-9

Num
28:9

• 25. Jesus’ prayer impressed the disciples. In this text it is a short prayer, prompted by the most recent events; events and daily life are also a source of prayer.

You have hidden these things. Intelligent people are not excluded from the faith, of course, but it is the glory of God that faith should not seem to be the privilege of the wise and the intelligent; human wisdom never gives what is essential and often hides it. There were in Palestine at the time some wise people and many others who pretended to be so, but they were rarely seen among the disciples of Jesus.

Everything has been entrusted to me. God does what is needed for people to have always and in all places thousands of ways of knowing him. In this life it is only through Jesus that we have the revelation of the Father.

Must we translate “learn from me for I am...” or “learn from me that I am...”? The humility of Jesus reveals to us the humility of God who never seeks to put us down or intimidate us, but instead always wants to raise us to him. Such humility does not prevent him from being God, and he may exact everything from us because he does not use external force: his influence reaches to the depths of our heart. See Luke 10:21.

Come to me: I will not relieve you of your load but by placing my yoke on you, I give you the means of carrying the load.

Jesus plays with the two words yoke and load, for the Jews used to call “load” the divine teachings imparted to pupils, and yoke the balancing of the teacher’s sentences, which should be learned by heart.

Jesus, the patient and humble teacher, enables us to see the mercy of God in our lives and in our own cross. He shows us the love of God even in the requirements of the Law. Only God is Good; and good is the authority of Christ.

• 12.1 This chapter records the conflicts of Jesus with the Pharisees regarding the Sabbath. Why does the gospel make so much of these conflicts? Perhaps because at the time of Jesus the heavy load of religious obligations was a formidable obstacle for those searching for God. It may have been also because the Christians lost no time making new laws to which they gave an exaggerated importance. If Jesus deliberately violated the most sacred of the laws given by God to Moses, what about our ecclesiastical laws not guaranteed by the Word of God? In the name of man-made laws, adapted to a context that is not ours, Christian communities have at times been paralyzed and we let millions of people look for churches where they have the communities and pastors they have been deprived of.

12:41; Lk 11:31
9:13; Hos 6:6
6 I tell you, there is greater than the Temple here. 7 If you really knew the meaning of the words: It is mercy I want, not sacrifice, you would not have condemned the innocent.

Jn 5:16-17
8 Besides, the Son of Man is Lord of the Sabbath.”

Mk 3:1-6; Lk 6:6-11
9 Jesus then left that place and went into one of their synagogues.

Lk 14:3
10 A man was there with a paralyzed hand, and people who wanted to bring a charge against Jesus asked him, “Is it permitted to heal on the Sabbath?”

11 But he said to them, “What if one of you has a sheep and it falls into a pit on the Sabbath? Will you not take hold of your sheep and lift it out? 12 Is a human being less worthy of help than a sheep? It is therefore permitted to do good on the Sabbath.” 13 Then Jesus said to the man, “Stretch out your arm.” He stretched it out and it was completely restored, as sound as the other one.

6:26; 10:31; Lk 12:7; 13:16; Jn 7:23
Jn 5:9; 9:14
27:1; Mk 11:18; Jn 5:16
Lk 6:17; Mt 14:35
14 Then the Pharisees went out, and made plans to get rid of Jesus. 15 As Jesus was aware of their plans, he left that place. Many people followed him, and he cured all who were sick.

8:4; 9:30; Mk 3:12; 7:36
16 Then he gave them strict orders not to make him known.

17 In this way Isaiah’s prophecy was fulfilled:

Is 42:1-4
18 Here is my servant whom I have chosen, the one I love, and with whom I am pleased. I will put my Spirit upon him and he will announce my judgment to the nations.

19 He will not argue or shout, nor will his voice be heard in the streets.

20 The bruised reed he will not crush, nor snuff out the smoldering wick. He will persist until justice is made victorious, 21 and in him all the nations will put their hope.

The unforgivable sin

(Mk 3:22; Lk 11:15)

• 22 Then some people brought to him a possessed man, who was blind and who could not talk. Jesus healed the man, who was then able to speak and see. 23 All in the crowd were amazed and wondered, “Could he be the Son of David?” 24 When the Pharisees heard this, they said, “It is by Beelzebul, prince of the devils, that this man drives out devils.”

25 Jesus knew their thinking, so he said to them, “Every kingdom that is divided by civil war will fall apart, and every city or family that is divided cannot last. 26 So if Satan drives out Satan, he is divided: how then can his reign endure? 27 And if it is by Beelzebul that I drive out devils, by whom do your own people drive them out? They themselves will give you the answer.

28 But if it is by the Spirit of God that I drive out devils, then the king-

Lk 11:14-30; Mt 9:32-34

Mk 3:22

Acts 10:38

• 22. See commentary on Mark 3:22.

Your own people (v. 27). Jesus refers here to the Jewish exorcists who cast out demons with prayers and formularies, as told in Acts 19:13.

Blasphemy against the Holy Spirit. This means attributing to the devil the good actions of the Spirit, as we see in Mark 3:30.

Either in this age or in the age to come (v. 32). This is a Jewish idiom meaning that this sin cannot be forgiven, by God or people. How can God forgive one who puts himself out of reach of the forgiving God?

If you have a sound tree (v. 33). This is another application of the sentence read in 7:16. It deals here with the accusation against the Pharisees: they slander whatever is good because they have an evil heart.

Your own words will declare you either innocent or guilty (v. 37). See Luke 19:22. Not only the isolated acts of our life are to be judged. Throughout the years we have built up a practical philosophy and a vision of existence. Beginning with that we judge all which in other people questions our own choices. It is that itself, these words with which we justify ourselves and condemn others, that deserve to be condemned.

dom of God has already come upon you. ²⁹How can anyone break into the strong man's house and make off with his belongings, unless he first ties him up? Only then can he plunder his house.

Is 49:24;
Jn 12:31

³⁰The one who is not with me is against me, and the one who does not gather with me scatters.

Mk 9:38;
Lk 9:49;
Mk 9:40;
Lk 9:50

³¹And so I tell you this: people can be forgiven any sin and any evil thing they say against God, but blasphemy against the Spirit will not be forgiven. ³²The one who speaks against the Son of Man, will be forgiven; but the one who speaks against the Holy Spirit will not be forgiven, either in this age or in the age to come.

10:19;
Mk 8:38;
Lk 9:26;
21:14;
1Tim
1:13;
Lk 12:10

³³If you have a sound tree, its fruit will be sound; if you have a rotten tree, its fruit will be rotten. You can know a tree by its fruit. ³⁴You brood of vipers, how can you say anything good, when you are so evil? For the mouth speaks of what fills the heart. ³⁵A good person produces good things from his good store, and an evil person produces evil things from his evil store.

7:16-20;
Lk 6:
43-45

3:7;
23:33;
Lk 3:7

15:18;
Mk 7:21

³⁶I tell you this: on the day of judgment people will have to give an account of any unjustified word they have spoken. ³⁷Your own words will declare you either innocent or guilty."

Jas 3:1

Jesus criticizes his own generation

(Mk 8:11; Lk 11:16)

• ³⁸Then some teachers of the Law and some Pharisees spoke up, "Teacher, we want to see a sign from you." ³⁹Jesus answered them, "An evil and unfaithful people want a sign, but no sign will be given them except the sign of the prophet Jonah. ⁴⁰In the same way that Jonah spent three days and three nights in the belly of the whale, so will the Son of Man spend three days and three nights in the depths of the earth.

Mk 8:
11-12;
Lk 11:16;
11:29-32;
Mt 16:
1-4;
1Cor 1:22;
Lk 12:54;
12:1

Jon 2:1

⁴¹At the judgment, the people of Nineveh will rise with this generation and condemn it, because they reformed their lives at the preaching of Jonah, and here there is greater than Jonah. ⁴²At the judgment, the Queen of the South will stand up and condemn you. She came from the ends of the earth to listen to the wisdom of Solomon, and here there is greater than Solomon.

Jon 3

1K 10:
1-10

⁴³When an evil spirit goes out of a person, it wanders over arid wastelands looking for a place to rest, but it cannot find one. ⁴⁴Then it says to itself: 'I will go back to my house which I had to leave.' So it goes back and finds the house empty, clean, and in order. ⁴⁵Off it goes again to bring back with it, this time, seven spirits, more evil than itself. They move in and settle there, so that this person is finally in a worse state than

Lk 11:
24-26

Mk 5:9;
Lk 8:2;
Jn 5:14;
2P 2:20

• 38. Jesus did not perform any miracle that day, because the experts in religion were demanding an account of him, instead of listening to him.

An evil and unfaithful people. The text of the Gospel says in fact: "evil and adulterous". This expression in the Bible means the unfaithful believer who, without denying God in words, keeps other gods to himself.

The story of the unclean spirit, meaning the devil, is directed towards the contemporaries of Jesus. They accepted John's call to conversion and for a while changed their way of life. Theirs was not a real experience of God, neither did they discover the inner power that would have enabled them to persevere, and so their blindness remained.

The Ninevites: see Jonah 3:5.

The Queen of the South: 1 Kings 10.

The sign of Jonah is the resurrection of Jesus. The similarity seen in the three days that Jonah was in the belly of the fish and the time Jesus spent in the tomb is somewhat forced.

he was at the beginning. This is what will happen to this evil generation.”

Mk 3:
31-35;
Lk 8:
19-21;
Jn 2:12;
Acts 1:14

• ⁴⁶ While Jesus was still talking to the people, his mother and his brothers wanted to speak to him, and they waited outside. ⁴⁷ So someone said to him, “Your mother and your brothers are standing outside; they want to speak with you.”

⁴⁸ Jesus answered, “Who is my mother? Who are my brothers?” ⁴⁹ Then he pointed to his disciples and said, “Look! Here are my mother and my brothers. ⁵⁰ Whoever does the will of my Father in heaven is for me brother, sister, or mother.”

Lk 2:
49-50

The parable of the sower

(Mk 4:1; Lk 8:4; 10:23; 13:20)

Mk 4:1-9;
Lk 8:4-8;
5:1

13 • ¹ That same day Jesus left the house and sat down by the lakeside. ² Many people gathered around him, so he got in a boat, and sat down, while the crowds stood on the shore; ³ and he spoke to them in parables about many things.

• 46. His mother and his brothers. If they were true brothers of Jesus, sons of Mary, the Gospel would say: “his mother and the sons of his mother,” for this was the Jewish manner of speaking. See commentary on Mark 3:31.

• 13.1 Here we have the beginning of the third “discourse of Jesus” in Matthew’s Gospel (see Introduction). Jesus had his apostles proclaim the coming of the Kingdom; the first signs were seen: healings and victories over demons but opposition was not wanting and it would seem that on the whole, people did not respond. What must we think of this “Kingdom of God” which changes very little of real life? Matthew replies with the following seven parables.

Jesus uses comparisons just as simple country folk and working people usually do. Proverbs and parables have always been an effective way of teaching wisdom. But we must observe that a parable is not just any comparison; its characteristic is to awaken in the listeners an awareness of their present situation and oblige them to make a decision.

⁴ Jesus said, “The sower went out to sow and, as he sowed, some seeds fell along the path, and the birds came and ate them up. ⁵ Other seeds fell on rocky ground where there was little soil, and the seeds sprouted quickly because the soil was not deep. ⁶ But as soon as the sun rose, the plants were scorched, and they withered because they had no roots. ⁷ Again other seeds fell among thistles, and the thistles grew and choked the plants. ⁸ Still other seeds fell on good soil and produced a crop: some a hundredfold, others sixty, and others thirty. ⁹ If you have ears, then hear!”

11:15;
13:43;
Mk 4:23;
Lk 14:35;
Rev 2:7

• ¹⁰ Then his disciples came to him and said, “Why do you speak to them in parables?”

Mk 4:
10-12;
Lk 8:9-10

¹¹ Jesus answered, “To you it has been given to know the secrets of the kingdom of heaven, but not to these people. ¹² For the one who has, will be given more and he will have in abundance. But the one who does

1Cor 4:1;
Eph 3:3;
6:19;
Col 2:2

25:29;
Lk 19:26

For those listening to Jesus, the reign of God signified first of all a liberation of his oppressed people, and this called for clear explanation. Jesus, for his part, could only give an answer to those who accompanied him; for the Kingdom is one of those things that cannot be seen as long as one has no belief in it. Jesus will only speak of it in images and we will understand according to the degree of our experience of that Kingdom which is developing throughout the world.

For this parable of the Sower which gives the general direction of this chapter, see the commentary of Mark 4:1 and Luke 8:4.

• 10. To you it has been given to know the secrets of the kingdom. To you who took Christ’s call seriously and decided to follow him. Because you came to be the co-workers of Christ, the Father will reveal to you his secrets.

The quotation from Isaiah that follows may shock us due to the fact of our not fully understanding Hebrew expressions. Does Jesus speak in parables because the audience does not want to understand, or so that they will not not have will be deprived of even what he has. ¹³That is why I speak to them in parables, because they look and do not see; they hear, but they do not listen or understand.

Is 6:9-10;
Jn 12:40;
Acts 28:
26-27

¹⁴In them the words of the prophet Isaiah are fulfilled: However much you hear, you do not understand; however much you see, you do not perceive.

¹⁵*For the heart of this people has grown dull. Their ears hardly hear and their eyes dare not see. If they were to see with their eyes, hear with their ears and understand with their heart, they would turn back, and I would heal them.*

Lk 10:
23-24

¹⁶But blessed are your eyes because they see, and your ears, because they hear.

Eph 3:5;
1P 1:12

¹⁷For I tell you that many prophets and upright people have longed to see the things you see, but they did not see them, and to hear the things you hear, but they did not hear them.

Mk 4:
13-20;
Lk 8:
11-15

• ¹⁸Now listen to the parable of the sower.

understand? It could be both at the same time (compare vv. 13 and 15, and also 35). See the commentary on Mark 4:11.

For the one who has will be given more. Here has means produce, bear as does the tree that “has” fruit. It will be given to those who are fruitful.

The kingdom of heaven. We already said that “Heaven” was a Jewish expression referring to God. The kingdom of heaven is the kingdom of God, as the Father of Heaven is God the Father. Not realizing this, many have mistakenly thought that the Gospel announced only the kingdom of God in Heaven after our present life. Actually Jesus came to tell us that God had come to rule among us.

Kingdom or Reign of God? See commentary on Luke 8:10.

• 18. Who will welcome the Word of God? This has nothing to do with intelligence or ability to reflect, or interest in religious things: those who are open to hope receive the Word.

¹⁹When a person hears the message of the Kingdom, but does not take it seriously, the devil comes and snatches away what was sown in his heart. This is the seed that fell along the footpath.

²⁰The seed that fell on rocky ground stands for the one who hears the word, and accepts it at once with joy. ²¹But such a person has no roots, and endures only for a while. No sooner is he harassed or persecuted because of the word, than he gives up.

²²The seed that fell among the thistles is the one who hears the word, but then the worries of this life and the love of money choke the word, and it does not bear fruit.

Lk 12:
16-21;
1Tim 6:9

²³As for the seed that fell on good soil, it is the one who hears the word and understands it; this seed bears fruit and produces a hundred, or sixty, or thirty times more.”

Jn 15:
8, 16;
Gal 5:22

The parable of the weeds

• ²⁴Jesus told them another parable, “The kingdom of heaven can be compared to a man who sowed good

Those along the footpath are those not interested in the word they have received, perhaps because they cannot see further than their own interests (they are selfish), or perhaps they have taken another direction in life.

Next come those who do not dare to face contradiction and are easily discouraged and cowed: these are soon burnt. Yet to hope means to be firm despite any obstacle. If God puts us on a road in life, this road will lead somewhere. Hope is courage and endurance.

Next are those that fell among the thistles. They are believers, but the fruits to be harvested along the difficult path seem not to satisfy them. They want to “save their lives,” to serve God and Money at the same time. They are dragged down by their aim of winning material success, and hope in the kingdom of God becomes but a flimsy desire for them.

• 24. With the parable of the weeds, Jesus answers those who are scandalized at seeing evil everywhere. Good and bad will be mixed seed in his field. ²⁵While everyone was asleep, his enemy came and sowed weeds among the wheat, and went away.

²⁶When the plants sprouted and produced grain, the weeds also appeared. ²⁷Then the servants of the owner came to him and said, 'Sir, was it not good seed that you sowed in your field? Where did the weeds come from?'

²⁸He answered them, 'This is the work of an enemy.' They asked him, 'Do you want us to go and pull up the weeds?' ²⁹He told them, 'No, when you pull up the weeds, you might uproot the wheat with them. ³⁰Let them just grow together until harvest; and at harvest time I will say to the workers: Pull up the weeds first, tie them in bundles and burn them; then gather the wheat into my barn.'

Jn 15:6

till the end of the world. Good and evil will always be found together in persons and institutions.

God respects people. He knows that temptation is often stronger than their good intentions and they need time to find and to choose steadily what is good.

God is patient. The reconciliation of so many contradictory groups, forces and cultural currents active in the world will be attained only at the end of time. In the meantime we are not to label any of them as "the" good ones and "the" bad ones.

Jesus himself commented on this parable: see verse 36.

- 31. With the parable of the mustard seed Jesus shows us that the kingdom of God must be a sign; it has to be something very noticeable in the world.

Any spiritual aspiration, cultural innovation or revolutionary movement must be expressed concretely, through one or several institutions, to make it a clearer and more visible entity. Likewise Jesus projects his Church as the bearer (not the owner) of the kingdom of God. Church means: "Assembly of those called together." Two of the characteristics of this Church are indicated here:

- first it must be very visible and fruitful for the world, like a tree giving shade to birds;

The mustard seed and the yeast

(Mk 4:30; Lk 13:18)

- ³¹Jesus offered them another parable: "The kingdom of heaven is like a mustard seed, that a man took and sowed in his field.

Mk 4:
30-32;
Lk 13: 18-19

- ³²It is smaller than all other seeds, but once it is fully grown, it is bigger than any garden plant; like a tree, the birds come and rest in its branches."

17:20;
Lk 17:6;
Ezk
17:23;
31:6;
Dn 4:
9, 18

- ³³He told them another parable, "The kingdom of heaven is like the yeast that a woman took, and hid in three measures of flour, until the whole mass of dough began to rise."

Lk 13:
20-21;
1Cor 5:6;
Gal 5:9

- ³⁴Jesus taught all this to the crowds by means of parables; he did not say anything to them without using a parable. ³⁵So what the Prophet had said was fulfilled: I will

Mk 4: 33-34

Ps 78:2

- secondly, it must be immersed in human reality.

Believers are not to separate themselves from those who do not believe, for they are the yeast of the world.

Jesus does not want an "invisible Church," that is an emotional fellowship and spiritual communion among all those in the whole world who believe in him. He wants a gigantic tree (in another place Jesus says: a city built on a hill), so that everyone can recognize that the seed was good and full of life. We need organized Christian communities, and ties between these communities, a hierarchy... Nevertheless the believers are not to enclose themselves in their chapels or little communities or to spend all their energies working for "their" Church. They must be useful and fruitful in the world together with all people of goodwill.

Let them be yeast for the dough, not small separate and finer dough. The yeast transforms human history, not by bringing all people into the Church, but by infusing into human activity the spirit that gives life to humankind.

- 34. Jesus taught all this to the crowds by means of parables. On reading Matthew 13:12, we might think that Jesus speaks in parables in order to hide his teaching. Here we find another explanation that corrects and speaking in parables. I will proclaim things kept secret since the beginning of the world.

15:15;
Mk 4:10

• ³⁶ Then he sent the crowds away and went into the house. And his disciples came to him, saying, "Explain to us the parable of the weeds in the field." ³⁷ Jesus answered them, "The one who sows the good seed is the Son of Man. ³⁸ The field is the world; the good seed are the people of the Kingdom; the weeds are those who follow the evil one. ³⁹ The enemy who sows the weeds is the devil; the harvest is the end of time, and the workers are the angels.

1 Jn 3:10

Jn 8:44

⁴⁰ Just as the weeds are pulled up and burned in the fire, so will it be at the end of time. ⁴¹ The Son of Man will send his angels, and they will weed out of his kingdom all that is scandalous and all who do evil. ⁴² And these will be thrown in the blazing furnace, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth. ⁴³ Then the just will shine like the sun in the kingdom of their Father. If you have ears, then hear.

3:10;
7:19;
Jn 15:6;
Rev
14:15

Zep 1:3;
Dn 3:6;
Rev
21:8;
Mt 8:12;
13:50;
22:13;
24:51;
25:30

Dn 12:3

completes the first. Jesus spoke in parables because that was the best method to convey a teaching relevant for all times.

I will speak in parables. These are the first words of Psalm 78, as adapted by the evangelist. He means that the secrets of the kingdom of God revealed by Jesus answer the most important questions of humankind.

From the beginning of civilization, people were confronted with problems and challenges they could not solve on their own, and Jesus offers the key to these contradictions. Science has discovered many elements of human destiny; we have still to discover who we are.

Jesus' answer is not given as a theory and it upsets the "little intellectuals" who are used to the language of books. He gives us something much richer with these images or enigmas which require some creativity and to which we have to return. Each of us will have to ponder them as long as we live, and humankind as long as history. Only with time shall we discover all that they mean.

• 36. The field is the world. This parable does not refer to what happens within each of us, or only in the Church, as described in the net (v. 47). Rather it teaches that the kingdom of God exists and grows in the world, in all dimensions of the secular world. Sacred history is more than an ancient history in the land of Jesus; it is the entire human story of which the risen Christ is Lord.

So will it be at the end of time. Jesus speaks to us of a judgment. The expectation of God's judgment on the world was an essential element of prophetic teaching. Let us not only see in it a desire for vengeance on the part of honest people who suffered. To know for certain that our life will be judged by one who knows us through and through is one of the bases of the Christian vision of existence. This enables us to understand the tragic character of the decisions we make from day to day directing us either to the truth or a refusal of the light.

This certitude shocks many of our contemporaries just as in the past it terrified the majority of people. It is for that reason they have often taken refuge in metempsychosis—a series of existences. The faults of the present life could be rectified in the one that followed. The importance of our choices is doubted, and the sense of sin is blurred just as is the sense of the presence of God. Before long we could doubt the unique value of our life and of the human person.

While reaffirming the judgment, this short parable contains an extremely revolutionary element: the judgment is God's secret and up to the end of the world, both good and evil are in each of us, as well as in institutions. When we read the Bible, we are perhaps shocked to see that not only in the Old Testament but also even in the New, the world is constantly divided between the good and the wicked. It seems to us that it should not be: the inner being of a person is a deep mystery. There isn't a group of the good (we, of course, and those who believe in God, and those who observe the same morality that we observe...) and then the others. Why then does Jesus divide humans?

Our quick reply is that Jesus has spoken as the prophets spoke. To speak of the good and the wicked was a simple way, suitable to the mentality of people less developed than ourselves, to show that each one of us, in each of our acts, takes a step in one of two opposed directions. For centuries women and men have

The treasure, the pearl and the net

Pro 2:4;
4:7

•⁴⁴ The kingdom of heaven is like a treasure hidden in a field. The one who finds it buries it again; and so happy is he, that he goes and sells everything he has, in order to buy that field.

⁴⁵ Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a trader who is looking for fine pearls. ⁴⁶ Once he has found a pearl of exceptional quality, he goes away, sells everything he has and buys it.

•⁴⁷ Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a big fishing net let down into the sea, in which every kind of fish has been caught. ⁴⁸ When the net is full, it is dragged ashore. Then they sit down and gather the good fish in buckets, but throw the worthless ones away. ⁴⁹ That is how it will be at the end of time; the angels will go out to separate the wicked from the just, ⁵⁰ and to throw the wicked into the blazing furnace, where they will weep and gnash their teeth."

⁵¹ Jesus asked, "Have you understood all these things?" "Yes," they answered. ⁵² So he said to them, "You will see that every teacher of the Law, who becomes a disciple of the kingdom of heaven, is like a householder, who can produce from his store things both new and old."

13:42

felt themselves interpreted by this way of speaking: it is still effective and pedagogic for us on many occasions. It is very important to understand that Jesus is not duped by images. For the majority of us, the separation is not made, even if after a conversion or two, until we have taken decisive steps.

The servants represent the believers, but especially the "supervisors" of the Church. Their zeal for repressing those they judge as straying in order to preserve what seems good to them may well be tainted interiorly. They would like to suppress all the errors. Rather they rely too much on force, or on authority. If the "masters" of the faith were not to give the faithful the possibility to think for themselves and make mistakes, the Church would be without life.

God prefers to let matters clarify: he wants people to learn from experience. Evil is part of the mystery of the cross; in doing what is good and living in the light we defeat evil (Rom 12:21).

• 44. The parables of the treasure and the pearl invite us not to let opportunities pass by, when the kingdom of God comes to us.

Some have been waiting for years for that word, or person or sign of hope that would give new meaning to their lives. One day they found it. Sometimes it was found through simple things: a forgiving word, a friendly smile, a first commitment offered to them and accepted. Then they understood that this was the way to gain all they were waiting for, and they entered the Kingdom happily.

The parable says: he hides it again. Ordinarily it is God who hides the treasure again after having shown it to us, for it will be really ours when we have worked for it and persevered.

Everything must be sold. We have to divest ourselves of all those habits, pleasures... that occupy our hearts without filling them. When trials come upon us like a frosty, icy night, we should not forget the treasure we have once seen, until we recover it. Plato, the great pagan philosopher, said, "It is during the night that it is beautiful to believe in the light."

"The pearl" is, in a certain sense, Christ himself. He alone gives meaning to all the sacrifices of a Christian life. These are not really "sacrifices," but the search for a love that has already been proven.

EVIL IN THE CHURCH

• 47. The Church has given the Kingdom to those who entered, but some of them belong to the visible family of the chosen ones, without having the spirit of the Kingdom.

By speaking of the net, Jesus reminds us that the first activity of the Church must be mission: "to catch people." Many of them surely will not persevere, but a Church that closes itself would die.

How we would like to have a perfect Church made of upright persons, in which each one would discover the gifts of God! Christ, however, did not want a Church like that, nor is that the way for the Church to save the world.

HELL

They will throw the wicked into the blazing furnace. This affirmation which we have already seen (v. 30) only confirms what the •⁵³When Jesus had finished these parables, he left that place. ⁵⁴He went to his hometown and taught the people in their synagogue. They were amazed and said, “Where did he get this wisdom and these special powers? ⁵⁵Isn’t he the carpenter’s son? Isn’t Mary his mother and aren’t James, Joseph, Simon and Judas his brothers? ⁵⁶Aren’t all his sisters living here? How did he get all this?” ⁵⁷And so they took offense at him.

Mk 6: 1-6;
Lk 4: 16-24;
Jn 7:15

Lk 3:23;
Jn 6:42

Jesus said to them, “The only place where prophets are not welcome is their hometown and in their own family.” ⁵⁸And he did not perform many miracles there because of their lack of faith.

Jn 4:44

John the Baptist beheaded

(Mk 6:14; Lk 9:7)

14 • ¹At that time the news about Jesus reached king Herod. ²And he said to his servants, “This man is John the Baptist. John has risen from the dead, and that is why miraculous powers are at work in him.”

Mk 6: 14-29;
Lk 9:7-9

16:14

³Herod had, in fact, ordered that John be arrested, bound in chains whole Bible says: we shall be judged and the plenitude of life offered to those who will be “in” God will have as counterpart the despairing lot of those who have refused life.

Lk 3: 19-20

The Church has always spoken, according to the terms of the Bible, of an eternal hell. She has also adopted towards the twelfth century the word “purgatory” to designate the painful purification the saved will experience, unless they have already known on earth the terrible burning of the pure love of God.

The affirmation of purgatory shocks those who have not experienced divine holiness which is never without a burning of everything that belongs to us; have they ever really pondered what “becoming God in God” exacts of us? Hell does not hurt less. We know, of course, that fire is only a figure of speech and we should not interpret it as a vengeance of God: it is the “damned” who are unable to renounce the harrowing solitude in which they have enclosed themselves; it is at the same time their enjoyment and their torture. However, we no longer accept the idea of pain that has no end and we readily support this with philosophic argument.

Certainly Jesus spoke the language of his time, not ours. This division of the world into good and bad was present in all culture. It is also certain that Jesus had deep and true knowledge of God and human beings. Had he found in this punishment something contrary to the infinite goodness of God he would have said so without any concern of scandal. He has spoken as he did because the infinite love of God does not take away our freedom to escape him and defy him.

However it is to be noted that Jesus does not only speak of condemnation for some horrible crimes: loss or salvation is an option for all. We must also recognize that he does not speak according to our categories of hell and purgatory: Gehenna (Mt 5:22; 10:28), or fire (Mk 9:42) are imprecise terms that can designate both at the same time. The “fire of hell” is said to be “eternal” in several places (Mk 9:47; Mt18:8; Mt 25:41), but this word has not exactly the meaning we give it: it could be something that goes beyond our experience of time.

We can then ask questions, but we must also question ourselves on two matters. Firstly, to speak of what God should or should not do is rather like asking him to be just. But “justice” is not something that exists in itself: it is only an aspect of the mystery of God. What do we know of his mystery? Then let us not teach him justice. We must also reply to this question: if Jesus wanted to say that certain people go to unending suffering, how must he say it in order that we may not doubt it?

The mystery remains. If we understood to what God invites us—and for an eternity in its truest sense, and that life is unique and that here below we shall give our response and finally give birth to our eternity—are there words too strong for someone who has lost everything?

• 53. Compare with Luke 4:14. See commentary on Mark 3:31.

• 14.1 For chapters 14 and 15 see commentaries on Mark 6 and 7.

It would seem that this series of narratives that occupy chapters 14 and 15 and the beginning of chapter 16 formed a collection dating from the first years of the Church; an idenand put in prison, because of Herodias, the wife of his brother Philip.

Lev
18:16;
20:21

⁴For John had said to Herod, "It is not right for you to have her as your wife."

⁵Herod wanted to kill John but he did not dare, because he feared the people, who regarded John as a prophet.

⁶On Herod's birthday the daughter of Herodias danced among the guests; she so delighted Herod ⁷that he promised under oath to give her anything she asked for. ⁸The girl, following the advice of her mother, said, "Give me the head of John the Baptist here on a dish."

⁹The king was very displeased, but because he had made this promise under oath in the presence of his guests, he ordered it to be given to her. ¹⁰So he had John beheaded in prison, ¹¹and his head brought on a dish and given to the girl. The girl then took it to her mother.

¹²Then John's disciples came and took his body and buried it. Then they went away to bring the news to Jesus.

First miracle of the loaves

(Mk 6:32; Jn 6)

Mk 6:
32-44;
Jn 6:1-13;
Mt 15:
32-38

• ¹³On hearing this, Jesus set out by boat for a secluded place, to be alone. But the people heard of it, and they followed him on foot from their towns. ¹⁴When Jesus went ashore, tical collection is found in Mark and a part in Luke. As in all these texts that have been passed on orally over a time, there were general ideas and keywords that helped them to be linked to each other. Here bread must have been one of the common themes.

9:36

Do not forget that bread was by far the main food and to eat bread signified to have a meal (15:2).

On the other hand there were few needs besides food and clothing, so religion gave much importance to everything related to food and cooking. That explains the questions presented in these chapters and the answers given by Jesus. Even the bread of the children (15:26) he saw the crowd gathered there and he had compassion on them. And he healed their sick.

¹⁵Late in the afternoon, his disciples came to him and said, "We are in a lonely place and it is now late. You should send these people away, so they can go to the villages and buy something for themselves to eat."

¹⁶But Jesus replied, "They do not need to go away; you give them something to eat." ¹⁷They answered, "We have nothing here but five loaves and two fishes." ¹⁸Jesus said to them, "Bring them here to me."

¹⁹Then he made everyone sit down on the grass. He took the five loaves and the two fishes, raised his eyes to heaven, pronounced the blessing, broke the loaves, and handed them to the disciples to distribute to the people. ²⁰And they all ate, and everyone had enough; then the disciples gathered up the leftovers, filling twelve baskets. ²¹About five thousand men had eaten there, besides women and children.

Jn 11:41;
17:1

2K 4:43

Jesus walks on the water

(Mk 6:45; Jn 6:16)

• ²²Immediately Jesus obliged his disciples to get into the boat and go ahead of him to the other side, while he sent the crowd away.

²³And having sent the people

Mk 6:
45-52;
Jn 6: 15-21

Lk 6:12;
9:28

gave the opportunity to complete the teaching about the eucharist that was drawn from the two miracles of the loaves.

• 13. See commentary on Mark 6:35 and John 6.

• 22. See commentary on Mark 6:45.

They were terrified: thinking that it was a ghost. The apostles shared the same fears and superstitions that their kinsfolk had. Only in time would they reach mature faith which drives away these paralyzing beliefs.

Command me to come to you (v. 28). Matthew is not interested in emphasizing away, he went up the mountain by himself to pray. At nightfall, he was there alone. ²⁴Meanwhile, the boat was very far from land, dangerously rocked by the waves, for the wind was against it.

²⁵At daybreak, Jesus came to them walking on the sea. ²⁶When they saw him walking on the sea, they were terrified, thinking that it was a ghost. And they cried out in fear. ²⁷But at once Jesus said to them, "Courage! Don't be afraid. It's me!" ²⁸Peter answered, "Lord, if it is you, command me to come to you walking on the water."

²⁹Jesus said to him, "Come!" And Peter got out of the boat, and walked on the water to go to Jesus. ³⁰But seeing the strong wind, he was afraid and began to sink; and he cried out, "Lord, save me!" ³¹Jesus immediately stretched out his hand and took hold of him, saying, "Man of little faith, why did you doubt?"

³²As they got into the boat, the wind dropped. ³³Then those in the boat bowed down before Jesus, saying, "Truly, you are the Son of God!"

³⁴They came ashore at Genesareth. ³⁵The local people recognized Jesus and spread the news throughout the region. So they brought all the sick to him, ³⁶begging him to let them touch just the hem of his cloak. All who touched it became perfectly well.

Peter's doubt, but his faith. Peter alone dared to attempt something that seemed to be reserved for Jesus, and after joining his companions again in the boat he was, though soaked, the happiest of them all.

Mark of little faith (v. 31). Once more Jesus' reproaches are addressed to his best disciples (as in 6:30; 8:26; 16:8; 17:20)—in order to convince future disciples, like us, that much is still lacking in our faith.

- 15.1 See commentary on Mark 7:1. They don't wash their hands. The Phar-

God's command and human tradition
(Mk 7:1)

15 • ¹Then some Pharisees and teachers of the Law who had come from Jerusalem gathered around Jesus. And they said to him, ²"Why don't your disciples follow the tradition of the elders? In fact, they don't wash their hands before eating."

³Jesus answered, "And you, why do you break God's command for the sake of your traditions? ⁴For God commanded: Do your duty to your father and your mother, and: Whoever curses his father or his mother is to be put to death. ⁵But you say that anyone may say to his father or mother, 'What you could have expected from me, I have reserved for the Temple.' ⁶In this case, according to you, a person is freed of his duty to his father and mother. And so, you have nullified the command of God for the sake of your traditions.

⁷Hypocrites! Isaiah rightly prophesied of you when he said: ⁸*This people honors me with their lips, but their heart is far from me*. ⁹*The worship they offer me is worthless, for they only teach human rules.*"

Washing hands and cleanness of heart
(Mk 7:14; Lk 6:39)

• ¹⁰Jesus then called the people near him, and said to them, "Listen and understand: ¹¹What enters into the mouth does not make a person

isees uphold something that is excellent and which we ourselves practice. Jesus' vision, however, goes further: all these good customs and religious practices (feasts and meditations included) easily become a smoke screen, hiding the essential from us: a constant readiness to listen to God's call, a simple trust in his mercy which alone can save us.

- 10. See commentary on Mark 7:14. Using only human criteria, human societies are not able to distinguish good from evil. For the Jewish people, the worship of God

Mk 7: 1-13

Gal 1:14; Col 2:8; Lk 11:38

20:12; Dt 5:16; 21:17; Lev 20:9; Eph 6:2

Is 29:13; Ps 78:36

Mk 7: 14-23

Lk 24:37

Jn 21:7

8:25-26

Mk 4:39

16:16; 26:63; 27:54;

Mk 14:61; 15:39;

Lk 22:70; Jn 1:49

9:27;
20:30;
Mk 10:47

unclean. What defiles a person is what comes out of his mouth.”

¹²After a while the disciples gathered around Jesus and said, “Do you know that the Pharisees were offended by what you said?” ¹³Jesus answered, “Every plant which my heavenly Father has not planted shall be uprooted. ¹⁴Pay no attention to them! They are blind leading the blind. When a blind person leads another, the two will fall into a pit.”

¹⁵Peter said to him, “Explain this sentence to us.” ¹⁶Jesus replied, “So even you, too, are dull? ¹⁷Do you not see that whatever enters the mouth goes into the stomach, and then out of the body? ¹⁸But what comes out of the mouth comes from the heart, and that is what makes a person unclean.

¹⁹Indeed, it is from the heart that evil desires come: murder, adultery, immorality, theft, lies, slander. ²⁰These are the things that make a person unclean; but eating without washing the hands does not make a person unclean.”

23:16;
Lk 6:39;
Rom 2:19

1Cor 5:10;
6:9;
Eph 5:3;
Col 3:5;
1Tim 1:9;
2Tim 3:2;
Rev 21:8;
22:15

The faith of the Canaanite woman
(Mk 7: 24)

²¹Leaving that place, Jesus withdrew to the region of Tyre and Sidon.

²²Now a Canaanite woman came from those borders and began to cry out, “Lord, Son of David, have pity on me! My daughter is tormented by a demon.” ²³But Jesus did not answer her, not even a word. So his disciples approached him and said, “Send her away! See how she is shouting after us.”

²⁴Then Jesus said to her, “I was sent only to the lost sheep of the nation of Israel.”

²⁵But the woman was already kneeling before Jesus, and said, “Sir, help me!” ²⁶Jesus answered, “It is not right to take the bread from the children and throw it to the puppy dogs.”

²⁷The woman replied, “That is true, sir, but even the puppy dogs eat the crumbs which fall from their master’s table.” ²⁸Then Jesus said, “Woman, how great is your faith! Let it be as you wish.” And her daughter was healed at that moment.

Lk 16:21

8:10;
8:13;
9:29

Second miracle of the loaves
(Mk 7:31)

²⁹From there Jesus went to the shore of Lake Galilee, and then went up into the hills, where he sat down.

³⁰Great crowds came to him, bringing the dumb, the blind, the lame, the crippled, and many with other in-

Mk 7:31

5:1

Mk 7: 24-30

was everything and they felt very much concerned about exactly who and what things were worthy of being part of this worship. Thus they made a distinction between the clean and the unclean. Jesus shows that true purity is that of the heart.

It could be that the code for correct behavior in our society and its numerous goodwill institutions be just a modern way of distinguishing the pure and the impure. In the Church itself, in past centuries, there has been a tendency to attribute to sacred ministers a “purity” that reserved to them the handling of sacred things. It is one of the reasons why in the Middle Ages Communion was not given in the hand, as had been the custom for over ten centuries.

• 29. On two occasions Jesus multiplied bread. It is one of his miracles that most impresses us.

The word “miracle” is often devalued. The Bible uses different words to denote what clearly appears as an act of God: sign, wonder, work of power. Miracle in its full meaning is all that at the same time: a sign by which God makes us discover his will or the invisible order of the world, a wonder that disconcerts our limited vision, a work which God alone is capable of doing.

The multiplication of loaves is the kind of miracle which most shocks our contemporaries and their absolute faith in the “laws of nature” that God himself would not have the power to surpass, or which he could not ignore firmities. The people carried them to the feet of Jesus, and he healed them. ³¹All were astonished when they saw the dumb speaking, the lame walking, the crippled healed, and the blind able to see; and they glorified the God of Israel.

³²Jesus called his disciples and said to them, "I am filled with compassion for these people; they have already followed me for three days and now have nothing to eat. I do not want to send them away fasting, or they may faint on the way." ³³His disciples said to him, "And where shall we find enough bread in this wilderness to feed such a crowd?" ³⁴Jesus said to them, "How many loaves do you have?" They answered, "Seven, and a few small fish."

³⁵So Jesus ordered the people to sit on the ground. ³⁶Then he took the seven loaves and the small fish and gave thanks to God. He broke them and gave them to his disciples, who distributed them to the people.

³⁷They all ate and were satisfied, and the leftover broken pieces filled seven wicker baskets. ³⁸Four thousand men had eaten, besides women and children. ³⁹Then Jesus sent away the crowd, got into the boat and went to Magdala.

The Pharisees ask for a sign

(Mk 8:11; Lk 11:16; 12:54)

16 • ¹The Pharisees and Sadducees appeared. They wanted to put Jesus to the test and asked him for some heavenly sign.

²Jesus answered, "(When evening comes, you say, 'It will be a good day, for the sky is red.' ³And in the morning you say, 'Stormy weather today, for the sky in the east is red.' If you know how to interpret the appearance of the sky, why can't you interpret the signs of the times?) ⁴An evil and unbelieving people want a sign, but no sign will be given them except the sign of Jonah."

And Jesus left them and went away.

• ⁵When the disciples went to the other side, they forgot to take bread. ⁶It was then that Jesus said to them,

• 16.1 They asked for some heavenly sign. They want a miracle that will undoubtedly be the work of God.

No sign will be given them. Jesus refuses to prove his authority by multiplying miracles. People who love truth and seek what is right will recognize the seal of God in the deeds of Jesus—and of his followers—no matter how many speak ill of them.

The sign of Jonah is the resurrection of Jesus (see 12:40). Yet this resurrection that is the most decisive sign, will be understandable only to the believers. Thus people who demand miracles before they will believe, receive no answer.

Verses 2-4: the sentences we put in parenthesis are lacking in the oldest manuscripts.

• 5. The Gospel has kept very little of all that would have been exchanged between Jesus and his apostles over the long months of their life together. How fortunate that at least they recorded here one of the many stupid

Mk 8: 11-13;
Lk 11: 16, 29;
Mt 12: 38-39;
Lk 11:16;
Jn 6:30;
1Cor 1:22

Lk 12: 54-56

Mk 8: 14-21;
Lk 12:1

Mk 8: 1-10;
Mt 14: 13-21;
9:36

without contradicting himself. Many do not openly deny the testimony of the apostles, but they avoid taking any stand and say for example: "The miracle is still more beautiful if we imagine that Jesus merely invited the people to share their individual snacks, so that finally there was enough for everyone: a miracle of solidarity!"

Here the Gospel is not praising solidarity: it wishes rather to celebrate the absolute freedom of God and of Christ: nature itself must be silent, because here the dead are raised to life. For a Christian, creation is not a huge machine that God has passed on to people as he abdicated; it is a reflection of God where the laws—shadows of the wisdom, the order and the justice that are in God—never exclude his freedom.

Throughout all Christian history the Lord has multiplied and continues to multiply bread, items of food and even canned food for those who have given everything or risked all for him: many are able to witness to this.

“Beware, and do not trust the yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees.”⁷ But the disciples said to one another, “He means the bread we did not bring.”

⁸ Jesus was aware of this, so he said to them, “You of little faith! Why do you speak about the bread you don’t have? ⁹ Do you still not understand? Do you not remember the five loaves for the five thousand and how many baskets you gathered? ¹⁰ Or the seven loaves for the four thousand and how many wicker baskets you took up?”

¹¹ How can you fail to understand that I was not talking of bread when I told you: Beware of the yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees?”¹² Then they understood that he was not talking of yeast for bread, but of the teaching of the Pharisees and Sadducees.

Peter’s faith; Jesus’ promises

(Mk 8:27; Lk 9:18; Jn 6:69)

• ¹³ After that, Jesus came to Caesarea Philippi. He asked his disciples, “Who do people say the Son of Man is?”¹⁴ They said, “For some of them you are John the Baptist, for others Elijah, or Jeremiah, or one of the prophets.”

¹⁵ Jesus asked them, “But you, who do you say I am?”¹⁶ Peter answered, “You are the Messiah, the

Mk 8: 27-30;
Lk 9:
18-21

things uttered in his presence! If they misunderstood his warning, it was that they were very much worried about those “necessary” things that it would be better to leave in the hands of God.

Beware of the yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees. See commentary on Mark 8:11.

Very often the Gospel associates these two names. We have already seen that the Sadducees were the party of the chief priests. They were by family right, responsible for the national and religious life of the people of God. The Pharisees for their part were a party devoted to defending the law of God. They were enemies of the Sadducees. Let us not say: “They were perverse people.” Opposition to Jesus came quite naturally from the civil and religious authorities of his people. How could God visit his people and be welcomed by the majority of its leaders, if they feel and act as owners of their titles, of their authority, of their own merits?

- 13. One parable of the kingdom of God already foretold the Church (Mt 13:31-33). This present text openly refers to the Church:
 - it tells us what its foundation is: faith in Jesus, the Christ and Son of God;
 - it focuses on the primacy of Peter among all the apostles;
 - it suggests that the Church will always need a visible head. This is the successor of Peter, the pope.

Faith in the Son of God, which Peter, among the apostles is the first to proclaim, really comes from God. This faith is not a human opinion, or a sentimental attachment. It does not come from flesh and blood, an expression that for the Jews meant what is purely human, what a human being does and understands by his own capacity. The words with which Jesus greets Peter, it is well for you Simon Barjona, are true for all the believers. For it is the Father who has chosen us and has brought us to Christ: see John 6:37; 6:44.

Next the primacy of Peter is emphasized. His name was Simon, but Jesus gave him this surname of Rock, foreseeing that he would be for his Church a foundation rock (Jn 1:40). This change of his name attests that a mission is given to him as happened to Abraham and Jacob (Gen 17:5 and 32:19). Other texts attest to the leadership and faith of Peter: Matthew 10:2; 14:28; 17:25; Luke 5:8-10; 22:32; John 6:68; 21:15-19.

Is what Jesus tells Peter true also of his successors? No one can deny that even in the Old Testament God wanted his people to have a visible head. Jerusalem and the nation had as their center the Temple and the kings, sons of David. When God chose David, the first king of Israel, he promised him that his sons would rule the Kingdom of God forever: this promise was fulfilled in Christ. Now Jesus chooses Peter to be forever the visible foundation of the building. In the future his successors will be for the Church, what Peter was in the early Church.

For the Jews, to bind and to unbind (v. 19) meant to state what is forbidden and what is allowed. So Peter and his successors will have the last word about what is, or is not, the faith of the Church. The history of the primitive Son of the living God.”¹⁷ Jesus replied, “It is well for you, Simon Barjona, for it is not flesh or blood that has revealed this to you, but my Father in heaven.

¹⁸ And now I say to you: You are Peter, and on this rock I will build my Church; and never will the powers of death overcome it.

¹⁹ I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven: whatever you bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, and whatever you unbind on earth shall be unbound in heaven.”

²⁰ Then he ordered his disciples not to tell anyone that he was the Christ.

Jesus predicts his death

(Mk 8:31; Lk 9:22; 12:9; 14:27)

• ²¹ From that day Jesus began to make it clear to his disciples that he must go to Jerusalem; that he would suffer many things from the Jewish authorities, the chief priests and the teachers of the Law; and that he would be killed and be raised on the third day.

²² Then Peter took him aside and began to reproach him, “Never, Lord! No, this must never happen to you!”

²³ But Jesus turned to him and said, “Get behind me, Satan! You are an obstacle in my path. You are thinking not as God does, but as people do.”

²⁴ Then Jesus said to his disciples, “If you want to follow me, deny yourself, take up your cross and follow me. ²⁵ For whoever chooses to save his life will lose it, but the one who loses his life for my sake will find it. ²⁶ What will one gain by winning the whole world if he destroys his soul?

18:18;
Rev 3:7

17:9;
Mk 9:9

Mk 8: 31-33;
Lk 9:22;
Mt 17:12;
20:17-19;
Lk 2:38

Mk 8: 34-9:1;
Lk 9:
23-27

10:38;
Mk 8:35;
Lk 14:25;
17:33;
Jn 12:25

4:8

Church shows that already in the first centuries the local churches were conscious of the supreme authority of the bishop of Rome, successor of Peter. His role could not but develop in the course of history, which was all the more necessary because of the growing tensions between Christians, and diverse continents and cultures endlessly divided in their religious expressions. In spite of the fact that as humans Peter’s successors can commit mistakes, Christ does not ignore what they ultimately decide on: whatever you bind on earth shall be bound in heaven.

The recognition of this mission of Peter’s successor, however, does not mean that his word drowns all other voices in a silent Church, or that his authority justifies a structure that might crush life.

This text does not contradict other statements of the Gospel that are equally important, where the basis of the Church is a “college” of apostles, where nothing is done without dialogue. Peter is the “door keeper” (Mk 13:34) but he is neither “master” nor “Father” (Mt 23:9).

His authority is only genuine in a Church where all have the right to express themselves, where the leaders are not only imposed, but also accepted.

The powers of death (v. 18). The text says “the gates of Hades.” “Gates” here signifies “Power”; as for Hades, it designates the netherworld, the world of the dead and demonic powers. Even if deathly strength tried to crush the Church, or sow there the seed of corruption it would not be prevented from accomplishing its mission of salvation. A part of Revelation (Rev 12–17) depicts such a confrontation.

The fact that Peter is the foundation of the Church does not contradict other verses that say that its basis is the Twelve Apostles (Eph 2:20 and Rev 21:14). They also receive the power to bind or loose in John 20:21, but in this case it refers clearly to the forgiveness of sins.

Upon reading the narratives in Mark 8:27 and Luke 9:18, some questions regarding Peter’s faith arise: see commentary on Luke 9:18.

Jesus, Rock and Foundation: Mark 12:10; 1 Corinthians 3:11; 1 Peter 2:6.

- 21. See commentary on Mark 8:31.

Get behind me, Satan... (v. 23). When Peter stands in front of Jesus to block the way to the cross, Jesus recognizes in his words the same spirit that tempted him in the desert. Jesus calls him Satan, meaning tempter. Let Peter get behind Jesus and follow him as is proper for a disciple.

Whoever chooses to save his life will lose it. Jesus draws attention to the great option of every human life: we cannot discover God; we

There is nothing you can give to get back your soul.

²⁷ Know that the Son of Man will come in the glory of his Father with the holy angels, and he will reward each one according to his deeds. ²⁸ Truly, I tell you, there are some here who will not die, before they see the Son of Man coming as king.”

The transfiguration of Jesus

(Mk 9:2; Lk 9:28)

17 ¹ Six days later, Jesus took with him Peter and James and his brother John, and led them up a high mountain, where they were alone. ² Jesus' appearance was changed before them: his face shone like the sun, and his clothes became bright as light. ³ Just then Moses and Elijah appeared to them, talking with Jesus.

⁴ Peter spoke and said to Jesus, “Master, it is good that we are here. If you wish, I will make three tents: one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah.”

⁵ Peter was still speaking, when a bright cloud covered them with its shadow, and a voice from the cloud said, “This is my Son, the Beloved, my Chosen One. Listen to him.”

⁶ On hearing the voice, the disciples fell to the ground, full of fear. ⁷ But Jesus came, touched them and said, “Stand up, do not be afraid.”

⁸ When they raised their eyes, they no longer saw anyone except Jesus.

⁹ And as they came down the mountain, Jesus commanded them not to tell anyone what they had just seen, until the Son of Man be raised from the dead.

¹⁰ The disciples then asked him, “Why do the teachers of the Law say that Elijah must come first?” ¹¹ And Jesus answered, “So it is: first comes Elijah to set everything as it has to be. ¹² But I tell you, Elijah has already come, but they did not recognize him, and treated him as they pleased. And they will also make the Son of Man suffer.”

¹³ Then the disciples understood that Jesus was referring to John the Baptist.

Jesus heals an epileptic boy

(Mk 9:14; Lk 9:37)

¹⁴ When they came to the crowd, a man approached Jesus, knelt before him and said, ¹⁵ “Sir, have pity on my son, who is an epileptic and suffers terribly. He has often fallen into the fire, and at other times into the water. ¹⁶ I brought him to your disciples but they could not heal him.”

¹⁷ Jesus replied, “You faithless and disoriented people! How long must I be with you? How long must I put up with you? Bring him here to me.” ¹⁸ And Jesus commanded the evil spirit to leave the boy, and the boy was immediately healed.

¹⁹ The disciples then gathered around Jesus and asked him privately, “Why couldn't we drive out the spirit?” ²⁰ Jesus said to them, “Because you have little faith. I say to you: if only you had faith the size of a mustard seed, you could tell that mountain to move from here to cannot make a success of life without sacrificing it. All the rest is idle talk. The option terrifies us in the same measure that life for us seems promising. It is also the reason why marriage and family frighten many.

Christian freedom and happiness are found only in the joyous acceptance of the will of God which invites us to listen to his Son and follow him down the road and paths that he traveled.

• 17.1 See commentaries on Mark 9:2 and Luke 9:28.

• 14. See commentary on Mark 9:14.

25:31-46;
2Thes
1:7;
Ps 28:4;
62:13;
Rev 22:12

10:23;
20:21

Mk 9:2-8;
Lk 9:
28-36;
2P 1:
16-18;
Mt 4:8;
28:16
28:3

40:35;
Mt 24:30;
Dt 18:15;
Is 42:1;
Mt 12:18;
Mk 1:11

Mk 9:9-13

16:14;
Mal 3:23;
Sir 48:10

16:21;
17:22

11:14;
Lk 1:17

Mk 9: 14-29;
Lk 9:
37-43

Dt 32:5

Mk 11:
22-23;
Lk 17:6;
Mt 21:21;
1Cor 13:2

there, and the mountain would obey. Nothing would be impossible to you. ²¹(Only prayer and fasting can drive out this kind of spirit.)”

Mk 9: 30-32; Lk 9: 44-45
16:21; 17:12; 20:17-19

• ²²While Jesus was in Galilee with the Twelve, he said to them, “The Son of Man will be delivered into the hands of men, ²³and they will kill him. But he will rise on the third day.” The Twelve were deeply grieved.

The Temple tax

30:13 • ²⁴When they returned to Capernaum, the Temple tax collectors came to Peter and asked him, “Does your master pay the Temple tax?” ²⁵He answered, “Certainly.”

Peter then entered the house, and immediately Jesus asked him, “What do you think, Simon? Who pay taxes or tribute to the kings of the earth: their sons or the other people?” ²⁶Peter replied, “The other people.” And Jesus told him, “The sons, then, are tax-free. ²⁷But so as not to offend these people, go to the sea, throw in a hook, and open the mouth of the first fish you catch. You will find a coin in it. Take the coin and let it pay for you and for me.”

Who is the greatest? Scandals

18 • ¹At that time the disciples came to Jesus and asked him, “Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?”

Mk 9: 30-32; Lk 9: 46-47; 22:24-26

²Then Jesus called a little child, set the child in the midst of the disciples, ³and said, “I assure you that, unless you change and become like little children, you cannot enter the kingdom of heaven. ⁴Whoever becomes lowly like this child is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven, ⁵and whoever receives such a child in my name receives me.

19:13-14; 20:26; Mk 10:15; Lk 18:17; Jn 3:5

20:26

10:40; Mk 9:37; Lk 9:48; 10:16; Jn 13:20

⁶If any of you should cause one of these little ones, who believe in me, to stumble and fall, it would be better for you to be thrown into the depths of the sea with a great millstone around your neck.

Mk 9:42; Lk 17: 1-2; Mt 5:29

Verse 21 is lacking in many old texts: compare with Mark 8:28-29.

• ²². Several times Jesus announced his death: see 16:21; 20:17. Never did he present it as a misfortune that might counteract his mission. John will say that Jesus looked for it as the means for giving glory to his Father and reconciling humankind (Jn 17). Jesus speaks of himself in the third person: the Son of Man, because he looks at his destiny as an outsider. This is the will of his Father, and he is not concerned about himself.

• ²⁴. All the Jews paid a tax for the maintenance of the Temple.

The collectors approach Peter as owner of the house where Jesus also lives.

Jesus observes the Law, but takes this opportunity to give a hint as to who he is: the collectors do not realize they are addressing “the Son.” Notice how the Lord has control over all creatures even fish, and see also his intimate solidarity with Peter.

The coin mentioned in 27 was worth the Temple tax. Matthew may have had a special interest for this story because at the time he wrote Christians of Jewish origins were wondering whether they should be still paying this tax.

• 18.1 Here we have the beginning of the fourth Discourse of Matthew’s Gospel, not very consonant but centered on the life of the community. Those who say “Our Father” are not isolated. In place of the nation of Israel, Jesus offers them his Church, which is first of all community of communities.

- 6-11: concern for the little ones;
- 12-14: care for those who have strayed;
- 15-20: a fraternal community in the presence of Christ;
- 21-35: a community of pardon.

For the commentary on verses 1–5 see Mark 9:33.

THE LITTLE ONES

With verse 5 we pass from the children to the little ones, that is, simple people (such a child refers perhaps to the lowly one). They ⁷Woe to the world because of so many scandals! Scandals necessarily come, but woe to the one who causes a scandal.

5:29-30;
Mk 9:
43-47

⁸If your hand or foot drags you into sin, cut it off and throw it away. It is better for you to enter life without a hand or a foot, than to be thrown into eternal fire with your two hands and two feet. ⁹And if your eye drags you into sin, tear it out and throw it away. It is better for you to enter life with one eye, than to be thrown into the fire of hell with your two eyes.

Acts
12:15;
Heb 1:14

¹⁰See that you do not despise any of these little ones, for I tell you: their angels in heaven continually see the face of my heavenly Father.

Lk 19:10

¹¹(The Son of Man has come to save the lost).

• ¹²What do you think of this? If someone has a hundred sheep and one of them strays, won't he leave the ninety-nine on the hillside, and go to look for the stray one? ¹³And I tell you: when he finally finds it, he is more pleased about it than about the ninety-nine, that did not get lost. ¹⁴It is the same with your Father in heaven: your Father in heaven doesn't want even one of these little ones to be lost.

Living together in the Church

(Lk 17:3)

• ¹⁵If your brother has sinned against you, go and point out the fault, when the two of you are in private, and if he listens to you, you have won your brother. ¹⁶If he doesn't

Lk 17:3

Lev
19:17;

are little, because they do not count for much in society.

Woe to the one who causes a scandal. Must we recall the real meaning of the word "scandal"? "Scandalon" in Greek is the little pebble that when unnoticed causes a fall: scandal is not something that makes noise or causes a stir in society but which leads consciences astray and causes those who seemed honest to fall.

Jesus then speaks (v. 7) of the harm caused by social pressures. Many times the little ones strive to raise their standard of living and become more self-reliant, better educated and able to earn more. Often enough, society puts obstacles in the way of anyone who does not want to play dirty and who refuses to imitate the lifestyle of selfish persons. Because of this, the little ones will have to give up, to accept failure, to lose an eye before losing the most important thing, which is to live in the sight of God.

It is better for you to enter life without a hand or a foot. Jesus stresses the incomparable value of eternal life. At times, to gain the Kingdom we will have to sacrifice even our job, our security and our life.

Woe to the one who causes a scandal (v. 7). Sometimes it is an individual who leads others to sin; at other times it is society itself with its corruption, violence and unjust social structures. Jesus invites us to be aware of sin, personal and social: the bad structures will be destroyed, no matter how, by tears and blood (Lk 23:28).

Scandals necessarily come. Jesus lived in a world of violence, but apparently he did not complain about the situation. He did not encourage us to dream of paradise on earth. While some Christian communities aspire to be a flock of sheep meekly surrounding their shepherd, Jesus has a different vision of Christian life.

The real world, the one God is saving, was not created to be an oasis of happiness, but a place where free persons grow through their struggles. Scandals are part and parcel of this world, but the power of evil does not diminish in any way the glory that God will receive in the end. Through suffering and hunger for justice God will awaken love and make it grow.

Verse 10: See commentary on Daniel 12:6.

• 12. The parable of the one hundred sheep is also found in the Gospel of Luke (15:1). It teaches us several things: Jesus' special concern for sinners and those who stray and, therefore, the missionary dimension of his apostolate. In fact, Jesus came "to seek and save the lost" (Lk 19:10), "I did not come to call the righteous, but sinners" (Mt 9:13). This attitude should impel our parishes and Christian communities to constantly reach out to the un-churched and marginalized, instead of just working with those who already are in touch with the Church.

• 15. If your brother has sinned... Jesus had told Peter before: Whatever you tie on

Dt 19:15; Jn 8:17; 2Cor 13:1; 1Tim 5:19 listen to you, take with you one or two others, so that the case may be decided by the evidence of two or three witnesses.¹⁷ And if he refuses to listen to them, tell it to the assembled Church. But if he does not listen to the Church, then regard such a one as a pagan, or a publican.

1Cor 5:11; Tit 3:10

16:19
¹⁸I say to you: whatever you bind on earth, heaven will keep bound; and whatever you unbind on earth, heaven will keep unbound.

7:7; 21:22; Mk 11:24; Jn 15:7
19 In like manner, I say to you: if, on earth, two of you are united in asking for anything, it will be granted to you by my heavenly Father; ²⁰for where two or three are gathered in my Name, I am there among them.”

28:20; Jn 14:23
•²¹ Then Peter asked him, “Lord, how many times must I forgive the offenses of my brother or sister? Seven times?”²² Jesus answered, “No, not seven times, but seventy-seven times.

The unmerciful servant

•²³ This story throws light on the kingdom of Heaven: A king decided to settle the accounts of his servants. ²⁴Among the first was one who owed him ten thousand pieces of gold. ²⁵As the man could not repay the debt, the king commanded that he be sold as a slave with his wife, his children and all his goods, as repayment.

²⁶The servant threw himself at the feet of the king and said, ‘Give me time, and I will pay you back everything.’ ²⁷The king took pity on him, earth will be tied in Heaven. He declares it now for the whole Church. The believers must attempt to settle their suits among themselves, knowing that Christ is among them, as signified in his name Emmanuel: God-with-us.

25:19

Lk 7:42

The text of 18:15 is doubtful. Perhaps it was written if your brother or sister has sinned, go ... in which case it would refer to the effort of the Christian community to correct one who has gone astray.

Gathered in the name of Jesus (v. 20). The prayer of the community, of the apostolic group, of the Christian couple.

Have we noticed that this chapter on the Church is so short? Yet Matthew is the one who is most concerned about the Church of Jesus, whether in the parables of the kingdom or in Peter’s profession of faith.

Jesus does not seem to have said anything whatsoever to his apostles about structures that would emerge (or even disappear): nothing but a community spirit. Welcome for the poor and lowly, never-ending forgiveness and acceptance of others, prayer of a community that has apostolic ambitions and cries to God to give what is asked of him; there we have the sum total of the wisdom and means the Church has in order to confront all that challenges its evangelization.

While we participate in the common activities, overcoming unavoidable conflicts, and persevering in apostolic work, we grow as children of God in truth, thus knowing the Father in truth. The Church, therefore, is that sacred place where we find God, and to express this reality we say that the Church is “the sacrament of God.”

We also speak of several “sacraments”: baptism, eucharist... Some people want to receive the sacraments without having any commitment to the Church; they forget that religious rites confer the grace of God because they are gestures of the Church, which is “the” sacrament of God. God is not contained inside things, but rather reveals himself through the family of Christ, where he wants us to find him: Whatever you tie on earth... Our faithfulness within the Christian community, even if we have to dissent from it, is a sign that we are in the grace of God.

• 21. Seventy-seven times. Compare with Genesis 4:24. Forgiveness must replace the thirst for revenge.

This is about the forgiveness of one who returns repentant: see Luke 17:1.

• 23. THE PARDON

The offenses we suffer from our companions are nothing compared with our offenses against God. While God forgives all, we do not even give others enough breathing space. God does not demand his rights, but we, in demanding them, behave like wicked servants (see Mt 5:43).

This parable goes beyond personal prob-and not only set him free, but even canceled his debt.

²⁸When this servant left the king's presence, he met one of his companions, who owed him a hundred pieces of silver. He grabbed him by the neck and almost choked him, shouting, 'Pay me what you owe!' ²⁹His companion threw himself at his feet and begged him, 'Give me time, and I will pay everything.' ³⁰The other did not agree, but sent him to prison until he had paid all his debt.

³¹Now his fellow servants saw what had happened. They were extremely upset, and so they went and reported everything to their lord. ³²Then the lord summoned his servant and said, 'Wicked servant, I forgave you all that you owed when you begged me to do so. ³³Weren't you bound to have pity on your companion, as I had pity on you?' ³⁴The lord was now angry, so he handed his servant over to be punished, until he had paid his whole debt."

³⁵Jesus added, "So will my heavenly Father do with you, unless you sincerely forgive your brothers and sisters."

5:25;
Lk 12:58

6:15;
Mk
11:25;
Eph 4:32;
Col 3:13

Jesus speaks about divorce

(Mk 10:2; Mt 5:31; Lk 16:18)

19 ¹When Jesus had finished this teaching, he left Galilee and arrived at the border of Judea, on the other side of the Jordan River. ²A great crowd was with him and there, too, he healed their sick.

³Some Pharisees approached him. They wanted to test him and asked, "Is a man allowed to divorce his wife for any reason he wants?"

⁴Jesus replied, "Have you not read that in the beginning the Creator made them male and female, ⁵and he said: Man has now to leave father and mother, and be joined to his wife, and the two shall become one body? ⁶So they are no longer two, but one body. Let no one separate what God has joined."

⁷They asked him, "Then why did Moses command us to write a bill of dismissal in order to divorce?" ⁸Jesus replied, "Moses knew the hardness of your hearts, so he allowed you to divorce your wives; but it was not so in the beginning. ⁹Therefore I say to you: whoever divorces his wife, unless it be for pros-

Mk 10: 1-12

16:1;
Lk 11:54;
Jn 8:6

Gen 1:27

Gen 2:24;
Eph 5:31;
1Cor 6:16

Dt 24:1

5:32;
Lk 16:18;
1Cor 7:10

lems. The world needs, above everything else, the forgiveness of God, and those who want a more just society will not achieve it through accusations and hatred.

The parable helps us understand much better another verse in the Bible: Revenge is mine, says the Lord; I will pay each one according to his own conduct. God will not demand an account regarding his own rights, (what we owe him), but regarding the rights of the little ones who, unable to pay, were deprived of them. He will also demand an accounting regarding those who were sorry for their sins but were not forgiven by others.

The fourth Discourse of Matthew's Gospel ends with this parable on the duty to forgive. The Church has not always been as holy as she should have been. Yet nobody can deny that, at all times, in the Church the mercy of God has been preached and people have learned to forgive.

• 19.1 See commentary on Mark 10:2; Matthew 5:31.

Every human society has had its laws on marriage, and it was the same for Israel. There was then a law on divorce, in harmony with the difference of status accorded by society to man and woman; it was in Scripture (Dt 24:1). Jesus does not want to be involved in the discussions of teachers and interpreters of the Law: he opposes this law with another word of Scripture which presents God's point of view regarding human attitudes which he tolerates.

In doing this Jesus shows how he brings the Law to "perfection" (5:17), but clearly this "law of God" can only be heard by those who have received the Spirit from Jesus, a fact that is emphasized in the reaction of the disciples (v. 10).

Better not to marry (v. 10). Jesus does not apologize for these demanding words. He only titution, and marries another, commits adultery.”

¹⁰The disciples said, “If that is the condition of a married man, it is better not to marry.” ¹¹Jesus said to them, “Not everybody can accept what you have just said, but only those who have received this gift. ¹²There are eunuchs born so from their mother’s womb. Some have been made that way by others. But there are some who have given up the possibility of marriage for the sake of the kingdom of heaven. Let the one who can accept it, accept it.”

Jesus and the children

(Mk 10:13; Lk 18:15)

¹³Then little children were brought to Jesus that he might lay his hands on them and pray. But the disciples scolded those who brought them. ¹⁴Jesus then said, “Let them be! Do not stop the children from coming to me, for the kingdom of heaven belongs to people such as these children.” ¹⁵So Jesus laid his hands on them and went his way.

The rich young man

(Mk 10:17-22; Lk 18:18-23)

• ¹⁶It was then that a young man approached him and asked, “Master, what good work must I do to receive eternal life?” ¹⁷Jesus answered, “Why do you ask me about what is good? One only is good. If you want to enter eternal life, keep the commandments.” ¹⁸The young man said, “Which commandments?” Jesus replied, “Do not kill, do not commit adultery, do not steal, do not bear false witness, ¹⁹*honor your father and mother, and love your neighbor as yourself.*”

²⁰The young man said to him, “I have kept all these commandments. What is still lacking?” ²¹Jesus answered, “If you wish to be perfect, go and sell all that you possess and give the money to the poor, and you will become the owner of a treasure in heaven. Then come back and follow me.”

²²On hearing this answer, the young man went away sad, for he was a man of great wealth.

Mk 10: 17-22; Lk 18: 18-23; 10:25
Lev 18:5; Lk 10:28
20:12-16; Dt 5: 16-20; Rom 13:9
Lev 19:18

6:20; 19:29; Ps 62:11; Mk 14:5; Lk 12:33; Jn 12:5; Acts 2:45; 4:34

1Cor 7:1, 7-8; 7:32-34

Mk 10: 13-16; Lk 18: 15-17

Lk 9:47; 1P 2:1-2

proposes something more difficult to understand. He praises those to whom have been given to choose celibacy as a way of life for love of the Kingdom.

- 16. See commentary on Mark 10:17.

Jesus faces a question. He discloses three aspects and gives three answers:

One only is good (v. 17). This man has been captivated by the personality of Jesus, and Jesus, as always, directs him to the Father. There is, in fact, a distortion to Christian faith, dangerous as it is subtle: to speak only of Jesus: “Jesus sees you...” “Jesus loves you...” “Jesus is love...” as if we were not living for God. Love of the Father means wanting to be perfect as the Father is and working for his Kingdom. First of all it needs to be free, and the rich can only be free through voluntary poverty.

This man also wanted to know how to receive eternal life (the text says in Hebrew style “to have in heritage”) and Jesus will clearly state at the end, that even if we obey the commandments, we do not “merit” eternal life: salvation is always a gift of God.

Finally there is the question that bothers us most for all that touches money affects us deeply, and it is there that the Gospel shocks us: it is easier for a camel...

The call of the rich young man has always been considered the model of the religious, apostolic vocation. Without effective, voluntary poverty a person will never attain union with God that is the goal of the true religious. Besides, as long as the apostles share the life of comfortable people, they will be able to be their friends but they will never have deep conversions nor will they during this time reach the immense world of the poor.

The problem of poverty is also at the heart of the family in today’s world: for the greater number, believers or non-believers, the joys and blessings that God showers on a large family will only be given to those who have ceased to evaluate everything according to the criteria of money and security.

Mk 10:
23-27;
Lk 18:
24-27

²³ Then Jesus said to his disciples, "Truly I say to you: it will be hard for one who is rich to enter the kingdom of heaven. ²⁴ Yes, believe me: it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for the one who is rich to enter the kingdom of heaven."

Lk 13:23

²⁵ On hearing this the disciples were astonished and said, "Who, then, can be saved?" ²⁶ Jesus looked steadily at them and answered, "For human beings it is impossible, but for God all things are possible."

Job 42:2;
Gen
18:14;
Lk 1:37

Mk 10:
28-31;
Lk 18:
28-30

²⁷ Then Peter spoke up and said, "You see we have given up everything to follow you. What will be our lot?"

Lk 22:30;
Wis 3:8;
Dn 7:9;
Mt 20:21;
1Cor 6:2;
Rev 3:21

²⁸ Jesus answered, "You who have followed me, listen to my words: on the Day of Renewal, when the Son of Man sits on his throne in glory, you also will sit on twelve thrones to judge the twelve tribes of Israel. ²⁹ As for those who have left houses, brothers, sisters, father, mother, children or property for my Name's sake, they will receive a hundredfold, and be given eternal life. ³⁰ Many who are now first will be last, and many who are now last will be first."

7:13;
8:11-12;
25:10-12;
Lk 13:30;
Mt 20:16

The workers in the vineyard

20 • ¹ This story throws light on the kingdom of Heaven: A landowner went out early in the morning to hire workers for his vineyard. ² He agreed to pay each worker the usual daily wage, and sent them to his vineyard.

21:28

³ He went out again at about nine in the morning, and seeing others idle in the town square, ⁴ he said to them, 'You also, go to my vineyard, and I will pay you what is just.' ⁵ So they went.

The owner went out at midday, and again at three in the afternoon, and he did the same. ⁶ Finally he went out at the last working hour—the eleventh hour—and he saw others standing there. So he said to them, 'Why do you stay idle the whole day?' ⁷ They answered, 'Because no one has hired us.' The master said, 'Go and work in my vineyard.'

⁸ When evening came, the owner of the vineyard said to his manager, 'Call the workers and pay them their wage, beginning with the last and ending with the first.' ⁹ Those who had come to work at the eleventh

Lev
19:13;
Dt 24:
14-15

• 20.1 THE MASTERS

Many are surprised at this parable. They find it unfair to give the same reward to everyone, without taking into account the labor and sacrifices of everyone.

Without doubt Jesus wanted to shock us and shatter the idea we obstinately cling to: that we have merits that God must recognize. However we should pay closer attention to the story: Jesus makes a comparison, not of several laborers, but of several groups of laborers. Each group represents a nation or a social class, and while some of them have long ago received the word of God, others have just become believers.

All throughout history, God has been calling different people to work in his vineyard. He called Abraham first and placed his descendants in charge of his work in the world. Later on, during the time of Moses many others joined his group in order to leave Egypt and that has continued throughout history. The elders never cease to claim their right to receive better treatment than the others. Actually the vineyard has not been confided to them exclusively.

Then, with the coming of Christ, the Gospel was brought to other nations that were until then pagan. They came into the Church and shaped Christianity. They also claimed to be owners of the kingdom of God and the Church.

To this day, there are also social groups that are amazed when the Church criticizes their demand for privileges and does not assign them the first benches in the temple for they had always believed that the Church was theirs.

In this parable, all are treated on equal terms and receive one silver coin each. Let them be happy for having been invited to work, as they were unemployed.

hour turned up, and were each given a silver coin. ¹⁰When it was the turn of the first, they thought they would receive more. ¹¹But they, too, each received a silver coin. So, on receiving it, they began to grumble against the landowner.

¹²They said, ‘These last hardly worked an hour, yet you have treated them the same as us, who have endured the heavy work of the day and the heat.’ ¹³The owner said to one of them, ‘Friend, I have not been unjust to you. Did we not agree on one silver coin per day? ¹⁴So take what is yours and go. I want to give to the last the same as I give to you. ¹⁵Don’t I have the right to do as I please with what is mine? Why are you envious when I am kind?’

¹⁶So will it be: the last will be first, the first will be last.”

Third prophecy of the passion
(Mk 10:32; Lk 18:31)

¹⁷When Jesus was going to Jerusalem, he took the twelve disciples aside and said to them, ¹⁸“See, we are going to Jerusalem. There the Son of Man will be betrayed to the chief priests and the teachers of the Law, who will condemn him to death. ¹⁹They will hand him over to the foreigners, who will mock him, scourge him and crucify him. But he will be raised to life on the third day.”

The mother of James and John asks for the first seats
(Mk 10:35)

²⁰Then the mother of James and John came to Jesus with her sons, and she knelt down, to ask a favor. ²¹Jesus said to her, “What do you want?” And she answered, “Here you have my two sons. Grant that they may sit, one at your right hand and one at your left, when you are in your kingdom.”

²²Jesus said to the brothers, “You do not know what you are asking. Can you drink the cup that I am about to drink?” They answered, “We can.” ²³Jesus replied, “You will indeed drink my cup, but to sit at my right or at my left is not for me to grant. That will be for those, for whom my Father has prepared it.”

²⁴The other ten heard all this, and were angry with the two brothers. ²⁵Then Jesus called them to him and said, “You know that the rulers of the nations act as tyrants over them, and the powerful oppress them. ²⁶It shall not be so among you: whoever wants to be more important in your community shall make himself your servant. ²⁷And if you want to be the first of all, make yourself the servant of all. ²⁸Be like the Son of Man who has come, not to be served but to serve, and to give his life to redeem many.”

²⁹As they left Jericho, a great crowd followed them on the way. ³⁰Two blind men were sitting by the roadside, and when they heard that Jesus was passing by, they began to call out, “Son of David, have mercy on us!” ³¹The people told them to keep quiet. But they shouted even louder, “Lord, Son of David, have mercy on us!” ³²Jesus stopped, called out to them and asked, “What do you want me to do for you?” ³³They said, “Lord, open our eyes.”

³⁴Jesus was moved with compassion and touched their eyes. Immediately they recovered their sight, and they began to follow Jesus.

26:39;
Jn 18:11

Mk 10: 41-45;
Lk 22:
25-27

18:1-4;
23:11;
Mk 9:35;
Lk 9:46;
18:14

26:28;
Phil 2:7-8;
1Tim 2:6;
Rom 5:6

Mk 10:
46-52;
Lk 18: 35-43
9:27;
15:22

16:21;
17:12;
Lk 9:22;
24:7;
1Cor 15:4

Mk 10: 35-40

Lk 22:30

• 20. See commentary on Mark 10:35. Compare Matthew 20:23 and Mark 10:46.

Ps 118:
25-26;
Mt 23:39

Jesus enters Jerusalem

(Mk 11:1; Lk 19:28; Jn 12:12)

Mk 11: 1-11;
Lk 19: 12-38;
Jn 12:
12-16

21 ¹When they drew near Jerusalem and arrived at Bethphage, on the mount of Olives, Jesus sent two of his disciples, ²saying, “Go to the village in front of you, and there you will find a donkey tied up, with its colt by her. Untie them and bring them to me. ³If anyone says something to you, say that the Lord needs them, and that he will send them back immediately.”

Is 62:11;
Zec 9:9;
Gen
49:11;
Mt 11:29

⁴This happened in fulfillment of what the prophet said: ⁵Say to the daughter of Zion: See, your king comes to you in all simplicity, riding on a donkey, a beast of burden, with its colt.

1K 1:
33-34

⁶The disciples went, as Jesus had instructed them, ⁷and they brought the donkey with its colt. Then they threw their cloaks on its back, and Jesus sat on them.

2K 9:13

⁸Many people also spread their cloaks on the road, while others cut leafy branches from the trees and spread them on the road. ⁹The people who walked ahead of Jesus, and those who followed him, began to shout, “Hosanna to the Son of David! Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord! Hosanna in the highest!”

¹⁰When Jesus entered Jerusalem, the whole city was disturbed. The people asked, “Who is this man?” ¹¹And the crowd answered, “This is the Prophet Jesus from Nazareth of Galilee.”

Jesus expels the dealers

(Mk 11:11; Lk 13:35; Jn 2:14)

¹²Jesus went into the Temple, and drove out all who were buying and selling in the temple area. He overturned the tables of the money-changers, and the stools of those who sold pigeons. ¹³And he said to them, “It is written: My house shall be called a house of prayer. But you have turned it into a den of thieves.”

Mk 11: 11...17;
Lk 19:
45-46;
Jn 2: 14-16

Is 56:7;
Jer 7:11

¹⁴The blind and the lame came to him in the Temple, and Jesus healed them.

2S 5:8

• 21.1 See commentary on Mark 11. Matthew, Mark and Luke place the incident about those selling in the Temple at the time of Jesus’ entrance into Jerusalem. John, on the other hand, situates this event at the beginning of Jesus’ mission. Once more we see how each of the evangelists disposes of events following the plan he has chosen to develop the mystery of Salvation. Their aim is not to draw up a life of Jesus where events would be placed in the exact order in which they occurred.

Besides, there are several details in this triumphant entrance of Jesus that remind us more of the Feast of the Tabernacles (which was celebrated in September), than of the days before the Passover:

– The joyous spirit of the people is more appropriate to that feastday, which was the most popular of all.

– The branches and palms, as in the procession of the feastday, on the way to the fountain of Siloe, while singing Psalm 118: “Blessed be he who comes in the name of the Lord!” and shouts of “Hosannah!” (that is: Save us!).

– Mention of the Mountain of Olives, where tents of branches and leaves were erected for the feast.

See, in this respect, Zechariah 14 that refers to this feastday (14:16) and foretells the purification of the Temple.

Very possibly, the evangelists placed the entrance of Jesus into Jerusalem on the eve of the Passover for the simple reason that they only related one trip of Jesus to Jerusalem.

They arrived at Bethphage. The small village of Bethphage was the entrance to the district of Jerusalem towards the east. According to the Law, the Passover should be celebrated in Jerusalem, but the city was not big enough to accommodate more than a hundred and fifty thousand pilgrims for the festival. So it was necessary to enlarge the juridical limits of Jerusalem, embracing therefore some small villages like Bethphage. During those days, Jesus also used to lodge in Bethany (21:17).

• 12. See commentary on Mark 11:15.

Jesus cleanses the Temple, fulfilling the prophecy of Zechariah 14:21. Malachi 3 also foretold this event: The Lord would come to Jn 12:19 ¹⁵The chief priests and the teachers of the Law saw the wonderful things Jesus had just done, and the children shouting in the temple area, “Hosanna to the Son of David!”

Ps 8:3 ¹⁶They became angry and said to Jesus, “Do you hear what they say?” Jesus answered them, “Yes. But have you never read this text: From the mouths of children and infants you have got perfect praise?”

Lk 21:37 ¹⁷So leaving them, he went out of the city and came to Bethany, where he spent the night.

Jesus curses the fig tree

(Mk 11:12; Lk 13:6)

Mk 11: 12...24;
Lk 13: 6-9
¹⁸While returning to the city early in the morning, Jesus felt hungry. ¹⁹He noticed a fig tree by the road, went up to it and found nothing on it but leaves. Then he said to the tree, “Never again bear fruit!” And immediately, the fig tree withered.

²⁰When the disciples saw this, they were astonished and said, “How did the fig tree suddenly dry up?”

17:20;
Lk 17: 5-6;
1Cor 13:2;
Jas 1:6
²¹Jesus told them, “Truly, I say to you: if you had faith and did not doubt, not only could you do what I have done with the fig tree, but you could even say to that mountain, ‘Go, and throw yourself into the sea!’ and it would be done. ²²Whatever you ask for in prayer, full of faith, you will receive.”

7:7-11;
18:19;
Jn 14:13

Jesus' response to the authorities

(Mk 11:27; Lk 20:1)

²³Jesus had entered the Temple and was teaching, when the chief priests, the teachers of the Law and the Jewish authorities came to him, and asked, “What authority have you to act like this? Who gave you authority to do all this?”

Mk 11: 27-33;
Lk 20: 1-8;
Jn 2:18

²⁴Jesus answered them, “I will also ask you a question, only one. And if you give me an answer, then I will tell you by what authority I do these things. When John began to baptize, was it a work of God, or was it merely something human?”

²⁵They reasoned out among themselves, “If we reply that it was a work of God, he will say, ‘Then why did you not believe him?’ ²⁶And if we say, ‘The baptism of John was merely something human’, we’ve got to beware of the people, for all hold John as a prophet.” ²⁷So they answered Jesus, “We do not know.”

Jn 1:6;
3:27

And Jesus said to them, “Neither will I tell you by what right I do these things.”

21:32;
Lk 3:12;
7:29-30

The parable of the two sons

²⁸Jesus went on to say, “What

Is 5:1-7

purify his people and his temple. Jesus comes as a prophet to demand respect for God. Also, as God, he inaugurates the new era of religion in spirit and in truth. That is how John also understood this event in John 2:21, where he speaks of the new Temple, Christ.

You have got perfect praise (v. 16). These words of Psalm 8 were addressed to God, but Jesus applies them to himself, as he did with some other Scriptural texts.

- 18. This incident helps us understand the strange behavior of Jesus in looking for figs out of season and then cursing the tree as if it were responsible. Jesus behaved this way for a purpose: to call something to the attention of the apostles, through a teaching method used by the prophets. The fig tree is a figure of the Jewish people, who did not produce the fruits expected by God.

- 23. Jesus is what we would call today a simple layman. He respects the priests of the people of God and their high priest. He shows however that if they want others to be accountable, for their part they must be ready to take a stand on the things of God when the people need this. They had been and were unwilling to give such a response in the case of John the Baptist.

- 28. This parable refers to the refusal of

Jn 3:16

Gal 3:16;
4:7;
Heb 1:2;
13:12

do you think of this? A man had two sons. He went to the first and said to him, 'Son, go and work today in my vineyard.'²⁹ And the son answered, 'I don't want to.' But later he thought better of it and went.³⁰ Then the father went to his other son and gave him the same command. This son replied, 'I will go, sir,' but he did not go.

22:6

³¹Which of the two did what the father wanted?" They answered, "The first." And Jesus said to them, "Truly, I say to you: the publicans and the prostitutes are ahead of you on the way to the kingdom of heaven.³² For John came to show you the way of goodness, and you did not believe him; but the publicans and the prostitutes did. You were witnesses of this, but you neither repented nor believed him.

11:7;
Lk 16:16

The parable of the tenants

(Mk 12:1; Lk 20:9)

Mk 12: 1-12;
Lk 20: 9-19

³³Listen to another example: There was a landowner who planted a vineyard. He put a fence around it, dug a hole for the winepress, built a watchtower, leased the vineyard to tenants, and then went to a distant country.³⁴ When harvest time came, the landowner sent his servants to the tenants to collect his share of the harvest.³⁵ But the tenants seized his servants, beat one, killed another, and stoned a third.

³⁶Again the owner sent more servants, but they were treated in the same way.

³⁷Finally, he sent his son, thinking, 'They will respect my son.'³⁸ But when the tenants saw the son, they thought, 'This is the one who is to inherit the vineyard. Let us kill him, and his inheritance will be ours.'³⁹ So they seized him, threw him out of the vineyard and killed him.

⁴⁰Now, what will the owner of the vineyard do with the tenants when he comes?"⁴¹ They said to him, "He will bring those evil men to an evil end, and lease the vineyard to others, who will pay him in due time."

⁴²And Jesus replied, "Have you never read what the Scriptures say? *The stone which the builders rejected has become the cornerstone. This was the Lord's doing, and we marvel at it.*⁴³ Therefore I say to you: the kingdom of heaven will be taken from you, and given to a people who will yield a harvest.

Ps 118:
22-23;
Is 28:16;
Acts
4:11;
1P 2:4-7Ac 13:5;
Rom
11:11

⁴⁴(Whoever falls on this stone, he will be broken to pieces; on whom ever this stone falls, he will be ground to dust.)"

⁴⁵When the chief priests and the Pharisees heard these parables, they realized that Jesus was referring to them.⁴⁶ They would have arrested him, but they were afraid of the crowd, who regarded him as a prophet.

14:5;
16:14;
21:11;
21:26;
Lk 7:16;
Jn 4:19

The wedding feast

(Lk 14:15)

22 • ¹Jesus went on speaking to them in parables:

Lk 14:
15-24;
Pro 9: 1-6

the chief priests to recognize John the Baptist as a messenger of God.

A good number of sinners were converted by John's preaching and confessed their sins. Such people were well disposed to receive the message of Jesus that opened for them the kingdom of God and showed them the true face of God the Father. Because of that, they were ahead of the priests, who were indifferent to John's call, for they felt neither the desire nor the need to change.

Every parish that carries out a mission experiences the same thing: many uncommitted Christians will neither work as missionaries, nor receive them, believing they do not need conversion.

• 22.1 THE BANQUET

This parable contains two parts.

In the first part, God invites us to a banquet

21:34

²“This story throws light on the kingdom of heaven: A king celebrated the wedding of his son. ³He sent his servants to call the invited guests to the wedding feast, but the guests refused to come.

⁴Again he sent other servants, ordering them to say to the invited guests, ‘I have prepared a banquet, slaughtered my fattened calves and other animals, and now everything is ready. Come to the wedding!’ ⁵But they paid no attention and went away, some to their fields, and some to their work. ⁶Others seized the servants of the king, insulted them and killed them.

⁷The king became angry. He sent his troops to destroy those murderers and burn their city. ⁸Then he said to his servants, ‘The wedding banquet is prepared, but the invited guests were not worthy. ⁹Go instead to the crossroads, and invite every-one you find to the wedding feast.’

¹⁰The servants went out at once into the streets and gathered every-one they found, good and bad alike, so that the hall was filled with guests.

¹¹The king came in to see those who were at table, and he noticed a man not wearing the festal garment.

¹²So he said to him, ‘Friend, how did you get in without the wedding garment?’ But the man remained silent.

¹³So the king said to his servants, ‘Bind his hands and feet and throw him into the dark, where there is weeping and gnashing of teeth.’

• ¹⁴Know that many are called, but few are chosen.”

Rev 19:7

13:47

Rev 19:8

8:12;
25:30;
Lk 13:28

Mk 12:
13-17;
Lk 20: 20-26

where there is a place for everyone. All through history he has been sending his prophets to preach justice, the mercy of God and trust in him. The Jewish nation, however, did not heed God’s call through these prophets and now will pay even less heed to Jesus. God’s plan will not fail. He will send his apostles to preach the Gospel in foreign nations (go to the crossroads) so that non-Jews, too, may enter the Church. Some Jews, however, the selected few among so many called, will be the first members of the Church.

The king celebrates the wedding of his son, Christ, who deserves to be called “the bridegroom” of humankind (Mk 2:19), because he has become one body with it. All throughout history the Risen Christ gathers together mortal and divided human beings. The Spirit of God will transform and raise them from the dead, so that they may sit at the table of the living, according to the parable.

The only table of Christ that Christians usually know is the Eucharist. While taking part in it, we must not forget what has been said above. Our meeting in the Mass should remind us that God calls us to prepare, in our daily lives, for the banquet reserved by him for all humankind. Ours is the task of uniting and reconciling all people.

What if we do not answer? Then, little by little, the life of the holy and universal Church will be withdrawn from our assemblies of comfortable Christians, and others will be called to take charge of the work of God: invite to the wedding.

The second part of the parable points this out: You, Christians, who are already inside the Church, do you wear the new garment—a life of justice, honesty and trustworthiness?

Let us not believe that the surprised guest who was not properly dressed for the occasion was some kind of poor person. No, for it was customary during those times to supply all guests with the robe they should wear at the banquet. This one could have put on the robe but did not, so he had nothing to answer.

• 14. Many are called (v. 14). Some are disturbed upon reading this: does it mean that only a few persons will be saved?

If we associate this sentence with the first part of the parable, it means that, of those first invited, few will enter the banquet. These guests were the Jews and very few, indeed, entered the Church of Jesus. Interpreted in connection with the second part of the parable, it would mean that few of those entering the Church have the necessary dispositions, so the majority would be condemned at the time of judgment. This contradicts what was related in the parable, because only one of the guests was thrown out.

It is better not to associate this saying too much with the parable of the banquet, because

Paying taxes to Caesar

(Mk 12:13; Lk 20:20)

•¹⁵ The Pharisees went out and considered how they could trap Jesus by his own words. ¹⁶ They then sent out their disciples, with members of Herod's party, for this purpose.

They said to Jesus, "Master, we know that you are an honest man and truly teach God's way. You are not influenced by others nor are you afraid of anyone. ¹⁷ So tell us what you think: is it against the Law to pay taxes to Caesar or not?"

¹⁸ But Jesus understood their bad intentions, and said to them, "Hypocrites, why are you testing me? ¹⁹ Show me the coin with which you pay the taxes."

They showed him a silver coin, ²⁰ and Jesus said to them, "Whose head is this, and whose name?"

²¹ They answered, "Caesar's." Then Jesus replied, "So give to Caesar what is Caesar's, and give to God what is God's."

²² Astonished by his answer, they left him and went away.

The resurrection of the dead

(Mk 12:18; Lk 20:27)

•²³ That same day, some of the Sadducees came to Jesus. Since they claim that there is no resurrection, they questioned him in this way:

²⁴ "Master, Moses said that if a man dies without any children, his brother must take the wife and have a child, who will be considered the child of the deceased man. ²⁵ Now, there were seven brothers. The first married a woman, but he died; since he had no children, he left his wife to his brother. ²⁶ The same thing happened to the second brother, and to the third, until the seventh. ²⁷ Then, last of all, the woman also died. ²⁸ Now, in the resurrection of the dead, to which of the seven will she be wife, for they all had her as a wife?"

²⁹ Jesus answered, "You are totally wrong, because you understand neither the Scriptures nor the power of God. ³⁰ First of all, in the resurrection of the dead, neither men nor women will marry, but they will be like the angels in heaven. ³¹ As for the resurrection of the dead, have you never reflected on what God said to you: ³² I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? He is God, not of the dead but of the living."

³³ The people who heard him were astonished at his teaching.

³⁴ When the Pharisees heard how Jesus had silenced the Sadducees, they came together. ³⁵ One of them, a teacher of the Law, tried to test him with this question, ³⁶ "Teacher, which is the most important commandment in the Law?"

³⁷ Jesus answered, "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, and with all your mind. ³⁸ This is the first and the most important of the commandments. ³⁹ But after this there is another one very similar to it: You shall love your neighbor as yourself. ⁴⁰ The whole Law and the Prophets are founded on these two commandments."

we find it also in other places in the Gospel. Here Jesus advises us (as in 7:13) that only a few discover through the Gospel true freedom and new life. Then, are they saved? Yes and no—because salvation, for Jesus, does not mean to escape from the punishment of hell, but to reach perfection.

• 15. See the commentary in Mark 12:13.

• 23. See the commentary in Mark 12:18.

In verse 24 the text reads: "take as a wife the sister-in-law and raise a descendant to his brother."

3:6

7:28;
13:54Mk 12:
28-31;
Lk 10:
25-28

Dt 6:5

Lev 19:18;
Mt 5:43;
Rom
13:10;
Gal 5:14

7:12

Mk 12:
18-27;
Lk 20:
27-40;
Acts 23:8Dt 25:
5-6;
Gen 38:8

The Messiah, Son of God

(Mk 12:35; Lk 20:41)

Mk 12:
35-37;
Lk 20:
41-44;
2S 7:16

⁴¹As the Pharisees were gathered there, Jesus asked them, ⁴²“What do you think of the Messiah? Whose son is he?” They answered, “David’s.”

⁴³Jesus then asked, “Why did David, inspired by God, call the Messiah Lord? For he says in a psalm:

Ps 110:1;
Acts 2:34;
1Cor
15:25;
Heb 1:13

44 The Lord said to my Lord: Sit at my right hand until I put your enemies under your feet. ⁴⁵If David calls him Lord, how can he be his son?”

⁴⁶No one could answer him, not even a word. From that day on, no one dared question him anymore.

Do not imitate the teachers of the Law

(Lk 20:45; Mk 12:38)

Mk 12:
38-39;
Lk 20:
45-47;
11:39

23 ¹Then Jesus said to the crowds and to his disciples,

Rom
2:17

²“The teachers of the Law and the Pharisees have sat down on the chair of Moses. ³So you shall do and observe all they say, but do not do as they do, ⁴for they do not do what they say. They tie up heavy burdens and load them on the shoulders of the people, but they do not even raise a finger to move them. ⁵They do everything in order to be seen by people: they wear very wide bands of the Law around their foreheads, and robes with large tassels. ⁶They enjoy the first places at feasts and reserved seats in the synagogues, ⁷and they like being greeted in the marketplace, and being called ‘Master’ by the people.

11:30;
Lk 11:46

6:1;
Num
15:38

Lk 14:7

⁸But you, do not let yourselves be called Master, because you have only one Master, and all of you are brothers and sisters. ⁹Neither should you call anyone on earth Father, because you have only one Father, he who is in heaven. ¹⁰Nor should you be called Leader, because Christ is the only Leader for you. ¹¹Let the greatest among you be the servant

20:26;
Lk 22:26

• 23.1 The fifth Discourse of Matthew’s Gospel begins here. Only a few days separate us from Jesus’ departure from this world and it is here that Matthew places the words and parables of Jesus that enlighten the disciples on the attitude to adopt in face of the times to come. Scarcely born, the Church will have to face the formidable opposition of Jewish power, especially that of the Pharisees. She will therefore follow her own way and separate herself from the Jewish communities. This is the main theme of chapter 23. Chapter 24 declares that God will confirm this separation through the ruin of the Jewish nation. The Church, then, should turn towards the future and await the return of Christ. Let her not waste time in waiting for the end of the world but be always ready in active vigilance: this is chapter 25.

• 2. RELIGIOUS AUTHORITIES

Jesus was not from the tribe of Levi, to which the priests and those in charge of religious activities belonged. He did not, likewise, belong to any religious association, as the Pharisees did. He was on the side of the people and saw how the leaders of God’s people and the organized religious elite acted.

Obviously Matthew wants the words of Jesus to fall on the ears of important personages in the communities. Jesus judges in advance the authorities of the Church and more especially any group that sees itself the better, the more aware and the more efficacious. The Pharisees pretended to be just that, and in a sense they were.

The teachers of the Law and the Pharisees have sat down on the chair of Moses. The Gospel says it with more precision: they have seated themselves in the chair of Moses. This rather ironic formula suggests that the ambitious appropriate to themselves the authority over the people of God and that to a certain point God tolerates it. Matthew, in recording these words of Jesus, wants to preserve in the Church fundamental equality. It is the whole Church that enjoys the Holy Spirit, and the heads or doctors will have no authority unless they are deeply rooted in the community’s life.

Paul will speak of Christ and the Church using the comparison of the head and the body

Lk 1:52; of all. ¹²For whoever makes himself
Job great shall be humbled, and whoever 22:29; humbles himself shall be made
Pro great.
29:23;
Ezk
21:31;
Lk 14:11

Seven woes for the Pharisees

(Lk 11:39)

Lk 11: 39...52 • ¹³Therefore, woe to you, teachers of the Law and Pharisees, you hypocrites! You shut the door to the kingdom of heaven in people's faces. You yourselves do not enter, nor do you allow others to do so.

¹⁴Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, you hypocrites! You devour widows' houses, even while for a pretense you make long prayers; therefore you shall receive greater condemnation. ¹⁵Woe to you, teachers of the Law and Pharisees, you hypocrites! You travel by sea and land to win a single convert, yet once he is converted, you make him twice as fit for hell as yourselves.

¹⁶Woe to you, blind guides! You say: To swear by the Temple is not binding, but to swear by the treasure of the Temple is binding. ¹⁷Blind fools! Which is of more worth: the gold in the Temple, or the Temple which makes the gold a sacred treasure? You say: ¹⁸To swear by the altar is not binding, but to swear by the offering on the altar is binding. ¹⁹How blind you are! Which is of more value: the offering on the altar,

5:33;
15:14;
Rom 2:19

(Eph 5:25). Likewise in the Church the authority of the bishop goes hand in hand with fidelity to the Church that he governs. He has accepted the Church as it is and does not seek to impose his own projects.

Do all they say. The bad example of the authorities does not discredit the word of God. Nor does it lessen the principle of authority. Their bad attitude discredits only their pretense at being superior to others. They cannot renounce their authority on the pretext of humble service and then carry out what the majority has decided.

Jesus speaks of the form of authority. Do not be called master or father. Do not be called "master," the one "who knows" and before whom one is silent; neither must you be called "father," the one who is venerated and imitated, forgetting to look directly at the One who alone is good. No one in the Church should eclipse the only "Father."

Doubtless everyone will say that the word "Father" is simply the expression of respectful affection but Jesus affirms that the word has perverse effects.

The purity of faith, which submits to God alone, always suffers because of the cult of personality. The Church should be a community of free persons able to speak frankly.

• 13. You shut the door to the kingdom of heaven (v. 13). Do not forget that "the kingdom of heaven" means the kingdom of God. Many teachers of the people of God are obstacles on the path leading to the true knowledge of God the Father. Even in the smallest village, the Jews had teachers of the Law but in fact, crowds came to Jesus to ask for what those priests and teachers did not give them. How can we forget that even in the Church religious education is often limited to moral compartment and keeping within religious norms? Hearing and constantly meditating on the Word of God would have favored the awakening of great ambitions: the search for God and apostolic creativity.

You say: To swear by the treasure of the Temple (vv. 16-22). Jesus refers to the common practices in his time. Some teachers found ways to get around certain oaths. In that manner, clever people could swear falsely and deceive their opponents by swearing firmly without promising much.

THE DEFENDERS OF THE FAITH

How could Jesus call such men hypocrites when they were so versed in the knowledge of the Bible?

In the language of Jesus, the word "hypocrite" equally denotes what is superficial as well as the one who makes light of what is of God. Obviously not all the Pharisees were hypocrites; but Jesus denounces a frequent deformation in the religious elite. He calls us to be wary of those institutions born of possessors of wealth and culture who aspire to direct others—and the Church—without having learned from the poor or practiced true humility.

The mystery of God is so deep that no one can present himself as his lieutenant. The Pharisees trained, taught and gained many fol-

29:37 or the altar which makes the offering sacred? ²⁰Whoever swears by the altar, is swearing by the altar and by everything on it. ²¹Whoever swears by the Temple is swearing by the Temple and by God who dwells in the Temple. ^{5:33}²²Whoever swears by heaven is swearing by the throne of God, and by him who is seated on it.

Lev 27:30; Mic 6:8; Am 5:21 ²³Woe to you, teachers of the Law and Pharisees, you hypocrites! You do not forget the mint, anise and cumin seeds when you demand the tenth of everything, but then you forget what is most fundamental in the Law: justice, mercy and faith. These you must practice, instead of neglecting them. ²⁴Blind guides! You strain out a mosquito, but swallow a camel.

Mk 7:4 ²⁵Woe to you, teachers of the Law and Pharisees, you hypocrites! You fill the plate and the cup with theft and violence, and then pronounce a blessing over them. ²⁶Blind Pharisee!

Purify the inside first, then the outside too will be purified.

Acts 23:3 ²⁷Woe to you, teachers of the Law and Pharisees, you hypocrites! You are like whitewashed tombs, beautiful in appearance, but inside there are only dead bones and uncleanness. ²⁸In the same way, you appear religious to others, but you are full of hypocrisy and wickedness within.

Lk 16:15 ²⁹Woe to you, teachers of the Law and Pharisees, you hypocrites! You build tombs for the prophets, and decorate the monuments of the righteous. ³⁰You say: Had we lived in the time of our ancestors, we would not have joined them in shedding the blood of the prophets. ³¹So, you yourselves confess to be the descendants of those who murdered the prophets. ³²And now, finish off what your ancestors began!

Acts 7:52 ³³Serpents, race of vipers! How can you escape condemnation to hell? ³⁴Therefore, indeed, I send lowers in the faith but their fasts and alms were already rewarded. Pride and love of money were given their place.

1Thes 2:15

THE PROPHETS

• 29. We have on one side “the prophets” and on the other those who “kill the prophets.” The Bible shows us that the prophets meet with much opposition among the people of God and especially among its leaders.

There is a people of God and this people has necessarily its institutions which help it to be faithful to its mission. In fact this people follows their reflexes and social prejudices, and the whole institution, even if born of the Spirit, becomes heavy and hardens with time. Prophets are readily condemned when they challenge peace and unity in mediocrity or even unfaithfulness to the word of God.

The Jewish people, harassed by foreigners, closed ranks around the Temple, religious practice and the Pharisee group. Moved by fear, the Jews did what any society would do when threatened: they became fanatically conservative and felt secure in the institutions God had given them in the past. (We are at present experiencing the same phenomenon. Our generation suddenly finds itself facing, in all areas, crises and threats for which it was not prepared; all our certitudes are questioned, and because of this we see emerging in all religions fundamentalist groups offering an appearance of safety by enclosing themselves in structures and systems of thought—or no thought—inherited from the past.)

The defenders of the Jewish community were not ready to listen to their prophet. It was one thing to honor the prophets of the past and keep the sacred books, another to accept the criticism addressed to them by God, not in the sacred books, but from the lips of Jesus, the carpenter.

Thus it was that the prominent Jews let the moment when God visited them slip by—following the path that would lead their nation to ruin.

The example of the Jewish nation must serve as a warning to us. Are our Christian communities, confronted today by a major crisis, able to build a poorer and more demanding Church? Will they be less preoccupied with their personal survival rather than giving the Gospel to the world?

prophets, wise men and teachers to you; but some you will murder and crucify, some you will flog in your synagogues, some you will drive from one city to the next.

³⁵Because of this, you will be accountable for all the innocent blood that has been shed on the earth, from the blood of upright Abel to the blood of Zechariah, son of Barachiah, whom you murdered between the altar and the sanctuary. ³⁶Truly I say to you: the present generation will pay for all this.

• ³⁷Jerusalem, Jerusalem! You murder the prophets and stone those sent to you by God. How often would I have gathered your children together, just as a hen gathers her chicks under her wings, but you refused! ³⁸Now you will be left with an empty Temple. ³⁹I tell you that you will no longer see me until you say: Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord!

10:23;
27:25;
Rev 16:6;
Gen 4:8;
Heb 11:4;
24:20-22

Lk 13:34;
Jer 7:14;
1K 9:7;
Tb 14:4;
Ezk
11:23

Ps
118:25;
Mk 11:10

The ruin of Jerusalem and the end of the world

(Mk 13; Lk 21; 17:23; 12:36)

24 • ¹Jesus left the Temple, and as he was walking away, his disciples came to him and pointed out to him the imposing Temple buildings. ²But he said, “You see all this? Truly I say to you: not one stone will be left upon another here. All will be thrown down.”

³Later when Jesus was sitting on the Mount of Olives, the disciples approached him privately and asked, “Tell us when this will take place. What sign will be given us before your coming and the end of the world?”

⁴Jesus answered, “Be on your guard and let no one mislead you. ⁵Many will come, claiming my title and saying: ‘I am the Messiah,’ and they will mislead many people. ⁶You will hear about war and threats of war, but do not be troubled, for these

Mk 13:
1-23;
Lk 21:
5-24

Lk 19:44

13:39

Jn 5:43

• 37. How harshly Jesus speaks! Jerusalem was destroyed in the year 587 B.C. If we read the prophets, we find that Jerusalem’s destruction was a punishment for its crimes. Now, Jesus announces another destruction of wider historical consequences: the blood of the prophets, the blood of Christ, the blood of the first Christians killed by the Jews.

You will be left with an empty Temple. The presence of God in his Temple would leave them once more and be established among the converted pagans, as in Ezekiel 8. There will be no further intervention by God to establish his Kingdom in Israel among the Jewish people until the day they welcome the Christ.

• 24.1 With reference to this great discourse see commentary on Mark 13.

In this discourse the Gospel uses the style of apocalyptic books (see the Introduction to Revelation). In this kind of literature signs announced great events. Hence the question of those closest to Jesus: “What will be the sign of your coming at the end of time?”

The discourse that follows comprises words pronounced by Jesus in very diverse circumstances. Jesus refuses speculation and reminds us that Christian history is one of persecution; he encourages us to be faithful.

In paragraph 24:4-28 Jesus speaks of the days of trial (vv. 21 and 29) that will conclude with the destruction of Jerusalem that Jesus’ listeners will witness. It will be possible to run away before the disaster occurs (vv. 15-20).

The idol of the invader. The Gospel repeats an expression of Daniel (9:27) to indicate on this occasion, the taking over of the Temple by the Roman troops (see commentary on Mk 13:14).

It will be a time for evangelization, a time for persecutions and for Christians’ testimony before the Jewish and pagan worlds (vv. 9-14). The Jewish people, who did not recognize Jesus as their Savior, will let other saviors, or messiahs, stir them up against the Romans.

In paragraph 26-28, Jesus shows that this general confusion about the true savior is very far removed from what will happen when he returns at the end of time.

In paragraph 29-31 Jesus talks about his glorious coming. Then Jesus again asserts two things: the events and signs that refer to the end of Jerusalem will take place in the present things must happen; but it is not yet the end. ⁷Nations will fight one another, and kingdom oppose kingdom. In some places there will be famines and earthquakes, ⁸but all this is only the beginning, the first pains of childbirth.

⁹Then they will arrest you, and they will torture and kill you. All nations will hate you, for you bear my name. ¹⁰In those days, many will stumble and fall. They will betray one another and become enemies.

¹¹False prophets will appear and mislead many, ¹²and because of such great wickedness, love in many people will grow cold. ¹³But the one who holds out to the end will be saved. ¹⁴The Good News of the Kingdom will be proclaimed throughout the world for all the nations to know; then the end will come.

¹⁵When you see what the prophet Daniel spoke about, the idol of the invader set up in the Temple (let the reader understand!), ¹⁶then let those in Judea flee to the mountains.

¹⁷If you are on the housetop, do not come down to take anything with you. ¹⁸If you are in the field, do not turn back to fetch your coat. ¹⁹How hard it will be for pregnant women, and for mothers with babies at the breast! ²⁰Pray that it may not be in winter, or on a sabbath, that you flee; ²¹for there will be great tribulation, such as was never known from the beginning of the world until now, and is never to be known again. ²²And if that time were not to be shortened, no one would survive. But God will shorten it for the sake of his chosen ones. ²³Then, if anyone says to you, 'Look! The Messiah is here! He is there!', do not believe it. ²⁴For false Messiahs and false prophets will appear, and perform signs and wonders so great, that they would deceive even God's chosen people, if that were possible. ²⁵See, I have told you everything ahead of time.

²⁶So, if anyone tells you, 'He is in the desert,' do not go. If they say, 'He is in such a secluded place,' do not believe it. ²⁷For the coming of the Son of Man will be like lightning, which flashes from the east even to the west. ²⁸Wherever the body is, the vultures will gather.

The coming of the Son of Man

(Mk 13:28; Lk 17:20)

²⁹And later, after that distress, the sun will grow dark, the moon will not give its light, the stars will fall from the skies, and the whole uni-

Dn 12:1;
Jl 2:2;
Rev 7:14

Mk 13:21;
Lk 17:22

1Jn 2:18;
Dt 13:2;
2Thes 2:9;
Rev 13:13

Lk 17:37

Mk 13:
24-32;
Lk 21:
25-33;
Am 8:9;
Is 13:10;
Ezk 32:8;
Jl 3:4

generation (vv. 32-35). The day of Jesus (vv. 36 and 42) will come much later.

The comparison of the two men (or women) working together means that, upon the coming of Jesus, the Judgment will take place, and there might be a separation within the same social or family group: some headed towards the Lord, others to be condemned (vv. 37 and 41).

Why is it that the Gospel draws a parallel with the destruction of Jerusalem and the end of time? Simple, because Matthew addresses Christians who have just experienced the first event and are awaiting the second. It is the moment when there emerges the Christian vision of the history of these two great stages.

First, we have the time of the Old Testament. God taught the people of Israel and nurtured their development in order that their history and experiences be enlightening for other peoples. At the end of this period, Jesus came during a national crisis to give them the full knowledge of their mission as a people of God. A minority believed, but the nation did not convert and crashed.

The message is then presented to other nations, and thus began the time of the New Testament. The Church teaches all peoples who must mature as nations and Christians. The Bible implies that New Testament times are leading up to a universal crisis where the Gospel will more than ever be a reality: "Believe or you will die." It is then that both the New Testament and history will end.

verse will be shaken. ³⁰Then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in heaven. As all the nations of the earth beat their breasts, they will see the Son of Man coming in the clouds of heaven with divine power and the fullness of glory. ³¹He will send his angels to sound the trumpet, and to gather the chosen ones from the four winds, from one end of the earth to the other.

³²Learn a lesson from the fig tree: when its branches grow tender and its leaves begin to sprout, you know that summer is near. ³³In the same way, when you see all that I have told you, know that the time is near, even at the door. ³⁴Truly I say to you, this generation will not pass away until all these things have happened. ³⁵Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.

³⁶But as for that Day and that Hour, no one knows when it will come, not even the angels of God, nor the Son, but only the Father.

³⁷At the coming of the Son of Man, it will be just as it was in the time of Noah. ³⁸In those days before the Flood, people were eating and drinking, and marrying, until that day when Noah went into the ark. ³⁹Yet they did not know what would happen, until the flood came and swept them away. So will it be at the coming of the Son of Man: ⁴⁰of two men in the field, one will be taken and the other left; ⁴¹of two women grinding wheat together at the mill, one will be taken and the other left.

Be on the alert

⁴²Stay awake then, for you do not know on what day your Lord will come. ⁴³Obviously, if the owner of the house knew at what time the thief was coming, he would certainly stay up and not allow his house to be broken into. ⁴⁴So be alert, for the Son of Man will come at the hour you least expect.

⁴⁵Imagine a capable servant, whom his master has put in charge of his household, to give them food at the proper time. ⁴⁶Fortunate indeed is that servant, whom his master will find at work when he comes. ⁴⁷Truly I say to you, his lord will entrust that one with everything he has.

⁴⁸Not so with the bad servant, who thinks, 'My master is delayed.' ⁴⁹And he begins to ill-treat his fellow servants, while eating and drinking with drunkards. ⁵⁰But his master will come on the day he does not know, and at the hour he least expects. ⁵¹He will dismiss that servant, and deal with him as with the hypocrites. There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

The ten bridesmaids

(Mk 13:35; Lk 13:25)

25 ¹This story throws light on what will happen in the kingdom of heaven: Ten bridesmaids went out with their lamps to meet the bridegroom. ²Five of them were careless, and the others were sensible.

³The careless bridesmaids took their lamps as they were, and did not

25:13;
Lk 12:
39-40;
Mk 13:33

Lk
12:22;
1Thes
5:2;
2P 3:10;
Rev 3:3

Lk 12:
42-46

19:28;
25:21

8:12;
13:42

Lk 12:
35-38

• 25.1 FAITHFULNESS

The three parables that follow tell us how to await the return of Christ, being alert and active. The first, "the ten bridesmaids" is the most beautiful parable on fidelity. The ten girls followed the custom of waiting through the night for the bridegroom who will be accompanied to his house. The bridegroom is late, something that should astonish no one. The bride is not mentioned: perhaps they will discover at the end that there was no other than themselves.

They fell asleep. Once the sun has set, all is dark and nothing more can be done (Jn 9:4). No further work except fidelity of heart (Dt 5:2): oil will be needed to keep the flame alive.

bring extra oil. ⁴But those who were sensible, brought with their lamps flasks of oil. ⁵As the bridegroom delayed, they all grew drowsy and fell asleep.

⁶But at midnight, a cry rang out, 'The bridegroom is here, come out and meet him!' ⁷All the maidens woke up at once, and trimmed their lamps. ⁸Then the careless ones said to the sensible ones, 'Give us some oil, for our lamps are going out.' ⁹The sensible ones answered, 'There may not be enough for us and for you. You had better go to those who sell, and buy some for yourselves.'

¹⁰They were out buying oil when the bridegroom came, and those who were ready went with him to the wedding feast, and the doors were shut.

7:13;
8:11;
Lk 13:24;
Rev 19:7

¹¹Later the other bridesmaids arrived and called out, 'Lord, Lord, open to us!' ¹²But he answered, 'Truly I do not know you.'

¹³So stay awake, for you do not know the day nor the hour.

Lk 13:25

Mk
13:35

The parable of the talents

(Lk 19:12; Mk 4:25; 13:34)

^{• 14}Imagine someone who, before going abroad, summoned his servants to entrust his property to them. ¹⁵He gave five talents of silver to one servant, two talents to another servant, and one talent to a third, to each according to his ability; and he went away.

Lk 19:
11-27

¹⁶He who received five talents went at once to do business with the money, and gained another five. ¹⁷The one who received two talents did the

Here as in other places, the Gospel shows us that more than conversion and enthusiasm is needed: it is necessary to last (7-24). Being sure of having a reserve of oil is to take the means that enable us to persevere in our vocation.

Some will say that Matthew has placed this parable here for the benefit of the first Christians, for after having awaited the return of Christ, they saw that nothing happened. Error! Jesus speaks to the believers of all times. For them one day or another fidelity becomes burdensome: "I did not know to what I was committing myself." There lies the grandeur of fidelity. It cannot be known in advance; giving one's hand to God is a jump into the unknown. Only through this perseverance can we be saved (Mt 24:13), in other words, find ourselves.

The Lord demands faithfulness and perseverance from those he has chosen: this is how we save a world that seeks truth everywhere and does not know to which Lord to surrender.

• 14. TO WORK—TO TRUST ONESELF

During the time of Jesus, a talent was an amount, thirty kilograms of precious metal, but in this parable when Jesus spoke of talents he referred to the abilities given by God to each of us. Since then, people came to understand the word "talent" in this sense.

Good and faithful servant (v. 21). Faithful: it would be better translated: "reliable." We do not find any word of religious vocabulary in this parable.

God sees the way one has used his talents, and the sin is to have kept for self what one has received. What condemnation of a society where it is usual to enjoy and consume what has been received: a better human formation and knowledge inherited from the homeland which should be transmitted to one's descendants, the blessings and benefits of a family where the parents knew how to sacrifice themselves for their children, and perhaps the Word of God to be carried out in order to realize God's great plan for the world.

I will entrust you with much more. What we achieve on earth is not definitive but only the scaffolding: quite other will be the riches that God will distribute to those who will live in him.

You know that I reap where I have not sown (v. 26). As in Luke 18:1, Jesus is aware of our unavowed defiance towards God and takes us at our word. If we do not aspire to the place that the husband reserves for a wife (25:1), let us try at least not to be useless servants.

There are many opportunities for us to take initiatives, but we often are afraid to put ourselves forward: "I am not the most qualified." What if those who are qualified have not same, and gained another two.¹⁸ But the one who received one talent dug a hole, and hid his master's money.

¹⁹After a long time, the master of those servants returned and asked for a reckoning. ²⁰The one who had received five talents came with another five talents, saying, 'Lord, you entrusted me with five talents, but see, I have gained five more.'²¹ The master answered, 'Very well, good and faithful servant, since you have been faithful in a few things, I will entrust you with much more. Come and share the joy of your master.'

²²Then the one who had received two talents came and said, 'Lord, you entrusted me with two talents; with them I have gained two more.'

²³The master said, 'Well, good and faithful servant, since you have been faithful in little things, I will entrust you with much more. Come and share the joy of your master.'

²⁴Finally, the one who had received one talent came and said, 'Master, I know that you are a hard man. You reap what you have not sown, and gather what you have not scattered.'²⁵ I was afraid, so I hid your money in the ground. Here, take what is yours!' ²⁶But his master replied,

'Wicked and worthless servant, you know that I reap where I have not sown, and gather where I have not scattered; ²⁷so you should have deposited my money in the bank, and on my return you would have given it back to me with interest.

²⁸Therefore, take the talent from him, and give it to the one who has ten. ²⁹For to all those who have, more will be given, and they will have an abundance; but from those who are unproductive, even what they have will be taken from them. ³⁰As for that useless servant, throw him out into the dark, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.'

The last judgment

(Lk 9:26)

• ³¹When the Son of Man comes in his glory with all his angels, he will sit on the throne of his glory. ³²All the nations will be brought before him, and as a shepherd separates the sheep from the goats, ³³so will he do with them, placing the sheep on his right hand and the goats on his left.

³⁴The King will say to those on his right, 'Come, blessed of my Father! Take possession of the kingdom pre-common destiny of humankind, will be judged by him. In fact, he never abandoned them, but placed at their side "those little ones who are his brothers and sisters," as his representatives.

See, Christ reveals the innumerable human deeds that have built what is best in our civilization, and people brought before him look with amazement at the God whom they loved or despised in the person of their neighbor. Although the majority of them never thought of the afterlife, the kingdom of God is presented to them with its only law: Love.

There is no neutral place. The fire means the torment of those who condemned themselves by closing and freezing their hearts so that they became incapable of love: now the splendor of God, who is love, burns and pains them.

budgeted? Then, take the talent from him and give it to someone else.

• 31. THE UNIVERSAL JUDGEMENT

We know that Christians are a minority in the world. As we do now, the Jews wondered about the majority of nations in the world, who were not among the Chosen People and did not know about God or his promises. The Jews envisioned a huge multitude, ready to "devour them," a restless world where God should one day impose his Law. They used to call them: the nations.

Jesus goes beyond these narrow perspectives and shows us how he will judge everyone, making no distinctions based on origins when he comes as King of all nations. All those who, without knowing Christ, have shared in the 19:28;

18:23

24:47;
Lk 16:10;
Jn 15:10Jn 4:
37-3813:12;
Mk 4:25;
Lk 8:18;
19:26Zec 14:5;
Rev 3:21;
20:11Ezk
34:17;
Lk 12:32Lk 22:30;
Rom
8:17;
Eph 1:4

Is 58:7

pared for you from the beginning of the world. ³⁵For I was hungry, and you fed me. I was thirsty, and you gave me something to drink. ³⁶I was a stranger, and you welcomed me into your house. I was naked, and you clothed me. I was sick, and you visited me. I was in prison, and you came to see me.'

³⁷Then the good people will ask him, 'Lord, when did we see you hungry, and give you food; thirsty, and give you something to drink; ³⁸or a stranger, and welcome you; or naked, and clothe you? ³⁹When did we see you sick, or in prison, and go to see you?' ⁴⁰The King will answer, 'Truly I say to you: whenever you did this to these little ones who are my brothers and sisters, you did it to me.'

Pro
19:17;
Mk 9:41;
Lk 10:16;
Acts 9:5

⁴¹Then he will say to those on his left, 'Go, cursed people, out of my sight into the eternal fire, which has been prepared for the devil and his angels! ⁴²For I was hungry, and you did not give me anything to eat; I was thirsty, and you gave me nothing to drink; ⁴³I was a stranger, and you did not welcome me into your house; I was naked, and you did not clothe me; I was sick, and in prison, and you did not visit me.'

⁴⁴They, too, will ask, 'Lord, when did we see you hungry, thirsty, naked or a stranger, sick or in prison, and did not help you?' ⁴⁵The King will answer them, 'Truly I say to you: whatever you did not do for one of these little ones, you did not do it for me.'

⁴⁶And these will go into eternal

7:23;
Mk 9:48;
Rev
20:10

Dn 12:2;
Jn 5:29

Whenever you did this to these little ones who are my brothers and sisters (v. 40). Jesus speaks of looking after our neighbor, be he friend or foe, not of serving the community, or a class, or a nation in general, because using these words, we often exclude a group of our brothers and sisters, who do not belong to our nation or to our class. On the other hand, one who really loves acknowledges his sisters and brothers without giving too much importance to any labels: it is the person who exists and lives for God.

And these will go into eternal punishment (v. 46). There is something that shocks us today in the division of the good and the wicked, and it seems to us to be an outdated view (see commentary on Mt 13:36). In one sense it is true. Up to the recent times people were mainly "of one idea." It did not take long for youth to see what were the options in life, rarely did a person find more than one religion in the local milieu and she would choose either the "right" road or the "wrong" road. Some conversions for better or worse would follow (Ezk 8), but humanity seemed to be divided between the good and the evil. Today it is quite different: the choices we make are extremely complex and it takes time to discern clearly. All of life or much of it today may be lived by a person who has within the self a good and an evil being at the same time.

Let us understand then that Jesus spoke the language of the prophets, schematizing options. In fact Jesus denounces, not heinous crimes but selfishness in daily life as is found in each of us, and he depicts, like a father to his children the end towards which we are heading. It is to be hoped that the great majority will not reject the truth; certain persons consciously choose their own ruin and unfortunately are capable of continuing in their choice to the bitter end.

To say that God is so good that he will save them at the last moment is to affirm something that Jesus never intended to say. It would mean that all that a person lived through was of slight importance and that our freedom was no more than a game.

What Jesus says about judging non-Christian people likewise applies to us. But we would be mistaken if we repeatedly presented this parable as expressing the totality of Christian duties. What the world needs above all is not bread and water and clothing, but the truth and the hope that God entrusted to his chosen people. Christians would be unfaithful to their mission if they confined themselves to merely talking about assistance, housing and the like and forgot what is really life for humankind—first, the knowledge and love of their Lord. He will always be first and we need him to be so for us. He takes as done to himself all that we do for our sisters and brothers but does not want to be confused with them.

punishment, but the just to eternal life.”

Mk 14: 1-2;
Lk 22: 1-2;
12:1-14

26 ¹When Jesus had finished all he wanted to say, he told his disciples, ²“You know that in two days’ time it will be the Passover, and the Son of Man will be handed over to be crucified.”

Jn 11:47;
Acts 4:
25-27

³Then the chief priests and the Jewish authorities gathered together at the palace of the High Priest, whose name was Caiaphas, ⁴and they agreed to arrest Jesus and kill him. ⁵But they said, “Not during the feast, lest there be an uprising among the people.”

The anointing at Bethany

(Jn 12; Mk 14:9)

Mk 14:
3-9;
Jn 12:
1-8;
Lk 7:
36-50

⁶While Jesus was in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, ⁷a woman came up to him, carrying an alabaster jar of expensive perfume. She poured it on Jesus’ head as he was at table. ⁸Seeing this, the disciples became indignant and said, “What a useless waste! ⁹The perfume could have been sold for a large sum, and the money given to the poor.”

¹⁰But Jesus was aware of this, and said to them, “Why are you troubling this woman? What she has just done for me is indeed a good work.

Dt 15:11

¹¹You always have the poor with you, but you will not have me forever.

¹²She was preparing for my funeral, when she anointed my body with this perfume. ¹³Truly I say to you: wherever the Gospel is proclaimed, all over the world, what she has done will be told in praise of her.”

Jn 11:57

¹⁴Then one of the Twelve, who was called Judas Iscariot, went to the chief priests and said, ¹⁵“How much will you give me if I hand him over to you?” They promised to give him thirty pieces of silver, ¹⁶and from

Zec
11:12;
Gen
37:28;
Mt 27:3

then on, he kept looking for the best way to hand Jesus over to them.

The last supper

(Mk 14:12; Lk 22:7; Jn 13:1)

¹⁷On the first day of the Festival of Unleavened Bread, the disciples came to Jesus and said to him, “Where do you want us to prepare the Passover meal for you?” ¹⁸Jesus answered, “Go into the city, to the house of a certain man, and tell him, ‘The Master says: My hour is near, and I will celebrate the Passover with my disciples in your house.’”

¹⁹The disciples did as Jesus had ordered, and prepared the Passover meal.

²⁰When it was evening, Jesus sat at table with the Twelve. ²¹While they were eating, Jesus said, “Truly I say to you: one of you will betray me.”

²²They were deeply distressed, and they asked him, one after the other, “You do not mean me, do you, Lord?”

²³He answered, “The one who dips his bread with me will betray me.” ²⁴The Son of Man is going as the Scriptures say he will. But alas for that one who betrays the Son of Man: better for him not to have been born.” ²⁵Judas, who was betraying him, also asked, “You do not mean me, Master, do you?” Jesus replied, “You have said it.”

²⁶While they were eating, Jesus took bread, said a blessing and broke it, and gave it to his disciples saying, “Take and eat: this is my body.” ²⁷Then he took a cup, and gave thanks, and passed it to them, saying, “Drink this, all of you, ²⁸for this is my blood, the blood of the Covenant, which is poured out for many for the forgiveness of sins. ²⁹Yes, I say to you: From now on I will not taste the fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink new wine with you in my Father’s kingdom.”

Mk 14:
12-16;
Lk 22: 7-13;
12:14

Jn 2:4

Mk 14:
17-21;
Lk 22:
14, 21-23;
Jn 13:
21-30

Ps 41:10;
Jn 13:18

Ps 22;
Is 53:9;
Jn 17:12

Mk 14:
22-25;
Lk 22:
19-20;
1Cor 11:
23-25;
Mt 14:19;
15:36

1Cor
10:16

24:8;
Is 53:12;
Jer
31:31;
Zec 9:11;
Heb 9:20

Jn 12:23;
13:1;
17:1

Mk 14: 26-31; Lk 22: 39, 31-34; Jn 13: 36-38
 30 After singing psalms of praise, they went out to the Mount of Olives.
 31 Then Jesus said to them, "You will falter tonight because of me, and all will fall. For the Scripture says: I will strike the shepherd and the sheep will be scattered. 32 But after my resurrection, I will go ahead of you to Galilee."

Zec 13:7
 33 Peter responded, "Even though all doubt you and fall, I will never fall." 34 Jesus replied, "Truly I say to you: this very night before the cock crows, you will deny me three times."
 Jn 11:16 35 Peter said, "Though I have to die with you, I will never deny you." And all the disciples said the same.

Gethsemane

(Mk 14:32; Lk 22:39)

Mk 14: 32-42; Lk 22: 39-46; Jn 12: 27-30; 18:1; Heb 5: 7-10
 36 Jesus came with them to a place called Gethsemane, and he said to his disciples, "Sit here while I go over there to pray."

17:1; Mk 5:37
 37 He took Peter and the two sons of Zebedee with him, and he began to be filled with anguish and distress.
 38 And he said to them, "My soul is full of sorrow, even to death. Remain here and stay awake with me."

Jn 4:34; 6:38; Rom 5:19; Phil 2:8
 39 He went a little farther and fell to the ground, with his face touching the earth, and prayed, "Father, if it is possible, take this cup away from me. Yet not what I want, but what you want." 40 He went back to his disciples and found them asleep, and he said to Peter, "Could you not stay awake with me for even an hour?" 41 Stay awake and pray, so that you may not slip into temptation. The spirit indeed is eager, but the body is weak."

20:22 42 He again went away, and prayed, "Father, if this cup cannot be taken away from me without my drinking it, let your will be done."

43 When he came back to his disciples, he again found them asleep, for they could not keep their eyes open.
 44 He left them again, and went to pray the third time, saying the same words.

2Co 12:8
 45 Then he came back to his disciples and said to them, "You can sleep on now and take your rest! The hour has come, and the Son of Man will be handed over to sinners. 46 Get up, let us go. Look: the betrayer is here!"

Jesus arrested

• 47 Jesus was still speaking when Judas, one of the Twelve, arrived. With him was a crowd armed with swords and clubs, who had been sent by the chief priests and the Jewish authorities. 48 The traitor had arranged a signal for them: "The one I kiss, he is the man; arrest him."
 49 Judas went directly to Jesus and said, "Good evening, Master"; and he gave him a kiss. 50 But Jesus said to him, "Friend, do what you came for." Then they laid hands on Jesus, and arrested him.

51 One of those who were with Jesus drew his sword, and struck at the servant of the High Priest, cutting off his ear. 52 So Jesus said to him, "Put your sword back into its place, for he who uses the sword will perish by the sword. 53 Do you not know that I could call on my Father, and he would at once send me more than

• 26.47 See commentary on Mark 14:43.
 The kiss of Judas: this was the usual way a disciple greeted his master.

He drew his sword (v. 51). Peter, like other apostles who took part in resistance movements against Roman oppression, brought swords (Lk 22:49).

He who uses the sword. This sentence does not condemn soldiers and policemen in a world of violence, but Jesus asserts that weapons do not establish the kingdom of God, nor do they lead to life. Force leads to death (in one way or another) for those (and for the institutions) who use it, even where it is necessary.

20:22

2Co 12:8

Jn 14: 30-31

Mk 14: 43-52; Lk 22: 47-53; Jn 18: 2-11

Gen 9:6; Rev 13:10

Jn 18:36

twelve legions of angels. ⁵⁴If Scripture says that this has to be, should it not be fulfilled?”

Lk 19:47; 21:37; Jn 18:20 ⁵⁵At that moment, Jesus said to the crowd, “Why do you come to arrest me with swords and clubs, as if I were a robber? Day after day I was seated among you teaching in the Temple, yet you did not arrest me. ⁵⁶But all this has come about in fulfillment of what the Prophets said.” Then all his disciples deserted him and fled.

Zec 13:7; Jn 18:32

Jesus before the Sanhedrin

(Mk 14:53; Lk 22:54)

Mk 14: 53-65; Lk 22: 54...71; Jn 18: 15...24

• ⁵⁷Those who had arrested Jesus brought him to the house of the High Priest Caiaphas, where the teachers of the Law and the elders were assembled.

⁵⁸Peter followed Jesus at a distance, as far as the courtyard of the High Priest; he entered and sat with the guards, waiting to see the end.

⁵⁹The chief priests and the whole Supreme Council needed some false evidence against Jesus, so that they might put him to death. ⁶⁰But they were unable to find any, even though false witnesses came forward. ⁶¹At last, two men came up and declared,

27:40; Jn 2:19;

• 57. We find two accusations against Jesus. The first: I am able to destroy (v. 61) is false in one sense, but it refers to the words Jesus had spoken about replacing the Temple of Jerusalem with another religion centered in his own person (Jn 2:19) and that was indeed subversive. Nothing was more sacred to the Jews than the Temple of Jerusalem, and to attack the Temple was, at the same time, to threaten the position of the priests whose power was based on the fact that they alone could perform sacrificial rites in the Temple. They also amassed wealth from offerings and taxes that the people paid to the temple. In defending the holy things, they were also protecting their own interests.

For the second accusation, which is the most important, see commentary on Mark 14:53.

“This man said, ‘I am able to destroy the temple of God and rebuild it in three days.’”

Acts 6:14

⁶²The High Priest then stood up and asked Jesus, “Have you no answer at all? What is this evidence against you?” ⁶³But Jesus kept silent.

Is 53:7

So the High Priest said to him, “In the name of the living God, I command you to tell us: Are you the Messiah, the Son of God?” ⁶⁴Jesus answered, “It is just as you say. I tell you more: from now on, you will see the Son of Man, seated at the right hand of God most powerful, and coming on the clouds of heaven.”

24:30; Ps 110:1; Dn 7:13

⁶⁵Then the High Priest tore his clothes, saying, “He has blasphemed. What more evidence do we need? You have just heard these blasphemous words. ⁶⁶What is your decision?” They answered, “He must die!” ⁶⁷Then they began to spit on Jesus and slap him, while others hit him with their fists, ⁶⁸saying, “Messiah, prophesy! Who hit you?”

Num 14:6; Ezr 9:3; Jer 36:24; Acts 14:14

Lev 24:16; Jn 19:7

Peter disowns Jesus

(Mk 14:66; Lk 22:56)

• ⁶⁹Meanwhile, as Peter sat outside in the courtyard, a young servant-girl of the house said to him,

Mk 14: 66-72; Lk 22: 56-62; Jn 18: 17...27

Jesus kept silent (v. 63). Not out of contempt for those men, who were the religious authorities, but because he saw it was useless to argue with them. He remained silent and felt confident, as do those who put their cause in the hands of God.

It is just as you say (v. 64). Perhaps this answer of Jesus should be translated: “You are the one saying it,” which is to say that Jesus did not agree with the terms used by Caiaphas. The expression “Son of God” signified the kings and saviors of Israel, and Jesus is the Son of God in a very different sense. Jesus identifies himself with the prophecy of Daniel 7:13, announcing a Savior, a Son of Man, who comes directly from God from all eternity.

• 69. This denial by Peter is most amazing. His friend John is well known in the house of

“You also were with Jesus of Galilee.” ⁷⁰But he denied it before everyone, saying, “I do not know what you are talking about.”

⁷¹And as Peter was going out to the gateway, another servant-girl saw him and told the bystanders, “This man was with Jesus of Nazareth.”

⁷²Peter denied it again with an oath, swearing, “I do not know that man.”

⁷³After a little while, those who were standing there approached Peter and said to him, “Of course you are one of the Galileans: your accent gives you away.” ⁷⁴Peter began justifying himself with curses and oaths, protesting that he did not know Jesus. Just then a cock crowed.

⁷⁵And Peter remembered the words of Jesus, “Before the cock crows, you will deny me three times.” And he went away weeping bitterly.

27 ¹Early in the morning, all the chief priests and the elders of the people met together to look for ways of putting Jesus to death.

²They had him bound, and led him away to be handed over to Pilate, the governor.

The death of Judas

• ³When Judas, the traitor, realized that Jesus had been condemned, he was filled with remorse, and returned the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and the elders, ⁴saying, “I have sinned by betraying an innocent man to death.” They answered, “What does it matter to us? That is your concern.” ⁵So throwing down the money in the Temple, he went away and hanged himself.

⁶The priests picked up the money and said, “This money cannot be put into the Temple treasury, for this is the price of blood.” ⁷So they met together, and decided to buy the Potter’s Field with the money, and to make it a cemetery for foreigners. ⁸That is why, to this day, that place has been called Field of Blood.

⁹So what the prophet Jeremiah said was fulfilled: They took the thirty pieces of silver, the price which the Sons of Israel set on him, ¹⁰and they gave them for the Potter’s Field, as the Lord commanded me.

Jesus before Pilate

(Mk 15:1; Lk 23:2; Jn 18:29)

¹¹Jesus stood before the governor, who asked him, “Are you the King of the Jews?” Jesus answered, “You say so.”

27:24

Acts 1:18

Zec 11:12-13

Mk 15:2-15; Lk 23:2-5; 23:13-25; Mt 2:2

the high priest and Peter was introduced as his friend (Jn 18:16). The young girl knows very well who John is and does not say anything beyond an ironic word to Peter. Nobody is threatening him, least of all the men; instead they mock him for his provincial Galilean accent, the same as Jesus’ accent! It was enough to make Peter lose his composure.

In placing this episode just after the witness of Jesus in the presence of the High Priest, the Gospel intends to contrast Peter’s attitude with that of his Master.

• 27.1 Why this second appearance of Jesus before the Supreme Council or Sanhedrin? It is difficult to find agreement on this point in the Gospels.

It would seem that during the night Jesus was presented to Annas, ex-high priest, (succeeded by five sons and son-in-law Caiaphas). He retained real authority among the great priestly families. The Sanhedrin was not complete: the seventy-one members could not be accommodated in the house of Caiaphas. Besides, the Council could not legally hold a session during the night; so it met in the morning.

For the enemies of Jesus this private interrogation was the most important, and that is why Matthew and Mark place there all that they know of the trial of Jesus (Mt 26:57-64).

• 3. Judas, as soon as he betrays Jesus, disappears from the scene and dies. We do not

Mk 15:1; Lk 22:66; 23:1; Mt 12:14

26:34

¹²The chief priests and the elders of the people accused him, but he made no answer. ¹³Pilate said to him, “Do you hear all the charges they bring against you?” ¹⁴But he did not answer even a single question, so that the governor wondered greatly.

Jn 19:9

• ¹⁵At Passover, it was customary for the governor to release any prisoner the people asked for. ¹⁶Now there was a well-known prisoner called Barabbas. ¹⁷When the people had gathered, Pilate asked them, “Whom do you want me to set free: Barabbas, or Jesus called the Messiah?” ¹⁸for he realized that Jesus had been handed over to him out of envy.

¹⁹As Pilate was sitting in court, his wife sent him this message, “Have nothing to do with that holy man. Because of him, I had a dream last night that disturbed me greatly.”

Acts 3:14

²⁰But the chief priests and the elders of the people stirred up the crowds, to ask for the release of Barabbas and the death of Jesus. ²¹When the governor asked them again, “Which of the two do you want me to set free?” they answered, “Barabbas!” ²²Pilate said to them, “And what shall I do with Jesus called the Messiah?” All answered, “Crucify him!” ²³Pilate insisted, “What evil has he done?” But they shouted louder, “Crucify him!”

Acts 13:28

• ²⁴Pilate realized that he was getting nowhere, and that there could be a riot. He then asked for water, and washed his hands before the people, saying, “I am not responsible for his blood. It is your doing.” ²⁵And all the people answered, “Let his blood be upon us and upon our children.”

Dn 13:46; Acts 18:6; 20:26

²⁶Then Pilate set Barabbas free, but had Jesus scourged, and handed him over to be crucified.

The way of the cross

(Mk 15:16; Lk 23:11)

• ²⁷The Roman soldiers took Jesus into the palace of the governor and the whole troop gathered around him. ²⁸They stripped him and dressed him in a purple military cloak. ²⁹Then, twisting a crown of thorns, they forced it onto his head, even know what happened with the thirty coins: see Acts 1:18.

Mk 15: 16-20; Jn 19: 1-3

• 15. According to very old texts of the Gospel of Matthew the name of the troublemaker was Jesus, his nickname being Barabbas. Pilate proposes to the people a choice between Jesus called Barabbas and Jesus called the Messiah.

• 24. Pilate asked for water... (v. 24). The Jews understood this gesture as a clear expression of his refusal to become the judge or accuser of Jesus (see Dt 21:6; Ps 26:6).

• 27. In the inner yard called the Pretorium, the soldiers make fun of Jesus in full view of Pilate and all the people employed in the palace.

Twisting a crown of thorns, they forced it onto his head (v. 29). In all probability, local reed was woven in the form of a cap and entwined with long thorns.

The soldiers enjoy the game of the fallen king. In many cultures the king was a divine character and, at the same time, often became the victim responsible for all evils. Therefore, the game of the king was known in many places. One engraved tile that was a soldiers' game has been found in Jerusalem. On it is seen the journey of the king through many trials ending with his assassination.

The soldiers made this game a reality, without realizing how true it actually was. A triumphal Procession with Palms led to the arrest of Jesus, but the humiliation of Jesus prepared him to be the king, the Savior of all, as told in the story of Joseph (Gen 37-44), or more vividly described by the Prophet Isaiah (52:13).

Jesus is Savior, because he is the victim. He broke the mechanism of violence, because he suffered the greatest violence without becoming violent himself. In his humiliation, Jesus shows the greatness and the power of God. He took upon himself all the humiliations of and placed a reed in his right hand. They knelt before Jesus and mocked him, saying, "Long life to the King of the Jews!"³⁰ They spat on him, took the reed from his hand and struck him on the head with it.

³¹When they had finished mocking him, they pulled off the purple cloak and dressed him in his own clothes again, and led him out to be crucified.

³²On the way they met a man from Cyrene called Simon, and forced him to carry the cross of Jesus.³³ When they reached the place called Golgotha, which means the Skull,³⁴ they offered him wine mixed with gall. Jesus tasted it but would not drink it.

³⁵There they crucified him, and divided his clothes among themselves, casting lots to decide what each one should take.³⁶ Then they sat down to guard him.³⁷ The statement of his offense was displayed above his head, and it read, "This is Jesus, the King of the Jews."³⁸ They also crucified two bandits with him, one on his right hand and one on his left.

³⁹People passing by shook their heads and insulted him,⁴⁰ saying, "Aha! You who destroy the Temple and in three days rebuild it, save yourself—if you are God's Son—and come down from the cross!"

⁴¹In the same way the chief priests, the elders and the teachers of the Law mocked him.⁴² They said, "The man who saved others cannot save himself. Let the King of Israel now come down from his cross and we will believe in him."⁴³ He trusted in God; let God rescue him if God wants to, for he himself said, "I am the Son of God."

⁴⁴Even the robbers who were crucified with him insulted him.

⁴⁵From midday, darkness fell over the whole land until mid-afternoon.

⁴⁶At about three o'clock, Jesus cried out in a loud voice, "Eloi, Eloi, lamma sabbacthani?" which means: My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?⁴⁷ As soon as they heard this, some of the bystanders said, "He is calling for Elijah."⁴⁸ And one of them ran, took a sponge and soaked it in vinegar and, putting it on

Ps 22:8

26:61;
Jn 2:19Ps 22:9;
Wis 2:
18-20;
Jn 5:18;
10:36;
19:7Mk 15:
33-41;
Lk 23:
44-49

Ps 22:2

Lk 23:36;
Jn 19:29;
Ps 69:22

the defenseless, the dejected, the victims on whom were heaped the mindless violence of peoples and their leaders. Jesus bears the sin of the world, as announced by Isaiah. In the future, no one will be able to look at him without discovering their own wickedness, and mourning for him who was their victim (Zec 12:12). From this encounter with God, hated and killed, (and so different from the God worshiped in heaven) will gush waters of pardon and purification (Zec 13:1).

They offered him wine mixed with gall (v. 34). According to Mark, they gave him bitter-sweet wine, a drink of the soldiers, mixed with myrrh, to dull the pain. This drink had probably been prepared according to custom by the charitable women of Jerusalem, perhaps the same mentioned by Luke in 23:28. Matthew speaks of wine with bile (a detestable drink) to give us an inkling of all the bitterness that Jesus had to swallow, and also to recall Psalm 69:22.

They also crucified two bandits with him (v. 38). Perhaps they were, like Barabbas, nationalist terrorists opposed to the Romans. They could have been the companions of Barabbas, and their execution enhanced the favor done to Barabbas. If so, they would have to die along with Jesus instead of Barabbas. They could also have belonged to a group of bandits who assaulted and robbed pilgrims in the hills of Palestine.

This is Jesus, the king of the Jews (v. 37). For Pilate and the people in general, this expression signified a nationalist leader in the movement for liberation from the Roman yoke.

The Jews are the people of God and the Father arranged that they would be associated, in a very special way, with the salvation Christ brings. In fact, they were later subjected to many trials and persecutions. Many Jews have suffered like Jesus without believing in him, but confident in the promises of God and in a reed, gave him to drink. ⁴⁹Others said, "Leave him alone, let us see whether Elijah comes to his rescue."

⁵⁰Then Jesus cried out again in a loud voice and gave up his spirit.

After the death of Jesus

26:33 • ⁵¹Just then the curtain of the Temple sanctuary was torn in two from top to bottom, the earth quaked, rocks were split, ⁵²tombs were opened, and many holy people who had died were raised to life.

1P 3:19 ⁵³They came out of the tombs after the resurrection of Jesus, entered the Holy City, and appeared to many.

Rev 11:13 ⁵⁴The captain and the soldiers who guarded Jesus were greatly terrified, when they saw the earthquake and all that had happened, and said, "Truly, this was God's Son."

Lk 8:2; Mt 13:55; 20:20 ⁵⁵There were also some women there, who watched from a distance; they had followed Jesus from Galilee and had seen to his needs. ⁵⁶Among them were Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James and Joseph, and the mother of Zebedee's sons.

The burial

(Mk 15:42; Lk 23:50; Jn 19:38)

Mk 15: 42-47; Lk 23: 50-55; Jn 19: 38-42
Dt 21: 22-23 ⁵⁷It was now evening, and there came a wealthy man from Arimathea, named Joseph, who was also a disciple of Jesus. ⁵⁸He went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus, and the governor ordered that the body be given to him. ⁵⁹So Joseph took the body of Jesus, wrapped it in a clean linen sheet, ⁶⁰and laid it in his own new tomb, which had been cut out of the rock. Then he rolled a huge stone across the entrance to the tomb and left. ⁶¹Mary Magdalene and the other Mary remained sitting there in front of the tomb.

Acts 13:29

Jn 19:25

The guards at the tomb

⁶²On the following day, the day after the Preparation for the Sabbath observance, the chief priests and the Pharisees went to Pilate ⁶³and said to him, "Sir, we remember that when that impostor was still alive, he said, 'I will rise after three days.' ⁶⁴Therefore, have his tomb secured until the third day, lest his disciples come and steal the body, and say to the people: He is risen from the dead. This would be a worse lie than the first." ⁶⁵Pilate answered them, "You have soldiers, go and take all the necessary precautions." ⁶⁶So they went to the tomb and secured it, sealing the stone, and placed it under guard.

Lk 24: 16:21

Jesus appears to the women

(Mk 16:1; Lk 24:1; Jn 20:1)

28 • ¹After the Sabbath, at dawn on the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary

Mk 16: 1-8; Lk 24: 1-10; Jn 20:1

the kingdom of Justice. Jesus is really their king.

In Latin, the letters I.N.R.I. (that we read on crucifixes) are the initial letters of Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews.

• 51. This paragraph declares in apocalyptic style that the death of Jesus marked the completion of definitive salvation. Some apparitions of dead persons were interpreted as a sign of fulfillment of the prophecies of Daniel (12:2) referring to the Day of Salvation. The open tombs signify that the Risen Christ conquers the kingdom of the dead.

• 28.1 THE RISEN CHURCH

On the apparitions of the risen Jesus, see the commentary on Luke 24:1.

This first paragraph is still in apocalyptic style, with its resplendent angel and another earthquake. The Gospel refuses to describe a triumphal departure of Jesus, as his readers would have preferred. The risen Jesus is only seen by those who believe: the women who look for him will see him, the soldiers and rulers who do not seek him will not understand.

The evangelist mentions the names of Mary of Magdala and the other Mary, the mother of went to visit the tomb. ²Suddenly there was a violent earthquake: an angel of the Lord descending from heaven, came to the stone, rolled it from the entrance of the tomb, and sat on it. ³His appearance was like lightning and his garment white as snow. ⁴The guards trembled in fear and became like dead men when they saw the angel.

⁵The angel said to the women, “Do not be afraid, for I know that you are looking for Jesus, who was crucified. ⁶He is not here, for he is risen as he said. Come, see the place where they laid him; ⁷then go at once and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead, and is going ahead of you to Galilee. You will see him there. This is my message for you.”

⁸They left the tomb at once in fear, yet with great joy, and they ran to tell the news to his disciples.

⁹Suddenly, Jesus met them on the way and said, “Rejoice!” The women approached him, embraced his feet and worshiped him. ¹⁰But Jesus said to them, “Do not be afraid! Go and tell my brothers to set out for Galilee; there they will see me.”

¹¹While the women were on their way, the guards returned to the city, and some of them reported to the chief priests all that had happened. ¹²The chief priests met with the elders, and decided to give the soldiers a large sum of money, ¹³with this instruction, “Say that his disciples came by night while you were asleep, and stole the body of Jesus. ¹⁴If Pilate comes to know of this, we will explain the situation and keep you out of trouble.” ¹⁵The soldiers accepted the money and did as they were told. This story has circulated among the Jews until this day.

17:2;
Acts
1:10

26:32;
Mk
14:28;
Jn 21:1

James and of Joseph (Mt 27:55), two of the “brothers of Jesus” (Mt 13:55), his closest cousins. (She is a relative of Mary, the mother of Jesus, Jn 19:25).

Suddenly, Jesus met them on the way (v. 9). It is obvious that Matthew is combining two different events; one, the discovery of the empty tomb, and the other, which happened later on, the apparition of Jesus to Mary Magdalene alone as related in John 20:11-18.

Set out for Galilee (v. 10). Why did Jesus say this date if he was going to appear later that same day in Jerusalem? (Lk 24:13-42). It is not clear. Probably the evangelists combined several apparitions to simplify their narration. Anyway, time was needed for the apostles to believe in the Resurrection and understand something about it. After the two apparitions in Jerusalem, in which Jesus tried to convince them that he was not a phantom or a spirit, they would have to return to their provinces and environments, far away from the city that had caused them such trauma, in order to ponder what they had experienced. In Galilee, Jesus will manifest himself differently, making them understand that he is already glorified, that his existence is earthly no more.

A woman, Mary Magdalene, conveys the message, in order to indicate that, in the Church, not everything will come from the authorities. God communicates with whomever he wishes, giving prophetic messages to simple people and to women.

The resurrection of Christ is the pivotal point of the Gospel; yet Matthew reports it briefly. Why? Because when Matthew wrote his Gospel, the Resurrection was considered too great an event to put into writing; rather, it should be proclaimed and witnessed to by the Spirit at work in the Christian communities.

Are we in a different situation? The Church that talks of the Risen Christ should never be a powerful Church but a Risen Church. If the Church finds itself in a situation where there is no apparent hope of salvation, yet it is revived by the power of God; if in each generation the Church seems doomed to die because of its ancient structures, its worldly ways or the persecution it undergoes, yet it is nevertheless given new energies and new apostles by the Lord, then the Church is a witness that the Lord has risen and has given her the power to rise.

• 16. EVANGELIZATION—THE TRINITY

Jesus sent his apostles to evangelize the world.

The last apparition is related in a very simple way: no sudden appearance, no fear—no

Jesus 'sends the apostles

•¹⁶As for the eleven disciples, they went to Galilee, to the mountain where Jesus had told them to go.

¹⁷When they saw Jesus, they bowed before him, although some doubted.

¹⁸Then Jesus approached them and said, "I have been given all authority in heaven and on earth. ¹⁹Go, therefore, and make disciples from all nations. Baptize them in the Name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, ²⁰and teach them to observe all that I have commanded you. I am with you always, even to the end of this world."

11:27;
Jn 3:35;
13:3;
17:2;
Eph 1:20

physical demonstration of the reality of Jesus. What is important are the words of Jesus Master.

Although some doubted (v. 17). With this, Matthew sums up the last apparitions of Jesus. Not all the disciples of Jesus (the Eleven and the rest) believed so quickly in the resurrection of Jesus.

Make disciples from all nations (v. 19). Jesus, following the example of Jewish teachers of his time, gathered around him a group of disciples who lived with him. The teacher knew his disciples and the disciples knew the teacher by sharing everyday life. The same holds true today: evangelization implies interpersonal sharing.

To evangelize means to help someone ponder his former experiences until he can recognize in the person of Christ, in his death and resurrection, the truth that lights up his own life.

Those who believe will be baptized in the one Name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, the Three Persons Christ taught us about. Of course, he named them separately because the Father is not the Son and the Son is not the Holy Spirit; in spite of that, the Three are the same God. Upon entering the Church, the baptized will enter into communion with the Father, with the Son and with the Holy Spirit. The Church is, before anything else, communion.

See Acts 19:5 regarding baptism in the Name of the Lord Jesus.

Teach them to observe all that I have commanded you (v. 20). These instructions of Jesus have first place in Matthew's Gospel; they are in the five discourses and we are to do the will of the Father just as Jesus has revealed it.

I am with you always. Here we find again the certitude which the name Emmanuel already expressed in 1:23: Jesus is God-with-us until the end of time. The first generation Christians thought that Christ would not delay in returning but at the time the Gospel was written, they already understood that history would continue; the nation of Israel rejected the salvation offered to her and only a minority believed. Jesus was now committing himself to his apostles and to his Church and now began to build the Church of his apostles.

The Catholic Church is different from Protestant or Evangelical churches, because it was founded by the apostles of Jesus. Only she feels obliged to remain united around the successors of the apostles, the bishops; this unity and continuity are at times hard to maintain, especially in situations where it would seem easier to form a new reformed community alongside her. Obedience to the will of the Father is the means by which he purifies and strengthens our faith. Jesus is and remains "Lord" regarding the destiny of "his" Church.

PAGE 1394 (BLANK)

Since the end of the first century or at the beginning of the second century after Christ, there were texts stating that the second Gospel was the work of Mark. He had accompanied Peter to Rome where he also met Paul and he faithfully put Peter's teaching into writing.

Any reader comparing this gospel with those of Matthew and Luke will see immediately Mark does not say anything about the birth of Jesus and the years he spent in Nazareth. If we look carefully at the last paragraph of the gospel (Mk 16:9-20), we will be surprised to see that Mark's early text concluded with the discovery of the empty tomb and it did not mention the appearances of the risen Jesus. In other words, Mark's gospel seem to be stripped of its beginning and normal end.

However, this is not the case. Mark gave his work the same perimeters that the apostles had assigned to the first documents that determined the catechesis of the Church. Believers were not told all that they would have liked to know but they were given the essence of what Jesus had said and done (Acts 1:21-22).

The Gospel of Mark consists of two parts. Each one of them starts with a divine manifestation: in the first one, it is the word of God at Jesus' baptism by John and in the second one, it is the Transfiguration. The first part of the Gospel unfolds in Galilee, the province of Jesus and the second one takes us to Judea and Jerusalem, the heart of the Jewish nation. These two parts are like the two sides of the same adventure. The first part shows us the power and the newness of Jesus: the impact of his teachings on the crowds. Then disillusionment sets in and we have the second part. The crowds are no longer following as Jesus refuses to be what they wanted him to be. Finally, we have his death on the cross that seems to cancel his entire mission.

When Jesus died on the cross, the Roman officer admitted that the crucified one was truly the Son of God (Mk 15:39). And this is all that Mark says. It is now up to the evangelizer to give witness to the resurrection and proclaim Jesus Christ as savior, beginning with the scandal of the cross.

Mt 3:1-12;
Lk 3:1-17

1 • ¹This is the beginning of the Good News of Jesus Christ, the Son of God. ²It is written in the book of Isaiah, the prophet, “I am sending my messenger ahead of you to prepare your way.” ³Let the people hear the voice calling in the desert: Prepare the way of the Lord, level his paths.”

Mt 11:10;
Lk 7:27;
Mal 3:1;
23:20

Is 40:3

Acts
13:24;
Lk 7:27;
Is 1:16;
4:4;

Ezk 36:25

Lev 5:5;
Ps 32:5

2K 1:8

Is 11:2;
Jn 1:26;
Acts 1:5

⁴So John began to baptize in the desert; he preached a baptism of repentance for the forgiveness of sins.

⁵All Judea and all the people from the city of Jerusalem went out to John to confess their sins, and to be baptized by him in the river Jordan.

⁶John was clothed in camel’s hair and wore a leather garment around his waist. His food was locusts and honey. ⁷He preached to the people, saying, “After me comes one who is more powerful than I am; ⁸I have baptized you with water, but he will baptize you in the Holy Spirit.”

⁹At that time Jesus came from Nazareth, a town of Galilee, and was baptized by John in the Jordan.

¹⁰And the moment he came up out of the water, heaven opened before him, and he saw the Spirit coming down on him like a dove. ¹¹And these words were heard from heaven, “You are my Son, the Beloved, the One I have chosen.”

¹²Then the Spirit drove him into the desert. ¹³Jesus stayed in the desert forty days and was tempted by Satan. He was with the wild animals, but angels ministered to him.

Jesus calls his first disciples

(Mt 4:12; Lk 4:14)

• ¹⁴After John was arrested, Jesus went into Galilee and began preaching the Good News of God. ¹⁵He said, “The time has come; the kingdom of God is at hand. Change your ways and believe the Good News.”

Mt 3:
13-17;
Lk 3:
21-22

Is 63:19;
Jn 1:32

12:6;
Ps 2:7;
Is 42:1

Mt 4:
1-11;
Lk 4:1-13

Heb 2:18;
4:15;
Job 1:6

Mt 4:
12-17;
Lk 4:
14-15;
Jn 3:24

Gal 4:4;
Rom 1:1;
1Thes
1:5;
Col 1:5

• 1.1 In verses 1 to 13, Mark gives us in three small tableaux three important insights about Jesus’ salvation. Vv. 1-7. John the Baptist announces the coming of the One sent by God: this Jesus about whom the Gospel will speak to us has been announced, prepared by all the great witnesses of the Old Testament. In him and by him God’s salvation will be accomplished.

Vv. 9-10. Jesus goes down into the Jordan to open the gates of the true Promised Land (see the Book of Joshua): he is the beloved Son of the Father on whom the Spirit rests. Jesus comes to reveal the mystery of God, the mystery of the love of God—Father, Son and Spirit.

Vv. 11-13. Jesus is at peace with the wild animals as he is with the angels. In him and by him will be accomplished the reconciliation of all creation with its God. Such had to be the Messiah announced by Isaiah (Is 11).

• 14. After this desert experience, Jesus returns to his home province, Galilee, and establishes himself in Capernaum. Jesus lives in the house of Simon, who already appears to be the leader of a group of fishermen, and among them Jesus finds his disciples.

God becomes human, Jesus shares the life of the people of his time, and like the prophets he teaches by what he says and does.

The time has come (v. 15). What does that mean? The time fixed by God has come to an end (Gal 4:4; Eph 1:10), the time of preparation has ended, and the manifestation of God announced by the prophets has already begun.

Change your ways and believe the Good News. God does not expect works on the part of human beings but calls them to faith. Be rid of all that hampers you, of all that prevents you from seeing and believe! Believe that it is he, and he alone who is able to save you!

At once, they abandoned their nets and followed him (v. 18), which means leaving their family and work they began to live with him. Like the masters of religion in his time, like the rabbis, Jesus instructed his first disciples, teaching them what they were to pass on to others in the Church.

Simon, Andrew, James and John. Jesus already knew them: he had met them where John the Baptist was preaching (Jn 1:35). The first nucleus of disciples is this natural group of lake fishermen of which Peter seemed to be the leader. They were most probably young men, ready to make a commitment at a time

Mt 4: 16 As Jesus was walking along the 18-22; shore of Lake Galilee, he saw Simon
Lk 5: and his brother Andrew casting a net
1-11; in the lake, for they were fishermen.
Jn 1:40
17 And Jesus said to them, "Follow me, and I will make you fish for peo-1K 19: ple." 18 At once, they abandoned their 19-20 nets and followed him. 19 Jesus went a little farther on and saw James and John, the sons of Zebedee; they were in their boat mending their nets.
20 Immediately Jesus called them and they followed him, leaving their father Zebedee in the boat with the hired men.

Jesus teaches and drives out an evil spirit (Mt 7:28; Lk 4:31)

Lk 4: • 21 They went into the town of Ca-31-37; pernaum and Jesus taught in the Jn 2:12 synagogue on the sabbath day. 22 The Mt 7:28; people were astonished at the way
Jn 7:46

he taught, for he spoke as one having authority and not like the teachers of the Law.

• 23 It happened that a man with an evil spirit was in their synagogue, 24 and he shouted, "What do you want with us, Jesus of Nazareth?
Have you come to destroy us? I know who you are: you are the Holy
One of God." 25 Then Jesus faced him and said with authority, "Be silent, and come out of this man!"
26 The evil spirit shook the man violently and, with a loud shriek, came out of him.

Jn 6:69;
Acts 3:14

Lk 4:41

27 All the people were astonished, and they wondered, "What is this?
With what authority he preaches! He even gives orders to evil spirits and they obey him!" 28 And Jesus' fame spread throughout all the country of Galilee.

and in a culture where people were freer than we are from the constraints of work.

They did not yet know what the Reign of God would mean but they trusted Jesus to guide them. This for them was the beginning of faith.

• 21. Mark has shown us how Jesus began his public life: he became part of a movement of conversion that had shaken everyone at the call of John the Baptist. It was then that Jesus began preaching and met his first disciples.

Mark will now give us a "day" in the life of Jesus. Through his words and actions a power that impresses every witness becomes manifest. At the beginning of his ministry, Jesus preaches in the synagogues. The synagogue is the Jewish house of prayer. People gather each Saturday for the chanting of the Psalms and the reading of the Bible. The one in charge preaches and invites others to join.
This is where Jesus reveals himself. He is not like the teachers of the Law who repeat, interpret, and give others' opinions. Jesus speaks on his own and he speaks with authority, "In truth, I tell you."

• 23. With the same authority Jesus drives out demons. This act also contains a message:
Jesus delivers us from the influence of the Devil, who strives to destroy those created in the likeness of God.

This "Master of this world" (Jn 14:30) is present in all human business and culture to deceive human purposes and converts any progress into new slavery.

In Jesus' time, but much more rarely in the Church's time (our time), there were some persons possessed by the Devil. Jesus freed quite a number of people from this slavery and disease. Physical possession is not the usual way of the devil's activity in humans. The Devil operates (far more dangerously because we do not feel it) in the moral life of people. He blinds and confuses them with regard to the truth, disguised as the angel of light (2 Cor 11:14).

Not that the Devil is the cause of every sin and evil that people do. There is also the selfishness of our "flesh" and the lure of the false promises of "the world" but the Devil, as enemy of God's kingdom, is never at rest. He always nurtures our temptations. With holier persons who are not easy to tempt in a direct way, he goes about deceiving them persuading them to give more importance to their own good purposes than to the advice of others and the teaching of the Church.

The Devil notices at once those who are capable of weakening or destroying his empire.
Then he awakens the bad, the mediocre, the

Jesus heals many*(Mt 8:14; Lk 4:38)*Mt 8:
14-15;
Lk 4:
38-39;
Mk 9:2;
13:3

•²⁹ On leaving the synagogue, Jesus went to the home of Simon and Andrew with James and John.³⁰ As Simon's mother-in-law was sick in bed with fever, they immediately told him about her.³¹ Jesus went to her and, taking her by the hand, raised her up. The fever left her and she began to wait on them.³² That evening at sundown, people brought to Jesus all the sick and those who had evil spirits:³³ the whole town was pressing around the door.³⁴ Jesus healed many who had various diseases, and drove out many demons; but he did not let them speak, for they knew who he was.

3:11;
5:7Jesus' prayer at night(Lk 4:42)*Lk 4:
42-44;
Mk 6:46

•³⁵ Very early in the morning, before daylight, Jesus went off to a lonely place where he prayed.³⁶ Simon and the others went out also, searching for him;³⁷ and when foolish and the ill fated against them. That is why wherever Jesus goes the Devil also appears.

• 29. Peter's simple faith is manifested. Jesus enters the house, bringing with him peace and health. Jesus shows us how to visit the sick. What a natural thing to do when Mass ends—to go see the sick. The care and love of our Christian sisters and brothers attracts God's favors upon them.

As soon as it was sundown. Let us not forget that it is the Sabbath, the weekly day of rest. For the Jews days are counted from the time of sunset and night precedes day as shown in Genesis 1:5. Everyone observes the Sabbath, just as Jesus does and there is such haste to bring the sick to him that they begin to do so in the evening as soon as the Sabbath is over.

• 35. The apostles knew God since childhood through the Bible's teachings; perhaps they had not discovered God within their own lives but prayed to God as to a distant stranger.

they found him, they said, "Everyone is looking for you."³⁸ Then Jesus answered, "Let's go to the nearby villages so that I may preach there too; for that is why I came."

Jn 18:37

³⁹ So Jesus set out to preach in all the synagogues throughout Galilee; he also cast out demons.

3:7;
6:54;
Lk 6:17Jesus cures a leper(Mt 8:2; Lk 5:12)*

•⁴⁰ A leper came to Jesus and begged him, "If you want to, you can make me clean."⁴¹ Moved with pity, Jesus stretched out his hand and touched him, saying, "I do want to; be clean."⁴² The leprosy left the man at once and he was made clean.⁴³ As Jesus sent the man away, he sternly warned him,⁴⁴ "Don't tell anyone about this, but go and show yourself to the priest, and for the cleansing bring the offering ordered by Moses; in this way you will give to them your testimony."

Mt 8:1-4;
Lk 5:
12-16;
Lev
13:45

⁴⁵ However, as soon as the man went out, he began spreading the

Lev 14:
2-32

When they joined Jesus, they immediately understood that there was something extraordinary about him. They were especially taken with his apparent intimacy with God. The most extraordinary thing they noted in his manner and actions was his intimate and faithful union with his Father.

Living with Jesus, they begin to desire to know the Father more fully, something like Jesus knows him (Lk 11:1; Jn 14:8; 15:15).

THE MARGINALIZED

• 40. Jesus leaves Capernaum to announce the Good News to the most isolated and ignored families in the whole country. There he finds the lepers. At that time leprosy was considered as a contagious disease. Because of this, lepers had to live on the outskirts of the towns, far from the rest of the population. There was also a belief that leprosy was an affliction from God, and the Jewish religion declared lepers unclean.

By Jesus' act, the flesh of the leper becomes clean. As a result of this, from that time on, he would be like others and people would no news everywhere, so that Jesus could no longer openly enter any town. But even though he stayed in the rural areas, people came to him from everywhere.

Jesus forgives and cures a paralytic

(Mt 9:1; Lk 5:17)

Mt 9:1-8;
Lk 5:
17-26;
Mk 1:29

3:20;
Acts 4:29;
8:25

2¹After some days Jesus returned to Capernaum. As the news spread that he was in the house, ²so many people gathered, that there was no longer room even outside the door. While Jesus was preaching the Word to them, ³some people brought a paralyzed man to him.

⁴The four men who carried him couldn't get near Jesus because of the crowd, so they opened the roof above the room where Jesus was and, through the hole, lowered the man on his mat. ⁵When Jesus saw the faith of these people, he said to the paralytic, "My son, your sins are forgiven."

⁶Now some teachers of the Law, who were sitting there, wondered within themselves, ⁷"How can he speak like this, insulting God? Who can forgive sins except God?"

⁸At once Jesus knew in his spirit what they were thinking, and asked, "Why do you wonder? ⁹Is it easier to say to this paralyzed man, 'Your sins are forgiven,' or to say, 'Rise, take up your mat and walk?' ¹⁰But now you shall know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins."

And he said to the paralytic, ¹¹"Stand up, take up your mat and go home." ¹²The man rose and, in

Lk 7:48

Ps
103:3;
Is 43:25Mt 12:25;
Jn 2:25

Mt 9:33

longer avoid him. Both people and the Law of God would acknowledge his dignity.

The Good News does not remain mere words but it effects a change. From then on, they would no longer be marginalized people.

Don't tell anyone (v. 44). Very often, particularly in the Gospel of Mark, Jesus gives this order to those who have just been cured of an evil (1:25; 1:34; 1:44; 3:12; 5:43; 7:36; 8:26; 8:30). We must note, however, that Jesus does not give this order when he is outside Israel territory; and that the order is not given after the transfiguration.

Jesus imposed this silence during the first part of his public life because most of the people expected a warlike and vengeful Messiah. Jesus did not want any ambiguity about his mission. Only when Jesus had sufficiently distanced himself from this popular image of the Messiah, would he begin to reveal, first to his disciples, the mystery of his person.

For this same reason Mark, who differs from Matthew, rarely uses the expression "son of God." Mark reserves it for the privileged moments of Jesus' revelation to people: his baptism and transfiguration, and at the conclusion of the passion on the lips of the centurion.

• 2.1 With this miracle on the paralytic cured and forgiven, Jesus gives three answers at the same time: to the sick man, to his friends and to the Pharisees.

When Jesus saw the faith of these people (v. 5). These are the friends of the paralytic, and Jesus rewards their faith.

Apparently the paralytic did nothing more than consent to their advice. At once, Jesus tells him—your sins are forgiven. What a strange thing to say! How can Jesus forgive sins if the man is not conscious of any fault and, at the same time, repentant and awaiting forgiveness? Certainly during his long infirmity, this man had asked himself why God was punishing him (the people of his time believed sickness was a punishment from God). Many texts of the Old Testament emphasize the complex connection between sin and illness. It is often illness that makes us conscious of our state of sinfulness, and for his part Jesus does not want to heal unless there is reconciliation with God.

Jesus acts like God: he looked at the sinner, rectified the complexes of culpability and pardoned before healing.

Later the Pharisees arrive. When Jesus forgave the paralytic, the simple people did not realize how scandalous his words were. They did not have enough religious formation to realize immediately that only God could give absolution. It was the Pharisees and the teachers of the Law who were scandalized. Their indignation is justified because neither they, nor the others, nor the disciples, yet understand that Jesus is the true Son of God. Jesus silences them: If I restore health in the same way God the sight of all those people, he took up his mat and went out. All of them were astonished and praised God, saying, “Never have we seen anything like this!”

The call of Levi

(Mt 9:9; Lk 5:27)

Mt 9:
9-13;
Lk 5:
27-32

•¹³ When Jesus went out again beside the lake, a crowd came to him, and he taught them. ¹⁴ As he walked along, he saw a tax collector sitting in his office. This was Levi, the son of Alpheus. Jesus said to him, “Follow me!” And Levi got up and followed him.

Mt 18:12;
Lk 15:1

¹⁵ And it so happened that when Jesus was eating in Levi’s house, tax collectors and sinners sat with him and his disciples; there were a lot of them, and they used to follow Jesus.

Lk 7:34

10:45;
Jn 9:39

Mt 9: 14-17;
Lk 5:
33-39

Jn 3:29;
2Cor
11:2

¹⁶ But Pharisees, men educated in the Law, when they saw Jesus eating with sinners and tax collectors, said to his disciples, “Why does your master eat and drink with tax collectors and sinners?”

¹⁷ Jesus heard them, and answered, “Healthy people don’t need a doctor, but sick people do. I did not come to call the righteous, but sinners.”

New wine, new skin

(Mt 9:14; Lk 5:33)

•¹⁸ One day, when the Pharisees and the disciples of John the Baptist were fasting, some people asked Jesus, “Why is it that both the Pharisees and the disciples of John fast, but yours do not?” ¹⁹ Jesus answered, “How can the wed-does, should not I also forgive in the way God does?

Jesus disconcerts those who ask who he is. Better still, he shows that only he can save the whole person, body and soul.

FORGIVENESS OF SINS

Happy this man who was assured of his pardon through the glance and the words of Jesus! God is he who lives and loves and we need to meet him so that forgiveness can be authentic—his eyes meeting our eyes. Because of this, God had to become human—Jesus forgives sins because he is a son of man (Jn 5:27) and from him we receive the pardon both of God and of people within the Christian community.

PUBLICANS

• 13. To enter the family of God, we must change some of our values. This conversion is not as conspicuous as participation in devotional practices but is much more valuable. First, we must liberate ourselves from prejudices by which we classify people. Let us stop dividing people into good or bad; those we can greet and those we cannot; those we can love and help and those we cannot. Let us learn that God does not hate the rich or the uneducated, those on the left or those on the right, for God’s merciful plan sees to the salvation of all.

The Gospel speaks about the publicans or the tax collectors (v. 15), who served the foreign powers. Jesus’ nation was under the domination of the Roman Empire, and the tax collectors were Jews who worked for foreigners.

Patriots considered them traitors. The people knew they filled their pockets; even beggars refused to receive from the publicans. Yet Jesus did not condemn them but chose one of them, Levi, as one of his apostles, of whom the majority were committed patriots.

The teachers of the Law were like catechists or religion teachers. They were well versed in religion and admired Jesus’ teachings, but they did not consider as brothers and sisters the publicans and other sinners (that is to say people who did not fulfill the religious precepts).

Levi is probably the apostle Matthew (Mt 9:9). In this case, like Simon, named Peter by Jesus, Levi would have been given the name of Matthew; in Hebrew Mattai means gift of God.

• 18. Many religious leaders sympathized with Jesus. How they would have liked that he rekindle the faith of the nation! Jesus himself did not feel that his primary task was to reorganize worship and bring people to the synagogues.

The Pharisees were fasting. Fasting, a sign of repentance, supported their prayers that ding guests fast while the bridegroom is with them? As long as they have the bridegroom with them, they cannot fast. ²⁰But the day will come when the bridegroom will be taken from them, and on that day they will fast.

²¹No one sews a piece of new cloth on an old coat, because the new patch will shrink and tear away from the old cloth, making a worse tear. ²²And no one puts new wine into old wineskins, for the wine would burst the skins, and then both the wine and the skins would be lost. But new wine, new skins!"

(Mt 12:1; Lk 6:1)

Mt 12: 1-8; Lk 6:1-5

Dt 24:20

• ²³One Sabbath he was walking through grainfields. As his disciples walked along with him, they began to pick the heads of grain and crush them in their hands. ²⁴Then the Pharisees said to Jesus, "Look! They are doing what is forbidden on the Sabbath!"

²⁵And he said to them, "Have you never read what David did in his time of need, when he and his men were very hungry? ²⁶He went into the house of God, when Abiathar was High Priest, and ate the bread of offering, which only the priests are allowed to eat, and he also gave some to the men who were with him." ²⁷Then Jesus said to them, "The sabbath was made for man, not man for the Sabbath. ²⁸So the Son of Man is master even of the Sabbath."

1S 21: 2-7; Lev 24: 5-9

Dt 5:14

Cure of the man with a withered hand
(Lk 6:6; Mt 12:9; Lk 14:1)

3 • ¹Again Jesus entered the synagogue. A man, who had a paralyzed hand, was there ²and some people watched Jesus: would he heal the man on the sabbath? If he did, they could accuse him.

Mt 12: 9-14; Lk 6: 6-11; 14:1-6; 13:10-17

³Jesus said to the man with the paralyzed hand, "Stand here in the center." ⁴Then he asked them, "What God come and liberate his people. God comes in the person of Jesus: joy and celebration are more appropriate than fasting. The prophets had announced the wedding feast of God with his people when he would come to visit us (Is 62:4-5). Because of this, in presenting himself as the bridegroom, Jesus identifies who he really is.

What is the new wine? (v. 22) It is of course the Gospel, and the enthusiasm because of the Holy Spirit that leads the disciples to every kind of madness to manifest the love of the Father and the freedom that they have acquired. In order to understand this, let us read the Acts of the Apostles and the lives of the saints, who have marked Church history.

Old skins: The Gospel does not fit into the molds of religion and likewise does not enter into those persons who hold onto them at all costs. Mark wants us to catch the Gospel's novelty. We have just seen Jesus welcoming sinners, now we wonder that he doesn't come like religious groups with prayers and fasting.

• 23. It was normal that passersby, when hungry, would pick fruit or wheat. The Pharisees were scandalized because Jesus' disciples did this on the Sabbath, a day when all work was prohibited.

The sabbath was made for man. No law, no matter how holy it is, should be applied in a way that would oppress a person.

The Son of Man is master even of the Sabbath (v. 28). For the Jews, the observance of the Sabbath was the pillar of the Law established by God. Who did Jesus think he was?

• 3.1 HUMAN ADVANCEMENT AND THE SABBATH

Here, what Mark wants to emphasize is not the miracle Jesus performs, but his attitude vis-à-vis the Sabbath. This miracle confirms what he has just said in 2:28.

The Pharisees considered it lawful to work on the Sabbath if it was a question of saving someone in danger of death. Jesus is about to enlarge this ruling: for him, not to do good is to do evil, not to cure is to kill.

Some ask if Jesus was interested in the material advancement (well-being) of people or only in their spiritual progress. Actually, it is impossible to separate one from the other.

does the Law allow us to do on the Sabbath? To do good or to do harm? To save life or to kill?" But they were silent.

5:32 ⁵Then Jesus looked around at them with anger and deep sadness, because they had closed their minds. And he said to the man, "Stretch out your hand." He stretched it out, and his hand was healed. ⁶As soon as the Pharisees left, they met with Herod's supporters, looking for a way to destroy Jesus.

(Mt 12:15; Lk 6:17)

Mt 12: 15-16; Lk 6: 17-19 ⁷Jesus and his disciples withdrew to the lakeside, and a large crowd from Galilee followed him. A great number of people also came from Judea, ⁸Jerusalem, Idumea, Transjordan, and from the region of Tyre and Sidon, for they had heard of all that he was doing.

⁹Because of the crowd, Jesus told his disciples to have a boat ready for him, to prevent the people from crushing him. ¹⁰He healed so many, that all who had diseases kept pressing towards him to touch him. ¹¹Even the people who had evil spirits, whenever they saw him, they would fall down before him and cry out, "You are the Son of God." ¹²But he warned them sternly not to tell anyone who he was.

The twelve apostles

(Mt 10:1; Lk 6:12)

^{• 13}Then Jesus went up into the hill country, and called those he wanted, and they came to him. ¹⁴He appointed twelve to be with him, and he called them 'apostles'. He wanted to send them out to preach, ¹⁵and he gave them authority to drive out demons.

¹⁶These are the Twelve: Simon, to whom he gave the name Peter;

1:34;
6:55;
Lk 9:2

Lk 4:41

Mt 10: 1-4;
Lk 6:
12-16;
Mk 6:7;
Lk 9:1

Mt 9:35;
10:9;
Lk 10:1

Lk 10:17

Mt 16:18;
Jn 1:42

Jesus, apparently, did not speak of the economy nor the social order, but he did denounce our prejudices that prevent us from giving the world a true and just order.

People, then, have the capacity and the means to better their condition, but they use them poorly because they remain prisoners of principles or institutions that are considered sacred, and in order to preserve them they allow half the world to die.

• 13. THE TWELVE

It was on the mountain that Moses and Elijah met God: it was there that God gave them their mission (Ex 19; 1 K 19). It is on the mountain that Jesus calls those who will be in a special way associated with his own mission: they will be with him, they will proclaim the Word and drive out demons.

Mark tells us here what the Church is: a community assembled by Jesus close to him, where people hear the Word of God and are freed from the slavery of the demon.

On the one hand are the countless afflicted who seek relief, and on the other the group of the Twelve whom Jesus asks to be his co-builders in the kingdom of God.

What do we know of these twelve who would become Jesus' messengers, the foundations of the Church, the teachers of the faith? The nucleus of the group were fishermen and with them a tax collector, Matthew; a teacher of the Law, Bartholomew; and some others of whom we only know that Jesus chose them from among the people.

He came in order to save all, but his work began with the poor. Jesus did not belong more to the poor than to the rich, but like all humans he had to locate himself within a specific environment and social class.

Being a son of an artisan, he grew up among simple, humble people. In addition, Jesus made an important decision when he was eighteen or twenty years old. He chose to remain a manual worker rather than to enter a school for teachers of the Law. These religious schools were open to all.

Jesus could have begun his preaching as a qualified teacher and would certainly have found his helpers among the sincere teachers of the Law, priests or Pharisees. But no, he preferred to educate himself through the worker's life with no other religious instruction than the teachings of the synagogue, with no other book than the book of life. Because of this, when the time came, he found his apostles among the common people, young men who were simple but reliable people.

Lk 9:54 ¹⁷ James, son of Zebedee, and John his brother, to whom he gave the name Boanerges, which means ‘men of thunder’; ¹⁸ Andrew, Philip, Bartholomew, Matthew, Thomas, James son of Alphaeus, Thaddeus, Simon the Cananean, ¹⁹ and Judas Iscariot, the one who betrayed him.

The sin against the Spirit

(Mt 12:24; Lk 11:15)

2:2; 6:31
Jn 10:20
Mt 12: 24-32; Lk 11: 15-23; Mt 9:34

• ²⁰ They went home. The crowd began to gather again and they couldn’t even have a meal. ²¹ Knowing what was happening, his relatives came to take charge of him. “He is out of his mind,” they said. ²² Meanwhile the teachers of the Law, who had come from Jerusalem, said, “He is in the power of Beelzebul: the chief of the demons helps him to drive out demons.”

²³ Jesus called them to him, and began teaching them by means of stories, or parables. “How can Satan drive out Satan? ²⁴ If a nation is divided by civil war, that nation cannot stand. ²⁵ If a family divides itself into groups, that family will not survive. ²⁶ In the same way, if Satan has risen against himself and is divided, he will not stand; he is finished. ²⁷ No one can break into the house of a strong man in order to plunder his goods, unless he first ties up the strong man. Then indeed, he can plunder his house.

²⁸ Truly, I say to you, every sin will be forgiven humankind, even insults to God, however numerous. ²⁹ But whoever slanders the Holy Spirit will never be forgiven: he carries the guilt of his sin forever.”

³⁰ This was their sin when they said, “He has an unclean spirit in him.”

Jesus’ true family

(Mt 12:46; Lk 8:19)

• ³¹ Then his mother and his broth-

• 20. He is in the power of Beelzebul (v. 22). More than the healings, the exorcisms unsettled the Pharisees and the Teachers of the Law. They, the religious authorities, traveled from Jerusalem to see this Jesus for themselves. The Jews of Jesus’ time were obsessed with the belief that illness was a form of possession. Jesus does not concern himself with distinguishing between illness and possession. Actually, the Devil is behind all human misery. Beelzebul, the name of an ancient idol, was a Jewish term for the Devil.

No one can break into the house of the strong one. That strong one is the Devil and his house is the possessed person. “To plunder the house” is to take away the Devil’s power over his victim.

Every sin will be forgiven humankind, even insults to God, however numerous and Matthew adds: “And the one who speaks against the Son of Man will be forgiven” (Mt 12:32).

Whereas the Old Testament punished blasphemous words with death in order to save God’s honor and avoid his anger towards the community, the God whom Jesus knows is aware of how far human stupidity can go and does not feel offended by so many ridiculous or blasphemous words habitually used in our society: he does not defend himself as do the important people of this world.

Jesus allows himself to be criticized by those who do not understand him. Many Pharisees of good faith did not understand Jesus and were scandalized by him. This was excusable, but it is a different thing to call evil that which is clearly good.

To slander (or: to blaspheme) the Holy Spirit (v. 29) is to attribute to a bad spirit a work that is manifestly good. Those who systematically attribute bad intentions to good work done by others, by the Church, by other parties, sin against the Holy Spirit. The one who recognizes the truth but not God is better off than the one who says he believes in God but does not recognize the truth.

About the exorcisms, Jesus concludes: “The kingdom of God has come.” In reality the victory over Satan is daily reinforced. Our prayer, the insistent prayer of Christian communities, the witness of life and courageous action of Christians are effective in repulsing the diabolical presence of money, the exploitation of others, drugs or the frenzy for sex.

• 31. See Mark 3:20.

Jesus lost his relatives but found his true

Is 49:24;
53:12

Lk 12:10;
1Tim
1:13

Mt 12:
46-50;
Lk 8:
19-21;

Mk 6:3;
Jn 2:12

ers came. As they stood outside, they sent someone to call him. ³²The crowd sitting around Jesus told him, “Your mother and your brothers are outside asking for you.” ³³He replied, “Who are my mother and my brothers?”

Lk 11:28

³⁴And looking around at those who sat there, he said, “Here are my mother and my brothers. ³⁵Whoever does the will of God is brother and sister and mother to me.”

The sower

(Mt 13:1; Lk 8:4)

4 • ¹Again Jesus began to teach by the lake; but such a large crowd gathered about him, that he got into a boat and sat in it on the lake, while the crowd stood on the shore. ²He taught them many things through parables. In his teaching he said,

³“Listen! The sower went out to sow. ⁴As he sowed, some of the seed

Mt 13:
1-9;
Lk 8:4-5;
Mk 2:13;
Lk 5:1

Mt 13:34

brothers and sisters. When we commit ourselves to God’s work, we discover new brothers and sisters and a mother, Mary, of whom the Gospel says, “Happy are you for having believed that God’s promises would be fulfilled.” Jesus does not say, “He is my father,” for the Father is one and he is in Heaven.

THE BROTHERS OF JESUS

The Church never doubted that Mary was a virgin and that Jesus was her only son, as he is the only son of the Father (see commentary on Lk 1:26). Why then does it speak of Jesus’ brothers and sisters?

First, in Hebrew, any relative is called “brother” or “sister.” In the Bible we find more than five hundred examples where the word “brother” signifies a fairly close relationship.

To avoid confusion the Jews used some clearer forms. If the Gospel really meant brothers—sons of Mary—on mentioning them together with her, it should have said, “Your mother and the sons of your mother are here.” This was the only acceptable way of expressing it at that time.

Some people say: “If the word ‘brother’ often denotes distant cousins, it may also mean brothers in the strict sense of the word.” Let us look more closely to see who are the “brothers” of Jesus. They are mentioned at the time Jesus visits Nazareth: James and Joset (Matthew says Joseph), Jude and Simon.

Among the women at the foot of the cross, Mark mentions a certain “mother of James the less and of Joset.” If it were Mary, mother of Jesus, it would be very strange that precisely at this hour she is spoken of as the mother of James and Joset rather than as mother of the condemned. It would also be strange that she is mentioned only after Mary of Magdala. John says that this Mary, wife of Cleophas, was the “sister,” which means probably a close relative, of Mary (Jn 19:25).

We must then admit that James and Joset are the sons of this “other Mary” (Mt 28:1) who was part of the group of women who came from Galilee with Jesus (Lk 23:55). They are at the most first cousins of Jesus, while Simon and Jude were more distant cousins. James and Joset would not be mentioned before Simon and Jude if they were more distant relatives of Jesus.

Also, in the first Christian community, when the Gospels were written, there was a very influential group composed of Jesus’ relatives and townmates of Nazareth. These were called “brothers of the Lord” and one of them, James, became bishop of the Jerusalem community. Little is said of this group other than that they were late in believing in Jesus even though he had lived with them for several years (Mk 3:21; Jn 7:3-5). In referring to them, the Gospel gives them the name the Christian community had given them, “brothers of the Lord” or “so and so, brother of Jesus.”

• 4.1 See commentary on Matthew 13:1 and Luke 8:9.

Mark will now give us a few parables relating to the Kingdom of God, for it was this proclamation of the beginning of a kingdom of God which was the great highlight of Jesus’ message. The Jews of the time occasionally spoke of a reign of God but what they envisaged was the liberty of his people in the land of Israel and the punishment of their oppressors. Jesus instead affirmed that God reigns in our midst: the Kingdom is already here, at our door.

The sower went out to sow. There was impatience to harvest the fruits of such terrible suffering and of so much blood shed under Roman occupation, and for Jesus it was still sowing time! We have here the great paradox of the Gospel, which often causes us to stum-

Is 6:9-10;
Jn 12:40;
Acts
28:26

Mt 13:
18:23;
Lk 8:
11-15;
Mk 8:17;
6:52;
7:18

fell along a path, and the birds came and ate it up. ⁵Some of the seed fell on rocky ground, where it had little soil; it sprang up immediately because it had no depth; ⁶but when the sun rose and burned it, it withered because it had no roots. ⁷Other seed fell among thornbushes, and the thorns grew and choked it, so it didn't produce any grain. ⁸But some seed fell on good soil, grew and increased and yielded grain; some seed produced thirty times as much, some sixty, and some one hundred times as much." ⁹And Jesus added, "Listen then, if you have ears."

that the more they see, they don't perceive; the more they hear, they don't understand; otherwise they would be converted and pardoned."

• ¹³ Jesus said to them, "Don't you understand this parable? How then will you understand any of the parables?"

¹⁴What the sower is sowing is the word. ¹⁵Those along the path, where the seed fell, are people who hear the word, but as soon as they hear it, Satan comes and takes away the word that was sown in them.

¹⁶Other people receive the word like rocky ground. As soon as they hear the word, they accept it with joy, ¹⁷but they have no roots, so it lasts only a little while. No sooner does trouble or persecution come because of the word, than they fall.

¹⁸Others receive the seed, as seed among thorns. After they hear the 7:16;

Rev 2:7

Mt 13:
10-15;
Lk 8: 9-10;
8:18

Dn 2:18;
Rom
16:25;
Eph 1:9

• ¹⁰When the crowd went away, some who were around him with the Twelve asked about the parables.

¹¹He answered them, "The mystery of the kingdom of God has been given to you. But for those outside, everything comes in parables, ¹²so ble: the Kingdom is there and with it we have all that God can give us in this world. However it remains that all we have is hope (Rom 9:24). After twenty centuries of Christianity, the Kingdom resembles a field that has just been sown. Some of the grain bears fruit and multiplies (8). Those who have eyes to see cannot fail to see how many things are born of the Gospel and continue to be born where it is received. The Kingdom is manifest in the life and example of the saints, known and unknown. The fact that Western culture may deny the Gospel does not prevent its being born of its dynamism. The Gospel is behind all that has been undertaken to give the world unity and peace.

All this is born of the Word, but it must mature and take shape in the heart of righteous persons.

• 10. The mystery of the kingdom of God has been given to you. Jesus reminds the disciples who are there with him, receiving from him the Word of God, that they owe it to God's grace. God himself has chosen them to receive and transmit the proclamation of the Kingdom. Instead of pausing to ponder over such generosity, we might take the phrase in its opposite sense and ask: Has God then wished that others neither see nor understand?

This verse 12 quotes an important text of Isaiah (6:9) which will be recalled in John 12:40 and Acts 28:26. To understand, we must remember that the prophet used a grammatical form proper to Hebrew and difficult to translate into English. More or less this is what God says to the prophet: "Harden their heart, speak so that listening they do not hear." It should be understood in this way: "You will only succeed in hardening their heart, you will speak, but in fact they will listen without wanting to understand." In no case does God wish anyone to be mistaken or remain in ignorance.

Everything comes in parables. Those who have not been called to meet Christ, or who once called have refused, live in a world "outside," where they are not without the light of God, but such comes to them in "parables," which means through many intermediaries and human limitations. The Gospel, then, brings light even to one who has not taken the step, but is adapted to its capacity, since such a person lives in a world of half-truths.

• 13. See commentary on Matthew 13:18. How then will you understand any of the parables? The apostles themselves are incaword, ¹⁹they are caught up in the worries of this life, false hopes of riches and other desires. All these come in and choke the word, so that finally it produces nothing.

²⁰And there are others who receive the word as good soil. They hear the word, take it to heart and produce: some thirty, some sixty, and some one hundred times as much.”

Parable of the lamp

(Mt 10:26; Lk 8:16)

• ²¹Jesus also said to them, “When the light comes, is it put under a tub or a bed? Surely it is put on a lampstand. ²²Whatever is hidden will be disclosed, and whatever is kept secret will be brought to light.

²³Listen then, if you have ears!”

²⁴And he also said to them, “Pay attention to what you hear. In the measure you give, so shall you receive, and still more will be given to you. ²⁵For to the one who produces something, more will be given, and from him who does not produce anything, even what he has will be taken away from him.”

The seed growing by itself

• ²⁶Jesus also said, “In the kingdom of God it is like this: a man scatters seed upon the soil. ²⁷Whether he is asleep or awake, be it day or night, the seed sprouts and grows, he knows not how. ²⁸The soil produces of itself: first the blade, then the ear, then the full grain in the ear. ²⁹And when it is ripe for harvesting, they take the sickle for the cutting: the time for the harvest has come.”

13:12;
Lk 6:38;
8:18

Jas 5:7

Jl 4:13;
Rev 14:15

Lk 8:
16-17;
Mt 5:13;
Lk 11:33;
Jn 12:35;
12:46

Mt 10:26;
Lk 12:2

Mt 7:2;

pable of understanding very simple things. Jesus puts us on guard against an over-simplistic vision: on one side the “disciples,” on the other those who are not! We have never fully understood the mystery of the Kingdom, still less are we mastering it: the frontier between “disciples” and “outsiders” passes in the midst of us all: Jesus will remind us in the parable of the weeds.

In fact, many Christian communities never grasp the real meaning of the words of Jesus. Some, because they always choose the same Gospel verses to justify their own ideas, and do not really want to listen. Others, because they look for practical advice that they be more generous, more patient etc., and they do not see that Jesus wants to show them a vision of the world and Church much wider than their own.

The parable of the sower leads the other parables. Here Jesus tells us the purpose of his mission: he has come to initiate a new age in the human story: the kingdom of God is now among us.

Sometimes it seems that the Gospel does not have much power to transform life. Maybe this is because we have trampled on many seeds that the wind brought us. It all depends on us.

Jesus speaks of thirty and one hundred fold. The word that is heeded transforms our life and strengthens our attempts to save the world. Who can tell what is possible for a free and liberated person?

• 21. Listen then, if you have ears! Jesus warns us, “You waste your time if you only listen to me yet do not allow what you hear to bear fruit. The measure that you measure out will be the measure you receive. That is to say, if you begin to act according to what you have learned, you will receive from God new strength and new knowledge. If you do nothing, even your religious beliefs will be of no value to you, not even when you present yourself before God. You read my Gospel, but now challenge yourselves before you follow any further.”

Whatever is hidden. The word works secretly within the heart but when we discover the transformation that is at work in our life, we readily proclaim Christ and make known to others the secret that has made us happy (Eph 2:4; Col 3:3; Phil 2:10).

• 26. In every period of time, people become impatient. When will the kingdom of justice be realized? Will violence and corruption soon come to an end? Jesus answers: invisible forces are already at work; the world matures and the Kingdom grows on.

SEEDS

How many seeds are cast to the wind? A new style, a new song, a new device, a radio program. Some seeds have grown and taken root, producing fruits that mobilize people. Let

The mustard seed

(Mt 13:31; Lk 13:18)

Mt 13:
31-32;
Lk 13: 18-19

Dn 4:9, 18

Mt 13:
34-35

•³⁰ Jesus also said, “What is the kingdom of God like? To what shall we compare it? ³¹It is like a mustard seed which, when sown, is the smallest of all the seeds scattered upon the soil. ³²But once sown, it grows up and becomes the largest of the plants in the garden, and even grows branches so big, that the birds of the air can take shelter in its shade.”

³³Jesus used many such stories, in order to proclaim the word to them in a way that they would be able to understand. ³⁴He would not teach them without parables; but privately to his disciples he explained everything.

Jesus calms the storm

(Mt 8:18; Lk 8:22)

Mt 8:18;
8:23-25;
Lk 8:
22-25

•³⁵ On that same day, when evening had come, Jesus said to them, “Let’s go across to the other side.” ³⁶So they left the crowd, and took him away in the boat he had been sitting in, and other boats set out with him. ³⁷Then a storm gathered and it began to blow a gale. The waves spilled over into the boat, so that it was soon filled with water. ³⁸Jesus was in the stern, sleeping on a cushion.

They woke him up, and said, “Master, don’t you care if we drown?” ³⁹And rising up, Jesus rebuked the wind, and ordered the sea, “Quiet now! Be still!” The wind dropped, and there was a great calm. ⁴⁰Then Jesus said to them, “Why are you so frightened? Do you still have no faith?”

⁴¹But they were terrified, and they said to one another, “Who can this be? Even the wind and the sea obey him!”

The Gerasene demoniac

(Mt 8:28; Lk 8:26)

5 •¹ They arrived at the other side of the lake, in the region of the Gerasenes. ²No sooner did Jesus

1:25;
Ps 89:10;
93:3

Mt 8:
28-34;
Lk 8:
26-39

us recognize the humble beginnings of the work of God: good willed people meeting together to solve a community problem; a gesture of kindness in a closed, unfriendly environment; a first attempt to smile at life after a great disappointment. The seed grows, and the person who has welcomed the word walks more confidently on the path where God leads.

• 30. See commentary on Matthew 13:31.

• 35. In the last two parables Jesus has shown the irresistible growth of the Kingdom, and to give a visible sign of it, he will pass to the other shore of the lake, that is to say, on the pagan side of Lake Galilee. The two miracles he is about to perform will show that his victory over the demon goes beyond the frontiers of Israel.

In Jewish mentality the sea is a daily reminder of primitive chaos, it is there the marine monsters move around, monsters which only God, for he is the all-powerful, can challenge: Leviathan and Rahab. In commanding the sea: Quiet now! Be still! Just as he does with the demons (Mk 1:25) Jesus affirms his divine power over the forces of evil.

Confronted with all the forms of evil that attack them, in the midst of tempests that arise, people, at times, wonder if God “does not sleep.” Jesus is there. He is not surprised by the disciples’ fear of the tempest, but of their lack of faith; only trust in the victory of Jesus, Son of God, over the forces of evil, will allow them to overcome this fear.

At the very instant when they discover this divine power in Jesus, the apostles are terrified, as was Moses at the burning bush (Ex 3:1), and Isaiah at the time of his vision in the Temple (Is 6:5), as all those to whom God shows himself in a special way: more than a friend, more than a master, Jesus revealed himself to them in the truth of his being. This fear in discovering God so close to them was greater than the fear they had felt during the tempest a few moments earlier.

• 5.1 Jesus overcame the raging sea and disembarking on the pagan shore of the lake he confronts the demon. The text says three times that the possessed lived among the leave the boat than he was met by a man with evil spirits, who had come from the tombs. ³He lived among the tombs, and no one could restrain him, even with a chain. ⁴He had often been bound with fetters and chains, but he would pull the chains apart and smash the fetters, and no one had the strength to control him. ⁵Night and day he stayed among the tombs on the hillsides, and was continually screaming, and beating himself with stones.

⁶When he saw Jesus from afar, he ran and fell at his feet, ⁷and cried with a loud voice, "What do you want with me, Jesus, son of the Most High God? For God's sake, I beg you, do not torment me!" ⁸He said this, because Jesus had commanded, "Come out of the man, evil spirit!" ⁹And when Jesus asked the evil spirit, "What is your name?" it replied, "Legion is my name, for we are many." ¹⁰And it kept begging Jesus, not to send them out of that region.

¹¹Now a great herd of pigs was feeding on the hillside, ¹²and the evil spirits begged him, "Send us to the pigs, and let us go into them." ¹³So

Jesus let them go. The evil spirits came out of the man and went into the pigs, and immediately the herd rushed down the cliff, and all were drowned in the lake. ¹⁴The herdsmen fled, and reported this in the town and in the countryside, so all the people came to see what had happened.

¹⁵They came to Jesus, and saw the man freed of the evil spirits sitting there, clothed and in his right mind, the same man who had been possessed by the legion. They were afraid. ¹⁶And when those who had seen it, told what had happened to the man and to the pigs, ¹⁷the people begged Jesus to leave their neighborhood.

¹⁸When Jesus was getting into the boat, the man, who had been possessed, begged to stay with him. ¹⁹Jesus would not let him, and said, "Go home to your people, and tell them how much the Lord has done for you, and how he has had mercy on you." ²⁰So he went throughout the country of Decapolis, telling everyone how much Jesus had done for him; and all the people were astonished.

tombs, and mentions also three times the chains with which people had in vain tried to bind him. For a Jew to repeat something three times is to use the superlative: it is to say that the possessed has partnership with death and with impurity to which it is attached (Num 19:11); but no one, absolutely no one is able to master him. Finally the possessed, like the servants of idols (1 K 18:28) slashed himself with stones till blood flowed. This adversary, however, bows low recognizing the superiority of Jesus, Son of God the Most High, who forces him to reveal his name. Here again the name is a symbol: legion which means that this man is possessed by a regiment of demons. Jesus will free this possessed man: the demon, author of every "impurity" is sent to his own kingdom. Pigs are in fact, in Jewish tradition, a type of impure animal, and the sea into which they cast themselves is the symbol of the empire of evil (see the calmed tempest).

The herd rushed down (v. 13) (see Mt 8:32 and Lk 8:33). The actual text of Mark says, "two thousand pigs rushed." This is an incredible number, for such large herds of pigs were never seen. In Hebrew, the word for herds is only distinguished from the word for 2,000 by an accent mark. Probably a mistake was made when Mark's Gospel was written in Greek.

Jesus would not let him (v. 19). It is he who chooses those who will be with him (Mk 3:13). That does not mean that the others, all those who met Jesus and recognized him as Son of God, have nothing to do: they will witness in the midst of those they know how he had compassion on them. In this way Jesus reminds us of the diversity of vocations.

Is 65:4;
Bar 3:11

1:24;
1:34

Mt 12:45;
Lk 8:2

Jesus raises the daughter of Jairus

(Mt 9:18; Lk 8:40)

Mt 9:
18-26;
Lk 8:
40-56

•²¹ Jesus then crossed to the other side of the lake, and while he was still on the shore, a large crowd gathered around him. ²² Jairus, an official of the synagogue, came up and, seeing Jesus, threw himself at his feet, ²³ and begged him earnestly, “My little daughter is at the point of death. Come and lay your hands on her, so that she may get well and live.”

²⁴ Jesus went with him, and many people followed, pressing from every side. ²⁵ Among the crowd was a woman, who had suffered from bleeding for twelve years. ²⁶ She had suffered a lot at the hands of many doctors, and had spent everything she had, but instead of getting better, she was worse. ²⁷ Because she had heard about Jesus, this woman came up behind him and touched his cloak, ²⁸ thinking, “If I just touch his clothing, I shall get well.” ²⁹ Her flow

3:10;
6:56;
Acts
5:15;
19:11

of blood dried up at once, and she felt in her body that she was healed of her complaint.

³⁰ But Jesus was conscious that healing power had gone out from him, so he turned around in the crowd, and asked, “Who touched my clothes?” ³¹ His disciples answered, “You see how the people are crowding around you. Why do you ask who touched you?” ³² But he kept looking around to see who had done it. ³³ Then the woman, aware of what had happened, came forward trembling and afraid. She knelt before him, and told him the whole truth.

Lk 6:19

•³⁴ Then Jesus said to her, “Daughter, your faith has saved you. Go in peace and be free of this illness.”

Mt 8:10;
Mk 10:52;
Lk 7:50

³⁵ While Jesus was still speaking, some people arrived from the official’s house to inform him, “Your daughter is dead. Why trouble the Master any further?” ³⁶ But Jesus ignored what they said, and told the of-

• 21. This woman was considered by the Jews as unclean because of her illness (Lev 15:19). She would also make “unclean” anyone who touched her. Because of this, she was prohibited by the Law from mingling with others but dared enter into the crowd, and touch Jesus’ cloak.

Faith drove her to break the Law of “purification,” and to risk scandal. This woman did not know who Jesus was, but had faith that God would cure her through him.

The religiosity of this woman is akin to what we call today “popular Catholicism.” As seen in this woman, popular Catholicism is ill-instructed, yet shows a strong religious sense and trust in God. It is superficial and naive, expecting great results from touching images and religious things—Christ’s garment in this case. Like Jesus, we should respect the religious expressions of popular Catholicism while at the same time trying, like him, to help people discover deeper dimensions of their faith.

• 34. FAITH AND MIRACLES

Who is responsible for a miracle? Does it come from the faith of the one who asks or from Christ who works the miracle? If the miracle depends solely on the faith of a person, then what is the difference between the faithful one who asks God for a cure and the one who goes to any faith healer? In the latter, it would be enough to convince oneself; the one actually doing the healing would matter little.

These people coming to Jesus were, of course, very far from recognizing him as the Son of God, but they were convinced that God would give them some blessing through this prophet and holy man. This faith prepared them to receive healing in both body and spirit. How can God heal those who refuse to hope?

What stands out on this page is the power of Christ: Jesus was conscious that healing power had gone out forth from him.

Your faith has saved you. This can also be translated: Your faith has made you well. In fact, both meanings fit (like in 10:52). For this woman risked all and finally saw how much God loved her.

ficial, “Do not fear, just believe.”
 37 And he allowed no one to follow him except Peter, James, and John, the brother of James.

• 38 When they arrived at the house, Jesus saw a great commotion, with people weeping and wailing loudly. 39 Jesus entered and said to them, “Why all this commotion and weeping? The child is not dead, but asleep.”

40 They laughed at him. So Jesus sent them outside, and went with the child’s father and mother and his companions into the room, where the child lay. 41 Taking her by the hand, he said to her, “Talitha kumi!” which means, “Little girl, get up!”

42 The girl got up at once and began to walk around. (She was twelve years old.) The parents were amazed, greatly amazed. 43 Jesus strictly ordered them not to let anyone know about it; and he told them to give her something to eat.

Is he not the carpenter?

(Mt 13:53; Lk 4:16)

6 • 1 Leaving that place, Jesus returned to his own country, and his disciples followed him. 2 When the Sabbath came, he began to teach in the synagogue, and most of those who heard him were astonished. But they said, “How did this come to him? What kind of wisdom has been given to him, that he also performs

Mt 27:52;
 1Cor
 11:30;
 15:6;
 1Thes
 4:13

Mt 13:
 53-58;
 Lk 4: 16-30

Jn 7:15

• 38. Here Jesus is confronted with the death of a girl who is called to live. Jairus was an official of the synagogue (v. 22), that is to say, one of those holding responsibility in the local Jewish community.

We too ask God to be healed, but we dare not ask for resurrection of the dead because we consider death as something absolutely irreversible. Jesus wishes to show us that no “law of destiny” or nature can be an obstacle to God’s love.

People wailing loudly. During Jesus’ time it was customary to hire professional mourners and musicians at a funeral. Today, at funerals, we also have long discourses and ceremonies to mask death, because it shakes and discomforts us and shatters our apparent peace. Jesus does not allow himself to be taken in by our illusions.

The child is not dead but asleep. Of course she is dead, and that is why the people mock him; but Jesus sends the noisy crowd outside, and takes with him the child’s father and mother. They are capable of understanding for they have come to him in a spirit of faith (v. 22).

Get up! (v. 41). From the first hour, the disciples of Jesus have used this vocabulary “sleep,” “rise” in speaking of death and resurrection. They believed that Jesus, Son of God, had, with his own resurrection, definitively defeated death (1 Cor 15). Polls reveal that today a great number of Christians no longer believe in the resurrection. One may ask if it is not the result of a religious education that has been based on moral considerations rather than on listening to the Word of God.

• 6.1 THE WISDOM OF JESUS

The brothers and sisters of Jesus are his relatives and acquaintances of Nazareth: see commentary on Mark 3:31.

How did this come to him? Does this mean that Jesus traveled to other countries in order to get magic powers? See the answer in the commentary on Matthew 2:23.

Because he always lived among them and never did anything extraordinary, they were astonished that, in such a short time, he became famous throughout Galilee. In fact they do not know him: most of the time people mistakenly believe they know their neighbors.

Prophets are despised only in their own country (v. 4). After living with him so long and treating him like anyone else, how could they suddenly show respect and have faith in him?

Who is he but the carpenter? (v. 3). The term the Gospel uses is craftsman. There is no further specification. Yet the first Christians of Palestine asserted that Jesus was a carpenter.

What kind of wisdom has been given to him? Many people say that because Christ was God he knew all things, but divine knowledge is nothing less than God himself. He knows all at once in an instant that never ends—this is eternity. On the other hand, humans think in ideas, and do not embrace all at the same time. That is why, from birth, Jesus had to learn Mt 13:55 such miracles? ³Who is he but the carpenter, the son of Mary, and the brother of James and Joses and Judas and Simon? His sisters, too, are they not here among us?" So they took offense at him.

Jn 4:44 ⁴And Jesus said to them, "Prophets are despised only in their own country, among their relatives, and in their own family." ⁵And he could work no miracles there, but only healed a few sick people, by laying his hands on them. ⁶Jesus himself was astounded at their unbelief.

Jesus sends out the Twelve

(Mt 10:1; Lk 9:1; 10:1)

Mt 10:1; 10:9-14; Lk 9:1-6; 10:1...; 6:12; Mt 5:1; Mk 3:14

• Jesus then went around the villages, teaching. ⁷He called the Twelve to him, and began to send them out two by two, giving them authority over evil spirits. ⁸And he ordered them to take nothing for the journey, except a staff: no food, no bag, no money in their belts. ⁹They were to wear sandals and were not to take an extra tunic.

¹⁰And he added, "In whatever house you are welcomed, stay there until you leave the place. ¹¹If any place doesn't receive you, and the people refuse to listen to you, leave after shaking the dust off your feet. It will be a testimony against them."

¹²So they set out to proclaim that this was the time to repent. ¹³They drove out many demons and healed many sick people by anointing them.

John the Baptist beheaded

(Mt 14:1; Lk 9:7)

• ¹⁴King Herod also heard about Jesus, because his name had become well-known. Some people said, "John the Baptist has been raised from the dead, and that is why miraculous powers are at work in him." ¹⁵Others thought, "He is Elijah," and others, "He is a prophet like the prophets of times past." ¹⁶When

7:24

Mt 14:
3-12;
Lk 9:7; 3:19-20

from experience and discover. Yet he had a clear awareness that he was the Son, although at the beginning he did not have the words to think or express this.

Jesus received his human learning from Mary, Joseph, and his neighbors in Nazareth. He acquired his wisdom from the Bible and the culture of his people. Yet the Father gave him his Spirit to judge as God does and to recognize God in all things. For him (as for us now) what was important was not accumulating data and experiences but to be able to appreciate all that occurred. Jesus, inspired by the Spirit, felt all the realities of life in a different way: this was Wisdom.

• 6. THE MISSION

See commentary on Matthew 10:5; Luke 10:1; Matthew 28:16. Jesus begins a third stage of his ministry by organizing a mission throughout the province. Before, the apostles accompanied Jesus but now he sends them ahead of him.

Jesus is an educator. He not only teaches his followers, he has them share in his mission. His apostles must also proclaim their faith and perform healings as the Master does. By doing this, they put into practice what they have discovered of the kingdom of God. The disciples should be first to believe what they themselves proclaim: God makes himself present. Because of this, they must live day by day, trusting in the Father's Providence, not frightened but always conscious of God's mission and power.

Oil was used at the time as a remedy, but Jesus gives it a new meaning: the healings bring more than just well being, they are also the sign of spiritual healing, the reconciliation of people with God.

Jesus' concern to form communities of believers is already present. He sends his disciples out two by two so that the message will not be from one person only, but the expression of a group united in one mission. Jesus tells them to stay under one roof with one family so that this may be a center radiating faith.

• 14. King Herod. This refers to Herod Antipas, son of the other Herod who reigned when Jesus was born.

King Herod respected John, but he was prisoner of his milieu and of his vices. As king of Galilee, his misconduct constituted a public counter-witness.

Herod was told of this, he thought, “I had John beheaded, yet he has risen from the dead!”

1:7; Lk 3:15
17 For this is what had happened: Herod had ordered John to be arrested, and had had him bound and put in prison because of Herodias, the wife of his brother Philip. Herod had married her, ¹⁸ and John had told him, “It is not right for you to live with your brother’s wife.” ¹⁹ So Herodias held a grudge against John; and wanted to kill him, but she could not, ²⁰ because Herod respected John. He knew John to be an upright and holy man, and kept him safe. And he liked listening to him, although he became very disturbed, whenever he heard him.

21 Herodias had her chance on Herod’s birthday, when he gave a dinner for all the senior government officials, military chiefs, and the leaders of Galilee. ²² On that occasion the daughter of Herodias came in and danced; and she delighted Herod and his guests. The king said to the girl, “Ask me for anything you want and I will give it to you.” ²³ And he went so far as to say with many oaths, “I will give you anything you ask, even half my kingdom.” ²⁴ She went out and said to her mother, “What shall I ask for?” The mother replied, “The head of John the Baptist.” ²⁵ The girl hurried to the king and made her request, “I want you to give me the head of John the Baptist, here and now, on a dish.”

²⁶ The king was very displeased, but he would not refuse in front of his guests because of his oaths. ²⁷ So he sent one of the bodyguards with orders to bring John’s head. He went and beheaded John in prison; ²⁸ then he brought the head on a dish and gave it to the girl. And the girl gave it to her mother. ²⁹ When John’s disciples heard of this, they came and took his body and buried it.

Jesus, shepherd and prophet

• ³⁰ The apostles returned and reported to Jesus all they had done and taught. ³¹ Then he said to them, “Go off by yourselves to a remote place and have some rest.” For there were so many people coming and going that the apostles had no time even to eat. ³² And they went away in the boat to a secluded area by themselves.

Mt 14:13-14;
Lk 9:10-11
2:2;
3:20

All through the Bible we see prophets stressing the particular responsibility of those who wield power. If they have to lead the people, they must be, by the rectitude of their life, an example; John the Baptist could not speak of justice without reproaching Herod for his infidelity.

People said that John the Baptist has been raised from the dead. They considered John a martyr and believed he would rise from the dead to punish Herod. Some associated Jesus with John—Jesus performed miracles that John had not done. Others, less informed, thought Jesus was an apparition of John.

• 30. The apostles are exhausted. At the end of this journey they need to rest and take a deeper look at their experiences. Jesus teaches them and helps them reflect upon what they had seen and done.

Many people coming and going. After the disciples had gone through the villages of Galilee many people wanted to know who had sent them, and the crowd approached Jesus.

He had compassion on them (v. 34). The Old Testament had shown the compassion of God as a Father, but now Jesus reveals this compassion in a different way. No one could fully understand the mercy of God until the Son came to share everything with us, making himself poor among the poor, able to feel with them instead of giving them his words and deeds of mercy from above.

This compassion of Jesus helps us understand that Christian commitment to the poor is not complete as long as the Church is not itself deeply rooted in the lower class of society.

They were like sheep without a shepherd (Num 27:17; Is 40:11; Ezk 34; Zec 11:4-17; 12:8). This refers to people who had not yet ³³But people saw them leaving, and many could guess where they were going. So, from all the towns, they hurried there on foot, arriving ahead of them.

³⁴As Jesus went ashore, he saw a large crowd, and he had compassion on them for they were like sheep without a shepherd. And he began a long teaching session with them.

First miracle of the loaves

(Mt 14:13; Lk 9:10; Jn 6:1)

• ³⁵It was now getting late, so his disciples came to him and said, "This is a lonely place and it is now late. ³⁶You should send the people away, and let them go to the farms and villages around here, to buy themselves something to eat."

³⁷Jesus replied, "You yourselves give them something to eat." They answered, "If we are to feed them, we need two hundred silver coins to go and buy enough bread." ³⁸But Jesus said, "You have some loaves; how many? Go and see." The disciples found out and said, "There are five loaves and two fish."

³⁹Then he told them to have the people sit down together in groups on the green grass. ⁴⁰This they did in groups of hundreds and fifties. ⁴¹And Jesus took the five loaves and the two fish and, raising his eyes to heaven, he pronounced a blessing, broke the loaves, and handed them to his disciples to distribute to the people. He also divided the two fish among them.

⁴²They all ate and everyone had enough. ⁴³The disciples gathered up what was left, and filled twelve baskets with broken pieces of bread and fish. ⁴⁴Five thousand men had eaten there.

Mt 14:
15:21;
Lk 9:
12-17;
Jn 6:1-13;
Mk 8:1-10

2K 4:
42: 16;
Dt 8:3;
Ps 78:24;
Wis
16:20;

found true community, and Jesus had pity on them. The prophet Ezekiel reproached the leaders of Israel for being bad pastors, but today he might reproach us for failing to be pastors and prophets in the midst of our world. Why should we so often wait for priests, religious or a few handpicked lay people to take the initiative of assembling new communities? Why are we so timid in proposing to "those who are outside" the light of faith that we have gratuitously received and allow them to discover in the group or community this richness?

And he began a long teaching session with them. What did he tell them? All that makes up the Gospel. Penetrating everyone's conscience with a prophetic gaze, Jesus showed each one where the real problem lay. Speaking like the prophets, Jesus never enclosed and isolated the people within their personal problems: their personal progress had to be attained together with the renewal of their environment.

Jesus saw that they were burdened with difficulties but would lift them up by giving them "signs of hope." In any situation there is something that we can do immediately to uplift ourselves; and even before any attempt of ours, God already gives us signs that he does not abandon us and that we must trust totally in him.

• 35. The Bible says that from the mouth of God comes bread, and the Word that we need (Dt 8:3). By the act of giving bread, Jesus demonstrates that his words are God's words. God gives bread to his people (Ex 16; Ps 72:16; Ps 81:17; Ps 132:15; 147:14).

What comes from the mouth of God (Dt 8:3; Wis 16:26; Mt 4:4). Seen in the light of the Old Testament, this narration identifies Jesus as the Shepherd foretold by the prophets.

They sat in fresh pastures (Ps 23), and they were all satisfied (Ps 78:29). The crowd seated for a meal is the image of the Reign when Jesus will unite all of humanity in the fraternal banquet of God (Lk 14:15).

Raising his eyes to heaven (v. 41). By using this gesture, rather than a prayer that saints or prophets might have said on this occasion, Jesus expresses his personal relationship with the Father.

Jesus is the bread needed by humanity (Jn 6). God has set on this earth all that humanity needs for food and development, but if we do not know how to listen to the Word, we will not know how to solve the world's most urgent problem, the distribution of the riches of the earth. Faith in God's promises is the only force with which to fight against egoism and unequal

Jesus walks on the water

(Mt 14:22; Jn 6:16)

Mt 14:
22-23;
Jn 6:
15-21

• ⁴⁵Immediately, Jesus obliged his disciples to get into the boat and go ahead of him to the other side, towards Bethsaida, while he himself sent the crowd away. ⁴⁶And having sent the people off, he went by himself to the hillside to pray.

1:35

⁴⁷When evening came, the boat was far out on the lake, while he was alone on the land. ⁴⁸Jesus saw his disciples straining at the oars, for the wind was against them; and before daybreak he came to them, walking on the lake, and he was going to pass them by.

Job 9:8;
Ps 77:20;
Sir 24:5

⁴⁹When they saw him walking on the lake, they thought it was a ghost and cried out; ⁵⁰for they all saw him and were terrified. But at once he called to them, "Courage! It is I; don't be afraid!" ⁵¹Then Jesus got into the boat with them, and the wind died down. They were completely astonished, ⁵²for they had not really grasped the fact of the loaves; their minds were dull.

4:41;
Lk 5:9

4:13;
7:18

Mt 14:
34-36;
Mk 3:7;
Mt 4:
23-24

⁵³Having crossed the lake, they came ashore at Gennesaret, where they tied up the boat. ⁵⁴As soon as they landed, people recognized Jesus, ⁵⁵and ran to spread the news throughout the countryside. Wherever he was, they brought to him the sick lying on their mats; ⁵⁶and wherever he went, to villages, towns or farms, they laid the sick in the marketplace, and begged him to let them touch just the fringe of his cloak. And all who touched him were cured.

Mt 9:35

Mt 12:15;
Lk 6:17;
Mk 1:32;
Num
15:38

True cleanness

(Mt 15:10; Lk 6:39)

7 • ¹One day the Pharisees gathered around Jesus, and with them were some teachers of the Law who had just come from Jerusalem.

Mt 15:
1-9

²They noticed that some of his disciples were eating their meal with unclean hands, that is, without washing them. ³Now the Pharisees, and in fact all the Jews, never eat without washing their hands, for they follow the tradition received from their ancestors. ⁴Nor do they eat anything, when they come from the market, without first washing themselves. And there are many other traditions privileges, and it will eventually obtain food, peace, and freedom for all.

Lk 11:38

Because of this, Jesus had compassion for this crowd whose leaders had little concern for them. Without bothering about food, this crowd sat listening to him while he conveyed to them the word of God that liberates people from blindness and emptiness. Then, being the Shepherd and the True Bread of Life, he gave them food and distributed it.

• 45. Jesus obliged them to get into the boat. Why? John's Gospel explains this (Jn 6:15). Because the people, enthused by the miracle, wanted to make him a king and liberator sent by God. Even the apostles were eager for this to happen.

• 7.1 THE TRADITION AND TRADITIONS

No group, not even the Church, can sustain itself without traditions and customs. Yet even when they are good traditions, they are still made by humans. For example, the way the mass is celebrated, celebrations, novenas, etc. All that past popes, bishops, and Christian communities have done can be changed by another pope, bishop or christian community, and because these can be changed, we understand that they are not essential.

What does not change is God's teaching. Where can it be found? In the Bible and in Jesus' teachings. Yet there is a way of understanding Jesus as the apostles did. This is called the Tradition of the Apostles, and the Church, founded by the apostles, guards this tradition, that is, their spirit. Let us not confuse the traditions of Catholics with the Tradition of the Church.

We often make little effort to enter into the spirit and Tradition of the Church, however, clinging instead to antiquated and mediocre traditions. Why are so many Christians today they observe; for example, the ritual washing of cups, pots and plates.

⁵So the Pharisees and the teachers of the Law asked him, “Why do your disciples not follow the tradition of the elders, but eat with unclean hands?”

Is 29:13

⁶Jesus answered, “You shallow people! How well Isaiah prophesied of you when he wrote: This people honors me with their lips, but their heart is far from me. ⁷*The worship they offer me is worthless, for what they teach are only human rules.* ⁸You even put aside the commandment of God to hold fast to human tradition.”

20:12;
21:17;
Lev 20:9

⁹And Jesus commented, “You have a fine way of disregarding the commandments of God in order to enforce your own traditions! ¹⁰For example, Moses said: Do your duty to your father and your mother, and: Whoever curses his father or his mother is to be put to death. ¹¹But according to you, someone could say to his father or mother, ‘I already declared Corban (which means “offered to God”) what you could have expected from me.’ ¹²In this case, you no longer require him to do anything for his father or mother, ¹³and so you nullify the word of God through the tradition you have handed on. And you do many other things like that.”

• ¹⁴Jesus then called the people to him again and said to them, “Listen to me, all of you, and try to understand. ¹⁵Nothing that enters a person from the outside can make that person unclean. It is what comes from within that makes a person unclean. ¹⁶Let everyone who has ears listen.”

Mt 15:
10-20

¹⁷When Jesus got home and was away from the crowd, his disciples asked him about this saying, ¹⁸and he replied, “So even you are dull? Do you not see that whatever comes from outside cannot make a person unclean, ¹⁹since it enters not the heart but the stomach, and is finally passed out?”

Thus Jesus declared that all foods are clean.

²⁰And he went on, “What comes out of a person is what defiles him, ²¹for evil designs come out of the heart: theft, murder, ²²adultery, jealousy, greed, maliciousness, deceit, indecency, slander, pride and folly.

Acts 10:
11-15;
Gal 2:12;
Col 2:21;
Rom
14:14

scandalized when the Church frees itself from these antiquated rites? Jesus gives us the reason: they cling to these rites because they are incapable of believing. External religion replaces the authentic faith they do not possess. They hang onto these things because these are all they have, and if they lose that, God no longer has any meaning for them.

• 14. CLEAN AND UNCLEAN

An important practice of Judaism was to keep oneself clean: one could not participate in worship without being in a state of ritual purity. This word “purity” did not have the same meaning we give it today. The clean person was one who was not contaminated even inadvertently by things prohibited by Law. For example, pork and rabbit were considered unclean; they could not be eaten. A menstruating woman or a person with hemorrhoids were considered unclean for a certain number of days: no one could even touch them. A leper was considered unclean until cured. If a bug fell in oil, the oil was considered unclean, and would have to be thrown away.

If contaminated even by no fault of his own, the person had to purify himself, usually with water, sometimes paying for sacrifices.

At one time, these laws were useful in encouraging a hygienic life-style. They also protected the faith of the Jews who lived among people who did not know God. How could they guard their faith in the one God if they were to live with other nations, befriend them, and even imitate their ways? With so many religious practices to observe, the Jews had to live apart from those who did not share their faith and life-style.

Jesus removes off from these rites their sacred value: nothing is unclean in all God’s creation; touching the sick, a corpse or a blood-stained object does not offend God. God is not ²³All these evil things come from within and make a person unclean.”

The faith of the Syrophenician

(Mt 15:21)

• ²⁴When Jesus left that place, he went to the border of the Tyrian country. There he entered a house, and did not want anyone to know he was there, but he could not remain hidden. ²⁵A woman, whose small daughter had an evil spirit, heard of him, and came and fell at his feet. ²⁶Now this woman was a pagan, a Syrophenician by birth, and she begged him to drive the demon out of her daughter.

Mt 15:
21-28;
1K 17:
8-24

²⁷Jesus told her, “Let the children be fed first, for it is not right to take the children’s bread and throw it to puppies.” ²⁸But she replied, “Sir, even the puppies under the table eat the crumbs from the children’s bread.” ²⁹Then Jesus said to her, “You may go your way; because of such a response, the demon has gone out of your daughter.” ³⁰And when the woman went home, she found her child lying in bed, and the demon gone.

Healing of a deaf and dumb man

• ³¹Again Jesus set out: from the country of Tyre he passed through Sidon and, skirting the sea of Galilee,

Mt 15:
29-31;
Mk 8:
22-26

bothered if we eat this or that. Sin is always something that comes from the heart and not something we do unintentionally.

It is true that the Bible teaches these concepts of purity and impurity, but these laws were written many centuries ago and not everything the Bible says is valid for all times. Through the teachings of the Bible God educated his nation, but the laws he gave them from the beginning, when they were barbaric and uneducated, are no longer necessary for a community which has a solid religious foundation.

It is quite legitimate for Christians to adopt a vegetarian way of life, that Christian communities consider abstinence from alcohol and tobacco as a witness to help addicts. But let us not say that this is part of our faith nor let us judge those who do not agree with us. That would otherwise undermine the transcendence of Christian salvation that goes beyond any question of “eating and drinking” (Rom 14:17).

• 24. THE PAGANS

The authorities come into conflict with Jesus. He must depart and wander along the border of Galilee, where he is less watched and can easily flee. This incident occurs near Tyre, a province occupied by the Syrians and Phoenicians.

The Jews were never able to understand their election by God as his chosen people without looking down on other nations. Being bearers of the true faith obliged them to avoid contamination with other religions, but actually this increased their inability to understand all that was foreign.

For them the world was divided in two: there were “the people” (Jewish) and “the nations”: all the others. Apparently God ignored these others, unless it was to let them feel the weight of his justice. Their minds were totally closed to the question we ask ourselves today: how does God deal with and save all those who have not heard his word? So it was that the Phoenicians (v. 26), (also called Greeks because they spoke Greek rather than Hebrew) lived near but were very distant from the Jews.

Although Jesus came to save all, his Father desired that he not go beyond his own country. Nevertheless, on certain occasions he encountered pagans, and more than once admired their simplicity and faith.

The Gospel has not kept all that Jesus said and did, but we see nothing there that could be a call to “change one’s religion” nor a threat for those who take a road other than that of Christianity. Jesus leaves them on the path along which the Father leads them and invites them to thank the one and only God and shows them how near the Father is to them through his Son.

The Jews usually looked down on pagans with marked contempt: they were the sons, the pagans were the dogs. Jesus answered the afflicted woman repeating this well-known scornful saying. He said this to test the woman’s faith: would she insist when it appeared that even God would reject her?

• 31. They asked Jesus to lay hands upon him (v. 32). This was a way of invoking divine power but Jesus did not have to ask. By he came to the territory of Decapolis.³² There a deaf man, who also had difficulty in speaking, was brought to him. They asked Jesus to lay his hand upon him.

³³ Jesus took him apart from the crowd, put his fingers into the man's ears, and touched his tongue with spittle.³⁴ Then, looking up to heaven, he groaned and said to him, "Eph-phata!" that is, "Be opened!"

³⁵ And immediately his ears were opened, his tongue was loosened, and he began to speak clearly.

³⁶ Jesus ordered them not to tell anyone about it, but the more he insisted, the more they proclaimed it.

Is 35:5

³⁷ The people were completely astonished and said, "He has done all things well; he makes the deaf hear and the dumb speak."

Second miracle of the loaves

(Mt 15:32)

Mt 15:
32-39;
Lk 9:
10-17;
Mk 6:
30-44

8¹ Soon afterwards Jesus was in the midst of another large crowd, that obviously had nothing to eat. So he called his disciples and said to them,² "I feel sorry for these people, because they have been with me for three days and now have nothing to eat.³ If I send them to their homes hungry, they will faint on the way; some of them have come a long way."

⁴ His disciples replied, "Where, in a deserted place like this, could we get enough bread to feed these people?"⁵ He asked them, "How many loaves have you?" And they answered, "Seven."

⁶ Then he ordered the crowd to sit down on the ground. Taking the seven loaves and giving thanks, he broke them, and handed them to his disciples to distribute. And they distributed them among the people.⁷ They also had some small fish, so Jesus said a blessing, and asked that these be shared as well.

⁸ The people ate and were satisfied. The broken pieces were collected, seven wicker baskets full of leftovers.⁹ Now those who had eaten were about four thousand in number. Jesus sent them away,¹⁰ and immediately got into the boat with his dis-his gesture he showed that he had within himself, within his human person, all the health and welfare that we need, and he communicated this to the sick one.

Jesus groaned (see 8:12). Why? Because the man before him is an impressive symbol of those who have eyes and ears but neither see nor hear. The people bring him the deaf-mute, and ask him to heal him, but they themselves remain deaf.

Jesus ordered them not to tell anyone (v. 36). How far Jesus is from the organizers of a "Miracle Crusade"! An unexpected miracle may help us discover the loving presence of God, but as soon as we begin to wait for them, we turn away from the Gospel. The Devil knows this and so tempted Jesus in the desert (Mt 4:6): See the warnings of Deuteronomy to people anxious to see miracles (Dt 13). Faith leans on the word of God, not on miracles (Jn 4:48).

• 8.1 This second account of the multiplication of loaves is not a repetition of the first account. It is obvious that oral transmission of these two events lead to shape them according to the same pattern, but they have different meaning.

The first time, between Tiberias and Capernaum (that is, right at the center of Jesus' work in Galilee) the people, more numerous and more urgent, approach Jesus to make him their liberator (Jn 6). Jesus refuses, but later that afternoon he multiplies the loaves—a clear sign that he is the Messiah foretold by the prophets. The next day Jesus, in his turn, demands that they take him for what he is, and this produces the rejection (Jn 6:60).

Later Jesus journeys to the boundaries of Galilee, where much of the population are pagan. They also want to hear Jesus. There, on the other side of the shore, the eastern part, Jesus offers them bread as a farewell meal after they followed him for two days through the desert land.

The two accounts of the multiplication of loaves differ in several points like the number of loaves and the number of participants. The ciples, and went to the region of Dalmanutha.

Why do they demand a sign?

(Mt 16:1; Lk 12:54)

Mt 16: 1-4;
Lk 12:54

•¹¹The Pharisees came and started to argue with Jesus. Hoping to embarrass him, they asked for some heavenly sign. ¹²Then his spirit was moved. He gave a deep sigh and said, “Why do the people of this present time ask for a sign? Truly, I say to you, no sign shall be given to this people.” ¹³Then he left them, got into the boat again and went to the other side of the lake.

Mt 12:
38-40;
Jn 6:30;

Is 7:11;
Num
14:11

•¹⁴The disciples had forgotten to bring more bread, and had only one loaf with them in the boat. ¹⁵Then Jesus warned them, “Keep your

Mt 16:
5-12;
Lk 12:1

1Cor 5:6

baskets for example, mentioned in Mark 6:43 refer to the stiff osier basket of the Jews, and in 8:8 to the wicker basket or the Greek’s folding bag.

The number 12 records the Twelve tribes of Israel and the twelve apostles, while the number 7 records the “seven pagan nations” which occupied Canaan and the seven deacons of the early Church.

These differences underline the will of Mark to take into account the real situation of the Church at the time he wrote: having been born in Jewish milieu, it was developing among Greek nations. This is why, for the first multiplication the evangelists say, “Jesus pronounced a blessing”, and in the second, “Jesus gave thanks”. Because the first was the word used for Eucharist among Jewish Christian communities, and the latter was used in Greek speaking churches.

Some feel that one same event has been recorded with those differences in Jewish and Greek speaking communities before the gospels present them as two different events. But the sequence that contains both of them is very ancient (see the commentary of Mt 14:13) and does not come from later times in which the contract with the original events would have been lost. This duality is stressed in Matthew 16:5 and still more in Mark 8:9.

The miracle of the multiplication of the loaves (or the two multiplications of loaves) holds an important place in the synoptic gospels because it points out Jesus as the Messiah: see commentary on Matthew 15:29; Luke 9:12; John 6.

- 11. See commentary on Matthew 16:1.

THE PHARISEES

The Pharisees do not see the fruits of Jesus’ teaching. They do not see the thousands of anonymous disciples who are rediscovering hope and who are gradually transformed. They do not see that God had visited the poor.

Jesus is going to clash more and more with this powerful group, the most respected in Jewish society and a question comes to our mind: if Jesus came today, wouldn’t he shock many people who think they are the pillars of the Church?

In fact, the reproach that Jesus addresses to the Pharisees is often found in those who turn to respected religious institutions. First, we start with a desire for moral perfection that is unconsciously linked to our need to be acknowledged by society. We are aware of our own responsibility. This is a good thing and it was at the heart of Pharisaism. This may be a starting point. But as time goes by, we fail to realize that we have become more attached to our own virtues than to God: love would have steeped us in humility.

Fully convinced of their own merits (their “righteousness,” Lk 18:9), the Pharisees seek a type of sanctity based on rules, alms and services and in return for their merits, they expect God to treat them in a special way. We are a long way from grace and from the Gospel since we can only encounter God if we accept our weaknesses and God’s forgiveness. Then, we truly and humbly love God and we feel we are the brothers and sisters of the poorest and of sinners.

Our belonging to a real or alleged elite brings us to cultivate our own image, therefore appearances, as we are more removed from the world of “sinners” and ordinary people (as if by chance, Pharisee means separated). This more “select” milieu offers a chance to every ambition and from then on, as Jesus says, hypocrisy rules.

- 14. Jesus tells his apostles to beware of the Pharisee’s spirit (of becoming like the Pharisees) but they do not listen, being more concerned about the food.

Jesus says: Beware of the yeast of the Pharisees, meaning their teaching (Mt 16:12). The Pharisees saw Jesus as a popular worker-eyes open, and beware of the yeast of the Pharisees and the yeast of Herod.”¹⁶ And they said to one another, “He saw that we have no bread.”

4:13 ¹⁷Aware of this, Jesus asked them, “Why are you talking about the loaves you are short of? Do you not see or understand? Are your minds closed?”¹⁸ Have you eyes that don’t see and ears that don’t hear? Jer 5:21; Ezk 12:2
6:35-44
8:1-9
And do you not remember¹⁹ when I broke the five loaves among five thousand? How many baskets full of leftovers did you collect?” They answered, “Twelve.”²⁰ “And having distributed seven loaves to the four thousand, how many wicker baskets of leftovers did you collect?” They answered, “Seven.”²¹ Then Jesus said to them, “Do you still not understand?”

Cure of the blind man at Bethsaida

•²² When they came to Bethsaida, Jesus was asked to touch a blind man who was brought to him.²³ He took the blind man by the hand and led him outside the village. When he had put spittle on his eyes and laid his hands upon him, he asked, “Can you see anything?”²⁴ The man, who was beginning to see, replied, “I see people! They look like trees, but they move around.”²⁵ Then Jesus laid his hands on his eyes again and the man could see perfectly. His sight was restored and he could see everything clearly.

²⁶ Then Jesus sent him home, saying, “Do not return to the village.”

Peter’s profession of faith

(Mt 16:13; Lk 9:18; Jn 6:69)

•²⁷ Jesus set out with his disciples for the villages around Caesarea Philippi; and on the way he asked them, “Who do people say I am?”²⁸ And they told him, “Some say you are John the Baptist; others say you are Elijah or one of the prophets.”

Mt 16:
13-20;
Lk 9:
18-21;
Jn 6:
68-69

wonder who threatened their authority as a religious and popular leaders of the people. Since the disciples had forgotten to bring more bread, they missed Jesus’ point about the leaven of the Pharisees. Jesus fears that his disciples, because of being common people, would let themselves be impressed by the knowledge and fame of the Pharisees, and he warns them that these people build religion on the wrong basis.

Jesus agreed with the Pharisees on the general way of understanding the Bible, but not the spirit of many among them. As “master” he chose a way opposed to theirs. Instead of a teaching that comes from above he became part of a natural group of quite simple people and formed them through action. He made them reflect on what they saw, on what they did, and above all on what God was doing among them as they worked with him.

• 22. When a person, blind from birth, regains his sight, it takes time for him to gradually focus on objects and to understand what his new eyes see. Jesus again laid his hands on this blind man’s eyes.

The same is true in the spiritual realm. Jesus does not let us see everything at once, but conversion is realized bit by bit.

Do not return to the village. If so, all the people would go looking for Jesus to see him and touch him and clamor for a miracle. Jesus came instead for an authentic encounter with people.

• 27. CHRIST—THE SON OF MAN

Here the Gospel already foretells the tragic end. For the first time, the apostles take account of who their Master is.

You are the Messiah. Christ is a Greek word that means the Messiah in Hebrew. They both mean: the anointed or consecrated one. This term designated the long-awaited Savior. The apostles discover that Jesus is the Messiah, the Liberator, but he teaches them that the Son of Man (the Human One) has to suffer many things.

Why does Jesus call himself the Son of Man? For two reasons: first, because one page in the Bible speaks of the Son of Man who gloriously comes from God to judge all people and to rule all the nations (Dn 7:13). Second, because Jesus is the perfect Human and bears the destiny of humanity.

Then Jesus asked them, ²⁹“But you, who do you say I am?” Peter answered, “You are the Messiah.”

³⁰And he ordered them not to tell anyone about him.

³¹Jesus then began to teach them that the Son of Man had to suffer many things and be rejected by the elders, the chief priests and the teachers of the Law. He would be killed, and after three days rise again.

³²Jesus said all this quite openly, so that Peter took him aside and began to protest strongly. ³³But Jesus turning around, and looking at his disciples, rebuked Peter, saying, “Get behind me, Satan! You are thinking not as God does, but as people do.”

Take up your cross

(Mt 16:24; Lk 9:23)

Mt 16: 24-28; Lk 9: 23-27; Lk 14:26

• ³⁴Then Jesus called the people and his disciples, and said, “If you want to follow me, deny yourself, take up your cross and follow me.

³⁵For if you choose to save your life, you will lose it; and if you lose your life for my sake and for the sake of the Gospel, you will save it.

³⁶What good is it to gain the whole world, while destroying your soul?

³⁷There is nothing more precious than your soul. ³⁸I tell you: If anyone is ashamed of me and of my words among this adulterous and sinful people, the Son of Man will also be ashamed of him when he comes in the Glory of his Father with the holy angels.”

Lk 15: 12-14

3:28; Lk 12:1; 12:51; 21:14; Ps 49:8; Mt 10:33; 2Tim 2:12

The transfiguration of Jesus

(Mt 17:1; Lk 9:28)

9 • ¹And he went on to say, “Truly I tell you, there are some here who will not die before they see the kingdom of God coming with power.”

Mt 17: 1-9; Lk 9: 28-36; Mk 13:30; Rom 1:4

Jesus had to suffer (v. 31), because this is the fate of sinners. He had to suffer and be rejected by the authorities, because this is the destiny of those who proclaim the truth. He had to freely go to his death because self-sacrifice is the only means for the salvation of the world.

- 34. It is necessary to lose oneself:
 - to lose oneself like Abraham, who in his old age went to strange lands;
 - to lose oneself like Moses, who agreed to be the leader of an irresponsible people;
 - to lose oneself like Mary, who entered a path wherein no one could understand or help her;
 - to rid oneself of this temporary existence so as to be reborn of God, like Ignatius the martyr. Condemned to be eaten by lions, he said, “I am the wheat of God; may I be ground by the teeth of wild animals to be converted into the pure bread of Christ. My passions are crucified in me; there is no carnal fire that can burn me; a fountain has sprouted in me that murmurs and speaks from within: come to the Father.”

Take up your cross (v. 34). Jesus tells us that to follow him is to follow the same path that took him to the cross. To reach maturity it is necessary to renounce our life; in other words, we must risk ourselves for something noble instead of being concerned about our own future; we must find a life-style that will help us excel in the way of love; and we must accept that our life may be a failure according to others’ way of thinking (Lk 17:33; Jn 12:23-25).

Taking up our cross by accepting freely the sacrifices that the Father sends each day, we receive from that moment something even more marvelous than what was sacrificed: inner freedom and more profound happiness (Mk 10:30).

Think of what Jesus says: from me, for me, and not: from God, for God. For God has come in the person of Jesus to knock on our door and to propose to us very specific commitments.

If anyone is ashamed of me and of my words (v. 38). The believer who follows the words of Christ without fear of what may be asked of her is attacked without mercy by many who call themselves Christians. For we live in the midst of an adulterous people, in other words, people who without verbally denying God, in fact, serve other gods (Mt 6:24; Jn 8:42).

• 9.1 The transfiguration of Jesus is the midpoint of Mark’s Gospel.

²Six days later, Jesus took with him Peter and James and John, and led them up a high mountain. There his appearance was changed before their eyes. ³Even his clothes shone, becoming as white as no bleach of this world could make them. ⁴Elijah and Moses appeared to them; the two were talking with Jesus.

⁵Then Peter spoke and said to Jesus, "Master, it is good that we are here; let us make three tents, one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah." ⁶For he did not know what to say: they were overcome with awe. ⁷But a cloud formed, covering them in a shadow, and from the cloud came a voice, "This is my Son, the Beloved; listen to him." ⁸And suddenly, as they looked around, they no longer saw anyone except Jesus with them.

⁹As they came down the mountain, he ordered them to tell no one what they had seen, until the Son of Man had risen from the dead. ¹⁰So they kept this to themselves, although they discussed with one another what 'to rise from the dead' could mean.

The question about Elijah

• ¹¹Finally they asked him, "Why then do the teachers of the Law say that Elijah must come first?" ¹²Jesus answered them, "Of course Elijah will come first, so that everything may be as it should be. But why do

1:34;
8:30

Mt 17:
10:13;
Mal 3:23;
Sir 48:10;
Mt 11:14;
Jn 1:21

Is 52:14

2Cor
3:18;
Mt 28:3;
Rev 3:4

40:35;
Dt 18:15;
Acts 3:22

This manifestation is in fact one of the most important in the New Testament. In the liturgy of oriental Churches, the feast of the Transfiguration holds a place of supreme importance.

Though not the summit, it is in fact the summary of all revelation. Moses and Elijah, the spokesmen of the Law and the Prophets (in a word, of all the Old Testament) present the Christ of the Gospel to the apostles Peter, James and John, those who will be responsible for the preaching of the Gospel.

As Moses and Elijah were led by God to the Holy Mountain, to witness his glory (Ex 33:18; 1 K 19:9), so the apostles are led apart by Jesus; they too climb the mountain and there Jesus manifests his glory to them.

Jesus had just announced his passion and his death: the day had come when the Father confirmed his end that was very near (Lk 9:31) and gave him a foretaste of his resurrection. Moses and Elijah were the witnesses, they who, in a certain way, escaped the corruption of death (Dt 34:6; 2 K 2:11).

A cloud formed covering them in a shadow. The cloud mentioned here is that which, in several episodes of the Bible, both indicates and hides the mysterious presence of God (Ex 19 and 1 K 8:10).

Listen to him! (v. 7). The apostles have been accompanying Jesus for more than a year, with misunderstanding increasing between him and the religious authorities of the people of God. For them a question could arise: Is not Jesus mistaken? Are not the certi-tudes of God's people on the side of the priests and scribes?

The Father himself intervenes, just as he had done in the past for John the Baptist: Listen to him! "Listen to him for he is the Word made flesh" (Jn 1:14; Heb 1:1). He is the Prophet, and all the others speak only for him (Dt 18:17).

When Jesus worked miracles for the sick, and over the forces of nature, he showed that the present order of the world is not permanent. Now the curtains are partially opened: would that the apostles understood that the Son of Man, as Jesus calls himself, is close to his resurrection. In a little while his fellow citizens will hang him on a cross. In a little while, too, the Father will give him the Glory that awaits him. The shining cloud, the dazzling white clothes are external signs that indicate something of the mystery of Jesus: the day he rises from among the dead, his human nature will be transformed and extended by divine Energies, so that he may fill everything in every one.

• 11. On going down the mountain, the apostles feel uneasy, "Why did Moses and Elijah speak of the imminent death of Jesus?" They cling to their illusions, finding support in the Bible which said that Elijah had to return to earth to prepare the way before the Messiah would come, so that he should not encounter any opposition (Mal 3:1 and 4:23).

Jesus asserts again what he had said many times: he has to be rejected. Not all that is writ-the Scriptures say that the Son of Man must suffer many things and be despised? ¹³I tell you that Elijah has already come, and they have treated him as they pleased, as the Scriptures say of him.”

The boy with an evil spirit

• ¹⁴When they came to the place where they had left the disciples, they saw many people around them and some teachers of the Law arguing with them. ¹⁵When the people saw Jesus, they were astonished and ran to greet him.

¹⁶He asked, “What are you arguing about with them?” ¹⁷A man answered him from the crowd, “Master, I brought my son to you, for he has a spirit, deaf and mute. ¹⁸Whenever the spirit seizes him, it throws him down and he foams at the mouth, grinds his teeth and becomes stiff all over. I asked your disciples to drive the spirit out, but they could not.”

¹⁹Jesus replied, “You faithless people! How long must I be with you? How long must I put up with you? Bring him to me.” ²⁰And they brought the boy to him.

As soon as the spirit saw Jesus, it shook and convulsed the boy, who fell on the ground and began rolling about, foaming at the mouth. ²¹Then Jesus asked the father, “How long has this been happening to him?” He replied, “From childhood. ²²And it has often thrown him into the fire and into the water to destroy him. If you can do anything, have pity on us and help us.”

²³Jesus said to him, “Why do you say, ‘If you can?’ All things are possible for one who believes.” ²⁴Immediately the father of the boy cried out, “I do believe, but help the little faith I have.”

²⁵Jesus saw that the crowd was increasing rapidly, so he ordered the evil spirit, “Dumb and deaf spirit, I command you: Leave the boy and never enter him again.” ²⁶The evil spirit shook and convulsed the boy and with a terrible shriek came out.

ten in the Bible is to be understood literally. Elijah was not to return personally from heaven, but rather John the Baptist had already come as the new Elijah (Lk 1:16).

• 14. All things are possible for one who believes (v. 23). Jesus has gone back to the crowd and again he meets with human unbelief. The prayer of the child’s father would be a model for all Christian prayer. If we turn to God in prayer, it is because we have faith; and yet in doing this we discover the poverty and the fragility of our faith.

Why couldn’t we drive out the spirit? (v. 28). The apostles wonder: did Jesus not give them power over the demons? They are not aware of their lack of faith and easily forget how far they are from their Master. To them are directed the sharp words of Jesus: You, faithless people! How many people think they are great believers when, in fact their faith has still not moved anything!

Only prayer can drive out this kind. Various people mentioned in the Gospels as being possessed may have been mentally sick and could be cured by magnetic force, by the laying on of hands (Mk 6:5). Not this lad. Sometimes we find ourselves like Jesus close to the power of Evil, and prayer is needed to overcome it.

In the Gospel of Mark we find only four references to prayer and these in only a few words. It is because prayer was not a novelty for the Jews.

What is prayer? It is to direct our spirit to God. There are thousands of ways of praying, of keeping our spirit oriented toward God, striving towards him and listening to him: praying the Psalms and other prayers of the Church, meditating on the rosary, singing, Bible reading, etc. The purpose of all these prayers is that the Lord may give us the spirit of prayer, that we may be able to communicate with God in the depth of our spirit, even while working and minding our tasks.

Jesus shows us in these pages the way to expel the demon, because the evil spirit multiplies obstacles to discourage us, as soon as he knows we have decided to follow Christ (Mt 12:43; 13:19).

Mt 21:32;
Lk 16:16

Mt 17:
14-21;
Lk 9: 37-42

Mt 21:21;
Mk 11:22

Lk 17:5

The boy lay like a corpse and people said, "He is dead."²⁷ But Jesus took him by the hand and lifted him and the boy stood up.

²⁸ After Jesus had gone indoors, his disciples asked him privately, "Why couldn't we drive out the spirit?"²⁹ And he answered, "Only prayer can drive out this kind, nothing else."

Jesus again speaks of his passion

(Mt 17:22; Lk 9:43)

Mt 17:
22-23;
Lk 9:
43-45

³⁰ After leaving that place, they made their way through Galilee; but Jesus did not want people to know where he was³¹ because he was teaching his disciples. And he told them, "The Son of Man will be delivered into the hands of men. They will kill him, but three days after he has been killed, he will rise."³² The disciples, however, did not understand these words and they were afraid to ask him what he meant.

Who is the greatest?

(Mt 18:1; Lk 9:46; 18:17; 22:24)

³³ They came to Capernaum and, once inside the house, Jesus asked them, "What were you discussing on the way?"³⁴ But they did not answer, because they had been arguing about who was the greatest.

³⁵ Then he sat down, called the Twelve and said to them, "If someone wants to be first, let him be last of all and servant of all."³⁶ Then he took a little child, placed him in their midst, and putting his arms around him he said to them,³⁷ "Whoever welcomes a child such as this in my name, welcomes me; and whoever welcomes me, welcomes not me but the One who sent me."

Mt 18:
1-5;
Lk 9:
46-48;
Mk 10:43;
Lk 10:16

10:35-45;
Mt 20: 20-28;
Lk 22:
24-25

Mt 10:40;
Jn 13:20

• 30. Time is running out for Jesus. He now dedicates himself chiefly to preparing the group of apostles who will have the tremendous responsibility of continuing his work. They did not understand about his death and resurrection: these things cannot be understood until they have happened. They prefer not to question or know; leaving Jesus very isolated.

SERVANTS

• 33. The apostles return to Capernaum, the center of their missionary expeditions, and most probably stay in the house of Simon Peter.

They have preached the kingdom of God, performing miraculous cures, and have expelled demons. They still lack the most important quality of all: to be humble.

We also follow Christ, make sacrifices for him, and look like good Christians, and God performs through us some miracles great or small... Can we compare ourselves with our neighbor? Do we have the right to impose ourselves on others when they prefer the services of another person? Should we consider ourselves superior to those who do not reach our level?

• 35. The last sentence of Jesus is as important as the first: Whoever welcomes a child such as this in my name... The dignity of the human person stems from this identification with Christ.

THE DIGNITY OF THE HUMAN PERSON

God does not wait for us to be baptized before he recognizes his Son in us. He created us "in Christ." This means that he created each of us so that we bear the likeness of his Son: see what Paul says in Ephesians.

Of course, it is something much greater when God calls us to believe and chooses us to share in the mission and life of his Church.

The Church has always taught the surpassing dignity of the human person and, in the end, convinced the world. More than anyone else, the martyrs taught us the superior value of the human person over any interest or collective bonds. It is impossible to separate this dignity of the human person from our relationship with the Father. Those who do not share in this belief cannot easily explain their commitment to human rights.

The greatest gift of God to humans is not that we can think and love, but that we can say to God: "You are my Father," and that God looks at us thinking, "You are my son/daughter."

Lk 9:
49-50

•³⁸ John said to him, “Master, we saw someone who drove out demons by calling upon your name, and we tried to forbid him because he does not belong to our group.”³⁹ Jesus answered, “Do not forbid him, for no one who works a miracle in my name can soon after speak evil of me.”⁴⁰ For whoever is not against us is for us.

Acts
3:16;
1Cor
12:3;
Lk 6:43;
Mt 7:16

Mt 12:30;
Lk 9:50;
11:23

Mt 10:42

⁴¹If anyone gives you a drink of water because you belong to Christ and bear his name, truly, I say to you, he will not go without reward.

If your eye causes you to sin
(5:13; Mt 18:6; Lk 17:1)

Mt 18:
6-9;
Lk 17: 1-2

•⁴²If anyone should cause one of these little ones who believe in me to stumble and sin, it would be better for him to be thrown into the sea with a great millstone around his neck.

⁴³If your hand makes you fall into sin, cut it off! It is better for you to enter life without a hand, than with two hands to go to hell, to the fire that never goes out. ⁴⁵And if your foot makes you fall into sin, cut it off! It is better for you to enter life without a foot, than with both feet to be thrown into hell. ⁴⁷And if your eye makes you fall into sin, tear it out! It is better for you to enter the kingdom of God with one eye, than, keeping both eyes, to be thrown into hell, ⁴⁸where the worms that eat them never die, and the fire never goes out. ⁴⁹The fire itself will preserve them.

Mt 5:27;
1Cor
3:23

Is 66:24

• 38. SEPARATE CHURCHES

While Jesus prepares his apostles, whom he wants to leave in charge of his Church, others preach the Gospel and expel demons. In the same way nowadays, outside the Catholic Church, the Church of the apostles, others of diverse Christian denominations do apostolic work.

This evangelization outside the Church, at times against the Church, offers a challenge. If others evangelize, it is perhaps because the Church does not reach a great number of people: God wants others to do what we do not. The proliferation of separate churches is for the Catholic Church a call to reform.

For the Church finds itself paralyzed for want of a true spirit of poverty and because of its massive structures which no longer allow simple people to find there the fresh life-giving air of the Gospel.

In addition, a missionary sense is often completely absent: too many Catholics are not ready to leave their own practices and little groups, with the end result that the Church is seemingly absent in a great number of places, especially in the urban masses and among immigrants.

With that how can we condemn those who by their missionary action allow a great number of people to meet Jesus Christ in fervent and welcoming communities, even if not everything there is authentic?

In saying this we do not forget the many riches of Christian tradition which have often been lost by those who left the Church, especially the certitude that everything human must be redeemed and saved, and the joyful and humble way of believing and doing the will of the Father of which Mary is the finest symbol.

Several things seem to us out of place in these churches: the miracle used as an instrument of propaganda, the pressures on the sick, the threatening with punishments from God... Many enclose themselves in their cults, far from the “world,” making ecumenism impossible, that is the dialogue and common seeking with other Christians.

There is, however, no room for envy or hatred: who can harm us if we do the work of God?

• 42. See commentary on Matthew 18:6. To be thrown into Gehenna, says Jesus (v. 45). This word was used to designate hell.

To enter life... to enter the kingdom; this is one and the same thing. The kingdom of God is not a place where God will put us; it is a life that invades us; it is a person’s meeting with self, the total realization of a person’s potential; the perfect union with God through which the sons and daughters are transformed into the likeness of the Father.

Have salt in yourselves (v. 50). This concludes the speech after the discussion with the apostles (9:34). Of course we should make ourselves servants of others (9:35). That does not mean that we should be oppressed per-

Mt 5:13;
Lk 14:34;
Col 4:6;
Rom
12:18

⁵⁰ Salt is a good thing; but if it loses its saltiness, how can you make it salty again? Have salt in yourselves and be at peace with one another.”

Divorce

(5: 31; Mt 19:1; Lk 16:18)

Mt 19:
1-9

10¹ Jesus then left that place and went to the province of Judea, beyond the Jordan River. Once more crowds gathered around him and once more he taught them, as he always did. ²Some (Pharisees came and) put him to the test with this question, “Is it right for a husband to divorce his wife?” ³He replied, “What law did Moses give you?” ⁴They answered, “Moses allowed us to write a certificate of dismissal in order to divorce.”

Dt 24:1

⁵Then Jesus said to them, “Moses wrote this law for you, because you are stubborn. ⁶But in the beginning of creation God made them male and female, ⁷and because of this, man has to leave father and mother and be joined to his wife, ⁸and the two shall become one body. So they are no longer two but one body. ⁹Therefore let no one separate what God has joined.”

Gen 1:27

Gen 2:24

¹⁰When they were indoors at home, the disciples again asked him about this, ¹¹and he told them, “Whoever divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery against his wife, ¹²and the woman who divorces

Mt 5:32;
Lk 16:18;
1Cor
7:10

sons. The salt signifies the creativity and the talents of each one. Let us be persons fully alive, even if it includes disagreements, but always concerned about maintaining loving relations and mutual respect.

• 10.1 MATRIMONY. See notes on Matthew 19:6.

Is it right for a husband...? (v. 2) Matthew is surely more exact when he adds “for any reason he wants,” for everyone agreed that a wife could be sent away, but reasons justifying a divorce were discussed. Mark goes straight to the point: marriage is an irreversible commitment.

Jesus takes his stand; it is one of those clashes when he shocks everyone, including his disciples—going against general practice sanctioned by the Bible.

Jesus invokes another law of God, in the beginning. In the beginning: that is in the narrative of the Earthly Paradise. We must not forget that in ancient culture the beginning was a golden age where God established ideal institutions. It is clear then that if the authors of the Old Testament authorized divorce it was because the laws of society, even those of God’s people, reflect the level of the moral conscience of an era.

Jesus compares the ideal and the practice. This ideal, however, is not something that one admires without taking it seriously. Where Genesis says: the two shall become one body, Jesus adds: they are no longer two but one body. Over and above any discussion, the unity of the couple is “the” reality in the eyes of God.

Doubtless it would be the wrong way to look on marriage and human love as the human and social features of the first fundamental fact: sexuality. What is first in God’s plan for the universe is the couple of the Son of God made man and humanity that he saves. It is the supreme example of complementarity and the alliance of tenderness and fidelity. It is there we have the model couple. All the biological past that prepared the sexes, all the human evolution that brought about the couple only come later: they are reflections of God’s eternal project in creation and in history.

The words of Jesus cannot be jeopardized. They have been spoken in a practice of marriage universally accepted; they have the same value today in the widely spread practice of “non-marriage.” Throughout the Bible love and fidelity are linked, and when the Gospel speaks of losing oneself as a condition of finding oneself, it applies as well for the couple.

What if one of the two betrays the other? Here we are in the domain of human decisions where each one must solve his or her own case and solve it according to the consciousness they already have of their Christian vocation. Others must not condemn them, but Jesus takes all authority away from those who pretend to ease the conscience of divorcees as if they had not failed in some way in their Christian vocation.

her husband and marries another also commits adultery.”

Let the children come to me

(Mt 19:13; Lk 18:15)

• ¹³ People were bringing their little children to him to have him touch them, and the disciples rebuked them for this.

¹⁴ When Jesus noticed it, he was very angry and said, “Let the children come to me and don’t stop them, for the kingdom of God belongs to such as these. ¹⁵ Truly, I say to you, whoever does not receive the kingdom of God like a child will not enter it.” ¹⁶ Then he took the children in his arms and, laying his hands on them, blessed them.

Jesus and the rich man

(Mt 19:16; Lk 18:18)

• ¹⁷ Just as Jesus was setting out on his journey again, a man ran up, knelt before him and asked, “Good Master, what must I do to have eternal life?”

¹⁸ Jesus answered, “Why do you call me good? No one is good but God alone. ¹⁹ You know the commandments: Do not kill, do not commit adultery, do not steal, do not bear false witness, do not cheat, honor your father and mother.” ²⁰ The man replied, “I have obeyed all these commandments since my childhood.”

²¹ Then Jesus looked steadily at him and loved him and he said, “For you, one thing is lacking. Go, sell what you have and give the money to the poor, and you will have riches in heaven. Then come and follow me.” ²² On hearing these words, his face fell and he went away sorrowful, for he was a man of great wealth.

How hard for the rich to discover the kingdom!

• ²³ Jesus looked around and said to his disciples, “How hard it is for those who have riches to enter the kingdom of God!” ²⁴ The disciples were shocked at these words, but Jesus insisted, “Children, how hard it is to enter the kingdom of God! ²⁵ It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for one who is rich to enter the kingdom of God.”

²⁶ They were more astonished than ever and wondered, “Who, then, can be saved?” ²⁷ Jesus looked

• 13. Jesus, despite having no children of his own, opens to everyone the richness of his heart. He marvels at the mystery of life that begins full of hope, and discovers the likeness of the Father in every unknown child. How could Jesus, who asks us to have hope, forget that the children are also our hope?

Whoever does not receive the kingdom of God like a child. We must be like children in order to enter the kingdom of God. We must forget our wisdom and self-sufficiency, and the bitterness of past experience in order to receive God’s gifts and words in wonder and simplicity.

• 17. He who comes to Jesus is a young man, according to Matthew (19:16). Luke calls him an important man (18:18).

With deliberation Jesus asks him: Why do you call me good? Do you not see that you are thirsty for God and that you will find him if you live with me? See commentary on Matthew 19:16.

This man asks Jesus the way that leads to eternal life; but Jesus does not have any new commandment to teach. In the Old Testament everything had already been said about what a person should do to win eternal life: by observing the commandments of justice and compassion. Now Jesus proposes to him a new way and a new experience of liberty, through becoming his follower and imitator.

Sell what you have (v. 21). Happiness does not consist in leaving all one has, but in being free of it all in order to submit oneself to Christ.

• 23. Jesus does not say that the rich person will not be saved, but that he will not enter the kingdom of God, which consists in shar-

Mt 19:
13-15;
Lk 18:
15-17;
9:47-48

Mt 18:3;
Mk 9: 33-39;
10:43

Mt 19: 16-22;
Lk 18: 18-23

20:12-16

Mt 6:20;
Lk 12:33

Mt 19:
23-26;
Lk 18: 24-27;
Mk 4:19

steadily at them and said, “For human beings it is impossible, but not for God; all things are possible with God.”

The reward for those who follow Jesus

(Mt 19:27; Lk 18:28)

Mt 19:
27-30;
Lk 18:
28-30

• ²⁸ Peter spoke up and said, “We have given up everything to follow you.” ²⁹ Jesus answered, “Truly, there is no one who has left house, or brothers or sisters, or father or mother, or children, or lands, for my sake and for the Gospel, ³⁰ who will not receive his reward. I say to you: even in the midst of persecution, he will receive a hundred times as many houses, brothers, sisters, mothers, children, and lands in the present time, and in the world to come eternal life. ³¹ Do pay attention: many who now are the first will be last, and the last, first.”

Mt 19:30;
20:16;
Lk 13:30

³² They were on the road going up to Jerusalem, and Jesus was walking ahead. The Twelve were anxious, and those who followed were afraid. Once more Jesus took the Twelve aside to tell them what was to happen to him. ³³ “You see we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be given over to the chief priests and the teachers of the Law. They

Mt 20:
17-19;
Lk 18:
31-33;
Jn 11:
7-8;
11:16

ing from then on the uncertainties, happiness and liberty of Christ.

In the Old Testament, wealth was never condemned provided that it was shared. Moreover, it was considered as a sign that a person knew how to direct his life well and that God had blessed him. As long as a person does not know how to be free of urgent material problems and to master in some way the goods of this world, something is lacking in his human existence.

To those who already enjoy “being” and “having,” however, Jesus proposes that they leave all and follow him as a condition for entering the Kingdom: this means experiencing already in this life the presence of God the Father.

Who are the rich ones? Those who have money or those who do not take the risk of sharing what they have? Here Jesus is not condemning some evil ones; he does not distinguish between good and bad rich. Jesus speaks of the rich in the common sense of this word (those who have riches) and asserts that their situation prevents them from experiencing the kingdom of God from inside. In speaking thus, Jesus discredits those who would want to bless the rich provided they are “spiritually poor.”

It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle (v. 25). People have imagined all kinds of other interpretations: the camel may only mean a filament of camel hair; or the eye of the needle might signify a fairly low door of Jerusalem (which in fact never existed...). the main purpose being to correct the categorical words of Jesus. They would like to make him say: it is difficult, very difficult for a rich person to enter the kingdom of God, but not impossible. Let us leave aside all these interpretations: the apostles clearly understood the comparison, Jesus said: “Yes, it is impossible.”

Immediately Jesus addresses both the rich and those who judge them; he reminds us of the infinite distance that separates the sinner from the holiness of God, but also of the infinite love of the Father that does the impossible for us. The question, “Who can be saved?” gives Jesus the opportunity to affirm once more that no one is saved by his own merits. God saves people, the rich included, by taking away the benefits and false security provided by their riches. We who await an answer from him, whether we are rich or not, are surely judging others or evaluating our life in terms of merits or demerits. Jesus reminds us that our salvation is the work of God and of him alone.

• 28. Whoever has left house... These words of Jesus that we find again in Matthew 19:29 and Luke 18:29 have been given here a notable addition: with persecution. Once the Gospel had been preached the Church began to suffer persecution: From the Year 34, then again in 41 and 62 in Jerusalem, in 64 in Rome with the great persecution ordered by the emperor Nero. During these persecutions Christians experienced the bonds that united them, often stronger than family relationships. Hunted, obliged to hide, they found hundreds of brothers and sisters ready with houses to give them refuge. Jesus does not only speak of reward in the next life. Already in this world, in will condemn him to death, and hand him over to the foreigners, ³⁴who will make fun of him, spit on him, scourge him, and finally kill him; but three days later he will rise.”

James and John ask for the first places

(Mt 20:20; Lk 22:24)

Mt 20: 20-23 • ³⁵ James and John, the sons of Zebedee, came to Jesus and said to him, “Master, we want you to grant us what we are going to ask of you.”

10:51 ³⁶ And he said, “What do you want me to do for you?” ³⁷ They answered, “Grant us to sit, one at your right hand and one at your left, when you come in your glory.”

14:36; Ps 75:9; Is 51:17 ³⁸ But Jesus said to them, “You don’t know what you are asking. Can you drink the cup that I drink, or be baptized in the way I am baptized?”

Acts 12:2; Lk 12:50 ³⁹ They answered, “We can.” And Jesus told them, “The cup that I drink you will drink, and you will be baptized in the way that I am baptized; ⁴⁰but to sit at my right hand or at my left is not mine to grant. It has been prepared for others.”

⁴¹ On hearing this, the other ten were angry with James and John.

⁴² Jesus then called them to him and said, “As you know, the so-called rulers of the nations act as tyrants, and their great ones oppress them.

⁴³ But it shall not be so among you; whoever would be great among you must be your servant, ⁴⁴and whoever would be first among you shall make himself slave of all. ⁴⁵ Think of the Son of Man, who has not come to be served but to serve, and to give his life to redeem many.”

The blind man of Jericho

(Mt 20:29; Lk 18:35)

• ⁴⁶ They came to Jericho. As Jesus was leaving Jericho with his disciples and a large crowd, a blind beggar, Bartimaeus, the son of Timaeus, was sitting by the roadside. ⁴⁷ On hearing that it was Jesus of Nazareth passing by, he began to call out, “Son of David, Jesus, have

Mt 20: 24-28; Lk 22: 24-27

9:35; Lk 9:48

Is 53:11; 1Tim 2:5

Mt 20: 29-34; Lk 18: 35-43

the midst of persecution, those who sacrifice themselves for the Kingdom will find friendship, joy and human fulfillment far greater than anything they could have hoped for.

• 35. Jesus feels full of courage and confidence, as he himself walks ahead of them to Jerusalem, where his punishment awaits him. Prompted by James’ and John’s request, he tries to convince his followers that success in his Kingdom does not consist in prestige and power, but in following the way of Jesus, their leader.

LEADERS—TO SERVE

What makes a leader? How should a leader be? How do leaders act, the head of a team, of a family? The heads of state smile at crowds and embrace a child who renders them homage, but who serves and who is to be served? Jesus has come to serve and his service to humanity will be his voluntary death: “He made himself obedient, took the condition of a slave and died on the cross” (Phil 2:8).

To drink the cup and to be baptized (v. 38) are figurative ways of describing the suffering and death of Jesus.

In relation to this topic, we cite a short poem of Lao-Tzu, an ancient wise Chinese:

“What have the river and sea done to be kings of the hundred valleys? They put themselves below them and that is why they reign in the hundred valleys.

If the saint wants to be at the top of his people, first he has to learn how to talk with humility. If he wants to lead his people, he should be last.

That is how the saint is at the top of his people and he doesn’t make them suffer. Willingly they place him at the top and do not get tired of him. Since he doesn’t compete with anybody, nobody can compete with him.”

• 46. God is the one who moves us to ask something of him. The blind man understands that if he lets this opportunity go by, there will mercy on me!”⁴⁸ Many people scolded him and told him to keep quiet, but he shouted all the louder, “Son of David, have mercy on me!”

⁴⁹ Jesus stopped and said, “Call him.” So they called the blind man, saying, “Take heart! Get up, he is calling you!”⁵⁰ He immediately threw aside his cloak, jumped up and went to Jesus.

⁵¹ Then Jesus asked him, “What do you want me to do for you?” The blind man said, “Master, let me see again!”⁵² And Jesus said to him, “Go your way, your faith has made you well.” And immediately he could see, and he followed Jesus along the road.

The triumphant entry into Jerusalem

(Mt 21:1; Lk 19:28; Jn 12:12)

11¹ When they drew near to Jerusalem and arrived at Bethphage and Bethany, at the Mount of Olives, Jesus sent two of his disciples with these instructions,² “Go to the village on the other side and, as you enter it, you will find there a colt tied up that no one has ridden. Untie it and bring it here.³ If anyone says to you, ‘What are you doing?’ give this answer, ‘The Lord needs it, but he will send it back immediately.’”

⁴ They went off and found the colt, out in the street, tied at the door.⁵ As they were untying it, some of the bystanders asked, “Why are you untying that colt?”⁶ They answered as Jesus had told them, and the people allowed them to continue.

⁷ They brought the colt to Jesus, threw their cloaks on its back, and Jesus sat upon it.⁸ Many people also spread their cloaks on the road, while others spread leafy branches from the fields.⁹ Then the people who walked ahead, and those who followed behind Jesus, began to shout, “Hosannah! Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord!”¹⁰ Blessed is the kingdom of our father David which comes! Hosannah in the highest!”

¹¹ So Jesus entered Jerusalem and went into the Temple. And after he had looked all around, as it was already late, he went out to Bethany with the Twelve.

not be another chance, which is why he shouts all the more while the rest try to silence him.

Son of David! was a way of designating the Messiah.

- 11.1 See notes on Matthew 21:1.

THE SAVIOR

From Jericho to Jerusalem, Jesus “goes up” with the people who will celebrate the Feast. Many are from Galilee, the province of Jesus, and, on seeing him among the pilgrims, think he is about to proclaim himself as the Messiah.

Until then Jesus refused to be proclaimed, because many people expected from their Messiah a liberation very different from that which Jesus brought them. At this moment when he is finishing his mission, the time has come for Jesus to define himself publicly. He is the Anointed of God and there will be no other after him.

Jesus was sent by God to all people, but above all he came as Savior of the Jewish people. He came precisely when this people needed to be saved, because things were not working out well for them. The prophets had announced a conciliatory king who would visit the people on a donkey, as peaceful people did, not on a horse as the generals of that time did. That was why Jesus wanted to enter Jerusalem this way. Jerusalem was a big city. Though the enthusiasm of the Galileans shook the city, it did not conquer it.

The Jews did not expect their Savior to be so meek. Throughout their history, God had saved them from oppression, hunger, and the irresponsibility of their famous leaders. This time he came in person, to show them the real path to salvation through pardon and non-violence, but they did not recognize him. The people of Galilee, who spontaneously mounted a triumphant entrance for Jesus and hoped for a political announcement from him, would later deny him.

Lk 7:50

Mt 21: 1-11;
Lk 19:
28-38;
Jn 12:
12-16;
Mk 14:26;
Zec 14:4
Zec 9:9

Is 62:11

Ps 118:
25-26

Jesus curses the barren fig tree

(Mt 21:18; Lk 13:6)

Mt 21:
18-19

Lk 13:6;
Jer 8:13;
Hos
9:16;
Mic 7:1

• ¹²The next day, when they were leaving Bethany, he felt hungry. ¹³In the distance he noticed a fig tree covered with leaves, so he went to see if he could find anything on it. When he reached it, he found nothing but leaves, for it was not the season for figs. ¹⁴Then Jesus said to the fig tree, “May no one ever eat your fruit!” And his disciples heard these words.

Jesus clears the Temple

(Mt 21:10; Lk 19:45; Jn 2:14)

Mt 21:
12-17;
Lk 19:
45-48;
Jn 2:
14-16

Zec
14:21

• ¹⁵When they reached Jerusalem, Jesus went to the Temple, and began to drive away all the people he saw buying and selling there. He overturned the tables of the money-changers and the stools of those who sold pigeons. ¹⁶And he would not let anyone carry anything through the Temple area.

¹⁷Jesus then taught the people, “Does not God say in the Scriptures: My house will be called a House of Prayer for all the nations? But you have turned it into a den of thieves.”

Is 56:7;
Jer 7:11

¹⁸The chief priests and the teachers of the Law heard of this, and they tried to find a way to destroy him. They were afraid of him, because all the people were astonished by his teaching.

3:6;
14:1

¹⁹When evening came, Jesus left the city.

Lk 21:37

The power of faith

(Mt 21:20)

• ²⁰Early next morning, as they walked along the road, the disciples saw the fig tree withered to its roots. ²¹Peter then said to him, “Master, look! The fig tree you cursed has withered.”

Mt 21:
20-22

²²And Jesus replied, “Have faith in God. ²³Truly, I say to you, if you say to this mountain, ‘Be taken up

9:19;
Lk 17:5
Is 40:4;
1Cor
13:2

- 12. See notes on Matthew 21:18.

THE TEMPLE

• 15. The Temple of Jerusalem was, for the Jews, the only Temple of the only God. In each town they assembled in the synagogue to read the Bible and sing psalms, but only in the Temple did the priests sacrifice animals and celebrate true worship. A regular-sized building was at the center of the temple. Only the priests in charge of offering incense entered this building, while the multitude crowded together in the courtyards. In these courtyards stood vendors and exchange brokers who supplied animals and birds for the offerings.

While John stresses the prophetic character of the action of Jesus: “Destroy this Temple and in three days I will rebuild it” (Jn 2:19), Mark makes more of the purification of the Temple. In fact these sellers installed in the yards of the Temple, as well as many people who walked around, were scarcely interested in the prayer and cult of Israel. The priests were used to this and the High Priest Caiaphas made money by allowing vendors to stand in the very courtyards dedicated to prayer.

Jesus was not a priest or a Temple guard but this Temple was the house of his Father. That was why he made a whip from ropes and cast them all out.

My house will be called a House of Prayer for all the nations (v. 17). The courtyards where the vendors stood were precisely those intended for the foreigners. “Purify the temple” for Jesus is to give it back its true identity and also to allow the pagans to find in these courts a privileged place for meeting God.

See also John 2:14.

THE POWER OF FAITH

• 20. If you have no doubt in your heart but believe. See the same in James 1:6. Jesus refers in a more precise way to “the faith that performs miracles” (see 1 Cor 13:2). Jesus does not say that this faith will be given to everybody and at every moment. It is a charism or gift of God that he gives to whomever he wishes (1 Cor 12:9). It is an interior certainty that God wants to perform a miracle, so that one dares act and command in his name.

At the same time, this promise of Jesus applies to all our prayer. Of course we should not think that God will always work the miracles we ask of him. When a sick person tries to

Jn 11:22

Mt 5:23;
6:15;
Eph 4:32;
Col 3:13;
1P 3:7

and cast into the sea,' and have no doubt in your heart, but believe that what you say will happen, it will be done for you. ²⁴Therefore, I tell you, whatever you ask in prayer, believe that you have received it, and it shall be done for you. ²⁵And when you stand to pray, if you have anything against anyone, forgive, ²⁶so that your heavenly Father may also forgive your sins."

By what authority do you act?
(Mt 21:23; Lk 20:1)

Mt 21:
23-27;
Lk 20: 1-8

• ²⁷They were once again in Jerusalem. As Jesus was walking in the Temple, the chief priests, the teachers of the Law and the elders came to him ²⁸and asked, "What authority do you have to act like this? Who gave you authority to do the things you do?"

²⁹Jesus said to them, "I will ask you a question, only one, and if you give me an answer, then I will tell you what authority I have to act like this. ³⁰Was John's preaching and baptism a work of God, or was it merely something human? Answer me."

³¹And they kept arguing among themselves, "If we answer that it was a work of God, he will say, 'Why then did you not believe him?'" ³²But neither could they answer before the people that the baptism of John was merely something human, for everyone regarded John as a prophet. ³³So they answered Jesus, "We don't know," and Jesus said to them, "Neither will I tell you what authority I have to act as I do."

Mt 14:5

Parable of the tenants
(Mt 21:33; Lk 20:9)

12 • ¹Using parables, Jesus went on to say, "A man planted a

Mt 21:
33-46;
Lk 20: 9-19;
Is 5:1-2

convince himself that he will be cured, it is possible that consequently he does get better more quickly, but this mental exercise or hope does not necessarily mean faith. If I convince myself that God will make me the winner of a lottery, he is under no obligation to think that my becoming richer will make me a better person.

Actually he who humbly loves God understands in the midst of his trials that God wants to lift him up. That is why he asks with faith, knowing that God wants to listen to him.

It is hard for us to ask big things, because if God refuses to give them to us, how will we still believe in him? Surely it is very fine to ask of God only "his grace," his inner strength, but many do so not because of their esteem for the interior life but because they fear they will see nothing coming as an answer to their prayer. Who dares to ask for rain or drought as Elijah did and as the poor still do, those whose prayers God hears?

Whatever you ask in prayer (v. 24). Jesus invites us to ask with faith and perseverance, until God assures us that our prayer has been heard or else helps us understand that what we asked for was not good for us, nor was it the will of God.

• 27. THE OPPORTUNIST PRIESTS

Jesus did not ask any authorization to teach in the Temple, or to drive out the vendors. He acted freely as prophets do. Since the priests were the ones in charge of maintaining the true faith, it was normal for them to check whether Jesus was a real prophet or not. But were they really concerned about truth? Were they ready to recognize that Jesus had come from God? Apparently they only thought to defend what was acceptable to them and, before even listening to Jesus, held him to be subversive.

That is why Jesus asked them about John the Baptist. Because John the Baptist's preaching had been the most important happening in the previous two years, the priests should have taken a stand with regard to John. They had not done so nor were they ready for that. How could they make demands of Jesus if they spoke out only when it suited them?

Jesus' attitude obliges religious leaders of all times to see if they deserve to have others respect their declarations and condemnations.

• 12.1 THE CHOSEN ONES OF GOD

In this comparison, the vine represents the kingdom of God. The Jews were God's people and they came to consider that their own interests were those of God. He had to help them against others. They had confidence that they would be saved and were not concerned vineyard, put a fence around it, dug a hole for the wine press and built a watch tower. Then he leased the vineyard to tenants and went abroad.

²In due time he sent a servant to receive from the tenants his share of the fruit. ³But they seized the servant, struck him and sent him back empty-handed. ⁴Again the man sent another servant. They also struck him on the head and treated him shamefully. ⁵He sent another and they killed him. In the same way they treated many others: some they beat up and others they killed. ⁶One was still left, his beloved son. And so, last of all, he sent him to the tenants, for he said, 'They will respect my son.'

⁷But those tenants said to one another, 'This is the one who is to inherit the vineyard. Let's kill him and the property will be ours.' ⁸So they seized him and killed him, and threw him out of the vineyard. ⁹Now what will the owner of the vineyard do? He will come and destroy those tenants and give the vineyard to others."

¹⁰And Jesus added, "Have you not read this text of the Scriptures: The stone which the builders rejected has become the keystone; ¹¹*this is the Lord's doing, and we marvel at it?*"

¹²They wanted to arrest him, for they realized that Jesus meant this parable for them, but they were afraid of the crowd; so they left him and went away.

Paying taxes to Caesar

(Mt 22:15; Lk 20:20)

• ¹³They sent to Jesus some Pharisees with members of Herod's party, with the purpose of trapping him by his own words. ¹⁴They came and said to Jesus, "Master, we know that you are truthful; you are not influenced by anyone, and your answers do not vary according to who is lis-

Ps 118:
22-23;
Acts
4:11;
1P 2:7

Mt 22:15;
Mk 12:13;
Lk 20:20

Mt 22:
15-22;
Lk 20: 20-26

Mt 3:17

about the fate of others who did not recognize God.

God entrusted his kingdom to them; in other words, he guided them throughout the long span of their history, so that they would be an example to others. They were to communicate their experience to others so that all would develop justice, a spirit of responsibility, a sense of community; these were the fruits God wanted to harvest.

God sent prophets to remind them of their debt: they were scarcely heard. Finally, the only-Son of God become human appears and the same thing will happen. He will be cast out of the vineyard, in other words, rejected by his own people. Which is why the kingdom of God will be given to others, to those believers converted from other nations and gathered in the Church of Christ.

Here ends the parable. It could equally be applied to the Church today if it becomes a religion of one social class, or similar to the other religions, or if we do not find in the Church more obedience to God, more commitment to values that will save the world. What would happen to Christian groups and their leaders if they began to feel they were the owners of the Kingdom and its promises?

• 13. POLITICS AND RELIGION—CAESAR

The trap is as follows: they ask about the tax that the Jews are obliged to pay to Caesar, emperor of Rome, for the Jews have been colonized by the Romans and are under their rule.

The Pharisees and partisans of Herod, who are political enemies, join together. The Pharisees oppose Roman domination; the partisans of Herod, on the other hand, accept it. If Jesus says they are to pay, the Pharisees will discredit him before the people. If he says no, the partisans of Herod will have him arrested by the Romans.

Jesus does not condemn Roman imperialism, nor does he justify it. Is it because the problems of justice and peace are not "spiritual things" and do not concern him?

These problems, of course, are important and biblical history reveals that God wants liberty for every person and for nations the possibility to develop culture and national life: that is enough to justify the political commitment of Christians.

But Jesus also knows that people's true liberation goes beyond partisan quarrels and rivalries. In his time the Jewish people were torn apart and divided into irreconcilable factions; these were to be one of the causes of the na-tening to you, but you truly teach God's way. Tell us, is it against the Law to pay taxes to Caesar? Should we pay them or not?"

¹⁵ But Jesus saw through their trick and answered, "Why are you testing me? Bring me a silver coin and let me see it." ¹⁶ They brought him one and Jesus asked, "Whose image is this, and whose name?" They answered, "Caesar's." ¹⁷ Then Jesus said, "Give back to Caesar what is Caesar's, and to God what is God's."

And they were greatly astonished.

The resurrection

(Mt 22:23; Lk 20:27)

• ¹⁸ The Sadducees also came to Jesus. Since they claim that there is no resurrection, they questioned him in this way, ¹⁹ "Master, in the Scriptures Moses gave us this law: If anyone dies and leaves a wife but no children, his brother must take the woman, and with her have a baby, who will be considered the child of his deceased brother. ²⁰ Now, there were seven brothers. The first married a wife, but he died without leaving any children. ²¹ The second took the wife, and he also died leaving no children. The same thing happened to the third. ²² In fact, all seven brothers died, leaving no children. Last of all, the woman died. ²³ Now, in the resurrection, to which of them will she be wife? For all seven brothers had her as wife."

²⁴ Jesus replied, "Is this not the reason you are mistaken, that you do not understand the Scriptures or the

Mt 22:
23-33;
Lk 20:
27-40;
Acts
23:8

tional disaster during the great revolt of A.D. 66-71. Jesus will invite his adversaries to give political life its true place and not to confuse faith and religious fanaticism.

For the Pharisees, to pay taxes to Caesar, a foreign ruler and pagan, was like denying God, the true Lord of Israel. They identified the Jewish National Party with the cause of God. This carried grave consequences, since they thought that to serve God they must crush those of the opposition party. Since faith asks of us total obedience, people who confuse political militancy with faith begin to justify, little by little, everything their party does, even its lies and crimes.

The Caesar of Rome was not God, although he pretended to be. He had imposed his authority on them and the use of Roman coins, but could not demand the obedience of conscience that was due only to God. Neither was he "the enemy of God," as the Pharisees thought, and to serve the kingdom of God it was not necessary to refuse him taxes and civil obedience.

What is Caesar's can be understood: "what belongs to Caesar." Rather it means: "the kind of things which fall under his rule." With his answer "to Caesar what belongs to him, to God..." Jesus separates religion and politics in cultures—Jewish and Roman alike—where politics always looked for religious justification. From now on, religion should not be manipulated for political purposes, nor should religion confuse its political opponents with the enemies of the Kingdom.

• 18. Mark's intention has been to put side by side the confrontations of Jesus with the two most important parties of the Jewish people: the Pharisees and the Sadducees. The Sadducees—the chief priests—are the managers of God's people. They do not believe in the spiritual nor in the resurrection. According to them these are disastrous innovations that weaken the national spirit and the power of the central system. Their Bible is limited to the Pentateuch where much is said of priests and nothing at all about resurrection.

THE RESURRECTION

What is "resurrection"? When Jesus called the daughter of Jairus (Mk 5:21) and Lazarus (Jn 11:1) back to life, they only recovered the life they had before. The daughter went back to her dreams, Lazarus went to work in his garden and after this both had to die again. This was not really resurrection.

Many people think that there is "something" after death and that something in us, called "soul," survives. This belief is partly true but it is not the most important aspect. The resurrection points, not to a survival of "something of us," but to a transformation and raising up of our whole person.

power of God? ²⁵When they rise from the dead, men and women do not marry, but are like the angels in heaven.

^{3:6} ²⁶Now, about the resurrection of the dead, have you never had thoughts about the burning bush in the book of Moses? God said to Moses: I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob. ²⁷He is the God not of the dead but of the living. You are totally wrong.”

The greatest commandment

(Mt 22:34; Lk 10:25; 20:40)

• ²⁸A teacher of the Law had been listening to this discussion and admired how Jesus answered them. So he came up and asked him, “Which commandment is the first of all?”

²⁹Jesus answered, “The first is: Hear, Israel! The Lord, our God, is

One Lord; ³⁰ and you shall love the Lord, your God, with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your mind and with all your strength.

³¹And after this comes a second commandment: You shall love your neighbor as yourself. There is no commandment greater than these two.”

³²The teacher of the Law said to him, “Well spoken, Master; you are right when you say that he is one, and there is no other besides him. ³³To love him with all our heart, with all our understanding and with all our strength, and to love our neighbor as ourselves is more important than any burnt offering or sacrifice.”

³⁴Jesus approved this answer and said, “You are not far from the kingdom of God.” And after that, no one dared to ask him any more questions.

Lev 19:18

Dt 4:35; Is 45:21

1S 15:22; Hos 6:6; Am 5:21

Mt 22: 34-40; Lk 10: 25-28

Dt 6:4-5

This will be through grace and the work of God: we will be reborn of God himself.

We would like to know what we shall be once risen, but that is impossible. If we think back on what Paul tried to make us understand on this subject in 1 Corinthians 15:35-57, this we must admit: as long as we are in the present world, a world where material things and time are our natural lot, it is impossible to imagine “the new heavens and the new earth” announced by the prophets and by Jesus (Is 65:17; Rev 21:1-4).

Let us come back to Paul’s comparisons: if someone has never seen more than the seeds of plants or trees, how could she imagine the plant covered with flowers or the tree fully grown? What common feature is there in appearance between the colorless, lifeless little seed and the plant with its flowers swaying in the wind? Whoever looks at the tree or plant knows well the source of this life that she admires. It is today impossible for us to imagine what we shall become, in the totality of our human being, after this transfiguration to which God calls us. When it has taken place we shall understand the vital link between what we shall be then and what we are today.

With this, we understand the double reproach of Jesus to the Sadducees:

You don’t understand the power of God.

They only imagine a caricature of the resurrection.

You don’t understand the Scriptures. Very few books of the Hebrew Bible speak of the resurrection, but all of them refer to a living God who makes us his friends.

I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob (v. 26). If God committed himself to them, could he be indifferent to their death and let them disappear forever, while he enjoys himself in his glory?

• 28. TO LOVE GOD

You shall love the Lord, your God. This first commandment is not among the Ten Commandments of Moses, which only speak of “serving God.” We do read it in Deuteronomy 6:4.

To love God is not a commandment like others, because the commandments show specific actions that should be undertaken or avoided, i.e., you shall rest on the day of the Lord, or you shall not commit adultery. On the other hand, when it comes to loving God there is no limit.

The commandments of the Bible (especially the Ten Commandments of Moses) merely express in a clear manner the demands of our conscience. It should not be necessary to tell us not to steal, and not to slander others. Nev-

Whose son is the Christ?

(Mt 22:41; Lk 20:41; Mt 23:6)

Mt 22: 35 As Jesus was teaching in the 41-46; Temple, he said, "The teachers of the Lk 20: Law say that the Messiah is the son 41-44 of David. How can that be? 36 For Ps 110:1 David himself, inspired by the Holy Spirit, declared: The Lord said to my Lord, 'Sit at my right hand, until I put your enemies under your feet!'
Lk 19:48; 37 If David himself calls him Lord, in 21:38 what way can he be his son?"

Many people came to Jesus, and listened to him gladly.

Mt 23: • 38 As he was teaching, he also 1-3; said to them, "Beware of those
Lk 20: teachers of the Law, who enjoy walk-45-46; ing around in long robes and being Mt 9:27; greeted in the marketplace, 39 and 20:26; who like to occupy reserved seats in Mk 10:43; the synagogues, and the first places
Lk 11:39; Mt 23:6; Lk 11:43

at feasts. 40 They even devour the widow's and the orphan's goods while making a show of long prayers. How severe a sentence they will receive!"

The widow's offering

(Lk 21:1)

• 41 Jesus sat down opposite the Temple treasury, and watched the people dropping money into the treasury box; and many rich people put in large offerings. 42 But a poor widow also came and dropped in two small coins.

43 Then Jesus called his disciples and said to them, "Truly I say to you, this poor widow put in more than all those who gave offerings. 44 For all of them gave from their plenty, but she gave from her poverty, and put in everything she had, her very living."

Lk 21:
1-4;
2K 12:10;
Jn 8:20

ertheless, it is necessary to teach this to children and to unscrupulous persons. Paul says, "The Law was not intended for the good, but for those who do evil" (1 Tim 1:9).

It is the reason why the love of God is not presented in the New Testament as a commandment, but as the fruit of the Spirit that God gives to his sons and daughters: Romans 8, 15 and 22. God is the first to be loved (Mt 6:9-10; 1 Jn 4:17) most specially in the person of his Son: 2 Corinthians 5:16; 1 Peter 1:8. There is no authentic love of neighbor without the love of God: 1 John 5:2.

You shall love the Lord, with all your heart. You shall love him more than you love your loved ones. You shall long for him, you shall forget yourself so that, in everything, you search for what he wants most from you.

You shall love the Lord, with all your mind. You shall devote the best of your intelligence to knowing him. Looking into your own life, you shall understand how much he has guided you. You shall try to understand how the kingdom of God is coming through world and daily events. Praying and reading the Bible regularly, you shall ask God to give you his own Spirit so that you may understand him better.

You shall love the Lord, with all your strength. Since you are very weak in this, you shall ask for his help and strive to unite with the true servants of God, using the means that the Church makes available to you.

The commandment to love your neighbor as you love yourself comes second, because it cannot be understood or fulfilled without love of God. For God asks for more than solidarity with one's neighbor, or concern for those who are suffering. We should make an effort to look at our brothers and sisters in the same way that the Father does. We should give them what the Father wants for them. Among so many good things we could do for our neighbor, we should select those that the Holy Spirit inspires us to do. All this requires that we first know and love God.

• 38. The teachers of the Law were not bad persons. They became teachers of religion because they were interested in religion, but as soon as the teacher stops trying to be a saint, he is only a weak person. The very respect that people show teachers leads them to overlook in themselves many wrongs that in anybody else would be severely censured.

• 41. The poor widow was the only one from among so many worshipers who made retribution to God as he deserves. She was the personification of those uncountable poor, who have practically nothing but somehow find a way to give part of the little they have.

Jesus speaks of the end

(Mt 24:1; Lk 21:5; 19:41; 17:23)

Mt 24:
1-14;
Lk 21:
5-19

13 ¹As Jesus left the Temple, one of his disciples said, “Look, Master, at the enormous stones and wonderful buildings here!” ²And Jesus answered, “You see these great buildings? Not one stone will be left upon another, but all will be torn down.”

1:29

³After a while, when Jesus was sitting on the Mount of Olives, facing the Temple, Peter, James, John and Andrew approached him privately and asked, ⁴“Tell us when this will be. What sign will be given us before all this happens?”

Lk 17:23;
Rev 2:20;
12:9;
1Jn 1:8

⁵Then Jesus began to tell them, “Don’t let anyone mislead you. ⁶Many will come, taking my place, and say, ‘I am the one you are waiting for,’ and they will deceive many people.

⁷When you hear of wars and threats of war, don’t be troubled; this must occur, but the end is not yet.

Is 13:8;
Hos
13:13

⁸Nation will fight nation and kingdom will oppose kingdom. There will be earthquakes everywhere and famines, too. And these will be like the first pains of childbirth. ⁹Be on your guard, for you will be arrested and taken to court. You will be beaten in synagogues; and you will stand before governors and kings for my sake, to bear witness before them. ¹⁰For the preaching of the Gospel to all nations has to come first.

Mt 10:
17-22;
Lk 12:7;
Acts
26:11

Mt 26:13;
Rom
11:25

¹¹So when you are arrested and brought to trial, don’t worry about what you are to say; for you shall say what will be given to you in that hour. It is not you who speak, but the Holy Spirit.

Acts 4:8;
5:32;
7:55

¹²Brother will betray brother, even to death, and the father his child. Children will turn against their parents and have them put to death. ¹³You will be hated by all for my name’s sake, but whoever holds out to the end will be saved.

Mic 7:6

Jn 15:18;
1P 4:14

Last days of Jerusalem

¹⁴So, when you see the idol of the oppressor set in the place where it should not be (may the reader un-

Mt 24:
15-25;
Lk 21:
20-24;
Dn 11:31;
12:11;
1Mac
1:54

The humble person is capable of sacrificing part of his paid time to study or participate in common activities in order to help his companions. The small salary he loses is worth much more than the big salary that wealthy people are not willing to lose. God calls on the poor before anybody else, because only the poor give all that they have to live on.

• 13.1 THE END OF THE WORLD

The prophets of the Bible spoke in a rather obscure way about the end of the history that would initiate God’s universal kingdom. According to them, all nations of the world would join forces to destroy the Holy City of Jerusalem, but right at the moment of greatest despair God would intervene in a triumphant way to establish his own Kingdom (Is 66:18; Ezk 38; Jl 4; Zec 14).

That is why, when Jesus speaks of the destruction of the Temple, the apostles think of the end of time. The answer of Jesus is clear; the tragedy that will end with the destruction of Jerusalem is near but that would not be the end of the world.

This discourse contains Jesus’ warnings about the destruction of the Jewish nation that would occur 30 years later, but what he said regarding these agents clarifies the meaning of the conflicts that occur at present in the whole world.

When you hear of wars (v. 7). This does not mean that God leaves the world in the hands of evil. It is more a delivery than a failure, because humanity is maturing and the nations encounter more complex problems in their life and development. The crisis suffered by the Jewish nation in the time of Jesus was similar to that experienced by other civilizations: something dies and something is born.

People, confused, are easily fooled by propaganda and ideologies. Fear makes them blind and they persecute those who do not share their fanaticism. That is why they hate the true believers.

At the same time, Jesus asks his followers derstand!), then let those in Judea flee to the mountains. ¹⁵If you are on the housetop, don't come down to take anything with you. ¹⁶If you are in the field, don't turn back to fetch your cloak. ¹⁷How hard it will be then for pregnant women and mothers with babies at the breast! ¹⁸Pray that it may not happen in winter. ¹⁹For this will be a time of distress, such as was never known from the beginning, when God created the world, until now; and is never to be known again. ²⁰So that if the Lord had not shortened that time, no one would survive; but he decided to shorten it for the sake of those whom he has chosen.

²¹And if anyone says to you at that time, 'Look, here is the Messiah! Look, he is there!' do not believe it. ²²For false messiahs and false prophets will arise and perform signs and wonders in order to deceive even God's chosen people, if that were possible. ²³Be on your guard then; I have told you everything ahead of time.

The coming of the Son of Man

(Mt 24:29; Lk 21:25)

• ²⁴Later on in those days, after that disastrous time, the sun will grow dark, the moon will not give its light, the stars will fall out of the sky, and the whole universe will be shaken. ²⁵Then people will see the Son of Man coming in the clouds with great power and glory. ²⁶And he will send the angels to gather his chosen people from the four winds, from the ends of the earth to the ends of the sky.

²⁸Learn a lesson from the fig tree: as soon as its branches become tender and it begins to sprout leaves, you know that summer is near. ²⁹In the same way, when you see these things happening, know that the time is near, even at the door. ³⁰Truly, I say to you, this generation will not pass away until all this has happened. ³¹Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.

• ³²But, regarding that day and that hour, no one knows when it will

Mt 24:
29-31;
Lk 21:
25-27

Is 13:10;
Ezk
32:7;
Rev 6:12
Dn 7:
13-14

Mt 5:17;
Lk 16:17

1Thes
5:1;
Acts 1:7

Dn 12:1

Dt 13:2;
2Thes
2:9;
Rev
13:13

to bear witness to him (v. 9) as the only Savior and to proclaim what the Gospel demands of the individual and of society.

Thirty years after Jesus' death, the Jews rebelled against their Roman oppressors. The Roman army reorganized after its first defeats and, its flags adorned with the image of their idols, approached the Holy City. Then many messiahs (v. 22) appeared, that is, those who claimed to be the saviors of the Jewish nation, and they had many followers.

The more fanatic Jews locked themselves in the city of Jerusalem waiting for God's intervention, but they were so divided that they fought among themselves. Those who fled from the city because of hunger were arrested by the Romans and crucified in front of the walls. In the end, when the Romans entered, burning the Temple and the palaces, all those that were not killed—men, women and children—were brought to Rome as slaves.

- 24. Later on... (v. 24). After announcing the end of the Jewish world, Jesus speaks of an even more important event: the end of the world or, better still, its transformation.

The sun will grow dark, the moon will not give its light (v. 24). These are images taken from Isaiah 13:10 and 34:4 that express the confusion, the surprise and the disintegration of the people and the universe before the majesty of the Supreme Judge.

He will send the angels. This is also a common image in Jewish books that spoke of God's judgment. Likewise, the trumpet referred to in Matthew 24:31 and 1 Thessalonians 4:16 should not be understood literally.

Learn a lesson. Jesus comes back to the destruction of Jerusalem.

• 32. In this paragraph, we return to the end of the world. The Day mentioned is the day of the Judgment, called the "Day of Yahweh" in the Prophets (Amos 5:18; Zep 1:15).

No one knows when... Jesus states it clearly. Nevertheless, there have always been people come, not even the angels, not even the Son, but only the Father.

Mt 24:42;
25:13-15;
Lk 19: 12-13;
Mt 24:
37-41;
Lk 12:
38, 40

• ³³ Be alert and watch, for you don't know when the time will come.

Mt 25:31

³⁴ When a man goes abroad and leaves his home, he puts his servants in charge, giving to each one some responsibility; and he orders the doorkeeper to stay awake. ³⁵ So stay awake, for you don't know when the Lord of the house will come, in the

Mt 25:14;
Lk 12:35

evening or at midnight, when the cock crows or before dawn. ³⁶ If he comes suddenly, do not let him catch you asleep.

³⁷ And what I say to you, I say to all: stay awake!"

Conspiracy against Jesus

(Mt 26:2; Lk 22:1; Jn 11:47)

14 • ¹ It was now two days before the feast of the Passover and Unleavened Bread. The chief priests

Mt 26:
1-5;
Lk 22: 1-2;

who believe they know what the angels do not. People in every century have foretold the impending end of the world (2 Thes 2).

Not even the angels or the Son, only the Father. Some are confused by this. Does this not mean that Jesus is not God as the Father is? They must remember that when Jesus speaks of the Father and the Son, he speaks of himself with his human consciousness in relation to the Father. God's infinite knowledge cannot be encompassed by the human mind of Jesus. See notes on Luke 3:21 and Mark 6:1.

God the Father can communicate to Jesus certain prophecies but he cannot tell him, for example: "the end of the world will take place on the 12th of July of the year 2049" because the date is not fixed; it depends on how we make the kingdom of God mature through our efforts and prayers (2 P 3:14).

Modern science shows that time does not pass at the same speed for two persons if one is moving and the other is still; much less equal is the pace of time between God and us. God knows the time as it can be known in eternity, but this does not mean that it corresponds with a certain date in our calendar.

• 33. This is like a summary of the parable of the talents (Mt 25:14-30) and that of the ten young women (Mt 25:1-13). It warns us that we should wait for the Lord who is at work. The doorman symbolizes those who have positions of responsibility in the Church, who are not the owners of the Church but only hold the keys of the Church.

*HOW CHRIST COMES;
CHRISTIAN COMMITMENT*

In several parts of the Gospel, Jesus invites us to be vigilant while waiting for his arrival. How will he come? How can he come to us if we are meant to die before his coming in glory?

It is true that we will meet the Lord when we die. Nevertheless, Jesus comes to us in several ways while we await him, doing our work and living our lives.

Our work (v. 34). One aspect of our commitment to Christ is our commitment to the Christian community, to our Church. This means our participation in common prayer, in the eucharist, in catechesis and other similar events. As we participate in these commitments there is not only one but several "comings" of Christ. We see his coming in those of our brothers and sisters who are converted; he comes to us giving us strength and wisdom; he comes to us through prayer, giving us the inner certainty of his presence.

He also comes in our day-to-day living. The prophets have said time and again that the events that bring renewal and growth in values also bring the Lord. At times, he comes in his resurrection, through happy events that bring life and joy, and more justice and hope for the poor. At other times, he comes through his passion and death.

Precisely because Jesus comes in our daily history, we have a commitment to him to serve our contemporary world.

Be alert, for many begin with generosity, but afterwards they lose sight of the goal and turn out to be mere administrators and activists.

They are committed to works and movements but not to the Lord himself. That is why their life is full of contradictions. For a time they perform marvels and suddenly they fail. They do useful things, but are not aware of the moment they should stop them and follow another path. They do their own work, but do not let the Lord take over their mind, their heart, their whole life.

This does not happen to those who are alert: through them Christ comes to people.

• 14.1 EASTER, THE PASSOVER

The Jews were going to celebrate the

Jn 11:
47-53;
Dt 16:1;
12:1-14

and the teachers of the Law were looking for a way to arrest Jesus on a false charge, and put him to death; ²but they said, "Not during the Festival, for there might be trouble among the people."

Jesus anointed at Bethany

(Mt 26:6; Jn 12:1)

Mt 26:
6-13;
Jn 12:
1-8;
Lk 7:
36-50

³Jesus was in Bethany in the house of Simon the leper. As he was reclining at dinner, a woman entered carrying an alabaster jar of expensive perfume, made of pure nard. She broke the jar and poured the perfumed oil on Jesus' head. ⁴Then some of them became angry and said, "What a useless waste of perfume. ⁵It could have been sold for more than three hundred silver coins and the money given to the poor." And they criticized her.

⁶But Jesus said, "Let her alone; why are you troubling her? What she has just done for me is a very charitable work. ⁷At any time you can help the poor, for you always have them with you, but you will not have me forever. ⁸This woman did what she had to do: she anointed my body for burial, before I die. ⁹Truly, I say to you, wherever the Good News is proclaimed, and this will be throughout the world, what she has done will be told in praise of her."

¹⁰Then Judas Iscariot, one of the Twelve, went off to the chief priests in order to betray Jesus to them. ¹¹On hearing him, they were excited and promised to give him money. So

Dt 15:11

13:10

Mt 26:
14-16;
Lk 22:
3-6;
Jn 6:
64...71;
12:4;
13:11

1480th anniversary of their departure from Egypt. Easter, that is the Passover of the Lord, was the feast of national independence and was the most important holiday of the religious calendar.

For the preceding 40 years, however, they had lost their independence. That is why the Passover would revive in them their desire for freedom and often cause disturbances. From all parts of Palestine the Jews went up to Jerusalem in pilgrimage, because the Passover lamb would be sacrificed in the Temple and eaten in Jerusalem.

Each family was to eat the roasted lamb with lettuce and unleavened bread, alternating the singing of psalms with the blessing of several cups according to an old and very precise ritual. The head of the family would recall the departure from Egypt and, on recalling the past, everyone would ask the Lord to free his humiliated people.

The vast majority, both common people and authorities, were incapable of taking a new look at the future. The salvation of Israel, the people of God, did not consist in first breaking their political chains, but in discovering the secret of universal fellowship which transcends all races and parties.

The Gospel was the ferment capable of liberating humanity, making good triumph over evil. Salvation was in the person of Jesus but they could not see it. Moreover, they distrusted him because his doctrine seemed too idealistic to them, and Judas was one of those who regretted having followed such a useless leader.

Jesus had done very little in the span of two years that followed his baptism by John, but it was enough to raise fears among the authorities. No society can bear the presence of a person, free and without sin.

• 3. See John 12:1 and the notes on Luke 7:36.

A few days before the Passover, while Jesus was at dinner in Bethany (Jn 12:1), Mary publicly demonstrated her tender and passionate love for him. Others present also loved Jesus, although they were unable to express it. Still others, prompted by Judas' remark, were scandalized that Mary should show more concern for Jesus than for the poor.

What she has just done for me is a very charitable work (v. 6). The Jews numbered burying the dead among the "charitable works." Jesus sees in the gesture of Mary a sign, an announcement of his imminent death. Nothing should be lost of Jesus' numbered hours among us. It was far more important to pay attention to and accompany him in these last moments than to be performing charitable deeds for the poor (something similar in Mark 2:19-20 regarding those who are prisoners to their structured fasts and prayers).

You always have them with you (v. 7). It would be inexact to translate this with: "There will always be poor," even if that is a reality, Judas started planning the best way to hand Jesus over to them.

The Lord's supper

(Mt 26:17; Lk 22:7; 1Cor 11:23; Jn 13)

Mt 26:
17-19;
Lk 22: 7-13;
Jn 13

•¹² On the first day of the Festival of Unleavened Bread, the day when the Passover Lamb was killed, the disciples asked him, "Where would you have us go to prepare the Passover meal for you?"

1S 10:
2-5

¹³ So Jesus sent two of his disciples with these instructions, "Go into the city, and there a man will come to you carrying a jar of water. Follow him to the house he enters and say to the owner, ¹⁴'The Master says, Where is the room where I may eat the Passover meal with my disciples?' ¹⁵Then he will show you a large room upstairs, already arranged and furnished. There you will prepare for us." ¹⁶The disciples went off. When they reached the city, they found everything just as Jesus had told them; and they prepared the Passover meal.

¹⁷ When it was evening, Jesus arrived with the Twelve. ¹⁸While they were at table eating, Jesus said, "Truly, I tell you, one of you will betray me, one who shares my meal."

Mt 26:
20-25;
Lk 22:14;
22:21-23

and still more inexact to conclude that for Jesus we are wasting our time striving for a more just society.

Then Judas Iscariot (v. 10). The Gospel stresses only the contrast between the attitude of Mary and that of Judas. Mary's true love leads her to behave in a way that appears stupid to the apostles, while Judas criticizes Mary's good deed for the sake of thrift.

• 12. THE NEW COVENANT

During the Passover supper Jesus wanted to clarify the meaning of his imminent Passion. He was headed toward a death which he freely accepted, a death that would save the world. What would "his" salvation be? It would bring human history to its fulfillment: peoples and races needed to mature, to confront one another and finally to be united in one body. The world would pass through a thousand crises and deaths in order to come to the resurrection. Within such a history God could spread and distribute the riches of his Spirit and bring to holiness his elect. Jesus had presented a message that should guide humanity, but a people of God was also needed, a yeast, a minority who would feel committed to God's work, and to whom God would commit himself.

Twelve centuries before Jesus' birth, God made a covenant with the people of Israel on Mount Sinai: they and their children would be, among all races, the chosen people of God. As time passed and the infidelities of God's people became more evident, the prophets understood that something more was needed: a covenant whose prime effect would be the forgiveness of sins (Jer 31:31). The family of God could no longer be identified with a certain race, but would be a family of believers pardoned of their sins.

On the eve of his death, Jesus remembered the first covenant on Sinai, when the blood of sacrificial animals was spilled (Ex 24:8). He would soon spill his blood for many, that is, for a multitude (Is 53:11). These many were first the "remnant" of Israel, these are those who would recognize the Savior and believe in him, entering the Church, and with them all those who would be integrated coming from other nations. So Jesus purifies through his death those who will be his own people in the world.

Whenever we celebrate the Eucharist (or Mass), we renew this covenant. Jesus is among us as we remember his sacrifice. He becomes our spiritual bread and consecrates us to his Father so that we may participate more and more in his work of salvation.

Jesus' last supper was the first Christian liturgy. Unlike the solemn Temple ceremonies, the liturgical service of primary importance in the life of the Church would be a communal meal in which Jesus offers himself as the bread of life.

I will not taste the fruit of the vine again (v. 25). The Eucharist not only reenacts Jesus' death but also announces the day when Christ, with all humanity reunited in him, would celebrate at the Banquet in the Kingdom.

To understand the meaning of the Lord's Supper, it is necessary to read Jesus' farewell speeches to his apostles, which John situates on this very night of Holy Thursday (Jn 14-17). Jesus came not only to preach but also to spread his Spirit among his believers. In the fu-

Ps 41:10
 19 They were deeply distressed at hearing this and asked him, one after the other, "You don't mean me, do you?" 20 And Jesus answered, "It is one of you Twelve, one who dips his bread in the dish with me. 21 The Son of Man is going as the Scriptures say he will. But alas for that man by whom the Son of Man is betrayed; better for him if he had never been born."

Mt 26: 26-29; Lk 22: 15-20; 1Cor 11: 23-25
 22 While they were eating, Jesus took bread, blessed it and broke it, and gave it to them. And he said, "Take this, it is my body." 23 Then he took a cup, and after he had given thanks, he passed it to them and they all drank from it. 24 And he said, "This is my blood, the blood of the Covenant, poured out for many. 25 Truly, I say to you, I will not taste the fruit of the vine again, until that day when I drink the new wine in the kingdom of God."

Mt 26: 30-35; Lk 22:39; 22:31-34; Ps 115: 118
Peter's denial foretold
 (Mt 26:30; Lk 22:34; Jn 13:37)

Zec 13:7
 26 After singing psalms of praise, they went out to the Mount of Olives. 27 And Jesus said to them, "All of you will be dismayed and fall away; for the Scripture says: I will strike the shepherd and the sheep will be scattered. 28 But after I am raised up, I will go to Galilee ahead of you."

29 Then Peter said to him, "Even though all the others fall away, I will not." 30 And Jesus replied, "Truly I say to you, today, this very night before the cock crows twice, you will deny me three times." 31 But Peter insisted, "Though I have to die with you, I will never deny you." And all of them said the same.

Gethsemane
 (Lk 22:40; Jn 18:1)

• 32 They came to a place which is called Gethsemane, and Jesus said to his disciples, "Sit here while I pray."

33 But he took Peter, James and John along with him, and becoming filled with fear and distress, 34 he said to them, "My soul is full of sorrow, even to death. Remain here and stay awake."

35 Then he went a little further on and fell to the ground, praying that, if possible, this hour might pass him by. Jesus said, 36 "Abba, Father, all

1:14;
16:7Mt 26:
36-46;
Lk 22:
40-455:37;
9:2;
13:3;
Jn 12:27Gal 4:6;
Mt 6:10;

ture he would be present and empower them in a special way whenever they would gather to celebrate the Holy Supper. John explains this in John 6 and Paul in 1 Corinthians 11:17.

See notes on Matthew 26:26.

• 32. THE SILENCE OF GOD

Jesus is alone as he confronts death to overcome it, carrying on his shoulders the destiny of all humanity. He sees the wickedness of people who will maltreat him or let him be maltreated. He also sees behind it all the power of Darkness.

At this moment Jesus is the man of sorrows, aware of all afflictions, made one with sin. He is burdened by all the wickedness on earth. For this his death will be the price, the atonement. Face to face in prayer with his beloved and just Father, Jesus experiences anguish as great as death itself.

Jesus continually repeats one phrase which expresses the perfect prayer: "Father, your will be done." There are moments and places in which the persecuted church is in agony and cannot do anything other than pray that the will of God be done. During these times her prayer is more effective than ever.

How mysterious is the agony of the Son of God (agony means struggle): he who will give countless martyrs the inner strength to face their tortures fearlessly, allows himself to experience the very extreme of human weakness. This is for us. Even filled with fear or a sense of weakness, we shall not doubt: he will make us firm.

Let us look at Jesus our Savior, who had no faults or need to be purified. Yet he came to know humiliations, sufferings and even the silence of God to reach the maturity he still lacked in order to become a human being, the head of humanity (Heb 2:10).

Jn 5:30;
6:38

things are possible for you; take this cup away from me. Yet not what I want, but what you want.”

³⁷Then he came and found them asleep, and he said to Peter, “Simon, are you sleeping? Couldn’t you stay awake for one hour?” ³⁸Stay awake and pray, all of you, so that you may not slip into temptation. The spirit indeed is willing, but the body is weak. ³⁹And going away he prayed, saying the same words. ⁴⁰When he came back to the disciples, he found them asleep again; they could not keep their eyes open, and they did not know what to say to him.

⁴¹When he came back the third time, he said, “You can sleep on now and take your rest! It is all over, the time has come: the Son of Man is now given into the hands of sinners. ⁴²Get up, let us go! Look: the one who betrays me is approaching.”

The arrest

(Mt 26:47; Lk 22:47; Jn 18:2)

Mt 26:
47-56;
Lk 22:
47-53;
Jn 18:
2-11

• ⁴³While Jesus was still speaking, Judas, one of the twelve, came up. With him was a crowd armed with swords and clubs, who had been sent by the chief priests, the teachers of the Law and the elders. ⁴⁴The traitor had arranged a signal for them, “The one I kiss, he is the man. Arrest him, and take him away under guard.”

⁴⁵So, when he came, he went directly to Jesus, calling, “Master! Master!” and kissed him. ⁴⁶Then they seized Jesus and arrested him. ⁴⁷One of the bystanders drew his sword and struck out at the High Priest’s servant, cutting off his ear.

⁴⁸Jesus turned to them and said, “So you have set out against a robber! Did you need swords and clubs to arrest me? ⁴⁹Day after day I was among you, teaching in the Temple, and you did not arrest me. But let the Scriptures be fulfilled.” ⁵⁰Then they all deserted him and fled.

⁵¹A young man, covered by nothing but a linen cloth, followed Jesus. As they took hold of him, ⁵²he left the cloth in their hands and fled away naked.

• ⁵³They led Jesus to the High Priest; and all the chief priests assembled with the elders and the teachers of the Law. ⁵⁴Peter had followed him at a distance, and went right into the courtyard of the High Priest, where he sat with the guards, warming himself at the fire.

Lk 19:47

Zec 13:7;
Jn 16:32

Mt 26:
57-68;
Lk 22:54;
22:63-71;
Jn 18: 15...18

• 43. JUDAS

Judas was one of the Twelve. After a night of prayer (Lk 6:12), how could Jesus have chosen the one who would betray him? When Judas followed Jesus, he waited, like the rest of the apostles, for a liberator in the ordinary sense. The others, as they came to know Jesus better, gradually changed their ambitions, but Judas did not. Judas betrayed Jesus to take revenge against a Master who had disappointed him. Though Judas was among Jesus’ closest group, he could not return the Master’s affection for him and finally returned hatred for love, falling into an abyss of evil.

Perhaps the other apostles contributed as well to Judas’ failure. Judas, like Levi–Matthew, joined a team in which the majority were fishermen from Galilee. Had they tried hard enough to integrate him into their group?

• 53. THE TRIAL OF JESUS

Jesus appeared before two courts. First before the Sanhedrin, or the Supreme Council of the Jews, where he was accused of blasphemy. Later he was brought before the Roman governor Pilate and accused of being a political agitator.

The reason for this double process was that the Jews, under Roman rule, had lost the power to issue the death sentence. So, after judging Jesus according to their law, that is, the laws of the Bible, they asked Pontius Pilate to implement the death penalty. To impress and convince Pilate, they submitted new charges.

It is very difficult to say whether Jesus’ trial was dealt with in a legal way or not. It was similar to many other trials, in which the authorities can twist the law and condemn their opponents without resorting to obvious fraud.

⁵⁵ Now the chief priests and the whole Council tried to find some evidence against Jesus so that they might put him to death, but they were unable to find any. ⁵⁶ Even though many came up to speak falsely against him, their evidence did not agree. ⁵⁷ At last some stood up, and gave this false witness: ⁵⁸ "We heard him say, 'I will destroy this Temple made by human hands, and in three days I will build another not made by human hands.'" ⁵⁹ But even so, their evidence did not agree.

13:2;
Jn 2:19;
Acts
6:14

• ⁶⁰ The High Priest then stood up in the midst of them and asked Jesus, "Have you no answer at all? What about this evidence against you?" ⁶¹ But Jesus was silent and made no reply.

Is 50:6

The High Priest put a second question to him, "Are you the Christ, the Son of the Blessed One?" ⁶² Then Jesus answered, "I am, and you will see the Son of Man seated at the right hand of the Most Powerful, and coming with the clouds of heaven around him." ⁶³ The High Priest tore his clothes to show his horror, and said, "What more evidence do we need?" ⁶⁴ You have just heard his blasphemous words. What is your decision?" And they all condemned Jesus, saying, "He must die."

13:26;
Ps
110:1;

⁶⁵ Some of them began to spit on Jesus; and blindfolding him, they struck him and said, "Play the prophet!" And the guards set upon him with blows.

Peter disowns Jesus

(Mt 26:69; Jn 18:15)

• ⁶⁶ While Peter was below in the courtyard, a servant-girl of the High Priest came by. ⁶⁷ Noticing Peter beside the fire, she looked straight at him and said, "You also were with Jesus, the Nazarene." ⁶⁸ But he denied it, "I don't know or understand

Mt 26:
69-75;
Lk 22:
55-62;
Jn 18:
15-18;
18:25-27

• 60. THE SENTENCE OF JESUS

The priests could not sentence Jesus to death for minor violations of the Law. That is why they had to find something more important; it is what occupies the central place in the Gospel: Are you the Son of God?

Jesus answered by combining two Biblical texts that reflect the divine personality of the Savior. Son of Man (the Human One) who comes from God himself (Dn 7:13), who is seated at the right hand of God as an equal (Ps 110). With this assertion, Jesus clearly affirmed that he is not only a son of God like a saint or an envoy of God, but the Only One who shares the divinity of the Father.

The priests were not mistaken in their understanding of what Jesus claimed to be as Son of God. They condemned him, not just because he used a dangerous word, but because in all his way of acting Jesus put himself in a place fitting only to God. They could soothe their conscience, for they were upholding the honor due to the Only One.

So they forgot that actually they hated him, because he had denounced their hypocrisy, their lack of faith and their love of money. Jesus felt free about religious rules they defended and had caused them to fall from their pedestals. God had come in the person of Jesus to demand from them the fruits of the vineyard (Mk 12:2) calling them to account, and they opposed him.

Jesus was condemned in the name of God. He did not rebel against the unjust sentence imposed by the religious leaders of his people who were the legal, though unworthy, representatives of God. This was his perfect obedience to the Father.

• 66. The apostles did not lack character or courage; if so, Jesus would not have chosen them. Peter was sincere when he said: "Although all abandon you, I will not." They were ready to die for Jesus, as people are in the enthusiasm of a battle, but what happened was quite different. When Jesus was arrested, the apostles became confused because he did not use his divine power and showed no resistance to his enemies. It would be wrong to say that the apostles were cowards until they received the Holy Spirit.

It was an understandable reaction for them to flee from the scene of Jesus' arrest. Their fleeing, however, shook to the foundations all what you are talking about.” And he went out through the gateway, and a cock crowed.

⁶⁹The servant-girl saw him there and told the bystanders, “This man is one of them.” ⁷⁰But Peter denied it again. After a little while those standing nearby said to Peter, “Of course you are one of them; you are a Galilean, aren’t you?” ⁷¹And Peter began to justify himself with curses and oaths, “I don’t know the man you are talking about.”

⁷²Just then a cock crowed a second time, and Peter remembered what Jesus had said to him, “Before the cock crows twice, you will deny me three times.” And he broke down and wept.

Jesus before Pilate

(Mt 27:11; Lk 23:2; Jn 18:28)

15 ¹Early in the morning, the chief priests, the elders and the teachers of the Law (that is, the whole Council or Sanhedrin) had their plan ready. They put Jesus in chains, led him away and handed him over to Pilate.

Mt 27:
1-2;
27:11-26;
Lk 22:66;
23:1-5;
23:13-25;
Jn 18:
28-40;
19:4-16

the faith they had after living day by day with Jesus for the past two years. It was more than fear that caused Peter to deny Jesus; in fact, he did not yet know who Jesus really was.

The denial of Peter is a real and serious fall, although God forgives the sin the instant Peter’s gaze meets Jesus and Peter repents (Lk 22:61). This failure however, will compel him, to the end of his life, not to rely on himself alone. Peter, Rock and responsible for the Universal Church, would remain ever conscious of his personal weakness and never find peace until he followed Jesus by giving up his life for him (Jn 21:19).

• 15.6 Why did the crowd choose Barabbas? Because the way to liberation that Jesus proposes requires time, a sense of responsibility and sacrifice. On the contrary, Barabbas is the example of irresponsible violence that satisfies our desire for vengeance.

Here, the Gospel does not claim to make all ²Pilate asked him, “Are you the King of the Jews?” Jesus answered, “You say so.” ³As the chief priests accused Jesus of many things, ⁴Pilate asked him again, “Have you no answer at all? See how many charges they bring against you.” ⁵But Jesus gave no further answers, much to Pilate’s surprise.

14:61

• ⁶At every Passover festival, Pilate used to free any prisoner the people asked for. ⁷Now there was a man called Barabbas, jailed with the rioters who had committed murder in the uprising. ⁸When the crowd went up to ask Pilate the usual favor, ⁹he said to them, “Do you want me to set free the King of the Jews?” ¹⁰for he realized that the chief priests had handed Jesus over to him out of envy. ¹¹But the chief priests stirred up the crowd to ask instead for the release of Barabbas. ¹²Pilate replied, “And what shall I do with the man you call King of the Jews?” ¹³The crowd shouted back, “Crucify him!” ¹⁴Pilate asked, “What evil has he done?” But they shouted the louder, “Crucify him!”

Acts
3:14;
13:28

the Jews of Jesus’ time responsible for his death. The Gospel bears witness to one fact: the entire people, not just their leaders, had already rejected Jesus as they were soon to reject Christian preaching (Rom 10:19).

One of the first things that the Spirit taught the apostles was that this rejection, so scandalous for Jewish believers, was part of God’s plan (Acts 4:18; Rom 11:25-32). It was already prefigured in the story of Joseph: “Don’t grieve and reproach yourselves for selling me, because God has sent me before you to save your lives” (Gen 45:5).

Jesus is the victim for the sin of the world (1 John 4:10). For him, there were a thousand ways of being a victim and of giving his life for those he loved but the rejection of the Messiah by his own people gave a new meaning to his sacrifice. The rejection of Jesus by his people continued the past history of this people of God who had refused so many times to follow the way of salvation that God was offering them.

Jesus crowned with thorns

(Mt 27:27; Jn 19:1)

Mt 27:
27-31;
Jn 19:
1-3

• ¹⁵ As Pilate wanted to please the people, he freed Barabbas; and having had Jesus flogged, Pilate handed him over to be crucified.

¹⁶ The soldiers took him inside the courtyard, known as the praetorium, and called the rest of their companions. ¹⁷ They clothed him in a purple cloak, and twisting a crown of thorns, they forced it onto his head. ¹⁸ Then they began saluting him, “Long life to the King of the Jews!”

¹⁹ With a stick they gave him blows on the head and spat on him; then they knelt down, pretending to worship him.

²⁰ When they had finished mocking him, they pulled off the purple cloak and put his own clothes on him.

The crucifixion

Mt 27:
32-33;
Lk 23:26;
Jn 19:17

The soldiers led him out of the city to crucify him. ²¹ On the way they met Simon of Cyrene, father of Alexander and Rufus, who was coming in from the country, and forced him to carry the cross of Jesus.

Mt 27:
33-34;
Lk 23:
33-34;
Jn 19: 18-24

²² When they had led him to the place called Golgotha, which means the Skull, ²³ they offered him wine mixed with myrrh, but he would not

Pro 31:6

God had said: “They have rejected me as their king” (1 S 8:8). Now God sends his own Son and the community delivers him to pagans.

John is inviting us to ask ourselves if God could come in our midst without being rejected by us (Jn 1:15). And Paul shows us that the death on the cross of the God-Man was part of God’s paradoxical wisdom that we have such a hard time to accept (1 Corinthians 1:17-24).

• 15. Jesus was subjected to torture and mockery and everything that befalls the condemned anywhere in the world, when police and military no longer consider them as persons and brothers and sisters. To comply with Roman law Jesus was scourged, but this was not done out of cruelty; the loss of blood and exhaustion caused by such a scourging would take it. ²⁴ Then they nailed him to the cross, and divided his clothes among themselves, casting lots to decide what every man should take.

Ps 22:19

²⁵ It was about nine o’clock in the morning when they crucified him. ²⁶ The statement of his offense was displayed above his head, and it read, “The King of the Jews.” ²⁷ They also crucified two robbers with him, one on his right and one on his left. ²⁸ And the Scripture was fulfilled which says: And with lawless ones he was numbered.

Is 53:12

²⁹ People passing by laughed at him, shook their heads and jeered, “Aha! So you are able to tear down the Temple and build it up in three days? ³⁰ Save yourself now, and come down from the cross!”

Mt 27:
39-44;
Lk 23:
35-37;
Mk 14:58;
Ps 22:
8-9;
Job 16:4

³¹ In the same way the chief priests and the teachers of the Law mocked him, saying to one another, “The man who saved others cannot save himself. ³² Let’s see the Messiah, the king of Israel, come down from his cross, and then we will believe in him.” Even the men who were crucified with Jesus insulted him.

The death of Jesus

(Mt 27:45; Lk 23:44; Jn 19:28)

• ³³ When noon came, darkness

Mt 27:
45-54;
Lk 23:
44-47;
Jn 19: 28-30;

hasten the death of the crucified man, thus shortening his agony.

A convicted man with his arms nailed to the cross would suffocate. To make breathing possible, he would shift his weight from his feet to his arms, thus increasing the unbearable pain caused by the nails in the feet and the wrists. As soon as he no longer had enough strength to do this, he would suffocate and die. The bitter wine offered was a drink commonly used by Roman soldiers. Although myrrh lessens pain, Jesus rejected what would have reduced his pain.

• 33. RECONCILIATION

Eloi, Eloi, lamma sabachthani? These are the opening words of Psalm 22 that begins with a cry of anguish and ends with certainty of Am 8:9 fell over the whole land and lasted until three o'clock; ³⁴and at three o'clock Jesus cried out in a loud voice, "Eloi, Eloi, lamma sabach-thani?" which means, "My God, my God, why have you deserted me?" ³⁵As soon as they heard these words, some of the bystanders said, "Listen! He is calling for Elijah." ³⁶And one of them went quickly to fill a sponge with bitter wine, and putting it on a reed, gave it to him to drink, saying, "Now let's see whether Elijah comes to take him down."

Lk 23:46 ³⁷But Jesus uttered a loud cry and gave up his spirit. ³⁸And immediately the curtain that enclosed the Temple sanctuary was torn in two from top to bottom.

Heb
6:19;
9:3

³⁹The captain, who was standing in front of him, saw how Jesus died and heard the cry he gave; and he said, "Truly, this man was the Son of God."

⁴⁰There were also some women watching from a distance; among them were Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James the younger and of Joses, and Salome, ⁴¹who had followed Jesus when he was in Galilee and saw to his needs. There were also others who had come up with him to Jerusalem.

The burial

• ⁴²It was now evening, and as it was Preparation Day, that is the day before the Sabbath, ⁴³Joseph of Arimathea boldly went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. Joseph was a respected member of the

Mt 27:
55-56;
Lk 23:49;
Jn 19:25;
Mk 6:3;
16:1;
Lk 8:1-3

Mt 27:
57-61;
Lk 23:
50-55;
Jn 19:
38-42

Dt 21:
22-2

victory. This psalm makes constant reference to the passion of Jesus.

Jesus' shout at the moment of death presents a mystery, for a crucified man ordinarily would die from exhaustion and suffocation and be unable to cry out in this manner. No one could take life away from Jesus; it was in his own power, and he surrendered his life when he chose to do so. Those near him were taken aback: was it a shout of defeat or of victory?

The death of a person is sometimes cause for division in a family. At other times a death leads to reconciliation. The cross Jesus died on was made of two wooden beams, a vertical one pointed towards the skies, and the other horizontal, stretched out between heaven and earth. Jesus reconciles all people with God and with each other.

Those who see in Jesus' death God's greatest manifestation of love for humanity become reconciled with God. They are no longer controlled by their fear of God and come to understand that we are not subject to blind fate, but are always in God's loving care (Rom 5).

The curtain which enclosed the Temple sanctuary was torn in two. God no longer remains in that place where no mortal could enter. God left the awe-inspiring temple shrine and is now present to all of us through his wounded Son—wounded, not only by sin, but also by the compassion he feels for us.

Reconciliation among persons and nations. Before Jesus entered our world, God had not begun to lift the barriers that divided people but limited himself to relating with just one people, the Jewish people. From the time of Jesus' birth, all were called to enter the Kingdom (Eph 2:11-16). Now, the knowledge of Jesus crucified would be the basis of faith and unity. Knowing and believing in him, persons and nations would become reconciled, despite the differences dividing them.

Truly, this man was the Son of God (v. 39). Assuredly, the Roman captain proclaimed that Jesus was a just man (Lk 23:47), that is, an outstanding man. Mark intentionally places on the lips of the captain the words "Son of God," because this pagan officer represents the pagan nations who would recognize the Son of God in this crucified man.

On several occasions Jesus insisted that he not be proclaimed Son of God (Mk 1:44). He did this because no one can know who God is or what being Son of God means (Mt 11:27), until he has known how Jesus died and come to believe in his resurrection. See Romans 3:24.

• ⁴² Joseph of Arimathea hastened to claim and bury the body of Jesus, because the Jewish law demanded burial before nightfall of the bodies of convicted people (Dt 21:22), and even more so on a day which preceded an important feast. The tomb selected had been cut from rock on a hillside. The entrance was very low and sealed with a big round stone, similar Council, who was himself waiting for the kingdom of God.

⁴⁴Pilate was surprised that Jesus should have died so soon; so he summoned the captain and inquired if Jesus was already dead. ⁴⁵After hearing the captain, he let Joseph have the body.

⁴⁶Joseph took it down and wrapped it in the linen sheet he had bought. He laid the body in a tomb that had been cut out of the rock, and rolled a stone across the entrance to the tomb. ⁴⁷Now Mary of Magdala and Mary the mother of Joses took note of where the body had been laid.

He has been raised, he is not here
(Mt 28; Lk 24; Jn 20)

Mt 28:
1-8;
Lk 24: 1-12;
Jn 20: 1-10;
Mk 14:8

16 • When the Sabbath was over, Mary of Magdala, Mary the mother of James, and Salome bought spices so that they might go and anoint the body. ²And very early in the morning on the first day of the week, just after sunrise, they came to the tomb.

³They were saying to one another, "Who will roll back the stone for us from the entrance to the tomb?" ⁴But as they looked up, they noticed that the stone had already been rolled away. It was a very big stone.

⁵As they entered the tomb, they saw a young man in a white robe seated on the right, and they were amazed. ⁶But he said to them, "Don't be alarmed; you are looking for Jesus of Nazareth who was crucified; he has been raised and is not here. This is, however, the place where they laid him. ⁷Now go and tell his disciples and Peter: Jesus is going ahead of you to Galilee; you will see him there just as he told you." ⁸The women went out and fled from the tomb, for terror and amazement had

Jn 11:38

Acts
1:10;
Rev 7:9

Acts
2:23;
3:15;
4:10

to that used in a mill. See commentary on John 19:41.

Like the seed that is buried in the soil, the body of Jesus was buried so that new life could flourish (Rom 6:3-5). See commentary on Matthew 27:52.

• 16.1 JESUS HAS BEEN RAISED FROM THE DEAD

Jesus' history comes to an end with the discovery of the empty tomb. In the last pages of the Gospel we find a brief account of the most important apparitions of Jesus after his death. He is no longer the earthly Jesus but the resurrected one, born again of the Father and never to die again, as Psalm 2 says: "You are my son and on this very day I have given you life."

Jesus has risen. The Gospel narrates events that took place after his death and mentions the names of those who saw the resurrected Jesus. Can we believe them? We would like more details to support our faith, but if even thousands of interviews with eyewitnesses were published, with pictures in full color to support the statements, there would always be room for doubt. We do not see him, we cannot find him. Where is he?

Actually it is not important whether there are few or many witnesses. This is a matter of faith and faith is something personal.

We doubt, not because there is not enough evidence, but because the event overwhelms us. How can we believe in a resurrection? The evidence, nevertheless, is there and has withstood recurring criticisms and even modern studies.

Finally, who will believe? Those whose own experience has prepared them to accept the most fundamental truth: the living God loves people and restores them to life. Some persons are predisposed to believe because they have experienced that God himself walks with them in their trials and gives them hope when everything seems lost. Because of this, they recognize in Christ the ideal human being and understand that he had to suffer before reaching his glory. They have learned the ways of God and that is why they believe the witnesses of the resurrected Christ.

It is not more difficult to believe in Christ's resurrection than to believe in his words, for both go together. "Those who believe have overcome the world," John the apostle says (1 Jn 5:5). This means overcoming the false meaning that most people give to their existence due to their ignorance of God. Whoever seized them. And they were so afraid that they said nothing to anyone.

Short conclusion of Mark's Gospel

Jn 20:
11-18

•⁹ After Jesus rose early on the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary of Magdala, from whom he had driven out seven demons.¹⁰ She went and reported the news to his followers, who were now mourning and weeping.¹¹ But when they heard that he lived, and had been seen by her, they would not believe it.

Lk 24:
13-35

¹² After this he showed himself in another form to two of them, as they were walking into the country.¹³ These men also went back and told the others, but they did not believe them.

¹⁴ Later Jesus showed himself to the Eleven while they were at table. He reproached them for their unbelief, and stubbornness, in refusing to believe those who had seen him after he had risen.

•¹⁵ Then he told them, "Go out to the whole world and proclaim the Good News to all creation."¹⁶ The one who believes and is baptized will be saved; the one who refuses to believe will be condemned.¹⁷ Signs like

Lk 24:
36-49;
Jn 20:
19-23;
1Cor
15:5

Mt 28:
18-20

Acts
2:38;
16:31

Lk 10:17;
9:10;

believes has overcome the fears each of us has when we have to pass through uncharted paths, when we have to set reason aside and entrust ourselves to God's hands.

• 9. In verse 8 there is an abrupt ending to Mark's Gospel. We were looking forward to the meeting between Jesus and the apostles in Galilee, but it does not take place. Why? We do not know. We find only a series of brief references to Jesus' appearances after his resurrection.

• 15. Proclaim the Good News to all creation. The Good News is the seed that will be planted in the world and will flourish, in its proper time, in every field of human endeavor. Salvation is not a matter of saving isolated souls or individual beings. The Gospel is to be proclaimed to all creation in all activities and acts of those who have been renewed by baptism. They are to be the yeast that transforms human history.

The one who refuses to believe will be condemned (16). There seems to be a threat and its erroneous interpretation was going to have countless consequences. Even if, in the past, we have read into this a condemnation to hell, this is not the meaning of the text.

The one who refuses to believe is one of those to whom the message has been presented, someone who has also seen and received signs that are eloquent enough for that person to be able to recognize the hand of God. People in these situations will be condemned, that is to say, when they give an account of their good and bad deeds, they will receive "a" condemnation even if they have been victims of many influences. On that day, they will have to admit that they have been at fault, perhaps even seriously. On the other hand, those who believe and are baptized are saved, that is to say, they enjoy the gifts that God gives us through his Son Jesus: they have been profoundly renewed and their lives have taken another direction. They are going to participate in the mission of God's people in history, a mysterious and magnificent work without which human beings would be condemned to lose themselves in every sense of the word.

THE NAME OF JESUS

On the day of his resurrection, Jesus' human nature begins to participate fully in divine Glory (Rom 1:4). Jesus now asks us to believe in his Name, that is, in the divine power he has just received and that works through him.

The Name is a word that has little or no meaning for us. For the Jews it meant the active presence of God. This term allowed them to speak of God's mysterious presence in the world without disregarding his greatness. The Bible does not say that God walked with the Hebrews toward the promised land (for God does not walk); instead it says that his Name or his Face (Ex 33:14) was among them. God's presence could not be confined within his temple, but the Bible says that his Name dwelt in this temple, from whence he blessed all the activities of his people (1 K 8:27).

The Name, thus, means divine presence or power. Paul says that the resurrected Jesus has received this Name that outshines any other (Phil 2:9). God the Father has given it to him and Jesus, who has received it, is not less than him, since whatever belongs to his Father is

Acts 2:4;
8:7;
14:3;
19:6;
1Cor 14:2

Acts
28:3

these will accompany those who have believed: in my Name they will cast out demons and speak new languages; ¹⁸they will pick up snakes, and if they drink anything poisonous, they will be unharmed; they will lay their hands on the sick, and they will be healed.”

¹⁹So then, after speaking to them, the Lord Jesus was taken up into heaven and took his place at the right hand of God. ²⁰The Eleven went forth and preached everywhere, while the Lord worked with them and confirmed the message by the signs that accompanied it.

Lk 24:
50-53;
Acts 1:
4-14

now his as well. Jesus does not receive glory as one receives a title or an honor (as already proclaimed in Is 9:5), for divine glory can be granted only to God. If he receives a divine title, it is because he actually received divinity from the Father in the beginning—divinity is his very being.

Thus, Jesus is as much God as the Father, but he is so in a different way, by receiving everything from God who possesses all. That is why it is written that his Name is the Son (Heb 1:4). When we speak to the Father in the Name of Jesus, this means much more than bolstering ourselves with his merits (Heb 5:9) or making use of his valuable intercession (Heb 7:25). We present ourselves as sons and daughters, knowing that God embraces us with the same paternal love he has for his own Beloved One (Eph 1:6).

From then on our Lord Jesus Christ, with divine power, begins little by little to direct human history and the personal path of each one of us to himself. The apostles were sent into the world to heal and sanctify it. The miracles and healings are not ends in themselves; they are only signs and means. The goal of evangelization is that all creation may be gathered around the person of the Son-of-God-become-human, through the power of his Spirit. “Do not fear,” the Lord says, “my Church is not a shelter against the world, its temptations and problems; rather each of you is baptized to be an apostle.”

Signs like these will accompany those who have believed. The Acts of the Apostles reports these signs and miracles. Even today they can be seen wherever Christians fulfill their mission of evangelizing the world.

PAGE 1450 – BLANK

The third Gospel is the work of a disciple of Paul, probably a physician (Col 4:14) of Syrian origin. He must have converted to the Christian faith in the 40's when the persecuted Christians of Jerusalem and Caesarea took refuge outside Palestine, bringing the message with them. As early as 50, Luke accompanied Paul in his missions (Acts 16:10).

Luke may have concluded his Gospel and Acts in Greece. For him, these books were the two halves of the same work and they were probably finished in 63 or 64. Before, Luke had been in Rome where he arrived in 61 when he accompanied Paul who was a prisoner.

Luke tells us that he went to seek the testimonies of the first servants of the Word, namely, the apostles (1:1-5). In fact, more than once, Luke went with Paul to Jerusalem and Caesarea, two great centers of the Church in Palestine, and these first communities kept the documents that the first three gospels used.

Luke, the same as Mark, kept the two main sections that served as the basis of the Church's early catechesis, namely, the activity of Jesus in Galilee and his final days in Jerusalem. But between them, Luke inserted the content of another document with many sayings of Jesus. He intentionally placed them during Jesus' journey from Galilee to Jerusalem to show that Christian life is placed under the sign of the cross.

Other documents of the first Christian communities of Palestine provided Luke with the content of his first two chapters devoted to the infancy of Jesus. It is the testimony of the primitive community of which Mary was a member. From the very start, these chapters give to the Gospel of Luke its own personality. If we had to characterize it in one word, we would have to say that it is the most human of the four.

We can see this profoundly human aspect of Luke in his care to recall the attitude of Jesus toward women. Luke had left his family to follow Paul in his missions and, as a result, he always lived with insecurity and provisionally and more than others, he underlined the incompatibility of the Gospel with possessions.

Luke learned a great deal from his teacher, Paul. He emphasized the words of Jesus that remind us that salvation is always, first and foremost, a personal gift of God rather than a reward for our merits. This highlighting of the strange mercy of God has given us the unforgettable parables of chapter 15.

After the infancy narrative (1-2) and the account of the baptism of Jesus in Judea, the Gospel of Luke is made up of three sections:

- The ministry of Jesus in Galilee: 3:1-9:56
- The journey through Samaria to Jerusalem: 9:57-18:17
- The events of Jerusalem: 18:18-24.

Acts
4:31;
8:25

1 • ¹Several people have set themselves to relate the events that have taken place among us, ²as they were told by the first witnesses who later became ministers of the Word. ³After I myself had carefully gone over the whole story from the beginning, it seemed right for me to give you, Theophilus, an orderly account, ⁴so that your Excellency may know the truth of all you have been taught.

Acts 1:1

The birth of John the Baptist foretold

24:10

• ⁵In the days of Herod, king of Judea, there lived a priest named Zechariah, belonging to the priestly clan of Abiah. Elizabeth, Zechariah's wife, also belonged to a priestly family. ⁶Both of them were upright in the eyes of God, and lived blamelessly in accordance with all the laws and commands of the Lord, ⁷but they had no child. Elizabeth could not have any and now they were both very old.

Gen
11:30;
25:21;
29:31;
Jdg 13:2;
1S 1:5

⁸Now, while Zechariah and those with him were fulfilling their office, ⁹it fell to him by lot, according to the custom of the priests, to enter the sanctuary of the Lord and burn incense. ¹⁰At the time of offering incense, all the people were praying outside; ¹¹it was then that an angel of the Lord appeared to him, standing on the right side of the altar of incense. ¹²On seeing the angel, Zechariah was deeply troubled and fear took hold of him.

Mt 1:20

Jdg 6:22;
Dn 8:17Gen 15:1;
Dn 10:12

¹³But the angel said to him, "Don't be afraid, Zechariah, be assured that your prayer has been heard. Your wife Elizabeth will bear you a son and you shall name him John. ¹⁴He will bring joy and gladness to you, and many will rejoice at his birth.

Gen
17:19;
Jdg 13:3

¹⁵This son of yours will be great in the eyes of the Lord. Listen: he shall never drink wine or strong drink, but he will be filled with holy spirit even from his mother's womb. ¹⁶Through him, many of the people of Israel will turn to the Lord their God. ¹⁷He himself will open the way to the Lord with the spirit and power of the prophet Elijah; he will reconcile fa-

Num 6:3;
Jdg
16:17;
Lk 1:41;
Jer 1:5Mal 2:6;
1K 17:1;
Mal 3:1;
Mt 11:14;
Mal 3:24;
Is 40:3

• 1.1 Luke dedicates his work to Theophilus, who may have been a well-to-do Christian. According to the custom of the times (printing did not exist), Luke gave him his manuscript with the expectation that several copies would be made at his expense for the use of Christian communities. Luke would also dedicate the Acts of the Apostles to Theophilus.

• 5. In the days of Herod. This Herod was the father of "Tetrarch Herod" who is recorded in 3:1 and whom Jesus knew. He was the last king of the Jews. When he died, Judea lost its autonomy. This Gospel begins in the Temple, and will end in the Temple. This first book of Luke will take place in a setting that is strictly Jewish. Only in his second book, the Acts, shall we find the extension of the Gospel to all the nations. God's work begins with simple believers—there were many of them in Israel, those who in the Psalms are called "the poor of Yahweh."

Among the Jews, there were a number of priestly families called Aaron's descendants. All the men from these families were priests from generation to generation. From time to time they had the privilege and duty to fulfill priestly functions in the Jerusalem temple, but the rest of the time they worked in their towns and villages as ordinary citizens.

Elizabeth could not have children (v. 7). As with Sarah, Rebecca and Rachel (famous ancestors of the Jewish people), and Hannah (mother of the prophet Samuel) this occurred so that God's goodness and power shown to the humble and despised would be made more obvious (1 S 1).

Your prayer has been heard (v. 13). Zechariah wanted to have a son, but no longer hoped for one. However, in the temple he prayed for the salvation God would grant his people and is promised both salvation and a son.

He shall never drink wine (v. 15). In Israel many men consecrated themselves to God in this way: they neither cut their hair nor drank alcoholic drinks and withdrew from the world for a while (Num 6). They were called Nazirites.

thers and children, and lead the disobedient to wisdom and righteousness, in order to make ready a people prepared for the Lord.”

¹⁸Zechariah said to the angel, “How can I believe this? I am an old man and my wife is elderly, too.”

¹⁹The angel replied, “I am Gabriel, who stands before God, and I am the one sent to speak to you, and to bring you this good news! My words will come true in their time. ²⁰But you will not believe, and now you will be silent and unable to speak until this has happened.”

²¹Meanwhile, the people waited for Zechariah, and they were surprised that he delayed so long in the sanctuary. ²²When he finally appeared, he could not speak to them, and they realized that he had seen a vision in the sanctuary. He remained dumb and made signs to them.

²³When his time of service was completed, Zechariah returned home, ²⁴and some time later Elizabeth became pregnant. For five months she kept to herself, remaining at home, and thinking, ²⁵“This, for me, is the Lord’s doing! This is his time for mercy, and for taking away my public disgrace.”

The annunciation

(Mt 1:18)

• ²⁶In the sixth month, the angel Gabriel was sent from God to a town of Galilee called Nazareth. He was sent ²⁷to a young virgin, who was betrothed to a man named Joseph, of the family of David; and the virgin’s name was Mary.

²⁸The angel came to her and said, “Rejoice, full of grace, the Lord is with you.” ²⁹Mary was troubled at these words, wondering what this greeting could mean.

³⁰But the angel said, “Do not fear, Mary, for God has looked kindly on you. ³¹You shall conceive and bear a son, and you shall call him Jesus. ³²He will be great, and shall rightly be called Son of the Most High. The Lord God will give him the kingdom of David, his ancestor; he will rule over the people of Jacob forever, ³³and his reign shall have no end.”

³⁴Then Mary said to the angel, “How can this be, since I am a virgin?” ³⁵And the angel said to her,

Mt 1:18

Ru 2:4;
3:12

1:13

Is 7:14;
Mt 1:212S 7:16;
Is 9:6;
Dn 7:14Mt 1:20;
Is 11:1;Gen 21:6;
1S 1:10;
Is 4:1

Zechariah’s son was to be a Nazirite from his mother’s womb until his death, as Samson had been (Jdg 13:5). The one who would be known as John the Baptist receives the mission to preach repentance, and his very life was to be a model of austerity (Mk 1:6). In that he will be the opposite of Jesus who, but for exceptional times such as his fasting in the desert, would live like everyone else and not request special fasts of his disciples (Lk 7:33-34).

Then, the angel indicates what John, Zechariah’s son, will be: He will go in the spirit and power of Elijah (v. 17). In Scripture we see that after Elijah disappeared, having been taken to heaven in a flaming chariot (2 K 2:11), the community of believers kept wondering about the meaning of such an unusual event. They even thought that just as Elijah had worked during a time of religious crisis to bring his people back to faith, so he would also return from heaven before the coming of the Messiah to restore his people’s faithfulness.

The text here refers to this Israelite expectation: one should not think that Elijah would return from heaven in person as Malachi 3:23 seemed to say. Rather John the Baptist would operate with the spirit of Elijah to obtain reconciliation for all, through justice and faithfulness to God’s law.

So, in this remote corner of the world, the Good News begins with an elderly and childless couple, because nothing is impossible with God.

THE VIRGIN MARY

• 26. The first two chapters of this Gospel are, like the beginning of Matthew’s Gospel, an account of the infancy of Jesus. The spirit, however, is entirely different. Matthew uses without scruple stories that were not authenticated, but were in the tradition of “infancies of

Num
9:18;
Acts
3:14;
4:30

“The Holy Spirit will come upon you and the power of the Most High will overshadow you; therefore, the holy child to be born of you shall be called Son of God. ³⁶Even your relative Elizabeth is expecting a son in her old age, although she was unable to have a child; and she is now in her sixth month. ³⁷With God nothing is impossible.”

³⁸Then Mary said, “I am the handmaid of the Lord, let it be done to me as you have said.” And the angel left her.

Gen
18:14

saints” that circulated among Jews and he used them to show what the mission of Jesus would be. Luke also gives us an account that is first of all theological but based on facts. In doing that he uses a very ancient document familiar to the Christian communities of Palestine. We find seven tableaux in the first two chapters:

- Annunciation of John, annunciation of Jesus;
- the visitation;
- birth of John;
- birth of Jesus;
- the presentation;
- Jesus in the Temple.

The account of the annunciation of Jesus marks the difference from John in his person and in his mission.

How considerate God is toward humans! He does not save them without their consent. The Savior is expected and welcomed by a mother: a young girl accepts to be the servant of the Lord and becomes the mother of God.

The virgin’s name was Mary (v. 27). Luke uses the word virgin. Why did he not say a young girl or a woman? Simply because he was referring to the words of the prophets stating that God would be received by the virgin of Israel. For centuries God endured thousands of infidelities from his people, and had forgiven their sins. At his coming, the Savior was to be welcomed by a “virgin” people, that is, a people fully consecrated to him. In Jesus’ time many people concluded that the Messiah would be born of a virgin mother when they read the prophecy of Isaiah 7:14. Now then, the Gospel says: Mary is The Virgin.

The one who, from the beginning, was chosen by God to welcome his only Son through an act of perfect faith, had to be a virgin. She, who was to give Jesus his blood, his hereditary traits, his character, his first education, must have grown under the shadow of the Almighty like a secret flower belonging to no one else, who had made of her whole life a gift to God.

How can this be? (v. 34). The angel states that the baby will be born of Mary without Joseph’s intervention. The one to be born of Mary in time is the same one who exists in God, born of God, Son of the Father (see Jn 1:1).

The power of the Most High will overshadow you. The sacred books spoke of a cloud or shadow filling the temple (1 K 8:10) as a sign of the divine presence over the holy city, protecting it (Sir 24:4). By using this image the Gospel conveys that Mary becomes God’s dwelling place, through whom he works out his mysteries. The Holy Spirit comes, not over the Son first, but over Mary so that she may conceive through the power of the Spirit, since a man’s intervention is excluded. The conception of Jesus in Mary is the result and the biological expression of her total surrender to the unique and eternal Word of the Father.

It is thus that the Alliance between God and humankind is finally realized. It will not only be the “work” of Jesus. He, himself, is already the eternal Alliance. A child born into a family belongs entirely to the family of its father and to that of its mother: he is the alliance between two families until then strangers to one another. So it is that Jesus, born of the Father and of Mary, is the Alliance between God and the human family, and it is there that the faith of the Church is rooted: Jesus is truly God and truly man.

Before the angel came, had Mary thought of consecrating her virginity to God? The Gospel gives no indication to this effect other than Mary’s word: I do not know man. Let us recall that Mary was about to be married and was engaged to Joseph, which, according to Jewish law, gave them the rights of marriage (Mt 1:20). It is possible that this question is merely meant to invite a response from the angel on the intervention of the Spirit. The whole text however becomes more transparent if Mary had already kept herself for God alone.

“Mary ever-virgin” affirms the Christian tradition that never fails to expand the scriptural statement. As for Mary having thought of virginity before the angel’s visit, that is a different matter. Such a decision was foreign to Jewish mentality, but it is also certain that the Gospel becomes alive with new and surprising decisions. Such an unusual decision born of an unusual relationship with God is not surprising for those who have an inner experience of the Spirit.

Mary visits Elizabeth

•³⁹ Mary then set out for a town in the hill country of Judah. ⁴⁰ She entered the house of Zechariah and greeted Elizabeth. ⁴¹ When Elizabeth heard Mary's greeting, the baby leapt in her womb. Elizabeth was filled with holy spirit, and ⁴² giving a loud cry, said, "You are most blessed among women, and blessed is the

THE ANNUNCIATION

Only Mary could make known the mystery of Jesus' conception to the primitive church. How could she express such an inner experience and how would it be reported?

Therefore, in writing, Luke had to use biblical words and forms that would allow us to understand the mysterious encounter of Mary with God.

The angel Gabriel (v. 26). For the Jews Gabriel was the name of an angel of the highest rank who appears in the book of Daniel to announce the hour of salvation (Dn 8:16 and 9:21). So, in speaking of Gabriel, the Gospel implies that, for Mary, everything began with the assurance that this was the moment when the destiny of the world was being decided.

Rejoice. This was the joyful way in which prophets addressed the daughter of Zion, that is to say, the community of the humble, who looked forward to the coming of the Savior (Zep 3:14; Zec 9:9).

Full of grace (v. 28). The word used in the Gospel means specifically: beloved and favored. Other people had been loved, chosen, favored; but in this instance it becomes the very name of Mary.

She was troubled at these words. The text does not speak of fear as it did in the case of Zechariah (1:12). From the first moment that Mary's spirit was awakened, she was aware of the presence of God inspiring her every decision, and so the divine revelation does not cause fear in her. The divine words, revealing her unique vocation, do trouble her.

You shall conceive (v. 31). Here the Gospel makes use of several biblical texts, of which some foretell the future of a child, and in some others God entrusts a mission. See Genesis 16:1; Exodus 3:11; Judges 6:11. We have already mentioned Isaiah's prophecy (7:14) announcing the one who would be Emmanuel, meaning God-with-us. Mary will name him Jesus, which means savior.

He will rule over the people of Jacob forever (i.e., the Israelites). This is a way of saying that Jesus is the Savior, the son of David, announced by the prophets: 2 Samuel 7:16; Isaiah 9:6.

He will be great (v. 32), but not in the way that John the Baptist would be great before God, for John was only a human being (1:15). Jesus was to be son of the Most High, and son of David: these two attributes pointed to the expected Messiah or Savior (2 S 7:14; Ps 2:7). See also Romans 1:3-4. This is why it was made clear that Joseph was from the family of David: see commentary on Matthew 1:20.

THE SERVANT OF THE LORD

I am the handmaid of the Lord (v. 38). In saying this, Mary does not lower herself with false humility; instead she expresses her faith and her surrender. From her will be born the one who will be both the servant announced by the prophets (Is 42:1; 50:4; 52:13) and the only Son (Heb 1).

Many persons are mistaken about the word "servant" in that they view almighty God as using his servants to his own ends without taking time to look at them and love them. For them God would lose his greatness if he were to give Mary authentic responsibility in the incarnation of her Son.

This is quite contrary to the spirit of the Bible. God loves people, he wishes, he who is God, to experience human friendship (Dt 4:7; Pro 8:31). God had no need of a woman to make a human body, but he wanted to have a mother for his Son; and for Mary to really be that mother, it was necessary that God looked upon her with greater love than he had for any other creature. Thus, Mary is called full of grace.

Grace is what we call the power God has to heal our spirit, to instill in us the disposition to believe, and to make us resonate with the truth so that the expression of real love comes from us in a spontaneous way. We call grace that which came from the living God to blossom on earth: Isaiah 45:8; Psalm 85:11.

Mary is really full of grace because Jesus was born of her as he is born of the Father. This is why the Church believes that Mary has a unique role in the work of our salvation. She is the marvel that God achieved at the outset of transforming humankind into his image.

THE HUMBLE PEOPLE

• 39. The angel's message has not left Mary alone with her problems. The angel spoke of her elderly cousin, Elizabeth. With her Mary will share her joy and her secret. Mary,

fruit of your womb! ⁴³How is it that the mother of my Lord comes to me? ⁴⁴The moment your greeting sounded in my ears, the baby within me suddenly leapt for joy. ⁴⁵Blessed are you who believed that the Lord's word would come true!"

1:20;
Jn 20:29

1S 2:1-10

⁴⁶And Mary said,

"My soul proclaims the greatness of the Lord,

⁴⁷my spirit exults in God my savior!

1:25;
1S 1:11

⁴⁸He has looked upon his servant in her lowliness, and people forever will call me blessed.

Ps 111:9

⁴⁹The Mighty One has done great things for me, Holy is his Name!

Is 57:15;
Ps
103:17

⁵⁰From age to age his mercy extends to those who live in his presence.

⁵¹He has acted with power and done wonders, and scattered the proud with their plans.

Job 12:19;
Ps 113:7

⁵²He has put down the mighty from their thrones, and lifted up those who are downtrodden.

Ps 107:9

⁵³He has filled the hungry with good things, but has sent the rich away empty.

Ezk
28:25;
Ps 146
Mic 7:20;
Ps 18:51

⁵⁴He held out his hand to Israel, his servant, for he remembered his mercy,

⁵⁵even as he promised to our fathers, to Abraham and his descendants forever."

quite young (was she more than fifteen?), will learn from her many things that Joseph could not tell her. What had been foretold to Zechariah will now be fulfilled: "Your son will be filled with the Holy Spirit while in the womb of his mother."

What is most important in history is not what is spectacular. The Gospel prefers to draw our attention to life-filled events.

A few years later, Jewish crowds would go to John the Baptist looking for the word of God. No one would wonder how he received the Spirit of God, and no one would know that a humble girl, Mary, put God's plan in motion on that Visitation day.

Blessed are you who believed! (v. 45). What is important is not that Mary is the mother of Jesus in the flesh, and this, Jesus will repeat (11:27).

Mary, who has become the Temple of God, communicates the Spirit—the Spirit of Jesus.

About Mary's canticle. Mary, so unobtrusive in the Gospel, having no part in Jesus' ministry, is the one who proclaims the historical revolution begun with the coming of the Savior.

She proclaims:

– the mercy of God who always keeps his promises,

– the change that is to take place in the human condition.

This is what Martin Luther King, the emancipator of the Blacks, recalled: "Despite the fact that all too often people see in the church a power opposed to any change, in fact, the church preserves a powerful ideal which urges people toward the summits and opens their eyes as to their own destiny. From the hot spots of Africa to the black areas of Alabama, I have seen men and women rising and shaking off their chains. They had just discovered they were God's children, and that, as God's children, it was impossible to enslave them."

The song of Mary also expresses the deepest feeling of the Christian soul. There is a time for us to seek truth, to discover what our major duties are and to become truly and essentially human. There is a time for asking from and serving God. In the long run, we come to understand that divine love seeks out what is poorer and weaker to fill it and make it great. Then our only prayer becomes thanksgiving to God for his understanding and merciful designs.

⁵⁶Mary remained with Elizabeth about three months, and then returned home.

Birth of John the Baptist

• ⁵⁷When the time came for Elizabeth, she gave birth to a son. ⁵⁸Her neighbors and relatives heard that the merciful Lord had done a wonderful thing for her, and they rejoiced with her.

⁵⁹When, on the eighth day, they came to attend the circumcision of the child, they wanted to name him Zechariah after his father. ⁶⁰But his mother said, “Not so; he shall be called John.” ⁶¹They said to her, “But no one in your family has that name!” ⁶²and they asked the father, by means of signs, for the name he wanted to give him. ⁶³Zechariah asked for a writing tablet, and wrote on it, “His name is John,” and they were very surprised. ⁶⁴Immediately Zechariah could speak again, and his first words were in praise of God.

⁶⁵A holy fear came on all in the neighborhood, and throughout the hill country of Judea the people talked about these events. ⁶⁶All who heard of it pondered in their minds, and wondered, “What will this child be?” For they understood that the hand of the Lord was with him.

⁶⁷Zechariah, filled with holy spirit, sang this canticle,

⁶⁸“Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for he has come and redeemed his people.

⁶⁹In the house of David his servant, he has raised up for us a victorious Savior; ⁷⁰as he promised through his prophets of old, ⁷¹salvation from our enemies and from the hand of our foes.

⁷²He has shown mercy to our fathers; and remembered his holy covenant,

⁷³the oath he swore to Abraham, our father, ⁷⁴to deliver us from the enemy, ⁷⁵that we might serve him fearlessly, as a holy and righteous people, all the days of our lives.

⁷⁶And you, my child, shall be called prophet of the Most High, for you shall go before the Lord to prepare the way for him, ⁷⁷and to enable his people to know of their salvation, when he comes to forgive their sins.

⁷⁸This is the work of the mercy of our God, who comes from on high as a rising sun, ⁷⁹shining on those who live in darkness and in the shadow of death, and guiding our feet into the way of peace.”

2K 3:15;
Ezk 1:3
Ps 41:14;
72:18;
106:48;
111:9
1S 2:10;
Ps 18:3;
132:17;
Jer 23:5
Ps
106:10
2:24;
Lev 26:42
Ps 106:45;
105:8-9;
Mic 4:10
Mt 11:10
Num
24:17;
Mal 3:20
Is 9:1;
Mic 5:4

Gen
17:12;
Lev 12:3

1:13

Gen 26:3

• 57. What was circumcision? (See Gen 17). The child lived in the desert (v. 80), that is, the desert of Judea by the Dead Sea, where some large communities of which the well-known Qumran community had settled. These communities, called the Essenes, devoted themselves to prayer and meditation on Scripture. And took part in the education of children.

3:2;
7:24

⁸⁰As the child grew up, he was seen to be strong in the Spirit; and he lived in the desert until the day when he appeared openly in Israel.

The birth of Jesus

2¹At that time the emperor issued a decree for a census of the whole empire to be taken. ²This first census was taken when Quirinus was governor of Syria. ³Everyone had to be registered in his own town, so everyone set out for his own city. ⁴Joseph too set out from Nazareth of Galilee. As he belonged to the family of David, being a descendant of his, he went to Judea, to David's town of Bethlehem, ⁵to be registered with Mary, his wife, who was with child.

1S 16:13;
Jn 7:42

• 2.1 The emperor issued a decree. The Jews formed a small nation under the rule of the Roman empire, which included diverse peoples. The precision given by Luke presents a difficulty because Quirinus was appointed governor of Syria in the year 6 A.C. and Jesus was twelve at that time. Several explanations have been built, but very possibly Luke used a mistaken chronology in that place like in Acts 5:36. Luke is infallible as a witness of salvation, not as an historian.

Because of the census, Joseph and Mary had to leave their Nazareth home at the time the child was to be born. Joseph, a descendant of David, must have had relatives in Bethlehem, the city of David and of his family. Jesus may have been born in the house of one of those relatives.

The chalk hill on which the village of Bethlehem was built had many natural caves used as dwelling places by the not so rich. The cave where Jesus was born consisted of two rooms separated by a rock formation. The innermost room was probably used as a shed and stable. Since there was not enough room or privacy in the common room, Joseph and Mary settled in the area where the animals were kept.

Thus, it was foreseen by the Father that Jesus would be educated in a real home, where neither work nor bread would be lacking. In his birth, however, as in his death, Jesus would resemble the most abandoned.

She gave birth to her first born (v. 7). This ⁶They were in Bethlehem when the time came for her to have her child, ⁷and she gave birth to a son, her firstborn. She wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in the manger, because there was no place for them in the inn.

Mt 1:20

The shepherds and the angels

• ⁸There were shepherds camping in the countryside, taking turns to watch over their flocks by night. ⁹Suddenly an angel of the Lord appeared to them, with the Glory of the Lord shining around them.

As they were terrified, ¹⁰the angel said to them, "Don't be afraid; I am here to give you good news, great joy for all the people. ¹¹Today a Sav-term was used then to designate an only son, underscoring that this first son was consecrated to God (Ex 13:1). See also Romans 8:29; Colosians 1:15.

The liturgy of Christmas sings: "Happy mother of God! Today you gave birth to the Savior of all times, and giving birth, you remained a virgin."

• 8. With the necessary stages in the religious formation of humankind being over, God sent his Son on earth to introduce us to true religion. Now the angel proclaims peace and graciousness to humankind. See how much God loves us! Let yourselves be caught up in his love! Why continue to fear? Have you not understood that God became a child and that from now on he will be among us as a silent and defenseless child?

Let this be a sign to you (v. 12). They will recognize God who became poor for us in order to communicate his treasures to us.

They returned giving glory to God (v. 20). While the world was in darkness, some shepherds saw God. Why were they called to the manger? God delights in revealing himself to the poor, and Mary and Joseph had the joy to share with them a part of their secret.

With the birth of Jesus a new age begins (the final age as the apostles will say) in which, on one hand, people hope for the salvation of the world, and on the other they already enjoy this salvation. The shepherds are models for those ior has been born to you in David's town; he is the Messiah and the Lord.

Phil 3:20;
2Tim
1:10

¹²Let this be a sign to you: you will find a baby wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger."

¹³Suddenly the angel was surrounded by many more heavenly spirits, praising God and saying, ¹⁴"Glory to God in the highest, and Peace, on earth, to those whom God loves."

Ezk 3:12;
Is 9:5;
52:7;
Eph 2:14;
Lk 19:38;
24:36

¹⁵When the angels had left them and gone back to heaven, the shepherds said to one another, "Let us go as far as Bethlehem, and see what the Lord has made known to us." ¹⁶So they came hurriedly, and found Mary and Joseph, and the baby lying in the manger. ¹⁷On seeing him they related what they had been told about the child, ¹⁸and all were astonished on hearing the shepherds.

2:51;
Dn 7:28;
Mt 13:52

• ¹⁹As for Mary, she treasured all these words, and pondered them in her heart.

dedicated to contemplation. Following them, the Church will never be totally involved in works of mercy or human development, but instead, with its truest spirit, will continue to look upon Christ present in its midst, giving thanks and rejoicing in God.

• 19. Mary treasured all these words (v. 19), because every event of her life was for her the way God revealed his plans to her, and all the more so now that she was living with Jesus. She wondered, marveled but was not confused, because her faith was beyond wavering. However, she too had to discover the ways of salvation slowly and painfully. She pondered on these things until the time of the Resurrection and Pentecost when all the words and deeds of Jesus became clear.

• 22. Mary and Joseph went to the temple to fulfill a ritual of the Jewish religion (Lev 12:8). Jesus being a first born male must be consecrated to God (Ex 13:1).

Simeon and Anna like Mary and Joseph belong to the "small remnant of Israel." This minority of God's people live their faith in humil-²⁰The shepherds then returned, giving glory and praise to God for all they had heard and seen, just as the angels had told them.

²¹On the eighth day the circumcision of the baby had to be performed; he was named Jesus, the name the angel had given him before he was conceived.

Gen
17:12

Jesus is presented in the Temple

• ²²When the day came for the purification according to the law of Moses, they brought the baby up to Jerusalem, to present him to the Lord, ²³as it is written in the law of the Lord: Every first born male shall be consecrated to God. ²⁴And they offered a sacrifice, as ordered in the law of the Lord: a pair of turtledoves or two young pigeons.

13:2;
Num
18:15
Lev 12:8

²⁵There lived in Jerusalem at this time a very upright and devout man named Simeon; the Holy Spirit was in him. He looked forward to the time when the Lord would comfort Israel,

Is 40:1;
61:2

ity and faithfulness to the prophets' teaching: God knows how to make himself known to them.

What is the meaning of the sword that will pierce Mary's soul? It indicates Mary's grief upon seeing her Son die on the cross. It also signifies that Mary will suffer because she will not always understand what her Son does. The best-shared love will not prevent each from remaining a mystery to the other, and more so for God than for anyone else. God does not watch our fidelity from heaven, but rather seeks us (he tries us in the sense of asking us to reveal ourselves). The love of the Father will be Mary's cross just as it would be for Jesus.

Christ is God's light which enlightens people, but which also blinds and confuses them at times. He is a sign that is opposed, but this is a mystery—those who oppose him are not always the worst. There are some people who believe in Christ, but do not follow him. Unable to see his light they do not know that it condemns them. There are good people who do not believe because God wills that they seek the light their whole life long.

²⁶and he had been assured, by the Holy Spirit, that he would not die before seeing the Messiah of the Lord.

²⁷So he was led into the Temple by the Holy Spirit at the time the parents brought the child Jesus, to do for him according to the custom of the Law.

²⁸Simeon took the child in his arms, and blessed God, saying,

²⁹“Now, O Lord, you can dismiss your servant in peace, for you have fulfilled your word

³⁰and my eyes have seen your salvation,

³¹which you display for all the people to see.

³²Here is the light you will reveal to the nations, and the glory of your people Israel.”

³³His father and mother wondered at what was said about the child.

³⁴Simeon blessed them, and said to Mary, his mother, “Know this: your son is a sign, a sign established for the falling and rising of many in Israel, a sign of contradiction; ³⁵and a sword will pierce your own soul, so that, out of many hearts, thoughts may be revealed.”

³⁶There was also a prophetess named Anna, daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Asher. After leaving her father’s home, she had been seven years with her husband, and since then she had been continually about the Temple, serving God as a widow night and day in fasting and prayer.

³⁷She was now eighty-four. ³⁸Coming up at that time, she gave praise to God, and spoke of the child to all who looked forward to the deliverance of Jerusalem.

³⁹When the parents had fulfilled all that was required by the law of the Lord, they returned to their town, Nazareth in Galilee. ⁴⁰There the child grew in stature and strength, and was filled with wisdom: the grace of God was upon him.

I must be in my Father’s house

• ⁴¹Every year the parents of Jesus went to Jerusalem for the Feast of the Passover, as was customary. ⁴²And when Jesus was twelve years old, he went up with them, according to the custom of this feast. ⁴³After the festival was over, they returned, but the boy Jesus remained in Jerusalem, and his parents did not know it.

⁴⁴They thought he was in the company, and after walking the whole day they looked for him among their relatives and friends. ⁴⁵As they did not find him, they went back to Jerusalem searching for him, ⁴⁶and on the third day they found him in the Temple, sitting among the teachers, listening to them and asking questions. ⁴⁷And all the people were amazed at his understanding and his answers.

⁴⁸His parents were very surprised when they saw him, and his mother said to him, “Son, why have you done this to us? Your father and I were very worried while searching

Ps 23:6;
84:5

1:80;
2:52;
11:31;
21:15

12:1...;
Dt 16:16

Is 42:6;
49:6;
Jn 8:12

20:17;
Is 8:14;
28:16;
Acts
28:26

Jn 19:25;
3:19;
9:39

4:22;
Jn 7:15

1Tim 5:5;
Jdt 8:4

NAZARETH—ACHIEVING FREEDOM

• 41. During his Nazareth years Jesus discovers life as any child or youth of his age. He does not receive special education. Nor does he manifest extraordinary talents, other than perfect judgment to assess and evaluate everything according to God’s criteria.

Joseph passes on to him the faith of Israel; the Nazareth community, however insignificant, makes him a practicing Jew, subject to the Law. What was the deep experience of Jesus, how did the Son of God place himself in this world of humans, step by step, as he discovered it? Luke has given us but one instance that to him was significant as it had been for Mary herself.

At twelve an adolescent was to observe religious prescriptions, among them the pilgrimage to Jerusalem for the feasts. Seated in the shade of the Temple galleries, the teachers of for you.”⁴⁹ Then he said to them, “Why were you looking for me? Did you not know that I must be in my Father’s house?”⁵⁰ But they did not understand this answer.

⁵¹ Jesus went down with them, returning to Nazareth, and he continued to be subject to them. As for his mother, she kept all these things in her heart.

•⁵² And Jesus increased in wisdom and age, and in divine and human favor.

2:19;
15:226

John the Baptist prepares the way

(Mk 1:1; Mt 3:1; Jn 1:19)

3 •¹ It was the fifteenth year of the rule of the Emperor Tiberius: Pontius Pilatus was governor of Judea; Herod ruled over Galilee, his brother Philip ruled over the country of Iturea and Trachonitis; and Lysanias ruled over Abilene.² Annas and Caiaphas were the High Priests at that time, when the word of God came to John, the son of Zechariah, in the desert.

Mt 3:
1-12;
Mk 1:1-8;
Jn 1:19;
Lk
23:12;
Mk 6:17

Acts 4:6;
Jer 1:2;
Hos 1:1

the law used to teach groups of pilgrims and to dialogue with them.

It is on this occasion for the first time that Jesus disconcerts his entourage. Why have you done this? The Gospel highlights this misunderstanding: Mary reproaches Jesus and Jesus reproaches his parents. It then emphasizes the awareness Jesus has of his privileged relationship with the Father and his total availability for his mission. If the discovery of the Temple, heart of the nation, center of Israel’s religion, stirred new feelings in him, he could have asked permission or forewarned his parents. How could he remain two days without thinking his parents would be anxiously searching for him? He must have thought this suffering was necessary and conquered his liberty in a radical way before returning home with them. Jesus had to experience all of human life, sin excepted; in his own way he passed through the stages of psychological development. Instead of speaking of the lost child it would be more exact to say that the youthful Jesus found himself.

It might seem strange that Mary did not think to tell Jesus one day of his origin and who Joseph was for him. If we hold to this account, it is Jesus who takes the lead over Mary and Joseph and tells them himself whose son he is: I must be in my Father’s house.

They did not understand that answer (v. 50). Mary had heard the message of the annunciation and knew that Jesus was the Son of God. She undoubtedly never thought that being Son of God would be what Jesus had just done. In the same way God oftentimes disconcerts us even if we know very well what he wants.

• 52. Luke does not mention anything more about the life of Jesus in Nazareth until he reaches the age of thirty, when he begins to preach. He was Joseph’s apprentice, and after Joseph’s death became the carpenter of Nazareth. Joseph must have died before Jesus revealed himself, otherwise, when Jesus left home, Mary would have remained with Joseph (see Mk 3:31). Mary’s son was a man among people and later the Christian community of Nazareth would treasure things made by the carpenter Son of God.

Too often we read the Gospel as a “life of Jesus” and are astonished to find great blanks such as the thirty years of Nazareth. We forget that the written Gospel intended first of all to build a catechesis with the actions and words of Jesus, and not reconstitute his whole life.

• 3.1 Luke provides us with facts that enable us to situate Jesus in history. It is the year 27 after Christ and actually Jesus is about thirty to thirty-five years old. The Jews have lost their autonomy, and their country is divided into four small provinces. Herod and Philip, sons of the Herod mentioned at the birth of Jesus (see Mt 2:1) rule over two of these provinces.

Those interested in the chronological commentaries can also read John 2:20.

In the first two chapters Luke has shown us how the Son of God inserted himself into humanity. As Paul says in his letter to the Galatians, he was “born of a woman, subject to the Law” (Gal 4:7) which means that he had to be formed by a culture, marked by his era, limited by the human context of his time. We are now going to see that he did not begin his mission in a grandiose way with prodigious miracles but very simply entered a movement initiated by another one, John the Baptist.

The first paragraph shows how the Holy Land was divided, a challenge to the promises

•³ John proclaimed a baptism for repentant people to obtain forgiveness of sins, and he went through the whole country bordering the Jordan River. ⁴It was just as is written in the book of the prophet Isaiah: *Listen to this voice crying out in the desert, Prepare the way of the Lord, make his path straight!*⁵*The valleys will be filled and the mountains and hills made low. Everything crooked will be made straight and the rough paths smooth; ⁶and every human being will see the salvation of God!*

⁷John said to the crowds who came out to be baptized by him, “You brood of vipers! How will you escape when divine punishment comes? ⁸Produce now the fruits of a true change of heart, and do not deceive yourselves by saying, ‘We have Abraham for our ancestor!’ For I tell you, God can make children of Abraham from these stones. ⁹The axe is already laid to the root of the tree, and every tree that fails to produce good fruit will be cut down and thrown into the fire.”

¹⁰The people asked him, “What are we to do?” ¹¹And John answered, “If you have two coats, give one to the person who has none; and if you have food, do the same.”

¹²Even tax collectors came to be baptized, and asked him, “Master, what must we do?” ¹³John said to them, “Collect no more than your fixed rate.” ¹⁴People serving as soldiers asked John, “What about us? What are we to do?” And he answered, “Don’t take anything by force, or threaten the people by denouncing them falsely. Be content with your pay.”

Mt 7:19

Acts 2:37

Ezk 18;

Is 58:7;

Acts 4:32

Is 40:3-5

Mt 14:11;

18:14;

Is 2:2;

Ps 68:16

Mt 3:7;

Is 30:27;

1Thes

1:10

Jn 8:33

of God. In the case of several high priests there was contempt for the law of God, for the high priests should succeed each other, father to son, and remained in office all their lives. In this degrading situation a new element would rock the people: the preaching of John the Baptist.

• 3. Listen to this voice crying out in the desert (v. 4). The text which follows is from Isaiah (40:3) John renews the tradition of the prophets after four centuries of interruption and like many among them, he speaks of an imminent judgment. To confront the judgment of God is always most fearful and John speaks of rebuilding a sense of justice. John speaks of the punishment to come. In verse 7 the text says more precisely “escape from the coming wrath”. These Hebrew words refer to a condemnation already pronounced by God that will soon bring a terrible trial on a national or worldwide scale (Lk 21:23; 1 Thes 2:16) that believers recognize as a judgment of God. It is then that the wicked receive their punishment, while the just who count on God are saved (Is 1:24-27; Joel 3:1-5, Zec 14).

John awakens the expectation of a savior. It is easy for us to say that the savior was Jesus and that God’s judgment would come a few years later with the war that destroyed the Jewish nation, but for those who were hearing

John it was difficult to imagine what this savior might be.

“We have Abraham for our ancestor!” (v. 8). Just like the prophets, John warns us against fanaticism whether it be national or religious. It is not enough to walk under the flag of the God of Israel (or the Church) since many of those who pretend to defend this cause are no more than a race of vipers. God demands justice and reparation for the evil that has been committed.

So we see John preaching without having asked anything of the religious authorities. People come from all directions searching for pardon. Verses 12-14 tell us that John turned no one away: neither the prostitutes nor the collectors of Roman taxes. He does ask of all a commitment of solidarity. Once corruption has taken over and the vision of God’s Alliance has faded away, those who recognize their part in the evil affecting the whole of society must make positive gestures regarding money and the enjoyment of it, which will be for all a sign and a call to conversion. Such signs should increase in Christian communities today and in the groups seeking to purify our society.

It is that which gives meaning to the total renunciation of John and his appalling austerity: in no way are we all asked to imitate him, but his sacrifices give weight to his words. The religious leaders and the Pharisees who see

Jn 1:
19-20

11:22;
Jn 13:5;
Acts 1:5

Mal
3:19;
Jer 15:7;
Is 5:24;
66:24

Mk 6:17

• ¹⁵The people were wondering about John's identity, "Could he be the Messiah?" ¹⁶Then John answered them, "I baptize you with water, but the one who is coming will do much more: he will baptize you with Holy Spirit and fire. As for me, I am not worthy to untie his sandal. ¹⁷He comes with a winnowing fan to clear his threshing floor and gather the grain into his barn. But the chaff he will burn with fire that never goes out."

¹⁸With these and many other words John announced the Good News to the people, ¹⁹until Herod had him put in prison. For John had reproached Herod for living with Herodias, his brother's wife, and for his evil deeds. ²⁰Then Herod added another crime to all the rest he had committed: he put John in prison.

Jesus is baptized by John

(Mt 3:13; Mk 1:9; Jn 1:29)

• ²¹Now, with all the people who came to be baptized, Jesus too was baptized. Then, while he was praying, the heavens opened: ²²the Holy Spirit came down upon him in the bodily form of a dove, and a voice from heaven was heard, "You are my Son, in whom I am well pleased."

Mt 3:
13-17;
Mk 1:
9-11;
Jn 1: 29-34

Ps 2:7;
Is 42:1

themselves as models keep away even sneering perhaps, (7:30 and 33) but the people come to John asking for baptism.

• 15. Baptism means to be immersed in water and to rise. The Essenes in the desert were baptized on the occasion of certain feasts to show their desire to reach a purer life when the Savior would come. John, in turn, baptizes those who wishing to straighten out their life, marking their commitment by a visible ritual.

Here the Gospel compares John with Jesus and John's baptism with Christian baptism. All of us have heard words like: since Jesus was not baptized until he was thirty years old, one should be baptized as an adult. This is a useless argument since we are not dealing with the same baptism and the demands are different.

Baptism in water... baptism in fire (v. 16): this refers to common experiences. We wash stains off clothes in water, but what has been washed does not then resemble that which is new. Besides there are stains which remain. On the other hand, fire purifies rusted metal so that shining metal comes from the crucible as good as new. Moreover, fire can consume stains together with whatever is stained.

John baptizes with water those who want to straighten out their life. For them, baptism is a way of expressing publicly their decision and promise. Such resolutions are fallible as are any human commitments and insufficient to eradicate the root of evil from our heart.

Jesus, on the other hand, requests that his apostles baptize those who enter the church. It is then when God gives his Spirit that transforms people interiorly.

John did not baptize children (or women). As Christian baptism draws its power, not so much from the commitment of the recipient, as from the gift of God making us his children, we can baptize children as did Christians from the early times. They may receive the gift of God, provided that their family and the Christian community accept the responsibility for their growth in faith.

• 21. Jesus neither needs conversion, nor John's baptism. Being the Savior, he wishes to join sinners seeking the way to forgiveness. By receiving John's baptism, Jesus affirms this as the right way: to seek justice and reform one's life.

There had been no prophets for centuries. God seemed silent and the Jews often said that "the heavens were closed." Now, God speaks again and Jesus stands in place of the prophets. The heavens opened means that Jesus received a divine revelation (see Ezk 1:1 and Rev 4:1).

You are my Son (v. 22). Who saw and who heard that voice is not clear from the Gospel (Mt 3:16; Mk 1:10; Jn 1:32). Studying the texts brings us to the following conclusion: Jesus was favored with a revelation from God which John the Baptist may have shared. Why such a manifestation? Did Jesus need to know that he was the Son of God?

Let us not forget that the phrase son of God can be understood in various ways. In the period before Jesus, the king of Israel was called son of God. Son of God was also used to designate the expected Messiah, chosen by God to save Israel.

Mt 1: 1-17 •²³ When Jesus made his appearance, he had reached the age of thirty years. He was known as the son of Joseph, whose father and forefathers were:

Heli,²⁴ Matthat, Levi, Melchi, Jan-nai, Joseph,²⁵ Matthathias, Amos, Nahum, Esli, Naggai,²⁶ Maath, Mat-tathias, Semein, Josech, Joda,²⁷ Joanan, Rhesa, Zerubbabel, Sheal-tiel, Neri,²⁸ Melchi, Addi, Cosam, El-madam, Er,²⁹ Joshua, Eliezer, Jorim, Matthat, Levi,³⁰ Simeon, Judah, Joseph, Jonam, Eliakim,³¹ Melea, Menna, Mattatha, Nathan, David,³² Jesse, Obed, Boaz, Salmon, Nah-son,³³ Amminadab, Adnim, Arni, Hezron, Perez, Judah,³⁴ Jacob, Isaac, Abraham, Terah, Nahor,³⁵ Serug, Reu, Peleg, Eber, Shelah,³⁶ Cainan, Arphaxad, Shem, Noah, Lamech,³⁷ Methuselah, Enoch, Jared, Mala-leel, Cainan,³⁸ Enos, Seth, and Adam—who was from God.

Jesus tempted in the wilderness

(Mt 4:1; Mk 1:12)

4 •¹ Jesus was now full of Holy Spirit. As he returned from the Jordan, the Spirit led him into the desert² where he was tempted by the devil for forty days. He did not eat

1:34

Gen 11:10

Gen 5: 1-32

Mt 4: 1-11; Mk 1: 12-13

Jesus was Son of God in the sense of Only Son of God, begotten of God from the time of his conception. From that moment on, he was conscious of being the Son of God.

On the other hand, it was only at the time of his baptism by John that Jesus received the call from God inviting him to begin his ministry of salvation, and that God made him his Son (in the old biblical sense), that is, prophet and king of his people. God is calling him to begin his ministry. That is why in 3:22 we read a word of Psalm 2: "You are my son, this day I have begotten you," a word of God presenting his Messiah to the world. (A good number of ancient texts give to verse 22 the same text as Mk 1:11).

Since the word of God (if it is really from God) is always effective and accomplishes what it says, Jesus receives at the same time the fullness of the Spirit, who consecrates prophets and works miracles. From the moment of his conception Jesus enjoyed the fullness of the Spirit bonding him in a unique relationship with his Father. Now he receives the Spirit enabling him to be the prophet and the servant of the Father.

Thus, Jesus is anointed to proclaim the reign of God and to call the poor first (4:18). Different from so many liberators who, according to Scripture, received the Spirit with a view to a specific mission, Jesus is fully savior. Different from us, who are always so concerned to leave a way out of our commitments, Jesus will not rest until his word and witness to the truth lead him to his death.

In many pages of the Gospel we see Jesus dealing with individuals. In other and more important circumstances Jesus is depicted as the savior of the whole human race as in this baptism. The Bible tells us of a God who creates, nurtures, instructs and brings to maturity the only one "Adam," i.e.: the human race as a whole—Jesus is not the savior of "people," i.e., of many individuals, in order to give them free entrance to heaven—Jesus takes by the hand the human race (Heb 2:16) and makes it one holy body in which God the Father will recognize his only Son.

• 23. Luke then presents a list of Jesus' ancestors, which is quite different from Matthew's (Mt 1:1). Luke not only goes back to Abraham, he also supplies the legendary list of Abraham's ancestors all the way back to the first human, as if to emphasize that Jesus has come to save all of humanity. He is not only the Savior of Christians: his coming is relevant for the whole of history and helps us to appreciate the contribution of all the saints and wise people God has raised throughout the world. On the other hand, from Abraham to Jesus the list is very different from Matthew's. The list of ancestors varied depending on whether one counted natural parents or adoptive parents, since adoption was a frequent occurrence among the Jews.

THE TEMPTATION

• 4.1 In secular history, people only participate and cope with other people. Sacred history views things from another perspective: God's plan unfolds hindered by the disturbing devices of the evil spirit, and people are called to take part in this struggle that exceeds their own plans. This is why Jesus had to face the evil one.

3:22 anything during that time, and at the end he was hungry. ³The devil then said to him, "If you are the Son of God, tell this stone to turn into bread." ⁴But Jesus answered, "Scripture says: People cannot live on bread alone."

10:18; Jn 14:30; Rev 13:2 ⁵Then the devil took him up to a high place, and showed him in a flash all the nations of the world. ⁶And he said to Jesus, "I can give you power over all the nations, and their wealth will be yours; for power and wealth have been delivered to me, and I give them to whom I wish. ⁷All this will be yours, provided you worship me."

Dt 6:13 ⁸But Jesus replied, "Scripture says: You shall worship the Lord your God and serve him alone."

⁹Then the devil took him up to Jerusalem, and set him on the highest wall of the Temple; and he said, "If you are God's son, throw yourself down from here, ¹⁰for it is written: God will order his angels to take care of you; ¹¹and again: They will hold you in their hands, lest you hurt your foot on the stones." ¹²But Jesus replied, "It is written: You shall not challenge the Lord your God."

¹³When the devil had exhausted every way of tempting Jesus, he left him, to return another time.

Jesus proclaims his mission at Nazareth

(Mt 13:53)

• ¹⁴Jesus acted with the power of the Spirit; and on his return to Galilee, the news about him spread

Ps 91:11

Ps 91:12

Dt 6:16

22:53;
Jn 14:30

Mt 4:12-17, 23;
Mk 1:14-15, 39;
Mt 3:16

We speak of temptation when we feel the pressure of bad instincts or when we feel dragged into doing evil by circumstances. Jesus did not possess our bad instincts but the Holy Spirit led him to be tested into the desert—remember that to tempt and to test have the same meaning—and there he felt the strongest persuasion from the evil one who tried to dissuade him from his mission (see also Mt 4:1).

Jesus, filled with the Holy Spirit, began his ministry by undergoing a very hard test: forty days of total solitude and fasting. In this situation, Jesus experienced his frailty as he faced a leap into the unknown: he was about to let go of life in Nazareth in surrender to the Father's will, and begin a mission which would lead him to death within a few years.

The devil, or the accuser, spoke to him; thus is he named in Scripture because he always criticizes. He leads us to accuse God, and when he has made us fall, he then accuses us and tries to convince us that our fall will not be forgiven by God.

If you are the Son of God. Jesus knew who he was, but he had not yet tested his power. Could he not, for a moment, release divine energy when his body was weak from hunger? Could he not, someday, get down from the cross to save himself?

Jesus refuses to be self-serving. He has higher goals: and so the Devil takes him higher. Knowing people as they are, Jesus is tempted to impose himself on the people and manipulate them. He is tempted to compromise and use weapons of the devil who respects neither the truth, nor freedom of conscience. It would then be easy to reign over the nations "in the name of God," since the devil gives them to whom he wishes (v. 6).

Jesus has chosen to serve only God. The devil asks, "Why, then, do you not begin your preaching with something spectacular, like dropping from a high place into the midst of the crowd at prayer in the temple?—Do you not believe that God will perform a miracle for you?"—This time the devil uses the very words of Scripture: in reading them, one might think that with much faith, one would always be healthy and successful. Jesus warns against the error of a "faith" which tries to remove the cross. Jesus will not demand miracles from his Father to avoid suffering the humiliation and rejection that are the lot of God's messengers: this would be to challenge God under the pretense of trusting him.

The devil left him, to return another time (v. 13). In the Passion of Jesus, the devil will turn the people's wickedness against the Liberator whom he could not lead astray. See John 12:31 and 14:30.

• 14. Jesus returns home in the company of some of John's followers who become his own disciples (Jn 1:35) and he performs his first sign in Cana (Jn 2:1). This miracle launches his ministry. From Capernaum, 4:44 throughout all that territory. ¹⁵He began teaching in the synagogues of the Jews and everyone praised him.

Mt 13:
53-58;
Mk 6: 1-6;
Acts
13:15

• ¹⁶When Jesus came to Nazareth, where he had been brought up, he entered the synagogue on the Sabbath, as he usually did. ¹⁷He stood up to read, and they handed him the book of the prophet Isaiah.

Jesus then unrolled the scroll and found the place where it is written: ¹⁸*“The Spirit of the Lord is upon me. He has anointed me to bring good news to the poor, to proclaim* liberty to captives and new sight to the blind; to free the oppressed ¹⁹*and to announce the Lord’s year of mercy.”*

3:22;
Is 61:1-2

Is 58:6;
Lev 25:10

²⁰Jesus then rolled up the scroll, gave it to the attendant and sat down; while the eyes of all in the synagogue were fixed on him. ²¹Then he said to them, “Today these prophetic words come true, even as you listen.”

²²All agreed with him, and were lost in wonder, while he spoke of the grace of God. Nevertheless they

Acts 14:3;
20:32;
Mt 13:55

where Jesus lives in the house of Simon and Andrew, near the lake, Jesus begins to preach in the synagogues of Galilee (Mk 1:35) and his words impress people because he works with the power of the Spirit, namely, he speaks with authority and his miracles confirm his words.

He began teaching in the synagogues (v. 15). Jesus does not begin by preaching to the crowds who know nothing of him; instead, for months he makes himself known in the synagogues.

• 16. In Israel there was only one Temple, that of Jerusalem, where priests used to offer sacrifices. In every place where at least ten men could meet, there was a synagogue where every Sabbath a liturgical service led by community members was celebrated. It was easy to take part in the readings and commentaries on them, so Jesus made himself known by participating in the Sabbath services in the synagogues of his area, Galilee.

After some time Jesus, already famous, passed through Nazareth where he was not welcome. In this account Luke shows why Jesus attracted the people and why, particularly in Nazareth, he was rejected.

He found the place where it is written: this paragraph is from Isaiah 61:1-2. The prophet is referring to his own mission: God sent him to the Jews in exile to announce that soon God would visit them. Yet his words prove even more appropriate in the case of Jesus who was sent in order to bring real freedom to a people waiting for it.

The phrase to free the oppressed is not found in Isaiah’s text, but Luke takes it from another text of the same prophet (Is 58:6) and inserts it here because this expression ‘to set free’ summarizes better than any other word the very work of Jesus in his mission.

Today these prophetic words come true even as you listen (v. 21). Jesus has come to inaugurate a new age in which God becomes present and reconciles people. Every fifty years Israel celebrated a jubilee year during which debts were forgiven and slaves recovered their freedom (Lev 25:10). In the same way a year of mercy from the Lord is beginning. Thus the time of promises and prophecies is over. God begins to show himself to humankind as he is: Jesus reveals the Father and the Father reveals his Son through the signs and miracles that he performs.

He has anointed me to free the oppressed (v. 18). Jesus brings real liberation to everyone since his deeds urge each one of us to live in truth: “the Son makes you free... the truth will make you free...” (Jn 8:32). The Jews, obviously, were looking first and foremost for political freedom, which is part of total human liberation. Why did Jesus not bring it? Was he only interested in “souls”?

Actually the Old Testament never promised “the salvation of souls” which is sometimes emphasized these days in various groups. Such believers think they are saving their souls and yet remain silent, or blind accomplices of the daily sins permeating all economic and social life.

The Old Testament foretold that Jesus would be the Savior of his people and of his race. His words and deeds were stirring people who had become helpless and were opening the way for human liberation at all levels, but they were like seeds and could not produce immediate fruits. Jesus had no desire to join the fanatics and violent among his people in order to obtain national sovereignty as oppressive as Mk 15:31 asked, “Who is this but Joseph’s son?” ²³ So he said, “Doubtless you will quote me the saying: Doctor, heal yourself! Do here in your town what they say you did in Capernaum.”

Jn 4:44 ²⁴ Jesus added, “No prophet is honored in his own country. ²⁵ Truly, I say to you, there were many widows in Israel in the days of Elijah, when the heavens withheld rain for three years and six months and a great famine came over the whole land.

1K 17:9 ²⁶ Yet Elijah was not sent to any of them, but to a widow of Zarephath, in the country of Sidon. ²⁷ There were also many lepers in Israel in the time of Elisha, the prophet, and no one was healed except Naaman, the Syrian.”

²⁸ On hearing these words, the whole assembly became indignant. ²⁹ They rose up and brought him out of the town, ³⁰ to the edge of the hill on which Nazareth is built, intending to throw him down the cliff. But he passed through their midst and went his way.

With the power of the spirit
(Mk 1:23; Mt 4:24; 8:14)

Mk 1: 21-28; Mt 4:24; 8:14
Mt 7: 28-29

• ³¹ Jesus went down to Capernaum, a town of Galilee, and began teaching the people at the sabbath meetings. ³² They were astonished at the way he taught them, for his word was spoken with authority.

³³ In the synagogue there was a man possessed by an evil spirit who shouted in a loud voice, ³⁴ “What do you want with us, Jesus of Nazareth? Have you come to destroy us? I recognize you: you are the Holy One of God.” ³⁵ Then Jesus said to him sharply, “Be silent and leave this man!” The evil spirit then threw the man down in front of them, and came out of him without doing him harm.

³⁶ Amazement seized all these people, and they said to one another, “What does this mean? He commands the evil spirits with authority and power. He orders, and you see how they come out!” ³⁷ And news about Jesus spread throughout the surrounding area.

³⁸ Leaving the synagogue, Jesus went to the house of Simon. His mother-in-law was suffering from high fever, and they asked him to do something for her. ³⁹ Bending over her, he rebuked the fever, and it left her. Immediately she got up and waited on them.

⁴⁰ At sunset, people suffering from many kinds of sickness were brought to Jesus. Laying his hands on each one, he healed them. ⁴¹ Demons were driven out, howling as they departed from their victims, “You are the Son of God!” He rebuked them and would not allow them to speak, for they knew he was the Messiah.

1:35;
Jn 6:69

Mt 8:
14-15;
Mk 1: 29-31

Acts
10:38;
19:12

Mk 1:34;
3:11;
Mt 12:16

Roman domination. He was witnessing to the truth and laying the foundations for all future liberation movements.

In the same way today, if there is true evangelization, liberating deeds are seen and free persons appear, able to liberate others.

He has anointed me to bring Good News to the poor (v. 18). See commentary on Luke 6:20.

Then Luke explains why the people of Nazareth rejected Jesus:

– First, because of their pride: a stranger easily dazzles us, but we fiercely deny that one of us could stand out or be our teacher: who is this but the son of Joseph? See commentary on Mark 6:1.

– Secondly, because of their selfishness: they do not agree that God’s benefits should be shared with others. So Jesus reminds them that the prophets of old did not limit their favors to their compatriots alone (see 1 K 17:7 and 2 K 5).

• 31. See commentary on Mark 1:21.

Mk 1: 35-39 •⁴² Jesus left at daybreak and looked for a solitary place. People went out in search of him, and finding him, they tried to dissuade him from leaving. ⁴³But he said, "I have to go to other towns to announce the good news of the kingdom of God. That is what I was sent to do." ⁴⁴And Jesus continued to preach in the synagogues of Galilee.

You will catch people

(Mt 4:18; Mk 1:16)

Mt 4:18; Mk 1:16; Lk 4:1 5 •¹ One day, as Jesus stood by the Lake of Gennesaret, with a crowd gathered around him listening to the word of God, ²he caught sight of two boats, left at the water's edge by fishermen, now washing their nets. ³He got into one of the boats, the one belonging to Simon, and asked him to pull out a little from the shore. There he sat and continued to teach the crowd.

Jn 21: 1-6 ⁴When he had finished speaking, he said to Simon, "Put out into deep water and lower your nets for a catch." ⁵Simon replied, "Master, we worked hard all night and caught nothing. But if you say so, I will lower the nets." ⁶This they did, and caught such a large number of fish that their nets began to break. ⁷They signaled their partners in the other boat to come and help them. They came, and they filled both boats almost to the point of sinking.

⁸Upon seeing this, Simon Peter fell at Jesus' knees, saying, "Leave me, Lord, for I am a sinful man!" ⁹For he and his companions were amazed at the catch they had made, ¹⁰and so were Simon's partners, James and John, Zebedee's sons.

Jesus said to Simon, "Do not be afraid. You will catch people from now on." ¹¹So they brought their boats to land and followed him, leaving everything.

Cure of a leper

(Mk 1:40; Mt 8:2)

•¹²One day, in another town, a man came to Jesus covered with

• 42. Jesus is a model missionary. He no sooner gathers a few believers together than they want to keep him for themselves, either because they see in him a true prophet, or want to form a true community under his guidance.

Jesus, however, leaves the task of shepherding (in the sense of guiding a specific community) to others, because he has many more people in mind still awaiting the Gospel.

• 5.1 THE APOSTLES

Jesus invites himself aboard Peter's boat, and Peter is willing to render him this service. Jesus looks for more: even though many are ready to assist him, he seeks those who are willing to totally surrender to his work. The listeners are many, but he needs apostles.

Miracles are another way in which Jesus teaches. The miracle reported here is God's word for future apostles. Lower your nets; the nets were at the breaking point; you will catch people...

Leave me, Lord, for I am a sinful man (v. 8). Such is the fear of the one who discovers that God has entered into his inner life: this is a first act of faith in the divinity of Jesus. Yet Jesus calls on sinners to save sinners.

Leaving everything (v. 11), they followed him. It is not that they had much, but it was their whole life: work, family and their whole past as fishermen.

Apostle means sent. Christ is the one who chooses his apostles and sends them in his name. Where will he find someone to send except among those who are willing to cooperate with him? One begins to be an apostle, or at least to cooperate with Christ, when one looks for something more than performing good works for the benefit of the parish, when one feels responsible for people: fisher of people.

Here Luke may have combined two different events: the call of the disciples briefly presented in Mark 1:16 and the miraculous catch. John also relates a miraculous catch (Jn 21) but he places it after the resurrection. We have good reason to think we are dealing with the same miracle, but it suited John to combine it with the appearance of the risen Jesus to the apostles, which occurred later in the same place.

Mk 4:41;
Mt 13:47

14:33;
18:22

Mt 8:1-4;
Mk 1: 40-45

leprosy. On seeing Jesus, the man bowed down to the ground, and said, "Lord, if you want to, you can make me clean."

¹³Stretching out his hand, Jesus touched the man and said, "Yes, I want to. Be clean." In an instant the leprosy left him. ¹⁴Then Jesus instructed him, "Tell this to no one. But go and show yourself to the priest. Make an offering for your healing, as Moses prescribed; that will serve as evidence for them."

Lev 14:
2-32

• ¹⁵But the news about Jesus spread all the more, and large crowds came to him, to listen and to be healed of their sickness. ¹⁶As for Jesus, he would often withdraw to solitary places and pray.

6:12;
9:18;
10:21;
11:1

The paralytic saved

(Mk 2:1; Mt 9:1)

• ¹⁷One day Jesus was teaching, and many Pharisees and teachers of the Law had come from every part of Galilee and Judea, and even from Jerusalem. They were sitting there, while the power of the Lord was at work to heal the sick. ¹⁸Then some men brought a paralyzed man who

Mt 9:1-8;
Mk 2: 1-12;
Lk 6:19;
8:46;
Acts 10:38

lay on his mat. They tried to enter the house to place him before Jesus, ¹⁹but they couldn't find a way through the crowd. So they went up on the roof, and removing the tiles, they lowered him on his mat into the middle of the crowd, in front of Jesus.

²⁰When Jesus saw their faith, he said to the man, "My friend, your sins are forgiven." ²¹At once the teachers of the Law and the Pharisees began to wonder, "This man insults God! Who can forgive sins, but God alone?"

²²But Jesus knew their thoughts and asked them, "Why are you reacting like this? ²³Which is easier to say: 'Your sins are forgiven' or 'Get up and walk'? ²⁴Now you shall know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins." And Jesus said to the paralyzed man, "Get up, take your mat and go home." ²⁵At once the man stood before them. He took up the mat he had been lying on, and went home praising God.

²⁶Amazement seized the people and they praised God. They were filled with a holy fear, and said, "What wonderful things we have seen today!"

7:16;
13:13

- 12. See commentary on Mark 1:40.

Make an offering for your healing (v. 14). The same law that demanded that a leper be isolated (Lev 13:45), provided that if the leper was healed, he could, after examination by the priests be reintegrated into the community. Because leprosy was seen as God's punishment, healing meant that God had forgiven the sinner who to express his gratitude with a sacrifice.

- 15. He would often withdraw to solitary places and pray. Luke mentions Jesus' prayer several times (3:21; 6:12; 9:28...) Jesus did not withdraw only to be still, but because, on each occasion, prayer was a necessity for him.

- 17. See commentary on Mark 2:1.

There were many Pharisees and teachers of the Law. The Pharisees and the teachers of the Law were not against Jesus yet, but being men who had received much religious formation, they were the first to wonder about Jesus' religious claims: was he only a faithful believer respectful of God's law or was he promoting a new sect? Jesus took advantage of their presence to show that he was not simply a disciple of Moses and the prophets, but the master of them all.

We easily understand why the teachers of the Law were scandalized. How could this man without studies or title, stand up to them as if he were a teacher? They were looking for the coming of a God who would confirm their teaching and acknowledge their merits. Jesus, however, was in the midst of common folk and did not pay attention to the authority of the masters of the law who looked down on them. Since the teachers of the Law could not believe, their only recourse was to oppose Jesus.

Call of Levi

(Mk 2:13; Mt 9:9)

Mt 9:
9-12;
Mk 2:
13-17

• ²⁷ After this Jesus went out, and noticing a tax collector named Levi, sitting in the tax-office, he said to him, "Follow me!" ²⁸ So Levi, leaving everything, got up and followed Jesus.

15:1

²⁹ Levi gave a great feast for Jesus, and many tax collectors came to his house and took their places at the table with the other people. ³⁰ Then the Pharisees and their followers complained to Jesus' disciples, "How is it that you eat and drink with tax collectors and sinners?"

4:23

³¹ But Jesus spoke up, "Healthy people don't need a doctor, but sick people do. ³² I have come not to call the just, but sinners to a change of heart."

15:7

³³ Some people asked him, "The disciples of John fast often and say long prayers, and so do the disciples of the Pharisees. Why is it that your disciples eat and drink?" Then Jesus said to them, ³⁴ "You can't make wedding guests fast while the bridegroom is with them. ³⁵ But later the bridegroom will be taken from them, and they will fast in those days."

Mt 9:
14-17;
Mk 2:
18-22;
Lk 11:1

Is 54:4;
61:10;
Jn 3:29;
Rev 18:23
Zec
12:11;
Jn 16:20

³⁶ Jesus also told them this parable: "No one tears a piece from a new coat to put it on an old one; otherwise the new will be torn, and the piece taken from the new will not match the old. ³⁷ No one puts new wine into old wineskins; otherwise the new wine will burst the skins and be spilled, and the skins will be destroyed as well. ³⁸ But new wine must be put into fresh skins. ³⁹ Yet no one who has tasted old wine is eager to drink new wine, but says, 'The old is good.'"

Jn 3:19;
2:10

Jesus, Lord of the Sabbath

(Mk 2:23; Mt 12:1; Mk 3:1)

6 • ¹ One Sabbath Jesus was going through the corn fields, and his disciples began to pick heads of grain, crushing them in their hands for food. ² Some of the Pharisees asked them, "Why do you do what is forbidden on the Sabbath?" ³ Then Jesus spoke up and asked them, "Have you never read what David did when he and his men were hungry? ⁴ He entered the house of God, took and ate the bread of the offering, and even gave some to his men, though only priests are allowed to eat that bread."

Mt 12:
1-8;
Mk 2:
23-28

5:30

1S 21:
2-7;
Lev 24:
5-9

- 27. See commentary on Mark 2:13.

The events related in this chapter show how Jesus situates himself in society and with what people he relates: with a small group of fishermen who will be in charge of his new movement, with lepers and sick people who seek him. He calls people who, like Levi, belong to a despised group.

- 6.1 Here we have two conflicts between Jesus and the religious people of his time concerning the Sabbath.

See commentary on Mark 3:1.

Let us not forget that the word Sabbath means rest. God requested that one day be made holy each week, not primarily for religious assemblies, but to allow everyone to rest (Ex 20:10). God is glorified when people are not enslaved in order to gain their daily sustenance because of their work.

In the first episode, Jesus does not argue with the Pharisees who consider work the mere act of plucking a few ears of corn and shelling them. First he recalls that great believers, like David, at times overlooked the law. He then adds: The Son of Man rules over the Sabbath. Among the Jews, however, no one, not even the High Priest, could dispense from the Sabbath observance. So Jesus leaves them perplexed and wondering: Who does he pretend to be?

In the second case, Jesus could have said to the man: "Why do you ask me to do something forbidden on the Sabbath? Come back tomorrow to be healed." Jesus does not avoid the confrontation because Gospel means liberation and we become free when we admit that there is nothing sacred in a society that attempts to impose its own standards. The law of rest (Sabbath) is one of the fundamental laws of

⁵ And Jesus added, "The Son of Man is Lord and rules over the sabbath."

⁶ On another Sabbath Jesus entered the synagogue and began teaching. There was a man with a paralyzed right hand, ⁷ and the teachers of the Law and the Pharisees watched him: Would Jesus heal the man on the Sabbath? If he did, they could accuse him.

⁸ But Jesus knew their thoughts, and said to the man, "Get up, and stand in the middle." ⁹ Then he spoke to them, "I want to ask you: what is allowed by the Law on the Sabbath? To do good or to do harm, to save life or to destroy it?" ¹⁰ And Jesus looked around at them all.

Then he said to the man, "Stretch out your hand." He stretched it out, and his hand was restored, becoming as healthy as the other. ¹¹ But they were furious, and began to discuss with one another how they could deal with Jesus.

The Twelve

(Mt 3:13; Mt 10:1)

• ¹² At this time Jesus went out into the hills to pray, spending the whole night in prayer with God.

¹³ When day came, he called his disciples to him, and chose twelve of them, whom he called 'apostles':

¹⁴ Simon, whom he named Peter, and his brother Andrew, James and John; Philip and Bartholomew;

¹⁵ Matthew and Thomas; James son of Alphaeus and Simon called the Zealot; ¹⁶ Judas son of James, and Judas Iscariot, who would be the traitor.

Blessings and woes

(Mt 5:6-7)

• ¹⁷ Coming down the hill with them, Jesus stood in an open plain. Many of his disciples were there and a large crowd of people, who had come from all parts of Judea and Jerusalem, and from the coastal

Mt 10: 1-4;
Mk 3:
13-19;
Mt 5:1;
Mk 6:7

Jn 15:
16; 17:9

Acts 1:13;
Gen 17:5

Jn 13:18

Mt 4:
24-25;
Mk 3: 7-12;
3:7;
6:54

the Bible but that does not prevent the possibility of this law causing oppression and for that reason it must at times be dispensed with.

It is the same for the most sacred laws of the Church: at a given moment they might be an obstacle to the Gospel and, if that be the case, Christian conscience, enlightened by the Holy Spirit, must find a solution for the time being. As long as people are subject to an order, to laws and authorities which are considered sacred and which no one thinks of criticizing, those people are neither free nor true sons and daughters of God. (See 1 Cor 3:21-23; 8:4-5; Col 2:20-23.)

A respect for God that would destroy our critical sense would not be in keeping with the Gospel; a religion preventing us from seeking the truth and from questioning every area of human restlessness would not be the true one. To study the Bible without daring to know and take into account the contributions of modern science for fear that our very naive vision of sacred history would fall apart would be to sin against the Spirit.

• 12. Jesus keeps those whom he loves the most in his prayer. The success of his mission will depend upon them; other people's faith will rest on them. Jesus does not want their call to be his own will: before calling them, he wants to be certain that he is doing the Father's will (Heb 5:8). For the simple reason that Christ chose them and entrusted his Church to them, they will be tested in a thousand ways (Lk 22:31). Therefore Jesus wants to safeguard them through the power of his prayer (Jn 17:9). The day before his death he will have the consolation that not one of those the Father gave him has been lost (Jn 17:12).

• 17. See the commentary on the beatitudes in Matthew 5:1. Matthew adapts them for the members of the church of his time. Luke, on the other hand, puts the beatitudes here just as Jesus proclaimed them to the people of Galilee. In the words of Jesus, the beatitudes were a call and a hope addressed to the forgotten of the world, beginning with the poor among his people, heirs of God's promise to the prophets.

The Gospel, as in Mary's Canticle (1:51-53), reverses the present situation. Since then, God shows his mercy especially by his generosity towards the poor and the despised. He Mk 1:39 cities of Tyre and Sidon. ¹⁸They gathered to hear him and to be healed of their diseases. And people troubled by unclean spirits were cured. ¹⁹The entire crowd tried to touch him, because of the power that went out from him and healed them all.

Mt 5:1, 3; Ps 1:1; 32:1; 33:12; 84:5
²⁰Then, looking at his disciples, Jesus said,

“Fortunate are you who are poor, for the kingdom of God is yours.

Mt 5:6, 5; Is 25:6; 49:10
²¹Fortunate are you who are hungry now, for you will be filled.

Fortunate are you who weep now, for you will laugh.

Mt 5; Lk 11:12; Lk 11:49; 13:34
²²Fortunate are you when people hate you, when they reject you and insult you and number you among criminals, because of the Son of Man. ²³Rejoice in that day and leap for joy, for a great reward is kept for you in heaven. Remember, that is how the ancestors of this people treated the prophets.

²⁴But alas for you who have wealth, for you have been comforted now.

²⁵Alas for you who are full, for you will go hungry.

Alas for you who laugh now, for you will mourn and weep.

²⁶Alas for you when people speak well of you, for that is how the ancestors of these people treated the false prophets.

Love of enemies

(Mt 5:38)

• ²⁷But I say to you who hear me: Love your enemies, do good to those 10:13;

11:42

Is 65:13

Mt 5:44

also entrusts his Gospel to them and makes them the first to participate in his work in the world. The poor are those whose contribution is most necessary to the building of the Kingdom; when the Church forgets this, she does not delay in returning to what Jesus criticized in God's people of his time.

There are a thousand ways to present Jesus and his work. However, in order for such teaching to deserve the name evangelization (or: communication of the Good News) it must be received as Good News first by the poor. If other social groups feel more identified with the teaching, or they are invited first, it means that something is lacking either in content or in the way of proclaiming the message. Most probably it is not given in such a way that it does justice to the disinherited.

In contrast with these beatitudes, Luke presents lamentations recalling those of Isaiah (65:13-14). They are lamentations as used for the dead, not maledictions. For the rich forget God and become impermeable to grace (12, 13, 16, 19). These lamentations are a sign of the love of God for the rich, as are the beatitudes for the poor, for he loves them all, but in a different way. To the first he affirms that he will destroy the structures of injustice, and to the others he gives a warning: richness brings death.

The beatitudes do not speak of the conversion of the rich, nor do they say that the poor are better, but they promise a reversal. The Kingdom signifies a new society: God blesses the poor but not poverty.

When people speak well of you (v. 26) (see 1 Cor 4:8). The contrast between groups of people who are persecuted and those who are well thought of can exist within the Church itself. Many problems can remain unsolved and even mission itself be blocked because of influential groups and persons who want for nothing and know how to obtain official benedictions. Jesus recalls the example of the prophets.

In Jesus' time the religious authorities of the Jews had a very limited esteem for the writings of the prophets, giving all importance to the books of the Law centered on the cult of the Temple. Jesus would tell his disciples that they are the heirs of the prophets (Mt 13:17; Acts 3:25; James 5:10), and will give importance to the unassuming messengers who, within the people of God (and often in contradiction with dominant ideas) proclaim the word of God. A Christian should never be surprised by weakness or any other defect that he meets in the Church; let him be happy to be faithful even when persecuted.

• 27. Here Luke presents only a few of Jesus' sayings which Matthew combines in chapters 5 to 7 of his Gospel, and which we have explained.

Some people feel cheated when they see that Jesus speaks about changing our life rath-who hate you. ²⁸Bless those who curse you, and pray for those who treat you badly. ²⁹To the one who strikes you on the cheek, turn the other cheek; from the one who takes your coat, do not keep back your shirt. ³⁰Give to the one who asks, and if anyone has taken something from you, do not demand it back.

Mt 5:
39-40

Mt 5:42;
1Cor 6:7

Mt 7:12

Mt 5:46

• ³¹Do to others as you would have others do to you. ³²If you love only those who love you, what kind of grace is yours? Even sinners love those who love them. ³³If you do favors to those who are good to you, what kind of grace is yours? Even sinners do the same. ³⁴If you lend only when you expect to receive, what kind of grace is yours? For sinners also lend to sinners, expecting to receive something in return.

• ³⁵But love your enemies and do good to them, and lend when there is nothing to expect in return. Then will your reward be great, and you will be sons and daughters of the Most High. For he is kind towards the ungrateful and the wicked. ³⁶Be merciful, just as your Father is merciful.

³⁷Don't be a judge of others and you will not be judged; do not con-

Mt 5:45;
Lk 14:12;
34:12;
Dt 4:31;
Sir 4:10

34:6-7;
Mt 5:48

Mt 7:1;
10:24;
Rom
14:10

er than about reforming society. Let us not reproach Jesus for not mentioning social reform at a time when few understood what it was. The reason is elsewhere: Jesus deals with the essential. The root of evil is within people. It is obvious that evil structures prevent people from living and growing. It is equally obvious that not a single revolution, however many benefits it may bring, can establish a less oppressive society, as long as people themselves are not transformed according to the Gospel. Jesus teaches us the way towards growth and freedom.

All need conversion to Jesus' word. Jesus' obvious predilection for the poor and oppressed does not mean they are better. It means God is compassionate, sharing a deeper mercy where misery is deeper, offering hope and total liberation where hope is dimmest. The oppressed person is not innocent; if he were not paralyzed by fear, divisiveness, and greed for the advantages offered to him by his oppressor, he would attain a moral power capable of renewing the world. Thus, the oppressed will not be freed unless they grow in confidence in God, which will enable them to understand each other and risking a way of reconciliation.

The following sayings of Jesus point out the indispensable changes of heart and approach.

Give to the one who asks (v. 30). Jesus does not give a rule which is automatically applicable in all situations: we know there are times when we should not give because it would encourage bad habits. Jesus wants to challenge our conscience: Why do you refuse to give? Are you afraid you will not be paid back? What if this was the opportunity to trust your Father and to let go of something which is "your treasure" (12:34)? You who wish to be perfect, why do you ignore so many opportunities to give up your own wisdom in order to let God take care of you?

• 31. Here, as in Matthew 5:43, Jesus does not refer mainly to personal resentment and friendships, but to opposition in the social, political or religious order: treating differently the people of one's group or party and those of the opposite side. We love and respect those of our own group and are only moderately concerned about the rights of others: they are probably sinners and even in the best of circumstances of small interest...

Jesus invites us to overcome such differences: what counts is the individual and when my neighbor needs me, I must forget his color or whatever label has been given him.

If you lend when you expect to receive. Once again, we are dealing with a social attitude: people who look for friends among those who can promote their social climbing and who avoid all who might be a burden because they are people without influence: Luke 14:12.

• 35. See commentary on Matthew 7:1. Perfection for us consists in imitating the Father. He is God by being compassionate; his compassion is his ability to be touched by the poverty and the anguish of his creatures, and to lavish upon them what he can give. The attitude of the person who judges his brothers and sisters is the very opposite of mercy.

demn and you will not be condemned; forgive and you will be forgiven; ³⁸give and it will be given to you, and you will receive in your sack good measure, pressed down, full and running over. For the measure you give will be the measure you receive back.”

³⁹And Jesus offered this example, “Can a blind person lead another blind person? Surely both will fall into a ditch. ⁴⁰A disciple is not above the master; but when fully trained, he will be like the master. ⁴¹So why do you pay attention to the speck in your brother’s eye, while you have a log in your eye, and are not conscious of it? ⁴²How can you say to your neighbor, ‘Friend, let me take this speck out of your eye,’ when you can’t remove the log in your own? You hypocrite! First remove the log from your own eye, and then you will see clearly enough to remove the speck from your neighbor’s eye.”

• ⁴³No healthy tree bears bad fruit, no poor tree bears good fruit. ⁴⁴And each tree is known by the fruit it bears: you don’t gather figs from thorns, or grapes from brambles.

Jesus speaks of the way in which God already leads us in the present life. A rationalist culture has often convinced us that God lets the laws of nature and humankind go their own way while he remains a passive spectator, but the kingdom of God is the presence of God himself who even today has liberty to reverse all situations, even if for that purpose he has his own time.

• 43. No healthy tree... (v. 43). These sayings were already mentioned in Matthew 7:15. Here, however, Luke gives them a different meaning by referring to a pure conscience. We must purify our mind and our spirit to become the tree that produces good fruits.

• 7.1 THE POWER OF GOD

This captain of a foreign army earned the esteem of the Jews. The amazing thing was not that he should have contributed to the ⁴⁵Similarly the good person draws good things from the good stored in his heart, and an evil person draws evil things from the evil stored in his heart. For the mouth speaks from the fullness of the heart.

⁴⁶Why do you call me ‘Lord! Lord!’ and do not do what I say? ⁴⁷I will show you what the one is like, who comes to me, and listens to my words, and acts accordingly. ⁴⁸That person is like the builder who dug deep, and laid the foundations of his house on rock. The river overflowed, and the stream dashed against the house, but could not carry it off because the house had been well built.

⁴⁹But the one who listens and does not act, is like a man who built his house on the ground without a foundation. The flood burst against it, and the house fell at once: and what a terrible disaster that was!”

The faith of a pagan

(Mt 8:5; Jn 4:46)

7 • ¹When Jesus had finished teaching the people, he went to Capernaum.

²There was a captain whose ser-building of the synagogue, but rather that the Jews should have accepted it from him. He must have been a good man. He knew the Jews’ prejudices too well to have dared to personally approach this Jesus of whom they spoke. Indeed, up to what point did Jesus share his compatriots’ pride? Would he respond to the petition of a Roman official? That was why he sent his Jewish friends to Jesus.

The man is really troubled: will Jesus consent to go to a pagan’s house and “become impure”? (Jn 18:28). The captain goes one step further: Jesus does not have to come to his house. While other sick people seek to be touched by the Master thinking that Jesus possesses some healing power, this man, has instead grasped that Jesus has the very power of God and does not need to go to the sick servant: it would not be any more difficult to give a command from a distance to a life that was slipping away.

Mt 7:2;
Mk 4:24;
Lk 19:26;
Mt 25:29;
Ru 3:15

Mt 15:14;
Lk 8:16

Mt 10:
24-25;
Jn 13:16;
15:20
Mt 7:3-5

Mt 12:
33-35

Mt 7:
16-18

Mt 7:21

Mt 7:
24-27

Mt 8:5-10, 13;
Jn 4:
46-54;
Mt 7:28

Acts 10:28

vant was very sick and near to death, a man very dear to him. ³So when he heard about Jesus, he sent some elders of the Jews to persuade him to come and save his servant's life. ⁴The elders came to Jesus and begged him earnestly, saying, ⁵"He deserves this of you, for he loves our people and even built a synagogue for us."

Acts
10:2

⁶Jesus went with them. He was not far from the house, when the captain sent friends to give this message, "Sir, do not trouble yourself, for I am not worthy to welcome you under my roof. ⁷You see, I didn't approach you myself. Just give the order, and my servant will be healed. ⁸For I myself, a junior officer, give orders to my soldiers, and I say to this one, 'Go!' and he goes; and to the other, 'Come!' and he comes; and to my servant, 'Do this!' and he does it."

⁹On hearing these words, Jesus was filled with admiration. He turned and said to the people with him, "I say to you, not even in Israel have I found such great faith." ¹⁰The people, sent by the captain, went back to his house; there they found that the servant was well.

• 11. No one has ever attributed power over death to any person. Only Jesus conquers death and he does so very simply.

Jesus only knew this young man through his mother and it is for her that he has restored him to life. To be a widow without children is the height of distress (see Ruth), and it will be the lot of Mary.

The woman represents suffering humanity. "You will suffer because of your children": this was said after the first sin. Humanity cannot avoid accompanying the dead after depriving them of their reasons for living. Humanity buries their young with tears, while continuing to kill them.

THOSE WHO DOUBT

• 18. Jesus and John the Baptist. The situation has been reversed. John appeared as a

The son of a widow restored to life

• ¹¹A little later Jesus went to a town called Naim. He was accompanied by his disciples and a great number of people. ¹²As he reached the gate of the town, a dead man was being carried out. He was the only son of his mother, and she was a widow; there followed a large crowd of townspeople.

8:42;
9:38

¹³On seeing her, the Lord had pity on her and said, "Don't cry." ¹⁴Then he came up and touched the stretcher, and the men who carried it stopped. Jesus then said, "Young man, I say to you, wake up!" ¹⁵And the dead man sat up and began to speak, and Jesus gave him to his mother. ¹⁶A holy fear came over them all, and they praised God, saying, "A great prophet has appeared among us; God has visited his people." ¹⁷This news spread throughout Judea and the surrounding places.

1K 17:23

Gen
21:1;
3:16;
Lk 1:
68, 76

Jesus answers the messengers of John (Mt 11:2)

• ¹⁸The disciples of John gave him all this news. So John called two of them ¹⁹and sent them to the Lord with this message, "Are you the one we are expecting, or should we wait

Mt 11:
2-15Ps 118:
26;
Jn 6:14;
11:27

great prophet, while Jesus began preaching in John's wake but without the same impact (3:18-20). Now John is in prison and Jesus is known as a healer. Has John doubts in prison? It is possible even if he had told some of his followers that Jesus would take his place. It might be more accurate to interpret his question as a pressing invitation: "If you are the one who is to come, why so much delay?"

John's disciples did witness the cures, but the cures are not everything and Jesus adds: the poor hear good news because real evangelization restores hope and leaves people renewed.

The blind see, the lame walk... (v. 22). The prophets foretold these signs (Is 35:5) that were really something new, because in the past God usually manifested himself as a powerful savior. These healings pointed to the liberation for another?”²⁰ These men came to Jesus and said, “John the Baptist sent us to ask you: Are you the one we are to expect, or should we wait for another?”

²¹ At that time Jesus healed many people of their sicknesses and diseases; he freed them from evil spirits and he gave sight to the blind.

²² Then he answered the messengers, “Go back and tell John what you have seen and heard: the blind see again, the lame walk, lepers are made clean, the deaf hear, the dead are raised to life, and the poor are given good news. Now, listen: ²³ Fortunate are those who meet me, and are not offended by me.”

²⁴ When John’s messengers had gone, Jesus began speaking to the people about John. And he said, “What did you want to see, when you went to the desert? A reed blowing in the wind? ²⁵ What was there to see?

A man dressed in fine clothes? But people who wear fine clothes and enjoy delicate food are found in palaces. ²⁶ What did you go out to see? A prophet? Yes, I tell you, and more than a prophet. ²⁷ For John is the one foretold in Scripture in these words: I am sending my messenger ahead of you to prepare your way. ²⁸ No one may be found greater than John among those born of women, but, I tell you, the least in the kingdom of God is greater than he.

²⁹ All the people listening to him, even the tax collectors, had acknowledged the will of God in receiving the baptism of John, ³⁰ whereas the Pharisees and the teachers of the Law, in not letting themselves be baptized by him, ignored the will of God.

³¹ What comparison can I use for this people? What are they like? ³² They are like children sitting in the marketplace, about whom their

3:1-6;
Jn 1:23;
Mal 3:1

Mt 21:32

Acts
2:23

that Jesus was bringing: not punishment of sinners (which was a great part of John the Baptist’s preaching) but, before all else, reconciliation suited to healing a world of sinners, of violent and resentful people.

Fortunate are those who meet me, and are not offended by me (v. 23). And fortunate are those who do not doubt Christ’s salvation after seeing the fruits of evangelization. Fortunate are those who do not say: this way is too slow. The Gospel shows its richness in giving life to people, in restoring hope to those who have experienced weakness and sin. It is necessary to have seen and understood that this is most important.

It does not matter if the world seems to continue to surrender to the forces of evil. The presence of liberated people compels others to define themselves in terms of good and evil and this makes the world grow.

With this, Jesus answers the disciples of John, men who are self-sacrificing and concerned for the triumph of God’s cause. Perhaps they are so absorbed in their search for justice that they fail to recognize God’s powerful working in Jesus’ actions, which appeared so gentle and mild.

• 24. When John’s messengers had gone. Most of John’s disciples continued to follow him and did not acknowledge Jesus. Jesus did not accuse them, instead he praised John and situated himself in respect to John.

A prophet and more than a prophet (v. 26): Jesus clearly takes a stand in favor of John; yet John was the subject of many reservations in respected circles. No one (the Gospel uses the Jewish term: among those born of woman, that simply means: no one) could be found greater than John. For the common people John was the greatest contemporary figure. Jesus agreed with them for this reason: John introduced the Savior and the kingdom of God.

The least in the kingdom of God is greater than he (v. 28): in the sense that Jesus’ disciples entered the kingdom that John only announced. However holy John may have been, he was not given the knowledge of God that permeated Jesus. Actually Jesus emphasized the superiority, not of his disciples as compared to John, but of his own mission when compared with that of John.

John said that each one had to straighten out his life. Jesus rather insists that all efforts companions complain, 'We piped you a tune and you wouldn't dance; we sang funeral songs and you wouldn't cry.'

Jn 7:20

³³Remember John: he didn't eat bread or drink wine, and you said, 'He has an evil spirit.'³⁴Next came the Son of Man, eating and drinking, and you say, 'Look, a glutton for food and wine, a friend of tax collectors and sinners.'³⁵But the children of Wisdom always recognize her work."

Jesus, the woman and the Pharisee

Mt 26:
6-13;
Lk 11:37;
14:1

• ³⁶One of the Pharisees asked Jesus to share his meal, so he went to the Pharisee's home, and as usual reclined at the table to eat. ³⁷And it happened that a woman of this town, who was known as a sinner, heard that he was in the Pharisee's house. She brought an alabaster jar of perfume, ³⁸and stood behind him, at his feet, weeping. She wet his feet with her tears, she dried them with her hair, she kissed his feet and poured the perfume on them.

Mk 14:3;
Jn 12:3

³⁹The Pharisee who had invited Jesus was watching, and thought, "If this man were a prophet, he would know what sort of person is touching him; isn't this woman a sinner?"

⁴⁰Then Jesus spoke to the Pharisee and said, "Simon, I have something to ask you." He answered, "Speak, master." And Jesus said, ⁴¹"Two people were in debt to the same creditor. One owed him five hundred silver coins, and the other fifty. ⁴²As they were unable to pay him back, he graciously canceled the debts of both. Now, which of them will love him more?"

⁴³Simon answered, "The one, I suppose, who was forgiven more." And Jesus said, "You are right." ⁴⁴And turning toward the woman, he said to Simon, "Do you see this woman? ⁴⁵You gave me no water for my feet when I entered your house, but she has washed my feet with her tears and dried them with her hair. You didn't welcome me with a kiss, but she has not stopped kissing my feet since she came in. ⁴⁶You pro-are useless if a person does not believe in the Father's love. John's disciples used to fast; Jesus' disciples will know how to forgive. John attracted to the desert those who knew how to let go of conveniences that they were accustomed to; Jesus lives among people and heals their wounds. The baptism of John signified a person's willingness to give up his vices, while the baptism of Jesus bestows the Spirit of God.

Gen 18:4

They are like children sitting... (v. 32). They do everything at the wrong time; they reproach John for his austerity and Jesus for his lack of austerity. There is no "one" way of serving God; there is no "one" model of holiness, "one" style of Christian life. God acts in thousands of ways throughout history, encouraging at a given time what he will censure later in another milieu. The alarming asceticism of hermits in the desert or that of the ancient Irish monks has been a richness for Christianity; a Christianity that appears more human has not prevented other believers from following Jesus to the cross. Jesus went further than John but he needed John: the Gospel is heard with pleasure but is not taken seriously as long as repentance and sacrifice are brushed aside. Perhaps the renewal of our faith today is waiting for prophets and for movements that dare to question a culture and a society that has become sterile.

• 36. The Pharisee, Simon, had some clear and simple religious principles: The world is divided between good people and sinners. Those who obey are the good people; sinners are those with notorious sins. God loves the good and does not love sinners: God stays away from sinners. Being good, Simon stays away from sinners. Since Jesus does not move away from the sinful woman, the Spirit of God must not be guided by him.

Simon was a Pharisee, and Pharisee means: "separated" (apart). Let us not condemn him: a constant theme running through the Bible invites the righteous to separate themselves from sinners; it was thought that the "uncleanness" vided no oil for my head, but she has poured perfume on my feet. ⁴⁷This is why, I tell you, her sins, her many sins, are forgiven, because of her great love. But the one who is forgiven little, has little love.”

⁴⁸Then Jesus said to the woman, “Your sins are forgiven.” ⁴⁹The others reclining with him at the table began to wonder, “Now this man claims to forgive sins!” ⁵⁰But Jesus again spoke to the woman, “Your faith has saved you; go in peace!”

The women who followed Jesus

8 • ¹Jesus walked through towns and countryside, preaching and giving the good news of the kingdom of God. The Twelve followed him, ²and also some women, who had been healed of evil spirits and diseases: Mary called Magdalene, who had been freed of seven demons; ³Joanna, wife of Chuza, Herod’s steward; Suzanna, and others who provided for them out of their own funds.

Mt 4:23;
9:35;
Mk 1:39;
15:41;
Lk 4:
43-44
8:38;
Jn 19:25;
Lk 23:49;
Mk 16:9;
Mt 27:55

of a sinner necessarily contaminates the others. Jesus shows that this need to separate, like awaiting the punishment of sinners, disregards both the wisdom of God and the reality of the human heart. God knows that we need time to test good and evil and also to arrive at a mature and stable orientation. He lets us sin because, in the end, we will know more clearly that we are bad and that we need only Him. Thus God easily forgets our sins and our excesses, if in spite of them or through them, we come to genuine love.

Simon did not welcome Jesus with the customary signs of hospitality at that time. In those days, people reclined on sofas around the table according to the custom of rich people and thus Jesus did as well. How could he dialogue with this respectable man who believed he knew the things of God but was incapable of feeling them? Jesus was waiting for the arrival of the sinful woman.

The one who is forgiven little (v. 47). This is a maxim rather than a valid affirmation in every case. Many who were not great sinners have loved Jesus passionately. Here Jesus speaks with irony to a very “decent” man: Simon, you think you owe little (and you are wrong in that), and for this reason you do not love much.

This is why her sins are forgiven (v. 47). Some see a contradiction between this verse and verse 42, where great love is the fruit of greater forgiveness. In verse 47 great love obtains this forgiveness. Jesus does not attempt to say which of the two—love or forgiveness—comes first: in fact, the two go together. Here Jesus is contrasting two forms of religion. The religion of the Pharisee is something like book-keeping: God takes note of good and bad works to later reward more fully the person with more entries for good works. True religion, focuses instead, only on the quality of love and trust, and usually we love to the degree that we become aware of how much God has forgiven us.

Your sins are forgiven (v. 48). Try to understand the scandal such words must have caused. Actually, whom had the woman loved except Jesus? Who could forgive sins, except God?

It is easy for us at a distance to side with Jesus against Simon and his friends, but in fact Jesus went against all the reasons that usually help religious persons in their own decision-making.

From early times a question has been raised: what relationship is there between the sinful woman of this paragraph, Mary of Magdala of the following paragraph, and Mary of Bethany who, during another meal, pours perfume on the feet of Jesus (a very strange gesture) in the house of another Simon, and becomes the subject of criticism? Are they one, or two or three? The Gospel does not tell us clearly, given also the fact that the evangelists never hesitate to relocate a word or conversation of Jesus to put them in a context better suited to their account.

Whatever the answer may be, there are links between these various episodes. The scandal for religious persons was not that on one occasion Jesus allowed a sinful woman to approach him, but that women who belonged to the group of disciples familiarly approached him. One of them, Mary of Magdala, could have been less than a model at the time of her demons (8:2).

JESUS AND THE CULTURE OF HIS TIME

• 8.1 See the commentary of Matthew 1:18 concerning the inferior status of women in the time of Jesus and especially in Jewish society. No spiritual master would have spoken to a woman in public: women were not

The parable of the sower

(Mk 4:1; Mt 13:1)

Mt 13:
1-9;
Mk 4:1-9

⁴As a great crowd gathered, and people came to him from every town, Jesus began teaching them with a story: ⁵“The sower went out to sow the seed. And as he sowed, some of the seed fell along the way, was trodden on, and the birds of the sky ate it up. ⁶Some seed fell on rocky ground, and no sooner had it come up than it withered, because it had no water. ⁷Some seed fell among thorns; the thorns grew up with the seed and choked it. ⁸But some seed fell on good soil and grew, producing fruit, a hundred times as much!” And Jesus cried out, “Listen then, if you have ears to hear!”

Dt 29:3

Mt 13:
10-11, 13;
Mk 4:
10-12

⁹• The disciples asked him, “What does this story mean?” ¹⁰And Jesus answered, “To you it has been given to know the mystery of the kingdom of God. But to others it is given in the form of stories, or parables, so that seeing they may not perceive, and hearing they may not understand.”

¹¹Now, this is the point of the parable:

The seed is the word of God. ¹²Those along the wayside are people who hear it, but immediately the devil comes and takes the word from their minds, for he doesn't want them to believe and be saved. ¹³Those on the rocky ground are people who receive the word with joy, but they have no root; they believe for a while, and give way in time of trial. ¹⁴Among the thorns are people who hear the word, but, as they go their way, they are choked by worries, riches, and the pleasures of life; they even admitted to the synagogues. Nevertheless, Jesus did not pay the least attention to such universally accepted prejudices. Various women took Jesus' words and attitude as a call to freedom. They even joined the circle of his intimate friends while ignoring the gossip. Here we have a fundamental testimony about the freedom of the Gospel.

Jesus was truly human, and as such he belonged to a race and a culture: he was a Jew of his time and his gospel was attuned to the culture that he shared. Yet Jesus did not adopt the inhuman traits of his culture; nor did he accept the prejudices of the Jews of his time with regard to women, to public sinners, to pagans and so on, nor did he share their views in regard to the Sabbath. His gospel is a leaven that changes cultures for the better; in many respects his way of life goes against the mainstream of cultures.

Mary of Magdala (Magdala was a village on the shore of Lake Tiberias) will be at the foot of the cross along with Mary, the wife of Cleophas, the mother of James and Joset. These two women, along with Joanna, will receive the first news of the Resurrection (Lk 24:10).

- 9. See commentary on Matthew 13:1-23.

This is the point of the parable (v. 11). The comparison (or parable) of the sower helps us to understand what is happening around Jesus. Many people became very enthusiastic at the beginning, then, after a while they left. Only a few persevered and the apostles wondered: How will the kingdom of God come if no one is interested?

The Gospel records Jesus' explanation about the fields on which the seed fell. There was a lot more to explain. First, his comparing the kingdom of God with something that is sown must have surprised the listeners. Throughout Sacred History, there had been abundant sowing and Jesus' contemporaries were expecting a harvest (see Rev 14:15).

We, like Jesus' contemporaries, want to reap, that is to enjoy the fruits of the kingdom of God, namely, social peace, justice and happiness. Many wonder how it is possible that people continue to be so evil two thousand years after Christ.

If the kingdom of God has come and it is already in our midst, that does not mean we are going to enjoy its fruits. The kingdom of God is where God rules, and God rules where people accept him for what he is, where he can be Father and where his sons and daughters can accept his plan for them.

From that moment on, people grow in a thousand ways, and social consciousness also develops. People become aware of their dignity and their common destiny, in spite of the 21:19; 1Thes 1:3; 2Cor 1:6; 6:4; 12:12; Rom 5:3; 8:25

bring no fruit to maturity. ¹⁵The good soil, instead, are people who receive the word, and keep it in a gentle and generous mind, and persevering patiently, they bear fruit.

Mk 4: 21-22; Mt 5:15; Lk 11:33

¹⁶No one, after lighting a lamp, covers it with a bowl or puts it under the bed; rather he puts it on a lampstand, so that people coming in may see the light. ¹⁷In the same way, there is nothing hidden that shall not be uncovered; nothing kept secret that shall not be known clearly. ¹⁸Now, pay attention and listen well, for whoever produces will be given more, but from those who do not produce, even what they seem to have will be taken away from them.”

Jesus' mother and brothers

(Mk 3:31; Mt 12:46)

Mt 12: 46-50; Mk 3: 31-35

• ¹⁹Then his mother and his relatives came to him, but they could not get to him because of the crowd. ²⁰Someone told him, “Your mother and your brothers are standing outside and wish to meet you.” ²¹Then Jesus answered, “My mother and my brothers are those who hear the word of God and do it.”

Jesus calms the storm

(Mk 4:35; Mt 8:23)

Mt 8: 23-27;

²²One day Jesus got into a boat with his disciples and said to them, “Let us go across to the other side of the lake.” ²³So they set out, and as they sailed he fell asleep. Suddenly a storm came down on the lake, and the boat began to fill with water, and they were in danger. ²⁴The disciples then went to Jesus to wake him, saying, “Master! Master! We are sinking!” Jesus woke up. He rebuked the wind and the rolling waves; the storm subsided, and all was quiet.

²⁵Then Jesus said to them, “Where is your faith?” They had been afraid; now they were astonished and said to one another, “Who can this be? See, he commands even the wind and the sea and they obey him!”

The possessed man and the pigs

(Mk 5:1; Mt 8:28)

• ²⁶And they sailed to the country of the Gerasenes, which is across the lake from Galilee. ²⁷As Jesus stepped ashore, a man from the town approached him. This man was possessed by demons, and for a long time he had not worn any clothes. He would not live in a house, but stayed among the tombstones. ²⁸When he came nearer to Jesus, he screamed and threw himself on the ground before him; and then he shouted, “What do you want with me, Jesus, son of fact that it seems more impossible every day to reach the goal.

Mk 4: 35-41

Mt 8: 28-34; Mk 5: 1-20

KINGDOM OR REIGN OF GOD

Jesus spoke Aramaic, a language in which a single term means three different things: the kingdom, that is the place where God acts as king; the reign, or the fact that God acts as king; royalty, or the dignity of God the king.

Jesus often speaks of the kingdom proper: “you will not enter the kingdom of God”; elsewhere, however, the meaning is debatable as for example in the Our Father. Should we say: “Your kingdom come” or “Your reign come”?

In the present parables, traditionally called the parables of the Kingdom, the two meanings go together. The great news that Jesus proclaimed was the coming of an age totally different from the times of sacred history that the Jews had experienced. God was obviously present throughout human history, especially Israel's history, yet now he was coming in a different way. Now, and only now, would people know him as he is.

The reign of God began with Jesus revealing the true face of God; then at his rising as Lord of the living and the dead, he would begin to rule and personally reorient human history.

- 19. See commentary on Mark 3:31.
- 26. See commentary on Mark 5:1.

11:24 the Most High God? I beg you, do not torment me”,²⁹ for Jesus had ordered the evil spirit to leave the man.

This spirit had seized him many times, when he had been bound with ropes and chains and kept under control. He would then suddenly break the chains, and be driven by the evil spirit into wild places.

When Jesus asked him,³⁰ “What is your name?” the man said, “I am Legion,” because many demons had entered into him.³¹ And they begged Jesus not to command them to go into the bottomless pit.³² Nearby, on a hillside, a great herd of pigs was feeding; so the demons asked to be allowed to enter the pigs, and Jesus gave them permission.³³ The demons then left the man and entered the pigs, and the herd rushed down the hillside into the lake and was drowned.

³⁴When the herdsman saw what had happened, they fled, and reported it in the town and in the countryside.³⁵ Then people went out to see what had happened and came to Jesus. There they saw the man from whom the demons had been driven out. He was clothed and in his right mind, and was sitting at the feet of Jesus. They were afraid.³⁶ Then people, who had seen it, told them how the man had been healed;³⁷ and all this crowd from the Gerasene country asked Jesus to depart from them, for a great fear took hold of them. So Jesus got into the boat to return.

³⁸It was then that the man freed of the demons asked Jesus if he could stay with him.³⁹ But Jesus sent him on his way, “Go back to your family, and tell them how much God has done for you.” So the man went away, proclaiming through the whole town how much Jesus had done for him.

A woman is healed and a child raised to life

(Mk 5:21; Mt 9:18)

•⁴⁰ When Jesus returned, the people welcomed him, for all had been waiting for him.⁴¹ At that time a man named Jairus, an official of the synagogue, threw himself at Jesus’ feet, and begged him to come to his house⁴² because his only daughter, about twelve years old, was dying.

As Jesus was on his way, the crowd pressed from every side.⁴³ There was a woman who had suffered from a bleeding for twelve years. This woman had spent everything she had on doctors, but none of them had been able to cure her.⁴⁴ Now she came up behind Jesus and touched the fringe of his cloak, and her bleeding stopped at once.⁴⁵ Jesus said, “Who touched me?” Everyone denied it, and Peter said, “Master, the crowd is pushing all around you.”⁴⁶ But Jesus insisted, “Someone touched me, for I felt power go out from me.”

⁴⁷The woman knew she had been discovered. She came trembling, and knelt before Jesus. Then she openly confessed why she had touched him, and how she had been instantly cured.⁴⁸ And Jesus said to her, “Daughter, your faith has saved you. Go in peace.”

⁴⁹While Jesus was still speaking, a messenger arrived from the official’s home to tell him, “Your daughter has just died; don’t trouble the master any further.”⁵⁰ But Jesus heard the news, and said to the official, “Do not fear, only believe.”

⁵¹When he entered the house, Jesus allowed no one to follow him, except Peter, James and John, with the father and mother of the child.

Mt 9:
18-26;
Mk 5:
21-43;
10:52;
Lk 7:50

Num
15:38

• 40. See commentary on Mark 5:21.

Jn 11:11; 1Cor 15:18
 52 As all the people were weeping and wailing loudly, Jesus said to them, "Do not weep, she is not dead, but asleep." 53 And they laughed at him, knowing that she was dead. 54 As for Jesus, he took the child by the hand and said to her, "Child, wake up!" 55 And her spirit returned, and she got up at once; then Jesus told them to give her something to eat. 56 The parents were amazed, but Jesus ordered them not to let anyone know what had happened.

Jesus sends the Twelve on a mission
 (Mt 10:5; Mk 6:7)

Mt 10: 5...14; Mk 6: 7-13; Lk 10:1
 9¹ Then Jesus called his twelve disciples, and gave them power and authority to drive out all evil spirits and to heal diseases. 2 And he sent them to proclaim the kingdom of God and to heal the sick. 3 He instructed them, "Don't take anything for the journey, neither walking stick, nor bag, nor bread, nor silver coins; and don't even take a spare tunic. 4 Whatever house you enter, remain there until you leave that place. 5 And wherever they don't welcome you, leave the town and shake the dust from your feet: it will be as a testimony against them."

6 So they set out and went through the villages, proclaiming the good news and healing people everywhere.

7 King Herod heard of all this, and did not know what to think, for people said, "This is John, raised from the dead." 8 Others believed that Elijah, or one of the ancient prophets, had come back to life. 9 As for Herod, he said, "I had John beheaded. Who is this man, about whom I hear such wonders?" And he was anxious to see him.

10 On their return the apostles told Jesus everything they had done. Then he took them aside to a lonely place, and they set off for a town called Bethsaida to be by themselves. 11 But the crowd heard of this and caught up with him. So he welcomed them, and began speaking about the kingdom of God, curing those who needed healing.

Miracle of the loaves
 (Mk 6:30; Mt 14:13; Jn 6:1)

• 12 The day was drawing to a close, and the Twelve drew near to tell him, "Send the crowd away, and let them go into the villages and farms around, to find lodging and

• 9.12 See commentary on Mark 6:35.

This multiplication of the loaves occurs in all four Gospels, which is true of very few events in the Gospel. Besides this account, another multiplication of the loaves is related in Matthew 15:32 and Mark 8:1. It is likely due to the fact that one could see in it the announcement of the Eucharist as will be emphasized in the Gospel of John (chap. 6).

This abundance of accounts may be due to the fact that the multiplication of bread is one of the miracles of Jesus which best shows his absolute power over the laws of nature (see commentary on Mk 8:1).

Remember that the Jews of Jesus' time were a poor people, too numerous for a fertile, but limited territory. The Roman occupants claimed a good portion of the resources, and politicians like Herod imposed heavy taxes, which were partly justified by the need to occupy the extra manpower in grandiose projects.

Many people had no security in employment, as is true today in many countries, and Jesus along with his followers shared that situation. In that desolate area, Jesus felt responsible for all his brothers and sisters who became his guests (as also happens in Lk 11:5), and he acted according to faith. Every day, in those times until now, many people must have shared their last resources with someone poorer, confident that God would pay them back. Jesus, in turn, would do no less. The miracle he performed at that moment confirms the faith of many humble believers, who are perhaps not too devoted to the Church, but who often know how to risk all they have.

Mt 14: 1-2; Mk 6: 14-16

Mal 3:23; Mt 17:10 23:8

Mt 14: 13-14; Mk 6: 30-34; Jn 6:1-4; Lk 10:17

Mk 6:34

Mt 14: 15-21; Mk 6: 35-44; Jn 6:5-13

food, for we are here in a lonely place.”¹³ But Jesus replied, “You yourselves give them something to eat.” They answered, “We have only five loaves and two fish. Do you want us to go and buy enough food for all this crowd?”¹⁴ For there were about five thousand men. Then Jesus said to his disciples, “Make people sit down in groups of fifty.”

Mt 26:26 ¹⁵ So they made all of them sit down. ¹⁶ Jesus then took the five loaves and two fish, and raising his eyes to heaven, pronounced a blessing over them; he broke them, and gave them to the disciples to distribute to the crowd. ¹⁷ They ate and everyone had enough; and when they gathered up what was left, twelve baskets were filled with broken pieces.

Ps 78:29

Peter's profession of faith

(Mk 8:27; Mt 16:18)

Mt 16:13-16, 20; Mk 8:27-30

•¹⁸ One day, when Jesus was praying alone, not far from his disciples, he asked them, “What do people say about me?”¹⁹ And they answered, “Some say that you are John the Baptist; others say that you are Elijah, and still others that you are one of the prophets of old, risen from the dead.” Again Jesus asked them,²⁰ “But who do you say that I am?” Peter answered, “The Messiah of God.”²¹ Then Jesus spoke to them, giving them strict orders not to tell this to anyone.

1:32; 2:26; 4:41; Jn 6:69

•²² And he added, “The Son of Man must suffer many things. He will be rejected by the elders and chief priests and teachers of the Law, and be put to death. Then after three days he will be raised to life.”

Mt 16:21; Mk 8:31

²³ Jesus also said to all the people, “If you wish to be a follower of mine, deny yourself and take up your cross each day, and follow me!²⁴ For if you choose to save your life, you will lose it; but if you lose your life for my sake, you will save it.²⁵ What does it profit you to gain the whole world, if you destroy or damage yourself?²⁶ If someone feels ashamed of me

Mt 16:24-27; Mk 8:34-38; Mt 10:38; Lk 14:27; 12:9

Mt 10:39; Mk 8:35; Lk 17:33; Jn 12:25

Mt 10:33;

Jesus is not concerned that this miracle awakens in them a misguided enthusiasm that will end up with a split among his followers (see Mk 6:45). Jesus had not fed them to attract them to his church, but to fulfill God's promises to the poor.

• 18. This occurred near Caesarea Philippi, a famous spa located in the far north of Palestine, at the foot of Mount Hermon. Jesus had gone away from Galilee because he was not safe there. As was his custom, he sent the Twelve ahead of him to the villages he would visit, to prepare for his coming.

What do people say about me? And you, what did you tell them about me when you were among them? Who did you tell them I was? Peter answers first, confident that they were not wrong in presenting their teacher as the Messiah, the One sent by God.

Jesus does not deny that he is, but he forbids them to make it known from then on, because, according to the people, the Liberator had to crush his enemies. Can the apostles simply call Liberator, one who will die on a cross?

By comparing this text with Mark 8:27 and Matthew 16:13, we come to the following conclusion: Matthew combined in a single story two different events in which Peter was first in proclaiming his faith. The first episode is the one that Luke relates at this point.

In the second, Peter recognized Jesus as the Son of God and received the promise that Matthew recalls. Perhaps this took place after the multiplication of the loaves: compare with John 6:66-69, or perhaps after the Resurrection: compare with John 21:15-17, which insists not on faith, but on the love that Jesus can see in Peter. See also Galatians 2:7-8.

• 22. Why did Jesus ask his apostles the questions we have just read? The Gospel answers clearly: because the time had come for Jesus to announce his passion to them. Jesus had not only come to teach people but to open for them the door leading to the Resurrection. Since his apostles now know him to be the Lk 12:9 and of my words, the Son of Man will be ashamed of him, when he comes in his glory, and in the glory of his Father, with his holy angels. ²⁷ Truly, I say to you, there are some here who will not taste death, before they see the kingdom of God.”

The transfiguration

(Mk 9:2; Mt 17:1; Jn 12:28)

Mt 17:1-9; Mk 9:2-10; Lk 9:1-2; 22:69

• ²⁸ About eight days after Jesus had said all this, he took Peter, John and James, and went up the mountain to pray. ²⁹ And while he was praying, the aspect of his face was changed, and his clothing became dazzling white. ³⁰ Two men were talking with Jesus: Moses and Elijah. ³¹ Appearing in the glory of heaven, Moses and Elijah spoke to Jesus about his departure from this life, which was to take place in Jerusalem.

Mt 17:1-9; Mk 9:2-10; Lk 9:1-2; 22:69

³² Peter and his companions had fallen asleep; but they awoke suddenly, and they saw his glory and the two men standing with him. ³³ As Moses and Elijah were about to leave, Peter—not knowing what to say—said to Jesus, “Master, how good it is for us to be here! Let us make three tents, one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah.” ³⁴ And Savior promised to Israel, they must learn that there is no salvation if death is not conquered (1 Cor 15:25). Jesus will obtain this victory when he freely chooses the way of the cross: the Son of Man has to suffer much and be rejected by the authorities.

40:35

Immediately after that, Jesus adds that we must all share in his victory over death: You must deny yourself: this is the fundamental orientation of our life. We must choose between serving and being served, sacrificing ourselves for others or taking advantage of them. Or, as a well-known prayer puts it: Let me seek not so much to be consoled as to console, to be understood as to understand, to be loved as to love.

It is in his early years that a child is helped towards this choice. In a true family he is not the center and king, with his parents as slaves, but he learns how to serve and give himself. He must accept his brothers and sisters, share with them and at times limit his own future for their good.

Take up your cross each day (v. 23). Here comes the acceptance of the cross which the Lord gives to each one of us and which we do not have to choose because we find it in our destiny. We must not carry it because we are compelled to, but rather we must love it because the Lord wished it for us.

In a world where it has become usual to live one's own life—and in so doing, to waste it, many difficult, even abnormal children, will cause their parents to become true followers of Jesus in bearing their cross.

If you choose to save your life (v. 24). Jesus refers to the general orientation of our life. He has nothing in common with those who are only concerned about avoiding “sins,” while they pursue their ambitions and their desire to enjoy this life to the fullest. The mere fact of seeking to live without risks separates us from God's way.

If someone feels ashamed of me (v. 26). Besides the cross given to us each day, God will ask us to witness to our faith and in that we will have to run risks, even if it is nothing more than the risk of being ridiculed by our friends and our boss. During periods of violence, can Christians remain silent, limit themselves to their “spiritual” reunions, give no concrete indication of what they themselves think and live?

• 28. Recall the divine revelation Jesus received at the beginning of his ministry (Lk 3:21). This other divine manifestation Jesus receives at the Transfiguration is due to the beginning of a new stage: the Passion.

Jesus has already been preaching for two years, but there is no hope that Israel will overcome the violence that will lead to its ruin. Even if Jesus' miracles do not convince his compatriots, Jesus will have to face the forces of evil: his sacrifice will be more effective than his words in arousing love and the spirit of sacrifice in all the people who will continue his saving work in the future.

He took Peter, James and John with him: these men had a privileged place among the Twelve (Mk 1:29; 3:16; 5:37; 10:35; 13:3). Most probably the rest of the “apostles” only reacted very slowly. All the patience and pedagogy of Jesus did not make them grow more quickly and they were not ready to enter the cloud with him.

3:22;
23:35;
Dt 18:15

no sooner had he spoken, than a cloud appeared and covered them; and the disciples were afraid as they entered the cloud. ³⁵Then these words came from the cloud, "This is my Son, my Beloved, listen to him." ³⁶And after the voice had spoken, Jesus was there alone.

The disciples kept this to themselves at the time, telling no one of anything they had seen.

The epileptic demoniac

(Mk 9:14; Mt 17:14)

Mt 17:
14-18;
Mk 9:
14-27

³⁷The next day, when they came down from the mountain, a large crowd met Jesus. ³⁸A man among them called out, "Master, I beg you to look at my son, my only child. When the evil spirit seizes him, he suddenly screams. ³⁹The spirit throws him into a fit, and he foams at the mouth; it scarcely ever leaves him after wearing him out. ⁴⁰I begged your disciples to drive it out, but they could not."

Dt 32:5;
Mk
11:22;

⁴¹Jesus answered, "You faithless people! how disoriented you are!

How long must I be with you and put up with you? Bring your son here." ⁴²And while the boy was being brought, the demon beat him to the ground and threw him into a fit. But Jesus spoke sharply to the evil spirit, healed the boy, and gave him back to his father. ⁴³And all who saw it were astonished at God's wonderful work.

Mt 17:22;
Mk 9: 30-32

(Mk 9:30)

But while all were amazed at everything Jesus did, he said to his disciples, ⁴⁴"Listen, and remember what I tell you now: The Son of Man will be betrayed into the hands of men." ⁴⁵But the disciples didn't understand this saying; something prevented them from grasping what he meant, and they were afraid to ask him about it.

18:34

Who is the greatest?

• ⁴⁶One day the disciples were arguing about which of them was the most important. ⁴⁷But Jesus knew their thoughts, so he took a little

Mt 18:
1-5;
Mk 9: 33-37;
Lk 22:24

He went up the mountain to pray. It is quite possible that it was during a night of prayer that the event that Jesus expected took place. This transfiguration of Jesus has first of all a meaning for himself. Jesus did not know everything beforehand; he was not spared doubts and anxieties. It does not seem that the Father manifested himself with abundant favors for him: Jesus served without expecting heavenly rewards. On this occasion however he received certitude concerning the purpose of his mission.

For the apostles it is a decisive witness that will help them to believe in the Resurrection. (The letter headed "Second Letter of Peter" makes no mistake when it insists on this witness of God, even if done in an awkward way (2 P 1:17), because it claims to be written by Peter himself). It is a fact that many persons throughout history have been considered as prophets or even as "the" prophet, but none of them have pretended to have a witness from God in his favor, other than his own successes.

Jesus counted on witnesses, beginning with John the Baptist. In all biblical revelation faith is supported by these witnesses. Here it is Moses, the founder of Israel, and Elijah, father of prophets, who recognize Jesus.

Luke tells us that Moses and Elijah spoke to Jesus about his departure (v. 31) (in Greek this is "exodus"). Jesus then becomes the new Moses who will bring God's people from this world of slavery to the Promised Land.

This is my Son. See the commentary on these same words in 3:22. Here, however, Jesus appears as the one for whom Moses and Elijah were waiting, the one for whom they had prepared, even if for this moment they can console him for he still carries the weakness of our human condition. See in relation to this Transfiguration of Jesus the commentary of Mark 9:1.

- 46. See commentary on Mark 9:33.

Mark remarks that Jesus took a child in his arms: something unusual for people of that child and stood him by his side.

 48 Then he said to them, “Whoever welcomes this little child in my name, welcomes me; and whoever welcomes me, welcomes the one who sent me. And listen: the one who is found to be the least among you all, is the one who is the greatest.”

49 Then John spoke up, “Master, we saw someone who drives out demons by calling upon your name, and we tried to forbid him, because he doesn’t follow you with us.” 50 But Jesus said, “Don’t forbid him. He who is not against you is for you.”

Jesus unwelcome in a Samaritan village

51 As the time drew near when Jesus would be taken up to heaven, he made up his mind to go to Jerusalem. 52 He sent ahead of him some messengers, who entered a Samaritan village to prepare a lodging for him. 53 But the people would not receive him, because he was on his way to Jerusalem. 54 Seeing this, James and John, his disciples, said, “Lord, do you want us to call down fire from heaven to reduce them to ashes?” 55 Jesus turned and rebuked them, 56 and they went on to another village.

The cost of following Jesus

(Mt 8:19)

57 As they went on their way, a man said to him, “I will follow you wherever you go.” 58 Jesus said to him, “Foxes have holes and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head.”

59 To another Jesus said, “Follow me!” But he answered, “Let me go back now, for first I want to bury my father.” 60 And Jesus said to him, “Let

2K 1:10

Mt 8:
19-22Mt 10:40;
Jn 13:20;
Lk 10:16;
22:26Mk 9:
38-40;
Acts
16:18;
19:13

11:23

Mt 19:1;
Mk 10:1Sir
50:26;
Jn 4:9;
Acts 8:5

time since children did not count, and religious teachers only urged that they be well disciplined. The model of religion seemed to be a serious man who did not laugh, did not run, did not look at people in lower positions, especially women and children. Oftentimes, such a mentality is seen in those who criticize child baptism and first communion.

Jesus does not answer the apostles’ question: Who is the greatest? because what matters is not to become great, but to be close to Christ. In order to receive Christ, we must welcome him in the person of the little ones.

• 51. After having recalled the actions of Jesus in Galilee, Luke begins the second part of his Gospel, where he brings together words of Jesus spoken on different occasions. In order to preserve continuity in his account, he imagines that Jesus is giving these responses while on the way from Galilee to Jerusalem where the third part of his gospel will take place.

The first paragraph reminds us that between the two provinces of Galilee and Judea, there was Samaria. Its people were Samaritans, non-Jews, and the two peoples really hated each other. When Jews from Galilee were going on a pilgrimage to Jerusalem, every door was closed to them throughout Samaria.

It would seem that each time Jesus meets Samaritans, it is to teach us a new way of seeing those who do not share our faith. Religions have often been aggressive, at times very violent, especially those religions that see themselves as a revelation of the only God. This was already the case in the Old Testament. Jesus is not part of such fanaticism, teaching us not to confuse God’s cause with ours nor with the interests of our religious community. There is absolute respect for those God leads by another road. What a contrast with the legends of the past that this account awakens in verse 54 (see 2 K 1:9).

Here Jesus tells his apostles to be less impulsive: the Samaritans who refuse to welcome Jesus on this occasion are not guiltier than those who close their doors to a stranger. Why destroy this little village, if by doing this they still had to look for a place in another village? It was better to move on without delay.

BREAKTHROUGHS—BECOMING FREE

• 57. In contrast with Jesus’ customary understanding attitude about human nature, here we see Jesus very demanding with the disciple who wants to follow him: Jesus cannot waste his time in forming those who are not ready to sacrifice everything for the sake of the Gospel.

the dead bury their dead; as for you, leave them, and proclaim the kingdom of God.”

1K 19: 19-21
Phil 3:13
61 Another said to him, “I will follow you, Lord, but first let me say goodbye to my family.” 62 And Jesus said to him, “Whoever has put his hand to the plow, and looks back, is not fit for the kingdom of God.”

Jesus sends out the seventy

(Mt 10:5; Mk 6:7)

Mt 10: 5-16;
Mk 6: 7-11;
Lk 9:1-5
10 • After this, the Lord appointed seventy-two other disciples, and sent them two by two ahead of him to every town and place, where he himself was to go. 2 And he said to them, “The harvest is plentiful, but the workers are few. So you must ask the Lord of the harvest to send workers to his harvest. 3 Courage! I am sending you like lambs among wolves. 4 Set off without purse or bag or sandals; and do not stop at the homes of those you know.

5 Whatever house you enter, first bless them, saying, ‘Peace to this house!’ 6 If a friend of peace lives there, the peace shall rest upon that person. But if not, the blessing will return to you. 7 Stay in that house, eating and drinking at their table, for

Mt 9:
37-38;
Jn 4:38

9:3-5;
22:35;
2K 4:29

2:14

1Cor
9:14;
2Cor
11:7;

The third of these would-be disciples, perhaps, was secretly hoping that at the time of saying goodbye, his family would beg him not to do such a foolish thing, and so he could remain with his good intentions: I would like to, but...

The second case is different: Let the dead bury their dead. Faced with these abrupt words that we occasionally meet in the Gospel, there are two attitudes to be avoided. The first would be to take these words as a general rule, a precept addressed to everyone without nuance, the second, more frequent, would be to say: “That must not be taken literally, it’s an oriental way of speaking.” For Jesus there is no entry into the Kingdom without an experience of liberty.

First I want to bury my father (v. 59). This means perhaps that he should bury his father who has died. Most probably it means that he wanted to look after his aging father up to the time of his burial (Tb 6:15). It is difficult to think one is truly free if he had not had the opportunity to prove it by acting differently from what is understood and accepted around him. Think of Francis of Assisi begging for bread in his own town after having lived there as the son of a rich family.

Leave them and proclaim the kingdom of God. When a call from Jesus reaches you, it is the complete will of God for you in this precise moment. Leave there your excuses, your duties: perhaps these would be duties only in a world of the dead. God has provided that others, perhaps his angels, will see to them.

• 10.1 See commentary on Matthew 10:5 and Mark 6:7.

Luke reports a mission of the seventy (or seventy-two) after the mission of the Twelve (9:1).

There were twelve apostles, according to the number of the tribes of Israel: this means that, at first, the Gospel was proclaimed to the people of Israel. Then came the mission of the seventy-two (or of the seventy): these numbers symbolized the multitude of pagan nations. This mission, then, is a figure of the task that is the responsibility of the Church until the end of the world: to evangelize all nations (Mt 28:19).

When the Church has been present long enough in a particular place, we tend to believe that everyone has had the opportunity to receive the Gospel: this is an illusion. Even in the best of circumstances, many families, especially the poorest ones, have waited for years for some missionary’s visit.

Do not stop at the homes of those you know (v. 4). The Gospel says: “do not greet anyone.” Missionaries would soon lose their wings if they stayed to chat or asked hospitality from friends who had not welcomed the Kingdom. They should rather count on the Providence of the Father who will open to them the heart and house of one of those who have listened to the Good News.

In visiting homes, the first thing to do is to give peace, that is, to come as a friend on behalf of Christ and his Church, taking time to listen to the people visited and to find out their concerns. Then, and only then, will we be able to give them a good answer and to tell them: the Kingdom has come to you; even though you may have a thousand problems, believe that today God has come closer to you to rec-¹Tim 5:18 the worker deserves to be paid. Do not move from house to house.

• ⁸When they welcome you to any town, eat what they offer you. ⁹Heal the sick who are there, and say to them: ‘The kingdom of God has drawn near to you.’

¹⁰But in any town where you are not welcome, go to the marketplace and proclaim: ¹¹‘Even the dust of your town that clings to our feet, we wipe off and leave with you. But know for a certainty that the kingdom of God has drawn near to you.’ ¹²I tell you, that on the Day of Judgment it will be better for Sodom than for this town.

¹³Alas for you, Chorazin! Alas for you, Bethsaida! So many miracles have been worked in you! If the same miracles had been performed in Tyre and Sidon, they would already be sitting in ashes and wearing the sackcloth of repentance. ¹⁴Surely for Tyre and Sidon it will be better on the Day of Judgment than for you. ¹⁵And what of you, city of Capernaum? Will you be lifted up to heaven? You will be thrown down to the place of the dead.

¹⁶Whoever listens to you listens to me, and whoever rejects you rejects me; and he who rejects me, rejects the one who sent me.”

Jesus gives thanks to the Father

(Mt 11:25)

• ¹⁷The seventy-two disciples returned full of joy. They said, “Lord, even the demons obeyed us when we called on your name.” ¹⁸Then Jesus replied, “I saw Satan fall like

Is 14:13

Mt 10:40;
Mk 9:37;
Mt 18:5;
Lk 9:48;
Jn 13:20Mk 6:30;
Lk 9:10

oncile you. This is the time to be reconciled with family members and neighbors, to let go of resentments. Begin doing what you can do, and trust that, in his own way, God will solve what is beyond your own power.

Many of the people who welcome the missionaries with joy are not going to persevere: they are not going to enter a Christian community. That does not necessarily mean that the missionaries’ efforts have been wasted. These people will remember this moment of grace from the Lord, and it will help them in living with more faith. In any case, there will be some whose hearts were touched by the Lord at that time and they will become active members of his Church.

The mission helps form the missionaries and also awakens those they visit. Jesus formed his disciples, not only through his teaching, but also by sending them on missions. That is the way he formed the seventy a few months after they met him. Likewise now, the best people for missionary work are often those who have been recently converted.

HEALING THE SICK

• 8. Heal the sick, Jesus says. We have already mentioned that Jesus did not come to bring good health to all the sick people, but rather to bring us salvation. Since we are sinners, our salvation is worked out through suffering and through the cross.

Jesus’ messengers do not try to replace doctors. They do not proclaim faith as a means to be cured: that would cheapen it. They do, however, offer “healing” to the people who have not yet discovered that the kingdom of God and his mercy have come to them.

Wherever there are communities of Christians, they must care for the sick and visit them as a sign of their being concerned for everyone and being everyone’s family. The love shown by a visitor encourages the sick person, gives him joy and arouses gratitude in him, and thus disposes him for an in-depth renewal and for the forgiveness of sins. See also James 5:13.

In his first letter to the Corinthians 12:9, Paul speaks of the various gifts that the spirit gives to the Christian community and he makes a distinction between the gifts to work miracles and to heal the sick. This last gift may correspond to a natural talent the person had before.

Obviously we should encourage those who can pray and lay their hands on the sick. Doctors and health care workers must look on their skillful care of patients as a service done for the sick on behalf of God.

• 17. At first, the person who preaches Christ and works for him is scared. Then follows the joy of having surpassed oneself, and even more the joy of having believed and

Ps 91:13 lightning from heaven. ¹⁹You see, I have given you authority to trample on snakes and scorpions and to overcome all the power of the Enemy, so that nothing will harm you. ²⁰Nevertheless, don't rejoice because the evil spirits submit to you; rejoice rather that your names are written in heaven."

Mt 11: 25-27; Lk 8:10; Jn 7:48; 1Cor 1:17; 1:26
Mt 28:18; Jn 3:35; 13:3; 17:2; Phil 2:9

²¹At that time Jesus was filled with the joy of the Holy Spirit, and said, "I praise you, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, for you have hidden these things from the wise and learned, and made them known to little ones. ²²Yes, Father, such has been your gracious will. I have been given all things by my Father, so that no one knows the Son except the Father, and no one knows the Father except the Son, and he to whom the Son chooses to reveal him."

²³Then Jesus turned to his disciples and said to them privately, "Fortunate are you to see what you see, ²⁴for I tell you that many prophets and kings would have liked to see what you see, but did not see it; and to hear what you hear, but did not hear it."

The good Samaritan

(Mt 22:34; Mk 12:28)

• ²⁵Then a teacher of the Law came and began putting Jesus to the test. And he said, "Master, what shall I do to receive eternal life?" ²⁶Jesus replied, "What is written in the Scripture? How do you understand it?" ²⁷The man answered, "It is written:

worked with the very power of Jesus. Jesus gives thanks for the seventy (or seventy-two) and for all those who will follow them.

What are these things (v. 21) that God has revealed to the little ones but the mysterious power of the Gospel to transform people and show them the truth? The apostles marvel at the power coming from the name of Jesus (Mk 16:17). Jesus underlines the defeat of the Adversary, Satan.

The learned and the clever think they know, but do not know what is essential. They speak of a God who is no more than a shadow of the true God as long as they do not recognize him in Jesus. They do not know where the world is heading because they do not see how God's power is working wherever Jesus is being proclaimed.

The little ones, on the other hand, have understood. Before they saw themselves as a sacrificed generation. For the little ones are used to sacrificing themselves for their children from generation to generation, or they are sacrificed by powers, under the pretext of bringing happiness to their descendants. They did not live for themselves; rather they were preparing a place for others. Now the little ones, namely, the humble believers, have everything if they have Jesus, the Father has given everything to him.

Little ones live their faith in simple ways but they know that none of their sacrifices are lost. It is Jesus who reveals the Father to us and, knowing him in truth, we also share in his control over events. Our desires and our prayers are powerful because we have come to the center from which God directs the forces saving humankind: because we work for eternity, our names are already written in heaven (v. 20).

To evangelize does not mean to try to sell the Gospel but rather to prove its power to heal people from their demons. We need not become activists in order to accomplish that. We must admit that we have no power in these things and we must give thanks to God who enabled us to see, to hear and to communicate his salvation.

Fortunate are you to see... (v. 23). Stop being envious of famous people, kings and prophets of the past. You who are alive now, and who are neither kings nor prophets, have been given the better part.

• 25. Who is my neighbor? (v. 29). The teacher of the law expected to be given the precise limits of his obligation. Whom was he supposed to look after? Members of his family? People of his own race? Or perhaps everybody?

It is significant that Jesus concludes his story with a different question: Which of the three made himself neighbor? (v. 36). It is as if he said: do not try to figure out who is your neighbor, listen instead to the call within you, and become a neighbor, be close to your brother

Mt 13: 16-17

11:31; 1P 1:12

Mt 22: 34-40; Mk 12: 28-31

Dt 6:5;

Lev
19:18;
Mt 5:43

You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your strength and with all your mind. And you shall love your neighbor as yourself." ²⁸ Jesus replied, "What a good answer! Do this and you shall live." ²⁹ The man wanted to justify his question, so he asked, "Who is my neighbor?"

³⁰ Jesus then said, "There was a man going down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and he fell into the hands of robbers. They stripped him, beat him and went off, leaving him half-dead.

³¹ It happened that a priest was going along that road and saw the man, but passed by on the other side. ³² Likewise a Levite saw the man, and passed by on the other side. ³³ But a Samaritan also was going that way, and when he came upon the man, he was moved with compassion. ³⁴ He went over to him, and cleaned his wounds with oil and wine, and wrapped them in bandages. Then he put him on his own mount, and brought him to an inn, where he took care of him.

³⁵ The next day he had to set off; but he gave two silver coins to the innkeeper, and said, "Take care of him, and whatever you spend on him, I will repay when I return."

³⁶ Jesus then asked, "Which of these three, do you think, made himself neighbor to the man who fell into the hands of robbers?" ³⁷ The teacher of the Law answered, "the one who had mercy on him." And Jesus said, "Then go and do the same."

Martha and Mary

• ³⁸ As Jesus and his disciples were on their way, he entered a village, and a woman called Martha welcomed him to her house. ³⁹ She had a sister named Mary, who sat down at the Lord's feet to listen to his words. ⁴⁰ Martha, meanwhile, was busy with all the serving, and finally

Jn 11:1;
12:1

Is 1:6

or sister in need. As long as we see the command to love as an obligation, we are not loving as God wants.

Love does not consist simply in being moved by another person's distress. Notice how the Samaritan stopped by in spite of it being a dangerous place, how he paid for the expenses and promised to take care of whatever else might be necessary. Instead of just 'being charitable' he took unconditional and uncalculated risks for a stranger.

On one occasion, Martin Luther King pointed out that love is not satisfied with comforting those who suffer: "To begin with, we must be the good Samaritan to those who have fallen along the way. This, however, is only the beginning. Then, some day we will necessarily have to realize that the road to Jericho must be made in such a way that men and women are not constantly beaten and robbed while they are traveling along the paths of life."

With this example, Jesus also makes us see that, many times, those who seem to be religious officials, or who believe they fulfill the law, are incapable of loving. It was a Samaritan, considered a heretic by the Jews, who took care of the wounded man.

For the Jews, neighbors were the members of Israel, their own people, dignified by sharing the same religion; in fact, this familial relationship came from "flesh and blood." For Jesus, true love leads one to give up any discrimination.

• 38. Many things seem to be necessary in a family: cleaning, preparing meals, looking after the children. If there is no time to listen to others, what is life worth? Perhaps we do many things in the service of God and our neighbor; only one thing nevertheless is necessary for us all: being available for Jesus when he is present.

Martha is working and worrying and does not have time to be with Jesus. Jesus is peace and the person who does not attend to him in peace does not receive him. There is a way of serving and working feverishly which leaves us empty, whether it is at home or in the community; instead Jesus wants us to find him in our daily work.

Our prayer can also be a way of fidgeting like Martha: when we fret in saying prayers, when we use a lot of words to present our worries to the Lord a hundred times over; when she said, “Lord, don’t you care that my sister has left me to do all the work? Tell her to help me!”

⁴¹ But the Lord answered, “Martha, Martha, you worry and are troubled about many things, ⁴² whereas only one thing is needed. Mary has chosen the better part, and it will not be taken away from her.”

1Cor
7:35;
Mt 6:33;
Lk 12:31;
Jn 6:27;
Acts 6:2

Lord, teach us to pray
(Mt 6:9; 7:7)

5:33

11 ¹ One day Jesus was praying in a certain place, and when he had finished, one of his disciples said to him, “Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples.”

Mt 6: 9-13;
Mk 14:36;
Gal 4:6

² And Jesus said to them, “When you pray, say this:

Father, may your name be held holy,
may your kingdom come;

³ give us each day the kind of bread we need,

Mt 6:34

⁴ and forgive us our sins, for we also forgive all who do us wrong; and do not bring us to the test.”

• ⁵ Jesus said to them, “Suppose one of you has a friend, and goes to his house in the middle of the night and says, ‘Friend, lend me three loaves, ⁶ for a friend of mine who is traveling has just arrived, and I have nothing to offer him.’ ⁷ Maybe your friend will answer from inside, ‘Don’t bother me now; the door is locked, and my children and I are in bed, so I can’t get up and give you anything.’ ⁸ But I tell you, even though he will not get up and attend to you because you are a friend, yet he will get up because you are a bother to him, and he will give you all you need.

18:4

⁹ And so I say to you, ‘Ask, and it will be given to you; seek, and you will find; knock, and it will be opened to you. ¹⁰ For the one who asks re-

Mt 7:
7-11;
Jn 14: 13-14

the person responsible for the celebration becomes nervous and overly concerned about the perfection of the singing or the homily.

To pray is to take the time to listen, to meditate in silence on the work of God, it is to slow our desires, so as to pay attention only to God, secretly present, and slip into his will.

How strange that in some non-Christian religions, people learn to bring their minds to peace and silence and reach true serenity. Meanwhile, we enter prayer with our concerns and do not let go of them until the prayer is ended.

Mary sat down at the Lord’s feet. It is the traditional attitude of the disciple, at the feet of her Master. Surely Jesus was not continually teaching, but being himself the Word of God, he brought God to all that he touched. Mary felt it was good to be there and she was aware that her presence was not to displease Jesus.

Mary has chosen the better part (v. 42). She followed only her instinct, but Jesus sees more: he will not be there much longer, and in any case his presence among us is always brief. Mary has been able to take hold of these brief moments when Jesus could be hers, and she is his while listening to him.

If the Mary in this episode were the same as

Mary of Magdala who accompanied Jesus (Lk 8:2) we could imagine the following:

Mary is among the disciples who, along with Jesus, are received by Martha, her sister or “relative”. Mary is not in the least concerned about preparing the food and Martha complains. Jesus then praises Mary, not only because she is listening to him, but also because she had already decided to follow him. Like the apostles, Mary has chosen the better part.

• 11.1 The apostles already knew how to pray and they prayed in common, as all the Jews did, in the synagogue and at key times during the day. Yet, in living close to Jesus they discovered a new way to live in close fellowship and they felt a need to address the Father differently. Jesus waited for them to ask him to teach them how to pray. See Matthew 6:9.

• 5. Jesus urges us to ask with perseverance without ever getting tired of asking but, rather, “tiring” God. God will not always give us what we ask for, nor in the way we ask, since we do not know what is good for us. He will give us a holy spirit, or a clearer vision of his will and, at the same time, the courage to follow it.

Knock and it will be opened to you (v. 9). A page from Father Molinie is a commentary ceives, and the one who searches finds, and to him who knocks the door will be opened.

¹¹If your child asks for a fish, will you give him a snake instead? ¹²And if your child asks for an egg, will you give him a scorpion? ¹³If you sinful people know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to those who ask him."

Jesus and Beelzebul

(Mk 3:22; Mt 12:23; Mk 4:21; 9:40)

• ¹⁴One day Jesus was driving out a demon, which was mute. When the demon had been driven out, the mute person could speak, and the people were amazed. ¹⁵Yet some of them said, "He drives out demons by the power of Beelzebul, the chief of the demons." ¹⁶Others wanted to put him to the test, by asking him for a heavenly sign.

¹⁷But Jesus knew their thoughts, and said to them, "Every nation divided by civil war is on the road to ruin, and will fall. ¹⁸If Satan also is divided, his empire is coming to an end. How can you say that I drive out demons by calling upon Beelzebul? ¹⁹If I drive them out by Beelzebul, by whom do your sons drive out demons? They will be your judges, then.

²⁰But if I drive out demons by the finger of God, would not this mean that the kingdom of God has come

Mt 16:1;
Mk 8:11;
Lk 11:29

8:15;
Lk 17:21

Mt 12:
22-29;
Mk 3:
22-27;
Mt 9:
32-34

on this verse. "If God does not open up at once, it is not because he enjoys making us wait. If we must persevere in prayer, it is not because we need a set number of invocations, but rather because a certain quality, a certain way of prayer is required. If we were able to have that at the beginning, our prayer would be heard immediately.

"Prayer is the groaning of the Holy Spirit in us as Saint Paul says. Yet, we need repetition for this groaning to open a path in our stony heart, just as the drop of water wastes away the hardest rocks. When we have repeated the Our Father and the Hail Mary with perseverance, one day we can pray them in a way that is in perfect harmony with God's will. He himself was waiting for this groaning, the only one which can move him since, in fact, it comes from his own heart.

"As long as we have not played this note, or rather, drawn it from within, God cannot be conquered. It is not that God defends himself since he is pure tenderness and fluidity, but as long as there is nothing similar in us, the current cannot pass between him and us. Man gets tired of praying, yet if he perseveres instead of losing heart, he will gradually let go of his pride until being exhausted and overcome, he obtains much more than he could have wished for."

PETITIONS—THE SAINTS

Jesus invites us to ask with perseverance: persevering petitions cease being self-centered and become prayer, that is, they lift us up and bring us closer to God.

What about asking the saints? We must admit that, very often, the person who begs from the saints takes a road opposed to real prayer. Such a person is not interested in discovering God's mercy, but in obtaining some favor. She does not care whom she addresses as long as she finds an efficient and automatic dispenser of benefits. So begins the search for saints, shrines and devotions.

The Church is a family. Just as we ask our friends to pray for us, so too and much more should we ask our brothers and sisters, the saints. No one will criticize us if, at times, we show our confidence in their intercession, especially the intercession of those whom we admire more because we know their lives and their deeds. This "petition" to the saints should not, however, be confused with perseverance in asking, which introduces us into God's mystery. Only Mary, the mother of God can accompany us in that prayer because God made her our mother; because he deposited in her all the compassion he has for us; and because he united her to himself in such a way that when we look at her, we always find the living presence of God.

• 14. See commentary on Mark 3:22 and Matthew 12:23.

By the finger of God (v. 20). In Exodus 8:15 the same expression is used to designate the power of God working miracles.

upon you? ²¹As long as a man, strong and well armed, guards his house, his goods are safe. ²²But when a stronger man attacks and overcomes him, the challenger takes away all the weapons he relied on, and disposes of his spoils.

Mt 12:30;
Lk 9:50

• ²³Whoever is not with me is against me, and whoever does not gather with me, scatters.

Mt 12:43-45;
Lk 4:36

• ²⁴When the evil spirit goes out of a person, it wanders through dry lands, looking for a resting place; and finding none, it says, 'I will return to my house from which I came.'²⁵ When it comes, it finds the house swept and everything in order. ²⁶Then it goes to fetch seven other spirits, even worse than itself. They move in and settle there, so that the last state of that person is worse than the first."

• ²⁷As Jesus was speaking, a woman spoke from the crowd and said to him, "Blessed is the one who gave you birth and nursed you!"

²⁸ Jesus replied, "Truly blessed are those who hear the word of God, and keep it as well."

8:21;
1:45;
2:19;
Rev 1:3

• ²⁹As the crowd increased, Jesus began to speak in this way, "People of the present time are troubled people. They ask for a sign, but no sign will be given to them except the sign of Jonah. ³⁰As Jonah became a sign for the people of Nineveh, so will the Son of Man be a sign for this generation. ³¹The Queen of the South will rise up on Judgment Day with the people of these times and accuse them, for she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and here there is greater than Solomon. ³²The people of Nineveh will rise up on Judgment Day with the people of these times and accuse them, for Jonah's preaching made them turn from their sins, and here there is greater than Jonah.

Mt 12:38-42;
Lk 12:54-56;
Mt 16:4;
Jn 8:11;
Jn 6:30-31;
1Cor 1:22

Jon 3

1K 10:1

Jon 3:1

³³You do not light a lamp to hide it; rather you put it on a lampstand, so that people coming in may see the light.

Mt 5:15;
Mk 4:21;
Lk 8:16

• 23. Whoever is not with me... This phrase seems to contradict Luke 9:50: Whoever is not against you is with you. In fact, in Luke 9:50 Jesus admits that his spiritual family goes much beyond the visible group of his disciples: those who, without belonging to the church, work for the same goals, must be considered as friends.

In Luke 11:23, on the other hand, Jesus speaks of people who refuse to stand with him and his message and who want to remain uncommitted: they do not join him, and later they will criticize him.

• 24. The Jews believed that evil spirits preferred to live in the desert or, rather, that God had banished them there (Tb 8:3). Here Jesus is speaking of people who only believe for a while because they do not repent enough of their past sins. They enjoyed listening to the word, but they did not take the costly measures that would have allowed them to heal the root of evil. See commentary on Matthew 12:43.

• 27. Blessed is the one who gave you birth! This woman envies the mother of Jesus and is full of admiration for his way of speaking. She is mistaken if she thinks that Jesus' relatives can be proud on his account, and she is wasting her time if she admires his words instead of making them her own. So Jesus turns her towards the Father, whose word he gives, and to herself, whom God invites to the family of his sons and daughters.

As for Mary, the mother of Jesus, the one who believed (1:45), she kept all the words and deeds of the Lord in her heart (Lk 2:51).

• 29. The Ninevites, being sinners, received no other divine sign than the coming of Jonah, who invited them to repent. Jesus' contemporaries believe they are "good" because they belong to the people of God, and they do not realize that the hour has come for them to repent as well.

The people of Nineveh will rise up with these people and accuse them (v. 32). Jesus ³⁴Your eye is the lamp of your body. If your eye sees clearly, your whole person benefits from the light; but if your eyesight is poor, your whole person is without light. ³⁵So be careful, lest the light inside you become darkness. ³⁶If your whole person receives the light, having no part that is dark, you will become light, as when a lamp shines on you.”

Mt 6:
22-23

Woe to you, Pharisees!

(Mt 23:13)

• ³⁷As Jesus was speaking, a Pharisee asked him to have a meal with him. So he went and sat at table. ³⁸The Pharisee then wondered why Jesus did not first wash his hands before dinner. ³⁹But the Lord said to him, “So then, you Pharisees, you clean the outside of the cup and the dish, but inside yourselves you are full of greed and evil. ⁴⁰Fools! He who made the outside, also made the inside. ⁴¹But according to you, by the mere giving of alms everything is made clean.

7:36;
14:1

Mk 7:3;
Mt 15:2;
15:20

Mt 23:
25-26

⁴²A curse is on you, Pharisees; to the Temple you give a tenth of all, including mint and rue and the other

Mt 23:23;
Lk 18:12;
Dt 14:22

herbs, but you neglect justice and the love of God. These ought to be practiced, without neglecting those.

⁴³A curse is on you, Pharisees, for you love the best seats in the synagogues and to be greeted in the marketplace. ⁴⁴A curse is on you, for you are like tombstones of the dead which can hardly be seen; people don't notice them, and make themselves unclean by stepping on them.”

Mt 23:
6-7;
Mk 12:
38-39;
Lk 20:46;
Mt 23:27

⁴⁵Then a teacher of the Law spoke up and said, “Master, when you speak like this, you insult us, too.”

Mt 23:4

⁴⁶And Jesus answered, “A curse is on you also, teachers of the Law. For you prepare unbearable burdens and load them on the people, while you yourselves don't move a finger to help them. ⁴⁷A curse is on you, for you build monuments to the prophets your ancestors killed. ⁴⁸So you approve and agree with what your ancestors did. Is it not so? They got rid of the prophets, and you build monuments to them!

Mt 23:
29-31;
Lk 7:30;
13:33

• ⁴⁹For that reason the Wisdom of God also said: I will send prophets and apostles and this people will kill again uses the traditional image of collective judgment where each one excuses himself by pointing out that others have done worse. This image retains a deep truth: all that God has given to each one of us should produce fruits for all humanity.

Mt 23:
34-36

- 37. See commentary on Matthew 23.

The Bible does not demand these ritual purifications that Mark also mentions in 7:3, but the teachers of Jesus' time insisted that they were necessary. Jesus rebels against these new religious obligations. Why do they not pay more attention to inner purification?

Then we read about the reproaches Jesus addressed to the Pharisees on various occasions. If Luke like Matthew has kept these very hard words of Jesus, it was perhaps a reminder that the Gospel goes much further than the vision of the Pharisees, so concerned, as they claimed, for the service of God. Some of them were part of the first Christian community, and were influential (Acts 15:5). Doubtless, the hostile attitude adopted by the party of the Pharisees in the following years accounts for the remembrance of these reproaches. There are surely others and deeper reasons for the many warnings we read in Scripture about Pharisees.

Entering the new covenant is a free gift from God. It is also a gift from God to possess a good knowledge of Christian doctrine, or exercise a special ministry in the Church, or belong to a Christian group committed for their faith. Nevertheless there is always the danger to behave as an elite group, thus losing the true humility that should lead us to occupy the last places, where we really should be.

• 49. Those who, before Luke, wrote down this saying of Jesus: I will send prophets... (which we also read in Mt 23:34), intro-and persecute some of them. ⁵⁰But the present generation will have to answer for the blood of all the prophets that has been shed since the foundation of the world, ⁵¹from the blood of Abel to the blood of Zechariah, who was murdered between the altar and the sanctuary. Yes, I tell you, the people of this time will have to answer for them all.

Gen 4:8;
24:20-22

Mt 23:13

⁵²A curse is on you, teachers of the Law, for you have taken the key of knowledge. You yourselves have not entered, and you prevented others from entering.”

⁵³As Jesus left that place, the teachers of the Law and the Pharisees began to harass him, ⁵⁴asking him endless questions, setting traps to catch him in something he might say.

Open and fearless speech

(Mk 3:28; Mt 10:19; 12:31; Mk 8:38)

Mt 16:
6, 12;
Mk 8:15

12 ¹Meanwhile, such a numerous crowd had gathered that they crushed one another. Then Jesus spoke to his disciples in this way,

Mt 10:
26-27;
Mk 4:22;
Lk 8:17;
Mk 8:38

“Beware of the yeast of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy. ²Nothing is covered that will not be uncovered, or hidden that will not be made known. ³Whatever you have said in darkness will be heard in daylight, and what you have whispered in hidden places, will be proclaimed from housetops.

⁴I tell you, my friends, do not fear those who put to death the body and, after that, can do no more. ⁵But I will tell you whom to fear: Fear the one who after killing you is able to throw you into hell. This one you must fear. ⁶Don't you buy five sparrows for two pennies? Yet not one of them has been forgotten by God. ⁷Even the hairs of your head have been numbered. Don't be afraid! Are you less worthy in the eyes of God than many sparrows?

Mt 10:
28-31;
Jn 15:15

Jas 4:12

⁸I tell you, whoever acknowledges me before people, the Son of Man will also acknowledge before the angels of God. ⁹But the one who denies me before others will be denied before the angels of God.

Mt 10:
32-33;
Mk 8:38;
Lk 9:26

¹⁰There will be pardon for the one who criticizes the Son of Man, but there will be no pardon for the one who slanders the Holy Spirit.

Mt 12:32;
Mk 3:29;
Acts 3:17;
13:46

¹¹When you are brought before the synagogues, and before governors and rulers, don't worry about how you will defend yourself, or what to say;

Mt 10:
17-20;
Mk 13:11;
Lk 21:
12-15;
Mt 24:9

duced it with the formula: “Wisdom says,” which was a way of designating Jesus. When Luke placed these lines within Jesus' discourse, he forgot to take out these words. Removing them would have made the text a lot clearer.

See commentary on Matthew 23:34. Jesus states that the Pharisees and the teachers of the Law will be mainly responsible for the persecution against the first Christians (against those apostles and prophets he is going to send).

The warning of Jesus is equally relevant for Christian institutions and all those who in one way or another guide the community. We too, perhaps, build a church for the “elite” who unconsciously despise the poor and the lowly. So very quickly were the prophets paralyzed or eliminated.

You yourselves have not entered, and you prevented others from entering (v. 52). Is not this one of the reasons why so many simple people go to other churches?

• 12.1 Nothing is hidden that will not be made known: this could be interpreted in different ways. In these paragraphs, Jesus refers to the courageous testimony of faith. We have to speak the truth without worrying about what people will think of us. Here hypocrisy is attributed to those who are always trying to be diplomatic, and whose primary concern is not to lose friends.

Do not fear (v. 4): see commentary on Matthew 10:28.

Everyone who criticizes the Son of Man (v. 10): see commentary on Mark 3:29.

Acts 4:8; 5:32 ¹²for the Holy Spirit will teach you at that time what you have to say.”

The rich fool

• ¹³Someone in the crowd spoke to Jesus, “Master, tell my brother to share with me the family inheritance.” ¹⁴He replied, “My friend, who has appointed me as your judge or your attorney?” ¹⁵Then Jesus said to the people, “Be on your guard and avoid every kind of greed, for even though you have many possessions, it is not that which gives you life.”

¹⁶And Jesus continued with this story, “There was a rich man, and his land had produced a good harvest. ¹⁷He thought, ‘What shall I do, for I am short of room to store my harvest?’ ¹⁸Alright, I know what I shall do: I will pull down my barns and I will build bigger ones, to store all this grain, which is my wealth. ¹⁹Then I will say to myself: My friend, you have a lot of good things put by for many years. Rest, eat, drink and enjoy yourself.’ ²⁰But God said to him, ‘You fool! This very night your life will be taken from you. Tell me who shall get all you have put aside?’ ²¹This is the lot of the one who stores up riches for himself and is not wealthy in the eyes of God.”

Do not worry!

(Mt 6:25)

²²Then Jesus said to his disciples, “I tell you not to worry about your life: What are we to eat? or about your body: What are we to wear? ²³For life is more than food, and the body more than clothing. ²⁴Look at the crows: they neither sow nor reap; they have no storehouses and no barns; yet God feeds them. In so much truly are you different from birds! ²⁵Which of you for all your worrying can add a moment to your span of life? ²⁶And if you are not able to control such a small thing, why do you worry about the rest?”

²⁷Look at the wild flowers: they do not spin or weave; but I tell you, even Solomon with all his wealth was not clothed as one of these flowers. ²⁸If God so clothes the grass in the fields,

Mt 6:
19-21;
Jas 4:13;
1Cor
15:32

Sir 11:19;
Rev 3:17

Mt 6:
25-33

GREED—PRODUCTIVITY

• 13. Who has appointed me as your judge? Jesus does not resolve legal differences as do the teachers of the Law since it was the Law that decided civil and religious questions. Jesus reserves his authority for what is essential: suppressing the greed ingrained in our hearts is more important than looking at every person's right with a magnifying glass.

Avoid every kind of greed (v. 15): Jesus does not say people should be resigned to mediocrity or destitution, satisfied to have ten people sleep in the same room, and without any opportunity for education. We know that all this prevents the growth of people in awareness of their dignity and their divine vocation. Jesus does not criticize our efforts to achieve a more just society, since the whole Bible requires it.

It is one thing to seek justice, knowing that without justice there is neither peace nor communion: it is quite another to look at what others have with the desire to share their greed. Today we clamor for justice, but tomorrow we may only seek more superfluous “necessities.” Such greed will never let us rest and, what is more, it will close the door of the Kingdom on us (Mk 10:23; 1 Tim 6:8).

Possessions do not give life (v. 15). Make sure that your concern to have what you lack does not make you neglect what could give you life now.

In this regard, we should allow the poor to speak, all those brothers and sisters of ours who, though immersed in poverty, continue to be persons who live, in the strongest sense of this word. Should we pity them, or should we count them among the few who already enjoy the Kingdom of God? One of the greatest obstacles preventing the liberation of people is their own greed. The day they agree to participate in powerful boycotts and not go their own way in the pursuit of advantages for one or other category, they shall begin to live as people.

which is alive today and tomorrow is thrown into the oven, how much more will he clothe you, people of little faith.

²⁹Do not set your heart on what you are to eat and drink; stop worrying. ³⁰Let all the nations of the world run after these things; your Father knows that you need them. ³¹Seek rather his Kingdom, and these things will be given to you as well.

Mt 6:20

Jn 10

6:30;
16:9;
19:8;
Acts 9:36;
10:2;
11:29

• ³²Do not be afraid, little flock, for it has pleased your Father to give you the kingdom. ³³Sell what you have and give alms. Get yourselves purses that do not wear out, and an inexhaustible treasure in the heavens, where no thief comes and no moth destroys. ³⁴For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.

Be ready

(Mk 13:33; Mt 24:43; 6:19)

• ³⁵Be ready, dressed for service,

Mt 25:
1-13;
12:11

and keep your lamps lit, ³⁶like people waiting for their master to return from the wedding. As soon as he comes and knocks, they will open the door to him. ³⁷Happy are those servants whom the master finds wide-awake when he comes. ³⁸Truly, I tell you, he will put on an apron, and have them sit at table, and he will wait on them. Happy are those servants, if he finds them awake when he comes at midnight or day-break!

Mt 24:42

³⁹Pay attention to this: If the master of the house had known at what time the thief would come, he would not have let his house be broken into. ⁴⁰You also must be ready, for the Son of Man will come at an hour you do not expect.”

Mt 24:
43-44

⁴¹Peter said, “Lord, did you tell this parable only for us, or for everyone?” ⁴²And the Lord replied, “Imagine, then, the wise and faithful

1Thes
5:2;
Rev 3:3;
3:20;
Mk 13:35

What shall I do? The rich man in the parable planned for larger barns for his sole profit and Jesus condemned him. We too must consider what we should do to bring about a better distribution of the riches of the world.

The person who is wealthy in the eyes of God (v. 21) knows how to find happiness in the present moment. Wherever she is, she tries to create a network of social relationships through which everyone gives to others and receives from them instead of wanting and getting things in a selfish way.

A CHURCH POOR LIKE JESUS

• 32. Do not be afraid little flock. Nowhere in the Gospel does Jesus lead us to believe that with time most people will be converted.

We know that the non-Christian world is numerically much more important than the “Christian” world and it grows more rapidly. When large numbers in the “Christian” world give up the practice of religion, we understand that the Church is both a sign and a little flock.

Jesus asks each one of us to be detached from earthly things and he also asks the same of the flock. What matters for the church is not the building of powerful institutions nor the holding of key posts in society “for the greater glory of God.” A Church which awaits the return of the Master is careful to be ready to pack their bags, wherever it may be, when the Lord will send them out and ask them to become missionary again.

Sell what you have and give alms (v. 33). Are ordinary people convinced that the Church has done this? Christians rejoice when their bishop and pastors condemn injustice and remind them of the rights of the working class and the marginalized. It is not enough for us to preach to others. God asks justice of the world and poverty of his Church. Our call for justice will not be heard as long as the Church does not accept for herself the whole Gospel.

It has pleased your Father to give you the kingdom: compare this with Luke 10:23 and Matthew 16:16. The Church is in the world, this little flock that seeks what is essential.

• 35. Jesus develops the parable of the servant expecting his master’s return. This servant is here contrasted with the rich of the preceding paragraph (12:13) who was only concerned about a long and comfortable life. The servant works for God.

Happy are those servants whom the master finds wide-awake (v. 37). Wide-awake, steward, whom the master sets over his other servants to give them wheat at the proper time. ⁴³Fortunate is this servant if his master, on coming home, finds him doing his work. ⁴⁴Truly, I say to you, the master will put him in charge of all his property.

⁴⁵But it may be that the steward thinks, 'My Lord delays in coming,' and he begins to abuse the male servants and the servant girls, eating and drinking and getting drunk. ⁴⁶Then the master will come on a day he does not expect, and at an hour he doesn't know. He will cut him off, and send him to the same fate as the unfaithful.

⁴⁷The servant who knew his master's will, but did not prepare and do what his master wanted, will be soundly beaten; ⁴⁸but the one who does unconsciously what deserves punishment, shall receive fewer blows. Much will be required of the one who has been given much, and more will be asked of the one who has been entrusted with more.

(Mt 10:34; 5:25; 16:2)

• ⁴⁹I have come to bring fire upon the earth, and how I wish it were already kindled! ⁵⁰But I have a baptism to undergo, and what anguish I feel until it is over!

⁵¹Do you think that I have come to bring peace on earth? No, I tell you, but rather division. ⁵²From now on, in one house five will be divided: three against two, and two against

Mt 24:
45-51
Mk
10:38;
Lk 3:16;
Mal 3:19;
Acts 2:3
Jn 12:27

Mt 10:34;
Jer 6:14;
8:10;
Ezk 13:10

that is, concerned about tomorrow's world. Wide-awake also means being aware of the truth; we do not consent to call 'good' evil, and 'evil' good; we do not forgive ourselves for allowing evil and we are not intimidated before injustice.

The Son of Man will come like a thief (v. 40). We should not think that this refers only to the day of death, nor should we be afraid of God's judgment if we live in his grace. Jesus tells us about the master returning from the wedding, who is so happy that he reverses the usual order and begins to serve his servants. If we have been serving God for years, how could we not reach another phase of spiritual life in which it would seem that God is concerned only in giving and feasting with us?

Peter said to him: (v. 41). This new paragraph is aimed at those who hold responsible positions in the Church.

My Lord delays in coming (v. 45). Those in responsible positions may betray their mission. More often, they make the mistake of seeing only to the good functioning of the institution and they forget that Christ is coming.

God comes all the time through events that, unexpectedly, ruin our plans. Therefore, the Church must not rely too much on planning its activity: who knows what God has in store for us tomorrow? Instead the Church should see to its prayer and its availability so that the Lord will let her be in the best situation when he shakes up our little universe.

Be awake to admire, rejoice in and discover the presence of God and his blessings that enlighten our lives.

• 49. I have come to bring fire. Must we think of fire as referring to something precise such as love, the Gospel or the gift of the Holy Spirit? It is better to stay with the image of fire that purifies, burns all that is old, gives warmth and fosters life; fire of the judgment of God destroying all that is not surrendered to its reforming action.

Jesus comes to remake the world and to bring the jewels that will remain for eternity out of the rubble. Those who follow Jesus must participate in this work of salvation directed at a situation combining work, violence, suffering as well as great dreams wise or mad.

I have a baptism to undergo... (v. 50). Jesus is the leader and will be the first one to face death as a means of obtaining resurrection. This step, as 'agonizing' for Jesus as it is for us, is the baptism of fire (see Lk 3:16) that introduces us into a glorious and eternal life. It is the true baptism of which the others, baptisms of water and Spirit, are only a preparation (Rom 6:3-5).

I came to bring division. This is followed by words of Jesus that are so upsetting for those who expect of him a peaceful life. Jesus is a source of division among nations (see commentary on Jn 10:1-4) and social groups. Often people have tried to use religion as cement for national unity or family peace. It is true that faith is a factor in peace and under-three. ⁵³They will be divided, father against son and son against father; mother against daughter and daughter against mother; mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law, and daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law.”

21:16;
Mic 7:6

Mt 16:
2-3;
Lk 11:29

• ⁵⁴Jesus said to the crowds, “When you see a cloud rising in the west, you say at once, ‘A shower is coming’; and so it happens. ⁵⁵And when the wind blows from the south, you say, ‘It will be hot’; and so it is.

7:22;
11:20

⁵⁶You superficial people! You understand the signs of the earth and the sky, but you don’t understand the present times. ⁵⁷And why do you not judge for yourselves what is fit?

Mt 5:
25-26

⁵⁸When you go with your accuser before the court, try to settle the case on the way, lest he drag you before the judge, and the judge deliver you to the jailer, and the jailer throw you into prison. ⁵⁹I tell you, you will not get out until you have paid the very last penny.”

The fig tree without fruit

13 • ¹One day some people told Jesus what had occurred in the Temple: Pilate had had Galileans killed, and their blood mingled with the blood of their sacrifices. ²Jesus asked them, “Do you think that these Galileans were worse sinners than all the other Galileans, because they suffered this? ³No, I tell you. But unless you change your ways, you will all perish as they did.

Jn 9:2

⁴And those eighteen persons in Siloah, who were crushed when the standing; but it also separates those who are truly alive from those others, be they relatives or friends, who cannot have all that is now the most important to these true believers. Many times, the wound and the scandal of this separation are so painful for them, that they turn into our persecutors.

The Gospel does not put this world on the road to an earthly paradise, but it challenges it to grow. The death of Jesus brings into full light what was hidden in hearts (Lk 2:35); likewise it reveals the lies and the violence underlying our societies, just as it revealed those which underlay the Jewish society of his time.

• 54. When you see a cloud. The signs which are seen around Jesus are enough for everyone to understand that now is the time announced by the prophets, when people must be converted and Israel must acknowledge its Savior: tomorrow will be too late (vv. 57-59).

When you go with your accuser before the court (v. 58). In Matthew’s Gospel this refers to reconciliation between brothers and sisters. Luke, instead, uses this phrase in reference to our conversion. We are on our way to God’s judgment and it is the same as going before the authorities; therefore we must take advantage of the time given to us to straighten out our situation. We must not waste this moment when we can be saved from Judgment by believing in Christ’s message.

• 13.1 They told Jesus... about an uprising of Galileans in the temple court and the immediate intervention of the Roman guard stationed at a nearby fortress. They profaned the holy grounds strictly reserved for the Jews and shed blood in the Holy Place.

Those relating the story expect that Jesus will answer in a way expressing his national and religious indignation over the killing of his compatriots and the offense against God. Jesus does not choose to focus on these issues: as usual he shows that people are more absorbed in human rather than divine causes and he calls their attention to what counts: those Galilean patriots were violent men, just like the Roman soldiers who killed them. Right then, God was calling everyone to a conversion on which their survival depended. In such a violent atmosphere there was no way out for the dominated Jewish people except through faith, because faith works through the spirit of forgiveness.

GOD’S PUNISHMENT

In this passage Jesus questions the idea we have of God’s punishment. We cannot believe in God without believing in justice. For the Greeks whose gods were capricious and not very honest, justice was a divine power superior to the gods. We always tend to make ourselves the center of the world and believe we are better than others. If misfortune falls on someone else, we think it is just, but when it is tower fell, do you think they were more guilty than all the others in Jerusalem? ⁵I tell you: no. But unless you change your ways, you will all perish as they did.”

⁶And Jesus continued with this story, “A man had a fig tree growing in his vineyard, and he came looking for fruit on it, but found none. ⁷Then he said to the gardener, ‘Look here, for three years now I have been looking for figs on this tree, and I have found none. Cut it down, why should it use up the ground?’ ⁸The gardener replied, ‘Leave it one more year, so that I may dig around it and add some fertilizer; ⁹perhaps it will bear fruit from now on. But if it doesn’t, you can cut it down.’”

The healing on a Sabbath day

• ¹⁰Jesus was teaching in a synagogue on the Sabbath, ¹¹and a crippled woman was there. An evil spirit had kept her bent for eighteen years, so that she could not straighten up at all. ¹²On seeing her, Jesus called her and said, “Woman, you are freed from your infirmity.” ¹³Then he laid his hands upon her, and immediately she was made straight and praised God.

6:6-11;
14:1-6;
Mt 12:1

¹⁴But the ruler of the synagogue was indignant, because Jesus had performed this healing on the Sabbath day, and he said to the people, “There are six days in which to work. Come on those days to be healed, and not on the Sabbath!”

¹⁵But the Lord replied, “You hypocrites! Everyone of you unties his ox or his donkey on the Sabbath, and leads it out of the barn to give it water. ¹⁶And here you have a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan had bound for eighteen years. Should she not be freed from her bonds on the Sabbath?”

¹⁷When Jesus said this, all his opponents felt ashamed. But the people rejoiced at the many wonderful things that happened because of him.

Two parables

(Mt 13:31; Mk 4:30)

• ¹⁸Jesus continued speaking, “What is the kingdom of God like? What shall I compare it to? ¹⁹Imagine

19:9

Mt 13:
31-32;
Mk 4: 30-32

our turn, we ask: “What have I done against God that this should happen to me?”

The Gospel deals with several aspects of the question. First of all let us try to be free of a ghetto mentality (see 6:32): the evil done by our enemies is not worse than the evil we do.

The justice of God goes far beyond our justice, and is only really fulfilled in the next life (the case of Lazarus, 16:19).

The misfortune, which to us here below appears as the “punishment of God,” is no more than a sign, a pedagogical measure used by God to make us aware of our sin. And God often converts a sinner by granting him unexpected favors (see the case of Zaccheus, 19:1).

Then why is there so much about God’s punishment in the Old Testament? God’s people did not know yet an afterlife, so it was necessary to speak of God’s punishments in this life, for these people to believe in his justice. In fact God continues to give such signs both for persons and for communities. It is good to know how to recognize them, keeping in mind they are not the last word of God’s justice.

• 10. The word untie (v. 15) was used by the Jews to express that someone’s sin or penalty was canceled. It also meant freeing an animal from its yoke. Jesus frees the human person and invites us to follow his example.

We should not be surprised at the indignation of the chief of the synagogue. Since he had never been able to help his sick sister, he must have felt discredited by Jesus’ move. Would it not be the same with us? It never occurred to Jesus to ask the authorities for permission to save people.

• 18. See commentary on Matthew 13:31. At the conclusion of his Galilean ministry, Jesus invites optimism: although the results are few, a seed has been sown and the Kingdom of God is growing.

Dn 4:9 a person who has taken a mustard seed, and planted it in his garden. The seed has grown, and become like a small tree, so that the birds of the air shelter in its branches.”

Mt 13:33 ²⁰ And Jesus said again, “What is the kingdom of God like? ²¹ Imagine a woman who has taken yeast and hidden it in three measures of flour, until it is all leavened.”

• ²² Jesus went through towns and villages teaching, and making his way to Jerusalem. ²³ Someone asked him, “Lord, is it true that few people will be saved?”

Mt 7: 13-14 And Jesus answered, ²⁴ “Do your best to enter by the narrow door, for many, I tell you, will try to enter and will not be able. ²⁵ When once the master of the house has gone inside and locked the door, you will stand outside. Then you will knock at the door, calling, ‘Lord, open to us!’ But he will say to you, ‘I do not know where you come from.’

Mt 7: 22-23 ²⁶ Then you will say, ‘We ate and drank with you, and you taught in our streets!’ ²⁷ But he will reply, ‘I don’t know where you come from. Away from me, all you workers of evil.’

Mt 8: 11-12 ²⁸ You will weep and grind your teeth, when you see Abraham and Jacob and all the prophets in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves left outside. ²⁹ Others will sit at table in the kingdom of God, people coming from east and west, from north and south. ³⁰ Some who are among the last, will be first; and some who are among the first, will be last!”

20:16;
Mk 10:31

³¹ At that time some Pharisees came to Jesus and gave him this warning, “Leave this place and go on your way, for Herod wants to kill you.” ³² Jesus said to them, “Go and give that fox my answer: ‘I drive out demons, and I heal today and tomorrow, and on the third day I finish my course!’ ³³ Nevertheless, I must go on my way today, and tomorrow, and for a little longer; for it would not be fitting for a prophet to be killed outside Jerusalem.”

22:53;
Jn 7:30;
11:47

Alas for you, Jerusalem

• ³⁴ O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, you slay the prophets and stone those who are sent to you! How often have I tried to bring together your children, as a bird gathers her young under her wings, but you refused! ³⁵ From now on, you will be left with your temple; and you will no longer see me, until the time when you will say, Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord.”

Mt 23: 37-39

Jer 12:7;
Mic 3:12;
Ezk 8;
Ps 118:26

14 ¹ One Sabbath Jesus had gone to eat a meal in the house of a leading Pharisee, and he was carefully watched. ² In front of him was a man suffering from dropsy; ³ so Jesus asked the teachers of the Law and the Pharisees, “Is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath, or not?” ⁴ But no one answered. Jesus then took the man, healed him, and sent him away. ⁵ And

7:36;
11:37

6:6;
13:10

• 22. See commentary on Matthew 7:13. Is it true that few people will be saved? Jesus considered this a useless question. What should have been asked, instead, was whether Israel listened to God’s call, and if she was following the narrow road that would save her. People coming from east and west (v. 29) People from all nations will be converted and come into the Church while the Jewish people—for the most part—would remain outside.

• 34. See commentary on Matthew 23:37. Note however a little difference: until the time when you will say (v. 35). For Luke, disciple of Paul, it is certitude: the day will come when Israel will recognize Christ (see Rom 11:25-32). For Jesus has come to save Israel, which means to give sense to its history. It will then, doubtless be the end of all other histories.

Mt 12:11; Lk 13:15 he said to them, "If your lamb or your ox falls into a well on a Sabbath day, who among you doesn't hurry to pull it out?" ⁶And they could not answer.

The first places

Pro 25: 6-7 ⁷ Jesus then told a parable to the guests, for he had noticed how they tried to take the places of honor. And he said, ⁸"When you are invited to a wedding party, do not choose the best seat. It may happen that someone more important than you had been invited; ⁹and your host, who invited both of you, will come and say to you, 'Please give this person your place.' What shame is yours when you take the lowest seat!

Mt 23:12; Lk 1:52; 18:14; Ezk 21:31 ¹⁰Whenever you are invited, go rather to the lowest seat, so that your host may come and say to you, 'Friend, you must come up higher.' And this will be a great honor for you in the presence of all the other guests. ¹¹For whoever makes himself out to be great will be humbled, and whoever humbles himself will be raised."

• 14.7 Here Jesus develops a biblical proverb inviting us to be modest in social gatherings (Pro 25:6-7). Such behavior befits God's children. Whatever the area of human activity may be, we should let others seek the first place, while stepping on other people as they do so. We know that what matters is not what is seen: God knows how to exalt the humble and place them where it best suits him.

Moreover, when we go from the earthly church to the Kingdom of heaven, there will be changes in who occupies the first places. Someone who was pope, or bishop or a prominent "Catholic" may count less than the little old lady who was selling newspapers.

• 12. Everyone of us seeks to be near those who are above us, since we think we benefit more from being connected with those who are superior than with those who are inferior.

Jesus' warning points to one of the main causes of injustice. We all share in the guilt when we decide with whom it is more benefi-

6:32; Sir 12:1 ¹² Jesus also addressed the man who had invited him, and said, "When you give a lunch or a dinner, don't invite your friends, or your brothers and relatives, or your wealthy neighbors. For surely they will also invite you in return, and you will be repaid. ¹³When you give a feast, invite instead the poor, the crippled, the lame and the blind. ¹⁴Fortunate are you then, because they cannot repay you; you will be repaid at the resurrection of the upright."

A man once gave a feast

(Mt 22:1)

Rev 19:9 ¹⁵ Upon hearing these words, one of those at the table said to Jesus, "Happy are those who eat at the banquet in the kingdom of God!"

Mt 22: 1-10 ¹⁶ Jesus replied, "A man once gave a feast and invited many guests. ¹⁷When it was time for the feast, he sent his servant to tell those he had invited to come, for everything was ready. ¹⁸But all alike began to make excuses. The first said, 'Please excuse me. I must go and see the piece of land I have just bought.' ¹⁹Another cial to be associated; consequently everyone tries to climb higher, always leaving the weakest in the most isolated and helpless position.

It would be a strange sight to see public officials pay more attention to the poorly dressed, or to see the poorest areas supplied with water and power before the residential districts, or to see doctors go to the rural areas to practice.

EXCUSES

• 15. In many parts of the Old Testament there was talk of a "banquet" that God would prepare for good people, for his servants, when he would come to establish his Kingdom. Jesus also developed this theme many times because the banquet represents the communion of saints. The parable here is very similar to the one which Matthew relates in 22:1.

Happy are those who eat at the banquet in the kingdom of God, says the man speaking to Jesus. Perhaps he did not suspect that in order to participate in the eternal feast, it was said, 'I am sorry, but I am on my way to try out the five yoke of oxen I have just bought.' ²⁰Still another said, 'How can I come, when I've just got married?'

²¹The servant returned alone, and reported this to his master. Upon hearing his account, the master of the house flew into a rage, and ordered his servant, 'Go out quickly into the streets and alleys of the town, and bring in the poor, the crippled, the blind and the lame.'

²²The servant reported after a while, 'Sir, your orders have been carried out, but there is still room.'

²³The master said, 'Go out to the highways and country lanes, and force people to come in, to make sure my house is full. ²⁴I tell you, none of those invited will have a morsel of my feast.'

The cost of following Jesus

(Mt 10:37)

²⁵One day, when large crowds were walking along with Jesus, he turned and said to them, ²⁶'If you come to me, unwilling to sacrifice your love for your father and mother, your spouse and children, your brothers and sisters, and indeed yourself, you cannot be my disciple.

²⁷Whoever does not follow me, carrying his own cross, cannot be my disciple.

²⁸Do you build a house without first sitting down to count the cost, to see whether you have enough to complete it? ²⁹Otherwise, if you have laid the foundation and are not able to finish it, everyone will make fun of you, ³⁰'This fellow began to build and was not able to finish.'

³¹And when a king wages war against another king, does he go to fight without first sitting down to consider whether his ten thousand can stand against the twenty thousand of his opponent? ³²And if not, while the other is still a long way off, he sends messengers for peace talks. ³³In the same way, none of you may become my disciple, if he doesn't give up everything he has.

³⁴However good the salt may be, if the salt has lost its taste, you cannot make it salty again. ³⁵It is fit for necessary to respond then to the call from God inviting everyone to gather in his community, the church, and to build a more loving world. The one who turns away from his brothers and sisters today will not eat with others at the banquet.

We are given the reasons why those invited did not respond to the call of the Lord, when he summoned them to build a better world along with him. I have bought a land... I just got married... These are all good reasons. Yet financial concerns of the family must not stop our community involvement, nor prevent us from participating in the Christian assembly. Many times, those who enjoy greater cultural formation allow themselves to be paralyzed by the needs of a "happy home" with well-educated children. If we are not very demanding with ourselves we will be soon among those in whom the thorns have choked the seed.

Bring the poor... compel them to come to my church; force them also to fulfill the role fitting to them in society. God relies on the poor and the marginalized to maintain the aspirations toward peace and justice in the world, to awaken the consciences of those "good" people who are too comfortable.

- 25. Jesus thinks about people who, after becoming enthusiastic about him and giving up their personal ambitions to dedicate themselves to the work of the Gospel, turn back to seek what ordinary people see as a more "normal" and secure life. Jesus needs disciples who commit themselves once and for all.

Why this comparison with the king going to war? Because the person who frees himself for the service of the Gospel is, in fact, a king to whom God will give greater rewards than anyone else would give (see Mk 10:30). He must also know that the fight is against the "owner" of this world, the devil, who will stop him with a thousand unexpected tests and traps. Had he not totally surrendered, the dis-

Mt 10:38;
Lk 9:23;
Jn 12:26

Mt 5:13;
Mk 9:50

neither soil nor manure. Let them throw it away. Listen then, if you have ears!”

The lost sheep

(Mt 18:12)

Mt 9:9-11

15 ¹Meanwhile tax collectors and sinners were seeking the company of Jesus, all of them eager to hear what he had to say. ²But the Pharisees and the scribes frowned at this, muttering, “This man welcomes sinners and eats with them.” ³So Jesus told them this parable:

Mt 18: 12-14

Ezk 34:
4, 16

• ⁴“Who among you, having a hundred sheep and losing one of them, will not leave the ninety-nine in the wilderness, and seek the lost one till he finds it? ⁵And finding it, will he not joyfully carry it home on his shoulders? ⁶Then he will call his friends and neighbors together, and say, ‘Celebrate with me, for I have found my lost sheep!’ ⁷I tell you, in the same way, there will be more rejoicing in heaven over one repentant sinner, than over ninety-nine decent people, who do not need to repent.

⁸What woman, if she has ten silver coins and loses one, will not light a lamp, and sweep the house in a thorough search, till she finds the lost coin? ⁹And finding it, she will call her friends and neighbors, and say, ‘Celebrate with me, for I have found the silver coin I lost!’ ¹⁰I tell you, in the same way, there is rejoicing among the angels of God over one repentant sinner.”

The prodigal son

• ¹¹Jesus continued, “There was a man with two sons. ¹²The younger said to his father, ‘Give me my share of the estate.’ So the father divided his property between them.

ciple would surely fail and be worse off than if he had not even begun.

So long as you don’t give up... (v. 33). Jesus asks some people to give up their loved ones and their family problems. To all he shows that we shall never be free to answer God’s call, if we do not want to rethink our family links, our use of time and all that we sacrifice in order to live “like everyone else.”

Without giving up your love for your father and your children... (v. 26). This is found in Matthew 10:37. Luke adds: your wife.

THE BLACK SHEEP

• 4. Why do the Pharisees complain? Because they are scrupulously concerned about ritual purity. In this perspective—present in the Old Testament—in a relationship between two people, the one who is unclean will contaminate the other. Since “sinners” by definition never think of purifying themselves of the hundred and one impurities of daily life, Jesus could then be considered a teacher ready to become impure at any moment. So it is that Jesus will speak of God’s mercy that has not swept away sinners from his presence.

Then again, is not there something more human in the indignation of “good” people: let everyone see the difference between the rest and us! Once more Jesus battles against the old idea of merits that have been gained and therefore worthy of God’s reward.

Happy the one sheep Jesus went after, leaving the ninety-nine! Poor righteous ones who do not need God’s forgiveness!

In large cities today, the church seems to be left with only one sheep. Why does she not get out, namely, let go of her income, privileges or devotions of a commercial style, to go out looking for the ninety-nine who got lost? To leave the comfortable circle of believers who have no problems, to look beyond our renewed rituals, and to be ready to be criticized just as Jesus was criticized, is the challenge today.

Who lights the lamp, sweeps the house and searches except God himself? Out of respect for God, the Jews of Jesus’ time preferred not to name him, and they used expressions such as the angels or heaven.

ORIGINAL SIN

THE PRODIGAL FATHER

• 11. There are three characters in this parable: the father, representing God; the older son, the Pharisee. Who is the younger son? Is he the sinner or perhaps Man?

The Man wants freedom and thinks, many times, that God takes it away from him. He be-¹³Some days later, the younger son gathered all his belongings and started off for a distant land, where he squandered his wealth in loose living. ¹⁴Having spent everything, he was hard pressed when a severe famine broke out in that land. ¹⁵So he hired himself out to a well-to-do citizen of that place, and was sent to work on a pig farm. ¹⁶So famished was he, that he longed to fill his stomach even with the food given to the pigs, but no one offered him anything.

Dt 14:8

¹⁷Finally coming to his senses, he said, 'How many of my father's hired workers have food to spare, and here I am starving to death! ¹⁸I will get up and go back to my father, and say to him, Father, I have sinned against God, and before you. ¹⁹I no longer deserve to be called your son. Treat me then as one of your hired servants.' With that thought in mind, he set off for his father's house.

Jer 3:12;
Hos 2:16

²⁰He was still a long way off, when his father caught sight of him. His father was so deeply moved with compassion that he ran out to meet him, threw his arms around his neck and kissed him. ²¹The son said, 'Father, I have sinned against Heaven and before you. I no longer deserve to be called your son.'

²²But the father turned to his servants: 'Quick!' he said. 'Bring out the finest robe and put it on him! Put a ring on his finger and sandals on his feet! ²³Take the fattened calf and kill it! We shall celebrate and have a feast, ²⁴for this son of mine was dead, and has come back to life; he was lost, and is found!' And the celebration began.

Gen
41:42

19:10

²⁵Meanwhile, the elder son had been working in the fields. As he returned and approached the house, he heard the sound of music and dancing. ²⁶He called one of the servants and asked what it was all about. ²⁷The servant answered, 'Your brother has come home safe and sound, and your father is so happy

Is 49:
14-16;

gins by leaving the Father, whose love he does not understand and whose presence has become a burden to him. After having wasted the heritage whose value he does not appreciate, he loses his honor and becomes the slave of others and of shameful actions (pigs were unclean animals to the Jews).

The son returns. Having become aware of his slavery, he convinces himself that God has a better destiny in mind for him, and he begins on the road back to his home. Upon returning, he discovers that the Father is very different from the idea that he had formed of him: the father is waiting for him and runs to meet him; he restores his dignity, erasing the memory of the lost inheritance. There is a celebration of the feast to which Jesus referred so many times.

At last we understand that God is Father. He did not put us on earth to collect merits and rewards but to discover that we are his children. We are born sinners: from the start of our lives we are led by our feelings and the bad example of the society in which we have been raised. There is still more: as long as God does not take the initiative and reveal himself to us, we cannot think of freedom other than in terms of becoming independent of him.

God is not surprised by our wickedness since, in creating us free, he accepted the risk that we might fall. God is with all of us in our experience of good and evil, until he can call us his sons and daughters, thanks to his only Son, Jesus. Note this marvelous phrase: I have sinned against God and before you. Sin goes against Heaven, that is, against God who it truth and holiness. But God is also the Father concerned for his son; the son has sinned before the one who draws good from evil.

Such is our God and Father, the one who creates us day after day, without our being aware of it, while we go on our way; the one who seeks sinners whom he can fill with his treasures.

The older son, the one who obeys, though with a closed heart, understands none of this. He has served with the hope of being rewarded, or at least, the hope of being seen as superior to others; and he is incapable to welcome sinners or to participate in the feast of Christ, because, in fact, he does not know how to love.

about it that he has ordered this celebration, and killed the fattened calf.’

²⁸The elder son became angry, and refused to go in. His father came out and pleaded with him. ²⁹The son, very indignant, said, ‘Look, I have slaved for you all these years. Never have I disobeyed your orders. Yet you have never given me even a young goat to celebrate with my friends. ³⁰Then when this son of yours returns, after squandering your property with loose women, you kill the fattened calf for him.’

³¹The father said, ‘My son, you are always with me, and everything I have is yours. ³²But this brother of yours was dead, and has come back to life; he was lost, and is found. And for that we had to rejoice and be glad.’”

The crafty steward

16 • ¹At another time Jesus told his disciples, “There was a rich man, whose steward was reported to him for fraudulent service. ²He summoned the steward and asked him, ‘What is this I hear about you? I want you to render an account of your service, for it is about to be terminated.’

³The steward thought to himself, ‘What am I to do now? My master will surely dismiss me. I am not strong enough to do hard work, and I am ashamed to beg. ⁴I know what I will do: I must make sure that when I am dismissed, there will be people who will welcome me into their homes.’

⁵So he called his master’s debtors, one by one. He asked the first debtor, ‘How much do you owe my master?’ ⁶The reply was, ‘A hundred jars of oil.’ The steward said, ‘Here is your bill. Sit down quickly and write fifty.’ ⁷To the second debtor he put the same question, ‘How much do you owe?’ The answer was, ‘A hundred measures of wheat.’ Then the said: ‘Take your bill and write eighty.’

⁸The master commended the dishonest steward for his astuteness: for the people of this world are more astute, in dealing with their own kind, than are the people of light. ⁹And so I tell you: use filthy money to make friends for yourselves, so that, when it fails, these people may welcome you into the eternal homes.

¹⁰Whoever can be trusted in little things can also be trusted in great ones; whoever is dishonest in slight matters will also be dishonest in greater ones. ¹¹So if you have been dishonest in handling filthy money, who would entrust you with true wealth? ¹²And if you have been dishonest with things that are not really yours, who will give you that wealth which is truly your own?

14:11;
18:14

19:17

12:15

• 16.1 Jesus is not concerned about condemning the improper actions of the administrator, but rather points out his cleverness in providing for his future: this man was able to discover in time that friends last longer than money. In the same way, in promoting a new way of living, the people of light must strip money of its halo as Supreme Good. It seems that putting money in a safe place is the best way to assure our existence and our future. On the contrary, Jesus tells us to use it and to exchange it without hesitation for something much more valuable such as bonds of mutual appreciation.

We are not owners but administrators of our wealth and we must administer it for the good of all. Money is not a bad thing as long as we use it as a means to facilitate exchanges. Jesus, however, calls it “unjust” (we use the word filthy) because money is not a true good (it is not money that makes us just before God); and because it is impossible to accumulate money without failing in trust in the Father and without hurting our neighbors.

Money is something that people acquire and lose; it does not make anyone greater. Therefore, money is not part of the goods that are our own (v. 12).

Mt 6:24

• ¹³No servant can serve two masters. Either he does not like the one and is fond of the other, or he regards one highly and the other with contempt. You cannot give yourself both to God and to Money.”

11:41;
12:16-21

¹⁴The Pharisees, who loved money, heard all this and sneered at Jesus. ¹⁵He said to them, “You do your best to be considered righteous by people. But God knows the heart, and what is highly esteemed by human beings is loathed by God.

Mt 11:
12-13

• ¹⁶The time of the Law and the Prophets ended with John. Now the kingdom of God is proclaimed, and everyone tries to enter it by force.

¹⁷It is easier for heaven and earth to pass away than for a single letter of Scripture not to be fulfilled.

Mt 5:18

¹⁸Anyone who divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery; and whoever marries a woman divorced by her husband also commits adultery.

Mt 5:32;
19:9

The rich man and Lazarus

• ¹⁹Once there was a rich man who dressed in purple and fine linen and feasted every day. ²⁰At his gate lay Lazarus, a poor man covered with sores, ²¹who longed to eat just the scraps falling from the rich man’s table. Even dogs used to come and lick his sores. ²²It happened that the poor man died, and angels carried him to take his place with Abraham.

6:24

Mt 15:27

THE RICH

• 13. The Pharisees, heard all this and sneered at Jesus (v. 14). More than the other evangelists, Luke notes the incompatibility between true religion and love of money. The Pharisees could justify their love of money by quoting some sayings from the Bible. In fact, in the beginning the Jews saw wealth as a blessing from God. It seemed just to them that God should reward in this way those who are faithful to him when they know how to deal with the riches of this world. Then, with the passing of time, they came to see that money was more of a danger and that, often, it was the privilege of those without faith (Ps 49, Job).

Nevertheless, as soon as someone has money he is convinced that he possesses truth, and thus the Pharisees felt authorized to judge and decide on things of God. After them, many Christians belonging to influential circles have wished to use money and power for the service of the kingdom of God and quickly established themselves as managers. Money in turn possesses those who possess it. Very soon one is ready to approve a moral order that justifies one’s own privileges and forgets the Gospel values of justice, humility and poverty. In the end, it is the Church itself that is despised by those who seek God.

Why have so many people of humble origin felt inferior to the rich in the church? They got used to seeing the rich heading church organizations and accustomed to receiving the word of God from them, in spite of Jesus’ warnings.

THE LAW

• 16. We are about to read three of Jesus’ sayings whose only connection is their reference to the Law. The Law meant the laws that God had given to the Jews. Besides, the Law and the Prophets was a way the Jews used to refer to their Holy Writings that we call the Old Testament. Jesus uses this expression here to point to Old Testament times, to all that prepared for his own coming.

For a single letter of Scripture not to be fulfilled (v. 17): that means that everything in it had its significance even though Jesus states that the decisive point has come with him. The Law was needed to prepare for his coming, but it will no longer be observed in the same way as before (see Mt 5:17-20).

For Jews who observed the Law and in particular for those who had followed John the Baptist, another step was needed: faith in Jesus and, by this, to conquer the kingdom of God (Lk 7:24). Despite appearances, it is much easier to follow religious practices, to observe laws and to fast, than it is to believe and to risk the unknown by following the crucified Jesus.

• 19. This parable deals with the worldwide gap between the rich and the inhumanly poor. There is a deadly law of money which makes the rich live separately: housing, transportation, recreation, medical care. The wall the rich man willingly built in this life becomes, after his death, an abyss that no one will be

23:43

The rich man also died, and was buried. ²³From hell, where he was in torment, the rich man looked up and saw Abraham afar off, and with him Lazarus at rest.

²⁴He called out, 'Father Abraham, have pity on me, and send Lazarus, with the tip of his finger dipped in water, to cool my tongue, for I suffer so much in this fire.'

²⁵Abraham replied, 'My son, remember that in your lifetime you were well-off, while the lot of Lazarus was misfortune. Now he is in comfort, and you are in agony. ²⁶But that is not all. Between your place and ours a great chasm has been fixed, so that no one can cross over from here to you, or from your side to us.'

²⁷The rich man implored once more, 'Then I beg you, Father Abraham, to send Lazarus to my father's house, ²⁸where my five brothers live. Let him warn them, so that they may not end up in this place of torment.' ²⁹Abraham replied, 'They have Moses and the prophets. Let them listen to them.' ³⁰But the rich man said, 'No, Father Abraham; but if someone from the dead goes to them, they will repent.'

³¹Abraham said, 'If they will not listen to Moses and the prophets, they will not be convinced, even if someone rises from the dead.'"

17 ¹Jesus said to his disciples, "Scandals will necessarily come and cause people to fall; but woe to the one who brings them about. ²It would be better for him to be thrown into the sea with a millstone around his neck. Truly, this would be better for that person, than to cause one of these little ones to fall.

³Listen carefully: if your brother offends you, tell him, and if he is sorry, forgive him. ⁴And if he offends

Mt 18:
6-7;
Mk 9:42Mt
18:15;
18:21-22

able to bridge. The one who accepts this separation will find himself on the other side forever.

A poor man named Lazarus: Jesus names the poor man, but not the rich one, thus reversing the order of the present society that treats the well to do as a person but not the ordinary worker. We also see that, on dying, Lazarus finds many friends: the angels, Abraham, the father of believers. The rich man finds neither friends nor lawyers to relieve his situation: hell is isolation.

Some people would like to know what was the rich man's sin for which he was condemned to hell. Was it that he denied some crumbs from his table to Lazarus? The Gospel does not say this. Instead it shows that the rich man did not even see Lazarus lying at his door: Remember that in your lifetime you were well off.

The Lazarus of today are legion and are already at our door; they are known as third or fourth world. On a world scale it is the more advanced countries and the privileged minorities that have taken possession of the table to which all were invited: the real power, and the culture imposed by the media. The national industries and sources of employment have been destroyed by a free exchange unimpeded by any social or moral restraint. Hundreds of millions of "Lazarus" people are marginalized and rejected until they die in misery, or through violence arising from a dehumanized life.

Modern-day Lazarus are kept at a distance from the residential areas by police, dogs and barbed wires. They would like to get their fill of the crumbs that are left over from the feast, but there are few scraps falling back to the homeland, after everything is wasted on imported products or deposited in foreign banks. Lazarus lives among dogs and rubbish: he becomes a prostitute, or a pickpocket, until a premature death enables him to find someone who loves him: at the side of Abraham and the angels.

Meanwhile, the rich person works hard, not so much to enjoy life as to convince himself that he is right: even the Church should justify him and the separation. It is this perversion of his mind that takes him to hell, after having inspired in him hatred or contempt for all those who proclaim the demands of justice taught by Moses and the prophets, that is to say, by the Bible.

The Gospel, in its desire to save the rich as well as the poor, asks us to work with a view to removing the abyss that separates them. The time for breaking down the barrier is in this life.

you seven times in one day, but seven times he says to you, 'I'm sorry,' forgive him."

Mt 17:20; 21:21

⁵The apostles said to the Lord, "Increase our faith." And the Lord said, ⁶"If you have faith, even the size of a mustard seed, you may say to this tree, 'Be uprooted, and plant yourself in the sea!' and it will obey you.

Mk 11:23; 4:31

⁷Who among you would say to your servant, coming in from the fields after plowing or tending sheep, 'Go ahead and have your dinner'?

⁸No, you tell him, 'Prepare my dinner. Put on your apron, and wait on me while I eat and drink. You can eat and drink afterwards.' ⁹Do you thank this servant for doing what you told him to do? ¹⁰I don't think so. And therefore, when you have done all that you have been told to do, you should say, 'We are no more than servants; we have only done our duty.'"

The ten lepers

• ¹¹On the way to Jerusalem, Jesus passed through Samaria and Galilee, and ¹²as he entered a village, ten lepers came to meet him. ¹³Keeping their distance, they called to him, "Jesus, Master, have pity on us!" ¹⁴Jesus said to them, "Go, and show yourselves to the priests." Then, as they went on their way, they found they were cured. ¹⁵One of them, as soon as he saw that he was cleansed, turned back, praising God in a loud voice; and ¹⁶throwing himself on his face before Jesus, he gave him thanks. This man was a Samaritan.

Lev 13:45

Lev 14: 2-32

¹⁷Then Jesus asked him, "Were not all ten healed? Where are the other nine? ¹⁸Did none of them decide to return and give praise to God, but this foreigner?" ¹⁹And Jesus said to him, "Stand up and go your way; your faith has saved you."

7:50; 8:48

The coming of the kingdom of God
(Mt 24:17)

• ²⁰The Pharisees asked Jesus when the kingdom of God was to come. He answered, "The kingdom of God is not like something you can observe, ²¹and say of it, 'Look, here it is!' or 'See, there it is!' for the kingdom of God is within you."

11:20; 12:54

• 17.11 The ten lepers were cured but only one of them was told: Your faith has saved you. He was the one who responded straight from the heart. While the others were concerned about fulfilling the legal requirements, he only thought about giving thanks to God right where the grace of God found him: such is the faith which saves and transforms us.

Among the many people asking God for healing and favors, how many will really come to love God?

• 20. When will the kingdom of God come? It does not come as a revolution or the change of the seasons each year: it is at work in people who have received the Good News. Those who believe already enjoy the Kingdom.

Then come the words of Jesus concerning the end of Jerusalem and his second coming (Mk 13:14). We should not speak about the end of the world in every time of anxiety. Jesus gives us two comparisons: the lightning (v. 24) which is seen everywhere and the vultures (v. 37) which gather without fail wherever there is a corpse. In the same way, everyone, without fail, will be aware of Christ's return.

Yet his return will catch off guard those who are not expecting it (just as in the days of Noah). Judgment will separate the elect from the condemned—nothing separated them in daily life—from two people working side by side, one will be taken, the other left behind.

In Matthew 24:17 the reference to someone outside his house is connected with the end of Jerusalem, and here it means it will be necessary to escape quickly. In the present text this has another meaning: when the end of the world comes it will be too late to worry about saving one's life or possessions.

Where will this take place? (v. 37): foolish question as in Luke 17:20, because the Lord will not come to take his people to a geo-

²² And Jesus said to his disciples, “The time is at hand, when you will long to see one of the glorious days of the Son of Man, but you will not see it.

²³ Then people will tell you, ‘Look there! Look here!’ Do not go with them, do not follow them. ²⁴ As lightning flashes from one end of the sky to the other, so will it be with the Son of Man; ²⁵ but first he must suffer many things and be rejected by this generation.

²⁶ As it was in the days of Noah, so will it be on the day the Son of Man comes. ²⁷ In those days people ate and drank and got married; but on the day Noah entered the ark, the flood came and destroyed them all. ²⁸ So it was in the days of Lot: people ate and drank, and bought and sold, and planted and built; ²⁹ but on the day Lot left Sodom, God made fire and sulfur rain down from heaven, which destroyed them all. ³⁰ So will it be on the day the Son of Man is revealed.

³¹ On that day, if you are on the rooftop, don’t go down into the house to get your belongings; and if you happen to be in the fields, do not turn back. ³² Remember Lot’s wife!

³³ Whoever tries to save his life will lose himself, but whoever gives his life will be born again.

³⁴ I tell you, though two men are sharing the same bed, it might happen that one will be taken, and the other left; ³⁵ though two women are grinding corn together, one might be taken and the other left.”

³⁷ Then they asked Jesus, “Where will this take place, Lord?” And he answered, “Where the body is, there too will the vultures gather.”

Pray and never lose heart

18 ¹ Jesus told them a parable, to show them that they should pray continually, and not lose heart. ² He said, “In a certain town there was a judge, who neither feared God nor people. ³ In the same town there was a widow, who kept coming to him, saying, ‘Defend my rights against my opponent!’ ⁴ For a time he refused, but finally he thought, ‘Even though I neither fear God nor care about people, ⁵ this widow bothers me so much, I will see that she gets justice; then she will stop coming and wearing me out.’”

⁶ And Jesus said, “Listen to what the evil judge says. ⁷ Will God not do justice for his chosen ones, who cry to him day and night, even if he delays in answering them? ⁸ I tell you, he will speedily do them justice. But,

Mt 24: 40-41; 1Thes 4:17

Mt 24:28

Rom 1:10; Col 1:3; 2Cor 4:1

Ps 43:1; Rev 6: 9-11; 2P 3:9

Sir 35:12; 2Thes 2:3;

Mk 13:21; Mt 24:23; 24:26-27; Lk 21:8; 19:11-27

9:22

Mt 24: 37-39; Lk 12:39

Gen 7:7

Gen 19:24

Mt 24: 17-18; Mk 13: 15-16; Lk 21:21

Gen 19:26

Mt 10:39; Jn 12:25; Lk 9:24

graphic location. On that day, the good will be taken into the presence of God as infallibly as vultures gather around a corpse.

• 18.1 If there is a just God, why does he not do justice? (Ps 44:24, Heb 1; Zec 1:12; Rev 6:10). Jesus answers: Do you desire and ask for the justice of God with enough faith? He will undoubtedly do justice, but you will have to wait.

A judge who neither feared God nor people: many people upon seeing what is unjust and absurd in life, view God this way. If we pray with perseverance, we will gradually discover that things are not as absurd as they seem, and we will come to recognize the face of the God who loves us in what happens.

Who cry to him day and night (v. 7). Jesus, who so insists on our responsibility to the world, is the one who also urges us to call on God day and night. Why are people so readily divided (or why do we divide them) into prayers and doers?

Will he find faith on earth? (v. 8). Jesus confirms an opinion already found among the Jews of his days. In the last days before Judgment, the power of evil will be so great that in many love will grow cold (Mt 24:12).

In fact, with the first coming of Jesus, the Old Testament ended in seeming failure; few had believed in him and, later, most were influenced by the confusion, the false saviors and the violence which precipitated the fall of the nation forty years after the death of Jesus.

Mt 24:12; Lk 5:32; 15:7 when the Son of Man comes, will he find faith on earth?"

The Pharisee and the tax collector

16:15; Pro 21:2 •⁹ Jesus told another parable to some people, fully convinced of their own righteousness, who looked down on others: ¹⁰ "Two men went up to the Temple to pray; one was a Pharisee, and the other a tax collector. ¹¹ The Pharisee stood by himself, and said, 'I thank you, God, that I am not like other people, grasping, crooked, adulterous, or even like this tax collector. ¹² I fast twice a week, and give the tenth of all my income to the Temple.'

Mt 9:14 ¹³ In the meantime the tax collector, standing far off, would not even lift his eyes to heaven, but beat his breast, saying, 'O God, be merciful to me, a sinner.'

14:11; Mt 23:12; 6:1 ¹⁴ I tell you, when this man went back to his house, he had been set right with God, but not the other. For whoever makes himself out to be great will be humbled, and whoever humbles himself will be raised up."

¹⁵ People even brought little children to Jesus to have him touch them; but seeing it, the disciples rebuked these people. ¹⁶ So Jesus called the children to him and said, "Let the children come to me and don't stop them, for the kingdom of God belongs to such as these. ¹⁷ Truly I tell you, whoever does not receive the kingdom of God like a child will not enter it."

Jesus and the rich ruler

(Mk 10:17; Mt 19:16)

Mt 19: 13-15; Mk 10: 13-16; Lk 9:47
10:21
Mt 19: 16-29; Mk 10: 17-30
10:25-28; Mt 19:20
20:12-16; Dt 5: 16-20
¹⁸ A ruler asked Jesus, "Good master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?" ¹⁹ Jesus said to him, "Why do you call me good? No one is good but God alone. ²⁰ You know the commandments: Do not commit adultery, do not kill, do not steal, do not accuse falsely, honor your father and your mother." ²¹ And the man said, "I have kept all these commandments from my youth."

• 9. The Pharisees were very determined to fulfill God's law; they fasted often and did many works of mercy. Unfortunately, many of them took the credit for such a model life: they thought they no longer needed God's mercy because their good deeds would force him to reward them.

On the other hand the publican recognizes he is a sinner towards God and people: all he can do is to ask pardon. He is in the truth and in the grace of God when he goes home.

Jesus speaks for those who are fully convinced of their own righteousness (v. 9). The text says precisely: "their justice" which contrasts with "he was justified" in verse 14. The Bible calls just those whose life is in order before God because they observe his law; so in Matthew 1:19 and Luke 1:6 Joseph and Zachary are called just. In many places, however, great importance is given to the exterior acts of the just man, and for the Pharisees as for any religious group that is at the same time a party or a social group, the members of the group considered themselves as good people.

Jesus invites us to humility if we want to acquire the only righteousness which counts in God's eyes, for it is not a matter of acquiring it by means of merit and religious practices, but receiving it rather as a gift from God destined for those who want his pardon and holiness. It is not by chance that this parable is in the Gospel of Luke, disciple of Paul; for Paul, the converted Pharisee, constantly dwells on what is the true justice of a Christian. What God wants for us is so great that we could never buy it with religious practices or good works: but to those who trust him God gives all (see Rom 4).

Neither is it by chance that Jesus offers us a Pharisee who only knows how to compare himself with another person in order to find himself better than the other. It is there that the devil waits for all, and for all Christian groups, who pride themselves on having discovered a way to conversion. Wherever we see a divided Church, whether because of political or religious causes, it is a good guess that people favor such a situation because it allows comparison with others. It is difficult to belong to a group of "the converted" without looking with charitable compassion on those Christian brethren who have not taken the same road.

²² Then Jesus answered, “There is still one thing you lack. Sell all you have, and give the money to the poor, and you will have riches in Heaven. And then come, follow me!”

²³ When he heard these words, the man became sad, for he was very rich. ²⁴ Jesus noticing this said, “How hard it is for people who have riches to enter the kingdom of God! ²⁵ It is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle, than for a rich person to enter the kingdom of God.”

²⁶ The bystanders said, “Who then can be saved?” ²⁷ And Jesus replied, “What is impossible for human beings is possible for God.”

²⁸ Then Peter said, “We left everything we had and followed you.”

²⁹ Jesus replied, “Truly, I tell you, whoever has left house or wife, or brothers or parents or children, for the sake of the kingdom of God, ³⁰ will receive much more in this present time, and eternal life in the world to come.”

³¹ Jesus then took the Twelve aside, and told them, “Now we are going up to Jerusalem, and everything the Prophets have written about the Son of Man will be fulfilled.

³² He will be delivered up to the foreign power. People will mock him, insult him, and spit on him. ³³ After they have scourged him, they will kill him, but he will be raised on the third day.” ³⁴ The apostles could make nothing of this; the meaning of these words remained a mystery to them, and they did not understand what he said.

The blind man of Jericho

(Mk 10:46; Mt 20:29)

³⁵ When Jesus drew near to Jericho, a blind man was sitting by the road, begging. ³⁶ As he heard the crowd passing by, he inquired what was happening, ³⁷ and they told him that Jesus of Nazareth was going by. ³⁸ Then he cried out, “Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!” ³⁹ The people in front scolded him, “Be quiet!” but he cried out all the more, “Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!”

⁴⁰ Jesus stopped, and ordered the blind man to be brought to him; and when he came near, Jesus asked him, ⁴¹ “What do you want me to do for you?” And the man said, “Lord, that I may see!” ⁴² Jesus said, “Receive your sight, your faith has saved you.” ⁴³ At once the blind man was able to see, and he followed Jesus, giving praise to God. And all the people who were there also praised God.

Jesus and Zaccheus

19 • ¹ When Jesus entered Jericho and passed through the city, ² a man named Zaccheus lived there. He was a tax collector and a wealthy man. ³ He wanted to see what Jesus was like, but he was a short man and could not see him because of the crowd. ⁴ So he ran ahead and climbed up a sycamore tree. From there he would be able to see Jesus, who was going to pass that way. ⁵ When Jesus came to the place, he looked up and said to him Zaccheus, “Zaccheus, come down quickly, for I must stay at your house today.” ⁶ So

Mt 20:
29-34;
Mk 10:
46-52

1:37

Acts 4:32

Mt 19:10

Mt 20: 17-19;
Mk 10:
32-34;
Lk 9:22;
12:50;
13:32;
17:25

THE POWER OF JESUS

• 19.1 Everyone in Jericho was pointing a finger at Zaccheus: how could a man involved in dirty deals, (like he was) be converted? What punishment would God send to him? Instead of punishing him, God comes to his home.

Jesus shows that he is guided by the Spirit when he spots Zaccheus among so many people, and when he understands at that very moment, that on that day he has come to Jericho, above all, to save a rich man.

Zaccheus knows that he is the object of envy and hatred. He is not all bad: although his hands are dirty, he has not lost the sense of Zaccheus climbed down and received him joyfully.

5:30;
7:34

⁷All the people who saw it began to grumble, and said, "He has gone as a guest to the house of a sinner."

2S 12:6

⁸But Zaccheus spoke to Jesus, "Half of what I own, Lord, I will give to the poor, and if I have cheated anyone, I will pay him back four times as much."⁹ Looking at him Jesus said, "Salvation has come to this house today, for he is also a true son of Abraham."¹⁰ The Son of Man has come to seek and to save the lost."

4:21;
13:16;
Mt 21:31;
Jn 8:39

Ezk
34:16

The ten pounds

(Mt 25:14)

• ¹¹ Jesus was now near Jerusalem, and the people with him thought that God's reign was about to appear. So as they were listening to him, Jesus went on to tell them a parable.¹² He said, "A man of noble birth went to a distant country to assume regal authority, after which he planned to return home.¹³ Before he left, he summoned ten of his servants and gave them ten pounds of silver. He said, 'Put this money to work until I get back.'¹⁴ But his compatriots, who disliked him, sent a delegation after him with this message, 'We do not want this man to be our king.'

Mt 25:
14-30

Mk 13:34

Ps 2:2;
Jn 19:15

¹⁵ He returned, however, appointed as king. At once he sent for the servants, to whom he had given the money, to find out what profit each had made.¹⁶ The first came in, and reported, 'Sir, your pound of silver has earned ten more pounds of silver.'

¹⁷ The master replied, 'Well done, my good servant! Since you have proved yourself faithful in a small matter, I can trust you to take charge of ten cities.'¹⁸ The second reported, 'Sir, your pound of silver earned five more pounds of silver.'¹⁹ The master replied, 'And you, take charge of five cities!'

Rom
8:18;
2Cor 4:17

²⁰ The third came in, and said, 'Sir, what is good and he admires the prophet Jesus secretly. God is able to save him because of his good desires. The favor Jesus does to him compels him to manifest the human and good qualities hidden in him.

It is said that he received Jesus joyfully: a joy that shows the transformation that has taken place in him. After that, he will have no trouble in rectifying his evil deeds. Then he will share and reestablish justice.

The people are indignant, and in that they imitate the Pharisees; they believe that the prophet Jesus should share their prejudice and even their resentments. Jesus is not a demagogue; the crowd's lack of understanding does not matter to him any more than that of the Pharisees. Once again, Jesus shows his power; he destroys evil by saving the sinner.

• 11. Galileans go to Jerusalem to celebrate the Passover and Jesus goes with them. He knows that death awaits him: they, nonetheless, are convinced that he will be proclaimed king and liberator of Israel.

In his parable Jesus invites them to hold onto another hope. He will rule on his return from a faraway land (his own death) at the end of history. Meanwhile, his people are in charge of riches, which he has given them and which they must multiply. They should not wait in idleness for his return, since his enemies will take advantage of his absence to struggle against his influence. Jesus' servants will participate in his triumph to the degree that they have worked.

This page is closely connected with the parable of the talents (Mk 25:14). Two differences are pointed out in what follows.

For one thing, in the introduction and in the conclusion Jesus refers to his country's political life. The country depended on the Roman Empire and its kings had to be acceptable to the Roman government that protected them.

On the other hand, the parable insists on God's justice: everyone receives according to his merit. Heavenly happiness is not something that can be distributed equally. Everyone will know God and will share his riches to the degree that one has been able to love throughout life. Every step we take by way of obedience, sacrifice and humility, develops our capacity to receive God and to be transformed by him.

here is your money, which I hid for safekeeping. ²¹I was afraid of you, for you are an exacting person: you take up what you did not lay down, and you reap what you did not sow.’

²²The master replied, ‘You worthless servant, I will judge you by your own words! So you knew I was an exacting person, taking up what I did not lay down, and reaping what I did not sow?’ ²³Why, then, did you not put my money on loan, so that, when I got back, I could have collected it with interest?’

²⁴Then the master said to those standing by, ‘Take from him that pound, and give it to the one with ten pounds.’ ²⁵But they objected, ‘Sir, he already has ten pounds!’

²⁶The master replied, ‘I tell you, everyone who has will be given more; but from those who have nothing, even what they have will be taken away. ²⁷As for my enemies, who did not want me to be their king, bring them in, and execute them right here in front of me!’”

Jesus enters Jerusalem

(Mk 11:1; Mt 21:1; Jn 12:12; Mt 24:2)

²⁸So Jesus spoke, and then he passed on ahead of them, on his way to Jerusalem. ²⁹When he drew near to Bethphage and Bethany, close to the Mount of Olives, he sent two of his disciples with these instructions, ³⁰“Go to the village opposite; and, as you enter it, you will find a colt tied up, that no one has yet ridden. Untie it, and bring it here. ³¹And if anyone says to you, ‘Why are you untying this colt?’ You shall give this answer, ‘The Master needs it.’”

³²So the two disciples went and found things just as Jesus had said. ³³As they were untying the colt, the owner said to them, “Why are you untying the colt?” ³⁴And they answered, “The Master needs it.” ³⁵So they brought it to Jesus and, throwing their cloaks on the colt, they mounted Jesus on it. ³⁶And as he went along, people spread their cloaks on the road.

³⁷When Jesus came near Jerusalem, to the place where the road slopes down from the Mount of Olives, the whole multitude of his disciples began to rejoice, and to praise God with a loud voice for all the miracles they had seen; ³⁸and they cried out, “Blessed is he who comes as king in the name of the Lord. Peace in heaven, and glory in the highest heavens.”

³⁹Some Pharisees in the crowd said to him, “Master, rebuke your disciples!” ⁴⁰But Jesus answered, “I tell you, if they were to remain silent, the stones would cry out.”

⁴¹When Jesus had come in sight of the city, he wept over it, ⁴²and said, “If only today you knew the ways of peace! But now they are hidden from your eyes. ⁴³Yet days will come upon you, when your enemies will surround you with barricades, and shut you in, and press on you from every side. ⁴⁴And they will dash you to the ground, and your children with you, and not leave stone upon stone within you, for you did not recognize the time and the visitation of your God.”

⁴⁵Then Jesus entered the Temple area and began to drive out the merchants. ⁴⁶And he said to them, “God says in the Scriptures, ‘My house shall be a house of prayer’, but you have turned it into a den of robbers!”

⁴⁷Jesus was teaching every day in the Temple. The chief priests and teachers of the Law wanted to kill him, and the elders of the Jews as well, ⁴⁸but they were unable to do anything, for all the people were listening to him and hanging on his words.

Ps
118:26;
Lk 2:14

Mt 21:
14-16

Acts 2:11

13:34-35

Mt 21:
12-13;
Mk 11: 15-17;
Jn 2:
14-16

Is 56:7;
Jer 7:11

21:37;
22:53;
Jn 18:20;
Mk 11:18

8:18;
Mt 13:12

19:43;
21:20

Mt 21:
1-11;
Mk 11: 1-11;
Jn 12: 12-16

1K 1:
33-34

21:38;
Mt 22:33
Mt 21:
23-27;
Mk 11:
27-33

20 ¹One day, when Jesus was teaching the people in the Temple and proclaiming the good news, the chief priests and the teachers of the Law came with the elders of the Jews, ²and said to him, “Tell us, what right have you to act like this? Who gives you authority to do all this?”

³Jesus said to them, “I also will ask you a question. Tell me: ⁴was John’s preaching and baptism a work of God, or was it merely something human?” ⁵And they argued among themselves, “If we answer that it was a work of God, he will say, ‘Why then did you not believe him?’

7:39;
Mt 21:32

⁶But if we answer that it was merely something human, the people will stone us, for they all regard John as a prophet.” ⁷So they answered Jesus, “We don’t know,” ⁸and Jesus said to them, “Neither will I tell you what right I have to act like this.”

The murderous tenants
(Mk 12:1; Mt 21:33)

Mt 21:
33-46;
Mk 12: 1-12;
Is 5:2

• ⁹Jesus went on to tell the people this parable, “A man planted a vineyard, and let it out to tenants, before going abroad for a long time.

¹⁰In due time he sent a servant to the tenants to get some fruit from the vineyard. But the tenants beat him, and sent him back empty-handed. ¹¹Again the man sent another servant; they beat him as well, and treated him shamefully, and finally sent him back empty-handed. ¹²The owner then sent a third servant, but him they injured and threw out of the vineyard.

Mt 3:17

¹³The owner then thought, ‘What shall I do? I will send my beloved son; surely they will respect him.’ ¹⁴However the tenants, as soon as they saw him, said to one another, ‘This is the one who will inherit the vineyard. Let us kill him, and the property will be ours!’ ¹⁵So they threw him out of the vineyard, and killed him. ¹⁶Now, what will the owner of the vineyard do to them? He will come and destroy those tenants and give the vineyard to others.”

Heb
13:12

On hearing this, some said, “God forbid!” ¹⁷Then Jesus looked directly at them and said, “What does this text of the Scriptures mean: The stone which the builders rejected has become the keystone? ¹⁸*Everyone who falls on that stone will be broken to pieces, and anyone that stone falls on will be crushed.*”

Ps
118:22;
Is 28:16;
Acts 4:11

Is 8:14;
Dn 2:45;
Rom
9:33;
1P 2:8

¹⁹The teachers of the Law and the chief priests would have liked to arrest him right there, for they realized that Jesus meant this parable for them, but they were afraid of the crowd. ²⁰So they left, looking for another opportunity.

19:48;
Acts 5:26

Paying taxes to Caesar
(Mk 12:13; Mt 22:15)

Mt 22:
15-22;
Mk 12:
13-17

They sent spies who pretended to be honest men, in order to trap him in his words, and deliver him to the authority and power of the Roman governor. ²¹They said to him, “Master, we know that you are true in your words and in your teaching, and your answers do not vary according to who is listening to you; for you truly teach

Gal 2:6;
Col 3:25;
Eph 6:9

• 20.9 How many confrontations between Jesus and the leaders of Jerusalem! In 20:19, Luke says: They feared the people. Is it a fact that the Jews of that time, their teachers of the Law and their priests were any worse than we are today? Or are we mistaken when we dream of a Church without persecutions and controversies?

Not all of us must experience the oppositions Jesus met. He chose for himself this crucifying way because it is the highway to God.

the way of God. Tell us: ²²are we allowed to pay taxes to Caesar or not?"

²³But Jesus saw through their cunning and said, ²⁴"Show me a silver coin. Whose image is this, and whose title does it bear?" They answered, "Caesar's." ²⁵And Jesus said to them, "Return to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God what is God's."

²⁶So they were unable to trap him in what he said publicly; they were surprised at his answer, and kept silent.

Resurrection of the dead

(Mk12:18)

• ²⁷Then some Sadducees arrived. These people claim that there is no resurrection, ²⁸and they asked Jesus this question, "Master, in the Law Moses told us, 'If anyone dies leaving a wife but no children, his brother must take the wife, and any child born to them will be regarded as the child of the deceased.' ²⁹Now, there were seven brothers; the first married a wife, but he died without children; ³⁰and the second ³¹and the third took the wife; in fact, all seven died leaving no children. ³²Last of all the woman died. ³³On the day of the resurrection, to which of them will the woman be a wife? For all seven had her as a wife."

³⁴And Jesus replied, "Taking a husband or a wife is proper to people of this world, ³⁵but for those who are considered worthy of the world to come, and of resurrection from the dead, there is no more marriage. ³⁶Besides, they cannot die, for they are like the angels. They are sons and daughters of God, because they are born of the resurrection.

³⁷Yes, the dead will be raised, as Moses revealed at the burning bush, where he called the Lord 'the God of Abraham and the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob'. ³⁸For God is God of the living, and not of the dead, for to him everyone is alive."

Rom
13:7

Mt 22:
23-33;
Mk 12:
18-27

Dt 25:5

3:6

Rom
6:10;
Gal 2:19

- 27. See commentary on Mark 12:18.

Luke has his own expressions in speaking of the resurrection in verses 34-36. It is because in those countries of Greek culture (Luke wrote for them) many people believed in the immortality of the soul as something natural. Luke clarified for them that the other life is not something natural; it is a gift of God for those who are considered worthy to enter it.

They too are sons and daughters of God. Using a Hebrew expression, the text says: they too are sons of God (at that time the sons of God were the angels) because they are sons of the resurrection. This resurrection is not like coming back to the life we know, it is the work of the Holy Spirit, who transforms and sanctifies those he resurrects. Therefore the resurrected are sons and daughters of God in a much more authentic way than those of this world: delivered from sin, they are reborn of God.

To him everyone is alive. They started to become alive when God knew them and called them, and they will not disappear, since God called them from this world to bring them into his own.

Faith in the resurrection contrasts with the doctrine of transmigration that says that souls come back to life in a body and social condition that befits their merits. The cycle will continue as long as purification has not been completed. It is a powerful theory capable of enticing many people in the West.

It could be said that it is convenient and leads to irresponsibility since all could be settled. Actually, however, this is not the case with the Hindus: their moral concern is often greater than ours, for they are keen to escape from these recurring beginnings. The difference is elsewhere. There are two conceptions of a human. In one, the soul is imprisoned in a body, in the second God saves the indivisible person. The body is not a clothing for the soul, which may pass from an old person to a newly born.

That is why Christian hope awaits a resurrection, that is to say, the possibility for each one to be reborn of God in God and express oneself fully in a "glorified body."

The Bible teaches us that this present life is our only opportunity. People die only once and are judged (Heb 9:27).

³⁹Some teachers of the Law then agreed with Jesus, "Master, you have spoken well." ⁴⁰They didn't dare to ask him anything else. ⁴¹So Jesus said to them, "How can people say that the Messiah is the son of David? ⁴²For David himself says in the book of Psalms, 'The Lord said to my Lord: Sit at my right hand, ⁴³until I put your enemies under your feet!' ⁴⁴David there calls him Lord; how then can he be his son?"

Mt 22:46; Mk 12:34

Mt 22: 41-45; Mk 12: 35-37

Ps 110:1

Mic 3:12; Jer 7: 1-15; Acts 6:14

Mt 24: 4-14; Mk 13: 5-13

• ⁴⁵Jesus also said to his disciples before all the people, ⁴⁶"Beware of those teachers of the Law, who like to be seen in long robes, and love to be greeted in the marketplaces, and to take the reserved seats in the synagogues, and the places of honor at feasts. ⁴⁷While making a show of long prayers, they even devour the property of widows. They will receive a very severe sentence!"

11:43; Mt 23: 6-7; Mk 12: 38-40

The widow's mite
(Mk 12:41)

21 ¹Jesus looked up and saw rich people putting their gifts into the treasury of the Temple. ²He also saw a poor widow, who dropped in two small coins. ³And he said, "Truly, I tell you, this poor widow put in more than all of them. ⁴For all of them gave an offering from their plenty; but she, out of her poverty, gave all she had to live on."

Mk 12: 41-44

Is 19:2; 24:19; Zec 14:4; Ezk 5:12; Acts 11:28; 2Mac 5:2

Mt 10: 17-22; 24:9; Jn 15:20; 16:1-2; Acts 25:13

Acts 5:32; 13:31

Jn 14:18; 15:26

Signs before the destruction of Jerusalem
(Mk 13:1; Mt 24:1)

• ⁵While some people were talking about the Temple, remarking that it was adorned with fine stonework and rich gifts, Jesus said to them, ⁶"The days will come when there shall not be left one stone upon another of all that you now admire; all will be torn down." ⁷And they asked him, "Master, when will this be, and what will be the sign that this is about to take place?"

Mt 24: 1-3; Mk 13: 1-4

⁸Jesus then said, "Take care not to be deceived, for many will come claiming my title and saying, 'I am he, the Messiah; the time is at hand!' Do not follow them. ⁹When you hear of wars and troubled times, don't be frightened; for all these things must happen first, even though the end is not so soon."

¹⁰And Jesus said, "Nations will fight each other and kingdom will oppose kingdom. ¹¹There will be great earthquakes, famines and plagues; in many places strange and terrifying signs from heaven will be seen. ¹²Before all these things happen, people will lay their hands on you and persecute you; you will be delivered to the synagogues and put in prison, and for my sake you will be brought before kings and governors. ¹³This will be your opportunity to bear witness.

¹⁴So keep this in mind: do not worry in advance about what to say, ¹⁵for I will give you words and wisdom that none of your opponents will be able to withstand or contradict.

¹⁶You will be betrayed even by parents and brothers, by relatives and friends, and some of you will be put to death. ¹⁷But even though, because of my name, you will be hated by

Mic 7:6

11:49; Jn 15:18; Lk 8:15; 12:51

• 45. They even devour the property of widows. Pious widows have always sought to help those who seemed to be servants of God. It is well known that they have often been exploited by unscrupulous people and by sects.

• 21.5 See commentary on Mark 13:1 and Matthew 24:1.
For a great calamity will come upon the land (v. 23). Luke foretells the destruction of the Jewish nation more clearly than Matthew and Mark do.

12:7 everyone, ¹⁸not a hair of your head will perish. ¹⁹By your patient endurance you will save your souls.

²⁰When you see Jerusalem surrounded by armies, then know that the time has come when it will be reduced to a wasteland. ²¹If you are in Judea, flee to the mountains! If you are in Jerusalem, leave! If you are outside the city, don't enter it!

²²For these will be the days of its punishment, and all that was announced in the Scriptures will be fulfilled. ²³How hard will it be for pregnant women, and for mothers with babies at the breast! For a great calamity will come upon the land, and wrath upon this people. ²⁴They will be put to death by the sword, or taken as slaves to other nations; and Jerusalem will be trampled upon by the pagans, until the time of the pagans is fulfilled.

The coming of the Son of Man

²⁵Then there will be signs in sun and moon and stars, and on the earth anguish of nations, perplexed when they hear the roaring of the sea and its waves. ²⁶People will faint with fear at the mere thought of what is to come upon the world, for the forces of the universe will be shaken. ²⁷Then, at that time, they will see the Son of Man coming in a cloud with power and great glory.

The signs of the times

²⁸So, when you see things begin to happen, stand erect and lift up your heads, for your deliverance is drawing near." ²⁹And Jesus added this comparison, "Look at the fig tree, and all the trees. ³⁰As soon as their buds sprout, you know that summer is near. ³¹In the same way, when you see these things happening, know that the kingdom of God is near. ³²Truly, I tell you, this generation will not pass away, until all this has happened. ³³Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.

• ³⁴Be on your guard: don't immerse yourselves in a life of pleasure, drunkenness and worldly cares, lest that day catch you unaware, as a trap. ³⁵For, like a snare, will that day come upon all the inhabitants of the earth. ³⁶But watch at all times and pray, that you may be able to escape all that is going to happen, and to stand before the Son of Man."

³⁷In the daytime Jesus used to

Until the time of the non-Jewish nations is fulfilled (v. 24). Luke divides history into two ages. One corresponds to the Old Testament: that was the time when Sacred History was almost the same as the history of Israel. Then, after Jesus, came the time of the nations. The destruction of the Jewish nation and the dispersal of its people inaugurated a new era, which would be mostly the history of the evangelization and education of the nations by the Church. We could call that period the times of the New Testament, which will end with the great crisis concluding human history.

• 34. Be on your guard. After speaking about the imminent end of Jerusalem (vv. 28-32), Luke speaks of that day which will conclude human history with the coming of Christ, the Judge (vv. 34-36).

Be on your guard. This invitation is not only addressed to those who will know that day, but it is for everyone, throughout the history of the Church. Once more he invites us to watch and pray while the world is asleep (see Eph 6:18).

That you may be able to stand: to avoid errors and deceit (2 Thes 2:9; 1 Thes 3:13) during the trials preceding Christ's coming. The Our Father expresses the same concern. Those who are expecting the coming of the Kingdom pray: do not put us to the test.

In fact, vigils and prayers serve not only to prevent possible falls. When the believer and the Church are more awake, they cooperate more in the development of the divine plan and hasten the coming of the Lord.

Dn 7:13

Rom 8:23

Mt 24:32-35; Mk 13:28-31

Mt 16:28; Mk 9:1; 13:30; Lk 9:27

Rom 13:13; 1Thes 5:3; Is 24:17

Mt 22:33

Mk 14: 12-16

Mt 21:17; Jn 8:1

teach in the Temple; then he would leave the city and pass the night on the mount of Olives. ³⁸And early in the morning the people would come to the Temple to hear him.

The conspiracy against Jesus

(Mk 14:1; Mt 26:1)

Mt 26: 1-5; Mk 14: 1-2; Jn 11: 47-53; 20:19

22¹The feast of Unleavened Bread, which is called the Passover, was now drawing near, ²and the chief priests and the teachers of the Law wanted to kill Jesus. They were looking for a way to do this, because they were afraid of the people. ³Then Satan entered into Judas, called Iscariot, one of the Twelve, ⁴and he went off to discuss with the chief priests and the officers of the guard how to deliver Jesus to them. ⁵They were delighted and agreed to give him money; ⁶so he accepted, and from that time he waited for an opportunity to betray him without the people knowing.

4:13; Jn 13:2

Mt 26: 14-16; Mk 14: 10-11; Acts 4:1

• ⁷Then came the feast of the Unleavened Bread, in which the Passover lamb had to be sacrificed. ⁸So Jesus sent Peter and John, saying, "Go and get everything ready for us to eat the Passover meal." ⁹They asked him, "Where do you want us to prepare it?" ¹⁰And he said, "When you enter the city, a man will come to you carrying a jar of water. Follow him to the house he enters, ¹¹and say to the owner, 'The master asks: Where is the room where I may take the Passover meal with my disciples?'" ¹²He will show you a large, furnished room upstairs, and there you will prepare for us."

¹³Peter and John went off, and having found everything just as Jesus had told them, they prepared the Passover meal.

The supper of the Lord

(Mk 14:12; Mt 26:17)

• ¹⁴When the hour came, Jesus took his place at the table and the apostles with him. ¹⁵And he said to

Mt 26:20; Mk 14:17; 12:14

• 22.7 Where do you want us to prepare it? This was the first preoccupation of pilgrims to Jerusalem: finding a house where they could eat the sacrificed lamb.

A man will come to you. Usually women carry the water jars, and so it would be easy to identify a man with a water jar. Jesus knew that Judas was betraying him, and did not want to indicate the place of the supper ahead of time: he could have been apprehended there. So he trusted a prophetic intuition: the Father had designated the place for the last supper. It was, in fact, the home of a rich man, a disciple of Jesus in Jerusalem. This may have been the house where the apostles gathered after Jesus' death and where the Church started.

• 14. See commentary on Mark 14:12.

Jesus took his place at table, or rather as the Gospel says, "he reclined," as was the custom at banquets of the well to do: guests would recline on sofas around the table.

It is very difficult to know whether this last supper of Jesus started with the meal of the passover lamb and concluded with the eucharist, or whether Jesus only celebrated the eucharist, without having shared the passover meal. In any case, the Gospel intends to teach us that the eucharist will be for the Church what the passover meal was for the people of Israel.

They passed him a cup. The person presiding at the passover meal would take four cups which he would bless and which the participants would pass around.

I will not drink of the fruit of the vine (v. 18). Jesus recalled that, for the Jews, the passover meal was already an anticipated figure of the banquet of the Kingdom of God. On that night, the celebration took place for Jesus in a very special way.

This is my body. Is the consecrated bread the symbol of the body of Christ, or is it the body of Christ in fact? There have been great controversies between Catholics and Protestants about this. Catholics understand that the bread is really the body of Christ; Protestants maintain that the bread does not contain the physical presence of the body of Christ and look upon it as a mere symbol. Both have tried to come to a mutual understanding.

The faith of the Church states that the con-them, "I was eager to eat this Passover with you before I suffer; ¹⁶ for, I tell you, I shall not eat it again until it is fulfilled in the kingdom of God."

Mt 26: 17-19;

¹⁷ Then they passed him a cup, and when he had given thanks, he said, "Take this, and share it among yourselves; ¹⁸ for I tell you that, from now on, I will not drink of the fruit of the vine until the kingdom of God comes." ¹⁹ Jesus also took bread, and after giving thanks, he broke it and gave it to them, saying, "This is my body which is given for you. Do this in remembrance of me." ²⁰ And after the supper, he did the same with the cup, saying, "This cup is the new covenant, sealed in my blood, which is poured out for you."

²¹ Yet the hand of the traitor is with me on the table. ²² Know that the Son of Man is going the way marked out for him. But alas for that one who betrays him!" ²³ They began to ask one another which of them could do such a thing.

Last conversation with Jesus

(Mk 10:42; Jn 13:1)

• ²⁴ They also began to argue among themselves which of them should be considered the most important. ²⁵ And Jesus said, "The kings of the pagan nations rule over them as lords, and the most hard-hearted rulers claim the title, 'Gracious Lord.' ²⁶ But not so with you; let the greatest among you become as the youngest, and the leader as the servant. ²⁷ For who is the greatest, he who sits at the table or he who serves? He who is seated, isn't it? Yet I am among you as the one who serves."

²⁸ You are the ones who have been 9:46

Mt 20: 25-27;
Mk 10: 42-44

Mt 23:11

12:37;
Jn 13:
4-15

Jn 15:27;

Mt 26:29;
Mk 14:25Mt 26:
26-28;
Mk 14:
22-24;
1 Cor 11:
23-25;
Jn 6:31Jer
31:31;
24:8

Jn 13:21

17:1;
Acts 2:23

secrated bread is symbol and reality at the same time. The presence of the body of Christ is not symbolic but real, though not a material presence, as if we could say: "Jesus is here on the table." The body of Christ is present, but through the sacramental sign of bread and wine, and it is present inasmuch as it is signified. In communion we receive the body of the "risen" Christ (it is another reason to think that it is not a material presence, but rather of another type, no less real, but different) in order to receive from him strength and life. Though his presence to the believer in communion is a mysterious and intimate reality, the objective of the Eucharist is not to make Jesus more present, but to renew and strengthen the communion (fellowship) between Jesus and those who share in the table of the Lord, making us at the same time more conscious of his divine overwhelming presence.

My blood which is poured out for you. Jesus gives us the meaning of his death: he will be the Servant of Yahweh promised by Isaiah (53:12), who takes upon himself the sins of a multitude. That is why in Matthew and Mark Jesus says: My blood poured out for a multitude. Let us say that, for the Jews, a multitude, or the many, does not exclude anyone. However, this multitude refers first to the chosen people of Jesus: that is why we read here poured out for you, the same as in 1 Corinthians 11:24; Ephesians 5:25; John 17:19.

The new covenant: see commentary on Mark 14:12.

Do this in remembrance of me. With these words Jesus institutes the Eucharist as the church will celebrate it. In remembrance of me: not to remember a dead man. At the Passover the Jews remembered the intervention of God who had delivered them from Egypt; in the Eucharist, we remember the intervention of God who saved us through the sacrifice of his Son.

Some ancient manuscripts cut verse 19 after "This is my body," and omit verse 20 perhaps thinking that these verses were a repetition of verses 17-18.

• 24. After the narrative of the Last Supper (Mk 14:12), Luke brings out some memories of the conversation with which Jesus took leave of his apostles. Here he shows Jesus as alone and misunderstood by his own apostles on the eve of his death. They have not learned anything in so many months and at the end of the Last Supper, they only express their all-too-human concerns.

The apostles were vying for the first place in the Kingdom: what concept, then, did they still have of the Kingdom? During the supper

Rev 2: 26-28 with me, and stood by me, through my troubles; ²⁹because of this, just as the kingship has been given to me by my Father, so I give it to you.

Mt 19:28; 1Cor 6:2; Rev 20:4 ³⁰You will eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, and you will sit on thrones and govern the twelve tribes of Israel.

24:34; 1Cor 15:5; Mt 16:16 ³¹Simon, Simon, Satan has demanded to sift you like grain, ³²but I have prayed for you that your faith may not fail. And when you have recovered, you shall strengthen your brothers.” ³³Then Peter said, “Lord, with you I am ready to go even to prison and death.” ³⁴But Jesus replied, “I tell you, Peter, the cock will not crow this day before you have denied three times that you know me.”

10:4 ³⁵Jesus also said to them, “When I sent you without purse or bag or sandals, were you short of anything?” They answered, “No.” ³⁶And Jesus said to them, “But now, the one who has a purse must take it, and a bag as well. And if anyone is without a sword, let him sell his cloak to buy one. ³⁷For Scriptures says: He was numbered among criminals. These words have to be fulfilled in me, and now everything written about me is taking place.

³⁸Then they said, “See, Lord, here are two swords!” but he answered, “That is enough.”

Gethsemane

(Mk 14:32)

• ³⁹After this, Jesus left to go as usual to the Mount of Olives, and the disciples followed him. ⁴⁰When he came to the place, he told them, “Pray that you may not be put to the test.”

⁴¹Then he went a little further, about a stone’s throw, and kneeling down he prayed, ⁴²“Father, if it is your will, remove this cup from me; however, not my will but yours be done.” ⁴³And an angel from heaven appeared to give him strength.

⁴⁴As he was in agony, he prayed even more earnestly, and great drops of blood formed like sweat and fell to the ground. ⁴⁵When he rose from

Is 53:12;
Acts
8:32;
Lk 23:32

Mt 26:
30, 36-46;
Mk 14:
26, 32-42;
Lk 21:37

11:4

1K 19:5;
Mt 4:11;
Jn 12:9

Jesus had acted as the servant of the house (Jn 13:1).

Jesus does not get discouraged when he sees that the apostles are out of touch with his thoughts and desires, even when time is coming to an end for him. He has surrendered his life and his work to the Father: if he has seemingly failed, he knows that after his death his work will rise to new life along with him, and so he confirms his promises to his apostles.

You will sit... (v. 30). How hard it is for us to understand Jesus’ faithfulness to his own people. All that is his, he shares with those who have committed themselves to his work. The twelve tribes of Israel means the entire people of God. With this, Jesus designates all of us who come from many nations to accept the faith of the apostles. Peter believes that since he is the head, he will be stronger than the others. Jesus, on the other hand, sees Peter’s future mission, and in spite of his fall, wills to give him a special grace, so that he will be able to strengthen the rest. Such is Jesus’ way of doing things: he saves what was lost and, having seen the incurable weakness of human nature in Peter, he uses him to give the Church a stability to which no other human society can aspire. Indeed, the continuity of the Church through the centuries is, in part, due to the popes, Peter’s successors.

At the end, Jesus uses some images to indicate that the crisis foretold so many times is at hand: the apostles do not really understand and they look for swords.

• 39. It appears that Jesus celebrated the Passover in a house at the southwest of the old town of Jerusalem. He went down the stepped street to what had been the stream of Tyropeon, went up the Ophel area, the old city of David, to go down to the Kidron torrent, almost always devoid of water. From there he must have taken a path to go up to the Mount of Olives. It was called that because its western slopes were covered with olive trees. Jesus went to a garden called Gethsemane, or “olive prayer, he went to his disciples, but found them worn out with grief, and asleep. ⁴⁶And he said to them, “Why do you sleep? Get up and pray, so that you may not be put to the test.”

⁴⁷Jesus was still speaking when a group appeared, and the man named Judas, one of the Twelve, was leading them. He drew near to Jesus to kiss him, ⁴⁸and Jesus said to him, “Judas, with a kiss do you betray the Son of Man?”

⁴⁹Those with Jesus, seeing what would happen, said to him, “Master, shall we use the sword?” ⁵⁰And one of them struck the High Priest’s servant and cut off his right ear. ⁵¹But Jesus stopped him, “No more of this!” He touched the man’s ear and healed him.

⁵²Then Jesus spoke to those coming against him, the chief priests, officers of the Temple and elders; and he said to them, “Did you really set out against a robber? Do you need swords and clubs to arrest me? ⁵³Day after day I was among you, teaching in the Temple, and you did not arrest me. But this is the hour of the power of darkness; this is your hour.”

The trial of Jesus, Peter’s denial

(Mk 14:53; Mt 26:57)

• ⁵⁴Then they seized him and took him away, bringing him to the High Priest’s house. Peter followed at a distance.

⁵⁵A fire was kindled in the middle of the courtyard where people were gathered, and Peter sat among them. ⁵⁶A maidservant noticed him. Looking at him intently in the light of the fire, she exclaimed, “This man also was with him!” ⁵⁷But he denied it, saying, “Woman, I do not know him.”

⁵⁸A little later someone who saw him said, “You are also one of them!” Peter replied, “My friend, I am not!” ⁵⁹After about an hour another asserted, “Surely this man was with him, for he is a Galilean.”

⁶⁰Again Peter denied, “My friend, I don’t know what you are talking about.” He had not finished saying

Mt 26:
47-56;
Mk 14:
43-50;
Jn 18:
3-11

Mt 26:
69-75;
Mk 14:
66-72;
Jn 18: 15...27

19:47;
21:37

press.” This land may have belonged to one of the disciples of Jesus, since he went there many times (Jn 18:2).

He was in agony. Jesus certainly has felt, just as we have—and perhaps even more acutely—the horror of death. But he must also have been assailed by a despairing vision of the world of sin due to the presence of the all-holy Father. Should we want to understand something of what took place in those moments, we must learn about the testimonies of the great saints who, in their own way, also experienced this extremely difficult test.

Some of the ancient manuscripts of the Gospel do not have verses 43 and 44: probably they were taken out because many people were scandalized by this “weakness” of Christ.

An angel from heaven. At times the Bible speaks of an angel to indicate that God intervened in a mysterious way, by encouraging, teaching or punishing. . . This angel reminds us of the one who came to encourage Elijah (1 K 19:4). We must understand that God wished to give Jesus a special help to be able to endure this exceptional trial. There again we need the witness of the saints to understand better.

Drops of blood formed like sweat. This is a symptom understood by doctors, due both to anxiety and suffering.

The hour and the form of Jesus’ arrest were suited to evildoers driven by the Power of darkness. There are times when all hope and justice have apparently disappeared from the earth.

• 54. WHY DID THEY KILL HIM?

Regarding the two trials of Jesus, one religious, the other political, see commentary on Mark 14:53.

Jesus’ trial and condemnation to death were not very different from what happens to many Christian militants and martyrs. Merely preferring relationships with the poor and educating simple people so they can be free and responsible does not constitute a crime in any country, and yet, throughout the centuries, it has been enough to bring persecution onto many persons. We have already mentioned that Jesus preached in extremely difficult circumthis, when a cock crowed. ⁶¹The Lord turned around and looked at Peter, and Peter remembered the word that the Lord had spoken, “Before the cock crows, you will deny me three times.” ⁶²Peter went outside, weeping bitterly.

⁶³And the guards, who had arrested Jesus, mocked and beat him.

⁶⁴They blindfolded him, struck him, and then asked, “Who hit you? Tell us, prophet!” ⁶⁵And they hurled many other insulting words at him.

⁶⁶At daybreak, the council of the elders of the people, among whom were the chief priests and the scribes, assembled again. Then they had Jesus brought before them, and they began questioning him, ⁶⁷“Tell us, are you the Christ?” Jesus replied, “You will not believe, if I tell you, ⁶⁸and neither will you answer, if I ask you. ⁶⁹Yet, from now on, the Son of Man will have his seat at the right hand of the Mighty God.”

Mt 26:
67-68;
Mk
14:65

Mt 26:
57-66;
Mk 14:
53-64

Jn 10:
24-25

Ps 110:1;
Acts 2:36

⁷⁰In chorus they asked, “So you are the Son of God?” And Jesus said to them, “You are right, I am.”

⁷¹Then they said, “What need have we of witnesses? We have heard it from his own lips.”

Mt 27:2,
11-14;
Mk 15: 1-5;

Jn 18: 29-38

Acts 17:7

Jesus before Pilate

(Mt 27:11; Mk 15:1; Jn 18:28)

23 ¹The whole council rose and brought Jesus to Pilate. ²They gave their accusation: “We found this man subverting our nation, opposing payment of taxes to Caesar, and claiming to be Christ the king.”

³Pilate asked Jesus, “Are you the King of the Jews?” Jesus replied, “You said so.” ⁴Turning to the chief priests and the crowd, Pilate said, “I find no basis for a case against this man.” ⁵But they insisted, “All the country of the Jews is being stirred up with his teaching. He began in Galilee and now he has come all the way here.”

⁶When Pilate heard this, he asked if the man was a Galilean. ⁷Finding the accused to come under Herod’s jurisdiction, Pilate sent Jesus over to Herod who happened to be in Jerusalem at that time.

⁸Herod was delighted to have Jesus before him now; for a long time he had wanted to see him because of the reports about him, and he was hoping to see Jesus work some miracle. ⁹He piled up question upon question, but got no reply from Jesus.

¹⁰All the while the chief priests and the scribes remained standing there, vehemently pressing their accusations. ¹¹Finally, Herod ridiculed him and with his guards mocked him. And when he had put a rich cloak on him, he sent him back to Pilate. ¹²Pilate and Herod, who were enemies before, became friends from that day.

Acts
3:13;
13:28

9:9

Acts 4:27

stances, since his nation was under the law of the Roman occupants, and any liberating message smacked of subversion.

Undoubtedly, those who condemned Jesus had plenty of reasons to hate him. However, the Gospel records that the accusations focused on the key points of his teaching. They condemned Jesus because he claimed to be divine: the Christ, the Son of God, the one who will sit at the right hand of God.

The chief priests of the time belonged to wealthy families who fought for their positions because it gave access to temple money.

Annas and his sons (and his son-in-law Caiaphas) are known to have acted with utter shamelessness, silencing protests with the sticks of their guards, who formed an illegal militia. Here, they appear with the leaders of the Jews, or the Elders, who belong to the richest families.

• 23.1 Pilate does not want to condemn Jesus, partly because he hates Jewish priests, and so he sends Jesus to Herod. By putting a white robe on Jesus, Herod treats him as a madman pretending to be a king.

Mt 27:
15-26;
Mk 15: 6-15;
Jn
18:38—
19:16

¹³Pilate then called together the chief priests and the elders and the people, ¹⁴and said to them, “You have brought this man before me and accused him of subversion. In your presence I have examined him and found no basis for your charges; ¹⁵and neither has Herod, for he sent him back to me. It is quite clear that this man has done nothing that deserves a death sentence. ¹⁶I will therefore have him scourged and then release him.” (¹⁷On the Pass-over Pilate had to release a prisoner.)

- ¹⁸Shouting as one man, they protested, “No! Away with this man! Release Barabbas instead!” ¹⁹This man had been thrown into prison for an uprising in the city and for murder.

²⁰Since Pilate wanted to release Jesus, he appealed to the crowd once more, ²¹but they shouted back, “To the cross with him! To the cross!” ²²A third time Pilate said to them, “Why, what evil has he done? Since no crime deserving death has been proved, I shall have him scourged and let him go.”

²³But they went on shouting and demanding that Jesus be crucified, and their shouts grew louder. ²⁴So Pilate decided to pass the sentence they demanded. ²⁵He released the man they asked for, the one who was in prison for rebellion and murder, and he handed over Jesus in accordance with their wishes.

The way of Calvary

(Mt 27:32; Mk 15:16)

²⁶When they led Jesus away, they seized Simon of Cyrene, who was coming in from the fields, and laid the cross on him, to carry it behind Jesus.

- ²⁷A large crowd of people followed him; among them were women, beating their breasts and grieving for him, ²⁸but Jesus turned to them and said, “Women of Jerusalem, do not weep for me! Weep rather for yourselves and for your children, ²⁹for the days are coming when people will say, ‘Happy are the women without child! Happy are those who have not given birth or nursed a child!’ ³⁰And they will say to the mountains, ‘Fall on us!’ and to the hills, ‘Cover us!’ ³¹For if this is the lot of the green wood, what will happen to the dry?”

³²Along with Jesus, two criminals also were led out to be executed. ³³There, at the place called the Skull, he was crucified together with two

Mt 27:
31-43;
Mk 15:
20-32;
Jn 19:
17-24;
Lk 9:23;
14:27

Zec
12:10

Hos 10:8

Ezk 21:3;
Lk 6:43;
Heb 6:8

They became friends from that day on, because, in spite of the fact that they were so different, they realized that they belonged to the same class of people with power to play with the lives of common people.

- 18. Barabbas may have been one of those terrorists harassing the Roman oppressors. The chief priests who wanted to have peace with the Romans hated these people. Yet the chief priests persuaded the people to ask for the release of Barabbas. Even though they hated those priests, the people listened to them. With that, Pilate’s plan (he wanted to release Jesus) failed.

- 27. What will happen to the dry wood?

(v. 31). Jesus taught that the sacrifice which is accepted is fruitful: but at the same time he mourns the unnecessary sufferings of a people who have let the opportunity pass them by, and who will be destroyed through their own fault.

These words are also meant for all those who make the blood of Christ useless for themselves.

A large crowd followed him, especially women... Luke is the only evangelist reflecting this compassionate attitude. Contrary to Matthew who insists on the guilt of the Jewish people, Luke wants to point out that Jesus’ condemnation moved many people. Jesus’ words recall what he already said about the destruction of the Jewish nation (Mk 13).

criminals—one on his right and another on his left. (³⁴Jesus said, “Father, forgive them, for they do not know what they are doing.”) And the guards cast lots to divide his clothes among themselves.

Acts 3:17;
7:60

³⁵The people stood by, watching. As for the rulers, they jeered at him, saying to one another, “Let the man who saved others now save himself, for he is the Messiah, the chosen one of God!”

Ps 22:8;
Is 49:7;
Lk 9:35

³⁶The soldiers also mocked him and, when they drew near to offer him bitter wine, ³⁷they said, “So you are the king of the Jews? Free yourself!” ³⁸Above Jesus there was an inscription in Greek, Latin and Hebrew, which read, “This is the King of the Jews.”

Ps 69:22

• ³⁹One of the criminals hanging with Jesus insulted him, “So you are the Messiah? Save yourself, and us as well!” ⁴⁰But the other rebuked him, saying, “Have you no fear of God, you who received the same sentence as he did? ⁴¹For us it is just: this is payment for what we have done. But this man has done nothing wrong.” ⁴²And he said, “Jesus, remember me, when you come into your kingdom.” ⁴³Jesus replied, “Truly, you will be with me today in paradise.”

Mt 27:
45-56;
Mk 15:
33-41;
Jn 19:
25-37;
10:22

⁴⁴It was almost midday. ⁴⁵The sun was hidden, and darkness came over the whole land until mid-afternoon; and, at that time, the curtain of the Sanctuary was torn in two. ⁴⁶Then Jesus gave a loud cry, “Father, into your hands I commend my spirit.” And saying that, he gave up his spirit.

Ps 31:6

⁴⁷The captain, on seeing what had happened, acknowledged the hand of God. “Surely this was an upright man!” he said. ⁴⁸And all the people who had gathered to watch the spectacle, as soon as they saw what had happened, went home beating their breasts. ⁴⁹But those who knew Jesus remained there, at a distance, especially the women, who had followed him from Galilee; they witnessed all this.

Acts 3:14

⁵⁰Then intervened a member of the Jewish supreme council, a good and righteous man named Joseph, ⁵¹from the Judean town of Arimathea. He had not agreed with the decision and action of his fellow members, and he lived uprightly in the hope of seeing the kingdom of God. ⁵²Joseph went to Pilate and asked for Jesus’ body. ⁵³He then took it down, wrapped it in a linen cloth, and laid it in a yet unused tomb, cut out of a rock.

Mt 27:
57-61;
Mk 15:
42-47;
Jn 19:
38-42

⁵⁴It was Preparation Day, and the star which marks the beginning of the Sabbath was shining. ⁵⁵So the women, who had come with Jesus from Galilee, followed Joseph to see

• 39. The leaders of the Jews have put Jesus where he belongs, since he decided to take our sins upon himself. The two men look at the one who has come to share their destiny.

You will be in paradise (v. 43). What is paradise? We lack adequate words to express what lies beyond. In Jesus’ time, the Jews used to compare the Place of the Dead to a huge country divided up into regions separated by insurmountable barriers. Hell was one of the regions; it was reserved for the wicked, from there no one could escape. Another region was Paradise where the good people would be with the first ancestors of holy people, awaiting the moment of resurrection.

You will be with me, says Jesus, that is with the Savior, who for a day and a half was in the peace and joy of God, before the resurrection. This statement puts us at ease as to our own destiny at death, although we cannot know what will become of us before the Resurrection. We will not be anesthetized, nor will we cease to exist, as some claim, but we will rather possess everything, being with Jesus who came to share death and his brothers’ and sisters’ rest (see Phil 1:23 and Rev 14:13).

the tomb, and how his body was laid.⁵⁶ And returning home, they prepared perfumes and ointments. And on the Sabbath day they rested, as the Law required.

The Lord has risen

(Mk 16:1; Mt 28:1; Jn 20:1)

Mt 28: 1-8;
Mk 16: 1-8;
Jn 20:
1-2

24¹ On the sabbath the women rested according to the commandment, but the first day of the week, at dawn, they went to the tomb with the perfumes and ointments they had prepared.² Seeing the stone rolled away from the opening of the tomb,³ they entered, and were amazed to find that the body of the Lord Jesus was not there.

⁴ As they stood there wondering about this, two men in dazzling garments suddenly appeared beside them.⁵ In fright the women bowed to the ground. But the men said, “Why look for the living among the dead?⁶ You won’t find him here. He is risen. Remember what he told you in Galilee,⁷ that the Son of Man had to be given into the hands of sinners, be crucified, and to rise on the third day.”⁸ And they remembered Jesus’ words.

⁹ Returning from the tomb, they told the Eleven and all the others about these things.¹⁰ Among the women, who brought the news, were Mary Magdalene, Joanna, and Mary the mother of James.¹¹ But however much they insisted, those who heard did not believe the seemingly nonsensical story.¹² Then Peter got up and ran to the tomb. All he saw, when he bent down and looked into the tomb, were the linen cloths, laid by themselves. He went home wondering.

Mt 28:
10, 17;
Mk 16:
10...14;
Jn 20:
18...29;
Lk 8:2

Jn 20: 3-12

The road to Emmaus

(Mk 16:12)

¹³ That same day, two followers of Jesus were going to Emmaus, a village seven miles from Jerusalem,¹⁴ and they talked about what had happened.¹⁵ While they were talking and arguing what had happened,

Mt 16:
12-13

• 24.1 The Lord Jesus: with this expression, not found in the rest of the Gospel but very much in use in the early church, Luke shows us that the Risen Jesus has entered a kind of existence which is different from that of his mortal life. Let us remember the following:

1) None of the Gospels describe the Resurrection of Jesus: it was an event that could not be seen.

2) The apostles’ preaching about the risen Jesus is based on two facts: the empty tomb and the appearances (see commentary on Mt 28:1).

3) Before the Gospels were written, Paul’s first letter to the Corinthians, in the year 57, gave a list of Jesus’ appearances (1 Cor 15:3).

4) Although the four Gospels agree on the essentials, there are, nevertheless, differences as to the order of the appearances and the place where they occurred. Luke does not mention appearances in Galilee. Matthew gives the impression that all that was important took place in Galilee, and that the Ascension took place there as well. Paul speaks first of an appearance to Peter and does not mention the appearance to Mary Magdalen. An in-depth study of the texts sheds some light on these discrepancies: they did not want to reveal everything, and at times preferred to modify details of the place or the chronology to fit the demands of their book and for the purpose of teaching.

5) As for Jesus’ ascension, it was not a “trip” to heaven; he was already “in heaven,” in the sense that he shared the glory of God from the moment of his Resurrection. The Ascension is simply the last of his appearances (see commentary on Acts 1:9).

• 13. We notice on this page of the Gospel how carefully Luke uses in turn the verbs: see and recognize. The evangelist, in fact, wishes to show us that after his resurrection Jesus can no longer be “seen” with the eyes of the body; he had gone from this world to the Father, and this new world evades our senses. It is only with new vision, this light of faith that we “recognize” him present and active in us and

Jn 20:14

Jesus came up and walked with them, ¹⁶but their eyes were not able to recognize him.

¹⁷He asked, "What is it you are talking about?" The two stood still, looking sad. ¹⁸Then the one named Cleophas answered, "Why, it seems you are the only traveler to Jerusalem who doesn't know what has happened there these past few days." ¹⁹And he asked, "What is it?"

They replied, "It is about Jesus of Nazareth. He was a prophet, you know, mighty in word and deed before God and the people. ²⁰But the chief priests and our rulers sentenced him to death. They handed him over to be crucified. ²¹We had hoped that he would redeem Israel.

It is now the third day since all this took place. ²²It is also true that some women of our group have disturbed us. When they went to the tomb at dawn, ²³they did not find his body; and they came and told us that they had had a vision of angels, who said that Jesus was alive. ²⁴Some of our people went to the tomb and found everything just as the women had said, but they did not find a body in the tomb."

²⁵He said to them, "How dull you are, how slow of understanding! Is the message of the prophets too difficult for you to understand? ²⁶Is it around us. If the history of the Church records a number of exceptional apparitions of the risen Jesus, the faithful are invited to "recognize" him through faith.

18:31;
Acts 3:24

These two disciples were merely going home to return to their work, after their hopes had been crushed. We are accustomed to call them the pilgrims of Emmaus.

The Jewish people, the people of Israel, were pilgrim people because they never had the possibility of lingering on the way. The departure from Egypt, the conquest of the Land, the fights against invaders, the development of religious culture were many stages along the way. Each time they thought that in reaching their goal, their problems would be solved, and each time they had to realize that the road was taking them still further.

Cleophas and his companion were pilgrims since they followed Jesus, thinking that he would redeem Israel. In the end, there was only the death of Jesus. This is the moment when Jesus becomes present and teaches them that one does not enter the Kingdom without passing through death.

They recognized him (v. 31). Perhaps Jesus looked different as we see in John 20:14. This is what Mark says in 16:12. Luke also wants us to understand that the same people, whose eyes could not recognize Jesus, will see him when they come to believe.

Starting with Moses and going through the prophets (v. 27). Remember that "Moses and the prophets" is a way of designating Scripture. Jesus invites them to pass from Israel's faith or hope in a happy future for the whole nation, to faith in his very person, accepting the mystery of his rejection and of his Passion.

Everything in Scripture concerning himself (v. 27). In his first biblical lesson, Jesus taught them that the Messiah had to suffer. Jesus not only found all the texts which foretold his Passion and Resurrection such as Isaiah 50; Isaiah 52:13; Zechariah 12:11; Psalm 22; Psalm 69; but also those texts showing that God's plan filters human history.

Something similar happens to believers now when we often complain and show our impatience. Yet Jesus did not leave us alone. He has not risen in order to sit in heaven; he is ahead of humanity on pilgrimage and draws us toward that final day when he will come to meet us.

At the same time he walks with us, and when our hopes are dashed, it is the moment when we discover the meaning of the Resurrection.

Thus the Church does for us what Jesus did for the two disciples. First, it gives us the 'interpretation of Scripture': what matters in our efforts to understand the Bible is not to know many passages by heart, but to discover the thread connecting various events and to understand God's plan concerning people.

Then, the Church also celebrates the Eucharist. Notice how Luke says: he took bread, said a blessing, broke it and gave it; these same four words were used among believers to speak of the Eucharist. We can come close to Jesus in conversation and meditating on his word; we find him present in our fraternal not written that the Christ should suffer all this, and then enter his glory?”

^{1P 1:11} ²⁷Then starting with Moses, and going through the prophets, he explained to them everything in the Scriptures concerning himself.

²⁸As they drew near the village they were heading for, Jesus made as if to go farther. ²⁹But they prevailed upon him, “Stay with us, for night comes quickly. The day is now almost over.” So he went in to stay with them. ³⁰When they were at table, he took the bread, said a blessing, broke it, and gave each a piece.

³¹Then their eyes were opened, and they recognized him; but he vanished out of their sight. ³²And they said to one another, “Were not our hearts filled with ardent yearning when he was talking to us on the road and explaining the Scriptures?”

³³They immediately set out and returned to Jerusalem. There they found the Eleven and their companions gathered together. ³⁴They were greeted by these words: “Yes, it is true, the Lord is risen! He has appeared to Simon!” ³⁵Then the two told what had happened on the road to Emmaus, and how Jesus had made himself known, when he broke bread with them.

Jesus appears to the apostles

(Jn 20:19)

• ³⁶While they were still talking about this, Jesus himself stood in their midst. (He said to them, “Peace to you.”) ³⁷In their panic and fright they thought they were seeing a ghost, ³⁸but he said to them, “Why are you upset, and how does such an idea cross your minds? ³⁹Look at my hands and feet, and see that it is I myself! Touch me, and see for yourselves, for a ghost has no flesh and bones as I have!” ⁴⁰(As he said this, he showed his hands and feet.)

⁴¹In their joy they didn’t dare believe, and were still astonished; so he said to them, “Have you anything to eat?” ⁴²And they gave him a piece of broiled fish. ⁴³He took it, and ate it before them.

Jn 20:
19-23

Jn 21:5

Jn 21:
10, 13

meetings, but he makes himself known in a different way when we share the bread that is his body.

Cleophas (v. 18): the husband of Mary, mother of James and Joset (see Jn 19:25 and Mk 15:40).

• 36. Jesus was reborn to a glorious life from the day of his resurrection. He was already ‘in the Father’s glory,’ but wanted to be with his disciples on various occasions in order to convince them that his new condition was not a lesser life, or something ghostly, but rather a super life.

In this chapter we put in parentheses some words or sentences that do not appear in many ancient manuscripts and which perhaps have been added later.

• 44. Jesus uses these encounters to clarify the meaning of his brief and intense mission for his apostles. He saves us from sin, which means nothing less than reordering history to resurrect humankind.

Everything written about me in the Law of Moses, the Prophets and the Psalms had to be fulfilled. What the prophets announced, about a savior who would be rejected by his people and take the sin of his people upon himself, had to be fulfilled. What sin? Everyone’s sins, of course, but also the violence of the whole Jewish society at the time of Jesus. This was the sin that brought him to the cross.

As a matter of fact, this way of death and resurrection was not reserved only for Jesus, but for his people also. In that precise period, Israel, subject to the Roman Empire, had to accept the death of its earthly ambitions: autonomy, national pride, the religious superiority of the Jews over other people... in order to rise as the people of God scattered among nations and to become the agent of salvation. A minority took the way Jesus pointed out and this was the beginning of the Church.

Repentance and forgiveness. Christian conversion is not passing from one party to another, from one religious group to another: it is a recasting of the person. Persons are part

Last instructions

• ⁴⁴Then Jesus said to them, “Remember the words I spoke to you when I was still with you: Everything written about me in the Law of Moses, in the Prophets and in the Psalms, must be fulfilled.” ⁴⁵Then he opened their minds to understand the Scriptures.

And he said, ⁴⁶“So it was written: the Messiah had to suffer, and on the third day rise from the dead. ⁴⁷Then repentance and forgiveness in his name would be proclaimed to all the nations, beginning from Jerusalem. ⁴⁸And you are witnesses to these things. ⁴⁹And that is why I will send you what my Father promised. So remain in the city until you are clothed with power from above.”

⁵⁰Jesus led them almost as far as Bethany; then he lifted up his hands and blessed them. ⁵¹And as he blessed them, he withdrew, and was taken to heaven. ⁵²They worshipped him, and then returned to Jerusalem full of joy; ⁵³and they were continually in the Temple, praising God.

Acts 1:8

Acts 1:4

Mk 16:19;
Acts 1:
9, 12

of a society, a world, a history. Therefore the preaching to the nations means also the education of the nations and even international society. This is something that takes longer than ten or a hundred years.

You shall be witnesses to this (v. 48). Jesus calls his apostles to be the official witnesses of his Gospel and those who judge authentic faith.

Remain in the city. The apostles are not able to begin immediately missionary work. They will first dedicate themselves to strengthening fellowship and the fervor of the community of the disciples, as they wait for the time chosen by the Father to give them the power coming from above.

I will send you what my Father promised. Jesus could not affirm his divine authority and the unity of the three divine persons more powerfully.

He withdrew: this was the last of Jesus' appearances to the group of disciples.

And so concludes Luke's first book. His second book, The Acts of the Apostles, follows the Gospels and it begins exactly where this Gospel ends.

PAGE 1530 – BLANK

JOHN

This fourth Gospel unfolds in a different setting than the other three. To start with, while Jesus' activity in Galilee occupied a major part of the Synoptics, the fourth Gospel does not say much about it. It deals with what Jesus did between his baptism by John and his return to Galilee (Jn 1-3) and after that, almost everything takes place in Jerusalem. There, within the framework of the pilgrimage feasts, our author observes the mounting conflicts between Jesus and Jewish authorities. He seems to be at home, aware of what is going on behind the scenes of power, namely among the priests.

The difference of tone is even more important. Whether John is dealing with scenes or miracles of Jesus or with the discourses that accompany them, everything bears the seal of a personal eyewitness. This is especially true for the discourses that the evangelist builds upon authentic words of Jesus, but thanks to John's prophetic gift, he is able to develop the intentions of Jesus and the deep meaning of his words and gestures. He does not hide his purpose from us: These are recorded so that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God (Jn 20:31). His discourses reaffirm the incredible promises of Jesus to those who believe in him, promises that for John became a reality.

The Gospel of John proclaims the existence of the Son of God from all eternity, and this light on the origin of Jesus immediately enlightens the scope of his work. Jesus, the eternal Son of God who became man, did not come just to teach us to be better but he came to transform creation.

This gospel seems to have accompanied John throughout his life. He reworked it several times. A small paragraph added at the end suggests that the gospel was published after the death of its author, about the year 95.

Is John the author of the gospel that bears his name?

John's message is so clear that it sets us on fire. Telling us that the one who marked him forever, the one he loved and who loved him, was the eternal Word of God... is really an astounding statement. Some would prefer someone else, not an eyewitness, to have written the gospel. It could have been some theologian who might have more readily idealized Jesus because from a distance, he would not have had all the evidence of his human presence, his way of looking, eating and the smell of his sweat...

This explains, for the most part, the countless hypotheses that have been built up for a century to attribute this Gospel to a theologian from the second generation after Jesus. None of these have gathered convincing proofs.

However, we have to admit that there are many reasons to doubt that the author is John the apostle. The main reason is the following: Could John, the Galilean fisherman, have written the theological and mystical discourses proper of this gospel? Naturally, it is not impossible.

But, there is still more. The one who gave their final shape to the discourses, in the years 70-80, probably near Ephesus where an ancient tradition asserts that John had retired, is not only a theologian but he must also have been a priest (18:15).

The disciple whom Jesus loved

We have always thought that the fourteen mentions (2x7) of the disciple whom Jesus loved in the latter part of the Gospel referred to the author himself. Verse 21:24, added after his death, state it explicitly. This beloved disciple was identified with John the apostle, the brother of James and the son of Zebedee and he was thought to be the youngest of the Twelve. But what was actually known about it?

Zebedee the fisherman might have been a priest. However, the evangelist says nothing about part of the ministry of Jesus in Galilee, about the transfiguration... and even in 21:2, he appears to have been one of the two disciples (as in 1:35) and therefore, not the son of Zebedee.

It is only at the Last Supper that the author really enters into the gospel. We see him in the seat of honor, the seat that rightfully belonged to the host. Could he have been the owner who welcomed Jesus and his disciples (Lk 22:12)? And from then on, he could have accompanied Peter. He can venture to be at the foot of the cross while the Galilean group thought only about escaping from reprisal. Jesus entrusted Mary to him and a few moments later, he understood everything.

The indications that would allow to attribute this gospel to another John, a priest from Jerusalem and different from Zebedee's son are, then as numerous as the ones that give preference to the latter one and it is difficult to give preference to one of them. However, it is a very interesting clue that leads to many discoveries. Specifically, in chapter 19:31-37, the author of the gospel reports the precise event that so deeply moved him and gave him access to the mystery of Jesus. He really was a priest.

Composition of the Gospel of John

There have been many attempts to determine the structure of the Gospel of John. We present here a division in three great sessions. These all begin with the expression: the time/hour that appears three times.

It is also important to bear in mind the frequency of Jewish feasts. The Passover appears three times, and then a "feast", the Tents, the Dedication of the Temple.

Prologue: The first week: 1:1-2:11.

First Part: The presentation of God's gift: 2:12-6:71.

Second Part: Rejection of the world and homicidal attempts: 7:1 - 12:50.

Third Part: Jesus completes his work bringing to perfection the love for his people:
Chapters 13-20.

Conclusion: The author's purpose: 20:30-31.

Epilog: Until his return.

The Word became a human

Gen 1:1-5; 1Jn 1:1-2; Rev 19:13
 Phil 2:6
 Col 1:16; Heb 1:2; Wis 9:1; Pro 8:22
 1Cor 8:6; 1Jn 2:8; 1Thes 5:4
 1Jn 2:9
 Mt 3:1
 3:19; 8:12; 14:26
 14:17; 17:25
 11

1^{*} In the beginning was the Word. And the Word was with God and the Word was God; ²he was in the beginning with God. ³All things were made through him, and without him nothing came to be. Whatever has come to be, ⁴found life in him; life, which for human beings, was also light, ⁵light that shines in darkness, light that darkness could not overcome. ⁶A man came, sent by God; his name was John. ⁷He came to bear witness, as a witness to introduce the Light, so that all might believe through him. ⁸He was not the Light, but a witness to introduce the Light; ⁹for the Light was coming into the world, the true Light that enlightens everyone. ¹⁰He was in the world, and through him the world was made, the very world that did not know him. ¹¹He came to his own, yet his own people did not receive him; ¹²but to all who received him he empowers to become children of God, for they believe in his Name. ¹³These are born, but not by seed, nor carnal desire, nor by the will of man: they are born of God. ¹⁴And the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us; and we have seen his glory, the glory of the only Son of the Father: fullness of truth and loving-kindness. ¹⁵John bore witness to him openly, saying, "This is the one who comes after me, but he is already ahead of me, for he was before me." ¹⁶From his fullness we have all received, favor upon favor. ¹⁷For God had given us the Law through Moses, but Truth and Loving-kindness came through Jesus Christ. ¹⁸No one has ever seen God, but God-the-only-Son made him known: the one, who is in and with the Father.

Gal 3:26; 1Jn 5:13
 3:5; Jas 1:18; 1Jn 5:18
 Rom 1:3; Gal 4:4; 1Tim 3:16; Heb 2:14; 1Jn 4:2; Rev 21:3; 25:8; Dt 4:7; Bar 4:1; 37:27; 34:6; Ps 89:2; Hos 2:21
 1:27; Mt 3:11
 3:34; Col 2:9
 31:18; Rom 6:14; Jn 7:19; 10:4
 5:37; 6:46; 33:20; 1Tim 1:17; 6:16; 1Jn 4:12; Mt 11:27

• 1.1 In the beginning was the Word. The real beginning is not the creation of the universe. For this beginning of time, space, matter, existence explains nothing yet demands an explanation. The real beginning is beyond time. John does not say that at this beginning "God was" because we know it. He speaks of the Word. We keep this traditional term word, although the term word that John uses says more than "word." It is both "thought" and "word", which is the word expressing what one carries in oneself. We ought perhaps translate with: The "Expression" of God. To speak of this Word, or Expression of the Father, or to speak of his Son, is the same thing. In other pages he will be called Splendor (Heb 1:1) and Image (Col 1:15) of the Father. The Son is not part of the Father, or another God since he has nothing that is of himself but all which is the Father's is also his (Jn 16:15). John will remind us that no one has ever seen God (v. 18). The Father from whom existence comes and all that exists is without beginning and his springing forth is known only to himself. John tells us here that for him, "being," is communicating himself, expressing himself, giving himself. God expresses himself in him who is at the same time his Word and his Son and through this uncreated, unique Word, which fully expresses him; he creates a universe that is yet another way of saying what is in God. This is still not enough to satisfy the need of God to communicate himself. As several texts of the Old Testament have already said (Pro 8:22 and 31, 2 S 7:2-30), God has entered through his Word into the history of hu-

FIRST PART: JESUS REVEALS HIMSELF THROUGH SIGNS

John the Baptist presents Jesus, the Lamb of God

Lk 3:3

3:28;
Acts
13:25

•¹⁹This was the testimony of John, when the Jews sent priests and Levites to ask him, “Who are you?”²⁰ John recognized the truth, mankind. It was he who was “spoken” of in their own way by all who carried the Word, all the prophets of the Bible and those of other religions as well. The Word enlightened all human beings, including those who did not know God; he was the conscience of the upright in every race, in every age. This Word, Son and Expression of the Father came one day to give us the definitive word by means of his own existence in becoming human among us.

Whatever has come to be, found life in him (v. 4). It is a property of life to develop from within until maturity is reached. This growth is to be seen throughout history in all the work of the Word; it is the language of God that develops among humankind. Whether we study the history of our race from its origins, or whether we read the Old Testament, we see how the language of God has been developed among humans. It always was a human language, but this language was inhabited by the Spirit of God, and in a special way within the history of Israel, it was also the word of God. We shall find this living word in him who is the Son-made-human, Jesus, but in a way that disconcerts us. For there is the mystery about the Son: it is true that he is God like the Father, but having received all, he is in a posture of offering: he empties himself so that the Father may exalt and glorify him anew.

A man came, sent by God. Twice in verses 6-8 and 15, John, the author of the Gospel, speaks to us of John the Baptist, precursor of Jesus. The Word has truly identified himself: he has not come with glory; he was introduced by a word which came from himself, but remained human in John’s preaching. It was easy to reject this witness and in fact when he came to his own, to the people of Israel, his own did not receive him.

The Word was made flesh. John uses the word flesh to underline the utter humility of God who, despite being spirit, became a creature with a mortal body. John says: was made, and not: “took the appearance” of a human person, because the Son of God was truly human.

and did not deny it. He said, “I am not the Messiah.”

²¹ And they asked him, “Then who are you? Elijah?” He answered, “I am not.” They said, “Are you the Prophet?” And he answered, “No.”²² Then

Mal 3:23;
Mt 11:14;
17:10;
Dt 18:15

God become human dwelt among us. The root sense of this verb “dwell” in the Bible is: to have one’s tent pitched. So John is pleased to allude to the sacred tent that served as the Hebrews’ sanctuary in the desert: in that tent, God was present beside them (Ex 33:7-11). In reality Jesus, the Son of God become human, is the true Temple of God among people (Jn 2:21), a temple as humble and apparently fragile as the tent in the desert was: nevertheless, in him is the fullness of God. The apostles saw his glory at certain moments of his mortal life (Jn 2:11 and Lk 9:32). They saw his glory in his Passion and Resurrection.

How does the Word save us? John does not speak only of Jesus rescuing us from the abyss of sin; he prefers to speak of Jesus allowing us to attain a status totally unexpected and beyond our reach: he made them children of God. We are made children of God by the very Son of the Father, provided that we believe in his Name, which is in his divine personality.

In him was the fullness of Love and Truth (v. 14). Love (or Grace) and Truth (or Faithfulness) are God’s two main qualities (Ex 34:6-7). These words are repeated as a refrain throughout Psalm 89. John means then that he has recognized the fullness of Jesus’ divinity (Col 2:9).

God has given us the Law. While recounting the sins of Israel, the biblical story retold the time when there would be no need for a Law engraved in stones or written in books (Jer 31:31). Some day God would change the sinners’ hearts (Ezk 36:26) so that relationships of mutual Love and Faithfulness between God and humankind would begin (Hos 2:21-22). John affirms that the promised time of Love and Truth (of perfect religion) arrived through Jesus Christ.

• 19. THE LAMB

The authorities wondered: “Who is this who on his own initiative has begun to preach?” At that time, various Jewish groups “baptized,” or bathed, as a means of purification and to hasten the coming of the Messiah.

Regarding John the Baptist’s preaching and baptism, see Luke 3:10.

they said to him, “Tell us who you are, so that we can give some answer to those who sent us. How do you see yourself?”²³ And John said, quoting the prophet Isaiah, “I am the voice of one crying out in the wilderness: Make straight the way of the Lord!”

²⁴ Those who had been sent were Pharisees; ²⁵ and they put a further question to John, “Then why are you baptizing, if you are not the Messiah, or Elijah, or the Prophet?”²⁶ John answered, “I baptize you with water, but among you stands one whom you do not know; ²⁷ although he comes after me, I am not worthy to untie the strap of his sandal.”

²⁸ This happened in Bethabara beyond the Jordan, where John was baptizing.

²⁹ The next day John saw Jesus coming towards him, and said, “There is the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world!³⁰ It is he of whom I said: A man comes after me, who is already ahead of me, for he was before me. ³¹ I myself did not know him, but I came baptizing to prepare for him, so that he might be revealed in Israel.”

³² And John also gave this testimony, “I saw the Spirit coming down on him like a dove from heaven, and resting on him. ³³ I myself did not know him, but God, who sent me to baptize, told me, ‘You will see the Spirit coming down, and resting, on the one who baptizes with the Holy Spirit.’ ³⁴ Yes, I have seen! And I declare that this is the Chosen One of God!”

Jesus meets the first disciples

•³⁵ On the following day John was standing there again with two of his disciples. ³⁶ As Jesus walked by,

The Messiah is the name the Jews gave to the expected Savior. They also expected the Prophet, but it was not clear whether or not the Prophet would be someone other than the Messiah. It was believed that the prophet Elijah would reappear before the Messiah’s arrival (Mk 9:11).

There is the Lamb (v. 29). In the language of the Jews, the word “Lamb” can mean both servant and lamb. Jesus is the Servant of God spoken of by the prophets, who was to sacrifice himself for his brothers and sisters. He is also the true Lamb that replaces the Paschal Lamb (Mk 14:12).

A man comes after me (v. 30). In history, Jesus appears after John, but being the Word of God, he existed before all creatures. He also precedes, that is to say, all—including John the Baptist—are guided by his light.

• 35. DISCOVERING JESUS

This Gospel is the work of John the Evangelist who should not be confused with John the Baptist. John the Evangelist was one of the first two disciples to follow Jesus (v. 39).

John, concerned about helping us understand the profound meaning of Jesus’ actions, dwells on details to which we would not immediately pay attention. For example, the Bible begins with the poem describing Creation as happening in seven days, and because John sees Jesus’ work as a new creation, he describes the beginning of Jesus’ public ministry as happening within a week (seven being a symbolic number) (vv. 29, 35, 43 and 2:1).

On the first day John the Baptist affirmed: there is one among you whom you do not know. We see how, during the week, John the Baptist was the first to discover Jesus. Then later, John, Andrew and Simon also discovered him. The last day of the first week will be at the wedding in Cana, where Jesus will let them discover his glory.

What are you looking for? (v. 38). John did not forget these first words Jesus spoke to them. We want to know who Jesus is, but he asks us what our inner dispositions are: because we will gain nothing through finding him unless we are disposed to submit ourselves to him.

These two disciples began to live with Jesus. With time, they would discover that he is the Teacher, the Messiah, the Son of God. So, too, with us. We progress in this knowledge of Jesus Christ as we go on our journey through life.

John the Baptist was without jealousy; he had encouraged his disciples to follow Jesus, and later the first two brought others. Likewise, we come to Jesus because of another

Is 40:3

Mt 16:14;
Mk 11:30Acts
13:251Cor 5:7;
1P 1:18;
2:24;
Zec 3:9;
Rev 5:6;
Mt 8:17Is 11:2;
61:1

Mt 3:16

Is 42:2

John looked at him and said, “There is the Lamb of God.”³⁷ On hearing this, the two disciples followed Jesus.³⁸ He turned and saw them following, and he said to them, “What are you looking for?” They answered, “Rabbi (which means Master), where are you staying?”³⁹ Jesus said, “Come and see.” So they went and saw where he stayed, and spent the rest of that day with him. It was about four o’clock in the afternoon.

⁴⁰ Andrew, the brother of Simon Peter, was one of the two who heard what John had said, and followed Jesus.⁴¹ Early the next morning he found his brother Simon and said to him, “We have found the Messiah” (which means the Christ),⁴² and he brought Simon to Jesus. Jesus looked at him and said, “You are Simon, son of John, but you shall be called Cephas” (which means Rock).

⁴³ The next day, Jesus decided to set off for Galilee. He found Philip and said to him, “Follow me.”⁴⁴ Philip was from Bethsaida, the town of Andrew and Peter.⁴⁵ Philip found Nathanael and said to him, “We have found the one that Moses wrote about in the Law, and the prophets as well: he is Jesus, son of Joseph, from Nazareth.”

⁴⁶ Nathanael replied, “Can anything good come from Nazareth?” Philip said to him, “Come and see.”⁴⁷ When Jesus saw Nathanael coming, he said of him, “Here comes an Israelite, a true one; there is nothing false in him.”⁴⁸ Nathanael asked him, “How do you know me?” And Jesus said to him, “Before Philip called you, you were under the fig tree, and I saw you.”

⁴⁹ Nathanael answered, “Master, you are the Son of God! You are the King of Israel!”⁵⁰ But Jesus replied, “You believe because I said, ‘I saw you under the fig tree.’ But you will see greater things than that.

⁵¹ Truly, I say to you, you will see the heavens opened, and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of Man.”

The wedding at Cana

2 • ¹ Three days later there was a wedding at Cana in Galilee, and the mother of Jesus was there. ² Jesus was also invited to the wed-

Lk 5:1-11
21:15;
Mt 16:18;
Gal 2:11

7:41;
Dt 18:18

Gen 28:
10-17;
Lk 3:21;
Mt 4:11

person who spoke to us of him, or involved us in an apostolic task.

These two disciples recognized Jesus. It would be more exact to say that Jesus recognized those whom the Father had entrusted to him. Thus he recognized Nathanael when he was under the fig tree (v. 48). Among the Jews, this expression referred to a teacher of the Law engaged in teaching religion, since ordinarily they taught under the shade of a tree. In the same way, Jesus recognized Simon whom the Father chose to be the first Rock of the Church (Mt 16:13).

You will see the heavens opened. See Genesis 28:12.

• 2.1 THE SIGNS OF JESUS

The Week of Discovery ends with the wedding at Cana. Indeed Jesus was at the wedding and brought his disciples to join in the singing, dancing and drinking wine. His presence and participation sanctified not only marriage but also festive celebrations and togetherness.

The disciples began to know Jesus, but someone else already understood and believed in him: Mary his mother. How did it ever occur to her to ask him for a miracle? Did she know that Jesus could perform miracles? Mary did not ask for the conversion of sinners, or for bread for the hungry; rather, what she wanted was a miracle or something like it to free the groom from embarrassment.

Jesus answered her with a phrase which, directed to a stranger, could be interpreted as a reproach, but said in a different tone to his mother demonstrated a familiarity and a mutual understanding that went beyond words. Apparently Jesus had no thought of beginning his mission in that manner or at that moment, but his spirit recognized the Spirit speaking through his mother, and he granted this first miraculous sign.

ding with his disciples. ³When all the wine provided for the celebration had been served, and they had run out of wine, the mother of Jesus said to him, “They have no wine.” ⁴Jesus replied, “Woman, what concern is that to you and me? My hour has not yet come.”

19:26
Gen 41:55
⁵However his mother said to the servants, “Do whatever he tells you.”

Mk 7:3
⁶Nearby were six stone water jars, set there for ritual washing as practiced by the Jews; each jar could hold twenty or thirty gallons. ⁷Jesus said to the servants, “Fill the jars with water.” And they filled them to the brim. ⁸Then Jesus said, “Now draw some out and take it to the steward.” So they did.

⁹The steward tasted the water that had become wine, without knowing from where it had come; for only the servants who had drawn the water knew. So, he called the bridegroom ¹⁰to tell him, “Everyone serves the best wine first, and when people have drunk enough, he serves that which is ordinary. Instead you have kept the best wine until the end.”

¹¹This miraculous sign was the first, and Jesus performed it at Cana in Galilee. In this way he let his glory appear, and his disciples believed in him.

• ¹²After this, Jesus went down to Capernaum with his mother, his brothers and his disciples; and they stayed there for a few days.

Jesus clears the temple

• ¹³As the Passover of the Jews was at hand, Jesus went up to Jerusalem. ¹⁴In the Temple court he found merchants selling oxen, sheep

4:54;
12:37;
21:14;
1:14;
11:40;
12:41

Mt 21:
12-13;
Mk 11: 15-17;
Lk 19:
45-46;
Jn 2:23
6:4;
11:55

It is worth noting that John relates only seven miracles of Jesus, and sometimes he calls them works, sometimes signs. They are works of the Son of God in which he manifests his power. They are signs, that is to say, visible things adapted for us by which he enables us to understand his true work—that of bringing life and renewal to the world.

This is why John mentions some details of this event that were symbolic of spiritual realities. Jesus participated in a wedding, and what was he trying to do, but to prepare for other weddings—of God with humanity? Jesus speaks of his hour that had not yet come, for, in reality, his true hour will be that of his Passion and Resurrection.

John adds that Jesus made use of the water that the Jews set aside to purify themselves. The Jews were obsessed with avoiding “defilement,” so their religion multiplied the rites of purification (v. 6). Jesus, by changing the blessed water into wine, signified that true religion should not be confused with the fear of sin: what is important is to receive from Jesus the Spirit which, like heady wine, makes us break from established norms and the narrowness of our own knowledge and learning.

The water changed into wine: Jesus comes into our house to sanctify our daily life—its routine and its chores.

It was thus Jesus manifested his glory to those who were beginning to discover him. Mary brought grace to John the Baptist (Lk 1:39); again she intervenes to hasten the beginnings of the Gospel. She will not speak again in the Gospel, and her last words are: Do whatever he tells you (v. 5).

In those first days after John’s baptism, Jesus was still living among his relatives and townmates whom the Gospel calls “his brothers”: see commentary on Mark 3:31.

• 12. With the wedding at Cana, the first section of the Gospel we have called the Week of Discovery ends. Another section begins in which Jesus defines himself in relation to the Jewish world and their hopes. John presents four scenes:

– Jesus in the Temple: The priests are materialistic, and Jesus judges them severely.

– Jesus and Nicodemus: Nicodemus expresses the concerns of the learned and believing Jews.

– the Samaritan Woman: This is the dialogue of Jesus with the townspeople who are believers in their own way.

– Jesus heals the son of an official: Jesus points out that the majority of those who come to him, seek him because of his miracles.

• 13. Jesus had not yet begun his preaching. He went to the Temple of Jerusalem that and doves, and moneychangers seated at their tables. ¹⁵Making a whip of cords, he drove them all out of the Temple court, together with the oxen and sheep. He knocked over the tables of the moneychangers, scattering the coins, ¹⁶and ordered the people selling doves, “Take all this away, and stop turning my Father’s house into a marketplace!”

Zec 14:21;
Lk 2:49

¹⁷His disciples recalled the words of Scripture: Zeal for your House devours me like fire.

Ps 69:10

¹⁸The Jews then questioned Jesus, “Where are the miraculous signs which give you the right to do this?” ¹⁹And Jesus said, “Destroy this temple and in three days I will raise it up.” ²⁰The Jews then replied, “The building of this temple has already taken forty-six years, and will you raise it up in three days?”

6:30;
20:29;
Lk 11:29

Mk 14:58;
15:29;
Acts 6:14

²¹Actually, Jesus was referring to the temple of his body. ²²Only when he had risen from the dead did his disciples remember these words; then they believed both the Scripture and the words Jesus had spoken.

1Cor 6:19

12:16

²³Jesus stayed in Jerusalem during the Passover Festival, and many believed in his Name when they saw the miraculous signs he performed. ²⁴But Jesus did not trust himself to them, because he knew all of them. ²⁵He had no need of evidence about anyone, for he himself knew what there was in each one.

4:45;
7:31;
11:47

Jesus and Nicodemus

3 • ¹Among the Pharisees there was a ruler of the Jews named Nicodemus. ²He came to Jesus by night and said, “Rabbi, we know that you have come from God to teach us, for no one can perform miraculous signs like yours unless God is with him.”

7:48;
12:42;
19:39

³Jesus replied, “Truly, I say to you, no one can see the kingdom of God unless he is born again from above.”

Mt 18:3;
1P 1:23

was the heart of the Jewish nation and the symbol of their religion (Mk 11:12). The Temple, however, was not immune from corruption and lust for power. In the Temple the people had to make use of the priests’ services to offer their sacrifices. The priests’ authority and power derived from the Temple. The Temple was the place where the community’s offerings and gifts were brought; and there the chief priests disposed of this treasure. Besides this, they also received the taxes that the sellers and moneychangers paid.

Zeal for your house devours me as a fire, and the insults of those who insult you have fallen on me. This is taken from Psalm 69. Actually the hatred of the chief priests for Jesus would bring him to his death.

The apostles could not understand these words: for at that time nothing was more sacred to them than the Temple and the Scripture. Later, they would know that the most ordinary word of Jesus had as much weight as the whole of Scripture. They would also understand that Jesus is the true Temple. Until then, people constructed temples and looked for places where they could meet God and obtain his favors. Now God has made himself present in Jesus: it is he who delivers God’s riches to us.

• 3.1 A NEW BIRTH

Nicodemus was a religious person, concerned about knowing God and his ways, and he went to Jesus as to a teacher of religion. What he needed was not so much to receive instruction, however, as to undergo a change within himself. That, too, is what we need. We must recognize our powerlessness—by ourselves, unaided—to pass through the barriers which block us from an authentic life. Like Nicodemus, despite all our accumulated experience and knowledge (or because of them), we are old people.

Jesus says we must be born again and born from above: John’s gospel uses a word that can be interpreted in both senses (v. 3). Nobody gives birth to himself, and just as we received our life in the flesh from others so, too, we receive the life of the Son of God from the Spirit.

All claim that they live: something moves in them, thoughts come to them, and they make

1Jn 5:1; Jas 1:17
 Ezk 36:25; Rom 6:4; Eph 5:26; Tit 3:5
 1P 1:3; 2P 1:11
 6:63; Gen 6:3

⁴ Nicodemus said, "How can there be rebirth for a grown man? Who could go back to his mother's womb and be born again?" ⁵ Jesus replied, "Truly, I say to you: No one can enter the kingdom of God without being born of water and Spirit. ⁶What is born of the flesh is flesh, and what is born of the Spirit is spirit. ⁷Because of this, don't be surprised when I say, 'You must be born again from above.'

⁸ The wind blows where it pleases and you hear its sound, but you don't know where it comes from or where it is going. It is like that with every one who is born of the Spirit."

⁹ Nicodemus asked again, "How can this be?" ¹⁰ And Jesus answered, "You are a teacher in Israel, and you don't know these things!

¹¹ Truly, I say to you, we speak of what we know and we witness to the things we have seen, but you don't accept our testimony. ¹² If you don't believe when I speak of earthly things, what then, when I speak to you of heavenly things? ¹³ No one has ever gone up to heaven except the one who came from heaven, the Son of Man.

¹⁴ As Moses lifted up the serpent in the desert, so must the Son of Man be lifted up, ¹⁵ so that whoever believes in him may have eternal life.

¹⁶ Yes, God so loved the world that he gave his only Son that whoever believes in him may not be lost, but may have eternal life. ¹⁷ God did not send the Son into the world to condemn the world; instead, through him the world is to be saved. ¹⁸ Who-

12:49;
1Cor 2:14;
Wis 9:16

Dt 30:12;
Eph 4:9

Num 21:
4-9;
Wis 16:
5-7

8:28;
12:32

18:32;
Gen
22:16;
Rom 5:8;
8:32;
Mt 21:37

1Jn 4:9

decisions... Yet this could possibly be nothing more than the life of the flesh, or the life of an unawakened person.

The other life, that of the Spirit, is more mysterious because it takes place in the innermost depths of our being. We see the external appearance; we notice a person's face and behavior, but we do not see God's working in her. The awakened believer, however, who is habitually led by the Spirit gradually discovers changes in what motivates her actions and her ambitions. She feels at ease with God and without fear, experiencing that it is not so much she who orients her life, as another who lives in her. Yet she could not, in fact, be able to say exactly what happens within her.

Hence Jesus compares the action of the Spirit with the passing of the wind that we feel, although we do not see or hold it. Let us also take note that in Jesus' language the same word means spirit as much as "wind."

We have to be reborn of water and of the Spirit: this points to baptism. Let us not think that merely by receiving the waters of baptism, one is fully established in the life of the Spirit; rather, let us realize that normally one is baptized in order to begin the life of the Spirit: the words of the Gospel refer to adults converted to the Christian faith. The case of infant baptism is different. Baptism works within them. Yet they should receive instruction in the faith to lead them to personal conversion.

Like many in Israel, Nicodemus was a religious person and a believer. Why did he come by night? Possibly he did not want to risk his position and reputation, or mix with the common people around Jesus. This would not be the attitude of those who have been born again: these have been liberated from many things that paralyze others.

JESUS REVEALS THE PLAN OF GOD

• 11. John's Gospel is different from the other three. Often, after relating some words of Jesus, John adds an explanation of the faith, which he supports with declarations that Jesus made on other occasions. That is what happens in this case.

How can this be? Nicodemus asked. To enter into the life of the Spirit, we need to know God's plan for us. Yet no one can speak properly of such things except the Son of God. He has seen heavenly things, that is, the intimate life of God; he also speaks of earthly things, that is, of the Kingdom that God brings to us. Many of Jesus' listeners will not accept what he says about the Reign of God; much less will they pay attention to what he reveals about the mystery of God. Jesus reveals to us that which, by ourselves, we are unable to know. Thus a Christian is not one who merely "believes in God"; we are Christians because we believe the testimony of Jesus (v. 11) regarding God and his plan of salvation.

12:47; 5:22; 2Cor 5:19 ever believes in him will not be condemned. He who does not believe is already condemned, because he has not believed in the Name of the only Son of God.

1:5; 8:12 ¹⁹This is how the Judgment is made: Light has come into the world, and people loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil. ²⁰For whoever does wrong hates the light, and doesn't come to the light, for fear that his deeds will be seen as evil. ²¹But whoever lives according to the truth comes into the light, so that it can be clearly seen that his works have been done in God."

12:48; Eph 5:13

1Thes 5:4

John the Baptist's last testimony

• ²²After this, Jesus went into the territory of Judea with his disciples. He stayed there with them and baptized. ²³John was also baptizing in Aenon, near Salim, where water was plentiful; people came to him and were baptized. ²⁴This happened before John was put in prison.

Mt 14:3

²⁵Now John's disciples had been questioned by a Jew about spiritual cleansing, ²⁶so they came to John, and said, "Rabbi, the one who was with you across the Jordan, and about whom you spoke favorably, is now baptizing, and all are going to him."

Lk 7:18

²⁷John answered, "No one can receive anything, except what has been given to him from heaven. ²⁸You yourselves are my witnesses that I said, 'I am not the Christ, but I have been sent before him.' ²⁹Only the bridegroom has the bride; but the friend of the bridegroom stands by and listens, and rejoices to hear the bridegroom's voice. My joy is now

1Cor 4:7; Heb 5:4

In this plan, there was something very difficult to accept: that the Son of Man would have to die on the cross and to rise from the dead (be lifted on high means the same). Jesus reminds them of the serpent in the desert. This episode in the Bible (Num 21) prefigured what would happen to Jesus. Of course, the Jews did not grasp the meaning of this message; in fact, they passed over all the predictions of the sufferings of their savior without understanding them.

They had to revise their ideas about other matters, also. The Jews had been praying for God to come and expected him to condemn the world and to punish the bad. He, on the other hand, sent his own Son to the cross so that the world will be saved (v. 17).

Other verses of the New Testament say that we should not love the world; which seems to contradict what we have just read: God so loved the world. The reason for this contradiction is that the word world has several meanings.

First, the world means all of creation, which is good since it is God's work. The center of this divine work is humankind, which has come under the influence of Satan (8:34 & 44). Everything that sinful humanity creates—riches, culture, social life—is influenced, disfigured and used for evil. Hence, God sent His Son so that the world will be saved.

Yet, even though Christ's resurrection initiated his invincible power over history, a strong current of evil continues, dragging along all who refuse to acknowledge the truth. This evil current is sometimes called the world. It would be more appropriate to say: the people who surrender themselves to the Master of the world. The Scripture points to them in saying: Do not love the world, or You are not of the world (1 Jn 2:15; 4:6).

• 22. The Gospel admits that many disciples of John the Baptist did not recognize Jesus. They had been drawn by their teacher's example: he was intense and outspoken, hard on himself in food, drink and clothing. Somehow they had the hope, maybe because of John the Baptist's manner, that God's true justice would come and bring about direct punishment of the wicked. Like militant followers of whatever good cause, John's disciples had this weakness: they were too focused on their own leaders and ways to consider other possibilities. To become Christ's disciples, they would have to give up their own prophets.

It is necessary that he increase but that I decrease, says the greatest of the prophets (v. 30). Only Jesus comes from On High, and can fully satisfy the human heart. In him nothing of the good is lost, since he embodies all.

full. ³⁰It is necessary that he increase but that I decrease.

³¹He who comes from above is above all; he who comes from the earth belongs to the earth, and his words belong to the earth. He who comes from heaven ³²speaks of the things he has seen and heard; he bears witness to these things, but no one accepts his testimony. ³³Whoever does receive his testimony acknowledges the truthfulness of God.

³⁴The one sent by God speaks God's words, and gives the Spirit unstintingly. ³⁵The Father loves the Son and has entrusted everything into his hands. ³⁶Whoever believes in the Son lives with eternal life; but he who will not believe in the Son will never know life, and always faces the justice of God."

Jesus and the Samaritan woman

4 ¹The Lord knew that the Pharisees were informed about him; people said that Jesus was attracting and baptizing more disciples than

John; ²but in fact it was not Jesus himself who was baptizing, but his disciples. ³So Jesus left Judea and returned to Galilee. ⁴He had to cross Samaria.

⁵He came to a Samaritan town called Sychar, near the land that Jacob had given to his son Joseph. ⁶Jacob's well is there. Tired from his journey, Jesus sat down by the well; it was about noon. ⁷Now a Samaritan woman came to draw water, and Jesus said to her, "Give me a drink." ⁸His disciples had just gone into town to buy some food.

⁹The Samaritan woman said to him, "How is it that you, a Jew, ask me, a Samaritan and a woman, for a drink?" (For Jews, in fact, have no dealings with Samaritans.) ¹⁰Jesus replied, "If you knew who it is, who is asking you for a drink, you yourself would have asked me, and I would have given you living water."

¹¹The woman answered, "Sir, you have no bucket, and this well is deep; where is your living water?"

1Cor 1:17

Lk 9:52

Gen
48:227:37;
Rev 21:6;
22:17

Always faces the justice of God (v. 36). Those who do not recognize the Son of God remain in the situation humanity was in when expelled from Paradise. If they are not able to receive the witness of "God the Son who is one with the Father," they will never solve the contradictions in their lives or in the world in which they live; and they cannot but mistrust God.

• 4.1 LIVING WATER

The Jews hated the Samaritans. In addition, talking with any woman in a public place was looked upon with disapproval in Jewish culture at that time. Jesus, overcoming racial and social prejudices, began to talk with a Samaritan woman. In the person of this woman he met the common people of Palestine. The woman was from a different province and belonged to a rival cult, but both shared the same promises of God and both were waiting for a Savior.

The first concern of the woman was to quench her thirst. The ancestors of the Jewish people walked with their flocks from one water source to another. The most famous Jews (like Jacob) dug wells, and around these wells the desert began to live. This fact was like a parable; people look everywhere for something to quench their thirst; but they are condemned to find nothing but stagnant waters. Those who make tanks to preserve water find that the tanks crack (see commentary on Gen 26). Jesus brings the living water, which is God's gift to us, his children: the gift of the Holy Spirit (7:37).

When there is water in the desert, although it does not surface, it is noticeable because of the verdant vegetation. The same happens with us when we truly live: our actions become better, our decisions more free, our thoughts more directed towards the essential. The living water from which all these fruits flow is not seen: this is eternal life, against which death can do nothing.

The second concern of the woman is to know: Where is truth to be found? Jesus tells her: You have had five husbands... This symbolizes the common destiny of the townspeople who have served many masters or "hus-

3:11

7:28;
1Jn 5:10

Mt 28:18

Mt 3:7;
Rom 2:8;
Eph 2:3

6:31; 8:53 ¹² Are you greater than our ancestor Jacob, who gave us this well he drank from it himself, together with his sons and his cattle?"

Jer 2:13; Is 58:11 ¹³ Jesus said to her, "Those who drink of this water will be thirsty again; ¹⁴ but those, who drink of the water that I shall give, will never be thirsty; for the water, that I shall give, will become in them a spring of water, welling up to eternal life."

6:34 ¹⁵ The woman said to him, "Give me this water, that I may never be thirsty, and never have to come here to draw water." ¹⁶ Jesus said, "Go, call your husband, and come back here."

¹⁷ The woman answered, "I have no husband." And Jesus replied, "You are right to say, 'I have no husband'; ¹⁸ for you have had five husbands, and the one you have now is not your husband. What you said is true."

Di 11:29; Is 2:5 ¹⁹ The woman then said to him, "I see you are a prophet; tell me this: ²⁰ Our ancestors came to this mountain to worship God; but you Jews, do you not claim that Jerusalem is the only place to worship God?"

²¹ Jesus said to her, "Believe me, woman, the hour is coming when you shall worship the Father, but that will not be on this mountain nor in Jerusalem. ²² You worship what you do not know; we worship what we know, because salvation is from the Jews. ²³ But the hour is coming, and is even now here, when the true worshipers will worship the Father in spirit and truth; for that is the kind of worshippers the Father wants. ²⁴ God is Spirit, and those who worship him must worship in spirit, and truth."

²⁵ The woman said to him, "I know that the Messiah (that is the Christ) is coming. When he comes, he will tell us everything." ²⁶ And Jesus said, "I who am talking to you, I am he."

²⁷ At this point the disciples returned, and were surprised that Jesus was speaking with a woman; however, no one said, "What do you want?" or, "Why are you talking with

Is 2:3

Rom 9:4

2Cor 3:17;
Rom 12:1;
Phil 3:3

bands" and, in the end, do not have anyone whom they recognize as their Lord. To begin with, what is the true religion?

The Samaritans had their Bible, somewhat different from that of the Jews, and in the town itself, a few kilometers from the Well of Sychar, was their Temple, which rivaled that of Jerusalem. Jesus maintains that the Jewish religion is the true one: Salvation comes from the Jews. In this he does not share the position of those who say: "It matters little what Church we belong to, since they are all the same." Nevertheless, although one has the good fortune of following the true religion, he has to arrive at the spiritual knowledge of God (v. 23). The Spirit, whom we receive, helps us worship God according to the truth. The Father seeks such worshipers who enter into intimate personal contact with him.

Spirit and truth (v. 24). God does not need the words of our prayers, but looks for simplicity, beauty and nobility in our spirit. The Spirit of God cannot be communicated except to those who seek the truth and live according to truth in a world of deception.

In the final analysis, the Samaritan woman's account is a parable of our own lives. Each one of us is in some way the Samaritan woman. What happened at the well of Jacob describes our own encounter with Jesus; the ways by which Jesus led the woman to recognize and love him are the ways by which Jesus, step-by-step, accomplishes our own conversion. In the end, the woman became Jesus' disciple, and through this very experience she also became Jesus' apostle: Many in that town believed in Jesus because of the woman (v. 39). This Jesus experience is the source of the apostolate. To evangelize is to share this experience with others.

Four more months ... (v. 35). Like the harvest, the people who follow Jesus are also maturing.

People who reap the harvest are paid for their work: this Jesus' maxim has many applications. Verse 36 possibly refers to the shared joy of the Father who sowed and of the Son who will harvest. In a different way, in verse 37, Jesus and his own are aware that they do not work in vain. Others have worked: Jesus refers to those who came before him, and especially to John the Baptist.

her?”²⁸ So the woman left her water jar and ran to the town. There she said to the people,²⁹ “Come and see a man who told me everything I did! Could he not be the Christ?”³⁰ So they left the town and went to meet him.

³¹In the meantime the disciples urged Jesus, “Master, eat.”³² But he said to them, “I have food to eat that you don’t know about.”³³ And the disciples wondered, “Has anyone brought him food?”³⁴ Jesus said to them, “My food is to do the will of the one who sent me, and to carry out his work.

³⁵You say that in four months there will be the harvest; now, I say to you, look up and see the fields white and ready for harvesting.

³⁶People who reap the harvest are paid for their work, and the fruit is gathered for eternal life, so that sower and reaper may rejoice together.

³⁷Indeed the saying holds true: One sows and another reaps.³⁸ I sent you to reap where you didn’t work or suffer; others have worked, and you are now sharing in their labors.”

³⁹In that town many Samaritans believed in him when they heard the woman who declared, “He told me everything I did.”⁴⁰ So, when they came to him, they asked him to stay with them, and Jesus stayed there two days.⁴¹ After that, many more believed because of his own words,

⁴²and they said to the woman, “We no longer believe because of what you told us; we have heard for ourselves, and we know that this is the Savior of the world.”

⁴³When the two days were over, Jesus left for Galilee.⁴⁴ Jesus himself said that no prophet is recognized in his own country.⁴⁵ Yet the Galileans welcomed him when he arrived, because of all the things which he had done in Jerusalem during the Festival, and which they had seen. For they, too, had gone to the feast.

Jesus cures the son of an official

• ⁴⁶Jesus went back to Cana of Galilee, where he had changed the water into wine. At Capernaum there was an official, whose son was ill,⁴⁷ and when he heard that Jesus had come from Judea to Galilee, he went and asked him to come and heal his son, for he was at the point of death.

⁴⁸Jesus said, “Unless you see signs and wonders, you will not believe!”⁴⁹ The official said, “Sir, come down before my child dies.”⁵⁰ And Jesus replied, “Go, your son lives!”

The man had faith in the word that Jesus spoke to him, and went his way.⁵¹ As he was approaching his house, his servants met him, and gave him the good news, “Your son has recovered!”⁵² So he asked them at what hour the child began to recover, and they said to him, “The fever left him yesterday, at about one

- 46. See Luke 7:1.

Unless you see signs and wonders, you will not believe. Jesus’ reproach is directed, not to the official who will later show great faith, but to the Jews and to us. While Jesus works miracles which confirm his mission, he also stresses that we should recognize him by seeing and hearing him. Do lovers demand miracles in order to trust one another? Do those who follow leaders demand absolute proof? Those who really seek the truth recognize it when it is presented to them.

Jesus’ second miracle in Cana concludes this second part of the Gospel in which Jesus defines himself in relation to Jewish society and its hopes.

Now begins a new section: Jesus proclaims the work for which he has come into this world; his Father has sent him to judge and to give life. We must first believe in the Messenger of God. This is treated in chapters 5 and 6.

Lk 4:24

Mt 8:5-13;
Lk 7:1-10Mt 12:38;
16:1;
1Cor 1:22

Mk 7:29

6:38;
17:4

19:30

Lk 10:2;
Rev 14:15Ps
126:5;
1Cor 3:6Lk 9:52;
Mt 8:34

Acts
11:14

o'clock in the afternoon." ⁵³And the father realized that that was the time when Jesus had told him, "Your son lives!" And he became a believer, he and all his family.

⁵⁴Jesus performed this second miraculous sign when he returned from Judea to Galilee.

The paralytic at the pool of Bethzatha

5 • ¹After this there was a feast of the Jews, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem. ²Now, by the Sheep Gate in Jerusalem, there is a pool (called Bethzatha in Hebrew) surrounded by five galleries. ³In these galleries lay a multitude of sick people: blind, lame and paralyzed.

⁴All were waiting for the water to move, for at times an angel of the Lord would descend into the pool and stir up the water; and the first person to enter the pool, after this movement of the water, would be healed of whatever disease he had.)

⁵There was a man who had been sick for thirty-eight years. ⁶Jesus saw him, and because he knew how long this man had been lying there, he said to him, "Do you want to be healed?" ⁷And the sick man answered, "Sir, I have no one to put me into the pool when the water is disturbed; so while I am still on my way, another steps down before me."

⁸Jesus then said to him, "Stand up, take your mat and walk!" ⁹And at once the man was healed, and he took up his mat and walked.

Now that day happened to be the Sabbath. ¹⁰So the Jews said to the man who had just been healed, "It is the Sabbath, and the Law doesn't allow you to carry your mat." ¹¹He answered them, "The one who healed me said to me, 'Take up your mat and walk!'" ¹²They asked him, "Who is the one who said to you: Take up your mat and walk?" ¹³But

Mk 2:11

Lk 13:14

Jer
17:21

• 5.1 Why did Jesus go to the Pool of Bethzatha? It is known that the said pool was a pagan place dedicated to Aesculapius, the god of health. Rumors abounded that, from time to time, the sick were healed there. The pious Jews, scandalized that healings should occur in a pagan place, maintained that people were healed not by Aesculapius but by an angel of the Lord. Unscrupulous Jews went there to seek a cure even from pagan idols. Jesus, too, went there, but in search of the sinner he wished to save.

Note the sick man's first response. In this miraculous place many hoped for a cure but few were healed. By ourselves alone—I have no one—we cannot be saved. We need a Savior.

Jesus disappears after the miracle. Some people might have said that he was at ease in a pagan temple, or think he healed the sick in the name of their gods. Jesus will make himself known in the Temple of the true God, his Father.

The Jews attacked Jesus because he "worked" on the Sabbath day. Let us examine Jesus' reply more closely: My Father goes on working. It is well that people observe a day of rest to pay homage to God; yet God himself does not rest, nor is he absent from the world: he gives life to people. Being God-the-Son, Jesus should imitate God the Father instead of resting like people do. His enemies, on hearing him, were not mistaken about his claims: they wanted to kill him because he made himself equal with God (v. 18).

Don't sin again... (v. 14). Jesus reminds the sick man of his lack of faith that led him to the pagan sanctuary where he waited in vain for 38 years, just as in former times the Israelites remained secluded 38 years in the oasis of Kadesh in the desert, without being able to enter the Promised Land. John noted this coincidence. He also understood that the cure in the pool represented baptism. Jesus' remark to the healed person is addressed to those who have been converted and baptized: Do not sin again.

After this account the Christian faith is presented again. See commentary on John 3:11.

It should be mentioned that in these "discourses" John the Evangelist is fond of repeating key words of the discourses seven times. Here, for example, we find the words Sabbath, Jesus, and Moses seven times each; and the Father 14 times. John intends to contrast the Jewish religion instituted by Moses, the sick man had no idea who it was who had cured him, for Jesus had slipped away among the crowd that filled the place.

Mt 9:2 ¹⁴Afterwards Jesus met him in the Temple court and told him, "Now you are well; don't sin again, lest something worse happen to you."

¹⁵And the man went back and told the Jews that it was Jesus who had healed him. ¹⁶So the Jews persecuted Jesus because he performed healings like that on the Sabbath.

Mk 2:27 ¹⁷Jesus replied, "My Father goes on working and so do I." ¹⁸And the Jews tried all the harder to kill him, for Jesus not only broke the Sabbath observance, but also made himself equal with God, calling God his own Father.

9:4;
Mk 3:4;
Lk 6:5
10:33;
11:53

The work of the Son is to give life

• ¹⁹Jesus said to them, "Truly, I assure you, the Son cannot do anything by himself, but only what he sees the Father do. And whatever he does, the Son also does. ²⁰The Father loves the Son and shows him everything he does; and he will show him even greater things than these, so that you will be amazed.

²¹As the Father raises the dead and gives them life, so the Son gives life to whom he wills. ²²In the same way the Father judges no one, for he has entrusted all judgment to the Son, ²³and he wants all to honor the Son as they honor the Father. Whoever ignores the Son, ignores as well the Father who sent him.

²⁴Truly, I say to you, anyone who hears my word and believes him who sent me, has eternal life; and there is no judgment for him, because he has passed from death to life.

²⁵Truly, the hour is coming and has indeed come, when the dead will hear the voice of the Son of God and,

3:35;
10:17;
14:12;
15:9;
17:23

1S 2:6;
Rom 4:17;
Eph 2:5;
Jn 11:25;
3:17

Acts
10:42

Phil
2:10;
Lk 10:16;
1Jn 2:23

3:11;
8:51;
10:27;
11:25

whose major precept was the Sabbath rest, with that of the new times which Jesus came to inaugurate, wherein he enables us to know the Father.

• 19. THE SON AND THE FATHER, THE RESURRECTION

Jesus' opponents were surprised to see how he violated the law of the sacred rest; this, however, was only the first intervention of Jesus (7:21). Jesus intends to do much more than just reform religion: he has come to renew the whole of creation.

The books of the Old Testament spoke of God as only one. Now Jesus shows us a new face of God: he is Father and has sent his Son to complete his work. In all that he does, God endeavors to give us life, and the greatest of his works is the Resurrection.

This rising from the dead does not mean "to return to life" but to begin a new and transformed life. The dead will rise again, of course (v. 28), but we can also speak of the resurrection in the lives of those who become believers. A word of Jesus accepted in faith gives us life and later takes root in us and transforms us. Together, the Father and the Son raise us to new life. God's love, which engenders life, reaches us through the voice of Christ (v. 25). Compare verse 25 with verse 28.

Jesus then is not only human like us. Though human, he is also divine and reveals to us another face of God. Jesus wants to replace in our minds any image of God as a jealous or paternalistic God. The Gospel shows the Father giving all his authority to a human, to Christ. This resonates with modern psychology that teaches that a person is not fully adult until he liberates himself from parental authority. Our contemporary world rightly rejects a paternalistic God.

On numerous occasions, Jesus called himself the Son of Man (See the explanation in Mk 8:27). Here John says a Son of Man (v. 27); that is a Jewish idiom which means a human being. By being human, Jesus saves humanity from within.

When Jesus claims to be the Son, he repeats these two affirmations in various ways:

– Everything that my Father does, I do; all that the Father has, I have.

– and: I cannot do anything by myself.

In this way, Jesus is a model for the sons and daughters of God. We also should commune with the Father, so that he may teach us his works: there is no Christian life without

Mk 5: 38-43; Lk 7: 11-17
Dn 7:10
Rev 20:13; 1Thes 4:16

on hearing it, will live. ²⁶For the Father has life in himself, and he has given to the Son also to have life in himself. ²⁷And he has empowered him as well to carry out Judgment, for he is a Son of Man.

²⁸Do not be surprised at this: the hour is coming when all those lying in tombs will hear my voice ²⁹and come out; those who have done good shall rise to live, and those who have done evil will rise to be condemned.

• ³⁰I can do nothing of myself, and I need to hear Another One to judge; and my judgment is just, because I seek not my own will, but the will of him who sent me.

³¹If I bore witness to myself, my testimony would be worthless. ³²But Another One is bearing witness to me, and I know that his testimony is true when he bears witness to me.

³³John also bore witness to the truth when you sent messengers to him, ³⁴but I do not seek such human testimony; I recall this for you, so that you may be saved.

³⁵John was a burning and shining lamp, and for a while you were willing to enjoy his light. ³⁶But I have greater evidence than that of John—the works which the Father entrusted to me to carry out. The very works I do bear witness: the Father has sent me. ³⁷Thus he who bears witness to me is the Father who sent me. You have never heard his voice and have never seen his likeness; ³⁸therefore, as long as you do not believe his messenger, his word is not in you.

³⁹You search the Scriptures, thinking that in them you will find life; yet Scripture bears witness to me. ⁴⁰But you refuse to come to me, that you may live. ⁴¹I am not seeking human praise; ⁴²but I have known that love of God is not within you, ⁴³for I have come in my Father's name and you do not accept me. If another comes in his own name, you will accept him. ⁴⁴As long as you seek praise from one another, instead of seeking the glory which comes from the only God, how can you believe?

⁴⁵Do not think that I shall accuse you to the Father. Moses himself, in whom you placed your hope, ac-

1Jn 5:9;
Jn 2:11;
10:25

Mt 3:17;
Dt 4:12

Acts
13:27

12:43;
1Jn 2:15

1Cor 4:5

Dt 31:26

prayer, that is, without a personal relationship with God.

• 30. THE TESTIMONY

To gain a direction in life, we need some understanding of the world and humankind. This understanding may come through reason and science, but more often we are influenced and guided by the testimony of others—by their words, attitudes and personal qualities.

It is thus that those in love discover one another, friends accept each other, a career is decided upon, a religious or political commitment is made. It is also thus that the Word of God is discovered. Therefore, Jesus speaks of the testimonies that accredit him:

- his works, that is, his miracles.
- John the Baptist's testimony in pointing him out as the Savior.
- the words of the Bible that refer to him.

Some people say that since the Bible is the word of God they do not need anything more than that to guide them. Let them know that just as God spoke through events and through prophets, he continues speaking to us through actual events and through spokespersons of the Spirit in the Church. Jesus rebuked those who believed they possessed the truth just by having the Bible, but did not believe in him whom God was sending them (v. 38).

God instructs us in his way when we listen to what others teach us; in daily life and within the Church we meet people living according to the Spirit, whereas others only pretend to be religious and upright persons.

How then do we distinguish between what is true and what is false? How do we recognize those who speak of God's ways from personal experience? Jesus says that those who love the Lk 24:27 cuses you. ⁴⁶If you believed Moses, you would believe me, for he wrote of me. ⁴⁷But if you do not believe what he wrote, how will you believe what I say?

⁴Now the Passover, the feast of the Jews, was at hand.

⁵Then lifting up his eyes, Jesus saw the crowds that were coming to him, and said to Philip, "Where shall we buy bread so that these people may eat?" ⁶He said this to test Philip, for he himself knew what he was going to do. ⁷Philip answered him, "Two hundred silver coins would not buy enough bread for each of them to have a piece."

⁸Then one of Jesus' disciples, Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, said, ⁹"There is a boy here who has five barley loaves and two fish; but what good are these for so many?"

¹⁰Jesus said, "Make the people sit down." There was plenty of grass there, so the people, about five thousand men, sat down. ¹¹Jesus then took the loaves, gave thanks, and distributed them to those who were seated. He did the same with the fish, and gave them as much as they wanted. ¹²And when they had eaten enough, he told his disciples, "Gather up the pieces left over, that nothing may be lost."

¹³So they gathered them up and filled twelve baskets with bread, that is, with pieces of the five barley loaves left over by those who had eaten.

¹⁴When the people saw the miracle which Jesus had performed, they said, "This is really the Prophet, the Rom 2:17 7 ¹⁹Moses gave you the Law, didn't he? But none of you keep the Law. Why, then, do you want to kill me?"

8:48; 10:20 ²⁰The people replied, "You have a demon; who wants to kill you?"

Gen 17:10; Rom 4:11 ²¹Jesus said to them, "I performed just one deed, and you are all astounded by it. ²²But remember the circumcision ordered by Moses—actually it was not Moses but the ancestors who began this practice. You circumcise a man even on the Sabbath, ²³and you would break the Law if you refused to do so because of the Sabbath. How is it, then, that you are indignant with me because I healed the whole person on the Sabbath?"

8:15 ²⁴Do not judge by appearances, but according to what is right."

The multiplication of the loaves

(Mk 6:34; Mt 14:13; Lk 9:10)

Mt 14: 13-21; Mk 6: 32-44; Lk 9: 10-17 6 ¹After this Jesus went to the other side of the Sea of Galilee, near Tiberias, ²and large crowds followed him, because of the miraculous signs they saw, when he healed the sick. ³So he went up into the hills and sat down there with his disciples.

truth recognize those who speak the truth. Everyone values the testimony of an equal. To recognize the messengers of God, we must be the people who do not look for praise from one another, and thus are not enslaved by false values. Whoever seeks the truth and mercy will recognize a communication of the Glory of God in the words and actions of God's more humble servants.

It pleases God when we recognize his witness. He desires everyone to honor the Son just as his Father does. By believing in his Son, we show ourselves worthy of his trust and thus become God's children, open to his life.

• 7.19 At the end of chapter 5 we have placed the passage 7:19-24, which concludes the discourses but which, for some unknown reason, was placed after chapter 6.

• 6.1 See Mark 6:35.

one who is to come into the world.”¹⁵ Jesus realized that they would come and take him by force to make him king; so he fled to the hills by himself.

¹⁶When evening came, the disciples went down to the shore. ¹⁷After a while they got into a boat to make for Capernaum on the other side of the sea, for it was now dark and Jesus had not yet come to them. ¹⁸But the sea was getting rough because a strong wind was blowing.

¹⁹They had rowed about three or four miles, when they saw Jesus walking on the sea, and he was drawing near to the boat. They were frightened, ²⁰but he said to them, “It is I! Don’t be afraid!”

²¹They wanted to take him into the boat, but immediately the boat was at the shore to which they were going.

• ²²Next day the people, who had stayed on the other side, realized that only one boat had been there, and that Jesus had not entered it with his disciples; but rather, the disciples had gone away alone. ²³Bigger boats from Tiberias came near the place where all these people had eaten the bread. ²⁴When they saw that neither Jesus nor his disciples were there, they got into the boats and went to Capernaum looking for Jesus.

²⁵When they found him on the other side of the lake, they asked him, “Master, when did you come here?”

²⁶Jesus answered, “Truly, I say to you, you look for me, not because of the signs which you have seen, but because you ate bread and were satisfied. ²⁷Work then, not for perishable food, but for the lasting food which gives eternal life. The Son of Man will give it to you, for he is the one on whom the Father has put his mark.”

The bread of life; to believe in the Son of God

• ²⁸Then the Jews asked him, “What shall we do? What are the works that God wants us to do?”
²⁹And Jesus answered them, “The

• 22. In the following pages John expands Jesus’ pronouncements in the synagogue of Capernaum. Surely Jesus himself at that time did not develop so fully the doctrine on the Eucharist (vv. 48-58). There is no doubt, however, that Jesus expressed himself in a manner that scandalized his hearers. What did he say but to affirm clearly that we must go to him, for he is the true bread from whom we receive eternal life?

People struggle for adequate food, and their first preoccupation is to survive, because if they do not eat they will cease to live. We do not have life in ourselves and have to constantly depend on others for what is necessary to maintain life. In spite of everything, some day life escapes us because we have not encountered the lasting food (v. 27).

In fact, we need much more than bread: beyond eating and drinking, we seek something that permits us to no longer experience hunger or thirst. We will find this on the day of the Resurrection, in the assembly of all the Saints in Heaven, where there will be total and perfect peace and unity. That is precisely what the Work of the Son of Man (the Human One) is.

The discourse begins with a question from the Jews: Which are the works that God wants us to do? Jesus replies: The Work that God wants is that you believe. The Father does not demand “works,” that is, the practices of a religious law, but rather, faith. In the previous chapter, Jesus declared that his work is to raise people up. Here he indicates our work: to believe in the Messenger of the Father.

The key word of the discourse is bread (or loaves). That is why John repeats it seven times in each section of this chapter. The expression who has come down from heaven appears seven times in the chapter.

• 28. Here begins the first part of the discourse: Jesus becomes our bread when we believe in him.

In the past, when the Israelites wandered in the desert and lacked everything, God gave them a provisional meal, the manna. They had to give thanks to him for his gifts. But if 18:36;

Mk 1:35

Mt 14:
22-33;
Mk 6:
45-52

Mt 14:27

Is 55:2;
Jn 4:14

work God wants is this: that you believe in the One whom God has sent.”

Lk 11:29 ³⁰They then said, “Show us miraculous signs, that we may see and believe you. What sign do you perform? ³¹Our ancestors ate manna in the desert; as Scripture says: They were given bread from heaven to eat.”

Ps 78:24; 16:4; Num 11:7 ³²Jesus then said to them, “Truly, I say to you, it was not Moses who gave you the bread from heaven. My Father gives you the true bread from heaven. ³³The bread God gives is the One who comes from heaven and gives life to the world.” ³⁴And they said to him, “Give us this bread always.”

4:15; Mt 6:11 ³⁵Jesus said to them, “I am the bread of life; whoever comes to me

Pro 9:1-6; Sir 24:19-22; Is 55:1-3 shall never be hungry, and whoever believes in me shall never be thirsty.

³⁶Nevertheless, as I said, you refuse to believe, even when you have seen.

³⁷Yet all those whom the Father gives me will come to me, and whoever comes to me, I shall not turn away.

³⁸For I have come from heaven, not to do my own will, but the will of the One who sent me.

³⁹And the will of him who sent me is that I lose nothing of what he has given me, but instead that I raise it up on the last day. ⁴⁰This is the will of the Father, that whoever sees the Son and believes in him shall live eternal life; and I will raise him up on the last day.”

⁴¹The Jews murmured because Jesus had said, “I am the bread

Mt 11:27

11:24

God is only our benefactor and we go to him seeking favors, we end up concerned only for what God gives us; we will hardly thank him, and later will continue to ask and complain.

This was what happened with the Israelites who, after receiving the manna, rebelled against God and died in the desert. Material things, although they may come from heaven, do not make us better nor do they give us true life.

For this reason, God now proposes something new. The bread that comes down from heaven is not something, but someone, and that is Christ. That true bread communicates eternal life to us, but to receive it, it is necessary to take a step, that is, to believe in Christ and to make a personal commitment to him.

All that the Father gives me will come to me (v. 37). Not all those who take pride in belonging to the true religion come to Christ, but only those whom the Father knows. Though the church embraces many people of all descriptions, only those to whom the Father has given this grace will find their way to the controversial and humble Christ. While acknowledging the value of the sacraments and good works, we should not forget what Jesus taught: none of our own efforts can substitute for the grace of being chosen by the Father who calls us to know his Son in truth.

They shall all be taught by God (v. 45). Several texts from the prophets showed in what way Jewish religion should transcend itself. God's covenant celebrated in Mount Sinai had given the laws through which the conscience of God's people would be educated. Then should come new times when God would teach each of his believers as he did the great prophets (Is 54:13; Jer 31:34; Jl 3:1). Jesus recalls these promises and interprets them. It is not a matter of revelations given to everyone but of a mysterious call that directs us to Jesus. In Jesus, the perfect mirror of God, we discover the will of the Father for us. Jesus is the Word of God and from now on the most authentic revelations can only send us back to him.

This man is the son of Joseph (v. 42). Jesus' listeners were Jews who believed in God and in the Scriptures. To believe in the prophets who were honored after their death was easy; but to recognize God's contemporary and controversial messengers, especially when the messenger of God was a simple carpenter was another matter. This is equally true today, for we must overcome doubts and listen to God's messengers who point out the mission of the Church in today's world. There are many who believe in the Bible or in Christ but refuse to listen to the Church, especially when it speaks through Christians and religious belonging to the world of the poor and of workers.

Do not murmur (v. 43). The Bible uses the verb “to murmur” in Exodus and Numbers: the Israelites distrusted God and constantly criticized Moses' decisions (Ex 15:24; 16:2; 17:3).

Mk 6:3; Lk 4:22 which comes from heaven." ⁴² And they said, "This man is the son of Joseph, isn't he? We know his father and mother. How can he say that he has come from heaven?"

Mt 16:17 ⁴³ Jesus answered them, "Do not murmur among yourselves. ⁴⁴ No one can come to me unless he is drawn by the Father who sent me; and I will raise him up on the last day. ⁴⁵ It has been written in the Prophets: They shall all be taught by God. So whoever listens and learns from the Father comes to me.

Is 54:13; Jer 31:33-34; 1Thes 4:9
1:18; 7:29 ⁴⁶ For no one has seen the Father except the One who comes from God; he has seen the Father. ⁴⁷ Truly, I say to you, whoever believes has eternal life.

The body of Christ, bread of life

• ⁴⁸ I am the bread of life. ⁴⁹ Though your ancestors ate the manna in the desert, they died. ⁵⁰ But here you have the bread which comes from heaven, so that you may eat of it, and not die.

Mt 26:26 ⁵¹ I am the living bread which has come from heaven; whoever eats of this bread will live forever. The bread I shall give is my flesh, and I will give it for the life of the world."

⁵² The Jews were arguing among themselves, "How can this man give us flesh to eat?" ⁵³ So Jesus replied, "Truly, I say to you, if you do not eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood, you have no life in you. ⁵⁴ The one who eats my flesh and drinks my blood lives eternal life, and I will raise him up on the last day.

⁵⁵ My flesh is really food, and my blood is truly drink. ⁵⁶ Those who eat my flesh and drink my blood, live in me, and I in them. ⁵⁷ Just as the Father, who is life, sent me, and I have life from the Father, so whoever eats me will have life from me. ⁵⁸ This is the bread which came from heaven;

15:4

Num 14:29

• 48. COMMUNION—THE SACRAMENTS

The second part of the discourse: Jesus becomes our bread when we eat his body in the sacrament of the Eucharist.

How can this man give us flesh to eat? (v. 52). Thus spoke the Israelites who distrusted God in the desert (Num 11:4 & 18). John plays on the same words and gives them a different meaning here: why would a messenger from heaven give flesh to the world, when what we need is something spiritual? Jesus answers in verse 63: this flesh to eat may sound like food for bodily sustenance, but it is really a sharing in the life of the risen Christ transformed by the Spirit. For that reason it gives life (6:63).

Through material means the believer participates in a heavenly reality and enters into communion with the risen Christ. The Church defines sacrament as something material that symbolizes and brings about a spiritual reality. When we faithfully participate in a sacrament, we encounter the living Christ in person renewing our lives. In the Supper of the Lord, that is, in the Mass, we really receive the body and blood of Christ, in what appears to be only bread and wine.

The risen Christ becomes for us the food of eternal life.

Jesus acts as living bread in us. When we eat ordinary bread our body digests and assimilates it, but when we eat living bread (the body of Christ), this bread actively changes us. Christ transforms us; gives his life to us and unites us with himself: Whoever eats me will have life in me.

Flesh and blood. In Hebrew culture flesh and blood denotes the human being in his mortal condition. Jesus wants us to make our own his entire human being in its humble and mortal condition, and communicates to us his divinity. It is evident that communion only shows its full meaning if taken in the two species of bread and wine; even in the Latin Church there is no Eucharist if the celebrant at least does not communicate under the two species.

Regarding this means of Jesus' life being transmitted to us, we are not easily convinced. We often wonder at Jesus' words: he who eats my flesh has life, he who does not... We need to study the parables on the Kingdom of God more closely. The gift of God, whether it be his word or the Body of Christ, is a seed so not like that of your ancestors, who ate and later died. Those who eat this bread will live forever.”

⁵⁹Jesus spoke in this way in Capernaum when he taught them in the synagogue.

Will you also go away?

Lk 4:22 • ⁶⁰After hearing this, many of Jesus' followers said, “This language is very hard! Who can accept it?”

6:41 ⁶¹Jesus was aware that his disciples were murmuring about this, and so he said to them, “Does this offend you? ⁶²Then how will you react when you see the Son of Man ascending to where he was before? ⁶³It is the spirit that gives life, not the flesh. The words that I have spoken to you are

3:11;
2Cor 3:6;
Gal 6:8;
1Cor 15:45

spirit and they are life. ⁶⁴But among you there are some who do not believe.”

From the beginning, Jesus knew who would betray him. ⁶⁵So he added, “As I have told you, no one can come to me unless it is granted by the Father.”

⁶⁶After this many disciples withdrew and no longer followed him. ⁶⁷Jesus asked the Twelve, “Will you also go away?” ⁶⁸Peter answered him, “Lord, to whom shall we go? You have the words of eternal life. ⁶⁹We now believe and know that you are the Holy One of God.”

Mt 16:6;
Lk 22:28

⁷⁰Jesus said to them, “I chose you, the Twelve, did I not? Yet one of you is a devil.” ⁷¹Jesus spoke of small that it may be lost or may not bear fruit. It is fruitful only in those who believe and persevere.

Mk 1:24

The sacraments we receive help us mature in the life of God; they affect the very core of our being. Sometimes we feel discouraged about the many defects and prejudices we still have despite our reception of the sacraments. We do not understand that transformation is something deep and often not immediately evident.

• 60. This language is very hard. How could Jesus' listeners believe that he, the “son of Joseph,” had come from God? And today how can we believe that we need the Eucharist? Jesus tells us why he came: The Son of God came down to us, so that later he would ascend to where he was before. He came from God to communicate to us the very life of God and then to bring us to the bosom of God (Jn 14:12).

The truth is that by Christ's resurrection, our world has already started its renewal. For when the Son of Man entered the Glory of his Father, he carried on his shoulders the whole of creation that he wanted to renew and consecrate. Clothed in our humanity, the Son of God has ascended to where he was before: the first of our race has achieved full union with God.

Although, to all appearances, life goes on as before, we believe that the renewed world has been activated. The Spirit is at work within gigantic disturbances that continually agitate and shake the whole of humanity. Christ is invincibly consecrating this world. He enables humanity to arrive at maturity by means of innumerable crises and deaths that prepare for a resurrection.

Jesus' listeners could not understand (6:61) the mystery of the Son of God and his humiliations. Jesus wanted to dispossess himself of his divine glory by becoming human and dying like a slave (see Jn 1:14 and Phil 2:6), so that later the Father would enable him to ascend to where he came from. It is likewise a test of our faith to believe that God continually works among us in our world. In spite of our unresponsiveness, God still loves us; the Church is so unworthy, yet God uses it to fulfill his plan; history is so destructive, yet it is preparing us for the fullness of the Kingdom.

The flesh cannot help (v. 63). Jesus spoke of giving us his flesh, but this should not be understood as a continuation of the Jewish religion, in which the meat of sacrificed animals was eaten. In Hebrew culture, flesh and blood denote “the world below,” where humankind moves and where one has no access to communication with God. The Eucharist is different. This is the body, or flesh, of the risen Christ transformed by the Spirit, which acts in us spiritually and brings us into communion with God.

Lord, to whom shall we go? (v. 68). Many of Jesus' followers left but, in the name of those who remained, Peter pledged his fidelity (see also Mt 16:13).

Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon. He, one of the Twelve, was to betray him.

Jesus goes up to Jerusalem

7 • After this Jesus went around Galilee; he would not go about in Judea, because the Jews wanted to kill him. ²Now the Jewish feast of the Tents was at hand. ³So the brothers of Jesus said to him, “Don’t stay here; go instead to Judea and let your disciples see the works you are doing. ⁴Anyone who wants to be known doesn’t work secretly. Since you are able to do these things, show yourself to the world.”

⁵His brothers spoke like this because they didn’t believe in him. ⁶Jesus said to them, “My time has not yet come, but your time is always here.

⁷The world cannot hate you; but it hates me because I bear witness and I show that its deeds are evil. ⁸Go up to the feast! I am not going to this feast, because my time has not yet come.”

⁹Jesus spoke like this and remained in Galilee. ¹⁰But after his brothers had gone to the festival, he also went up, not publicly but in secret. ¹¹The Jews were looking for him at the festival and asked, “Where is he?” ¹²There was a lot of talk about him among the people. Some said, “He is a good man,” but others replied, “No, he is misleading the people.” ¹³For fear of the Jews no one spoke openly about him.

¹⁴When the festival was half over, Jesus went to the Temple and began to teach. ¹⁵The Jews marveled and said, “How is it that he knows Scriptures when he has had no teacher?”

¹⁶And Jesus answered them, “My teaching is not mine, but it comes from the One who sent me. ¹⁷Anyone who does the will of God shall know whether my teaching is from God, or whether I speak on my own authority.

¹⁸Those who speak on their own authority wish to gain honor for themselves. But the one who seeks the glory of him who sent him is truthful, and there is no reason to doubt him.”

vv. 19-24 have been placed after chapter 5. See footnote there.

• 7.1 Jesus moves people to question his identity. It is better to question than to belong to a group that does not question because they think they already know. The brothers of Jesus were like that.

Show yourself to the world (v. 4). These brothers of Jesus were the families and townspeople of Nazareth (see Mk 3:31). These people were to enter the Church after Jesus’ resurrection, and thought themselves important merely because of their former association with Jesus; but at that time they were still very far from understanding his mission. They wanted Jesus to be known for his miracles; but Jesus chose, rather, to reveal himself to those who could enter into the mystery of death that leads to glory.

My time has not yet come... Let us note here two types of persons: one type lives according to their plans, and the other type allow themselves to be guided by the Spirit. For the former, one time is as good as another; because they have no experience of the calling of God, they act impetuously and when they feel like it. Those who are guided by the Spirit wait for signs indicating that this is God’s time. Whatever is undertaken in God’s time will bring glory to God.

Like Jesus, John was a Jew. He was surrounded by Jews converted to the Christian faith. He consistently calls his unbelieving compatriots Jews. We would be mistaken if we thought he is designating here all the Jews. With this name of Jews he points out the religious, political and social ambiance that did not acknowledge Jesus as the Messiah.

Those Jews adhered to an established social order and to a certain manner of understanding life and religion that was common in their time. It was social and religious formalities that

9:22

Mk 6:2;
Acts 4:13

3:11

8:50;
5:412:4;
7:30;
8:2015:18;
3:19

5:18 •²⁵ Some of the people of Jerusalem said, “Is this not the man they want to kill? ²⁶ And here he is speaking freely, and they don’t say a word to him? Can it be that the rulers know that this is really the Christ? ²⁷ Yet we know where this man comes from; but when the Christ appears, no one will know where he comes from.”

9:29;
Mk 12:35;
Mic 5:1;
Mt 1:6

8:19;
19:9
8:55
Lk 4:29;
Jn 2:11

²⁸ So Jesus announced in a loud voice in the Temple court where he was teaching, “You say that you know me and know where I come from! I have not come of myself; I was sent by the One who is true, and you don’t know him. ²⁹ I know him for I come from him and he sent me.”

³⁰ They would have arrested him, but no one laid hands on him because his time had not yet come. ³¹ Many people in the crowd, however, believed in him and said, “When the Christ comes, will he give more signs than this man?”

³² The Pharisees heard all these rumors among the people; they and the chief priests sent officers of the temple to arrest him. ³³ Jesus then said, “I shall be with you a little longer; after that I shall go to him who sent me. ³⁴ You will look for me and you will not find me. Where I am you cannot come.”

Am 8:11;
Is 55:6

³⁵ The Jews said to one another, “Where does this man intend to go, where we shall not find him? Will he go abroad to the Jews dispersed among the Greek nations, and teach the Greeks also? ³⁶ What does he mean when he says, ‘You will look for me and not find me,’ and, ‘Where I am going you cannot come?’”

13:36;
Acts
11:20

16:16;
Dt 4:29

The promise of living water

•³⁷ On the last and greatest day of the festival, Jesus stood up and proclaimed, “Let anyone who is thirsty come to me; ³⁸ and let the one who believes in me drink, for the Scrip-

4:10;
19:34;
Rev 21:6;
22:17;

were important to them; they were interested in God only in the measure to which they had made him the defender of these things (Mt 23:29).

• 25. SALVATION—SEEKING THE TRUTH

Who is Jesus? It is very important for us to know who Jesus is and from where he comes because, unlike the founders of other religions, he offers us the unheard of gift of sharing in God’s very life. If Jesus does not come from God, of what value is this promise?

We need to discover for ourselves who Jesus is, because it is only in this way that we will be saved.

As a person he attracts us, but his words shock us. When Jesus proclaims that the Kingdom is at hand, that we are sons and daughters of God, we think he uses figures of speech since the reality appears to be quite different. In time, with more experience and suffering, we modify our viewpoint and discover that the world and people are just as he describes them. We then acknowledge him as Savior. In another way, we are saved because we have acquired the capacity to see things as God does. Hence, when we wish to help others arrive at faith, it is better at times to refrain from discussions about religion. They must first enter into themselves to discover the wellspring of life. One cannot advance in the knowledge of Christ without advancing in knowledge of oneself.

We know where this man comes from (v. 27). So these Jews thought they knew who God was and what his plans were; but, in reality, they interpreted everything according to their own views and remained closed to the Truth. Standing before them, Jesus claimed to be the Envoy of God. In speaking like this he was not looking for a title to become credible, but wanted to emphasize his total dependence on the Father and his intimate knowledge of him.

You will look for me and you will not find me (v. 34). This is the same warning God gave through earlier prophets (Jer 13:16). Once again, Jesus applies to himself scriptural words and prerogatives reserved for God.

• 37. THE COMMUNICATION OF THE SPIRIT

Spirit had not yet been given. In Wisdom 1:7, however, we read, “the Spirit of God fills the universe.” Actually God never ceased communicating himself. His Spirit enters into a

Is 55:1;
Ezk 47:1;
Zec 13:1

ture says: Out of the believer's heart shall flow rivers of living water."

15:7;
16:7;
20:22;
Acts
19:2

³⁹ Jesus was referring to the Spirit, which those who believe in him were to receive; the Spirit had not yet been given, because Jesus had not yet entered into his glory.

Dispute on the origin of Christ

6:14;
Dt 18:15

⁴⁰ Many who had been listening to these words began to say, "This is the Prophet." ⁴¹ Others said, "This is the Christ." But some wondered, "Would the Christ come from Galilee?" ⁴² Doesn't Scripture say that the Christ is a descendant of David and from Bethlehem, the city of David?"

Ps 89:4;
Mic 5:1

⁴³ The crowd was divided over him.

⁴⁴ Some wanted to arrest him, but no one laid hands on him.

⁴⁵ The officers of the Temple went back to the chief priests, who asked them, "Why didn't you bring him?"

⁴⁶ The officers answered, "No one person's spirit whom he awakens, animates and impels. At all times he has been active in the artists, thinkers and heroes, and is also present in the spirit of people of upright heart.

The Spirit is not poured out like water. The Spirit of God becomes one with the spirit of the one who receives him. As long as we do not know God in truth, the Spirit comes "over" us, as occurred with the liberators of Israel, who did not necessarily become better for having been an instrument of God (Jdg 11:29). Only after Jesus had entered into his Glory could he give his Spirit to those who would be united with him.

Spirit had not been given. Many manuscripts read: There was no Spirit. In fact the meaning is the same. In this second way of speaking spirit refers to the manifold communications of God's Spirit.

This ambiguity sounds strange to believers, who consider the Spirit to be a divine Person. Of course, the Spirit is as much person and as much God as the Father and the Son are, but the Spirit's manner of being God and person and One is not the same. The Spirit is "communication of God dispensed" to all creatures through all times. He is somehow able to distribute himself, dwelling in each creature with different gifts; then he brings them back to ever spoke like this man." ⁴⁷ The Pharisees then said, "So you, too, have been led astray! ⁴⁸ Have any of the rulers or any of the Pharisees believed in him? ⁴⁹ Only these cursed people, who have no knowledge of the Law!"

Mt 13:54

⁵⁰ Yet one of them, Nicodemus, who had gone to Jesus earlier, spoke out, ⁵¹ "Does our law condemn people without first hearing them and knowing the facts?" ⁵² They replied, "Do you, too, come from Galilee? Look it up and see for yourself that no prophet is to come from Galilee."

12:42;
1Cor 12:6

⁵³ And they all went home.

Dt 17:4

The adulteress

8 • ¹ As for Jesus, he went to the Mount of Olives.

² At daybreak Jesus appeared in the Temple again. All the people came to him, and he sat down and began to teach them.

Lk 21:37;
Mt 26:55

unity in God. Because of this, Scripture sometimes says: "the Spirit," at other times: "spirit" (Lk 1:15; Acts 6:3), or even: "the spirits" (Rev 1:4; 3:1).

Out of him shall flow rivers of living water. Compare 4:10. Bread and water: the Body of Christ and the gift of the Holy Spirit. In 7:38 we read: Out of him shall flow rivers of living water.

• 8.1 The selection 8:1-11 is not found in most ancient manuscripts of John's Gospel. Many think that this selection is from other sources. Perhaps it did belong to the gospel of Luke (compare 8:2 and Lk 21:38) and was later inserted in John's text.

If Jesus showed such respect to the sinner and refused to condemn her, as humans would, was it because he did not consider her fault grave? No, it was because God uses different ways than people do to bring sinners to repentance and to purify them through suffering.

There is a big difference between telling a person his ideas or deeds are wrong or sinful, and condemning him. We usually condemn the person; we do not make room for change and mercy. In this Gospel episode Jesus is both demanding and merciful towards the woman.

Lk 7:37 ³Then the teachers of the Law and the Pharisees brought in a woman who had been caught in the act of adultery. They made her stand in front of everyone. ⁴"Master," they said, "this woman has been caught in the act of adultery. ⁵Now the Law of Moses orders that such women be stoned to death; but you, what do you say?" ⁶They said this to test Jesus, in order to have some charge against him.

Jer 17:13 Jesus bent down and started writing on the ground with his finger. ⁷And as they continued to ask him, he straightened up and said to them, "Let anyone among you who has no sin be the first to throw a stone at her." ⁸And he bent down again, writing on the ground.

Dt 22:22 It seems that certain pages in John's Gospel have shifted. We already remarked that the section 7:19-24 is really a continuation of chapter 5.

Also, the discourse 8:12-29 seems to be a continuation of the miracle story related in chapter 9. After healing the blind man and proving the spiritual blindness of the Pharisees, Jesus declares: I am the light. Jesus' pronouncement: hence I have just told you that you will die in your sins (8:24), reminds us of the saying in 9:41.

• 12. THE LIGHT

Jesus is the light for all people of all times. God guided the Hebrews in the desert by means of a luminous cloud. He guides us through his Son; whoever follows Jesus will not walk in darkness.

Light means many good things: the welcome light of dawn after a night of darkness; the electric lights which illumine our homes while darkness reigns outside; the street lights which shine for everyone, poor and rich alike; the light that triumphs over the dark forces of evil and ignorance. Christ is all that and more for whoever follows him. He is the light by which we live with wholeness and integrity, and through whom we learn to attribute to material things and human activities their proper value.

By the light of Christ a person triumphs over all inner darkness. We are conscious of only a small part of our inner self; we often obey im-

⁹As a result of these words, they went away, one by one, starting with the elders, and Jesus was left alone with the woman standing before him. ¹⁰Then Jesus stood up and said to her, "Woman, where are they? Has no one condemned you?" ¹¹She replied, "No one." And Jesus said, "Neither do I condemn you; go away and don't sin again."

I Am the light of the world

• ¹²Jesus spoke to them again, "I am the Light of the world; the one who follows me will not walk in darkness, but will have light and life." ¹³The Pharisees replied, "Now you are speaking on your own behalf, your testimony is worthless."

¹⁴Then Jesus said, "Even though I pulses not under our control that come from our nature. Good intentions animate us, and we have a clean heart (so we think), but we do not realize that actually we often obey the call "of flesh and blood," as the Bible puts it. If we live in the light, the light will gradually illumine our innermost being.

Part of the human condition aggravated by sin is the absence of light for seeking and discerning what is good. Therefore, in serious matters, it is not wise to simply follow our first impulse. We need to be continuously enlightened through prayer, listening to the word of God, studying the teaching of the Church, and accepting the good advice of our brothers and sisters. By these means Jesus enlightens our conscience.

I AM

In this discourse Jesus gives witness to his own divinity. He makes us understand that in him there is a mysterious secret regarding his origin. On this page we read the expression I am seven times. John wishes us to understand that this is the key word of the discourse. I AM. It was thus God designated himself, speaking to Moses. We know that the Jews called God, Yahweh, that is, He who is. Jesus declares: "I am," thus claiming for himself the Name that should not be given to any creature, no matter how prominent the person might be. There are Christians (e.g. the Witnesses of Jehovah) who would make Christ less than he is. They argue that since God is only one, how can the 5:14;

Ezk
33:11

14:9;
9:5;
12:46;
Mt 5:14

5:31

bear witness to myself, my testimony is true, for I know where I have come from and where I am going. But you do not know where I came from or where I am going.

¹⁵You judge by human standards; as for me, I don't judge anyone. ¹⁶But if I had to judge, my judgment would be valid for I am not alone: the Father who sent me is with me. ¹⁷In your Law it is written that the testimony of two witnesses is valid; ¹⁸so I am bearing witness to myself, and the Father who sent me bears witness to me."

¹⁹They asked him, "Where is your Father?" Jesus answered, "You don't know me or my Father; if you knew me, you would know my Father as well."

²⁰Jesus said these things when he was teaching in the Temple area, in the place where they received the offerings. No one arrested him, because his hour had not yet come.

²¹Again Jesus said to them, "I am going away, and though you look for me, you will die in your sin. Where I am going you cannot come." ²²The Jews wondered, "Why does he say that we can't come where he is going? Will he kill himself?"

²³But Jesus said, "You are from below and I am from above; you are of this world and I am not of this world. ²⁴That is why I told you that you will die in your sins. And you shall die in your sins, unless you believe that I am He."

²⁵They asked him, "Who are you?"; and Jesus said, "Just what I have told you from the beginning. ²⁶I have much to say about you and much to condemn; but the One who sent me is truthful and everything I learned from him, I proclaim to the world."

²⁷They didn't understand that Jesus was speaking to them about the Father. ²⁸So Jesus said, "When you have lifted up the Son of Man, then you will know that I am He and that I do nothing of myself, but I say just what the Father taught me. ²⁹He who sent me is with me and has not left me alone; because I always do what pleases him."

The children of truth

• ³⁰As Jesus spoke like this, many believed in him. ³¹Jesus went on to say to the Jews who believed in him, "You will be my true disciples, if you keep my word. ³²Then you will know fullness of divine life be shared among three persons. While they call Christ the Son of God, they deny that he is God born of God. Yet Jesus IS as much as the Father, and must not be confused with the Father, hence he says: The Father sent me, and also: The testimony of two persons is worthy (in the Jewish Law code).

You will die in your sin (vv. 21 & 24). Sin is not just doing something bad. Sin is, also, to enclose ourselves in our own petty problems and rely only on human wisdom, without opening ourselves to the horizons of God. This eventually leads to death, for a life closed to God is no real life. The Bible divides people into two groups: those from above, who seek God's ways, and those from below, who seek limited human goals. Sin is to refuse to allow oneself to be born again from above, as Jesus told Nicodemus (3:3). These Jews did not believe in Jesus, because his way of life and his message reflected a world of transcendent values—beyond this world—that did not attract them. Jesus would have wasted his time with them; the wisdom of God would be better revealed in his death on the cross (v. 28).

• 30. THE TRUTH—FREEDOM—SIN

Jesus spoke to the Jews who believed in him. Those Jews believed in Jesus according to their own view of him, very much like the Jews whom Paul would oppose in Galatians 3-4 did. From Jesus' discussions with those who claimed to have the true religion, we can surmise how Jesus would confront us were he to pass among us today.

Jesus would not reproach us so much for our sins, as for our continuing to live in sin.

Dt 17:6;
Num
35:30
5:32

12:45;
16:3

Mk 12:41

7:33;
13:36

Am 8:11;
Pro 1:22

3:31

Is 43:11

3:14;
12:32

16:32

Lk 3:8 the truth, and the truth will set you free.”³³ They answered him, “We are the descendants of Abraham and have never been slaves of anyone. What do you mean by saying: You will be free?”

Rom 6:17; 1Jn 3:8
Gen 21:10; Gal 4:30; Rom 6:18; 2Cor 3:17
Mt 21:38
³⁴ Jesus answered them, “Truly, I say to you, whoever commits sin is a slave.³⁵ But the slave doesn’t stay in the house forever; the son stays forever.³⁶ So, if the Son makes you free, you will be really free.

³⁷ I know that you are the descendants of Abraham; yet you want to kill me because my word finds no place in you.³⁸ For my part, I speak of what I have seen in my Father’s presence, but you do what you have learned from your father.”

³⁹ They answered him, “Our father is Abraham.” Then Jesus said, “If you were Abraham’s children, you would do as Abraham did.⁴⁰ But now you want to kill me, the one who tells you the truth—the truth that I have learned from God. That is not what Abraham did;⁴¹ what you are doing are the works of your father.”

The Jews said to him, “We are not illegitimate children; we have one Father, God.”⁴² Jesus replied, “If God were your Father you would love me, for I came forth from God, and I am here. And I didn’t come by my own decision, but it was he himself who sent me.⁴³ Why do you not understand my teaching? It is because you cannot bear my message.

⁴⁴ The father you spring from is the devil, and you will carry out the evil wishes of your father, who has been a murderer from the beginning. He

Is 63:16;
64:8

Gen 3:4;
Wis 2:24;
Rom 5:12;
1P 5:8;
1Jn 3:8

Sins are evil deeds that at times may be excusable; often we repent of them as soon as we have committed them. To be in sin, on the other hand, is to live in falsehood; it is to persist stubbornly in a certain pride, an attachment to our own judgments. This attitude prevents us from entering into the ways of God, even though to all appearances we live an upright life and proclaim our faith.

Jesus is not a banner for every social group, whether known as Catholic or by some other name, with which we go to fight other groups. He has come as a king of the kingdom of truth. Those who seek the truth are his, whatever their ideas may be. Rather, those who live in truth are his.

For those Jews the world was divided into two groups: the sons of Abraham, that is themselves, and the rest. They boasted of their ancestry and forgot that in God’s eyes, each one is what he is.

Jesus comes to them as a witness to the truth; and his presence alone obliges all to examine themselves. The truth Jesus speaks of is not a doctrine that his followers should impose by force. Propagandists with arguments and biblical quotations are not needed, but witnesses who speak from their experience. Jesus says: The truth will make you free, and: the Son will make you free (vv. 32 & 36). Our truth consists in living in accordance with our vocation as children of God.

The believer who knows he is loved by God and consequently endeavors to be authentic is already in the truth, even if he retains some prejudices common to his milieu, or is unconsciously guided by some lies or illusions in his way of living.

Jesus also speaks of freedom. Truth and freedom go together. Many individuals and peoples have not spared themselves in an effort to break their chains. Once liberated they quickly fall into other forms of subjugation, because the root of all slavery lies within everyone.

By doing evil one becomes an accomplice of the Devil and, even without wanting to do so, falls into a trap. He will then be unable to resist the illusions and harmful influences by which the Father of Lies brings the world under his power (v. 44).

As long as we continue to be unconcerned about our true condition and are either agitated or idle, we are no more than slaves, even though we may excel in wealth, knowledge or status. We thus add to the population of the world of below (v. 23), which is unstable. Generations of slaves will follow like the waves of the sea: slaves are people who are for a time in the house (v. 35). Christ enables us to enter yet another world, the world above in which the sons and daughters stay forever (v. 35). From the time we become children of God, everything we do bears fruit for eternity.

didn't uphold the truth for, in him, there is no truth; and now, when he speaks for himself, he lies. He is a liar and the father of lies.

⁴⁵Now I speak the truth and you don't believe me. ⁴⁶Which of you could find anything false in me? Then, if I speak the truth, why do you not believe me? ⁴⁷He who is of God hears the words of God; you don't hear because you are not of God."

10:26;
18:37

Sir 50:26

⁴⁸The Jews retorted, "So we are right in saying that you are a Samaritan and are possessed by a demon." ⁴⁹Jesus said, "I am not possessed, and you try to shame me when I give honor to my Father. ⁵⁰I don't care about my own glory; there is One who cares for me and he will be the judge.

5:41;
1P 2:23

11:25;
14:23

⁵¹Truly, I say to you, if anyone keeps my word, he will never experience death." ⁵²The Jews replied, "Now we know that you have a demon. Abraham died and the prophets as well, but you say, 'Whoever keeps my word will never experience death.' Who do you claim to be?"

⁵³Do you claim to be greater than our father Abraham, who died? And the prophets also died."

⁵⁴Then Jesus said, "If I were to praise myself, it would count for nothing. But he who gives glory to me is the Father, the very one you claim as your God, ⁵⁵although you don't know him. I know him, and if I were to say that I don't know him, I would be a liar like you. But I know him and I keep his word.

Lk 10:22

⁵⁶As for Abraham, your ancestor, he looked forward to the day when I would come; and he rejoiced when he saw it."

Gen
17:17;
Mt 13:17

⁵⁷The Jews then said to him, "You are not yet fifty years old and you have seen Abraham?" ⁵⁸And Jesus said, "Truly, I say to you, before Abraham was, I am." ⁵⁹They then picked up stones to throw at him, but Jesus hid himself and left the Temple.

1:1;
13:30

Jesus heals the man born blind

9 • ¹As Jesus walked along, he saw a man who had been blind

• 9.1 TO BELIEVE IS TO SEE

Jesus is the light: the blind man sees the light of day. Jesus is the light, but people are divided about him. Some are open to the light, that is, to faith; others remain blind, that is to say, they keep their own ideas and "their own" belief and refuse to believe in the messenger of God.

One way of deepening our understanding of this chapter would be to observe the Jewish people's reactions to the miracle. Some open themselves to the light, that is, to faith; while others prefer to follow their own lights. This Gospel story shows us the blind man who immediately understands the significance of the cure, the fearful and pragmatic parents, and the Pharisees who do nothing but judge and are unaware that they condemn themselves as they judge.

The Gospel opens up to us another way of interpreting the miracle: the one who begins to see is the believer (see vv. 4, 39-41).

Master, was it a sin of his or his parents?

(v. 2). Jesus refuses to consider every misfortune as God's punishment. The healing of the blind man was performed on the Sabbath. So people wonder if God will side with the law forbidding work on that day, or with the man who performed such a good work. The Pharisees defend the Law, as is to be expected from people who are closer to the written word and more distant from human needs.

You don't know where the man comes from? Who live in such a way that they are able to receive the truth? It is quite understandable that the Pharisees cast out the blind man, because faith in Christ necessarily separates the believer from those who do not recognize the way God is working.

Many people think that faith is an illusion. They think faith is a cover-up of reality and that what is real is limited to material things, only that which is seen, touched, counted or measured.

Truth is different. The believer sees the same things that others see and know; but be-

Ezk 18:20; Lk 13:2 from birth. ²His disciples asked him, “Master, was he born blind because of a sin of his, or of his parents?”

³Jesus answered, “Neither was it for his own sin nor for his parents’ sin. He was born blind so that God’s power might be shown in him.

11:9; 12:35 ⁴While it is day we must do the work of the One who sent me; for the night will come when no one can work.

8:12; 12:46; Is 49:6 ⁵As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world.”

Mk 8:23 ⁶As Jesus said this, he made paste with spittle and clay, and rubbed it on the eyes of the blind man. ⁷Then he said, “Go and wash in the Pool of Siloam.” (This word means sent.) So the blind man went and washed and came back able to see.

Is 8:6 ⁸His neighbors, and all the people who used to see him begging, wondered. They said, “Isn’t this the beggar who used to sit here?” ⁹Some said, “He’s the one.” Others said, “No, but he looks like him.” But the man himself said, “I am he.” ¹⁰Then they asked him, “How is it that your eyes were opened?” ¹¹And he answered, “The man called Jesus made a mud paste, put it on my eyes and said to me, ‘Go to Siloam and wash.’ So I went, and washed, and I could see.” ¹²They asked, “Where is he?” and the man answered, “I don’t know.”

Mt 12:10; Lk 14:1 ¹³The people brought the man who had been blind to the Pharisees.

¹⁴Now it was a sabbath day when Jesus made mud paste and opened his eyes. ¹⁵The Pharisees asked him again, “How did you recover your sight?” And he said, “He put paste on my eyes, and I washed, and now I see.” ¹⁶Some of the Pharisees said, “That man is not from God, for he works on the Sabbath”; but others wondered, “How can a sinner perform such miraculous signs?” They were divided, ¹⁷and they questioned the blind man again, “What do you think of this man who opened your eyes?” And he answered, “He is a prophet!”

¹⁸After all this, the Jews refused to believe that the man had been blind and had recovered his sight; so they called his parents ¹⁹and asked them, “Is this your son? You say that he was born blind, how is it that he now sees?” ²⁰The parents answered, “He really is our son and he was born blind; ²¹but how it is that he now sees, we don’t know, neither do we know who opened his eyes. Ask him, he is old enough. Let him speak for himself.”

²²The parents said this because they feared the Jews, who had already agreed that whoever confessed Jesus to be the Christ was to be expelled from the synagogue. ²³Because of that his parents said, “He is old enough, ask him.”

²⁴So a second time the Pharisees called the man who had been blind, sides that, she captures something that escapes those who lack faith. A special sense is needed to see beyond the material world.

Mt 16:14

7:13; 12:42

Christian faith is more than belief in a God higher than us. Faith is an ability to know by the light of Christ everything that is true, either in the goals or the means people use. The faithful one sees whatever other people see, but also perceives something that is out of their reach. We should not think that to believe or not to believe is a matter of minor importance in the struggles of life. Even when fighting together with non-Christians for concrete goals, we will hardly agree on what is more important.

With the coming of Christ a sentence, or judgment, is carried out (9:39). This means that humanity begins to be divided, because all must take a position in respect to him. Jesus judges people, or rather, we are those who judge ourselves when we accept or reject him.

and they said to him, "Tell us the truth; we know that this man is a sinner." ²⁵He replied, "I don't know whether he is a sinner or not; I only know that I was blind and now I see." ²⁶They said to him, "What did he do to you? How did he open your eyes?" ²⁷He replied, "I have told you already and you would not listen. Why do you want to hear it again? Do you also want to become his disciples?"

²⁸Then they started to insult him. "Become his disciple yourself! We are disciples of Moses. ²⁹We know that God spoke to Moses; but as for this man, we don't know where he comes from."

³⁰The man replied, "It is amazing that you don't know where the man comes from, and yet he opened my eyes! ³¹We know that God doesn't listen to sinners, but if anyone honors God and does his will, God listens to him. ³²Never, since the world began, has it been heard that anyone opened the eyes of a person who was born blind. ³³If this man were not from God, he could do nothing."

³⁴They answered him, "You were born a sinner and now you teach us!" And they expelled him.

³⁵Jesus heard that they had expelled him. He found him and said, "Do you believe in the Son of Man?" ³⁶He answered, "Who is he, that I may believe in him?" ³⁷Jesus said, "You have seen him and he is speaking to you. ³⁸He said, "Lord, I believe"; and he worshiped him.

³⁹Jesus said, "I came into this world to carry out a judgment: Those who do not see shall see, and those who see shall become blind." ⁴⁰Some Pharisees stood by and asked him, "So we are blind?" ⁴¹And Jesus answered, "If you were blind, you would not be guilty. But you say, 'We see'; this is the proof of your sin."

The good shepherd

10 ¹Truly, I say to you, anyone who does not enter the sheepfold by the gate, but climbs in some other way, is a thief and a robber. ²But the shepherd of the sheep enters by the gate. ³The keeper opens the gate to him and the sheep hear his voice; he calls each of his sheep

8:12;
12:47;
Mt 13:13;
Lk 18:14;
1Cor
1:20
Mt 15:14
3:36;
15:22;
Sir 18:13;
Rev 7:17;
Num
15:30

Mic 2:12

Ps 95:7

Ps
66:18;
Is 1:15;
Pro
15:29

Ps 51:5

• 10.1 COUNTRY WITHOUT FRONTIERS

Thanks to the parable of Jesus, we can imagine one of those sheepfolds in which the flocks of various shepherds are gathered together for the night under the vigilance of one caretaker. At dawn, each calls his sheep and leads them out.

The Bible foretold the day in which God would come to gather together the dispersed sheep of his people, so that they would live in their land. Jesus is the Shepherd and he has come to accomplish what was announced, but he will not do it in the expected way. The Jews thought that the Shepherd would revive their former prosperity: they would again be a privileged nation among other nations.

Jesus says clearly that his people are not to be thought of as identical to the Jewish nation. Those who believe, and only they, are his. He will take from among the Jews those who are his; likewise, he will take sheep from other folds as well (v. 16), that is, from among nations other than the Jewish nation. Therefore, he will lead them all and will guide this flock—which is not a nation with land boundaries—to where he knows. The only flock (not the only "fold", as people say), that is, the only Church, moves freely through history, not confined to any one nation or era of civilization.

The shepherds of the Jewish people thought they could achieve unity by promoting national pride, by maintaining the privileges of the "higher" castes, and by discriminating against non-Jews. Jesus unites his people solely by attracting them to himself, by letting people experience who he is. All who are attracted to him, recognize his voice and believe his word are his.

People willingly gather around great figures, whether they be leaders or saints. When a people have neither frontiers, arms, language, nor laws to defend themselves against external and internal dissension, the presence of a Shepherd or leader is even more essential. Faith in by name and leads them out. ⁴When he has brought out all his own, he goes before them, and the sheep follow him for they know his voice. ⁵A stranger they will not follow, but rather they will run away from him, because they don't recognize a stranger's voice."

Mic 2:12

⁶Jesus used this comparison, but they did not understand what he was saying to them.

⁷So Jesus said, "Truly, I say to you, I am the gate of the sheep. ⁸All who came were thieves and robbers, and the sheep did not hear them. ⁹I am the gate. Whoever enters through me will be saved; he will go in and out freely and find food.

Jer 23:1; Ezk 34:2

Ps 23; Is 49:9

¹⁰The thief comes to steal and kill and destroy, but I have come that they may have life, life in all its fullness.

¹¹I am the good shepherd. The good shepherd gives his life for the sheep. ¹²Not so the hired hand, or any other person who is not the shepherd, and to whom the sheep do not belong. They abandon the sheep as soon as they see the wolf coming; then the wolf snatches and scatters the sheep. ¹³This is because the hired hand works for pay and cares nothing for the sheep.

Is 40:11; Ezk 34:15; 37:24; Zec 11:17; Acts 20:29; 1P 5:2

¹⁴I am the good shepherd. I know my own and my own know me, ¹⁵as the Father knows me and I know the Father. Because of this, I give my life for my sheep.

1Cor 8:2; 13:12; Gal 4:9; 2Tim 2:19; Mt 11:25

¹⁶I have other sheep which are not of this fold. These I have to lead as well, and they shall listen to my voice. Then there will be one flock, since there is one shepherd.

11:52; 18:37; 21:15; Is 49:6; Ezk 37:24; 1P 2:25

¹⁷The Father loves me, because I lay down my life in order to take it up again. ¹⁸No one takes it from me, but I lay it down freely. It is mine to lay down and to take up again: this mission I received from my Father."

Phil 2:8; Jn 14:31; 15:10; Rev 5:9

¹⁹Because of these words, the Jews were divided again. ²⁰Many of them said, "He has a demon and is out of his mind. Why listen to him?" ²¹But others said, "A man possessed doesn't speak in this way. Can a demon open the eyes of the blind?"

Jesus claims to be the Son of God

²²The time came for the feast of the Dedication. It was winter, ²³and Jesus walked back and forth in the portico of Solomon. ²⁴The Jews then gathered around him and said to him, "How long will you keep us in doubt? If you are the Messiah, tell us plainly." ²⁵Jesus answered, "I have already told you, but you do not believe. ²⁶The works I do in my Father's name proclaim who I am, but you don't believe because, as I said, you are not my sheep.

1Mac 4:36

Acts 3:11; 5:12

8:25

1Cor 2:14; Jn 6:37

²⁷My sheep hear my voice and I know them; they follow me ²⁸and I give them eternal life. They shall never perish, and no one will ever steal them from me. ²⁹What the Fa-

6:39; 17:2;

Christ unites us far better than does fidelity to traditions of the past or solidarity with co-religionists. Christ's people are not a mass; it is nor Humanity with a capital H. They are composed of persons who have begun an adventure with Jesus of mutual trust and love. I know them and they will hear my voice (vv. 14 & 16).

When the Bible speaks of the Shepherd, it usually refers to God himself, the only king of Israel, but sometimes means the King-Messiah sent by God. Jesus spoke of only one shepherd. Though distinct from the Father, he is one with him (v. 30).

In the Bible angels are sometimes called sons of God, and Jesus remarks that the rulers are called gods. Because of this, Jesus did not like to be proclaimed Son of God. He speaks forcefully in saying: the Father is in me and I in the Father: equal to equal (v. 38). At the same time that he stresses his divine power (vv. 15, 18, 29, 38), he also affirms his total dependence on the Father. In this we recognize God the Son.

17:12; 18:9; Dt 32:39; Rom 8:33; 1P 1:15 ther has given me is above everything else, and no one can snatch it from out of the Father's hand. ³⁰I and the Father are One."

8:59 ³¹The Jews then picked up stones to throw at him; ³²so Jesus said, "I have openly done many good works among you, which the Father gave me to do. For which of these do you stone me?"

Mk 14:64 ³³The Jews answered, "We are not stoning you for doing a good work, but for insulting God; you are only a man, and you make yourself God."

Ps 82:6; 1Cor 8:5
Jer 1:5 ³⁴Then Jesus replied, "Is this not written in your law: I said, you are gods? ³⁵So those who received this word of God were called gods, and the Scripture is always true. ³⁶What then should be said of the one anointed, and sent into the world, by the Father? Am I insulting God when I say, 'I am the Son of God'?"

³⁷If I am not doing the works of my Father, do not believe me. ³⁸But if I do them, even if you have no faith in me, believe because of the works I do; and know that the Father is in me, and I in the Father."

8:59 ³⁹Again they tried to arrest him, but Jesus escaped from their hands. ⁴⁰He went away again to the other side of the Jordan, to the place where John had baptized, and there he stayed.

⁴¹Many people came to Jesus, and said, "John worked no miracles, but he spoke about you, and everything he said was true." ⁴²And many became believers in that place.

The raising of Lazarus

11 ¹There was a sick man named Lazarus who was from Bethany, the village of Mary and her sister Martha. ²It was the same Mary, who anointed the Lord with perfume and wiped his feet with her hair. Her brother Lazarus was sick.

³So the sisters sent this message to Jesus, "Lord, the one you love is sick." ⁴On hearing this, Jesus said, "This illness will not end in death; rather it is for God's glory, and the Son of God will be glorified through it."

⁵It is a fact that Jesus loved Martha and her sister and Lazarus; ⁶yet, after he heard of the illness of Lazarus, he stayed two days longer in the

• 11.1 This is the seventh and last miracle of Jesus recorded in John's Gospel. Intentionally, the first words are designed to present the sick man: Lazarus personifies the person wounded by sin, who is in process of dying unless Christ calls him to life.

Lazarus came back to life! Let us not be astounded that Lazarus had the good fortune to live for a few more years and the misfortune of having to die again. This noticeable miracle only foretells the true resurrection that does not just prolong life but transforms our entire being. The resurrection is spiritual. It begins when faith moves a person to give up wrong ways of living and become open to receiving God's life.

The Jews believed in the resurrection of the dead on the last day, as Martha mentioned (v. 24). They thought a divine force would come to shake the universe and open the tombs so the dead could come out. In reality, the resurrection of the dead comes about through someone, the Son of God, who has in himself all the power needed to raise people to life and to transform creation. One who lives in submission to Christ has already passed from death to life (5:24) and, because of this, will never die (v. 26).

All the persons mentioned here called Jesus "Master," but John has them say Lord. In this way he teaches us that this miracle of Lazarus recalled to life is an image of the glorious resurrection of Jesus, the Lord. (Regarding this term "the Lord" which is one of the strongest proofs of the faith of the early Church in the divinity of Jesus, see the commentary in Acts 2:36.)

The Jews wanted to kill Jesus (v. 8), but it was legally difficult for them to take Jesus prisoner. They could do this only in the province of Jerusalem, where their religious communities and political organization were strong. As 12:1;

Mk 10:1

Lk 10:382:11;
9:33

place where he was. ⁷Only then did he say to his disciples, "Let us go into Judea again." ⁸They replied, "Master, recently the Jews wanted to stone you. Are you going there again?"

7:8;
9:4

⁹Jesus said to them, "Are not twelve working hours needed to complete a day? Those who walk in the daytime shall not stumble, for they see the light of this world. ¹⁰But those who walk at night stumble, for there is no light in them."

8:12;
12:35

Mk 5:39;
Lk 8:52

¹¹After that Jesus said to them, "Our friend Lazarus has fallen asleep, but I am going to wake him."

Acts
7:60

¹²The disciples replied, "Lord, a sick person who sleeps will recover."

¹³But Jesus had referred to Lazarus' death, while they thought that he had meant the repose of sleep. ¹⁴So Jesus said plainly, "Lazarus is dead; ¹⁵and for your sake I am glad I was not there, for now you may believe. But let us go there, where he is."

Mk
10:32

¹⁶Then Thomas, called the Twin, said to his fellow disciples, "Let us also go, that we may die with him."

¹⁷When Jesus came, he found that Lazarus had been in the tomb for four days. ¹⁸As Bethany is near Jerusalem, about two miles away, ¹⁹many Jews had come to Martha and Mary, after the death of their brother, to comfort them.

²⁰When Martha heard that Jesus was coming, she went to meet him, while Mary remained sitting in the house. ²¹And she said to Jesus, "If you had been here, my brother would not have died. ²²But I know that whatever you ask from God, God will give you." ²³Jesus said, "Your brother will rise again."

²⁴Martha replied, "I know that he will rise in the resurrection, at the last day." ²⁵But Jesus said to her, "I am the resurrection. Whoever believes in me, though he die, shall live. ²⁶Whoever lives and believes in me will never die. Do you believe this?"

Dn 12:1;
Acts
24:15;
Jn 5:28;
6:39

1Jn 3:14

²⁷Martha then answered, "Yes, Lord, I have come to believe that you are the Christ, the Son of God, he who is coming into the world."

Mt 16:16

²⁸After that Martha went and called her sister Mary secretly, saying, "The Master is here and is calling for you." ²⁹As soon as Mary heard this, she rose and went to him. ³⁰Jesus had not yet come into the village, but was still in the place where Martha had met him.

³¹The Jews, who were with her in the house consoling her, also came. When they saw her get up and go long as Jesus remained on the other side of the Jordan, he was secure. The resurrection of Lazarus hastened the time of Jesus' death and glorification.

The twelve hours (v. 9). Jesus will complete the twelve hours of his journey, that is, of his mission, without fear of the risks involved. Those who, like him, walk by day, that is, in accordance with the divine plan, will not stumble; Christ will be for them the light of the world.

I have come to believe that you are the Christ (v. 27). What more extraordinary profession of faith is there than Martha's! It is like Peter's (Mt 16:16), and in a short while it will be Mary who will tell about the resurrection to the same apostles. Truly the Gospel is not male chauvinist, nor does it enthrone ecclesiastical hierarchy.

Father, I thank you ... (v. 41). This act of thanksgiving is the only one we read in John, aside from the long prayer in chapter 17 that is full of praise for the Father. We read another such prayer in Luke 10:21. These recorded acts of thanksgiving may seem very few, considering that thanksgiving is an essential attitude of a Christian, but Jesus expressed his act of thanksgiving in all he did. In his mortal existence, he dispossessed himself of his own will and power so that the Father could use him for his greater glory (Jn 12:27-28).

Untie him (v. 44). For burial the Jews bound their dead with linen. This word "to untie" means something more, it was the expression used by the primitive Church in referring to forgiveness of sins. Like Lazarus, one who receives pardon returns to life.

out, they followed her, thinking that she was going to the tomb to weep.

³²As for Mary, when she came to the place where Jesus was and saw him, she fell at his feet and said, "Lord, if you had been here, my brother would not have died."

³³When Jesus saw her weeping, and the Jews also weeping, who had come with her, he was moved in the depths of his spirit and troubled.

³⁴Then he asked, "Where have you laid him?" They answered, "Lord, come and see." ³⁵Jesus wept.

³⁶The Jews said, "See how he loved him!" ³⁷But some of them said, "If he could open the eyes of the blind man, could he not have kept this man from dying?"

³⁸Jesus was deeply moved again, and drew near to the tomb. It was a cave with a stone laid across it. ³⁹Jesus said, "Take the stone away." Martha said to him, "Lord, by now he will smell, for this is the fourth day."

⁴⁰Jesus replied, "Have I not told you that, if you believe, you will see the glory of God?" ⁴¹So they removed the stone.

Jesus lifted up his eyes and said, "Father, I thank you for you have heard me. ⁴²I knew that you hear me always; but my prayer was for the sake of these people, that they may believe that you sent me." ⁴³When Jesus had said this, he cried out in a loud voice, "Lazarus, come out!"

⁴⁴The dead man came out, his hands and feet bound with linen strips, and his face wrapped in a cloth. Jesus said to them, "Untie him, and let him go."

The plot to kill Jesus

• ⁴⁵Many of the Jews who had come with Mary believed in Jesus when they saw what he did; ⁴⁶but some went to the Pharisees and told them what Jesus had done. ⁴⁷So the chief priests and the Pharisees called together the Council.

They said, "What are we to do? For this man keeps on giving miraculous signs. ⁴⁸If we let him go on like this, all the people will believe in him and, as a result of this, the Romans will come and destroy our Holy Place and our nation."

⁴⁹Then one of them, Caiaphas, who was High Priest that year, spoke up, "You know nothing at all, nor do you see clearly what you need. ⁵⁰It is better to have one man die for the people than to let the whole nation be destroyed."

⁵¹In saying this Caiaphas did not

5:26

19:40;
20:5

Lk 16:31

Mt 26:3

15:24;
Acts
4:16Lk 19:
41-421:14;
2:11;
4:23;17:1;
Mt 14:19

1K 18:36

• 45. THE CATHOLIC CHURCH

Caiaphas' words were fulfilled but not in the sense he intended. Jesus was going to die to gather into one the scattered children of God (v. 52).

The worldwide effect of Christ's resurrection is to unite all of humanity in renewed creation—as Jesus himself put it, "when I'm lifted up from earth I shall draw all to myself" (Jn 12:32). That is to say, the cross and resurrection are the source of communion and fraternity.

The Church reunites believers of all races and cultures: we call it "Catholic," that is, universal. This Church, however, is but a beginning and a sign of that which will be attained at the end of time, when the whole of humanity will be reunited in Christ (Rev 7).

In our world, preventing people from grouping together to discuss and understand their situation perpetuates the oppression of rural and urban masses. This hidden violence opposes unity. Some current ideologies promote a struggle for liberation that attempts to unite people by targeting adversaries and continually deciding on whom to expel. There, too, the seed of violence (for both murder and exclusion are violence) gives birth to more oppressive societies.

Christians should be the first to notice we are living in an exceptional century in which, for the first time, all peoples share the same history and must accept a common destiny, ei-

10:16 speak for himself, but being High Priest that year, he foretold like a prophet that Jesus would die for the nation, ⁵² and not for the nation only, but also would die to gather into one the scattered children of God. ⁵³ So, from that day on, they were determined to kill him.

7:1 ⁵⁴ Because of this, Jesus no longer moved about freely among the Jews. He withdrew instead to the country near the wilderness, and stayed with his disciples in a town called Ephraim.

2:13; 6:4; Num 9:6; Acts 21:24 ⁵⁵ The Passover of the Jews was at hand, and people from everywhere were coming to Jerusalem to purify themselves before the Passover.

⁵⁶ They looked for Jesus and, as they stood in the Temple, they talked with one another, "What do you think? Will he come to the festival?"

Mk 14:1 ⁵⁷ Meanwhile the chief priests and the elders had given orders that anyone who knew where he was should let them know, so that they could arrest him.

The supper at Bethany

(Mt 26:6; Mk 14:3)

12 ¹ Six days before the Passover, Jesus came to Bethany, where he had raised Lazarus, the dead man, to life. ² Now they gave a dinner for him, and while Martha waited on them, Lazarus sat at the table with Jesus.

³ Then Mary took a pound of costly perfume, made from genuine spikenard, and anointed the feet of Jesus, wiping them with her hair. And the whole house was filled with the fragrance of the perfume.

⁴ Judas Iscariot—the disciple who was to betray Jesus—remarked, ⁵ "This perfume could have been sold for three hundred silver coins, and the money given to the poor." ⁶ Judas, indeed, had no concern for the poor; he was a thief, and as he held

Mt 26:
6-13;
Mk 14: 3-9

11:2;
Lk 10:40

Lk 7:37

13:29;
Lk 8:3

ther willingly or by force. This awareness enables them to see and to indicate the goals of human effort. They must ponder all of human reality, and even international relationships, in the light of the Gospel and not waste all their energy in projects of aid for the poor.

• 12.1 Matthew and Mark also relate the incident at a supper when Mary showed her passionate love for Jesus. She loved him with all her strength, and her love, far from blinding her, made her sense and respect the mysterious personality of Jesus.

Not all the apostles understood her gesture, because they still had much to learn about loving Christ.

Like Judas we often speak of giving to the poor. Yet the Lord's command is not to give but to love. To love the poor is to reveal to them their call from God, and to help them grow as persons by overcoming their weaknesses and divisions and by fulfilling the mission God entrusted to them. The poor will live the Gospel and witness to it in the world. If we are not among them, we need conversion and true poverty to discover with them the Kingdom. How can we really love the poor unless we have passionate love for Jesus? When we do not, we prefer to speak only of giving to the poor.

Six days before the Passover. Mark and Matthew give the impression that this supper happened two days before the Passover, not six (Mt 26:2; Mk 14:1). The evangelists also disagree regarding the date of the Passover. While John declares that Jesus died on the eve of the Passover (Jn 19:14), the other three say that the Last Supper took place on the same day that the Jews celebrated the Passover. According to a very ancient tradition that various Oriental churches still maintain, Jesus could have celebrated the Last Supper, not on Thursday, but on Tuesday. His trial would then have lasted two days: Wednesday and Thursday. (That seems much more probable than having all the sessions of the double trial of Jesus in the one morning of Friday). He would die on Friday, as all the texts affirm.

A possible explanation for these disagreements might be the following: The Passover is celebrated in accordance with the new moon which is not a fixed date, nor is it determined according to the same criteria by everyone. Hence, in certain years some religious groups the common purse, he used to help himself to the funds.

19:40 ⁷But Jesus spoke up, "Leave her alone. Was she not keeping it for the day of my burial?" ⁸(The poor you always have with you, but you will not always have me.)"

Dt 15:11 ⁹Many Jews heard that Jesus was there and they came, not only because of Jesus, but also to see Lazarus whom he had raised from the dead. ¹⁰So the chief priests thought about killing Lazarus as well, ¹¹for many of the Jews were drifting away because of him, and believing in Jesus.

The Messiah enters Jerusalem

(Mt 21:5; Mk 11:1)

Mt 21: 1-9;
Mk 11: 1-10;
Lk 19: 28-38
Ps 118: 25-26;
1Mac 13:51;
Rev 7:9;
Jn 1:49

¹²The next day many people who had come for the festival heard that Jesus was to enter Jerusalem. ¹³So they took branches of palm trees and went out to meet him. And they cried out, "Hosanna! Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord! Blessed is the King of Israel!"

Zec 9:9 ¹⁴Jesus found a donkey and sat upon it, as Scripture says: ¹⁵*Do not fear, city of Zion! See, your king is coming, sitting on the colt of a donkey!*

2:22;
14:26 ¹⁶The disciples were not aware of this at first, but after Jesus was glorified, they realized that this had been written about him, and that this was what had happened to him.

¹⁷The people who came with him bore witness, and told how he had called Lazarus out of the tomb and raised him from the dead. ¹⁸It was because of this miraculous sign, which Jesus had given, that so many people welcomed him. ¹⁹In the meantime the Pharisees said to one another, "We are getting nowhere; the whole world has gone after him."

Unless the grain dies

• ²⁰There were some Greeks who had come up to Jerusalem to worship during the feast. ²¹They approached Philip, who was from Bethsaida in Galilee, and asked him, "Sir, we wish to see Jesus." ²²Philip went to Andrew, and the two of them told Jesus.

²³Then Jesus said, "The hour has come for the Son of Man to be glorified. ²⁴Truly, I say to you, unless the grain of wheat falls to the earth and dies, it remains alone; but if it dies, it produces much fruit.

²⁵Those who love their life destroy it, and those who despise their life in this world keep it for everlasting life.

²⁶Whoever wants to serve me, let him follow me; and wherever I am, there shall my servant be also. If celebrated it three days before others. Jesus could have celebrated the Passover on the eve of Wednesday, while the majority of the people celebrated on the eve of Saturday.

Three hundred dinarii would be nearly a year's salary for a laborer.

• 20. Several foreigners (called Greeks because of their language) were converted to the faith of the Jews. Though they did not observe the Jewish laws, they were accepted in the Temple of Jerusalem where a courtyard, (separate from that of the Jews) was reserved for them. The question from those Greeks offers Jesus the opportunity to announce that his kingdom will be extended through the whole earth, when he will have been raised on the cross.

Unless the grain of wheat falls into the earth and dies (v. 24). Jesus will die and the universal Church will be born. Jesus allows his lifeless body to be laid in the earth; on rising from the tomb, his same body, now glorified, will also embrace the believers united to him. The life that is now his will be communicated to all the children of God.

Unless the grain dies. This is the law for all life that will be fruitful (Mk 8:34). The first believers were already saying: "The blood of the martyrs is a seed."

• 27. This page of John's Gospel records

11:47

7:35

13:31;
17:1;
Is 53:10;
Mt 16:21;
1Cor 15:36Mk 8:35;
Lk 17:337:34;
14:3;
17:24;
Mt 16:24

anyone serves me, the Father will honor him.

16:21;
18:11;
Mk 14:34;
Heb 5:7

•²⁷ Now my soul is in distress. Shall I say, ‘Father, save me from this hour’? But I have come to this hour to face all this. ²⁸ Father, glorify your Name!” Then a voice came from heaven, “I have glorified it, and I will glorify it again.”

Mk 9:7;
Lk 3:22

Acts
23:9;
Lk 22:43

²⁹ People standing there heard something and said it was thunder; but others said, “An angel was speaking to him.” ³⁰ Then Jesus declared, “This voice did not come for my sake but for yours. ³¹ Now sentence is being passed on this world; now the prince of this world is to be cast down. ³² And when I am lifted up from the earth, I shall draw all to myself.”

3:19;
9:39

14:30;
16:11;
Lk 10:18;
Rev 12:9

3:14;
8:28

18:32;
21:19

³³ With these words Jesus referred to the kind of death he was to die.

³⁴ The crowd answered him, “We have been told in the Law that the Messiah stands forever. How can you say that the Son of Man shall be lifted up? What kind of Son of Man is that?”

Ps 89:5;
110:4;
Is 9:6;
Dn 7:14

³⁵ Jesus said to them, “The light will be with you a little longer. Walk while you have the light, lest the darkness overtake you. If you walk in the darkness, you do not know where you are going. ³⁶ While you have the light, believe in the light and become children of light.”

7:33;
8:12;
9:4;
12:46;
Jer
13:16

After Jesus had said this, he withdrew, and kept himself hidden.

11:10;
Eph 5:8;
1Thes
5:5

The unbelief of the Jews

• ³⁷ Even though Jesus had done so many miraculous signs among them, they didn’t believe in him. ³⁸ Indeed the words spoken by the

Dt 29:1;
Mt 11:20

Is 53:1;
Rom
10:16

both Jesus’ transfiguration (Mk 9:2) and agony in Gethsemane (Mk 14:32).

Then a voice came (v. 28). While Jesus was in the midst of the noisy crowd a noise erupted: a message from heaven or simply a noise? This event, insignificant perhaps for the historian, was like the fleeting presence of reality breaking through the illusory scene in which most people are caught up. The fact that the people misunderstood his message, and that later they would deliver him up to their rulers, has become of minor importance to Jesus. He looks beyond all that. Jesus knows that he cannot save the nation from historical failure, but he understands that his death will change the course of world events: he will conquer where the destiny of humankind is to be played out.

From the beginnings of our history, the ruler of this world, the Spirit of Evil, has obscured in humankind the capacity to recognize God. God has directed the whole of creation towards a progressive growth in maturity until the birth of the New Creature. Because of sin this birth comes about in a world characterized by suffering, indifference and slavery.

The only way to salvation is to return to obedience, not “to God,” but to the Father. And Christ had to open the way through his sacrifice: I have come to this hour to face all this (v. 27).

We easily forget that the purpose of our life is to glorify God. We do not glorify God principally by constructing temples or by singing: “Glory to God!” but by making ourselves pleasing and living sacrifices to God. A bishop and martyr of the primitive Church, St. Irenaeus, wrote: “God is glorified when people are fully alive: but for a person to be fully alive is to see God.”

A sacrifice is a surrender of something for the sake of something or someone else. Our sacrifice is to allow God to be our life, to make us like him and to prepare us to reflect his own Glory. This indeed requires sacrifice because God makes us pass through a death to attain this life. Through obedience to God’s will, we are freed of our selfishness and the limits of our present condition, and we are prepared for another and everlasting state. God is glorified when his children attain glory, that is to say, attain his own perfection and are transformed through fire and the Holy Spirit.

• 37. AN IRREPARABLE CHOICE

Jesus’ life of preaching is coming to an end. John later finds it difficult to understand how God’s chosen people could remain so blind regarding their Messiah. John tries to search out the meaning of this refusal by using two texts from the prophets:

The first is a long poem dedicated to the prophet Isaiah had to be fulfilled: Lord, who has believed what we proclaimed? To whom have the ways of God the Savior been made known?

³⁹They could not believe. Isaiah had said elsewhere: ⁴⁰*He let their eyes become blind and their hearts hard, so that they could neither see nor understand, nor be converted—otherwise, I would have healed them.* ⁴¹Isaiah said this when he saw his glory, and his words refer to him.

⁴²Many of them, however, believed in Jesus, even among the rulers, but they did not acknowledge him because of the Pharisees, lest they be put out of the Jewish community. ⁴³They preferred the favorable opinion of people, rather than by God's approval.

⁴⁴Yet Jesus had said, and even cried out, "Whoever believes in me, believes not in me, but in him who sent me. ⁴⁵And whoever sees me, sees him who sent me. ⁴⁶I have come into the world as light, so that whoever believes in me may not remain in darkness.

⁴⁷If anyone hears my words and does not keep them, I am not the one to condemn him; for I have come, not to condemn the world, but to save the world. ⁴⁸The one who rejects me, and does not receive my word, already has a judge: the very word I have spoken will condemn him on the last day.

⁴⁹For I have not spoken on my own authority; the Father, who sent me, has instructed me in what to say and how to speak. ⁵⁰I know that his commandment is eternal life, and that is why the message I give, I give as the Father instructed me."

14:7
3:19;
8:12;
9:5

5:19;
6:57;
7:17

Dt 31:26;
Jn 6:40;
17:2

SECOND PART: JESUS COMPLETES HIS WORK

12:12;
Jn 2:4

13 ¹It was before the feast of the Passover. Jesus realized that his hour had come, to pass from this world to the Father; and as he had Servant of Yahweh, a voluntary victim for the sake of his people (Is 53:1). It shows us that people do not willingly accept a humiliated Savior.

The second text shows how the rejection of Christ could have been foreseen. Indeed, the ancient prophets were also ignored while they were living, thus fulfilling a mysterious plan of God.

John stresses the sin of the majority who were not committed to Christ, although within themselves they secretly respected him. Somehow the Jewish people suspected that Jesus came from God, but to believe in what he claimed and asked was another matter.

For us, too, to believe in the Gospel is to take a stand; we cannot pass by the Church Jesus founded even though it may not be totally transparent. His word comes to us amidst numerous preoccupations, and most often we feel inclined to respond: "I'll see later!" When we neglect his word, we often think it is not grave. Actually it is God and his truth that we reject and we may not have another occasion to receive it. All eternity is decided today.

There is absolutely nothing in the Bible to support the belief that we will have other lives in order to repair our errors of today. If so many people of our time have grasped this belief in a succession of lives, it is above all because it encourages them to delay making real decisions; the devil takes charge of spreading this belief.

• 13.1 Here begins the second half of John's Gospel.

In the first half, through signs and discourses Jesus foretold the work he was going to accomplish in the world and the glory that would be given him after he would be "raised on high." Now Jesus' hour has come, in which he will realize all that was announced.

The second half begins with the farewell discourses of Jesus at the Last Supper.

Just as in the previous chapters each of Jesus' discourses begins with a miracle, the farewell discourses narrated in chapters 14-17 have, as a point of departure, the extraordinary act of the "washing of the feet." This gesture contains two lessons:

loved those who were his own in the world, he would love them with perfect love.

Jesus washes his disciples' feet

Mt 26:20 •²They were at supper, and the devil had already put into the mind of Judas, son of Simon Iscariot, to betray him. ³Jesus knew that the Father had entrusted all things to him, and as he had come from God, he was going to God. ⁴So he got up from the table, removed his garment, and taking a towel, wrapped it around his waist. ⁵Then he poured water into a basin, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel he was wearing.

Lk 12:37; 17:9; Lk 7:44 ⁶When he came to Simon Peter, Simon asked him, "Why, Lord, do you want to wash my feet?" ⁷Jesus said, "What I am doing you cannot understand now, but afterwards you will understand it." ⁸Peter replied, "You shall never wash my feet!"

Mt 16:22 Jesus answered him, "If I do not wash you, you can have no part with me." ⁹Then Simon Peter said, "Lord, wash not only my feet, but also my hands and my head!"

Eph 5:26 ¹⁰Jesus replied, "Whoever has taken a bath does not need to wash (except the feet), for he is clean all over. You are clean, though not all of you." ¹¹Jesus knew who was to betray him; because of this he said, "Not all of you are clean."

¹²When Jesus had finished washing their feet, he put on his garment again, went back to the table, and said to them, "Do you understand what I have done to you? ¹³You call me Master and Lord, and you are right, for so I am. ¹⁴If I, then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet, you also must wash one another's feet. ¹⁵I have just given you an example, that as I have done, you also may do.

¹⁶Truly, I say to you, the servant is not greater than his master, nor is the messenger greater than he who sent him. ¹⁷Understand this, and blessed are you, if you put it into practice.

¹⁸I am not speaking of you all, because I know the ones I have chosen, and the Scripture has to be fulfilled that says: The one who shared my table has risen against me. ¹⁹I tell you this now before it happens, so that when it does happen, you may know that I am He.

Lk 22:27; 1Tim 5:10
1P 5:5; 1Jn 3:16; Phil 2:5; Eph 5:2; Col 1:13

Mt 10:24; Lk 6:40; Jn 15:20

Ps 41:10

14:29; Mt 24:25

- the need to purify ourselves before participating in the Supper of the Lord.
- how the commitment of love is to be put into practice.

• 2. THE PENITENTIAL RITE

John does not narrate the institution of the Eucharist, but the Washing of the Feet and what follows (vv. 26-30) may be seen as an obscure allusion to the Eucharist.

He began to wash their feet. The poor among the Jews walked barefoot while the rest wore sandals. A traditional gesture of welcome was to order a servant to wash the feet of the traveler (see Gen 18:4). The apostles did not have servants, but that night Jesus chose to be their servant.

Jesus did not intend merely to make the apostles clean and comfortable. His washing of their feet was a sacred act that symbolized purifying them just as baptism does. The apostles were already in the grace of God: the word of Jesus that they received with faith had purified them (15:3). They needed more preparation, however, before sharing the bread of life at the table of their Lord. All religions observe some preparatory or purification rites before offering sacred things to their members. Jews, for example, observed purification rites before participating in the Passover meal.

Jesus was no less demanding: he himself washed the feet of his apostles. He did not ask them to confess their sins; all he wanted was that they would humbly allow him, their Lord, to wash their feet.

This act reminds us at once of the sacraments of Baptism and Penance. There, bonds of humility and mercy are forged both for the one who purifies and for those purified. Henceforth the apostles will do what their

Mt 10:40;
Gal 4:14
20 Truly, I say to you, whoever welcomes the one I send, welcomes me; and whoever welcomes me, welcomes the One who sent me."

Mt 26:
21-25;
Mk 14:
18-21;
Lk 22:
21-23
21 After saying this, Jesus was distressed in spirit, and said plainly, "Truly, one of you will betray me."

22 The disciples then looked at one another, wondering whom he meant.

19:26;
20:2;
21:7
23 One of the disciples, the one Jesus loved, was reclining near Jesus; 24 so Simon Peter signaled him to ask Jesus whom he meant.

21:20
25 And the disciple, who was reclining near Jesus, asked him, "Lord, who is it?" 26 Jesus answered, "I shall dip a piece of bread in the dish, and he to whom I give it, is the one."

Lk 22:3
So Jesus dipped the bread and gave it to Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon. 27 And as Judas took the piece of bread, Satan entered into him. Jesus then said to him, "What you are going to do, do quickly."

28 None of the others, reclining at the table, understood why Jesus said this to Judas. 29 As Judas had the common purse, they may have thought that Jesus was telling him, "Buy what we need for the feast," or, "Give something to the poor." 30 Judas left as soon as he had eaten the bread. It was night.

31 When Judas had gone out, Jesus said, "Now is the Son of Man glorified, and God is glorified in him. 32 God will glorify him, and he will glorify him very soon.

• 33 My children, I am with you for only a little while; you will look for me, but as I already told the Jews, so now I tell you: where I am going you cannot come. 34 Now I give you a new commandment: Love one another! Just as I have loved you, you also must love one another. 35 By this everyone will know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another."

36 Simon Peter said to him, "Lord, where are you going?" Jesus answered, "Where I am going you can-

Lord did before them, since he will send them in his name to forgive sins. They are not to act as hierarchical officials or judges granting pardon to sinners but to take the first step in humility and mercy, in order to likewise purify those who approach the Supper of the Lord.

The word Lord appears seven times in this chapter. With this in mind we understand that by washing the feet of his apostles Jesus performed a significant act which shows us, in a most surprising way, who our Lord and God is, and how he acts.

• 33. CHRISTIAN LOVE

I give you a new commandment. That is to say, a commandment appropriate for the advent of a new era. The Old Testament spoke of interior fidelity to God and love of neighbor, but this message often remained hidden among the complexities of the Law. Besides, there are many ways of loving: even a fanatically religious person can claim to be loving God. In the New Testament Jesus says that love of God is the highest law. The example given by the Lord during his earthly life reminds us of the way to love.

Love that is like God's aims at liberating our neighbor and enabling her to fully develop her God-given gifts. Love like the Lord's helps the neighbor become what God wishes her to be, by passing through death to resurrection.

Moreover, when we go deeper into the mystery of divine love revealed to us through Jesus, our love becomes merged with the eternal love of God that alone, in the end, shall permeate all we do. True love comes from God and makes us return to unity within God.

Time and again, Jesus points out the unique importance of Christian love. Later, his Apostles (e.g., 1 Jn 4:7 ff.) and the Church would sum up his teaching on love: Love of God is shown through love of our neighbor, love of our neighbor depends on love of God. What is it really to love God? The great saints and mystics of the Church tell us that love of God is not "to feel God," to feel devotion or affection for God. Christian love lies not in sentiment or feelings (though on some occasions we might

12:6

12:35;
Lk 22:5312:23;
17:11:14;
7:39;
Phil 2:9

7:33

15:12

Lk 10:
26-27;
Gal 6:2;
1 Jn 2:7;
4:11;
5:1;
Acts 4:32

21:18

Lk 22:
31-34Mt 26:
33-35;
Mk 14:
29-3117:24;
Heb 6:20;
Phil 1:23;
1Thes
4:17Heb
10:20;
Mt 11:278:19; 12:46

not follow me now, but afterwards you will.”³⁷ Peter said, “Lord, why can’t I follow you now? I am ready to give my life for you.”³⁸ “To give your life for me?” Jesus asked Peter. “Truly I tell you, the cock will not crow, before you have denied me three times.”

I’m going to the Father

Dt 1:
29-33;
Jn 14:27;
16:33

14 • ¹“Do not be troubled! Trust in God and trust in me! ²In my Father’s house there are many rooms; otherwise I would not have told you that I go to prepare a place for you. ³After I have gone and prepared a place for you, I shall come again and take you to me, so that where I am, you also may be. ⁴Yet you know the way where I am going.”

⁵Thomas said to him, “Lord, we don’t know where you are going; how can we know the way?” ⁶Jesus said, “I am the way, the truth and the life; no one comes to the Father but through me. ⁷If you know me, you will know the Father also; indeed you know him, and you have seen him.”

feel affection or devotion, which is helpful); to love God is to be determined to do what God wishes at each moment of our lives. What God wishes of us regarding our neighbor is that we render loving service and forgiveness.

• 14.1 THE SPIRITUAL LIFE

After the washing of the feet, John continues with Jesus’ three farewell discourses to his apostles. Those who had lived intimately with him for several months, would soon need to discover another way of living with the risen and present, though invisible, Christ. “I was with you,” says Jesus (vv. 9 and 25); henceforth, “I will be in you.” The first of these discourses is found in chapter 14.

Jesus’ ascension to the Father was not just an individual achievement, but opened for all of us a way to our House, not situated high above us, but in God. There are many mansions (v. 2), that means that there is also a place for us: not just one mansion for everybody, but a place for each one, because Heaven is not like a performance which is the same for everyone in the audience. God’s radiance will draw from each one the resonance only he can bring forth. Each one will be in his own mansion, being in communion with all.

Now, knowing what is the goal, we should walk towards this definitive communion. “I am the way,” says Jesus. He became human precisely so that we might see the Father in him. He followed his way, so disconcerting for us, so that, meditating on his actions, we would progress towards the truth. Although in the beginning we may not understand him well, with time, we will discover the Lord and understand that his way is ours. Passing through the cross and death, we will achieve our own truth and arrive at life.

I am in the Father, and the Father is in me, and you in me (vv. 11 and 20). Christ makes us enter into the divine family. Thus, we no longer speak of approaching God as if he were far from us. We no longer feel as if God were a single person in front of us. We enter “into” the mysterious life of the divine Persons who share everything and who are the one and only God. Material things cannot penetrate each other; but in the world of the spirit such is possible. Christ is in the Father and the Father in him. They make their home within us (v. 23).

In the introduction to the Gospel, John explained that all of God’s actions in the world should be understood in the light of the intimate relationship between the Father and the Son. Now he adds that the presence of God in us is due to another person, the Holy Spirit. Neither the Father alone, whom no one has seen, nor the Son, who made himself known, can enter into communion with people. They can, however, do so by means of the Spirit, whom we should call: God who is communicated. Hence we call spiritual life everything that refers to our relationship with God.

The spiritual life includes three elements:

– keeping the words of Jesus: meditating on them, putting them into practice and letting them take root in our soul.

– then, instructed by the Spirit regarding what we should ask in Jesus’ name, let us ask, with all confidence, for those things that he himself desires.

– finally, let us do the same things he did. He did not multiply good works, but completed that which his Father asked him to do, even when his obedience would seem to us a vain sacrifice.

I will ask the Father and He will give you another Helper (v. 16). Jesus refers to the Holy Spirit whom he calls the Paraclete. This 33:18 ⁸Philip asked him, “Lord, show us the Father, and that is enough.”

⁹Jesus said to him, “What! I have been with you so long and you still do not know me, Philip? Whoever sees me sees the Father; how can you say, ‘Show us the Father’?”
 10:38; 17:21 ¹⁰Do you not believe that I am in the Father and the Father is in me?

All that I say to you, I do not say of myself. The Father who dwells in me is doing his own work. ¹¹Believe me when I say that I am in the Father and the Father is in me; at least believe it on the evidence of these works that I do.

Mt 21:21 ¹²Truly, I say to you, the one who believes in me will do the same works that I do; and he will even do greater than these, for I am going to the Father. ¹³Everything you ask in my name, I will do, so that the Father may be glorified in the Son. ¹⁴Indeed, anything you ask, calling upon my name, I will do.

Dt 6:4; Wis 6:18 ¹⁵If you love me, you will keep my commandments; ¹⁶and I will ask the Father, and he will give you another Helper to be with you forever, ¹⁷that Spirit of truth whom the world cannot receive, because it neither sees him nor knows him. But you know him, for he is with you and will be in you.

¹⁸I will not leave you orphans, I am coming to you. ¹⁹A little while and the world will see me no more, but you will see me, because I live and you will also live. ²⁰On that day you will know that I am in my Father, and you in me, and I in you.

²¹Whoever keeps my commandments is the one who loves me. If he loves me, he will also be loved by my Father; I too shall love him and show myself clearly to him.”

²²Judas—not Judas Iscariot—asked Jesus, “Lord, how can it be that you will show yourself clearly to us and not to the world?” ²³Jesus answered him, “If anyone loves me, he will keep my word and my Father will love him; and we will come to him and make a room in his home. ²⁴But if anyone does not love me, he will not keep my words; and these words that you hear are not mine, but the Father’s who sent me.

²⁵I told you all this while I was still with you. ²⁶From now on the Helper, the Holy Spirit whom the Father will send in my name, will teach you all things, and remind you of all that I have told you.

8:21;
16:16Rev 3:20;
Pro 8:17;
2Cor
6:16;
Eph 3:1714:16;
15:26;
16:13

Greek word has several meanings. Here we use Helper. The Spirit helps the believers and inspires their prayer so that it may be heard (Rom 8:26).

The Helper (or Interpreter) will teach you (v. 26). The Spirit enables us to understand and interpret Jesus’ words throughout all time.

Lord, how can it be that you will show yourself clearly to us and not to the world? (v. 22). Judas thought that Jesus meant he would summon them for secret meetings, but Jesus really meant he would make himself known to them through interior teaching and by letting them experience peace.

For the Father is greater than I (v. 28). This does not contradict what John teaches throughout the whole Gospel about Jesus’ divinity. This is to be read together with 5:18; 10:30; 16:15, if we want to know something of the mystery of Christ, “true God,” as spoken of in Romans 9:5; Titus 2:13; and 1 John 5:20.

As early as the fourth century Saint Hilary, the great bishop and defender of the faith, wrote: “The Father is greater because of being the one who gives. As he gives the Son all that he himself is, yet the Son is not inferior to the Father.”

Moreover, it is characteristic of the Son to deny himself so that he may give glory to the Father, until the Father gives him back “the Glory he had before” as said in 17:5 and 6:62. Because of this the apostles, who have seen him as a man among humans in the time of his humiliation, should now rejoice.

The Holy Spirit whom the Father will send in my name (v. 26). Compare with 15:26. The Holy Spirit proceeds as much 27Peace be with you! I give you My peace; not as the world gives peace do I give it to you. Do not be troubled; do not be afraid. 28You heard me say, 'I am going away, but I am coming to you.' If you loved me, you would be glad that I go to the Father, for the Father is greater than I.

29I have told you this now before it takes place, so that when it does happen you may believe. 30It is very little what I may still tell you, for the prince of this world is at hand, although there is nothing in me that he can claim. 31But see, the world must know that I love the Father, and that I do what the Father has taught me to do. Come now, let us go.

The vine and the branches

15 1I am the true vine and my Father is the vinegrower. 2If any of my branches doesn't bear fruit, he breaks it off; and he prunes every branch that does bear fruit, that it may bear even more fruit.

3You are already made clean by the word I have spoken to you. 4Live in me as I live in you. The branch cannot bear fruit by itself, but has to remain part of the vine; so neither can you, if you don't remain in me.

5I am the vine and you are the branches. As long as you remain in me and I in you, you bear much fruit; but apart from me you can do nothing. 6Whoever does not remain in me is thrown away, as they do with branches, and they wither. Then they are gathered and thrown into the fire and burned.

7If you remain in me and my words in you, you may ask whatever you want, and it will be given to you. 8My Father is glorified when you bear much fruit: it is then that you become my disciples.

9As the Father has loved me, so I have loved you. Remain in my love! 10You will remain in my love if you keep my commandments, just as I have kept my Father's commandments and remain in his love.

11I have told you all this, that my own joy may be in you, and your joy may be complete. 12This is my com-from the Father as from the Son being, with them, only one God.

• 15.1 In this second farewell discourse, Jesus invites us to remain steadfast in the midst of the world. The discourse is divided into four parts:

- the parable of the vine: I have sent you to produce fruits.
- the world will hate you.
- the work of the Holy Spirit.
- in a little while you will see me again.

First, the parable of the vine. Jesus uses an image from the Bible, but he changes the original meaning, as he did before when speaking of the Good Shepherd (Jn 10:1). The vine represents the people of Israel. Planted from selected stock, cared for by the Lord, it should have produced fruits of justice (Mk 12:1).

Now the true Vine has taken root. Christ is the trunk from which the branches sprout, that is to say, all of us who live by him. He is also the entire plant, trunk and branches together: Christians are really the body of Christ.

The vine was the people of Israel, and what mattered more to them was the collective conduct of the community as one body. What mattered was not the individuals but Israel. Now Jesus does not say: The Christian community is the vine, but: I am the vine. So each of us has to consider how he is joined with Jesus through faith, prayer, and keeping his word. Each one has to bear fruit. Jesus does not specify what these fruits should be: whether service, understanding, action for social justice, or a life silently offered to God. Rather he insists that these fruits should come from the Spirit and bear his proper seal. The success of the Church is not measured by its achievements, but by the progress of those who interiorize Christ's mystery and share in his cross and resurrection.

After making it clear that we depend totally on him, Jesus repeats his commandment of love. There is a necessary order in building the Christian life.

If from the start we say: We should love our neighbor because this is the only command-

Sir 24:17;
Mt 3:10;
15:13;
Acts 15:9;
Rom
11:17

1Cor
12:12

Ezk
15:1-8;
Mt 3:10

Mk
11:24;
1Jn 5:14

Mt 5:16;
Phil 1:11

14:15;
1Jn 2:5;
5:3

16:20;
1Jn 1:4

13:34

2Thes
3:16;
Rom 5:1;
Eph 2:14;
Phil 4:7

13:19;
Phil 2:7

12:31

Mk 14:41

Jer 2:21;
Is 5:1;
Ps 80:9

mandment: Love one another as I have loved you! ¹³There is no greater love than this, to give one's life for one's friends; ¹⁴and you are my friends, if you do what I command you.

¹⁵I shall not call you servants any more, because servants do not know what their master is about. Instead I have called you friends, since I have made known to you everything I learned from my Father.

¹⁶You did not choose me; it was I who chose you and sent you to go and bear fruit, fruit that will last. And everything you ask the Father in my name, he will give you.

¹⁷This is my command, that you love one another.

The hostile world

• ¹⁸If the world hates you, remember that the world hated me before you. ¹⁹This would not be so if you belonged to the world, because the world loves its own. But you are not of the world, since I have chosen you from the world; because of this the world hates you.

²⁰Remember what I told you: the servant is not greater than his master; if they persecuted me, they will persecute you, too. If they kept my word, they will keep yours as well. ²¹All this they will do to you for the sake of my name, because they do not know the One who sent me.

²²If I had not come to tell them, they would have no sin, but now they have no excuse for their sin. ²³Those who hate me hate my Father.

²⁴If I had not done among them what no one else has ever done, they would have no sin. But after they have seen all this, they hate me and my Father, ²⁵and the words written in their law become true: They hated me without cause.

The Spirit will come

• ²⁶From the Father, I will send you the Spirit of truth. When this Helper has come from the Father, he will be my witness, ²⁷and you, too, ment, we will achieve nothing; because each one understands love in his own way, while not having as yet interiorized the thinking of Christ. Moreover, we need to receive from the source of all love the ability to love selflessly. Christ asks us to first share his thinking: that is what the expression, keep my commandments means. Thus we become his friends, knowing him as a person who loves us and acts in us. Later we will produce the authentic fruit of love, whose source is Christ.

• 18. In spite of Jesus' having returned to his Father to initiate a more effective and universal presence among humankind, Satan continues to act with the power he has usurped. The hatred of those who belong to Satan is directed against the believers and the Church. Such helpers of Satan are called in John's Gospel: the world.

Believers are destined to be hated by the world. It often happens that when a person begins to live in a more Christian and responsible way, she meets with opposition and hatred from her own family. No one knows what has aroused the hatred, but the devil does, who moves everything to discourage us.

Even in the Church we find those who are of the world and believe that they are servicing God (16:2) when they persecute the true disciples of Christ. Some who identify themselves with what they consider "the interests of the Church" can even persecute, and at times with malice, those who are Gospel-minded. In reality they know neither Jesus nor his Father.

When our hope does not come from God, trials discourage us; but when our hope is rooted in God, we are strengthened and remain steadfast. In the parable of the vine, Jesus said: "My father prunes every branch that bears fruit so that it will bear more fruit."

• 26. THE FATHER, THE SON AND THE HOLY SPIRIT

In making us children of his Father, Jesus enables us to discover the intimate mystery of God. In God there is communion among the three persons: the Father, the Son and their common Spirit.

We speak of their common Spirit, because

1Jn 3:16

Lk 12:4;
33:116:70;
13:18;
Rom 6:
20-23Mt 10:22;
Mk 13:13;
Jn 17:14;
1Jn 3:1313:16;
Lk 6:40Mt 5:11;
Acts 5:40

9:41

Ps
35:19;
69:514:26;
Mt 10:19;
Acts
5:32

will be my witnesses, for you have been with me from the beginning.

16 ¹I tell you all this to keep you from stumbling and falling away. ²They will put you out of the synagogue. Still more, the hour is coming, when anyone who kills you will claim to be serving God; ³they will do this, because they have not known the Father or me. ⁴I tell you all these things now so that, when the time comes, you may remember that I told you.

I did not tell you about this in the beginning, because I was with you. ⁵But now I am going to the One who sent me, and none of you asks me where I am going; ⁶instead you are overcome with grief, because of what I have said.

⁷Believe me, it is better for you that I go away, because as long as I do not leave, the Helper will not come to you. But if I go away, it is to send him to you, ⁸and when he comes, he will vindicate the truth before a sinful world; and he will vindicate the paths of righteousness and justice.

⁹What is the world's sin, in regard to me? Disbelief. ¹⁰What is the path of righteousness? It is the path I walk, by which I go to the Father; and you shall see me no more.

¹¹What is the path of justice? It is the path on which the prince of this world will always stand condemned.

¹²I still have many things to tell you, but you cannot bear them now.

¹³When he, the Spirit of truth comes, he will guide you into the whole truth.

He has nothing to say of himself, but he will speak of what he hears, and he will tell you of the things to come. ¹⁴He will take what is mine and make it known to you; in doing this, he will glorify me. ¹⁵All that the Father has is mine; because of this, I have just told you that the Spirit will take what is mine, and make it known to you.

The promise of a new presence

- ¹⁶A little while, and you will see

Jesus said both: The Father will give you another Helper (14:16) and: The Helper which I will send you (15:26). Now he says: He will take what is mine and tell it to you: everything that the Father has is also mine (16:15).

"The Spirit" is not a poetic figure: it is Someone. This has already been commented on (Jn 7:37; 14:1).

Starting from the day of Pentecost, the Spirit began to act in the Church, thus showing that he was the Spirit of Christ. The unbelieving Jews thought that God was with them, but in reality his Spirit did not act among them. So it was clear that they had sinned (v. 16:9) for not believing in Christ.

What is the way of righteousness (v. 8). The righteous One is Christ and the righteous persons are those who believe in him without seeing him (v. 10).

The Acts of the Apostles records how the Spirit worked in the first disciples of Jesus. Before granting miraculous powers, the Spirit gave them joy, peace and mutual love, as well as inner certainty that Jesus had risen and was among them.

The Spirit guides missionaries; he gives them the power to perform miracles; he gives to believers the knowledge of God, new capacities for working, healing, serving and shaking up a sinful world. Throughout history the Spirit would raise up people of faith, martyrs, prophets, and through them transform the world. In this way the Savior, seemingly defeated, would be justified; and it becomes evident that the loser is Satan, who already has been condemned (v. 11). The evil spirit, great director of the worldly show, is displaced and his influence limited. A new force, which is the Spirit, orients history and guides us towards the total truth.

• 16.16 JESUS IN OUR MIDST

Jesus is in our midst, but to be aware of his presence requires faith. He himself said: "You will see me because you live and I also live (14:19)." It is not important that we feel his presence, what matters is to persevere in his

9:22;
Acts 26;
9-11

Mk 13:23

14:1

15:22

12:31;
14:30

1Cor 3:1;
Acts 1:4

17:10

7:33;
14:19

me no more; and then a little while, and you will see me.”

¹⁷Some of the disciples wondered, “What does he mean by, ‘A little while and you will not see me; and then a little while, and you will see me’? And why did he say, ‘I go to the Father’?” ¹⁸And they said to one another, “What does he mean by ‘a little while’? We don’t understand.”

¹⁹Jesus knew that they wanted to question him; so he said to them, “You are puzzled because I told you that in a little while you will see me no more, and then a little while later you will see me.

²⁰Truly, I say to you, you will weep and mourn while the world rejoices. You will be sorrowful, but your sorrow will turn to joy. ²¹A woman in childbirth is in distress because her time is at hand. But after the child is born, she no longer remembers her suffering because of such great joy: a human being is born into the world.

²²You feel sorrowful now, but I will see you again, and your hearts will rejoice; and no one will take your joy from you. ²³When that day comes you will not ask me anything. Truly, I say to you, whatever you ask the Father in my name, he will give you.

²⁴So far you have not asked in my name; ask, and receive, that your joy may be full.

²⁵I taught you all this in veiled language, but the time is coming when I shall no longer speak in veiled language, but will tell you plainly of the Father.

²⁶When that day comes, you will ask in my name; and it will not be for me to ask the Father for you, ²⁷for the Father himself loves you, because you have loved me, and you believe that I came from the Father. ²⁸As I came from the Father, and have come into the world, so I am leaving the world, and going to the Father.”

²⁹The disciples said to him, “Now you are speaking plainly and not in veiled language! ³⁰Now we see that you know all things, even before we question you. Because of this we believe that you came from God.”

³¹Jesus answered them, “You say that you believe? ³²The hour is coming, indeed it has come, when you will be scattered, each one to his home, and you will leave me alone. Yet I am not alone, for the Father is with me.

³³I have told you all this, so that in 15:11;

1Jn 1:4

16:4

16:23

Lk 5:35;
Rev
11:10Is 26:17;
Rom
8:22Lk 6:21;
Is 66:8;
Jn 14:19;
20:20;
Acts 2:46;
2Cor 4:17

14:20

Zec 13:7;
Mt 26:31;
Lk 22:3114:27;
2Tim
3:12;

ways. In order to attain mature faith, it is necessary that we be deprived of the consolation of his presence for more or less prolonged periods: a little while and you will not see me.

For his disciples this happened for the first time at the moment of his death; later they saw him risen from the dead. This will come true for us at the end of time, when we discover the glorious Christ whom we have awaited in faith. No one should feel overconfident about feeling his presence, for example, after a conversion. When everything seems easy, we should not look down on those who find it hard to believe or who have never felt the presence of God. In a little while, perhaps, the Lord will leave us in darkness.

After Jesus rose from the dead, a real companionship would be established between him and his disciples: he would speak to them clearly of the Father; they would ask in his name.

I will tell you plainly... The naive response of the apostles in verse 29 underlines by contrast what Jesus expressed in verse 25. Jesus did not mean that he would return in visible form to teach, not in parables, but more clearly; Jesus referred rather to the spiritual knowledge of himself and his words that the disciples were to receive from the Spirit.

You will ask in my Name (v. 26). Through a spiritual knowledge of Jesus, the believers will know what they should ask of him and he will give it to them. In the same manner, they will know the things that God does not want to give, and because of that they will neither desire nor ask for them.

Rom 8:37; 1Thes 1:6; 2Thes 1:4
 me you may have peace. You will have trouble in the world; but, courage! I have overcome the world.”

Prayer of Jesus for the new holy people

11:41; 12:23; 13:1
17 • ¹After saying this, Jesus lifted up his eyes to heaven and said, “Father, the hour has come! Give glory to your Son, that the Son may give glory to you. ²You have given him power over all humanity, so that he may give eternal life to all those you entrusted to him. ³For this is eternal life: to know you, the only true God, and the One you sent, Jesus Christ.

5:21; 6:39; Mt 28:18
⁴I have glorified you on earth and finished the work that you gave me to do. ⁵Now, Father, give me, in your presence, the same glory I had with you before the world began.

Wis 15:3; Jer 24:7; 31:34; Ezk 36:25
⁶I have made your name known to those you gave me from the world. They were yours, and you gave them to me, and they kept your word. ⁷And now they know that whatever you entrusted to me, is indeed from you. ⁸I have given them the teaching I received from you, and they received it, and know in truth that I came from you; and they believe that you sent me.

⁹I pray for them. I do not pray for the world, but for those who belong to you, and whom you have given to me. ¹⁰Indeed, all I have is yours, and all you have is mine; and now they are my glory. ¹¹I am no longer in the world, but they are in the world, and I come to you. Holy Father, keep those you have given me in your name, so that they may be one, as we also are one.

¹²When I was with them, I kept them safe in your name; and not one was lost, except the one who was already lost, and in this the Scripture was fulfilled. ¹³And now I come to you; in the world I speak these

3:16;
12:31;
1Jn 2:16

Gal 3:28

Ps 41:9;
109:4;
Acts 1:16

• 17.1 ONE AND HOLY

Priestly Prayer is the name many give to that prayer in which Christ, before he died, offered to sacrifice his own life, as both priest and victim (v. 19). The word to consecrate applied to two things: the priest was consecrated, that is, was made worthy to offer the sacrifice, and he also consecrated (made holy) the victim on sacrificing it.

Jesus put an end to the Old Testament form of worship that the Jews rendered to God in the Temple for centuries. The Israelites were holy; that is to say, their mission among all the nations was to serve the Holy God, whom they knew by a special privilege.

Jesus prays for his own so that they may become the new people (Ps 102:19), consecrated to God, this time according to the truth (v. 17). He will pour over them the Spirit of Truth, who has been promised to Israel and will instruct us interiorly.

Keep them in your Name (v. 11). In other words: keep them in the radiance of your own sanctity, with which you embrace your Son. At that moment Jesus prayed for his Church, to whom he entrusted his own mission. The principal duty of the Church is to know God. (The word to know is repeated seven times, clearly showing that it expresses the essence of the discourse). Whatever the situation of the Church might be, its proper and indispensable mission will be to keep and proclaim the true knowledge of God and the commandment of his Son.

Jesus wants each of his own to know God. This knowledge comes to us when we interiorize the word of God, persevere in prayer and join community celebrations. In this we will have the help of the Holy Spirit, from whom come the gifts of knowledge and wisdom (Col 1:9). From knowledge will spring good works and love; this is the beginning of eternal life (v. 3) in which we will see God as he is (1 Jn 2:3).

Jesus prayed that his Church might be one, that is to say, that it might be the sign of unity in a divided world. It is not enough that Christ is preached; it is also necessary for the world to see in its midst the Church, one and united.

Catholic Church, means, universal. In the Church no one is a stranger. One Church, things, so that those whom you gave me, might have joy—all my joy—within themselves.

15:18 ¹⁴I have given them your word; and the world has hated them, because they are not of the world, just as I am not of the world. ¹⁵I do not ask you to remove them from the world, but to keep them from the evil one. ¹⁶They are not of the world, just as I am not of the world. ¹⁷Consecrate them in the truth. Your word is truth.

¹⁸I have sent them into the world, as you sent me into the world; ¹⁹and for their sake, I go to the sacrifice by which I am consecrated, so that they too may be consecrated in truth.

²⁰I pray not only for these, but also for those who through their word will believe in me. ²¹May they all be one, as you Father are in me and I am in you. May they be one in us, so that the world may believe that you have sent me.

²²I have given them the glory you have given me, that they may be one as we are one: ²³I in them and you in me. Thus they shall reach perfection in unity; and the world shall know that you have sent me, and that I have loved them, just as you loved me.

²⁴Father, since you have given them to me, I want them to be with me where I am, and to see the glory you gave me, for you loved me before the foundation of the world.

²⁵Righteous Father, the world has not known you, but I have known you, and these have known that you have sent me. ²⁶As I revealed your Name to them, so will I continue to reveal it, so that the love with which you loved me may be in them, and I also may be in them.”

1Cor 6:17;
Gal 2:20;
Eph 1:4;
4:3

12:26;
Gen
45:13

Rom 8:39

through one same spirit, and through the visible unity of its members.

The history of the Church seems to run counter to the prayer of Christ. Jesus desired unity; the evangelists relate how he named Peter as visible head of the apostolic group and the entire Church. However, to maintain unity among people of different temperaments and various cultures requires much love and understanding.

From the beginning some began to reject the faith as taught by the apostles, and several groups or sects appeared.

For historical reasons, the countries of the Roman world were divided into two main empires: one of the Orient, with the patterns of Greek culture and that of the Occident (Europe), where the medieval culture developed. After the invasions of the barbaric peoples, contact between the Christians of these two parts became very difficult. Because they lived the same faith with different traditions and religious practices, they began to consider themselves as having different religions. That was how the Oriental churches, that is, the Orthodox, separated from the Roman Church.

Much later the negligence of the hierarchy in not ending the abuses and useless human traditions led the Protestants or Evangelicals to found new churches, which they called reformed churches. This separation, however, had deeper political, social and economic roots. It was part of a cultural crisis that obliged Christians to revise their views regarding the Bible, philosophy and politics. According to whatever stand one took concerning these issues, one joined the Protestants or stayed with the Catholic Church.

In our times, we have a better understanding of these past difficulties. Many Catholics, Orthodox and Protestants are attempting to unite as believers. At the same time, however, new problems have arisen within each Church. Today Christians disagree and are split, not only in their political options, but also in their understanding of Christ and their views on how his message is best delivered in our time.

Ecumenism, that is, efforts to reconcile in truth and bring the Churches together, demands that we overcome the new dissensions that threaten the internal unity of the Church. All of us must work so that the unity of all Christians may be realized as Christ desires, and by the means he wants. In any case, nothing can be done without obeying the truth and doing the truth. In no way can we disregard Peter's charism of unity that is granted to Peter's successors.

The arrest of Jesus

Mt 26:
30, 36;
Mk 14:
26, 36;
Lk 22:39;
2S 15:23

18 ¹When Jesus had finished speaking, he went with his disciples to the other side of the Kidron Valley. There was a garden there, which Jesus entered with his disciples.

²Now Judas, who betrayed him, knew the place, since Jesus had often met there with his disciples.

Mt 26:
47-56;
Mk 14:
43-52;
Lk 22:
47-53

³So Judas took soldiers with him and some servants from the chief priests and the Pharisees, and they went to the garden with lanterns, torches, and weapons.

⁴Jesus knew all that was going to happen to him; he stepped forward and asked, "Who are you looking for?" ⁵They answered, "Jesus the Nazarene." Jesus said, "I am he." Judas, who betrayed him, stood there with them.

8:24;
Ps 27:2

⁶When Jesus said, "I am he," they moved back and fell to the ground.

⁷He then asked a second time, "Who are you looking for?" and they answered, "Jesus the Nazarene."

6:39;
10:28;
17:12

⁸Jesus replied, "I told you that I am he. If you are looking for me, let these others go." ⁹So what Jesus had said came true: "I have not lost one of those you gave me."

Mk
10:38;
Jn 12:27

¹⁰Simon Peter had a sword; he drew it and struck Malchus, the High Priest's servant, cutting off his right ear. ¹¹But Jesus said to Peter, "Put your sword into its sheath; shall I not drink the cup which the Father has given me?"

11:50

¹²The guards and the soldiers, with their commander, seized Jesus and bound him; ¹³and they took him first to Annas. Annas was the father-in-law of Caiaphas, who was the High Priest that year; ¹⁴and it was Caiaphas who had told the Jews, "It is better that one man should die for the people."

¹⁵Simon Peter with another disciple followed Jesus. Because this disciple was known to the High Priest, they let him enter the courtyard of the High Priest along with Jesus, ¹⁶but Peter had to stay outside at the door. The other disciple, who was known to the High Priest, went out and spoke to the maidservant at the gate and brought Peter in. ¹⁷Then this maidservant on duty at the door said to Peter, "So you also are one of his disciples?" But he answered, "I am not."

¹⁸Now the servants and the guards had made a charcoal fire and were standing and warming themselves, because it was cold. Peter was also with them warming himself.

¹⁹The High Priest questioned Jesus about his disciples and his teaching. ²⁰Jesus answered him, "I have spoken openly to the world; I have always taught in places where the Jews meet together, either at the assemblies in synagogues or in the Temple. I did not teach secretly. ²¹Why then do you question me? Ask those who heard me, they know what I said."

Acts 23:2

²²At this reply one of the guards standing there gave Jesus a blow on the face, saying, "Is that the way to answer the High Priest?" ²³Jesus said to him, "If I have spoken wrongly, point it out; but if I have spoken rightly, why do you strike me?"

²⁴Then Annas sent him, bound, to Caiaphas, the High Priest.

²⁵Now Simon Peter stood there warming himself. They said to him, "Surely you also are one of his disciples." He denied it, and answered, "I am not." ²⁶One of the High Priest's servants, a kinsman of the one whose ear Peter had cut off, asked, "Did I not see you with him in the garden?" ²⁷Again Peter denied it, and at once the cock crowed.

Jesus before Pilate

Mt 27:2,
11-26;
Mk 15: 1-15;
Lk 23: 1-7;
Jn 18:28-32;
19:1-11

•²⁸ Then they led Jesus from the house of Caiaphas to the headquarters of the Roman governor. It was now morning. The Jews didn't go inside, lest they be made unclean by entering the house of a pagan, and therefore not allowed to eat the Passover meal. ²⁹ So Pilate came out and asked, "What charge do you bring against this man?"

³⁰ They answered, "If he were not a criminal, we would not be handing him over to you." ³¹ Pilate said, "Take him yourselves and judge him according to your own law." But they replied, "We ourselves are not allowed to put anyone to death."

³² It was clear from this what kind of death Jesus was to die, according to what Jesus himself had foretold.

³³ Pilate then entered the court again, called Jesus and asked him, "Are you the King of the Jews?" ³⁴ Jesus replied, "Does this word come from you, or did you hear it from others?"

³⁵ Pilate answered, "Am I a Jew? Your own nation and the chief priests have handed you over to me. What have you done?" ³⁶ Jesus answered, "My kingship does not come from

3:14;
12:33

6:15;
12:32;

• 18.28 CHRIST THE KING

My kingship does not come from this world. It is important to remember what was said regarding Luke 8:9. In the Gospel the same word means: The Kingdom, that is, the country that the king governs; the reign, that is the government of the king; the Kingship, that is, the dignity and power of the king.

In Jesus' response to Pilate the meaning to be given to the word is not kingdom, but rather kingship, which is the power of the king.

In any case, it would be an error to understand Jesus' words as follows: "My Kingdom is in another world, therefore, the social and political problems of this world do not concern me," and think that Jesus came to give spiritual salvation, individually, to believing souls.

Likewise, it would be an error to understand the word: You would have no power over me unless it had been given you from above as affirming that the authorities receive their power directly from God and that no one should take steps to replace them with others less corrupt, or less unjust, or more capable. See commentary on Romans 13:1.

Jesus with hands bound, behaves like a king before the governor, Pilate, who is captive of his office and his own ambitions. Jesus is not a king like those of this world, because he does not exert the kind of power that people are used to obeying. Jesus, king of the Jews, did not come to revive the independent Jewish kingdom, but to establish the Kingdom of Truth, which God promised them for centuries.

Yet truth does not win with arms, but thanks to the testimony of those who live according to the truth. Witnesses of the truth are often persecuted, but they themselves do not persecute others.

My kingship does not come from this world. Jesus is unlike other authorities that have gained their positions through force or have won in an election. He has been sent and anointed by the Father.

Pilate, on the other hand, had been appointed by the Emperor of Rome and owed his career as much to his own ambition as to several protectors. How could such a man have power over the Son of God and have him crucified for fear of the people, if it were not to fulfill a decree from on High? Indeed, not even a sparrow falls to the ground without the Father allowing it.

God would not permit human creatures to destroy the destiny of his Son. He cares for each one of us in such a way that even the injustice committed against us serves his plans for our good. Because our fate depends at the same time on the Father and on human authorities, we should believe that he takes advantage of their decisions to carry out his own purposes, even when their power is of this world, that is to say, of a very questionable legitimacy.

Pilate condemned Jesus unwillingly. Having oppressed and shamelessly exploited the Jews, he feared the denunciations that they might make to Caesar against him. The condemnation of Jesus, however, meant for him nothing more than the death of one more Jew: he did not bear the whole guilt, since that type of justice was the result of the Roman colonial system.

Lk 17:20; 19:12 this world. If I were a king, like those of this world, my guards would have fought to save me from being handed over to the Jews. But my kingship is not of this world.”

37 Pilate asked him, “So you are a king?” And Jesus answered, “Just as you say, I am a king. For this I was born and for this I have come into the world, to bear witness to the truth. Everyone who is on the side of truth hears my voice.” 38 Pilate said, “What is truth?”

Pilate then went out to the Jews again and said, “I find no crime in this man. 39 Now, according to custom, I must release a prisoner to you at the Passover. With your agreement I will release to you the King of the Jews.” 40 But they insisted and cried out, “Not this man, but Barabbas!” Now Barabbas was a robber.

Mt 27: 27-31; Mk 15: 16-20; 1Cor 1:23; Lk 23:11
Is 50:6
19 1 Then Pilate had Jesus taken away and scourged. 2 The soldiers also twisted thorns into a crown and put it on his head. They threw a cloak of royal purple around his shoulders; 3 and they began coming up to him and saluting him, “Hail, king of the Jews!” and they struck him on the face.

4 Pilate went outside yet another time and said to the Jews, “Look, I am bringing him out, and I want you to know that I find no crime in him.”

5 Jesus then came out wearing the crown of thorns and the purple cloak, and Pilate pointed to him, saying, “Here is the man!”

6 On seeing him the chief priests and the guards cried out, “Crucify him! Crucify him!” Pilate replied, “Take him yourselves and have him crucified, for I find no case against him.” 7 The Jews then said, “We have a Law, and according to the Law this man must die because he made himself Son of God.”

8 When Pilate heard this he was more afraid. 9 And coming back into the court he asked Jesus, “Where are you from?” But Jesus gave him no answer. 10 Then Pilate said to him, “You will not speak to me? Do you not know that I have power to release you, just as I have power to crucify you?” 11 Jesus replied, “You would have no power over me unless it had been given you from above; therefore the one who handed me over to you is more guilty.”

12 From that moment Pilate tried to release him, but the Jews cried out, “If you release this man, you are no friend of Caesar. Anyone who makes himself a king is defying Caesar.”

13 When Pilate heard this, he had Jesus brought outside to the place called the Stone Floor—in Hebrew Gabbatha—and sat down in the judgment seat. 14 It was the day of preparation for the Passover, about noon. Pilate said to the Jews, “Here is your king.” 15 But they cried out, “Away! Take him away! Crucify him!” Pilate replied, “Shall I crucify your king?” And the chief priests answered, “We have no king but Caesar!”

16 Then Pilate handed Jesus over to them to be crucified.

Lev 24:16; Jn 5:18

Ps 82; Wis 6:3; Rom 13:1

12:6

Caiaphas, instead, the anointed High Priest of God, could not condemn Jesus without knowingly slandering his deeds and his word. So he was more guilty (19:11).

We have no king but Caesar (19:15). Thus shouted the crowd impelled by the leaders, although they hated the Romans and their emperor. In fact, several years later the Jews would have no other king but Caesar, and this king would destroy them. Pilate wanted to save the life of his prisoner when he presented him in his disfigured condition. Instead he wounded the pride of the Jewish people: a Christ the King humiliated—they could not accept this offense.

Jesus is crucified

Mt 27: 31-33; 27:37-38; Mk 15: 20...27; Lk 23: 33, 38; Gen 22:6
 They took charge of him. ¹⁷ Bearing his own cross, Jesus went out of the city to what is called the Place of the Skull, in Hebrew Golgotha. ¹⁸ There he was crucified, and with him two others, one on either side, and Jesus in the middle.

Is 53:12
 18:33
¹⁹ Pilate had a notice written and fastened to the cross, which read: Jesus the Nazorean, the King of the Jews. ²⁰ Many Jewish people saw this title, because the place where Jesus was crucified was very close to the city; and the title was written in Hebrew, Latin and Greek. ²¹ The chief priests said to Pilate, "Do not write 'The king of the Jews'; but, 'This man claimed to be king of the Jews.'" ²² Pilate answered them, "What I have written, I have written."

Mt 27:15; Mk 15:24; Lk 23:24
²³ When the soldiers crucified Jesus, they took his clothes and divided them into four parts, one part for each of them. But as the tunic was woven in one piece from top to bottom, ²⁴ they said, "Let us not tear it, but cast lots to decide who will get it." This fulfilled the words of Scripture: They divided my clothing among them; they cast lots for my garment. This was what the soldiers did.

Ps 22:19

Jesus' last words

• ²⁵ Near the cross of Jesus stood his mother, his mother's sister Mary, who was the wife of Cleophas, and Mary of Magdala. ²⁶ When Jesus saw the mother, and the disciple whom he loved, he said to the mother, "Woman, this is your son." ²⁷ Then he said to the disciple, "There is your mother." And from that moment the disciple took her to his own home.

Mt 27: 55-56; Mk 15: 40-41; Lk 23:49

13:23; 20:2; 21:7

• ²⁸ Jesus knew all was now finished and, in order to fulfill what was written in Scripture, he said, I am

Mt 27: 48-50; Mk 15: 36-37; Lk 23:46; Jn 13:1; Lk 12:50

THE MOTHER OF THE BELIEVERS

• 19.25 At the moment of Man's fall, Eve was with Adam. Now, at the moment of restoration, that is, the second creation, another woman is with the Son of Man (the Human One), the second Adam. Mary has neither spouse nor son who can receive her and, for the Jews, a woman who remains alone would be considered cursed. Jesus entrusts Mary to John and, also, John to Mary. John testifies having heard both phrases. Notice that he writes: Jesus said to the Mother, and not, to his mother. This is a new symbolic gesture of Jesus. Mary will be the Mother of believers.

Through this last deed of Jesus, the Church discovered something about the mystery of the Christian life. The believer is a member of a spiritual family. As a child needs a father and a mother to grow normally so, too, does the believer need Mary and the heavenly Father. This is an unchanging doctrine of the Church, which in no way attempts to make the creature equal with the Creator.

Not without reason has God given us a mother: if it is a misfortune for a child not to have known a mother, it is also a misfortune for a believer when his religion only expresses itself in masculine terms. The believer who welcomes Mary to his home as did John is neither a fanatic nor a quibbler regarding faith. There exists a form of humility, joy, interior peace and simple piety characteristic of those Catholics who have known how to open their doors to Mary without throwing out their Savior.

• 28. I am thirsty. Jesus is tortured by thirst. He also thirsts that the Kingdom of his Father be realized in the world. He thirsts for selfless love from those who may share his deepest thoughts and be willing to follow him until Calvary.

It is accomplished. Jesus drank the cup of sorrow and humiliation to the last drop. The Father had placed it in his hands as the means for becoming the Savior we need. The Work of the Son of God made flesh, which should be nothing less than a new creation of the world, is accomplished. The earthly existence of the Son of God comes to an end, and from the seed planted in the earth will come forth the New Creature.

The preparatory times of the Jewish reli-

Ps 69:22 thirsty.²⁹ A jar full of bitter wine stood there; so, putting a sponge soaked in the wine on a twig of hyssop, they raised it to his lips.³⁰ Jesus took the wine and said, "It is accomplished." Then he bowed his head and gave up the spirit.

2Tim 4:7

Dt 21:
22-23;
Gal 3:13;
Ps 22:15

The pierced Christ

•³¹ As it was Preparation Day, the Jews did not want the bodies to remain on the cross during the Sabbath, for this Sabbath was a very solemn day. They asked Pilate to have the legs of the condemned men broken, so that the bodies might be taken away.

³² The soldiers came and broke the legs of the first man and of the other man, who had been crucified with Jesus.³³ When they came to Jesus, they saw that he was already dead, so they did not break his legs.

gion, in which the Law occupied first place and the fear due to unforgiven sins was never lost, are finished. A stage of history has ended, in which the rest of humanity had been dragged by its fears and acceptance of its deadly fate, which was a form of its slavery to the Evil Spirit.

Now begins a new era in history, the era of the New Covenant of God with humanity. The Spirit will be communicated to the Church. John said: Jesus gave up the spirit; a word that also indicated that he was giving his Spirit to us.

• 31. After the account of the passion and the death of Jesus, John adds and repeats three times the personal seal of his testimony. Christ is dead. The soldier pierces his side and from Jesus' pierced heart blood and water come out. For John, this is the moment of the revelation of the meaning of the drama.

It was preparation day for Passover and, on that Friday afternoon near the place of the executions, the Jews were coming down the hill to the Temple for the immolation of the Passover lamb. In this ritual of the Passover sacrifice, not a single drop of blood was to be lost. That year, John did not join the crowd. Instead, he was there at the foot of the cross with Mary and a few holy women. Then, like ³⁴ One of the soldiers, however, pierced his side with a lance, and immediately there came out blood and water.

7:37;
1Jn 5:6

³⁵ The one who saw it, has testified to it, and his testimony is true; he knows he speaks the truth, so that you also might believe.³⁶ All this happened to fulfill the words of Scripture: Not one of his bones shall be broken.³⁷ Another text says: They shall look on him whom they have pierced.

12:46;
Num 9:12;
Ps 34:21Zec
12:10;
Rev 1:7

•³⁸ After this, Joseph of Arimathea approached Pilate, for he was a disciple of Jesus, though secretly, for fear of the Jews. And he asked Pilate to let him remove the body of Jesus. Pilate agreed, so he came and took away the body.

Mt 27:
57-60;
Mk 15:
42-46;
Lk 23:
50-54

³⁹ Nicodemus, the man who at first had come to Jesus by night, also the priest at the same time in the Temple, the soldier drew the last drop of blood from Christ on the cross. At that very moment, John's eyes really opened up. What John the Baptist had said much earlier on the shore of the Jordan suddenly became clear: There is the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world.

The soldier's gesture became a prophetic gesture, unveiling the mystery of the Lamb. Christ's redemptive blood was poured out, no longer on the altar of the Temple but instead, on the earth renewed and enlivened by that blood. Now the sacrifice of the Passover lamb that Moses inaugurated reaches its fulfillment and its transfiguration. And like the "blood and water" of childbirth, the blood and water coming out of the side of Christ are announcing a new age with baptism and the Eucharist as its sacraments. At that point, John recalls another prescription of the ritual: Not one of his bones shall be broken (Ex 12:46).

• 38. All four evangelists mention the participation of Joseph of Arimathea in Jesus' burial. John also introduces Nicodemus. For John, both men are breaking free from the darkness of their fear. Jesus has just died and it is two Pharisees who took care of giving him a decent burial. Joseph of Arimathea ap- came and brought a jar of myrrh mixed with aloes, about a hundred pounds. ⁴⁰They took the body of Jesus and wrapped it in linen cloths with the spices, following the burial customs of the Jews.

11:44;
12:7

⁴¹There was a garden in the place where Jesus had been crucified, and, in the garden, a new tomb in which no one had ever been laid. ⁴²And therefore, because the sepulchre was nearby, and the Jewish day of preparation was coming to a close, they placed the body of Jesus there.

12:24

The Lord is risen

Mt 28:
1-8;
Mk 16:
1-8;

20 ¹Now, on the first day after the Sabbath, Mary of Magdala came to the tomb early in the morning while it was still dark, and she saw that the stone blocking the tomb had been moved away. ²She ran to Peter, and the other disciple whom Jesus loved, and she said to them, “They have taken the Lord out of the tomb and we don’t know where they have laid him.”

³Peter then set out with the other disciple to go to the tomb. ⁴They ran together, but the other disciple outran Peter and reached the tomb first. ⁵He bent down and saw the linen cloths lying flat, but he did not enter.

Lk 24:12

⁶Then Simon Peter came, following him, and entered the tomb; he, too, saw the linen cloths lying flat. ⁷The napkin, which had been around his head, was not lying flat like the proached Pilate: because the disciples had no means of approaching the Roman governor. Joseph and Nicodemus were disciples in “secret.” Because Jesus identified himself with the common people, it was difficult for those in better social positions to integrate themselves into his group. Here we have an example of the inevitable consequences of a preferential option for the poor.

Nicodemus, Joseph of Arimathea, Lazarus and the women mentioned in Luke 8:2 were people of upper or middle class. This fact was enough for some scholars to hastily conclude that Jesus did not live among the poor: seemingly forgetting all the rest of the Gospel’s evidence. Let us remark that, even now, wherever an apostolic person lives as a poor person among the poor, there are always people, who are better off financially, who recognize him and give him support. By being truly committed to the poor, Jesus saved the rich and won the admiration and friendship of some of them.

The huge amount of myrrh and aloes used for the burial may be one final reference to Jesus’ kingship. He receives a regal burial.

There was a garden. The place for the executions was an abandoned quarry near the walls of Jerusalem. Tombs were dug along the sides while the bottom was filled and passed as gardens. A rock projected, about four meters high, from the middle of the area. This rock was called Calvary and on it were raised the crosses.

• 20.1 On the second day after the burial it appeared that Jesus was alive and had gone from the tomb. The resurrection took place on the first day of the week, which henceforth would be called the Day of the Lord, that is, Sunday.

In Luke’s Gospel, after Jesus’ resurrection he helps his disciples revive their faith and hope. Here instead we see the believers silently contemplating the risen Lord. Christ appears to Mary, who does not recognize him. When he stands in the midst of his disciples, he has to show his wounds to prove that it is he himself, he who had died. Jesus is among them, but his appearance is that of a stranger, and his spiritually transformed body radiates the victory over sin and death.

Then Peter arrived. Several texts record that Peter was both a witness to the empty tomb and of Jesus risen from the dead (Lk 24:12 and 24:24; 1 Cor 15:5). Our faith is supported primarily by the testimony of the apostles, and especially by the testimony of the head of the apostles.

He saw the linen cloths lying flat. The linens designate the sheet, about 4 meters long, spread under the body from the feet to the head and then, above the body, from the head to the feet; they also refer to the bands that tied the two ends of the sheet. The dead person’s face was wrapped with a separate cloth, the napkin that was tied under the chin and over the head.

The sheet and the bands were lying where other linen cloths, but lay rolled up in its place. ⁸Then the other disciple, who had reached the tomb first, also went in; he saw and believed. ⁹Scripture clearly said that he must rise from the dead, but they had not yet understood that.

¹⁰The disciples then went home again.

• ¹¹Mary stood weeping outside the tomb; and as she wept, she bent down to look inside. ¹²She saw two angels in white, sitting where the body of Jesus had been, one at the head, and the other at the feet.

¹³They said, "Woman, why are you weeping?" She answered, "Because they have taken my Lord and I don't know where they have put him."

¹⁴As she said this, she turned around and saw Jesus standing there, but she did not recognize him.

¹⁵Jesus said to her, "Woman, why are you weeping? Who are you looking for?" She thought it was the gardener and answered him, "Lord, if you have taken him away, tell me where you have put him, and I will go and remove him."

¹⁶Jesus said to her, "Mary!" She turned, and said to him, "Rabboni!"—which means Master. ¹⁷Jesus

Ps 16:10;
Lk 24:26;
Acts 2:27;
1Cor 15:4

Mt 28: 9-10;
Mk 16: 9-11

Song 3:3

the body had been but were flat, for the body inside them had dematerialized. The napkin, which was rolled in the other direction, stayed as it was.

Jesus had not returned to life with his earthly body. This had dematerialized, so when we speak of the risen body of Jesus, we refer to something we have never experienced on earth. Those who have had dreams and visions of Jesus have only seen images of him, but have not actually seen him, except for a few of the most eminent saints.

• 11. Do not cling to me, because I have not yet ascended to the Father (v. 17). Before his death, Jesus did not disapprove of the passionate feelings and actions of Mary. Now this familiar gesture to take possession of her loved Master is no longer appropriate.

He is now the Risen One, and though he lets himself be seen by his disciples for a few days, he is in the Glory of the Father. His disciples must relinquish the physical presence of Jesus with which they felt so much at ease. From now on the followers or the followers and lovers of Jesus will embrace him in a secret and marvelous way, when they are given gifts of prayer and faith. It is then that the contemplative spirit, who is represented by Mary, may enjoy the whole of Christ (see Song 3:4)

I have not yet ascended to the Father. Jesus is revealing the great desire that filled his life. He came from God and must return to the Father. This is "the greatest love in the world." All the love that Jesus has for us is but a manifestation of that other love, because God the Father is the fountain and the goal of all love.

See the commentary on Matthew 19:16 in this regard.

It is not by chance that the word Lord is again repeated seven times, the last time by Thomas: "You are my Lord and my God." This expresses the faith of the Church.

Let us remark that the persons concerned in this event did in fact call Jesus, "the Master." However, John puts on their lips the word Lord. Why? From the first days of the Church, the believers had to find words to express their faith in Jesus, Son of God. Being the Son, he was not the same person as God, but he was one with him. How to express this divine condition?

In the Bible two names were given to God: God and Yahweh. At that time the Jews no longer pronounced the name of Yahweh and instead said: "the Lord." Moreover, in the Greek bible used by the apostles and the Church, Yahweh was also translated as "the Lord." So the apostles decided very soon to retain the term God when speaking of God the Father, and to call Jesus "the Lord," by this affirming that he was not inferior to the Father.

The risen Jesus' apparitions to his disciples, besides fostering their hope and making them qualified witnesses of his resurrection, were necessary for their spiritual formation. The disciples had to learn to recognize Jesus no longer through their senses but through faith. Likewise, we have to learn to recognize and follow Jesus in the dim light of faith, in desolation as well as in consolation, thus we too will be among those whom Jesus blesses: Happy are those who have not seen and yet have come to believe (v. 29).

14:28; 16:7; Ps 22:23; Mt 12:49; 28:10; Rom 8:29; Heb 2:11 said to her, “Do not touch me, because I have not yet ascended to the Father. But go to my brothers and say to them: I am ascending to my Father, who is your Father, to my God, who is your God.”

¹⁸ So Mary of Magdala went and announced to the disciples, “I have seen the Lord, and this is what he said to me.”

Mk 16: 14-18; Lk 24: 36-49; Jn 14:18

• ¹⁹ On the evening of that day, the first day after the Sabbath, the doors were locked where the disciples were, because of their fear of the Jews. But Jesus came, and stood among them, and said to them, “Peace be with you!” ²⁰ Then he showed them his hands and his side. The disciples kept looking at the Lord and were full of joy.

16:22

²¹ Again Jesus said to them, “Peace be with you! As the Father has sent me, so I send you.” ²² After saying this, he breathed on them, and said to them, “Receive the Holy Spirit! ²³ Those whose sins you forgive, they are forgiven; those whose sins you retain, they are retained.”

7:39; Acts 1:8; Gen 2:7; Ezk 37:9; 1Cor 15:45; Mt 16:19; 18:18

²⁴ Thomas, the Twin, one of the Twelve, was not with them when Jesus came. ²⁵ The other disciples told him, “We have seen the Lord.” But he replied, “Until I have seen in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger in the mark of the nails and my hand in his side, I will not believe.”

1Cor 9:1; 1Jn 1:1

²⁶ Eight days later, the disciples were inside again and Thomas was with them. Despite the locked doors Jesus came and stood in their midst and said, “Peace be with you!” ²⁷ Then he said to Thomas, “Put your finger here, and see my hands; stretch out your hand, and put it into my side. Don’t be an unbeliever! Believe!”

²⁸ Thomas then said, “You are my Lord and my God.” ²⁹ Jesus replied, “You believe because you see me, don’t you? Happy are those who have not seen and yet have come to believe.”

Mk 16:14; Lk 24:25; Mt 28:17

4:48; 1P 1:8

Conclusion

³⁰ There were many other signs that Jesus gave in the presence of his disciples, but they are not recorded in this book. ³¹ These are recorded, so that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God. Believe, and you will have life through his Name!

3:15; 1Jn 5:13; Acts 3:16

• 19. Just as in the first creation God infused life into Adam, so, too, Jesus’ breath communicates life to the new spiritual creation. Christ, who died to take away the sin of the world, now leaves to his own the power to forgive.

Thus the hope of the Biblical people has been realized. God led them in such a way that they felt the universal presence of sin, and so they offered animals in the Temple uninterruptedly to appease God. That river of blood failed to destroy sin, and the priests themselves offered sacrifices for their own sins before praying to God for the others. Ceremonies and rites had no power to purify the heart or to give the Holy Spirit.

Now, in the person of Jesus risen from the dead, a new world has begun. Although humanity may continue to sin, already the first of its sons and daughters, the “eldest brother of them all” is sharing fully the holy life of God.

Those who strive for the spiritual life, suffer above all from a keen awareness of the universal presence of sin. They grieve deeply at not yet having attained total liberation from sin. Hence they recognize the forgiveness of sin as the greatest gift given to the Church.

The capacity to forgive is the only power able to release the great tensions within humankind. Although it does not easily conquer hearts, it is an invaluable secret and the Church should consider it as its own particular treasure.

One who does not know how to forgive does not know how to love. On making us aware of sin and purifying us from it, the Church helps us demonstrate a more authentic love for the neighbor.

Appendix: the appearance of Jesus by the lake

21¹After this, Jesus revealed himself to the disciples by the Lake of Tiberias. He appeared to them in this way. ²Simon Peter, Thomas who was called the Twin, Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, the sons of Zebedee and two other disciples were together; ³and Simon Peter said to them, “I’m going fishing.” They replied, “We will come with you.” And they went out and got into the boat, but they caught nothing that night.

Lk 5:10

⁴When day had already broken, Jesus was standing on the shore, but the disciples did not know that it was Jesus. ⁵Jesus called them, “Friends, have you anything to eat?” They answered, “Nothing.” ⁶Then he said to them, “Throw the net on the right side of the boat and you will find something.” When they had lowered the net, they were not able to pull it in because of the great number of fish.

⁷Then the disciple Jesus loved said to Peter, “It’s the Lord!” At these words, “It’s the Lord!” Simon Peter put on his clothes, for he was stripped for work, and jumped into the water. ⁸The other disciples came in the boat, dragging the net full of fish; they were not far from land, about a hundred meters.

⁹When they landed, they saw a charcoal fire with fish on it, and some bread. ¹⁰Jesus said to them, “Bring some of the fish you’ve just caught.”

Lk 24:41

¹¹So Simon Peter climbed into the boat and pulled the net to shore. It was full of big fish—one hundred and fifty-three—but, in spite of this, the net was not torn.

¹²Jesus said to them, “Come and have breakfast.” And not one of the disciples dared to ask him, “Who are you?” for they knew it was the Lord.

¹³Jesus then came and took the bread and gave it to them, and he did the same with the fish.

Mt 14:19

¹⁴This was the third time that Jesus revealed himself to his disciples after rising from the dead.

• 21.1 Jesus appears this time near Lake Tiberias. This delightful story is filled with divine presence as Christ stands on the lonely lakeshore in the light of dawn. The apostles see a stranger but John, the prophet, recognizes Christ.

The apostles pulled in a net full of 153 big fish. This number had a symbolic value; it expressed plenitude and universality. Such will be the apostolic work: all nations of the earth will be brought to Christ.

The triple questioning of Peter by Jesus may be thought of as the undoing of the triple denial during Jesus’ passion. Peter, too, being the shepherd of the shepherds, is a forgiven sinner. Jesus entrusts the whole Church to him: the same as in Matthew 16:18. Do you love me? This is the first condition to be fulfilled by a shepherd in the Church.

This dialogue between Jesus and Peter expresses what being a Christian is all about. Jesus asks us every day if we love him in a special and exclusive way: Do you love me more than these? We answer, “Yes,” despite our miseries, as Peter did; Jesus then invites us to follow him anew, out of love (v. 22), and to share with him the responsibility of caring for the people of God. There is no better way of following Jesus than by giving up our lives for his mission.

Jesus orders Peter to care for the Church and, with this, orders us to obey. We obey freely and conscientiously, not because the shepherds are always capable and infallible, but rather because they perform a necessary function of authority. We believe that historically they are the successors of the apostles, and for that reason have received their mission from God.

The Gospel ends with a prediction of the different fates that will be Peter’s and John’s. Peter died a martyr’s death in Rome in the year 66 or 67; John was still living in the year 90. He was the last of the witnesses of Christ and many thought he would not die until the Lord would come again: hence, the Gospel insists that Jesus had not made such a promise.

The last paragraph was placed there by those associated with John at the time of his death.

Mt 16:17;
Lk 7:42

¹⁵After they had finished breakfast, Jesus said to Simon Peter, "Simon, son of John, do you love me more than these?" He answered, "Yes, Lord, you know that I love you." And Jesus said, "Feed my lambs."

Acts
20:28;
1P 5:2

¹⁶A second time Jesus said to him, "Simon, son of John, do you love me?" And Peter answered, "Yes, Lord, you know that I love you." Jesus said to him, "Look after my sheep." ¹⁷And a third time he said to him, "Simon, son of John, do you love me?"

Peter was saddened because Jesus asked him a third time, "Do you love me?" and he said, "Lord, you know everything; you know that I love you."

Acts
21:11;
Mt 16:22

Jesus then said, "Feed my sheep! ¹⁸Truly, I say to you, when you were young, you put on your belt and walked where you liked. But when you grow old, you will stretch out your hands, and another will put a belt around you, and lead you where you do not wish to go."

2P 1:14

¹⁹Jesus said this to make known the kind of death by which Peter was to glorify God. And he added, "Follow me."

13:25

²⁰Peter looked back and saw that the disciple Jesus loved was following as well, the one who had reclined close to Jesus at the supper, and had asked him, "Lord, who is to betray you?" ²¹On seeing him, Peter asked Jesus, "Lord, what about him?" ²²Jesus answered, "If I want him to remain until I come, does that concern you? Follow me!"

Mt 16:28

²³Because of this the rumor spread in the community that this disciple would not die. Yet Jesus had not said to Peter, "He will not die," but, "Suppose I want him to remain until I come."

²⁴It is this disciple who testifies about the things he has written here, and we know that his testimony is true. ²⁵But Jesus did many other things; if all were written down, I think the world itself could not contain the books that should be written.

During the three years of public life, Jesus set down the foundations of the Church: he gathered his first disciples and associated them with his mission (Mk 3:13-16). He put Peter in charge of the community (Mt 16:18) and made him the guardian of the faith (Lk 22:31) within the new People of God. He made the twelve apostles and the disciples a community of witnesses (Jn 15:16) and promised them the gift of the Spirit who would help them come to know the fullness of the Light which Jesus came to bring into the world (Jn 16:13).

Now, the Lord is risen, and from the pierced side of Jesus, a new people, a new world is born, like the child coming to life in the blood and water flowing from its mother's womb (Jn 19:34). This gospel community, enlightened by the word of Jesus, enlivened by his Spirit, sets out to announce God's marvelous deeds to the ends of the earth and to gather together in unity, the scattered children of God (Jn 11:52).

Two great giants stand out in this evangelization: Peter and Paul. Peter will devote himself in particular to the evangelization of the Jews, while Paul will become the apostle to the Gentiles (Gal 2:7-8).

Luke, the author of the third gospel, writes about this nascent Church in the book of the Acts of the Apostles, which was probably first called Acts of Apostles. If, as in the case of the gospels, earlier accounts of the Acts existed which Luke would have drawn upon to write his text, the harmony achieved in editing these various texts is indeed remarkable since it is very difficult to identify these different texts today.

Certain scholars believe that at the outset the Acts of the Apostles and the third gospel were one and the same text that was only divided up later. One point is certain, however: by the beginning of the second century, the Acts of the Apostles were already a separate text. However, the testimony concerning the beginnings of the Church has come down to us in two different forms: the "current text," coinciding with the majority of ancient manuscripts of Syrian and Egyptian origin, and the said "Western text," which is longer and where the disputes between the Jews and the first Christians are more in evidence.

The Book of the Acts does not follow a rigorous outline. One can, however, pick out some clear-cut divisions in the text which allow us to glimpse Luke's project. Without focusing exclusively on Peter and Paul, Luke devoted the greater part of his work to them. In spite of many exceptions, Peter dominates the first twelve chapters, while Paul dominates the second part of the book.

From the geographical point of view, one can notice that the Acts bring us from Jerusalem, through Judea and Samaria, to Rome, thus following the mission to which Jesus appointed his apostles on ascension day (Acts 1:8). In the first seven chapters we are in Jerusalem, then in chapter 8 and those following, we see—of course, with some exceptions—the Church taking root in Judea, in Samaria and along the coastal plain; from chapter 13 onwards, we accompany Paul to Asia Minor and to Greece and finally, in chapter 28, to Rome, to the Palace of the Emperor, that is to say, to the heart of the pagan world.

There, the Book of the Acts ends abruptly, as if Luke, like the runner whose job is to accompany the Good News of salvation as it is spreading out from Jerusalem to the ends of the earth, has achieved his goal and thus fulfilled his contract. This in itself is sufficient to remind us that the Acts, no more than the gospels, do not pretend to be a biography of Peter and Paul, or a detailed history of the early Church, but a testimony to the work of the Holy Spirit.

Indeed, the Holy Spirit is the veritable actor in the birth of the Church: this is the reason why many commentators, ever since the first Christian centuries, have not hesitated to call this book “The Gospel of the Holy Spirit.” With only slight modification we could use here the words of John in Jn 20:3: “The Spirit has accomplished many other signs which have not been written of in this book. These have been recorded so that you may believe that the Spirit is at work in the Church of Jesus Christ.”

Luke’s intention in the Acts is to highlight, in particular through the diverse preaching of Peter and Paul, how the mystery of Christ and of the Church has been announced and prepared for in the Old Testament, but also how this double mystery—Christ and the Church—fulfills the Old Testament.

In this perspective, Luke readily highlights the parallels between Jesus and his Church, and also between the people of the Old Testament and the Church: by way of example, let us mention the parallels between the death of Stephen and that of Christ, between the journey to Jerusalem of Paul and that of Christ, but also the opposition between the Tower of Babel and Pentecost.

Continuing in this same line of inquiry, Jerusalem constantly flows from the pen of Luke, (58 times). As he has done in his gospel, where the Holy City is mentioned 30 times, Luke points to Jerusalem as the place where salvation is accomplished and from where the Good News is to be taken to all nations.

Jesus taken up to heaven

Lk 1:1-4 1[•] In the first part of my work, Theophilus, I wrote of all that Jesus did and taught from the beginning ²until the day when he ascended to heaven.

Lk 24:51; 24:49; 6:13 But first he had instructed through the Holy Spirit the apostles he had chosen. ³After his passion, he presented himself to them, giving many signs that he was alive; over a period of forty days he appeared to them and taught them concerning the kingdom of God. ⁴Once when he had been eating with them, he told them, “Do not leave Jerusalem but wait for the fulfillment of the Father’s promise about which I have spoken to you: ⁵John baptized with water, but you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit within a few days.”

Lk 24:49 Mal 3:23; ⁶When they had come together, they asked him, “Is it now that you will restore the Kingdom of Israel?” ⁷And he answered, It is not for you to know the time and the steps that the Father has fixed by his own authority. ⁸But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit comes upon you; and you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem, throughout Judea and Samaria, even to the ends of the earth.”

⁹After Jesus said this, he was taken up before their eyes and a cloud hid him from their sight. ¹⁰While they were still looking up to heaven where he went, suddenly, two men dressed in white stood beside them ¹¹and said, “Men of Galilee, why do you stand here looking up at the sky? This Jesus who has been taken from you into heaven, will return in the same way as you have seen him go there.”

Sir 36;
Mk 9:12;
Lk 18:31

Lk 24:
47-48

Lk 24:
50-51;
Dn 7:13;
Lk 9:34

Lk 24:4

• 1.1 Throughout the Book of the Acts, the apostles affirm that they are “witnesses of the resurrection of Jesus” (2:32; 3:15; 5:32; 10:41; 13:31...). This testimony is not based on vague sentiments or doubtful visions, but on the “proofs” that Jesus gave to his apostles after his resurrection and which are echoed in the gospels.

The reference to the forty days is important. Inspired by the number of weeks—forty—which the child spends in its mother’s womb, the symbolic number forty indicates both the time of trial or growth and that of maturity: it is the time of waiting for new life. During forty days in the desert, Jesus prepared himself for his mission of Savior; during forty days the apostles will prepare themselves for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit and for their mission of witness. It is in Jerusalem that the apostles will receive the baptism in the Spirit that will make them into new people. The Spirit that hovered over the waters (Gen 1:2) during the first days of creation, will descend upon them and inaugurate the new dispensation. The Church of which they will be the “pillars” will be first and above all the work of the Holy Spirit. It is in the Spirit that the apostles will find the strength to be witnesses of the Risen One in the very midst of the world.

You will be my witnesses in Jerusalem, throughout Judea and Samaria, even to the ends of the earth. Luke outlines here the geographic framework of the Book of Acts (see Introduction to the Acts of the Apostles). At the same time, he demonstrates how the dynamic of the Old Testament is reversed with the death and resurrection of Jesus.

From the first pages of the Book of Genesis, we know that the sky and the earth belong to God: he is their Creator and all belongs to him.

Later with the call of Abraham and the journey of Moses, we discover that in this universe there is one country which is particularly blessed by God, it is the Land of Promise; when David settles in Jerusalem, this city becomes the city of David, and at the same time, the city of God. From then on the Psalmist can say: “God preferred Jerusalem to all the towns of Jacob” (Ps 87:2) and in this Holy City, it is on the Temple Mount that God has prepared his dwelling (1 K 8:29). Thus gradually, according as God walks side by side with his people, lighting up the way with his Word, all eyes become fixed on Jerusalem and on the Temple.

Now, it is when people have destroyed the true Temple (Jn 2:19), the humanity of the Son by nailing him to the cross, that God brings forth life from death, and from then on, a new dynamic will burst forth from Jerusalem towards the other countries of the Promised Land (Judea and Samaria), and from the

The disciples await the Holy Spirit

•¹² Then they returned to Jerusalem from the Mount called Olives, which is a fifteen-minute walk away.

Lk 6:
14-16

¹³ On entering the city they went to the room upstairs where they were staying. Present there were Peter, John, James and Andrew; Philip and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James, son of Alpheus; Simon the Zealot and Judas son of James. ¹⁴ All of these together gave themselves to constant prayer. With them were some women and also Mary, the mother of Jesus, and his brothers.

Lk 8:2;
Mk 15:
40; 3:31;
1Cor 9:5

Matthias elected

•¹⁵ It was during this time that Peter stood up in the midst of the community—about one hundred and twenty in all—¹⁶ and he said, “Brothers, it was necessary that the Scriptures referring to Judas be fulfilled. The Holy Spirit had spoken through David about the one who would lead the crowd coming to arrest Jesus. ¹⁷ He was one of our number and had been called to share our common ministry.

Lk 22:47

¹⁸ (We know that he bought a field with the reward of his sin; yet he

Mt 27:3

Promised Land to the ends of the earth. Each of the gospels in their own way, finishes with the sending of the disciples. Similarly, from the first pages of the Acts, Jesus reminds his Church of the demands of mission: when the Church, or even when the smallest community ceases to be missionary, she is no longer the Church of Christ.

After Jesus said this, he was taken up before their eyes (v. 9). Jesus multiplied the “proofs” of his resurrection for those whose vocation would be to become witnesses of the risen Christ (v. 3), but now he must let the disciples know the significance of the resurrection. In this final apparition on the day of his ascension, Jesus revealed to them the meaning of his own story: having come from the Father, he returns to the Father but he does not return alone, he brings with him a “captive people” (Eph 4:8) whom he snatches from the power of darkness in order to bring them into his Kingdom of Light (Col 1:13), he goes to prepare a place for us, so that where he is, we may be too (Jn 14:2-3).

For the moment, the disciples are still in this world, where they must bear witness to the new reality of the kingdom of God inaugurated by Jesus: a Kingdom which is not like the earthly kingdoms founded on power and money (Lk 22:25-26), but a Kingdom of love, of justice, of peace. This Kingdom is not to be found in the clouds, it is already in our midst (Lk 17:20-21) and it grows each time we let ourselves be guided by the Spirit of God.

• 12. The apostles cannot begin such a difficult mission before they have received the Holy Spirit. They have done everything that depended on them and now can only put themselves in the hands of God and wait perseveringly in prayer for the time he has fixed.

As John has done in giving us the word of Jesus to his mother, present at the foot of the cross (Jn 19:26-27), Luke here reveals to us the spiritual maternity of Mary. She is there sharing in the longing of the apostles, she is the New Eve, the new mother of all the living (Gen 3:20).

Mary, mother of Jesus, played a decisive role during those days when the apostles tried to reflect together on all they had seen and learned from Jesus, in order to clarify the message they had to give to the world. Mary, only witness of the annunciation and of the private life of Jesus, helped them perceive the mystery of his divine personality.

Luke does not speak about this: from now on Mary keeps herself in the background. Different from those “brothers of Jesus” who long for power in the Church, she is but a praying presence. From that moment the Church has a hierarchy but all those called to receive the Spirit are full members of this community or communion.

• 15. Peter is acting here as head of the primitive Church. The death of Judas has left a vacancy in the “college of apostles” whose twelve members bring to mind the twelve sons of Jacob. Just as the Israel of old never accepted being deprived of one or many of its tribes, so too, Peter, will not permit the group of the Twelve to have one of its members amputated.

Peter will find a way to allow God to make known his choice. We may be surprised today that such an important decision could have been made by casting lots. Is this not a sort of threw himself headlong to his death, his body burst open and all his bowels spilled out. ¹⁹This event became known to all the people living in Jerusalem and they named that field Akeldama in their own language, which means Field of Blood).

²⁰In the book of Psalms it is written: Let his house become deserted and may no one live in it. But it is also written: May another take his office. ²¹Therefore we must choose someone from among those who were with us during all the time that the Lord Jesus moved about with us, ²²beginning with John's baptism until the day when Jesus was taken away from us. One of these has to become, with us, a witness to his resurrection."

²³Then they proposed two: Joseph, called Barsabbas, also known as Justus, and Matthias. ²⁴They prayed: "You know, Lord, what is in the hearts of all. Show us, therefore, which of the two you have chosen ²⁵to replace Judas in this apostolic ministry which he deserted to go to the place he deserved."

²⁶Then they drew lots between the two and the choice fell on Matthias who was added to the eleven apostles.

The coming of the Holy Spirit

2 • ¹When the day of Pentecost came, they were all together in one place. ²And suddenly out of the sky came a sound like a strong rushing wind and it filled the whole house where they were sitting. There appeared ³tongues as if of fire which parted and came to rest upon each one of them. ⁴All were filled with washing one's hands of the decision-making process? We must not forget that this episode is happening in a community whose religious culture welcomes signs from God. They know the qualities they would want to see in the candidates and two are eligible. Now the question is which one to choose? They pray to God to make his decision known and promise to accept the outcome. This election process, in the spirit of prayer and of abandonment to God, is it not finally as good as certain election processes, not excluding those used by the cardinals in conclave, where the real challenges to the Church have often been compromised by the dishonest voting of interested parties?

It is good to focus in this passage on the conditions which Peter laid down: To have followed Jesus from John's baptism until the day when he was taken away from us." The Good News begins with the preaching of John and culminates with the ascension (Acts 13:14-31). In this way Mark's is the typical gospel, Matthew and Luke have both added an introduction, the infancy narratives, while John makes use of a prologue to act as a kind of preface. For each of the evangelists, it is the resurrection accounts that dominate their gospels and give them meaning.

Like on so many occasions in the Old Testament (Jacob, Samuel, David...) God again chooses the second and possibly even the more simple person: let us examine the "calling card" of the first: Joseph named Barsabbas, also known as Justus while it is Matthias, without any other name or nickname, who is chosen by God.

• 2.1 Pentecost was one of the greatest feasts of the Jewish calendar. Originally an agricultural feast, in the latter centuries of the Old Testament it became the celebration of the giving of the Law to Moses on Mt. Sinai. For this occasion, like for the Passover, many Jews from the countries around the Mediterranean came on pilgrimage to Jerusalem.

It was during the Jewish Passover, which commemorated the liberation from slavery in Egypt, that Jesus, by his own death and resurrection, offered the world freedom from death and sin; it is on the day when the gift of the Law on Sinai is celebrated, the day when God made his covenant with the chosen people, that God now gives his Spirit to the "Israel of God" (Gal 6:16).

That very day the baptism of fire announced by John (Lk 3:16) takes place. God sends the Spirit of his Son and, with this, the Church is born. For the Church is not a human institution, or the work of a group of believers; it comes from God's initiative, and God wills that individuals of every nation witness this event.

Mt 27:8

Ps
69:26;
109:8Lk 9:51;
2K 2:9

6:4

4:31;
Jn 3:8Num
11:25

10:46;

19:6; Holy Spirit and began to speak other
1Cor 12 languages, as the Spirit enabled them to speak.

5 Staying in Jerusalem were religious Jews from every nation under heaven. 6 When they heard this sound, a crowd gathered, all excited because each heard them speaking in his own language. 7 Full of amazement and wonder, they asked, "Are not all these who are speaking Galileans?" 8 How is it that we hear them in our own native language? 9 Here are Parthians, Medes and Elamites and residents of Mesopotamia, Judea and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia, 10 Phrygia, Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of Libya belonging to Cyrene, and visitors from Rome, 11 both Jews and foreigners who accept Jewish beliefs, Cretians and Arabians; and all of us hear them proclaiming in our own language what God, the Savior, does."

12 They were amazed and greatly confused, and they kept asking one another, "What does this mean?" 13 But others laughed and said, These people are drunk.

Peter addresses the crowd

• 14 Then Peter stood up with the Eleven and, with a loud voice, addressed them, "Fellow Jews and all foreigners now staying in Jerusalem, listen to what I have to say. 15 These

What happened at Pentecost was as unique as what was accomplished by the resurrection. Nevertheless it follows the pattern of other interventions of God in history. On one hand, the Spirit constantly brings about our apostolic renewals, religious awakenings, and dynamic communities that become the new blood of the Church, which constantly grows old and constantly needs renewal.

The Spirit comes to give life to the Church. It also comes to confirm or affirm the believers. The baptism of fire that the apostles receive is normally conferred on us through confirmation (see commentary on 8:9).

The rushing wind is a sign, because spirit means both breath and wind in the Hebrew culture. Inspired by the Spirit, Peter speaks up. He now knows the truth and believes, and this is why he can boldly proclaim it (Jn 15:26 and 16:13).

Each one heard them speaking in his own language. The repetition of this expression on three occasions (vv. 6, 8, 11) is an indication to us that here is a key for understanding this passage. The miracle of Pentecost is not really in the fact that the apostles, all of Palestinian origin, began to speak in foreign languages, but in the fact that all the foreigners heard the proclamation of God's wonderful deeds in their own language: that is the miracle of Pentecost. Many other New Testament texts refer to the "gift of tongues" (Acts 10:46; 19:6; 1 Cor 12; 14:2-19) but here in the Pentecostal text God outlines the basis of all evangelization: those who are called to have faith in Jesus, to become members of the Church, are not required to renounce their language and their culture, as the Jewish proselytes of old were expected to. On the contrary, God wishes to be praised and blessed by people of all languages and cultures: in this way the diversity of the members in the body of Christ (1 Cor 12:12-13) will be clearly visible for all to see, likewise the gathering together through Jesus and his Spirit of God's scattered children will also be visible (Jn 11:52).

Throughout her history, the Church has tended to forget the miracle of Pentecost when she imposed her language and her culture while evangelizing new peoples. Throughout her history, the Holy Spirit has also warned the Church against such temptations in the persons of apostles who live by the spirit of Pentecost.

• 14. This is the first proclamation of Jesus' resurrection. Peter, once again, aware of his responsibility in the group of the Twelve, speaks on behalf of all. He cites the texts of the Old Testament: Joel, the Psalms, etc. and demonstrates their fulfillment in Jesus and in the nascent Church.

I will pour out my Spirit. The Father sends the Spirit of Jesus to all people; he makes of all people his prophets, his witnesses.

I will perform miracles in the sky... Peter continues quoting the prophet Joel who announces the day of Yahweh, that is to say, in the Old Testament, the day of God's judgement. According to Joel it appears that the people of Israel alone will escape punishment; but Peter expands the text and affirms (v. 39),

Gen 11:1

1Cor
14:23

people are not drunk as you suppose, for it is only nine o'clock in the morning. ¹⁶Indeed what the prophet Joel spoke about has happened:

Jl 3:1-5

¹⁷*In the last days, God says, I will pour out my Spirit on every mortal. Your sons and daughters will speak through the Holy Spirit; your young men will see visions and your old men will have dreams.*

¹⁸*In those days I will pour out my Spirit even on my servants, both men and women, and they will be prophets.*

Am 5:18

¹⁹*I will perform miracles in the sky above and wonders on the earth below. ²⁰The sun will be darkened and the moon will turn red as blood, before the great and glorious Day of the Lord comes.*

4:12; Rom 10:13; 1Cor 1:2

²¹*And then, whoever calls upon the Name of the Lord will be saved.*

6:8; 7:36; 7:3

²²Fellow Israelites, listen to what I am going to tell you about Jesus of Nazareth. God accredited him and through him did powerful deeds and wonders and signs in your midst, as you well know. ²³You delivered him to sinners to be crucified and killed, and in this way the purpose of God from all times was fulfilled. ²⁴But God raised him to life and released him from the pain of death, because it was impossible for him to be held in the power of death. ²⁵David spoke of him when he said: I saw the Lord before me at all times; he is by my side, that I may not be shaken. ²⁶Therefore my heart was glad and my tongue rejoiced; my body too will live in hope. ²⁷Because you will not forsake me in the abode of the dead, nor allow your Holy One to experience corruption. ²⁸You have made known to me the paths of life, and your presence will fill me with joy.

4:28

Ps 16: 8-11

²⁹Friends, I don't need to prove that the patriarch David died and was buried; his tomb is with us to this day. ³⁰But he knew that God had sworn to him that one of his descendants would sit upon his throne and, at the end of his speech, that the salvation which comes from God is promised to all, to those who are near and to those who are afar, to all those represented here by the foreigners of diverse nationality.

2S 7:2; Ps 132:11

God raised him to life. Peter recalls how Jesus showed many signs of love during his public life: in spite of that, or more precisely, because of that, he was delivered into the hands of pagans: how mysterious it is that people reject God's love. More than 700 years before the coming of Jesus, the prophet Hosea was already familiar with this rejection of God's love (Hos 11:1-4) and Jesus, himself, announces it in the parable of the murderous vineyard tenants (Mt 21:33-39). However, God, whose love is more powerful than our sins (Rom 5:20), raised him from the dead and made him the source of salvation for all (vv. 33 and 36).

Repent. Peter uses these words of Jesus at the beginning of his speech (Mt 4:17)—the Church is beginning to fall into the steps of Jesus—now it is no longer a question of receiving the baptism of John the Baptist, which was only a ritual of purification, highlighting the desire to repent. We must receive baptism "in the Name of Jesus."

What shall we do?... Repent. In those days, to repent and to be converted meant to share the life of the infant Church which showed to the nation the way of salvation taught by Jesus. The Church did not appear as a new religion opposed to Judaism, but as a center of more authentic life.

Save yourselves from this crooked generation (v. 40). This means that the entire generation was missing the unique opportunity they were given. For God asked them to take the most decisive step in Sacred History; even Roman oppression could be overcome by a people able to put the Gospel into practice. At the same time Jesus made them discover the love of God the Father for which the whole Bible had prepared them.

Some three thousand were added to their number (v. 41). They already knew of Jesus, but were not committed to him. They were converted by the common action of the Holy Spirit and the apostles. A church in which signs of the Spirit acting could not be seen could not say that Jesus lives in her midst.

Ps 16:10 ³¹ as he was a prophet, he foresaw and spoke of the resurrection of the Messiah. So he said that he would not be left in the region of the dead, nor would his body experience corruption.

1:8; 5:32 This Messiah is Jesus and we are all witnesses that God raised him to life. ³³ He has been exalted at God's right side and the Father has entrusted the Holy Spirit to him; this Spirit he has just poured upon us as you now see and hear.

Ps 110:1; Lk 20:41-44 ³⁴ And look: David did not ascend into heaven, but he himself said: The Lord said to my Lord: sit at my right side ³⁵ until I make your enemies a stool for your feet. ³⁶ Let Israel then know for sure that God has made Lord and Christ this Jesus whom you crucified."

³⁷ When they heard this, they were deeply troubled. And they asked Peter and the other apostles, "What shall we do, brothers?"

8:16; 10:48; 19:5; 22:16 ³⁸ Peter answered: "Each of you must repent and be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ, so that your sins may be forgiven. Then you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. ³⁹ For the promise of God was made to you and your children, and to all those from afar whom our God may call."

⁴⁰ With many other words Peter gave the message and appealed to them saying, "Save yourselves from this crooked generation." ⁴¹ So those who accepted his word were baptized; some three thousand persons were added to their number that day.

The first community

• ⁴² They were faithful to the teaching of the apostles, the common life of sharing, the breaking of bread and the prayers.

⁴³ A holy fear came upon all the people, for many wonders and miraculous signs were done by the apostles. ⁴⁴ Now all the believers lived together and shared all their belongings. ⁴⁵ They would sell their property and all they had and distribute the proceeds to others according to their need. ⁴⁶ Each day they met together in the Temple area; they broke bread in their homes; they shared their food

13:38

13:8; Dt 32:5; Mt 17:17; Gal 1:4

4:32; 5:12; 20:7; Lk 24:35

5:12

• 42. Those who have been baptized feel strongly united by the new faith and long for a communal life. As they gather in private houses and the communities are not too big, they can know each other and share everything.

Luke tells us what they did and we must note the order of priorities:

- first the teaching of the apostles
- then comes Christian fellowship, with more attention to the weak (chap. 4)
- only then may the breaking of bread, that is, the Eucharist, be celebrated
- finally common prayers of thanksgiving to prolong the Eucharist.

In some communities today life is lacking because the first point, which is the basis for all the rest, is not given priority.

The Spirit of Jesus comes to us through the Word and the Eucharist: these are the sources of the Church's dynamism. By the word, we do not mean the study of the Bible merely to know the Bible. The Bible helps us realize how God continues to speak to us through the actual achievements of our life, the community and the world.

The expression breaking of the bread could mean any Jewish meal that began with a blessing. But very early the Christians reserved this word for reference to the Eucharist that they celebrated remembering the last supper of the Lord (Acts 20:7; 1 Cor 10:16).

Joy and simplicity of heart gave witness to the change in their lives and the authenticity of their fraternal sharing. They were deeply reconciled persons.

It was not the naive joy that is easily found in Christian groups who have no thought for the problems of the world. Neither they nor their enemies could ignore that Jesus had taken on the problems of national reconciliation. They were enjoying the favor of the people who considered them to be concerned and responsible persons.

with great joy and simplicity of heart; 47 they praised God and won the people's favor. And every day the Lord added to their number those who were being saved.

4:21;
13:48;
21:20

Peter and John cure a lame man

10:30 3 • ¹Once when Peter and John were going up to the Temple at three in the afternoon, the hour for prayer, ²a man crippled from birth was being carried in. Every day they would bring him and put him at the temple gate called "Beautiful"; there he begged from those who entered the Temple.

14:8 ³When he saw Peter and John on their way into the Temple, he asked for alms. ⁴Then Peter with John at his side looked straight at him and said, "Look at us." ⁵So he looked at them, expecting to receive something from them. ⁶But Peter said, "I have neither silver nor gold, but what I have I give you: In the name of Jesus of Nazareth, the Messiah, walk!"

4:10;
9:34;
16:18;
19:13

⁷Then he took the beggar by his right hand and helped him up. At once his feet and ankles became firm, ⁸and jumping up he stood on his feet and began to walk. And he went with them into the Temple walking and leaping and praising God.

Lk 5:26;
7:16 ⁹All the people saw him walking and praising God; ¹⁰they recognized him as the one who used to sit begging at the Beautiful Gate of the Temple, and they were all astonished and amazed at what had happened to him.

¹¹While he clung to Peter and John, all the people, struck with astonishment, came running to them in Solomon's Porch, as it was called. ¹²When Peter saw the people, he said to them,

5:12;
Jn 10:23

"Fellow Israelites, why are you amazed at this? Why do you stare at us as if it was by some power or holiness of our own that we made this man walk? ¹³The God of Abraham, of Isaac and of Jacob, the God of our ancestors has glorified his servant Jesus whom you handed over to death and denied before Pilate, when even Pilate had decided to release him. ¹⁴You rejected the Holy and Just One, and you insisted that a murderer be released to you. ¹⁵You killed the Master of life, but God raised him from the dead and we are witnesses to this. ¹⁶It is his Name, and faith in his Name, that has healed this man whom you see and recognize. The faith that comes through Jesus has given him wholeness in the presence of all of you.

14:15;
10:36

Lk 23:13

5:32;
10:39;
Jn 7:23

¹⁷Yet I know that you acted out of ignorance, as did your leaders. ¹⁸God has fulfilled in this way what he had foretold through all the prophets, that his Messiah would suffer.

13:27;
17:30;
1Tim 1:13

Lk 24:27

¹⁹Repent, then, and turn to God so that your sins may be wiped out ²⁰and the time of refreshment may come by the mercy of God, when he

2P 3:12

• 3.1 We might sometimes think that Jesus cured all the sick. This is not true, since he did not heal this cripple who was in the Temple every day. This new sign brings about another proclamation.

Why are you amazed at this? The miracle was done in the Name of Jesus, that is, by the Power over every creature that Jesus received from the Father at the time of his resurrection. Jesus was in their midst as the servant of the Lord (Is 42:1; 52:13), but speaking of his Name was a way of stating his divinity (Mk 16:17; Phil 2:9).

I know that you acted out of ignorance. Yet Peter demands that they admit their guilt. All of us must confess a similar guilt in the injustices and crimes of our times.

He must remain in heaven (v. 21). The coming of Jesus inaugurated the "last days" in which the Gospel reconciles humanity with sends the Messiah appointed for you, Jesus. ²¹For he must remain in heaven until the time of the universal restoration which God spoke of long ago through his holy prophets.

²²Moses foretold this when he said: The Lord God will raise up for you a prophet like me from among your own people; you shall listen to him in all that he says to you. ²³Whoever does not listen to that prophet is to be cut off from among his people.

²⁴In fact, all the prophets who have spoken, from Samuel onward, have announced the events of these days. ²⁵You are the children of the prophets and heirs of the covenant that God gave to your ancestors when he said to Abraham: All the families of the earth will be blessed through your descendant. ²⁶It is to you first that God sends his Servant; he raised him to life to bless you by turning each of you from your wicked ways.”

Peter and John are arrested

4 • ¹While Peter and John were still speaking to the people, the priests, the captain of the temple guard and the Sadducees came up to them. ²They were greatly disturbed because the apostles were teaching the people and proclaiming that resurrection from the dead had been proved in the case of Jesus. ³Since it was already evening, they arrested them and put them in custody until the following day. ⁴But despite this, many of those who heard the Message believed and their number increased to about five thousand.

⁵The next day, the Jewish leaders, elders and teachers of the Law assembled in Jerusalem. ⁶Annas, the High Priest, Caiaphas, John, Alexander, and all who were of the high priestly class were there. ⁷They brought Peter and John before them and began to question them, “How did you do this? Whose name did you use?”

⁸Then Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit, spoke up, “Leaders of the people! Elders! ⁹It is a fact that we are being examined today for a good deed done to a cripple. How was he healed? ¹⁰You and all the people of Israel must know that this man stands before you cured through the Name of Jesus Christ the Nazarean. You had him crucified, but God raised him from the dead. ¹¹Jesus is the stone rejected by you the builders which has become the cornerstone. ¹²There is no salvation in God, and changes human consciousness thus speeding up the course of history which, in the end, forces humankind to solve their problems together. Humanity is on its way to the coming of Christ and the restoration of the world, namely, the Resurrection.

He sends him to bless (v. 26). This blessing comes to those who accept reconciliation with God upon seeing the love he revealed to us in Jesus. The blessing is not for us alone, rather, through us—the people of God—it reaches all the families of the earth.

• 4.1 The Jewish leaders judge Peter and John. The Holy Spirit judges the leaders of the Jews.

These leaders believe they possess the truth because they are learned and have authority. It is impossible for them to back down before ordinary men who refute their statements. Meanwhile Peter points out how strange it is to be arrested for having healed a sick man (v. 8).

These leaders were Sadducees and they did not believe in the resurrection of the dead: Acts 23:6.

This text suggests that all of us can be the witnesses of Christ and of the truth, if we are determined to be involved. Oftentimes, because we only rely on our own strength instead of counting on the Spirit of Christ, we remain silent before our co-workers or our leaders.

What we have seen and heard (v. 20). It is John speaking: see 1 John 1:1.

Mt
17:11;
19:28;
Lk 1:70

Dt 18:15;
Lk 9:35

Gen
22:18;
Rom 9:4;
Eph 2:12

23:6;
Lk 20:27

Lk 3:2;
Jn 18:13

3:12;
Lk 20:2

Lk 12:11;
21:13

Ps
118:22;
Lk 20:17;
Rom
9:33;
1P 2:4

Mt 1:21 anyone else, for there is no other Name given to humankind all over the world by which we may be saved.”

Lk 10:21; 1Cor 1:27 ¹³They were astonished at the boldness of Peter and John, considering that they were uneducated and untrained men. They recognized, also, that they had been with Jesus, ¹⁴but, as the man who had been cured stood beside them, they could make no reply.

Jn 11:47 ¹⁵So they ordered them to leave the council room while they consulted with one another. ¹⁶They asked, “What shall we do with these men? Everyone who lives in Jerusalem knows that a remarkable sign has been given through them, and we cannot deny it. ¹⁷But to stop this from spreading any further among the people, let us warn them never again to speak to anyone in the name of Jesus.” ¹⁸So they called them back and charged them not to speak or teach at all in the name of Jesus.

5:29 ¹⁹But Peter and John answered them, “Judge for yourselves whether it is right in God’s eyes for us to obey you rather than God. ²⁰We cannot stop speaking about what we have seen and heard.” ²¹Then the council threatened them once more and let them go. They could find no way of punishing them because of the people who glorified God for what had happened, ²²for the man who had been miraculously healed was over forty years old.

1Jn 1: 1-4
Lk 19:48; Acts 2:47; 3:8; 10:46

The prayer of the community

• ²³As soon as Peter and John were set free, they went to their friends and reported what the chief priests and elders had said to them.

²⁴When they heard it, they raised their voices as one and called upon God, “Sovereign Lord, maker of heaven and earth, of the sea and everything in them, ²⁵you have put these words in the mouth of David, our father and your servant, through the Holy Spirit: Why did the pagan nations rage and the people conspire in folly? ²⁶*The kings of the earth were aligned and the princes gathered together against the Lord and against his Messiah.*

Ps 2:1-2

²⁷For indeed in this very city Herod with Pontius Pilate, and the pagans together with the people of Israel conspired against your holy servant Jesus, whom you anointed. ²⁸Thus, indeed, they brought about whatever your powerful will had decided from all time would happen. ²⁹But now, Lord, see their threats against us and enable your servants to speak your word with all boldness. ³⁰Stretch out your hand to heal and to work signs and wonders through the Name of Jesus your holy servant.”

2:22

³¹When they had prayed, the place where they were gathered together shook, and they were all filled with Holy Spirit and began to speak the word of God boldly.

2:1-4

An attempt to share everything

• ³²The whole community of believers was one in heart and mind. No one claimed private ownership of any possessions, but rather they shared all things in common. ³³With great power the apostles bore wit-

2:44-45

• 23. We can meditate on the way this church gathering develops: an event (the arrest) is shared by all. For them this confrontation with the authorities is something new. They connect what happened with the Word of God. In this case they refer to Psalm 2; then they begin common prayer and ask for courage to continue to do God’s works.

• 32. Here we might understand that this sharing had become a rule in the early Church. In fact, if we pay attention to 4:36 and 5:4 it ness to the resurrection of the Lord Jesus, for all of them were living in an exceptional time of grace.

Lk 18:28 ³⁴There was no needy person among them, for those who owned land or houses, sold them and brought the proceeds of the sale. ³⁵And they laid it at the feet of the apostles who distributed it according to each one's need. ³⁶This is what a certain Joseph did. He was a Levite from Cyprus, whom the apostles called Barnabas, meaning: "The encouraging one." ³⁷He sold a field which he owned and handed the money to the apostles.

The fraud of Ananias and Sapphira

Jos 7:1 5 • ¹Another man named Ananias, in agreement with his wife Sapphira, likewise sold a piece of land; ²with his wife's knowledge he put aside some of the proceeds, and the rest he turned over to the apostles.

becomes clear that everyone admired what some of them did.

Jesus did not ask for this; yet they were doing it, inspired by the desire of every true believer to remove all divisions between brothers and sisters, especially those created by money. Placing everything in common, however, requires not only a spirit of detachment, but also a sense of responsibility and organization. The believers in Jerusalem lived at a time when work and foresight were not very important, and they soon consumed what they had, without being concerned about working, and eventually became the "poor of Jerusalem." Paul was to organize collections in other churches in order to assist them (Gal 2:10; Rom 15:25; 2 Cor 8).

• 5.1 As children many of us were taught about the wonders God did in the past, as if God only acted in those days. The Jews of that time thought exactly the same way. The Bible spoke of the time of Moses when those who rebelled against God's prophet were killed by divine intervention (Num 12:1; 16:1; 17:16). God continues to work in the Christian community, and the ordinary believers of Jerusalem suddenly discover that Peter, the fisher-

Lk 22:3 ³Then Peter said to him, "Ananias, how is it that you let Satan fill your heart and why do you intend to deceive the Holy Spirit by keeping some of the proceeds of your land for yourself? ⁴Who obliged you to sell it? And after it was sold, could you not have kept all the money? How could you think of such a thing? You have not deceived us but God."

⁵Upon hearing these words, Ananias fell down and died. Great fear came upon all who heard of it; ⁶the young men stood up, wrapped his body and carried it out for burial.

⁷About three hours later Ananias's wife came but she was not aware of what had happened. ⁸Peter challenged her, "Tell me whether you sold that piece of land for this price?" She said, "Yes, that was the price." ⁹Peter replied, "How could you two agree to put the Holy Spirit to the test? Those who buried your hus-man, is not inferior to Moses. See also Acts 13:11; 1 Cor 11:30.

The couple's sin does not consist in having kept part of their goods. Nobody was forcing them to sell their property and to give the money to the community. They wanted to deceive the apostles and give the impression they were donating everything, when in fact they were not.

We must be very careful when we speak of God's punishment. For a Christian, the only punishment is to be forever separated from God. Death itself does not mean that God wants to punish us. Yet the deaths of Ananias and Sapphira served as a warning and a sign for the others.

Here the word church appears. Its exact meaning is "the assembly gathered by God," and before Jesus' time, the Jews used it to mean the new people that God was going to form in the messianic age. The believers continue to be proud of being Jewish, of being the people of God; nevertheless, little by little, the Holy Spirit separates them from the official community. They are already aware that they are the new people (Ps 22:32) gathered by God. The Church still means only the Christian community of Jerusalem. As other com-band are at the door and they will carry you out as well.”

¹⁰With that, she fell dead at his feet. The young men came in, found her dead and carried her out for burial beside her husband. ¹¹And great fear came upon the whole church and upon all who heard of it.

9:31;
11:26

Jn 10:23

• ¹²Many miraculous signs and wonders were done among the people through the hands of the apostles. The believers, of one accord, used to meet in Solomon’s Porch. ¹³None of the others dared to join them, but the people held them in high esteem. ¹⁴So an ever increasing number of men and women, believed in the Lord. ¹⁵The people carried the sick into the streets and laid them on cots and on mats, so that when Peter passed by, at least his shadow might fall on some of them. ¹⁶The people gathered from the towns around Jerusalem, bringing their sick and those who were troubled by unclean spirits, and all of them were healed.

19:11

Lk 6:17

The apostles arrested again

• ¹⁷The High Priest and all his supporters, that is the party of the Sadducees, became very jealous of the apostles; ¹⁸so they arrested them and had them thrown into the public jail. ¹⁹But an angel of the Lord opened the door of the prison during the night, brought them out, and said to them, ²⁰“Go and stand in the Temple court and tell the people the whole of this living message.” ²¹Accordingly they entered the Temple at dawn and resumed their teaching.

3:15;
11:18;
4:2

When the High Priest and his supporters arrived, they called together the Sanhedrin, that is the full Council of the elders of Israel. They sent word to the jail to have the prisoners brought in. ²²But when the Temple guards arrived at the jail, they did not find them inside, so they returned with the news, ²³“We found the prison securely locked and the prison guards at their post outside the gate, but when we opened the gate, we found no one inside.”

²⁴Upon hearing these words, the captain of the Temple guard and the high priests were baffled, wondering where all of this would end. ²⁵Just then someone arrived with the report, “Look, those men whom you put in prison are standing in the munities arise—other churches—“the Church” will refer to the entire people of God.

• 12. So an ever-increasing number of men and women, believed in the Lord (v. 14). All the Jews believed in God who spoke through the prophets. It was easy for them to believe in the prophets of the past after the religious authorities acknowledged them and placed their warnings in all the books of the Bible. But it was quite a different thing to recognize Jesus as the prophet that God had sent them but whom they had rejected. The text states that to believe in the Lord and join the community are two inseparable steps. A person cannot belong to Jesus without belonging to the new people he has brought to life through water and the Spirit.

Verses 15-16 do not hesitate to compare Peter to Jesus.

• 17. Could this confrontation of the apostles with the rulers of the people be similar to what happens today in many countries when the Church denounces violations of human rights?

There are many Christians who say: it is not the same, since the apostles in their time were persecuted for proclaiming Jesus; whereas now, only Christians involved in politics are punished.

This, however, is not true. In Jesus’ day, the Jewish people were both dominated and divided. Jesus spoke as a totally free man, teaching a way towards freedom, which today we would call non-violent action. The authorities did away with him to defend the security of their nation (Jn 11:48) and their own political system. For the disciples of Jesus, to be converted meant to acknowledge complicity with those who put Jesus to death and to take the Temple, teaching the people.”²⁶ Then the captain went off with the guards and brought them back, but without any show of force, for fear of being stoned by the people.

²⁷ So they brought them in and made them stand before the Council and the High Priest questioned them,

4:18 ²⁸ “We gave you strict orders not to preach such a Savior; but you have filled Jerusalem with your teaching and you intend charging us with the killing of this man.”²⁹ To this Peter and the apostles replied, “Better for us to obey God rather than any human authority!

10:40;
13:29;
Gal 3:13;
Dt 21:23
15:28 ³⁰ The God of our ancestors raised Jesus whom you killed by hanging him on a wooden post. ³¹ God set him at his right hand as Leader and Savior, to grant repentance and forgiveness of sins to Israel. ³² We are witnesses to all these things, as well as the Holy Spirit whom God has given to those who obey him.”

• ³³ When the Council heard this, they became very angry and wanted to kill them. ³⁴ But one of them, a Pharisee named Gamaliel, a teacher of the Law highly respected by the people, stood up in the Sanhedrin. He ordered the men to be taken outside for a few minutes³⁵ and then he spoke to the assembly.

“Fellow Israelites, consider well what you intend to do to these men. ³⁶ For some time ago Theudas came forward, claiming to be somebody, and about four hundred men joined him. But he was killed and all his followers were dispersed or disappeared. ³⁷ After him, Judas the Galilean appeared at the time of the census and persuaded many people to follow him. But he too perished and his whole following was scattered. ³⁸ So, in this present case, I advise you to have nothing to do with these men. Leave them alone. If their project or activity is of human origin, it will destroy itself. ³⁹ If, on the other hand, it is from God, you will not be able to destroy it and you may indeed find yourselves fighting against God.”

Lk 20:4

The Council let themselves be persuaded. ⁴⁰ They called in the path indicated by him. Since they were living among oppressors and resentful people, this was a very dangerous road (Lk 21:12-16).

In fact, when the priests judged Peter and John, they only demanded that they break away from this man (Jesus) whom they had legally condemned.

Proclaiming Jesus means preaching universal reconciliation (Eph 2:14), which is achieved at all levels of human life, including the economic and political. The Church would not be following Christ, nor would it be proclaiming Jesus as the only Savior (v. 31), if it refused to be concerned that entire nations are condemned to die slowly through lack of food, education, and health. This critical concern, however, would not be Christian preaching if it did not convince us to believe in the saving plan of God.

• 33. Gamaliel was one of the most renowned among the masters of the Law. Here we see the open mind of this old Jewish teacher who knows that God's ways are not always the ways of humans.

If their project or activity is of human origin (v. 38). Jesus had said something similar (Mt 15:13). Yet that does not seem evident. Are we not aware of many false doctrines that last? If they have lasted for centuries, perhaps it is due to the fact that in spite of the error and the evil they sow, they contain useful or necessary principles for a given time, or for certain human groups. Perhaps they make very important statements that the Church should proclaim but cannot or does not want to do. Experience shows that the majority of humans are not ready to embrace the Christian faith: must God abandon them because of that? Can we, who have Christ, say with certitude that such and such a one is not “the prophet.” Maybe God's will is that he be the prophet of a certain group and help them in their searching for God (Acts 17:27).

apostles and had them whipped, and ordered them not to speak again of Jesus Savior. Then they set them free.

21:13;
1P 4:13

⁴¹The apostles went out from the Council rejoicing that they were considered worthy to suffer disgrace for the sake of the Name. ⁴²Day after day, both in the Temple and in people's homes, they continued to teach and to proclaim that Jesus was the Messiah.

The choosing of the seven

9:29

6[•] ¹In those days, as the number of disciples grew, the so-called Hellenists complained against the so-called Hebrews, because their widows were being neglected in the daily distribution. ²So the Twelve summoned the whole body of disciples together and said, "It is not right that we should neglect the word of God to serve at tables. ³So, friends, choose from among yourselves seven respected men full of Spirit and wisdom, that we may appoint them to this task. ⁴As for us, we shall give ourselves to prayer and to the ministry of the Word."

18:17-26

2:42;
20:24;
21:19

⁵The whole community agreed and they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and Holy Spirit; Philip, Prochorus, Nicanor, Timon, Parmenus and Nicolaus of Antioch who was a proselyte. ⁶They presented these men to the apostles who first prayed over them and then laid hands upon them.

Num
27:18

⁷The Word of God continued to spread, and the number of the disciples in Jerusalem increased greatly and even many priests accepted the faith.

2:41

The story of Stephen

[•]⁸Stephen, full of grace and power, did great wonders and miraculous

Gamaliel was Paul's teacher in Jerusalem for doubtless three or four years, a little after these events (Acts 22:3). Paul's conversion will be providentially prepared through contact with this open and sincere man, and equally so through the death of Stephen (7:54-60).

• 6.1 Jesus did not spell out for his apostles how they were supposed to organize the Church. And a conflict arose between two social groups. The Jews, called Hebrews, had never left their land and they spoke Aramaic. The Hellenists were those who had lived abroad and who usually spoke Greek. They may have followed the Essene movement and refused to participate in Temple rituals. They felt uncomfortable with the liturgy and community life and their frustrations were growing. In fact, the apostles identified more readily with the Hebrews and it became necessary to give some autonomy to the Hellenists with their own people being in charge. This was probably the birth of a Greek-speaking church, with a Greek liturgy.

The community chose seven men. Since their authority had to come from Christ, it had to be passed on by the apostles.

The candidates must be filled with faith and the Holy Spirit, because they are not only entrusted with material services. And even if it were only for material services the Church would have much to suffer from competent administrators who lacked the Spirit of the Gospel. Were these seven men the first deacons? Luke mentions nothing beyond service, and "deacon" denotes servant, usually steward. In fact, this term, "deacons," will from the start give the meaning of every ministry in the Church: ministry means "service" (1 Cor 12:15). Ministers are at the service of the community assembled by the Spirit to witness to the salvation given by Jesus. All through the centuries, the ministers of the Church would be tempted to misuse the role entrusted to them for the good of the community. Many will take advantage of their "service" to put themselves over the community: they will let others serve and honor them and will not hesitate to be called princes of the Church. What is true for those called to a high rank in the hierarchy is equally true for all those priests or lay people entrusted with lesser responsibilities: all must remember the words of Jesus (Lk 22:24-27).

• 8. Philip will be mentioned in Acts 8:5 and 21:8. Stephen is the only one remembered here.

signs among the people. ⁹Some persons then came forward, who belonged to the so-called Synagogue of Freedmen from Cyrene, Alexandria, Cilicia and Asia. ¹⁰They argued with Stephen but they could not match the wisdom and the spirit with which he spoke. ¹¹As they were unable to face the truth, they bribed some men to say, "We heard him speak against Moses and against God."

Lk 21:15 ¹²So they stirred up the people, the elders and the teachers of the Law; they took him by surprise, seized him and brought him before the Council. ¹³Then they produced false witnesses who said, "This man never stops speaking against our Holy Place and the Law. ¹⁴We even heard him say that Jesus the Nazarean will destroy our Holy Place and change the customs which Moses handed down to us." ¹⁵And all who sat in the Council fixed their eyes on him, and his face appeared to them like the face of an angel.

7 ¹So the High Priest asked him: "Is it true?" He answered, "Brothers and fathers, listen to me.

²The God of glory appeared to our father Abraham when he was in Mesopotamia, before he went to live in Haran. And he said to him: ³Leave your land and your relatives and go to the land which I will show you. ⁴So he left the land of the Chaldeans and settled in Haran. After the death of his father, God made him move to this land in which you now dwell. ⁵And there he did not give him anything that was his own, not even the

Gen 12:1

Being a Hellenist (see previous paragraph), Stephen did not share the blind faith of the Jewish people in their Temple and its rituals. He understood that the Church had to become free from the patterns of the past and move away from the Jews, if they refused to believe.

Stephen's long discourse before the Sanhedrin (the Great Council) is an outstanding summary of the Old Testament. It emphasizes the increasing initiatives of God who calls, gives, promises, corrects and saves. Confronting this untiring love is the permanent rebellion of Israel who despises God and rejects those he sends. The prophet Hosea, eight centuries before Christ, already expressed the drama of the rejected love of God by his people (Hos 11:1-4). Stephen proclaims it again: this drama reached its culmination when Jesus, the Son-of-God-made-man, was nailed to the cross (Acts 2:23; 3:15; 4:10).

Stephen dies as Christ did. He becomes the first martyr (martyr means witness). He is a witness to Christ because he proclaims him, but even more so because he does as Christ did, he forgives his murderers.

Like Peter after Pentecost, Stephen still hopes for a conversion of the Jewish people: a minority at least will be converted. This hope will fade in time with the persecutions raised against the Church. The murder of Stephen would be the first sign leading the converted Jews to understand that apostolic work must be undertaken beyond the frontiers of the Jewish fortress.

Later, when it becomes clear that the Jewish community has rejected the Gospel, Paul will strive to build among pagan nations a network of communities, a new people of God. Then Paul and the other apostles will search for all those who, in any nation, have been predestined by God. They see the Church as a people of "saints."

However, it again appears that many in the Church are not converted. As soon as the community grows and organizes itself, all the defects Jesus denounced in the Jewish Synagogue take place among the Christians and in the structures of the Church.

You always resist the Holy Spirit. This was and remains true in the Church that enjoys the assistance of the Spirit. The people of God always tend to take on the criteria and aims of any human group. Peace with those in political power, security for the future, unity and strength for the Christian organizations are more attractive than the words of the Gospel: sell all your belongings, preach on the rooftops, go to the poor, do not be called "father."

The only way to escape from this return to "the Synagogue" is to do what the first Christians did after Stephen's death: leave our beloved nest for the mission of proclaiming the whole Gospel.

smallest portion of land to put his foot on, but promised to give it to him in possession and to his descendants, though he had no child. ⁶So God spoke: 'Your descendants shall live in a strange land, they shall be enslaved and maltreated for four hundred years. ⁷So I shall call the nation which they serve as slaves to render an account for it. They will come out and worship me in this place.'

⁸He made with him the covenant of circumcision. And so, at the birth of his son Isaac, Abraham circumcised him on the eighth day. Isaac did the same to Jacob, and Jacob to the twelve patriarchs.

⁹The patriarchs envied Joseph so they sold him into Egypt. But God was with him. ¹⁰He rescued him from all his afflictions, granted him wisdom and made him please Pharaoh king of Egypt, who appointed him governor of Egypt and of the whole of his household. ¹¹Then there was famine in all the land of Egypt and Canaan; it was a great misery and our ancestors did not have anything to eat. ¹²Upon learning that there was wheat in Egypt, Jacob sent our ancestors there on their first visit. ¹³On the second visit, Joseph made himself known to his brothers, and Pharaoh came to know the family of Joseph. ¹⁴Joseph commanded that his father Jacob be brought to him with the whole of his family of seventy-five persons. ¹⁵Jacob then went down to Egypt where he and our ancestors died. ¹⁶They were transferred to Shechem and laid in the tomb that Abraham had bought for a sum of silver from the sons of Hamor at Shechem.

¹⁷As the time of promise drew near, which God had made to Abraham, the people increased and multiplied in Egypt ¹⁸until came another king who did not know Joseph. ¹⁹Dealing cunningly with our race, he forced our ancestors to abandon their newborn infants and let them die. ²⁰At that time Moses was born, and God looked kindly on him. For three months he was nursed in the home of his father; ²¹and when they abandoned him, Pharaoh's daughter took him and raised him as her own son. ²²So Moses was educated in all the wisdom of the Egyptians. He was mighty in word and deed. ²³And when he was forty years old, he wanted to visit his own people, the Israelites. ²⁴When he saw one of them being wronged, he defended the oppressed man and killed the Egyptian. ²⁵He thought his kinsfolk would understand that God was sending him to them as a liberator, but they did not understand. ²⁶On the following day, he came to them as they were fighting and tried to reconcile them, saying: 'You are brothers, why do you hurt each other?' ²⁷At that moment, the one who was injuring his companion rebuffed him saying: 'Who appointed you as our leader and judge? ²⁸Do you want to kill me as you killed the Egyptian yesterday?' ²⁹When Moses heard this, he fled and went to live as a stranger in the land of Midian where he had two sons.

³⁰After forty years an angel appeared to him in the desert of Mount Sinai in the flame of a burning bush. ³¹Moses was astonished at the vision. And as he approached to look at it, he heard the voice of the Lord: ³²'I am the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.' Moses was filled with fear and did not dare look at it. ³³But the Lord said to him: Take off your sandals for the place where you stand is holy ground. ³⁴I have seen the affliction of my people in Egypt and heard them

Gen 15: 13-14

Gen 17:10

Gen 37

Gen 45

1:7

2:11-15

2:13-14

3:1-2

3:6

3:5

weeping, and I have come down to free them. And now, get up! I am sending you to Egypt.'

37-8 ³⁵This Moses whom they rejected saying: 'Who appointed you leader and judge?' God sent as leader and liberator with the assistance of the angel who appeared to him in the bush. ³⁶He led them out, performing signs and wonders in Egypt, at the Red Sea and in the desert for forty years. ³⁷This Moses is the one who said to the Israelites: 'God will give you a prophet like me from among your own people.' ³⁸This is the one who in the Assembly in the desert became the mediator between the angel who spoke to him on Mount Sinai and our ancestors; and he received the words of life that he might communicate them to us.

³⁹But him our ancestors refused to obey, they rejected him and turned their hearts to Egypt, saying to Aaron: ⁴⁰'Give us gods to lead us since we do not know what has happened to that Moses who brought us out of Egypt.' ⁴¹So in those days, they fashioned a calf, offered sacrifices to their idol and rejoiced in the work of their hands. ⁴²So God departed from them and let them worship the stars of heaven, as it is written in the Book of the Prophets: 'People of Israel, did you offer me burnt offerings and sacrifices for forty years in the desert?' ⁴³No, you carried instead the tent of Moloch and the star of the god Rehan, images you made to worship, for this I will banish you farther than Babylon.'

⁴⁴Our ancestors had the Tent of Meeting in the desert, for God had directed Moses to build it according to the pattern he had seen. ⁴⁵Our ancestors received it and brought it under the command of Joshua into the lands of the pagans that they conquered and whom God expelled before them. They kept it until the days of David ⁴⁶who found favor with God and asked him to let him build a house for the God of Jacob. ⁴⁷However, it was Solomon who built that temple.

⁴⁸In reality, the Most High does not dwell in houses made by human hands as the Prophet says: ⁴⁹*Heaven is my throne and earth is my footstool. What house will you build for me, says the Lord, how could you give me a dwelling place?* ⁵⁰*Was it not I who made all these things?*

⁵¹But you are a stubborn people, you hardened your hearts and closed your ears. You have always resisted the Holy Spirit just as your fathers did. ⁵²Was there a prophet whom your ancestors did not persecute? They killed those who announced the coming of the Just One whom you have now betrayed and murdered, ⁵³you who received the Law through the angels but did not fulfill it."

⁵⁴When they heard this reproach, they were enraged and they gnashed their teeth against Stephen. ⁵⁵But he, full of the Holy Spirit, fixed his eyes on heaven and saw the glory of God and Jesus at God's right hand, ⁵⁶so he declared: "I see the heavens open and the Son of Man at the right hand of God."

⁵⁷But they shouted and covered their ears with their hands and rushed together upon him. ⁵⁸They brought him out of the city and stoned him, and the witnesses laid down their cloaks at the feet of a young man named Saul. ⁵⁹As they were stoning him, Stephen prayed saying: "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." ⁶⁰Then he knelt down and said in a loud voice: "Lord, do not hold this sin against them." And when he had said this, he died.

2S 7:12;
Acts
17:24;
19:26;
Mk
14:58;
Heb 9:11

Is 66:1-2

Jer 9:25

Gal 3:19;
Heb 2:2

Dn 7:13

Heb
13:12

Dt 17:7

Lk 23:46;
Ps 31:6

32:1;
32:23

Am 5: 25-27

25:9;
Heb 8:5

11:19 8^{•1} Saul was there, approving his murder. This was the beginning of a great persecution against the Church in Jerusalem. All, except the apostles, were scattered throughout the region of Judea and Samaria. ²Devout men buried Stephen and mourned deeply for him. ³Saul meanwhile was trying to destroy the Church; he entered house after house and dragged off men and women and had them put in jail.

22:4;
1Cor
15:9;
Gal 1:13;
Phil 3:6

Philip proclaims the word in Samaria

⁴At the same time those who were scattered went about preaching the word. ⁵Philip went down to a town of Samaria and proclaimed the Christ there. ⁶All the people paid close attention to what Philip said as they listened to him and saw the miraculous signs that he did. ⁷For in cases of possession, the unclean spirits came out shrieking loudly. Many people who were paralyzed or crippled were healed. ⁸So there was great joy in that town.

6:5;
21:8

Simon the magician

⁹A certain man named Simon had come to this town, practicing magic. He held the Samaritans spellbound and passed himself off as a very important person. ¹⁰All the people, from the last to the greatest, put their trust in him, saying, "This is the Power of God, the Great One." ¹¹And they followed him because he had held them under the spell of his magic for a long time. ¹²But when they came to believe Philip who announced to them the Kingdom of God and Jesus Christ as Savior, both men and women were baptized.

¹³Simon himself believed and was baptized, and would not depart from Philip. He was astonished when he saw the miraculous signs and wonders that happened.

¹⁴Now, when the apostles in Jerusalem heard that the Samaritans had accepted the word of God, they sent Peter and John to them. ¹⁵They went down and prayed for them that they might receive the Holy Spirit, ¹⁶for he had not as yet come down upon any of them since they had only been baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. ¹⁷So Peter and John laid their hands on them and they received the Holy Spirit.

11:1

10:44

¹⁸When Simon saw that the Spirit was given through the laying on of the apostles' hands, he offered them

• 8.1 The death of Stephen leads to a resurrection. Instead of Stephen, the Church will have a new apostle in Saul who, after his conversion, will become "St Paul." So God heard the prayer of Stephen for his murderers.

The illegal execution of Stephen unleashes the persecution against the Hellenist Christians. The apostles and others in the Hebrew group were not persecuted, because they were considered loyal to the Jewish religion and traditions.

Concerning Saul's attitude, see what he himself will say later in Galatians 1:13.

• 4. The persecuted Christians proclaim their faith and start Christian communities in Samaria.

Evangelization brings happiness: God reveals himself, and through his Spirit he heals bodies and hearts. God becomes present. What a marvelous and moving thing! Joy, rather than fear and sectarianism, will always surround authentic Christians.

• 9. Who is the most important person in this passage? Simon? No: it is the Holy Spirit.

Philip is one of the seven. He baptizes but he cannot communicate the gifts of the Spirit.

Baptism and the laying on of hands are the two stages of Christian initiation; they refer to two different aspects of life in the church. Baptism is the renewal of the individual through faith. While, the laying on of hands expresses the transmission of the Spirit in an uninterrupted way, beginning with those who received it at Pentecost.

This laying of hands (which has become confirmation in today's Church) was then usumoney ¹⁹ saying, "Give me also this power, so that anyone upon whom I lay my hands may receive the Holy Spirit."

²⁰ Peter replied, "May you and your money perish for thinking that the Gift of God could be bought with money! ²¹ You cannot share in this since you do not understand the things of God. ²² Repent, therefore, of this wickedness of yours and pray to the Lord that you may be forgiven such a wrong way of thinking; ²³ I see you are poisoned with bitterness and in the grip of sin." ²⁴ Simon answered, "Pray to the Lord for me yourselves, so that none of these things you spoke of will happen to me."

²⁵ Peter and John gave their testimony and spoke the word of the Lord. And they went back to Jerusalem, bringing the Good News to many Samaritan villages along the way.

Philip baptizes the Ethiopian

• ²⁶ An angel of the Lord said to Philip, "Go south towards the road that goes down from Jerusalem to Gaza, the desert road." ²⁷ So he set out and it happened that an Ethiopian was passing along that way. He was an official in charge of the treasury of the queen of the Ethiopians; he had come on pilgrimage to Jerusalem ²⁸ and was on his way home. He was sitting in his carriage and reading the prophet Isaiah.

²⁹ The Spirit said to Philip, "Go and catch up with that carriage." ³⁰ So Philip ran up and heard the man reading the prophet Isaiah; and he asked, Do you really understand what you are reading? The Ethiopian replied, ³¹ "How can I, unless someone explains it to me?" He then invited Philip to get in and sit beside him. ³² This was the passage of Scripture he was reading:

Is 53:
7-8;
1P 2:24

ally followed by these manifestations we read of in the Acts (19:6) and in Paul (1 Cor 12 and 14). The spectacular aspect of these gifts is often what impresses us most; they were part of a global experience that is still given in one way or another to those who have surrendered to the Spirit.

Simon, a magician, quack or hypnotist, gave Peter the opportunity to condemn a false understanding of spiritual gifts. Simon thought the apostles were more powerful magicians than he was, and wanted to buy the power of working certain miracles. Peter gives us to understand that looking for miracles is clearly not the way to prepare for receiving the Spirit. In any case, such things are not bought.

The manifestations of the Spirit are not always like the ones mentioned in Acts (see Acts 19:6 and 1 Cor 12). This is because God adapts his gifts to the needs of the Church.

Communities of simple, poor people are those that receive more gifts of healing for the sick. Because they lack normal resources, God becomes present. Prayer groups receive the gift of tongues, which is one of the gifts that strengthen piety. The gift of prophecy manifests itself in various ways according to context. Where faith leans heavily on the certainty of divine justice and the fear of God, we see predictions and revelations of the secrets of the heart. Whereas, among those with a more rational and intellectual bent, the prophet is often characterized by the gift of speaking with assurance and the ability to stress a point in such a way that the community or individuals recognize the voice of God.

The Spirit continues to be at work in many believers who, perhaps, neither speak in tongues nor work healings, but act under the inspiration of the Spirit. They produce the 'fruits of the Spirit' (Gal 5:22-24) and are thus authentic witnesses of Jesus.

Baptized in the Name of the Lord Jesus (v. 16). See the note on 19:5 on that subject.

• 26. Note how the Holy Spirit leads Philip towards a man who was neither a Jew nor a Samaritan, the first person of another race to receive the Gospel.

The Ethiopian who is baptized is simply a man who 'fears the Lord.' This is the way they referred to people of other races who were attracted to the religion of the Jews and to faith in the one God. Without following all the Jewish customs, they read the Bible and liked to take part in the Jewish ceremonies.

He was led like a sheep to be slaughtered; like a lamb that is dumb before the shearer, he did not open his mouth. ³³ He was humbled and deprived of his rights. Who can speak of his descendants? For he was uprooted from the earth.

³⁴ The official asked Philip, "Tell me, please, does the prophet speak of himself or of someone else?"

Lk 24:27

³⁵ Then Philip began to tell him the Good News of Jesus, using this text of Scripture as his starting point.

³⁶ As they traveled down the road they came to a place where there was some water. Then the Ethiopian official said, Look, here is water; what is to keep me from being baptized?" (37)

10:47

³⁸ Then he ordered the carriage to stop; both Philip and the Ethiopian went down into the water and Philip baptized him. ³⁹ When they came out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord took Philip away. The Ethiopian saw him no more, but he continued on his way full of joy.

1K 18:12

⁴⁰ Philip found himself at Azotus, and he went about announcing the Good News in all the towns until he reached Caesarea.

10:1

Saul meets Jesus

9¹ Meanwhile Saul considered nothing but violence and death for the disciples of the Lord. ² He went to the High Priest and asked him for letters to the synagogues of Damascus that would authorize him to arrest and bring to Jerusalem anyone he might find, man or woman, belonging to the Way.

22:5-16;
26:10-18;
Gal 1: 12-1722:5;
28:21

³ As he traveled along and was approaching Damascus, a light from the sky suddenly flashed around him. "He fell to the ground and heard a voice saying to him, "Saul, Saul! Why do you persecute me?" ⁵ And he asked, Who are you, Lord? The voice replied, I am Jesus whom you persecute. ⁶ Now get up and go into the city; there you will be told what you are to do."

16:17;
18:251Cor 9:1;
15:8

Lk 10:16

⁷ The men who were traveling with

The conversation with Philip begins on the basis of a text from Isaiah 53:7. This poem, called Servant of the Lord, speaks of a just man unjustly condemned who, through his sufferings, atones for the sins of all humankind. In this text the apostles saw one of the passages which best prefigured Christ: see commentary on Mark 14:24 and 1 Peter 2:24-25. Isaiah's poem concludes with a veiled reference to the resurrection of the "Servant of the Lord." It is marvelous to see how Philip can give a testimony of the Resurrection with such conviction that the Ethiopian believes in him.

- 37. Verse 37 is absent from most old sources. It says: And Philip said, "If you believe with all your heart, you may." And he answered and said, "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God."

- 9.1 This is a decisive event in the beginning of the Church. Christ comes in person to win over the fiercest persecutor of the Christians.

The conversion of Saul, who will become Paul, the apostle to the Gentiles, is also found in Acts 22 and 26.

It would be wrong to present Paul as an evil man who finally finds the right path. As shown in Acts 22:3-4; Galatians 1:14 and Philippians 3:4-11, Paul from his youth felt the need to dedicate himself to the service of God. This is why he went to Jerusalem to study the Law, that is, religion, with the best teachers of his day. His interest in the things of God made him uninterested in looking for a wife: he did not marry. To this young man, dependable and responsible, the Jews entrusted the difficult task of eliminating from their communities the new and suspicious doctrine of the Christians. Paul is in charge of the repression of Christ's followers and he does this in a very harsh way, for the good of his religion.

Why do you persecute me? (v. 4) Who is this Lord who calls me a persecutor, when my only ambition is to serve God? Until that time Paul felt good, like the Pharisee of the parable (Lk 18:9), and thanked God for having made him a responsible, dependable and active believer. Now, faced with the light of Christ, he discovers that his merits and services are of no use to God; his faith is mainly human fanatihim stood there speechless: they had heard the sound, but could see no one. ⁸Saul got up from the ground and, opening his eyes, he could not see. They took him by the hand and brought him to Damascus. ⁹He was blind and he did not eat or drink for three days.

¹⁰There was a disciple in Damascus named Ananias, to whom the Lord called in a vision, "Ananias!" He answered, "Here I am, Lord!" ¹¹Then the Lord said to him, Go at once to Straight Street and ask, at the house of Judas, for a man of Tarsus named Saul. You will find him praying, ¹²for he has just seen in a vision that a man named Ananias has come in and placed his hands upon him, to restore his sight."

¹³Ananias answered, "Lord, I have heard from many sources about this man and all the harm he has done to your saints in Jerusalem, ¹⁴and now he is here with authority from the High Priest to arrest all who call upon your name." ¹⁵But the Lord said to him, "Go! This man is my chosen instrument to bring my name to the pagan nations and their kings, and the people of Israel as well. ¹⁶I myself will show him how much he will have to suffer for my name."

¹⁷So Ananias left and went to the house. He laid his hands upon Saul and said, "Saul, my brother, the Lord Jesus, who appeared to you on your way here, has sent me to you so that you may receive your sight and be filled with Holy Spirit." ¹⁸Immediately something like scales fell from his eyes and he could see; he got up and was baptized. ¹⁹Then he took food and was strengthened.

• For several days Saul stayed with the disciples at Damascus, ²⁰and he soon began to proclaim in the synagogues that Jesus was the Son of God. ²¹All who heard were astonished and said, "Is this not the one who cast out in Jerusalem all

Jer 1:10

Tb 11:13

Gal 1:23

Rom
10:12;
1Cor 1:2

cism; his self-assurance as a believer is disguised pride. Paul sees himself as a sinner, violent and rebellious; but at the same time, he understands that God has welcomed him, chosen him and forgiven him: this man is my chosen instrument (v. 15).

Paul is no longer the Pharisee of the parable; rather he has put himself in the place of the publican. "My God, have mercy on me, a sinner!" This is the characteristic conversion of a militant Christian. However active we may be, we will be unable to present ourselves as witnesses to Christ, if we do not admit to being forgiven sinners. This is why there is such Christian concern for universal reconciliation.

From then on, Saul (who will take the name Paul) will be a chosen instrument of Christ to spread the Church to other countries. Until then the Church, which was led by and made up of Jews, did not go beyond the Jewish people. Paul was a Jew too, but had been educated outside his country. He enjoyed the culture of the Greeks as much as that of his own race. Because of that and because of his exceptional personality, he was to be the apostle to the Greeks.

The Church must constantly renew itself, and is renewed through the conversion of adults. Christian communities, even when they want to be open to people who do not participate in community affairs (for example, workers, or at times, young people), are usually unable to be really open. Thus the Lord calls some people from different walks of life who, once they have received the faith of the Church, will be able to evangelize those of their own milieu and to preserve their freedom with regard to traditional groups.

In crucial times in history, Christ called new men and women whom his Church needed: Francis of Assisi and, closer to us, John XXIII.

The Way: this is what Christianity was called; the word expressed the fact that it is not only a matter of religious teachings, but rather a new way of life enlightened by hope.

• 19. For three years Paul preaches his faith and relates his own experience in the province of Damascus, also called Arabia (see Gal 1:17 and 2 Cor 11:32).

Paul is already going his own way. He does not separate from the Church, as his journey to Jerusalem shows, since he goes there to meet the apostles. Yet he preserves his inde-those calling upon this Name? Did he not come here to bring them bound before the chief priests?"

18:28 ²²But Saul grew more and more powerful, and he confounded the Jews living in Damascus when he proved that Jesus was the Messiah.

22:23; Gal 1:21 ²³After a fairly long time, the Jews conspired together to kill him. ²⁴But Saul became aware of their plan: Day and night they kept watch at the city gate in order to kill him. ²⁵So his disciples took him one night and let him down from the top of the wall, lowering him in a basket.

²⁶When Saul came to Jerusalem, he tried to join the disciples there, but they were afraid of him because they could not believe that he was a disciple. ²⁷But Barnabas took him and brought him to the apostles. He recounted to them how Saul had seen the Lord on his way and the words the Lord had spoken to him. He told them also how Saul had preached boldly in the name of Jesus.

²⁸Then Saul began to live with them. He moved about freely in Jerusalem and preached openly in the name of the Lord. ²⁹He also spoke to the Hellenists and argued with them, but they wanted to kill him. ³⁰When the believers learned of this, they took him down to Caesarea and sent him off to Tarsus.

³¹Meanwhile, the Church had peace. It was building up throughout all Judea and Galilee and Samaria with eyes turned to the Lord and filled with comfort from the Holy Spirit.

Peter visits the churches

• ³²As Peter traveled around, he went to visit the saints who lived in Lydda. ³³There he found a man named Aeneas who was paralyzed, and had been bedridden for eight years. ³⁴Peter said to him, "Aeneas, Jesus Christ heals you; get up and make your bed!" And the man got up at once. ³⁵All the people living in Lydda and Sharon saw him and turned to the Lord.

³⁶There was a disciple in Joppa named Tabitha, which means Dorcas or Gazelle. She was always doing good works and helping the poor. ³⁷At that time she fell sick and died. After having washed her body, they laid her in the upstairs room.

³⁸As Lydda is near Joppa, the disciples, on hearing that Peter was there, sent two men to him with the request, "Please come to us without delay."

³⁹So Peter went with them. On his arrival they took him upstairs to the room. All the widows crowded around him in tears, showing him the clothes that Dorcas had made while she was with them. ⁴⁰Peter made them all leave the room and then he knelt down and prayed. Turning to the dead body he said, "Tabitha, pendence as he waits for the promptings of the Spirit.

• 32. Peter appears in his role of "inspector" of the churches (the word bishop means inspector).

It is said here that he visits the saints. In the years prior to Christ, the word "saints," namely, those consecrated to God, was used especially to designate the new people of God since the coming of the Messiah (see Dn 7:27). Christians are the new people of God since they are the Church (see 5:11); they are also the saints.

The raising of Tabitha is similar to what Jesus did. It is an echo of the Resurrection of Christ, as the raising of Lazarus (Jn 11) or the widow's son had been (Lk 7:11).

God wished to grant these signs to strengthen faith in Jesus' resurrection. Besides the people who had been witnesses of his Resurrection, it was necessary that, in various places, the communities could see for themselves that God "raises the dead" (see Heb 11:19). Similar resurrections have been seen in the Church even in recent years.

3:6;
Mk 2:11

Lk 8:41

stand up.” She opened her eyes, looked at Peter and sat up. ⁴¹Peter gave her his hand and helped her up. Then he called in the saints and widows and presented her to them alive. ⁴²This became known throughout all of Joppa and many people believed in the Lord because of it. ⁴³As for Peter, he remained for some time in Joppa at the house of Simon, a tanner of leather.

The baptism of Cornelius

Mk 5:41
8:40;
23:33

16:14;
13:16;
Lk 7:4

10 ¹There was in Caesarea a man named Cornelius, captain of what was called the Italian Battalion. ²He was a religious and God-fearing man together with his whole household. He gave generously to the people and constantly prayed to God.

³One afternoon at about three he had a vision in which he clearly saw an angel of God coming towards him and calling him, “Cornelius!” ⁴He stared at the vision with awe and said, “What is it, sir?” And the angel answered, “Your prayers and your alms have just been recalled before God. ⁵Now send some men to Joppa and summon a certain Simon also known as Peter; ⁶he is the guest of Simon, a tanner, who lives beside the sea.”

Sir 35:6

⁷As soon as the angel who spoke to him departed, Cornelius called two of his servants and a devout soldier from among those attached to his service, ⁸and after having explained everything to them, he sent them to Joppa.

⁹The next day, while they were on their journey and approaching the city, Peter went up to the roof at about noon to pray. ¹⁰He became hungry and wished to eat, but while they were preparing food, he fell into a trance. ¹¹The heavens were opened to him and he saw an object that looked like a large sheet coming down, until it rested on the ground by its four corners. ¹²In it were all kinds of four-legged animals of the earth, reptiles and birds.

¹³Then a voice said to him, “Get up, Peter, kill and eat!” ¹⁴But Peter replied, “Certainly not, Lord! I have never eaten any defiled or unclean creature.” ¹⁵And again a second time the voice spoke, “What God has made clean, you must not call unclean.” ¹⁶This happened three times

11:5

Lev 11;
Ezk 4:14

Gen 1:31

• 10.1 This is a new intervention of the Holy Spirit so that the Church would go beyond the Jewish world and the Gospel would reach other people. Cornelius (like the Ethiopian of 8:27) is a God-fearing man, that is to say, a foreigner who believes in the one God of the Jews, without being a member of the Jewish community.

The heavens were opened to him (v. 11). He may have seen a tent coming down—an image of God’s dwelling place in the world—which contained creatures considered unclean.

The Jewish religion included a whole series of prohibitions for believers. It distinguished between clean animals, namely those that could be eaten, and unclean ones that could not. The same regulations applied to people; Jews could not mix with non-Jews. Thus Peter’s vision, in which he is invited to eat unclean animals, means that he must not hesitate to go and stay in the house of Cornelius the Roman.

We do not know if Peter would have hesitated to baptize a non-Jew (and uncircumcised) as Cornelius was. The manifestation of the Holy Spirit forced his hand.

At last someone of another race is baptized! In many places today as well, the Church is in danger of being reduced to a closed social group, and, perhaps, of becoming antiquated. Popes and bishops invite us to go forward and to dialogue with all people. Yet it would seem that only the intervention of an angel could convince us to go to other people.

He sent his people (v. 36). Peter presents Jesus. Jesus’ life was that of an authentic prophet, who comes to continue the work of previous prophets, spokespersons of God’s word. But, in Jesus, God was offering the good news and then the sheet was taken up again into the sky.

¹⁷While Peter was still puzzling over the meaning of the vision he had seen, the messengers of Cornelius arrived at the gate asking for the house of Simon. ¹⁸They called out to inquire whether Simon, also known as Peter, was staying there. ¹⁹At that moment, as Peter continued pondering on the vision, the Spirit spoke to him, "There are men looking for you; ²⁰get up and go downstairs and follow them without hesitation, for I have sent them."

²¹So Peter went and said to the men, "I am the one you are looking for. What brings you here?" They answered, ²²"He who sent us is Captain Cornelius. He is an upright and God-fearing man, well respected by all the Jewish people. He has been instructed by a holy angel to summon you to his house, so that he may listen to what you have to say." ²³So Peter invited them in and put them up for the night.

The next day he went off with them and some of the believers from Joppa accompanied him. ²⁴The following day, he arrived in Caesarea where Cornelius was expecting them; he had called together his relatives and close friends. ²⁵As Peter was about to enter, Cornelius went to him, fell on his knees and bowed low.

²⁶But Peter lifted him up saying, "Stand up, for I too am a human being."

²⁷After talking with him, Peter entered and found many people assembled there. ²⁸Then he said to them, "You know that it is forbidden for Jews to associate with anyone of another nation or to enter their houses. But God has made it clear to me that no one should call any person common or unclean; ²⁹because of this I came at once when I was sent for. Now I should like to know why you sent for me."

³⁰Cornelius then answered, "Just three days ago at this time, about three in the afternoon, I was praying in my house when a man in shining clothes stood before me ³¹and said to me: 'Cornelius, God has heard your prayer, and your alms have been remembered before him. ³²Send someone, therefore, to Joppa and ask for Simon, also known as Peter, who is guest at the house of Simon the tanner by the sea.' ³³So I sent for you at once and you have been kind enough to come. Now we are all here in God's presence, waiting to hear all that the Lord has commanded you to say."

³⁴Peter then spoke to them, "Truly, I realize that God does not show partiality, ³⁵but in all nations he listens to everyone who fears God and does good. ³⁶And this is the message he has sent to the children of Israel, the good news of peace he has proclaimed through Jesus Christ, who is the Lord of all. ³⁷No doubt you have heard of the event that occurred throughout the whole country of the Jews, beginning from Galilee, after the baptism John preached. ³⁸You know how God of peace, that is, God was reconciling human-kind with himself, once and for all. We are easily reminded of one of Paul's central points: see Romans 5:1-11; 2 Corinthians 5:11-21 and Ephesians 2:14-16.

Judge of the living and the dead (v. 42). This expression comes from religious concepts of the time, making a distinction between the judgment of those who would witness Christ's return at the end of the world (the living) and those who had died before (the dead). See the same in 1 Thessalonians 4:17.

One receives forgiveness through his Name. Through his Name, that is to say, through his own power and effectiveness. This confirms Jesus' divine authority.

Gal 2:12

Lk 24:4

Dt 10:17

Rom
2:11;
Eph 6:9;
1P 1:1713:26;
Is 52:7;
Rom
10:15

13:24;

Lk 4:14; Is 61:1 anointed Jesus the Nazarean with Holy Spirit and power. He went about doing good and healing all who were under the devil's power, because God was with him; ³⁹we are witnesses of all that he did throughout the country of the Jews and in Jerusalem itself. Yet they put him to death by hanging him on a wooden cross.

5:30 ⁴⁰But God raised him to life on the third day and let him manifest himself, ⁴¹not to all the people, but to the witnesses that were chosen beforehand by God—to us who ate and drank with him after his resurrection from death. ⁴²And he commanded us to preach to the people and to bear witness that he is the one appointed by God to judge the living and the dead. ⁴³All the prophets say of him, that everyone who believes in him has forgiveness of sins through his Name.”

13:39;
15:9;
Lk 24:47

8:16;
19:5

Rom 5:5;
8:36

⁴⁴Peter was still speaking when the Holy Spirit came upon all who listened to the Word. ⁴⁵And the believers of Jewish origin who had come with Peter were amazed, “Why! God gives and pours the Holy Spirit on foreigners also!” ⁴⁶For indeed this happened: they heard them speaking in tongues and praising God.

⁴⁷Then Peter declared, “Can we refuse to baptize with water these people who have received the Holy Spirit, just as we have?” ⁴⁸So he had them baptized in the name of Jesus Christ. After that they asked him to remain with them for some days.

Peter justifies his conduct

11 ¹News came to the apostles and the brothers and sisters in Judea that even foreigners had received the Word of God. ²So, when Peter went up to Jerusalem, these Jewish believers began to argue with him, ³“You went to the home of uncircumcised people and ate with them!”

8:14;
15:7

Gal 2:12

⁴So Peter began to give them the facts as they had happened, ⁵“I was at prayer in the city of Joppa when, in a trance, I saw a vision. Something like a large sheet came down from the sky and drew near to me, landing on the ground by its four corners. ⁶As I stared at it, I saw four-legged creatures of the earth, wild beasts and reptiles, and birds of the sky. ⁷Then I heard a voice saying to me: ‘Get up, Peter, kill and eat!’ ⁸I replied, ‘Certainly not, Lord! No common or unclean creature has ever entered my mouth.’ ⁹A second time the voice from the heavens spoke, ‘What God has made clean, you must not call unclean.’ ¹⁰This happened three times, and then it was all drawn up into the sky. ¹¹At that moment three men, who had been sent to me from Caesarea, arrived at the house where we were staying. ¹²The Spirit instructed me to go with them without hesitation; so these six brothers

• 11.1 That Peter went to baptize a non-Jew seems to us the most normal thing. Let us not forget that the Christians of Jerusalem remained Jews, with their education, their prejudices and their sensibility. They did not see how a person could be part of Jesus' family without first belonging to the people of God who, for them, identified itself with the Jewish nation. Could someone become their brother without first being circumcised? The warning they gave Peter is the first witness of the constant pressure that Christians have always brought to bear on their priests and bishops throughout history. Everytime that someone would like to open our Church to people of another culture, a powerful group will only be willing to accept those who consent to lose their own identity and be Christians in the way we ourselves are. These believers in Jerusalem are not acting in bad faith and they accept Peter's explanations. Like him, what courage the leaders of the Church will need to respond to the calls of the Holy Spirit when faced with the prejudices of a group!

came along with me and we entered into the man’s house. ¹³He told us how he had seen an angel standing in his house and telling him: ‘Send someone to Joppa and fetch Simon, also known as Peter. ¹⁴He will bring you a message by which you and all your household will be saved.’

¹⁵I had begun to address them when suddenly the Holy Spirit came upon them, just as it had come upon us at the beginning. ¹⁶Then I remembered what the Lord had said: ‘John baptized with water, but you shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit.’ ¹⁷If, then, God had given them the same gift that he had given us when we believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, who was I to resist God?”

¹⁸When they heard this they set their minds at rest and praised God saying, “Then God has granted life-giving repentance to the pagan nations as well.”

The foundation of the Church at Antioch

• ¹⁹Those who had been scattered because of the persecution over Stephen traveled as far as Phoenicia, Cyprus and Antioch, telling the message, but only to the Jews. ²⁰But there were some natives of Cyprus and Cyrene among them who, on coming into Antioch, spoke also to the Greeks, giving them the good news of the Lord Jesus. ²¹The hand of the Lord was with them so that a great number believed and turned to the Lord.

²²News of this reached the ears of the Church in Jerusalem, so they sent Barnabas to Antioch. ²³When he arrived and saw the manifest signs of God’s favor, he rejoiced and urged them all to remain firmly faithful to the Lord; ²⁴for he himself was a good man filled with Holy Spirit and faith. Thus large crowds came to know the Lord.

²⁵Then Barnabas went off to Tarsus to look for Saul ²⁶and when he found him, he brought him to Antioch. For a whole year they had meetings with the Church and instructed many people. It was in Antioch that the disciples were first called Christians.

• ²⁷At that time some prophets went down from Jerusalem to Antioch ²⁸and one of them, named Agabus, inspired by the Holy Spirit, foretold that a great famine would spread over the whole world. This actually happened in the days of the Emperor Claudius. ²⁹So the disciples decided, within their means, to set something

Lk 1:66

4:36

9:27

21:10

Gal 2:10;
Rom 15:26;
2Cor 8:9

1:5;
Jn 14:26

14:27;
17:30;
26:20

• 19. Antioch, 500 kilometers north of Jerusalem, was the principal town of the Roman province of Syria, a pagan country, where Greek was spoken but where there was an important Jewish community. Luke does not tell us who presented the Christian faith to the pagans for the first time, nor how that happened. The Christians of Jewish origin that did it would deserve a statue, or better still a feast in our liturgy. So there is at Antioch for the first time a community where Jews and non-Jews are assembled: the future of the Church was there. The Jerusalem community is the Rome of the primitive Church. It is conscious of its authority and immediately asks to examine more closely this extraordinary new happening: a Church where Jews accept to rub shoulders with the uncircumcised.

The Jerusalem community behaved as having authority over the new churches; the case of Antioch would touch everyone since, for the Palestinian Jews, accepting pagans was something of a scandal. Did not the Law of Moses forbid living with “uncircumcised” people?

• 27. There is mention of prophets. Among the gifts that the Holy Spirit granted to converts, the gift of “prophecy” was one of the most outstanding. On various occasions the “prophet” would receive from God an insight into future events of the community, or something concerning one of its members.

aside and to send relief to the brothers and sisters who were living in Judea. ³⁰They did this and sent their donations to the elders by Barnabas and Saul.

James is put to death; Peter's miraculous escape

12 ¹About that time King Herod decided to persecute some members of the Church. ²He had James, the brother of John, killed with the sword, ³and when he saw how it pleased the Jews, he proceeded to arrest Peter also.

This happened during the festival of the Unleavened Bread. ⁴Herod had him seized and thrown into prison with four squads, each of four soldiers, to guard him. He wanted to bring him to trial before the people after the Passover feast, ⁵but while Peter was kept in prison, the whole Church prayed earnestly for him.

⁶On the very night before Herod was to bring him to trial, Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound by a double chain, while guards kept watch at the gate of the prison.

⁷Suddenly an angel of the Lord stood there and a light shone in the prison cell. The angel tapped Peter on the side and woke him saying, "Get up quickly!" At once the chains fell from Peter's wrists. The angel said, "Put on your belt and your sandals." Peter did so, ⁸and the angel added, "Now, put on your cloak and follow me."

⁹Peter followed him out; yet he did not realize that what was happening with the angel was real; he thought he was seeing a vision. ¹⁰They passed the first guard and then the second and they came to the iron door leading out to the city, which opened of itself for them. They went out and made their way down a narrow alley, when suddenly the angel left him.

¹¹Then Peter recovered his senses and said, "Now I know that the Lord has sent his angel and has rescued me from Herod's clutches and from all that the Jews had in store for me."

¹²Peter then found his bearings and came to the house of Mary, the mother of John also known as Mark, where many were gathered together and were praying. ¹³When he knocked at the outside door, a maid named Rhoda came to answer it. ¹⁴On recognizing the voice of Peter she was so overcome with joy that, instead of opening the door, she ran in to announce that Peter was at the door. ¹⁵They said to her, "You are crazy!" And as she insisted, they said, "It must be his angel."

¹⁶Meanwhile, Peter continued knocking and, when they finally opened the door, they were amazed to see him. ¹⁷He motioned to them with his hand to be quiet and told

They would also give homilies "in the Spirit." Everyone would recognize the hand of God in the conviction and wisdom with which they spoke, discovering a word relevant to the present in a biblical passage.

The first gesture of fraternal assistance among Christians of different countries is underlined. In this paragraph the elders or "presbyters" (it is the same word) are mentioned. The leaders of the Christian community were so called, following the Jewish custom.

- 12.1 This second persecution reaches the entire Christian community of Jerusalem (see 8:1). James (the greater) was one of the pillars of the church together with Peter and John (Gal 2:9).

Peter's second release (see the first in 5:19) brings out the powerful intercession of the Church on behalf of its leader, and also the will of Christ to keep his church beyond reach of the power of evil (see Mt 16:18).

Report this to James (v. 17). This James is the "brother of the Lord": he was already accepted as responsible for the church in Jerusalem.

them how the Lord had brought him out of prison. And he said to them, "Report this to James and to the brothers." Then he left and went to another place.

¹⁸At daybreak there was a great commotion among the soldiers over what had become of Peter. ¹⁹Herod began a search for him and, not finding him, had the guards questioned and executed. After that, he came down from Judea to Caesarea and stayed there.

Herod's death

²⁰At that time Herod was angry with the people of Tyre and Sidon. By general agreement they appeared before him and, after having won over Blastus, the king's treasurer, they asked for peace, for their country was supplied with food from the territory of Herod. ²¹On the appointed day Herod, clothed in royal robes, sat on his throne and addressed them. ²²So the assembled crowd shouted back, "A god is speaking, not a man!"

²³The angel of the Lord immediately struck Herod for he did not return the honor to God, and he died eaten by worms.

²⁴Meanwhile the word of God was increasing and spreading. ²⁵Barnabas and Saul carried out their mission and then came back from Jerusalem, taking with them John also called Mark.

Paul sent by the Church

13 ¹There were at Antioch—in the Church which was there—prophets and teachers: Barnabas, Symeon known as Niger, Lucius of Cyrene, Manaen who had been brought up with Herod, and Saul. ²On one occasion while they were celebrating the Lord and fasting, the Holy Spirit said to them, "Set apart for me Barnabas and Saul to do the work for which I have called them." ³So, after fasting and praying, they laid their hands on them and sent them off.

Paul's first mission

⁴These then, sent by the Holy Spirit, went down to the port of Seleucia and from there sailed to Cyprus. ⁵Upon their arrival in Sala-

19:20
11:29

11:20

12:12;
12:25

16:27;
27:42

14:15;
2Mac
9:12

2K 19:35;
2Mac 9:5

• 13.1 This is the beginning of Paul's missions; for the time being he is sent as Barnabas' assistant.

It is very difficult to know how the Church organized itself in the beginning. It did not have the same kind of hierarchy with three orders that we have now: bishops, presbyters (or priests) and deacons: this started only at the end of the first century. The Churches of Jerusalem and Antioch were certainly not directed as those in small towns. Most of the time, the communities chose their elders among the most trusted men. They had to be recognized or installed either by the apostles or some other superior authority and accepted by the neighboring communities. Their ministry as leaders included baptism, the celebration of the Eucharist and the anointing of the sick. This institution of the Elders (see 14:23 and 11:30) copied exactly the organization of the Jewish communities.

However, wherever there were prophets accepted as such (this was the case in Antioch), they enjoyed greater authority, somewhat like the apostles (1 Cor 12:28 and Eph 2:20).

Paul and Barnabas are not considered apostles yet, but they are prophets. As for the teachers: they are those who have the ability to teach doctrine and morality based on Scripture, for the service of the community.

Luke gives the details of the beginning of this mission. It emerges from the initiative of the Holy Spirit, but responds to the life of fervor of the community of Antioch. Note also that the community agrees to have two of its five leaders leave, and that Saul and Barnabas are ready to face the risks of this adventure.

The laying on of hands invokes the grace of God upon these two missionaries.

• 4. This first mission begins in a very traditional way. Jews could travel throughout the mis they proclaimed the word of God in the Jewish synagogue; John was with them as an assistant.

8:9 ⁶They traveled over the whole island as far as Paphos where they met a certain magician named Bar-Jesus, a Jewish false prophet ⁷who lived with the governor Sergius Paulus, an intelligent man. He had summoned Barnabas and Saul and wanted to hear the word of God. ⁸But they were opposed by the Elymas (that is, the magician) who tried to turn the governor from the faith.

⁹Then Saul, also known as Paul, full of Holy Spirit, looked intently at him ¹⁰and said, “You son of the devil, full of all kinds of deceit and enemy of all that is right! Will you never stop perverting the straight paths of the Lord? ¹¹Now the Lord’s hand is upon you; you will become blind and for a time you will not see the light of day.” At once a misty darkness came upon him, and he groped about for someone to lead him by the hand.

¹²The governor saw what had happened; he believed, and was deeply impressed by the teaching about the Lord.

Hos
14:10

Dt 28:29

Roman empire: in any important city they would find other Jews involved in trade and always gathered in communities, in “synagogues.” From Antioch, Barnabas and Saul travel by sea to the island of Cyprus, Barnabas’ homeland.

The meeting with Sergius Paulus has the value of a sign: the Gospel not only convinces simple people, but also authorities. Paul is aware that he must witness before “kings and rulers” (Lk 21:12). The prophetic gifts of Saul are seen when he meets Sergius Paulus. From then on, the Book of Acts will no longer speak of Saul but of Paul: had the governor authorized him to use his family name? For Paul, who was already a Roman citizen (16:37), it is a further step in becoming integrated into the world of the non-Jews.

Paul and his companions. Once the mission began, Paul becomes the obvious leader. They do not stay in Cyprus; they leave there groups of believers who have been hastily instructed.

When they arrive on the continent, at the inhospitable area of Perga, John Mark leaves them. Paul’s daring plans may have scared him. They go through the mountain range of modern Turkey and reach the heart of the province of Pisidia—Antioch (which must not be confused with the other Antioch).

Luke gives all the details of the events at Antioch in Pisidia, because they were typical of the situations Paul was going to face in various parts of the Roman empire.

Paul speaks at the Sabbath gathering in the “synagogue” (house of prayer of the Jews). The worship involves psalms and biblical readings (obviously, from the Old Testament). Then, one or several of the leaders make comments. Since Paul is a visitor, out of deference, they ask him to speak.

Paul’s discourse, this return to the history of Israel may seem to us to hold little interest, as was the case for Peter’s (chap. 2) and Stephen’s (chap. 7). But it was the Jewish way of preaching, and for all these emigrants, there was nothing more interesting than being reminded of this history that they knew by heart and which gave them their identity in the midst of other peoples. So Paul presents this history, highlighting a series of facts that gives it meaning and clearly leads to Christ. Paul shows that God’s promises to Israel have been fulfilled in the resurrection of Christ.

We have here a way of understanding the Gospel that we must not lose. We hold that the Jewish and later the Christian faith is “historical.” That means first of all that God has been revealed through history: our faith is not a doctrine developed by thinkers, nor has it sprung from legends. It also means that the resurrection of Jesus marks a new departure for all human history and that year-by-year history presses on towards an end where the sole issue will be Judgment and the Kingdom of God. We cannot simply preach a doctrine that is always true, we must show how the Gospel is a living power and how the Spirit of God is at work in events.

The audience reacts in various ways. Those who are listening are not all Jews; there are also those “who fear the Lord,” or “proselytes” whom we have already met in the Ethiopian (8:30) and Cornelius: these are considered second-class believers by the Jews.

From the first words, Paul greets them the same way he greets the Jews. Then, in his preaching, he does not emphasize the obser-

Paul in the capital of Pisidia

¹³From Paphos, Paul and his companions set sail and came to Perga in Pamphylia. There John left them and returned to Jerusalem ¹⁴while they went on from Perga and came to Antioch in Pisidia. On the Sabbath day they entered the synagogue and sat down. ¹⁵After the reading of the Law and the Prophets, the officials of the synagogue sent this message to them, "Brothers, if you have any word of encouragement for the assembly, please speak up."

¹⁶So Paul arose, motioned to them for silence and began, "Fellow Israelites and also all you who fear God, listen. ¹⁷The God of our people Israel chose our ancestors, and after he had made them increase during their stay in Egypt, he led them out by powerful deeds. ¹⁸For forty years he fed them in the desert, ¹⁹and after he had destroyed seven nations in the land of Canaan, he gave them their land as an inheritance. ²⁰All this took four hundred and fifty years. ²¹After that, he gave them Judges until Samuel the prophet. Then they asked for a king and God gave them Saul, son of Kish, of the tribe of Benjamin, and he was king for forty years. ²²After that time, God removed him and raised up David as king, to whom he bore witness saying: I have found David, the son of Jesse, a man after my own heart, who will do all I want him to do.

²³It is from the descendants of David that God has now raised up the promised savior of Israel, Jesus. ²⁴Before he appeared, John proclaimed a baptism of repentance for all the people of Israel. ²⁵As John was ending his life's work, he said: 'I am not what you think I am, for after me another one is coming whose sandal I am not worthy to untie.'

²⁶Brothers, children and descendants of Abraham, and you also who fear God, it is to you that this message of salvation has been sent. ²⁷It is a fact that the inhabitants of Jerusalem and their leaders did not recognize Jesus. Yet in condemning him, they fulfilled the words of the prophets that are read every Sabbath but not understood. ²⁸Even though they found no charge against him that deserved death, they asked Pilate to have him executed. ²⁹And after they had carried out all that had

Ps
89:20;
1S 13:14

Mal 3:1

Lk 3:15;
Jn 1:19

3:13

vance of the Law, which only the Jews could fulfill and which made them feel superior to others; instead, Paul declares that the Law is surpassed (v. 38). He stresses the promises of God addressed to all people. Those who "fear God" are delighted by a Gospel that makes them God's children, just as the Jews are.

They all invite Paul to speak on the same theme the following Saturday. At that time Paul makes an important decision: Instead of restricting himself to the Jews during the week, he prefers to go to those who "fear God," people whom he wins over because he is not racist in any way. These people, in turn, bring others to the gathering on the following Sabbath—pagans who had never been involved with the Jews but now mix with them.

Then a crisis occurs. The assembly divides into two factions. Those Jews who are most close-minded and proud are afraid when they see themselves surrounded by "unclean" pagans; they oppose Paul and even try to throw him out. Rich and pious women intervene. From that moment, a Christian community separate from the Jews is formed.

Is not all this factual? If we do not often have such crises in our own Church, it is perhaps because the apostles are few, as in Paul's time and we have not yet had the visit of the one who will be heard beyond our walls.

All those destined for everlasting life (48). This expression does not condemn those who have not believed. It simply states that the coming to faith was a gift for those believers: God entered their life and made them bearers of a current of divine life that would transform the world (Jn 17:3).

been written concerning him, they took him down from the cross and laid him in a tomb.

³⁰But God raised him from the dead, ³¹and for many days thereafter he showed himself to those who had come up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem. They have now become his witnesses before the people. ³²We ourselves announce to you this Good News: All that God promised our ancestors, ³³he has fulfilled for us, their descendants, by raising Jesus, according to what is written in the second psalm: You are my Son, today I have begotten you. ³⁴On raising him from the dead so that he would never know the decay of death, God fulfilled his promise: I will give you the holy blessings, the sure ones, that I kept for David.

³⁵Moreover, in another place it is said: You will not allow your holy one to suffer corruption. ³⁶Now David was subjected to corruption, for he died and was laid beside his ancestors after having served God's purpose in his own time. ³⁷But the one God raised up—Jesus—did not know corruption. ³⁸⁻³⁹Through him, fellow Israelites, you have forgiveness of sins, and this is our good news. Whoever believes in him is freed of everything from which you could not be freed by the law of Moses.

⁴⁰Now watch out lest what was said by the prophet happen to you:

⁴¹*Take care, you cynics; be amazed and disappear! For I am about to do something in your days which you would never believe even if you had been told.*"

⁴²As Paul and Barnabas withdrew, they were invited to speak again on the same subject the following Sabbath. ⁴³After that, when the assembly broke up, many Jews and devout God-fearing people followed them and to these they spoke, urging them to hold fast to the grace of God.

⁴⁴The following Sabbath almost the entire city gathered to listen to Paul, who spoke a fairly long time about the Lord. ⁴⁵But the presence of such a crowd made the Jews jealous. So they began to oppose with insults whatever Paul said.

⁴⁶Then Paul and Barnabas spoke out firmly, saying, "It was necessary that God's word be first proclaimed to you, but since you now reject it and judge yourselves to be unworthy of eternal life, we turn to non-Jewish people. ⁴⁷For thus we were commanded by the Lord: I have set you as a light to the pagan nations, so that you may bring my salvation to the ends of the earth."

⁴⁸Those who were not Jews rejoiced when they heard this and praised the message of the Lord, and all those destined for everlasting life believed in it. ⁴⁹Thus the Word spread throughout the whole region.

⁵⁰Some of the Jews, however, incited God-fearing women of the upper class and the leading men of the city, as well, and stirred up an intense persecution against Paul and Barnabas. Finally they had them expelled from their region. ⁵¹The apostles shook the dust from their feet in protest against this people and went to Iconium, ⁵²leaving the disciples filled with joy and Holy Spirit.

Iconium is evangelized

14 ¹In Iconium Paul and Barnabas likewise went into the Jewish synagogue and preached in 11:23;

14:22

17:5;
18:6;
28:17

Is 49:6

10:2

Lk 10:11

2:39;
Ps 2:7;
Heb 1:5;
5:5

Is 55:3

Ps 16:10

Rom 3:21

Rom 1:16

Hb 1:5

• 14.1 What happened in Antioch in Pisidia happens here as well: Paul and Barnabas speak fearlessly. This is one of the characteristics of the genuine apostle, moved by the Holy Spirit. This self-assurance has a powerful influence on the conversion of the audi-

Mk
16:20;
1Thes
1:5

such a manner that a great number of Jews and Greeks believed. ²But the Jews who would not believe stirred up the pagan people and poisoned their minds against the brothers. ³In spite of this Paul and Barnabas spent a considerable time there. They spoke fearlessly of the Lord, who confirmed the message of his grace with the miraculous signs and wonders he gave them power to do.

⁴But the people of the city were divided, some siding with the Jews and some with the apostles. ⁵A move was made by pagans and Jews, together with their leaders, to harm the apostles and to stone them. ⁶But Paul and Barnabas learned of this and fled to the Lycaonian towns of Lystra and Derbe and to the surrounding countryside, ⁷where they continued preaching the Good News.

Lystra and Derbe

• Paul and Barnabas spent a fairly long time at Lystra. ⁸There was a crippled man in Lystra who had never been able to stand or walk. ⁹One day, as he was listening to the preaching, Paul looked intently at him and saw that he had the faith to be saved. ¹⁰So he spoke to him in a loud voice, “In the Name of the Lord Jesus Christ, I command you to stand up on your feet!” And the man stood up and began to walk around.

¹¹When the people saw what Paul had done, they cried out in the language of Lycaonia, “The gods have come to us in human likeness!” ¹²They named Barnabas Zeus, and Paul they called Hermes, since he was the chief speaker. ¹³Even the priest of the Temple of Zeus, which stood outside the town, brought oxen and garlands to the gate; together with the people, he wanted to offer sacrifice to them.

¹⁴When Barnabas and Paul heard this, they tore their garments to show their indignation and rushed into the crowd, shouting, ¹⁵“Friends, why are you doing this? We are human be-

Mt 26:65

1Thes
1:9;
20:11

ence, but it is not a natural human gift. Paul will indicate that God gives it to preachers who place their trust in God, especially when they feel the weakest and the least prepared (see 1 Thes 2:2 and 2 Cor 12:10).

• 7. Once beyond the town of Iconium, where many citizens spoke Greek, there was nothing to help the missionaries, including the problem of language. There was also the weight of the traditional religion. It would seem to us at times that it should be easier to teach the faith in a place where everyone had a religion, and therefore a certain faith in God. This is not so. Having religion meant submitting to the totalitarian authority of customs and social traditions linked to this religion. People were enclosed in a system of interested relationships with their divinities where it was impossible even to imagine the reaction of a free person in relation to God. The non-believers in our modern societies have in fact been freed of many prejudices and confusions.

Paul saw that he had the faith to be saved.
This man must have been still far from faith that recognized Jesus, Christ and Son of God, but it was the same faith of many of those Jesus healed in the Gospel. God does not call only theologians, even if they are needed in the Church; the others, the “little ones” should feel that they also are the very substance of the Church.

The crowd is astonished by the miracle, but it is clear they have not understood. They want to return thanks, as they always did, since God once more showed his mercy: Paul did not come for that. All happens as at Iconium and Antioch: the presence of Jews in every city of the Empire, the close communications between their communities made them formidable enemies for those who had the central authorities of Jerusalem against them. The Jews were to persecute the Christian communities and indispose the Roman authorities against them up to the Jewish War of 66-70 that brought about the ruin of their nation.

The difficulties of Lystra in fact helped Paul to define his objectives: he will no longer risk going to the provinces where it is difficult for him to speak and to be understood, and where ings with the same weakness you have and we are now telling you to turn away from these useless things to the living God who made the heavens, the earth, the sea and all that is in them. ¹⁶In past generations he allowed each nation to go its own way, ¹⁷though he never stopped making himself known; for he is continually doing good, giving you rain from heaven and fruitful seasons, providing you with food and filling your hearts with gladness.”

¹⁸Even these words could hardly keep the crowd from offering sacrifice to them.

¹⁹Then some Jews arrived from Antioch and Iconium and turned the people against them. They stoned Paul and dragged him out of the town, leaving him for dead. ²⁰But when his disciples gathered around him, he stood up and returned to the town. And the next day he left for Derbe with Barnabas.

Return to Antioch

• ²¹After proclaiming the gospel in that town and making many disciples, they returned to Lystra and Iconium and on to Antioch. ²²They were strengthening the disciples and encouraging them to remain firm in the faith, for they said, “We must go through many trials to enter the Kingdom of God.” ²³In each church they appointed elders and, after praying and fasting, they commended them to the Lord in whom they had placed their faith.

²⁴Then they traveled through Pisidia, and came to Pamphylia. ²⁵They preached the Word in Perga and went down to Attalia. ²⁶From there they sailed back to Antioch, where they had first been commended to God’s grace for the task they had now completed.

²⁷On their arrival they gathered the Church together and told them all that God had done through them and how he had opened the door of faith to the non-Jews. ²⁸They spent a fairly long time there with the disciples.

The council at Jerusalem

15 • ¹Some persons who had come from Judea to Antioch

11:23;
13:43;
1Thes
3:3

13:2

17:27

Jer 5:24

7:38;
2Cor
11:25

Gal 5:3;
Gen 17:9

he himself does not feel at home. From now on, he will evangelize the cities situated at the great crossroads, as well as the ports, and will leave to others the care of spreading the Gospel in the inner regions.

• 21. Derbe marks the end of the mission. Paul and Barnabas go back the same way they had come. They visit all the communities established on the continent. Then they will sail for Antioch without returning to the island of Cyprus.

In those days the Church did not have parishes, clergy, institutions, or books. The apostle had to organize the Church in such a way that it might continue. There was a book, the Jewish bible, namely, the Old Testament. The prophets inspired by God would draw new teachings from this book, by discovering a sign of Christ in the past. From time to time apostles or prophets coming from other churches would visit the community.

There will be gatherings around the celebration of the Lord’s Supper (see 1 Cor 11); besides the Eucharist, everyone will share with others their own spiritual gifts (see 1 Cor 12–14). Just as the Jewish communities had leaders called “elders” or presbyters, Christians also lay their hands on leaders, “presbyters,” who will lead and preside over the Eucharist (see commentary on 13:1).

So we understand that a mission does not reach its goal if it does not succeed in forming adult communities, with their own leaders and with the active participation of their members.

• 15.1 Here we see the first major discussion in the Church. Paul gives us an account of it in Galatians 2:1-10.

For two or three centuries, Jews who had emigrated to Greek-speaking countries had attracted countless pagans to their faith. However, these pagans practically had to form an were teaching the brothers in this way, “Unless you are circumcised according to the law of Moses, you cannot be saved.”

Gal 2:1 ²Because of this there was trouble, and Paul and Barnabas had fierce arguments with them. For Paul told the people to remain as they were when they became believers. Finally those who had come from Jerusalem suggested that Paul and Barnabas and some others go up to Jerusalem to discuss the matter with the apostles and elders.

³They were sent on their way by the Church. As they passed through Phoenicia and Samaria they reported how the non-Jews had turned to God, and there was great joy among all the brothers and sisters.

14:27 ⁴On their arrival in Jerusalem, they were welcomed by the Church, the apostles and the elders, to whom they told all that God had done through them. 11:2 ⁵Some believers, however, who belonged to the party of the Pharisees, stood up and said that non-Jewish men must be circumcised and instructed to keep the law of Moses. ⁶So the apostles and elders met together to consider this matter.

⁷As the discussions became heated, Peter stood up and said to them, “Brothers, you know that from the beginning God chose me among you so that non-Jews could hear the Good News from me and believe. ⁸God, who can read hearts, put himself on their side by giving the Holy Spirit to them just as he did to us. ⁹He made no distinction between us and them and cleansed their hearts through faith. ¹⁰So why do you want to put God to the test? Why do you lay on the disciples a burden that neither our ancestors nor we ourselves were able to carry? ¹¹We believe, indeed, that we are saved through the grace of the Lord Jesus, just as they are.”

¹²The whole assembly kept silent as they listened to Paul and Barnabas tell of all the miraculous signs and wonders that God had done through them among the non-Jews.

10–11;
Gal 2:9

11:18

Gal 2:16;
Mt 11:29

Gal 3: 10-12;
1:16

integral part of the Jewish people. Proselytes and foreign-born sympathizers were required to start following what we read in verses 19-20. Then, they had to be circumcised.

This was the way many Christians in Jerusalem saw their entry into the Church. The Pharisees among them were categorical (5): pagans are saved by faith in Christ but this faith is linked to the observance of the Law. Even though they were not fully aware of it, to them faith meant becoming an integral part of the people of God, a people who was identified with Israel.

Paul's missions contributed a new element. Communities that were mostly made of non-Jews emerged in Greek lands and Paul did not impose any condition for their baptism. For them, the people of God was the Christian community.

Was the Church going to split? Was Paul going to start another “Christian” Church, one more radical in its understanding of salvation only through faith in Christ? The Jerusalem encounter was an effort of the whole Church to clarify its faith and to preserve its unity.

The way to resolve the conflict emphasizes the aspect of the Church as a community. The Elders, in charge of the Mother Church of Jerusalem, met with the apostles who were the supreme authority (22)... Simon Peter reminded them of his experience with Cornelius (chap. 10) and he opened the way to total freedom with regard to the Jewish religion.

We, with the Holy Spirit have decided (v. 28): the decision of the community in union with its apostles is the guarantee of the Holy Spirit. Several times in the course of history, similar debates have taken place although they were not about freeing the Gospel from the laws of the Old Testament but rather, they were dealing with Church laws and customs that had become an impossible burden to carry (v. 10) for most men and women. However, it is only possible to point out these obstacles at a wide open debate as the one in Jerusalem had been.

12:17;
21:18

• ¹³ After they had finished, James spoke up, “Listen to me, brothers.

Zec 2:15;
1P 2:10;
Eph 4:14

¹⁴ Symeon has just explained how God first showed his care by taking a people for himself from non-Jewish nations. ¹⁵ And the words of the prophets agree with this, for Scripture says,

Am 9:
11-12

¹⁶ After this I will return and rebuild the booth of David which has fallen; I will rebuild its ruins and set it up again. ¹⁷ Then the rest of humanity will look for the Lord, and all the nations will be consecrated to my Name. So says the Lord, who does today ¹⁸ what he decided from the beginning.

• ¹⁹ Because of this, I think that we should not make difficulties for those non-Jews who are turning to God.

Lev
17:10;
18:6;

²⁰ Let us just tell them not to eat food that is unclean from having been offered to idols; to keep themselves from prohibited marriages; and not to eat the flesh of animals that have been strangled, or any blood. ²¹ For from the earliest times Moses has been taught in every place, and every Sabbath his laws are recalled.”

1Cor
8—10;
Rev
2:20;
Gen 9:3

The council's letters

• ²² Then the apostles and elders together with the whole Church decided to choose representatives from among them to send to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas. These were Judas, known as Barsabbas, and Silas, both leading men among the brothers. ²³ They took with them the following letter:

1Thes
1:1;
1P 5:12

“Greetings from the apostles and elders, your brothers, to the believers of non-Jewish birth in Antioch, Syria and Cilicia. ²⁴ We have heard that some persons from among us

• 13. We have a hard time following the interventions and arguments. This is because we do not know the atmosphere in which the discussion took place. At the time, people were celebrating one of the major Jewish feasts. The Gospels call it the feast of the Dedication of the Temple (Jn 10:22) to recall both its construction by Solomon and its purification by Judas Maccabeus. The entire discussion must have started with the liturgical texts for those days. An in-depth study shows us that, in addition to the quotations of 16-18, what Peter and James said was also referring to these texts. From God, people expected a purified temple and a renewed people and the apostles understood that if many Jews drifted away by not believing in Christ, converted pagans were going to replace them (v. 16). Then, this purified people was to be like the temple, or more precisely, the tent (v. 16) that protected the Ark of God before human pride built the great stone temple.

James, the very conservative leader of the Jerusalem Church, interpreted the texts and he did not hesitate to admit that they confirmed what had been started with the evangelization that took place in Antioch and with Paul's missions. It would be necessary to go even further and to call people from all the nations (v. 17).

• 19. Today we are convinced that verses 20-21, repeated in 28-29 in our text, are the result of an error. These verses are unlikely and they contradict everything we read further on, either in Acts or the letters of Paul and James. What has been copied here was a later decision—as we read in Acts 20:25—made by James for communities that were mostly Jewish in terms of their members and language. Instead of that, Luke's text most likely contained one of the two following formulas: Let each one of you love his neighbor as himself or Do not do to others what you do not want them to do to you. Absolutely nothing was imposed.

• 22. The final decision of the “Council” of Jerusalem, as it is presented here, is doubtless the best the apostles and the Holy Spirit could do at the time. Let us frankly say that the settlement could only be provisional and lacked doctrinal justification. To impose Jewish laws was to penalize non-Jews; it was also a way of saying that the Church was unable to live according to the “newness” of the Gospel, free of the past, free of religious discipline. In fact, a few years later, there was no question of these laws since the Church had freed itself of the Jewish community, just as it had been rejected by the Jews.

have worried you with their discussions and troubled your peace of mind. They were not appointed by us. ²⁵But now, it has seemed right to us in an assembly, to choose representatives and to send them to you, along with our beloved Barnabas and Paul, ²⁶who have dedicated their lives to the service of our Lord Jesus Christ. ²⁷We send you then Judas and Silas who themselves will give you these instructions by word of mouth.

20:24;
21:13

- ²⁸We, with the Holy Spirit, have decided not to put any other burden on you except what is necessary: ²⁹You are to abstain from blood from the meat of strangled animals and from prohibited marriages. If you keep yourselves from these, you will do well. Farewell.”

³⁰After saying good-bye, the messengers went to Antioch, where they assembled the community and handed them the letter. ³¹When they read the news, all were delighted with the encouragement it gave them. ³²Judas and Silas, who were themselves prophets, spoke at length to encourage and strengthen them. ³³After they had spent some time there, the messengers were sent off in peace by the believers; ³⁴Silas, however, preferred to stay with them and only Judas went off. ³⁵So Paul and Barnabas continued in Antioch, teaching and preaching with many others the word of God.

Paul's second mission

- ³⁶After some days Paul said to Barnabas, “Let us return and visit the believers in every town where we proclaimed the word of the Lord, to see how they are getting on.” ³⁷Barnabas wanted to take with them John also called Mark, ³⁸but Paul did not think it right to take him since he had not stayed with them to the end of their mission, but had turned back and left them in Pamphylia. ³⁹Such a sharp disagreement resulted that the two finally separated. Barnabas took Mark along with him and sailed for Cyprus. ⁴⁰Paul, for his part, chose Silas and left, commended by the brothers and sisters to the grace of the Lord.

12:12

14:26

⁴¹He traveled throughout Syria and Cilicia, strengthening the churches there.

Paul recruits Timothy

16 • ¹Paul traveled on to Derbe and then to Lystra. A disciple

Phil 2:19;
1Cor
4:17;
1Thes 3

- 28. The decision of the community united to its apostles guarantees the presence of the Holy Spirit. On several occasions in history, similar debates have taken place, but then it was not a question of freeing the Gospel of the Old Testament laws; it was the laws and customs of the Church that had become the impossible burden to carry (v. 10) for a large human majority. Only when a debate is wide open, as was the one at Jerusalem, does it succeed in pointing out the obstacles and ecclesiastical taboos. As long as the central organisms stifle the liberty of expression, the mission weakens and encloses itself within a traditional clientele decreasing day by day.

- 36. This is the year 50. It has been thirteen years since Paul encountered Christ on the road to Damascus and now another stage of his life is starting. He acts as the leader in charge. The apostles and the Church in Jerusalem officially recognized the mission that Christ had given him on the day of his conversion.

The sudden breakup between Paul and his friend Barnabas should not surprise us: faith does not destroy one's personality. Time and thanksgiving tend to lessen conflicts. Some years later Paul, who is imprisoned, will be helped by Mark (Phil 24), and much later, imprisoned again, Paul will ask Mark to come and help him (2 Tim 4:11).

- 16.1 For Paul it is not enough to have established Elders in every community; he also wants to have assistants who are to visit and strengthen the existing communities and form named Timothy lived there, whose mother was a believer of Jewish origin but whose father was a Greek.

2Tim
3:11

²As the believers at Lystra and Iconium spoke well of him, Paul wanted Timothy to accompany him. ³So he took him and, because of the Jews of that place who all knew that his father was a Greek, he circumcised him.

1Cor
9:20

⁴As they traveled from town to town, they delivered the decisions of the apostles and elders in Jerusalem, for the people to obey. ⁵Meanwhile, the churches grew stronger in faith and increased in number every day.

Gal 4:13

⁶They traveled through Phrygia and Galatia, because they had been prevented by the Holy Spirit from preaching the message in the province of Asia. ⁷When they came to Mysia, they tried to go on to Bithynia, but the Spirit of Jesus did not allow them to do this. ⁸So, passing by Mysia, they went down to Troas.

20:5

Paul goes to Macedonia

•⁹There one night Paul had a vision. A Macedonian stood before him and begged him, “Come over to Macedonia and help us!” ¹⁰When he awoke, he told us of this vision and we understood that the Lord was calling us to give the Good News to the Macedonian people.

¹¹So we put out to sea from Troas and sailed straight across to Samothrace Island, and the next day to Neapolis. ¹²From there we went inland to Philippi, the leading city of the district of Macedonia, and a Roman colony. We spent some days in that city.

¹³On the sabbath we went outside the city gate to the bank of the river where we thought the Jews would gather to pray. We sat down and began speaking to the women who were gathering there. ¹⁴One of them was a God-fearing woman named Lydia from Thyatira City, a dealer in purple cloth.

As she listened, the Lord opened her heart to respond to what Paul was saying. ¹⁵After she had been baptized together with her household, she invited us to her house, “If you think I am faithful to the Lord, come and stay at my house.” And she persuaded us to accept her invitation.

10:2;
16:32

new ones, as Paul himself does. Timothy becomes the first of these. The apostle takes into account the good testimony that believers give of Timothy. When it is a matter of looking for leaders for the Church, Paul will always demand that they have a good reputation (see 1 Tim 3:7 and Titus 1:6).

A detail shows us how Paul was able to give in. He does not want pagans to be circumcised: this ritual has no value for a Christian. Yet, since Timothy is Jewish, Paul circumcises him according to the Jewish rite, so that he will not have any problems with believers of Jewish origin, and so that they will be better able to minister among them.

Luke gives but a few details of a journey that probably lasted two years. Paul’s letters give us an idea of the unremitting work he undertook to form believers and their leaders: a mission is more than gathering people together and preaching to them; it has to arouse and convert those who will give life to the community—a life of its own and which will continue to develop.

On two occasions the Holy Spirit prevents Paul from carrying out his plan to develop the Church in the Roman province of Asia. The Spirit shows him he must go beyond, to Macedonia that was the first province of Europe. Thus God’s will that the Gospel be taken as soon as possible to Rome, the center of the empire, is carried out. Paul, who is so dynamic and enterprising, follows the guidance of the Holy Spirit.

• 9. Suddenly the text mentions we, that is to say, that Luke is beginning to relate his own involvement. We must conclude that in Troas, Paul and Silas met Luke, a doctor from Antioch who was waiting for them. He may have arrived by boat while the two missionaries were traveling inland.

Paul and Silas in prison

• ¹⁶One day, as we were on our way to the place of prayer, we were met by a slave girl who had a spirit of divination and gained much profit for her owners by her fortune-telling.

¹⁷She followed Paul and the rest of us shouting, “These people are servants of the Most High God. They will make known to you a way of salvation.” ¹⁸The girl did this for several days until Paul was annoyed. Then he turned around and said to the spirit, “In the name of Jesus Christ, I command you, come out of her!” The spirit went out of her that very moment.

¹⁹When her owners realized that all the profits they expected had gone, they seized Paul and Silas and dragged them into the marketplace before the local authorities. ²⁰And when they had turned them over to the officials, they said, ²¹“These people are Jews and they are disturbing our city. They have come here to introduce customs which are not lawful for us Romans to adopt or practice.”

²²So they set the crowd against them and the officials tore the clothes off Paul and Silas and ordered them to be flogged. ²³And after inflicting many blows on them, they threw them into prison, charging the jailer to guard them safely. ²⁴Upon receiving these instructions, he threw them into the inner cell and fastened their feet in the stocks.

A miraculous deliverance

²⁵About midnight, Paul and Silas were praying and singing hymns to God, and the other prisoners were listening. ²⁶Suddenly a severe earthquake shook the place, rocking the prison to its foundations. Immediately all the doors flew open and the chains of all the prisoners fell off.

²⁷The jailer woke up to see the prison gates wide open. Thinking that the prisoners had escaped, he drew his sword to kill himself, ²⁸but Paul shouted to him, “Do not harm yourself! We are all still here.”

²⁹The jailer asked for a light, then rushed in, and fell at the feet of Paul and Silas. ³⁰After he had secured the other prisoners, he led them out and asked, “Sirs, what must I do to be saved?” ³¹They answered, “Believe

Eph
5:19;
Col 3:16

4:31

4:12

3:6

²Cor
11:25;
Phil 1:30;
¹The
2:2

• 16. From the beginning, the Gospel proves its freeing power even if this time the result is the imprisonment of the apostles. Paul frees a female fortune-teller. This gift is condemned in the Old Testament (the Bible seems to recognize that it is not necessarily a question of fraud). This fortune-telling appears to be linked to dark powers that deny the absolute over-ruling power of God regarding the destiny of his children (Col 2:15; 1 Cor 2:8): wanting to know the future is in fact always to doubt God. The master of this girl put forward an argument that was meant to impress the authorities in a society where customs were sacred—the same argument the Jews used and will use against Paul (and later many “Christian” societies will use it against true believers): these people introduce customs which are not lawful for us Romans to adopt and practice.

In Roman jails there was a main room and in the center of the pavement a grill closed the opening through which the most dangerous prisoners were thrown into an underground cell. They throw Paul and Silas there. They are perfectly free in spite of their chains. Though they have been beaten and are wounded, they feel like praising God. In the silence of the night, the jailers and the other prisoners listen to them.

God is also listening. How many similar episodes, wherever a witness of Christian freedom has been at the risk of one’s life and liberty!

We who take the time, and rightly so to prepare for baptism, might be surprised by this very swift baptism of a whole family. It could be said that it was a special case: let us stress also that all this happened in a very different world from our own.

Note also that Paul knows how to defend his rights (v. 37).

in the Lord Jesus Christ and you and your household will be saved.”
³²Then they spoke the word of God to him and to all his household.

³³Even at that hour of the night, the jailer took care of them and washed their wounds; and he and his whole household were baptized at once. ³⁴He led them to his house, spread a meal before them and joyfully celebrated with his whole household his newfound faith in God.

³⁵The next morning the officials sent police officers with the order, “Let those men go.” ³⁶So the jailer said to Paul and Silas, “The officials have sent an order for you and Silas to be released. You may leave and go in peace.”

22:25;
23:27

³⁷But Paul said to him, “They flogged us publicly, and jailed us without trial, men who are Roman citizens; and now they want to smuggle us out secretly? Oh no! Let them come themselves and lead us out.”

³⁸The police officers reported this to the officials, who were afraid when they heard that Paul and Silas were Roman citizens. ³⁹So they came and apologized to them, took them out and asked them to leave the town.

⁴⁰Once outside the prison, Paul and Silas went to Lydia’s house where they met and encouraged the brothers and sisters, and then departed.

Difficulties in Thessalonica

¹The
2:2

17 • ¹Paul and Silas took the road through Amphipolis and Apollonia and came to Thessalonica,

• 17.1 In this mission, we should note the case of Thessalonica, capital of Macedonia. The Christian community will begin with people of Greek origin, worshippers of God, whom Paul met in the synagogue, and with other Greek pagans. The few Jewish converts (v. 4) will probably become the pillars and the educators of the community. They had a last-where there was a Jewish synagogue. ²As Paul used to do, he went to the synagogue and on three Sabbaths he held discussions with them about the Scriptures. ³He explained and proved to them that the Messiah had to suffer and rise from the dead, and he said, “Such a Messiah is this Jesus whom I am proclaiming to you.”

13:14

9:20;
18:5

⁴Some of them were convinced and joined Paul and Silas. So too did a great number of Greeks sympathetic to Judaism and many prominent women.

⁵This only made the Jews jealous, so they gathered some of the good-for-nothing street loafers and formed a mob to start a riot in the town. They came to the house of Jason, in an attempt to bring Paul and Silas before the people’s assembly. ⁶Not finding them there, they dragged off Jason and some believers to the city authorities shouting, “These people who have turned the world upside down have come here also, ⁷and Jason has given them hospitality. They all disregard the decrees of the Emperor and claim that there is another king, Jesus.”

13:45;
¹The
2:15;
Rom
16:21

16:20;
24:5

⁸In this way they upset the crowd and the city officials who heard them. ⁹The officials released Jason and the others on bail.

¹⁰As soon as night fell, the believers sent Paul and Silas off to Beroea. On their arrival they went to the Jewish synagogue. ¹¹Its members were more open-minded than those in Thessalonica and welcomed the ing experience of God’s word and knew how to use the Bible. They sang the psalms, had some idea of a liturgy in the framework of a community, and had a better grasp of moral principles. Paul will always be careful not to let the Jews bring the converts back to a religion of commandments, but it was doubtless that among them he would, for a time, find the bet-message with great enthusiasm. Each day they examined the Scriptures to see if these things were so. ¹²Many of them came to believe, as did numerous influential Greek women, and many men as well.

Jn 19:12

¹³But when the Jews of Thessalonica came to know that the word of God had been proclaimed by Paul in Berea also, they hurried there to cause a commotion and stir up the crowds. ¹⁴At once, the believers sent Paul away to the coast; but both Silas and Timothy stayed in Berea. ¹⁵Paul was taken as far as Athens by his escort, who then returned to Berea with instructions for Silas and Timothy to come to him as soon as possible.

Paul in Athens

• ¹⁶While Paul was waiting for them in Athens, he felt very uneasy at the sight of a city full of idols. ¹⁷He held discussions in the synagogue with the Jews and the God-fearing people, as well as daily debates in the public square with ordinary passersby.

¹⁸Epicureans and Stoic philosophers debated with him, some of them asking, "What is this babblers trying to say?" Others commented, "He sounds like a promoter of foreign gods," because he was heard to speak of Jesus and 'the Resurrection.' ¹⁹So they took Paul and led him off to the Areopagus hall, and said, "We would like to know what this ter prepared elements. Persecution prevents Paul from staying more than two months. How could a church formed under such conditions and consisting of pagans with little training survive? Yet it persevered: see the Letters to the Thessalonians.

Col 1:22

- 16. Athens was the most famous city in the Greek world. Even after the loss of political control, Athens remained the cultural center of the Roman world. Paul goes there, as he always aims for large cities or ports, where news travels from one place to another and spreads through sea travel.

He is offered the chance of speaking before the philosophers and the authorities of Athens, and he accepts. For these intellectuals he formally states his message, but it is a flop. It might have been expected. Usually those who accept the faith are those whose life draws nearer to Christ. His audience was only interested in novelties; they were masters, and Paul had no title. Paul confronted the Christian faith with the other religions, showing that for all peoples it was time to begin a new worldwide age. A first part recalled the fact of religious plurality: it was only a first stage in God's plan. Then came the Gospel: all humanity was to unite in order to prepare for God's judgment. It was there without a doubt that Paul would have given his own witness, but they did not allow him to finish his discourse.

Different than what the Jews often did (see again Wis 11–15), Paul does not attack images and the honor given to them. Paul knows that in all religions, many people give images their due place and do not confuse these traditional images and rites with the true and only God, for they have a certain idea of him. Paul only wants to show that this God is far beyond the figures we attribute to him, and immediately affirms the unity of humankind in the plan of God. From one stock he created the whole human race. Let us not resume the outmoded discussions to know if Paul condemns or not the theories of human origin from different individuals. Paul affirms that the race is one in God's plan: the first among them, the model, the elder brother is not the little prehistoric ancestor but Christ, Son of God.

He wanted them to seek God by themselves—and eventually to find him. An astonishing affirmation of a humanity to which God has not said everything and which has to advance by groping and making many mistakes. God has so willed it, even if dictators think to impose a truth. Here, Paul does not condemn philosophers without faith, or whose theories have many harmful aspects.

How many interesting perspectives! Are we to be satisfied in just condemning our world in crisis? Never has humanity known such an upheaval in its conditions of life, such challenges to face, such changes to accept in everyday life. It is normal for a person to be disoriented, to have to grope and make enormous errors: this is part of God's plan. Very often the Church is unable to say what is the best choice:

new teaching is that you are talking about. ²⁰Some of the things we hear you say sound strange to us, and we would like to know what they mean.”

²¹Indeed, all Athenian citizens, as well as the foreigners who live there, have as their favorite occupation talking about or listening to the latest news.

²²Then Paul stood up in the Areopagus hall and said, “Athenian citizens, I note that in every way you are very religious. ²³As I walked around looking at your shrines, I even discovered an altar with this inscription: To an unknown God. Now, what you worship as unknown, I intend to make known to you.

²⁴God, who made the world and all that is in it, does not dwell in sanctuaries made by human hands, being as he is Lord of heaven and earth. ²⁵Nor does his worship depend on anything made by human hands, as if he were in need. Rather it is he who gives life and breath and everything else to everyone. ²⁶From one stock he created the whole human race to live throughout all the earth, and he fixed the time and the boundaries of each nation. ²⁷He wanted them to seek him by themselves, even if it were only by groping for him, succeed in finding him.

Yet he is not far from any one of us. ²⁸For in him we live and move and have our being, as some of your poets have said: for we too are his offspring. ²⁹If we are indeed God’s offspring, we ought not to think of divinity as something like a statue of gold or silver or stone, a product of human art and imagination.

³⁰But now God prefers to overlook this time of ignorance and he calls on all people to change their ways. ³¹He has already set a day on which he will judge the world with justice through a man he has appointed. And, so that all may believe it, he has just given a sign by raising this man from the dead.”

³²When they heard Paul speak of a resurrection from death, some made fun of him, while others said, “We must hear you on this topic some other time.” ³³At that point Paul left. ³⁴But a few did join him, and believed. Among them were Dionysius, a member of the Areopagus court, a woman named Damaris, and some others.

Paul in Corinth

18 ¹After this, Paul left Athens and went to Corinth. ²There he found a Jew named Aquila, a native of Pontus, who had recently come from Italy with his wife Priscilla, following a decree of the Em-

Is 40:18

10:42;
1Thes
1:10

1Cor
1:23;
15:12

18:18;
1Cor
16:9

14:17;
Gal 4:8

Ps
104:30

14:17;
Gen 10;
Dt 32:8

are not Christians the Church? And they are divided. God has not the habit of supplying prophets who would think and know for others. We can only reaffirm what is our faith: everything should end with judgment and the judgment will be made before Christ. Peoples are saved and condemned according to whether they accept or not this God who became one of us.

Later, however, Paul points out that God prefers to overlook that time. Christ has come: starting with him, who is the head (Col 1:18), the dispersed children of God are going to be gathered in one body (Jn 11:52; Eph 1:10), and since he is the definitive truth, all must believe in the Gospel. God judges the world through Christ, that is to say, that people are saved or condemned depending on whether they accept or reject this God who appeared humble.

• 18.1 Corinth, the main port of Greece and capital of the province of Achaia with 600,000 inhabitants, of whom 400,000 are slaves, is a religious, commercial and cultural center. It has countless temples with thousands of prostitutes serving in them. The city is famous for its luxury and its corruption. Paul goes there and remains eighteen months—until the end of the year 52. This date is exact:

1Cor
4:12;
9:6;
2Cor
11:7;
Gal 6:6;
1Thes
2:9

peror Claudius which ordered all Jews to leave Rome. ³Paul went to visit them and then stayed and worked with them because they shared the same trade of tentmaking. ⁴Every Sabbath he held discussions in the synagogue, trying to convince both Jews and Greeks.

13:46;
28:28;
13:51;
Lk 9:5

⁵When Silas and Timothy came down from Macedonia, Paul was able to give himself wholly to preaching and proving to the Jews that Jesus was the Messiah. ⁶One day when they opposed him and insulted him, he shook the dust from his clothes in protest, saying, “Your blood be on your own heads! I am innocent. I am not to blame if from now on I go to the non-Jews.”

⁷So Paul left there and went to the house of a God-fearing man named Titus Justus who lived next door to the synagogue. ⁸A leading man of the synagogue, Crispus, along with his whole household, believed in the Lord. On hearing Paul, many more Corinthians believed and were baptized.

⁹One night, in a vision, the Lord said to Paul, “Do not be afraid, but continue speaking and do not be silent, ¹⁰for many people in this city are mine. I am with you, so no one will harm you.” ¹¹So Paul stayed a year and a half in that place, teaching the word of God among them.

¹²When Gallio was governor of Achaia, the Jews made a united attack on Paul and brought him before the court. And they accused him, ¹³“This man tries to persuade us to worship God in ways that are against the Law.”

¹⁴Paul was about to speak in his own defense when Gallio said to the Jews, “If it were a matter of a misdeed or vicious crime, I would have to consider your complaint. ¹⁵But since this is a quarrel about teachings and divine names that are 15:14;

Jn 10:16;
Jer 1:8;
Is 41:10;
1Cor 2:3

19:38

23:29;
Jn 18:31

history tells us that Gallio was governor of Achaia during the year 52.

Aquila and his wife, Priscilla, had just arrived in Corinth. They were perhaps already Christians, but Jewish Christians were not different from others before the decree of the emperor.

Aquila and Priscilla simply place themselves at Paul’s service to help him. They will assist him on other occasions with the natural availability of people who do not feel tied to any city or country.

A vision: there are not many in this book. Perhaps Paul was wondering whether it would not be better for him to retire for a time as he had already done and as Jesus had advised in case of persecution (Mt 10:23). The devil increases the opposition when someone sets foot on his field: in this center of corruption, grace would triumph.

The Jews brought him before the court. Here we have a new example of the problems Paul met in the great Roman centers. Different peoples co-exist and many conflicts are settled within communities according to their proper laws and customs. Gallio, the Roman governor, has no wish to be dragged into the jungle of traditions and disputes, especially with the Jews who enjoyed religious privileges within the Roman Empire.

The Jews are furious in seeing the success of Paul that relies on the Word of God, that is, on their own sacred books. They fear that the boldness of the Christians might stir a reaction from the pagans, in which case they, too, would be the victims.

They seized Sosthenes—and beat him. A sure bet would be that this Sosthenes, a Jew, is the one mentioned in 1 Corinthians 1:1. Even if he already acted as a prominent member of the Christian group, it is doubtful whether the Jews would have attacked him before the authorities: most probably it was a group of bystanders falling on a well-known Jew.

Paul had made a vow (v. 18). He shaved his head as it was said in Numbers 6:5. All that Paul had written to turn converted pagans away from the Jewish Law did not prevent him, a Jew, from feeling at ease with the traditional forms of Jewish piety. He knew that faith alone saves, but it was his wish to mark with a vow some secret agreement he had made with the Lord.

proper to your own law, see to it yourselves: I refuse to judge such matters.”¹⁶ And he sent them out of the court.

1Cor 1:1 ¹⁷Then the people seized Sosthenes, a leading man of the synagogue, and beat him in front of the tribunal; but Gallio paid no attention to it.

Num 6:9; Rom 16:1 ¹⁸Paul stayed on with the disciples in Corinth for many days; he then left them and sailed off with Priscilla and Aquila for Syria. And as he was no longer under a vow he had taken, he shaved his head before sailing from Cenchreae.

13:14 ¹⁹When they reached Ephesus, he left Priscilla and Aquila behind and entered the synagogue to hold discussions with the Jews. ²⁰But although they asked him to stay longer, he declined. ²¹And he took leave of them saying, “God willing, I will come back to you again.” Then he set sail from Ephesus. ²²On landing at Caesarea, he went up to greet the Church, and then went down to Antioch.

16:5 • ²³After spending some time there, he left and traveled from place to place through Galatia and Phrygia, strengthening the disciples.

• ²⁴A certain Jew named Apollos, a native of Alexandria, arrived at Ephesus. He was an eloquent speaker and an authority on the Scriptures, ²⁵and he had some knowledge of the way of the Lord. With great enthusiasm he preached and taught correctly about Jesus, although he knew only of John’s baptism. ²⁶As he began to speak boldly in the synagogue, Priscilla and Aquila heard him; so they took him home with them and explained to him the way more accurately. ²⁷As Apollos wished to go to Achaia, the believers encouraged him and wrote to the disciples there to welcome him. When he arrived, he greatly strengthened those who, by God’s grace, had become believers, ²⁸for he vigorously refuted the Jews, proving from the Scriptures that Jesus is the Messiah.

1Cor 1:12; 16:12; 2Cor 3:1; Col 4:10

9:20; 17:3

Paul in Ephesus

19 • ¹While Apollos was in Corinth, Paul traveled through the interior of the country and came

• 23. In this short paragraph Luke combines the end of the second journey and the beginning of the third.

Paul does not stay in Ephesus, the capital of the province of Asia. He is in a hurry to return, after two and a half years of mission. He goes up to Jerusalem and returns to Antioch, which is the first and the main among the churches in the pagan world. Paul goes there to rest after every journey. The life of this large community, with years of experience, and the contact with its apostles, helped him to see what the future of the Church would be.

When he leaves again, Paul visits the churches established on his second mission. This takes him several months, so he will only arrive at Ephesus in 54. Meanwhile a church had been established there.

• 24. During Paul’s absence, Aquila, Priscilla and others resumed the first contacts that he had established in the Jewish community. An important success: the integration of Apollos who will be one of the most valued missionaries (1 Cor 3:6; 4:6; 15:12). Apollos, we are told, knew something of The Way (v. 26). We have already met this term which denoted Christianity: not only a religion, nor only a faith or morale, but all that together and more. Apollos, like the twelve men mentioned in 19:1-7, had probably been in Palestine when Jesus was already known there. His teaching had not yet given rise to a movement nor made a stir equal to that resulting from John the Baptist’s preaching, which was followed by baptisms and commitments.

• 19.1 For three years, Paul wanted to evangelize Ephesus. Ephesus was one of the most beautiful and largest cities in the empire.

Luke wanted to relate the baptism of these twelve disciples of John the Baptist. As we to Ephesus. There he found some disciples ²whom he asked, "Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you became believers?" They answered, "We have not even heard that anyone may receive the Holy Spirit."

8:17; 10:44
 Jn 7:39 ³Paul then asked, "What kind of baptism have you received?" And they answered, "The baptism of John."

13:24; Lk 3:3
 8:17; 10:46
⁴Paul then explained, "John's baptism was for conversion, but he himself said they should believe in the one who was to come, and that one is Jesus."
⁵Upon hearing this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. ⁶Then Paul laid his hands on them and the Holy Spirit came down upon them; and they began to speak in tongues and to prophesy. ⁷There were about twelve of them in all.

⁸Paul went into the synagogue and for three months he preached and discussed there boldly, trying to convince them about the Kingdom of God. ⁹Some of them, instead of believing, grew obstinate and criticized the way publicly. So Paul departed from them and took the disciples with him. He taught daily in the lecture hall of a certain Tyrannus. ¹⁰He did this for two years, so that all those who lived in the province of Asia, both Jews and non-Jews, heard the word of the Lord.

• ¹¹God did extraordinary deeds of power through the hands of Paul. ¹²Even handkerchiefs or cloths that had touched his skin were laid upon the sick and their illnesses were cured, and evil spirits also departed from them.

5:15;
 Lk 8:44

have just said they knew something of Jesus' teaching, but as for being his disciples, they lacked what was most important: they had not received the Holy Spirit.

The Holy Spirit came down upon them (v. 6). See Acts 8:14-17. We must not forget that in the beginning, the Christian language was limited. We know that the Holy Spirit is much more than the manifestations that follow the laying on of hands. So we have such statements as: we have not heard that there is the Holy Spirit, while other texts state: that the Holy Spirit be received. The laying on of hands is meant to confirm the change worked at baptism through the experience of the gifts of the Spirit (1 Cor 12:7). Many Christians would be surprised today if they have never had this tangible experience of God. Let us not say that these gifts are no longer useful or that such things do not happen today. What is important, surely, is to believe and live one's faith rather than to feel it. Such an experience, however, is often the shock that gives rise to a re-blossoming of our faith: it shows us that God is near, and he is master of our inner self. Perhaps our rationalist temperament and our Church life, mistrustful of all that is a personal expression, serves as a dampener of the gifts of the Spirit; perhaps it is rather the poverty of our commitment to Jesus.

They were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. Are we to presume that in the beginning baptism was in the name of Jesus and not in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit? It is not certain.

In the name of signifies: by the power of; maybe the baptism in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit was called the baptism in the name of Jesus to distinguish it from the baptism of John and the baptisms of other religions. It is also possible that at the moment of receiving the water in the name of the Holy Trinity, the person baptized had to make a personal invocation in the Name of Jesus. Possibly also in early times, baptism was given "in the Name of Jesus" and later the Church modified the formula in order to distinguish itself from groups that believed in Jesus but without recognizing him as Son of God, born of the Father. There would be nothing to astonish us in such a change: the Church of the apostles had given the first formula; the same Church gave the second formula attributed to Jesus in Matthew 28:19.

• 11. Many are the signs that Jesus promised for those who would believe (Mk 16:15-18). Similar things happen today when the Church becomes missionary again.

We are impressed by the cures. Perhaps the in-depth conversion of those who confess their magic practices and burn their precious books is more important. Apparently they did not do

Lk 9:49;
Mt 12:27

¹³Some Jews who traveled around driving out evil spirits, also tried to use the name of the Lord Jesus over those possessed by evil spirits, saying, "I command you by this Jesus whom Paul preaches."

¹⁴Among them were the seven sons of a Jewish priest named Sceva.

¹⁵But one day, when they entered a house and dared to do this, the evil spirit said to them, "Jesus I recognize and Paul I know; but who are you?"

¹⁶Then the man with the evil spirit sprang at them and overpowered first one and then another. And he handled them so violently that they fled from that house naked and mauled. ¹⁷This became known to all the Jews and Greeks living in Ephesus; all of them were very impressed and the name of the Lord Jesus came to be held in great honor.

¹⁸Many of those who had become believers came forward and openly acknowledged their former practices. ¹⁹Many who had practiced magic arts collected their books and burned them in front of everyone. When the value of these was assessed, it came to fifty thousand silver coins.

6:7;
12:24

²⁰In this way, the word of the Lord spread widely and with power.

The silversmiths' riot

2Cor
1:15

• ²¹When all these events were completed Paul, led by the Holy Spirit, decided to travel through Macedonia and Achaia again and then go on to Jerusalem. And he said, "After I have been there, I must visit Rome also." ²² So he sent two of his assistants, Timothy and Erastus, to Macedonia ahead of him, while he himself stayed on for a time in Asia.

²³About that time the city was deeply troubled because of the way.

²⁴It all began because of a certain silversmith named Demetrius, who made silver models of the temple of the goddess Artemis and whose business brought a great deal of profit to the workers. ²⁵He called them, together with others who did similar work, and said, "Friends, you know that our prosperity depends on this work. ²⁶But, as you can see and hear for yourselves, this Paul has led astray a great number of people, not only here in Ephesus, but also throughout most of the province of Asia. And he has convinced them that gods made by human hands are no gods at all. ²⁷The danger grows that not only our trade will be discredited, but even that the temple of the great goddess Artemis will count for nothing. She whom Asia and all the world worships may soon be stripped of her renown."

²⁸On hearing this they became enraged and began shouting, "Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!" ²⁹The uproar spread throughout the whole city. The mob rushed to the theater, dragging with them Gaius and Aristarchus, two Macedonians who were Paul's traveling companions. ³⁰Paul it at the time of their baptism but later, when they were more convinced of their faith.

9:2

• 21. The success of the Gospel was so great that it staggered idolatry. It appeared, however, alongside many other religions. The Roman world was full of religious restlessness, and from Asia in particular came many doctrines, cults and teachings that claimed to free people from death. The Gospel was different from all of them since, while those doctrines were merely theories, the apostles were proclaiming a fact: a Jew named Jesus has risen and we have seen him risen.

There is a chaotic disturbance. The group of idol-makers defend their interests. The Jews who lived quietly among the pagan population are worried, lest they be confused with the Christians, so they try to excuse themselves.

wished to face this crowd, but the disciples would not let him. ³¹Some of the officials of the Asian province also, who were friends of Paul, sent him a message begging him not to show himself in the theater.

³²Meanwhile the whole assembly was in an uproar. Some shouted one thing, and some shouted another and most of them did not know why they were there. ³³Some of the crowd wanted a certain Alexander to speak, whom the Jews put forward. Alexander intended to make a speech of defense before the crowd, ³⁴but when they recognized that he was a Jew, they chanted all together for about two hours, “Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!”

³⁵Finally the town clerk was able to calm the mob. He said, “Citizens of Ephesus, who does not know that Ephesus is keeper of the temple of the great Artemis, and of her image which fell from the sky? ³⁶Since these things are undeniable, you must calm yourselves and do nothing rash. ³⁷These men whom you brought here are not temple-robbers nor have they spoken ill of our goddess. ³⁸If Demetrius and his fellow craftsmen want to bring charges against anyone, the courts are open and there are officials. Let them bring charges against each other. ³⁹If there is anything further that needs to be investigated, let it be done in the lawful assembly. ⁴⁰For as it is today, we are in danger of being charged with rioting, since there is no valid excuse we can give for this wild demonstration.” ⁴¹And the town clerk dismissed the assembly.

Paul returns to Macedonia

20 ¹After the uproar died down, Paul called his disciples together to encourage them. Then he said goodbye and set out on his journey to Macedonia. ²He traveled throughout those regions and spent himself in speaking and encouraging them. He finally arrived in Greece.

³When he had been there for three months, he wanted to set sail for Syria, but as the Jews were plotting against him, he decided to return by way of Macedonia. ⁴When he was about to leave for the Asian province, some companions went with him, Sopater, son of Pyrrhus, from Berea, Aristarchus and Secundus from Thessalonica, Gaius from Derbe, Timothy, Tychicus and Trophimus from Asia. ⁵So they went ahead and waited for us in Troas, ⁶while we set sail from Philippi as soon as the festival of Unleavened Bread was over. Five days later we joined them in Troas where we spent a week.

The Eucharist at Troas

⁷On the first day of the week we were together for the breaking of the bread, and Paul, who intended to leave the following day, spoke at

16:40

16:20;
18:172Cor
2:122:42;
1Cor
11:17;
16:2

• 20.1 Paul remained two and a half years in Ephesus, and some details in his letters let us see that Luke’s account is very incomplete. The greater part of Paul’s activity is not mentioned, in particular the evangelization of the neighboring towns of Ephesus by a team of his assistants: see the Introduction to Ephesians. Paul had much to suffer, and was perhaps imprisoned (Introduction to the Philippians). It was at this time that he wrote his letter to the Galatians and the First Letter to the Corinthians.

Paul goes to Macedonia (where Thessalonica is located) and to Greece (where he spends some time in Corinth). There in Corinth, as he perseveres with his plan to go to Rome, he writes to the Romans.

• 7. Luke tells us that the Eucharist took place on the day after the Sabbath—already our Sunday: the Christians had separated from the Jews, replacing the Sabbath with the following day, the first day of the week, the day length. The discourse went on until midnight, ⁸with many lamps burning in the upstairs room where we were gathered. A young man named Eutychius was sitting on the window ledge, ⁹and as Paul kept on talking, Eutychius grew more and more sleepy, until he finally went sound asleep and fell from the third floor to the ground. There they found him dead.

¹⁰Paul went down, bent over him and took him in his arms. “Do not be alarmed,” he said, “there is life in him.” ¹¹Then he went back upstairs, broke the bread and ate. After that he kept on talking with them for a long time until daybreak and then he left. ¹²As for the young man, they lifted him up alive and were greatly comforted.

¹³We went on ahead to the ship and sailed for Assos, where we were to pick up Paul. This was the arrangement since Paul intended to travel by foot. ¹⁴In fact, we met him at Assos and taking him aboard, we went on to Mitylene. ¹⁵We sailed from there and arrived off Chios the next day. A day later we came to Samos and the following day we reached Miletus.

¹⁶Paul had decided to sail past Ephesus, so as not to lose time in Asia, for he was eager to reach Jerusalem by the day of Pentecost, if at all possible.

Paul’s farewell to the Ephesian elders

• ¹⁷From Miletus Paul sent word to Ephesus, summoning the elders of the Church. ¹⁸When they came to him, he addressed them, “You know how I lived among you from the first day I set foot in the province of Asia, ¹⁹how I served the Lord in humility through the sorrows and trials that

14:23

19:10;
1Thes
1:52Cor 1:8;
1Thes
2:10

of Jesus’ resurrection. Doing so they were putting on their calendar the major event of their faith.

Naturally they meet in a home and this is the beginning of the Christian gathering. They share instruction and reflection, concluding with thanksgiving (or Eucharist) and communion with the body of the Lord.

Each one could speak, and Paul as prophet and apostle had a good deal to say, prepared or inspired. What might have been Paul’s long discourse? He read and interpreted texts from the Scripture that were referring to Jesus; he gave witness of his own commitment to Christ; he related the many happenings in his mission when the Spirit of Christ was at work.

This part of the celebration could be prolonged: the prophets, even Paul, tend at times to overdo it, but they could not separate without ending with “the breaking of bread”, the Eucharist.

With the unlucky fall of one of the youth and the intervention of Paul, the participants witness God’s power over death (see 10:36).

• 17. Paul returns to Palestine. He had a presentiment or he knew by a revelation of the Holy Spirit that another phase of his life was about to begin: the years of prison and trials. So he wished to say goodbye to all the leaders of the Church in the Roman province of Asia. He did not know all of them well, since the evangelization of this province had been the work of his team of assistants (20:4). These leaders are called elders in verse 17 and inspectors (or “episcopos,” from which we have bishops) in verse 28. See on this subject the commentary on Philippians 1:1.

Paul gives his own example and develops the obligations of “pastors” in the Church (v. 28). He then invites them not to enclose themselves in the role of president or administrator of the community: they must prepare it for difficult times. Let them compare themselves with Paul and ponder on the sacrifices that the apostolic task demands of him. Is it good for them to rely on another—an apostle of course—when they are confronted with difficulties?

In verses 28-30, we have the warning of divisions and heresies in the Church: the same message will reappear in the Pastoral Letters (2 Tim 3:1-9). We are used to seeing Christians divided. For Paul, it was unthinkable. When he speaks of “the Churches of Christ” (Rom 16:4 and 16; 1 Cor 4:17; 11:16), he is 9:36;

1K
17:21;
Mk 5:35

the Jews caused me. ²⁰You know that I never held back from doing anything that could be useful for you; I spoke publicly and in your homes ²¹and I urged Jews and non-Jews alike to turn to God and believe in our Lord Jesus.

commend you to God and to his grace-filled word, which is able to make you grow and gain the inheritance that you shall share with all the saints.

³³I have not looked for anyone's silver, gold or clothing. ³⁴You yourselves know that these hands of mine have provided for both my needs and the needs of those who were with me. ³⁵In every way I have shown you that by working hard one must help the weak, remembering the words that the Lord Jesus himself said, 'Happiness lies more in giving than in receiving.'

³⁶After this discourse, Paul knelt down with them and prayed. ³⁷Then they all began to weep and threw their arms around him and kissed him. ³⁸They were deeply distressed because he had said that they would never see him again. And they went with him even to the ship.

On to Jerusalem

21 ¹When we had finally taken leave of them, we put out to sea and sailed straight to Cos, and the next day to Rhodes, and from there to Patara. ²There we found a ship that made for Phoenicia; we went aboard and set sail. ³We caught sight of Cyprus but passed it by on our left, as we continued on towards Syria. We landed at Tyre, where the ship had to unload cargo. ⁴There we found the disciples and stayed a week. Warned by the Spirit, they told Paul not to go to Jerusalem.

21:11

²²But now I am going to Jerusalem, chained by the Spirit, without knowing what will happen to me there. ²³Yet in every city the Holy Spirit warns me that imprisonment and troubles await me. ²⁴Indeed I put no value on my life, if only I can finish my race and complete the service to which I have been assigned by the Lord Jesus, to announce the good news of God's grace.

Phil 1:23;
3:12

²⁵I now feel sure that none of you among whom I have gone about proclaiming the kingdom of God will ever see me again. ²⁶Therefore I declare to you this day that my conscience is clear with regard to all of you. ²⁷For I have spared no effort in fully declaring to you God's will.

2Tim 4:7

²⁸Keep watch over yourselves and over the whole flock the Holy Spirit has placed into your care. Shepherd the Church of the Lord that he has won at the price of his own blood. ²⁹I know that after I leave, ruthless wolves will come among you and not spare the flock. ³⁰And from among you, some will arise corrupting the truth and inducing the disciples to follow them.

1P 2:25;
5:3;
Heb
13:20;
1P 2:9Mt 7:15;
Jn 10:12

³¹Be on the watch, therefore, remembering that for three years, night and day, I did not cease to warn everyone even with tears. ³²Now I

2Tim 4:2;
Gal 4:17

only thinking of the local communities who communicate among themselves and all accept without discussion the same faith and tradition of the apostles. Paul alludes to what awaits him: all that we can do is to follow Christ, who has acquired his Church by his own blood. Only in heaven will a leader of the Church find rest and retirement (20:32).

In verses 33-35 Paul takes up the resignation discourse of Samuel (1 S 12:3). How quickly can a person be self-serving and look after self in any apostolic work.

The text also mentions the "bishops" (that word means inspectors). We do not know if they are the elders themselves, or only some of them, those with greater responsibility.

•⁵ But when it was time, we departed and continued on our journey. All of them, wives and children included, came out of the city with us, and on the beach we knelt down and prayed.⁶ After that we said good-bye to one another; we boarded the ship and they returned home.

⁷ We continued our journey, sailing from Tyre to Ptolemais, where we greeted the brothers and sisters and spent a day with them.⁸ On the following day we left and came to Caesarea. There we entered the house of Philip the evangelist and we stayed with him. He was one of the Seven⁹ and had four unmarried daughters who were gifted with prophecy.

¹⁰ We were there some days when a prophet named Agabus came down from Judea. Coming to us, he took Paul's belt and bound his own feet and hands with it, saying,¹¹ Thus speaks the Holy Spirit: "This is how the Jews in Jerusalem will bind the owner of this belt and hand him over to the foreign power."

¹² When we heard this, we, together with these people of Caesarea, begged Paul not to go up to Jerusalem.¹³ Then he answered, "Why are you weeping and breaking my heart? For I am ready not only to be imprisoned but also to die in Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus."¹⁴ When he would not be persuaded, we gave up and said, "The Lord's will be done."

¹⁵ After this we got ready and went up to Jerusalem.¹⁶ With us were some of the disciples of Caesarea who brought us to the house of a Cypriot where we were to stay. He was called Mnason and was one of the early disciples.

doors of our reason that has already seemingly known everything.

A good number of Christians make fun of such happenings. They are free to believe or not: there are so many illusions and much charlatanism. All they have to do is to ask themselves whether or not they are systematically denying any divine manifestation in a world we believe we know well, through human experience. If God no longer has the right to intervene in a world given up to reason and the laws of science, how can there be a true and trustful communion with him?

That is important. Whoever renounces and gives self to God sees the Spirit becoming more and more active in her life, not through visions and marvels, but through silent inspiration. This becomes so habitual that a person cannot live without it and knows through experience that the inner inspiration is right even though reason suggests another way of acting. Such a person mistrusts her own projects and follows this spiritual instinct.

The primitive Church had its prophets, but always wanted community discernment to judge whether it was truly God's Spirit (1 Cor 14:29; 1 Thes 5:21; 1 Jn 4:1-3). The Bible already spoke of prophets who spoke without being sent, or dreamed what they wanted to dream (Jer 29:16). The account of the journey

• 21.5 Paul goes up to Jerusalem, and manifestations of the Spirit follow. Paul is warned that he should not go, and this happens when he himself leaves chained by the Spirit (20:22) that means without the possibility of making any other decision. It is the right moment to see how the Spirit of God is one with the spirit of the person he inspires: those who warn Paul know and declare that he will meet with trouble and they would not want it. Paul knows and he wants it. Today, such manifestations are not part of the ordinary experience of Christians, with the exception of certain charismatic groups. Yet on looking into the subject it would seem that many people do receive such warnings but attach little importance to them.

The Spirit passes through our spirit as does light through thick colored glass and takes its color. Many manifestations that certain people seek are current mainly in primitive religions, even the non-Christian: must we take it that they are the most desirable religious experiences? However, if the Spirit of God wills to use our parapsychological senses to let us feel his presence in this firmly closed fortress that we call "our own self" and where we pretend to be the only rulers, "Praise the Lord! Alleluia." Let him have us speak in tongues, laugh and cry, if such breaks the ice and opens the

20:36

11:28

Lk 18:32

20:24;
Lk 21:12

Paul is received by the Church of Jerusalem

• ¹⁷When we arrived in Jerusalem the brothers welcomed us warmly.

¹⁸The next day Paul went with us to James house where all the elders had gathered. ¹⁹After greeting them, Paul began telling them in detail everything God had done among the non-Jews through his ministry.

²⁰After hearing this, they all praised God, but they said, “You see, brother, how many thousands of Jews of Judea have come to believe, and all of them are zealous for the Law.”

²¹Yet they have heard that you teach the Jews who live in pagan nations to depart from Moses, telling them not to have their sons circumcised and to renounce Jewish customs. ²²We shall gather the assembly for, in any case, they will hear that you have arrived.

²³Then do as we tell you.

There are four men among us who have made a vow. ²⁴Take them and purify yourself along with them and pay the sacrifice for them to shave their heads. In that way everyone will know that there is nothing true in what they have been told about you, but that you go on keeping the Law.

²⁵As for the non-Jews who have become believers, we sent them a letter to tell them that they are only obliged not to eat meat offered to idols, or blood, or flesh of strangled animals; and also to avoid prohibited sexual union.”

²⁶So the next day Paul took the men; he purified himself with them and entered the Temple to give notice of what day the sacrifice would be offered for each of them to end his time of purification.

Paul is arrested in the Temple

• ²⁷When the seven days were almost over, some Jews from Asia, who saw Paul in the Temple, began to stir up the whole crowd. They helps us to get an idea of how these first communities welcomed brothers and sisters from other parts at a time when communication was limited. Besides, would there have been a Eucharistic celebration with these foreigners without at least asking about themselves and their Church? It was quite different when apostles or prophets were passing by for then they were granted manifestations of the Spirit, with a more developed knowledge of the Word, as well as news of the universal Church.

• 17. The Christians of Jewish origin praise Paul when he gets to Jerusalem but, at the same time, they humiliate him. There is a rumor among them that Paul, besides not imposing the Judaic Law on Christian converts from paganism, also suggests that the Jews abandon the Law. They asked him to prove his fidelity to the past by becoming godfather to a few believers who had made a fairly costly vow—because if Paul had come from the Greeks, he would have money and could pay well!

Those who insist are the elders working with James “the brother of the Lord”: all are Jews from Palestine who, in spite of their faith, are still attached to the customs of the Old Testament.

They point out the importance of the Jerusalem community: thousands of Jews in order to make their demands respected. They may still have been more numerous than the Christians in the pagan world: this was the inheritance of the past. Paul accepts for the sake of peace, but it will be his downfall.

• 27. There are several similarities between Paul’s arrest and Stephen’s a few years before (see 6:9). The Jews from Asia draw up several accusations: the most serious one being that Paul brought an “uncircumcised” man into the Temple; this profanation was punishable by death. This is the man who is spreading his teaching everywhere against our people, our law and this Sanctuary. There were similar accusations against Christ and Stephen.

This is a false accusation. Nevertheless, the Jews are not totally wrong: through his teachings, Paul forms Christians who replace the Temple worship with faith in Christ; they replace the Law with a life of obedience to the 11:2;

15:3

Gal 5:1Rom
2:15;
Gal 3:2218:18;
1Cor
9:20

15:19

20:4

seized him ²⁸ shouting, “Fellow Israelites, help! This is the man who is spreading his teaching everywhere against our people, our law and this Sanctuary. And now he has even brought non-Jews into the Temple area, defiling this Holy Place.” ²⁹For they thought they had seen him in the city with Trophimus, a Greek man from Ephesus and they supposed that Paul had introduced him into the temple.

³⁰Then turmoil spread through the whole city. People came running from all sides. They seized Paul and dragged him outside the Temple. At once the gates were shut.

³¹They would have killed him, had not a report reached the commander of the Roman troops that all of Jerusalem was rioting. ³²At once the commander took some officers and soldiers and rushed down to the crowd.

On seeing him with the soldiers, the crowd stopped beating Paul. ³³The commander went over to Paul, arrested him and ordered him to be bound with two chains; then he inquired who he was and what he had done. ³⁴But some in the crowd shouted one thing and others another. As the commander was unable to find out the facts because of the uproar, he ordered Paul to be brought to the fortress. ³⁵When Paul reached the steps, he actually had to be carried up by the soldiers because of the violence of the mob, ³⁶for a multitude of people followed shouting, Kill him!

³⁷Just as he was about to be taken inside, Paul said to the commander, “May I say something to you?” He replied, “So you speak Greek! ³⁸Are you not the Egyptian, then, who caused a riot some time ago and let a band of four thousand terrorists out into the desert?” Paul answered, ³⁹“I am a Jew, a citizen of Tarsus, a well-known city in Cilicia. I beg you, let me address these people.”

The commander agreed. ⁴⁰So Paul standing on the steps, motioned to the people with his hand and, when they were silent, he began to speak to them in Hebrew.

Paul addresses the Jews

22 • ¹“Brothers and fathers, listen to what I have to say to you in my defense.” ²When they heard him speaking to them in Hebrew, they became more quiet. So he went on.

³“I am a Jew, born in Tarsus in Cilicia, but brought up here in this city where I was educated in the school of Gamaliel, according to the strict observance of our Law. And I was dedicated to God’s service, as are all of you today. ⁴As for this way, I persecuted it to the point of death and arrested its followers, both men and women, throwing them into prison.

9: 26

7: 2

8: 3;
Gal 1: 14;
Phil 3: 6;
Rom 10: 2

Spirit and Jewish nationalism with universal Christian community.

The Roman troops occupying Jerusalem and seeking order were stationed in a fortress adjacent to the Temple and overlooking it. Thanks to this, the soldiers were able to intervene before Paul met the same fate as Stephen.

• 22.1 Paul here gives personal witness. He will stress he is still faithful to the religion of his fathers: but he has not been able to prevent Christ, the Lord, from imposing himself on him. Paul will quote Gamaliel (Acts 5:34); and then a Christian Jew very faithful to the Law, Ananias (v. 12). The crowd listens. The reaction comes when Paul says that the pagans will share the privileges of the Jews. The pagans: our enemies, impure people and enemies of God! The same affirmation had been decisive in the condemnation of Jesus (Mt 21:42).

⁵The High Priest and the whole Council of elders can bear witness to this. From them I received letters for the Jewish brothers in Damascus and I set out to arrest those who were there and bring them back to Jerusalem for punishment. ⁶But as I was traveling along, nearing Damascus, at about noon a great light from the sky suddenly flashed about me. ⁷I fell to the ground and heard a voice saying to me: 'Saul, Saul, why do you persecute me?' ⁸I answered: 'Who are you, Lord?' And he said to me: 'I am Jesus the Nazarean whom you persecute.' ⁹The men who were with me saw the light, but they did not understand the voice of the one who was speaking to me. ¹⁰I asked: 'What shall I do, Lord?' And the Lord replied: 'Get up and go to Damascus; there you will be told all that you are destined to do.' ¹¹Yet the brightness of that light had blinded me and so I was led by the hand into Damascus by my companions.

¹²There a certain Ananias came to me. He was a devout observer of the Law and well spoken of by all the Jews who were living there. ¹³As he stood by me, he said: 'Brother Saul, recover your sight.' At that moment I could see and I looked at him. ¹⁴He then said, 'The God of our ancestors has chosen you to know his will, to see the Just One and to hear the words from his mouth. ¹⁵From now on you shall be his witness before all the pagan peoples and tell them all that you have seen and heard. ¹⁶And now, why delay? Get up and be baptized and have your sins washed away by calling upon his Name.'

¹⁷On my return to Jerusalem I was praying in the Temple, when I fell into a trance ¹⁸and saw him. He spoke to me: 'Get ready to leave Jerusalem without delay, because they will not accept your testimony about me.' ¹⁹I answered: 'Lord, they know well that I imprisoned those who believed in you and had them beaten in every synagogue, ²⁰and while the blood of your witness Stephen was being poured out, I stood by and approved it and even guarded the cloaks of his murderers.' ²¹Then he said to me: 'Go, for I am sending you far away to the pagan nations.'"

²²Up to this point the crowd listened to Paul, but on hearing the last words, they began to shout, "Kill him! He does not deserve to live!" ²³They were screaming and waving their cloaks and throwing dust into the air. ²⁴So the commander ordered Paul to be brought inside the fortress and questioned after flogging, to find out why they made such an outcry against him.

²⁵But when the soldiers had strapped him down, Paul said to the officer standing there, "Is it legal to flog a Roman citizen without a trial?"

²⁶On hearing this the officer went to the commander and said, "What are you doing? That man is a Roman citizen." ²⁷So the commander came and asked him, "Tell me, are you a Roman citizen?" "Yes," answered Paul. ²⁸The commander then said, "It cost me a large sum of money to become a Roman citizen." Paul answered, "I am one by birth."

²⁹Then those who were about to question him backed away, and the commander himself was alarmed when he realized that he had put a Roman citizen in chains.

Paul appears before the Sanhedrin

³⁰The next day the commander wanted to know for certain the charges the Jews were making against Paul. So he released him from prison and called together the High Priest and the whole Council;

Jer 1:5

16:37

Gal 1:15

3:14;
7:525:21;
6:12;
Mt 10:17

and they brought Paul down and made him stand before them.

Pharisees acknowledge all these things.

⁹Then the shouting grew louder, and some teachers of the Law of the Pharisee party protested, "We find nothing wrong with this man. Maybe a spirit or an angel has spoken to him."

¹⁰With this the argument became so violent that the commander feared that Paul would be torn to pieces by them. He therefore ordered the soldiers to go down and rescue him from their midst and take him back to the fortress.

¹¹That night the Lord stood by Paul and said, "Courage! As you have borne witness to me here in Jerusalem, so must you do in Rome."

The plot to kill Paul

¹²When it was day, certain Jews formed a conspiracy: they bound themselves by an oath not to eat or drink until they had killed Paul. ¹³There were more than forty of them who joined in this conspiracy.

¹⁴They went to the high priests and the elders and said, "We have bound ourselves by oath not to taste food until we have killed Paul. ¹⁵Now then, it is up to you and the Council together to convince the Roman commander to bring him down to

2Cor
1:12

23 ¹Paul looked directly at the Council and said, "Brothers, to this day I have lived my life with a clear conscience before God." ²At that the High Priest Ananias ordered his attendants to strike him on the mouth. ³Then Paul said, "God is about to strike you, you whitewashed wall! You sit there to judge me according to the Law, and you break the Law by ordering me to be struck!" ⁴At this the attendants protested, "How dare you insult God's High Priest?" ⁵Paul answered, "Brothers, I did not know that he was the High Priest. For Scripture says: You shall not curse the ruler of your people."

Jn
18:22;
Mt 23:27

22:27;
Lev
19:15

5:17;
26:6;
Phil 3:5

⁶Paul knew that part of the Council were Sadducees and others Pharisees; so he spoke out in the Council, "Brothers, I am a Pharisee, son of a Pharisee. It is for the hope in the resurrection of the dead that I am on trial here."

⁷At these words, an argument broke out between the Pharisees and the Sadducees and the whole assembly was divided. ⁸For the Sadducees claim that there is neither resurrection, nor angels nor spirits, while the

Mk 12:18

18:9;
27:24

9:23

• 23.1 To understand the chapters dealing with Paul's trial we have to remember that justice in the Roman empire was very well organized. The supreme tribunal was in Rome: this was the Tribunal of Caesar, and Roman citizens fearing a mistrial in their province could appeal to the Tribunal of Caesar. There were governors (or procurators) who administered justice in each province. In the Jewish territory, the Romans who occupied the country kept the important cases for themselves, but they left the rest to the Jewish tribunals, especially religious affairs. Paul was to go through various tribunals, beginning with the Sanhedrin, or religious court of the Jews, all the way to the tribunal of Caesar.

Thus, through Paul, the words of Jesus entrusting to his apostles the mission of proclaiming him before Jewish and pagan authorities was to be fulfilled.

Paul tries to make the resurrection of Christ the theme of his declaration. There was a trial to condemn Jesus. Now, Paul tries to have the governors pay attention to the cause of the risen Jesus, and he succeeds.

In every age, such will be the zeal of the witnesses of Christ when they are accused: to demonstrate that they are not acting out of self-interest, nor from any human motive, but because they are the servants of Christ.

you on the pretext that you want to investigate his case more thoroughly. We, for our part, are prepared to kill him before he gets there.”

¹⁶But the son of Paul’s sister heard about the planned ambush, so he went to the headquarters and informed Paul. ¹⁷Paul sent for one of the officers and said, “Take this young man to the commander for he has something to report to him.”

¹⁸So the officer took him and brought him to the commander, saying, “The prisoner Paul called me and asked me to bring this boy to you because he has something to tell you.”

¹⁹The commander took him by the hand and drawing him aside asked him privately, “What is it that you have to report to me?” ²⁰The boy replied, “The Jews have agreed among themselves to ask you tomorrow to have Paul brought down to the Council as if to inquire more thoroughly about him. ²¹But do not be persuaded by them, for there are more than forty of them ready to ambush him, having bound themselves by an oath not to eat or drink until they have killed him. They are now ready to do it and are awaiting your decision.” ²²The commander let the boy go with this advice, “Do not tell anyone that you gave me this information.”

Paul is transferred to Caesarea

²³Then the commander summoned two of his officers and said to them, “Get ready to leave for Caesarea by nine o’clock tonight, with two hundred infantrymen, seventy horsemen and two hundred spearmen. ²⁴Provide horses also for Paul to ride, so that he may be brought safely to Felix the governor.”

²⁵He then wrote the governor a letter to this effect:

²⁶“Claudius Lysias greets the Most Excellent Governor Felix and communicates to him the following: ²⁷The Jews had arrested this man and were about to kill him when I intervened with my troops and took him out of their hands, since I knew he was a Roman citizen. ²⁸As I wanted to know what charge they had against him, I presented him before the Sanhedrin ²⁹and I discovered that the accusation related to matters of their Law, but there was nothing that deserved death or imprisonment. ³⁰When I was informed that the Jews had prepared a plot against this man, I decided to send him to you and told his accusers to present their complaints before you. Farewell.”

³¹The soldiers acted in accordance with these instructions. They took Paul and brought him to Antipatris by night. ³²On the following day, they returned to the fortress but the horsemen continued journeying with him. ³³Upon entering Caesarea they handed the letter to the governor and presented Paul to him. ³⁴When Felix had read the letter, he asked Paul from which province he was, and when he learned that Paul was from Cilicia, ³⁵he said to him: I shall hear your accusers when they come. And he ordered that he be kept in custody in the palace of Herod.

The case before Felix

24 ¹After five days Ananias the High Priest came down to Caesarea with some of the elders and a lawyer named Tertullus. And they presented their case against Paul before the governor. ²Paul was called in and Tertullus accused him in this way:

³“Most Excellent Felix, thanks to you—your labors and your wise reforms—our people now enjoy great peace. We accept all this in every way and in every place, and we are totally grateful to you. ⁴So as not to take more of your time, I beg you to listen briefly to us with your usual kindness. ⁵We have found that this man is a pest, he creates division among the Jews throughout the world and is a leader of the Nazarene sect. ⁶He even tried to profane the Temple, so we seized him. We would have judged him according to our law, ⁷but Lysias the commandant intervened in a very violent way and took him from us. ⁸Then he declared that his accusers must present themselves before you. By examining him yourself, you will learn from him about all that we accuse him of.”

18:14

Lk 23:15

⁹The Jews confirmed this, firmly maintaining that all this was so.

¹⁰Then the governor motioned to Paul who said:

“As I know that you have administered this nation for many years, I make my defense with much confidence. ¹¹You yourself can ascertain that not more than twelve days ago I went up to Jerusalem to worship, ¹²and that they did not find me disputing with anyone or inciting the people, either in the Temple or in the synagogues or in the city. ¹³So they cannot prove the things of which they now accuse me.

¹⁴But this I admit before you, that I serve the God of our ancestors according to the Way that they call a sect. I believe everything written in the Law and in the Prophets, ¹⁵and I have the same hope in God that they have, that there will be a resurrection of the dead, both the good and the sinners. ¹⁶So I strive always to have a clear conscience before God and before people.

¹⁷After many years, I came to bring help to those of my nation and to offer sacrifices. ¹⁸On that occasion, they found me in the Temple; I had been purified according to the Law and there was no crowd or commotion. Yet all began with some Jews from Asia ¹⁹who ought to be here before you to accuse me, if they have anything against me. ²⁰Let these men say what crime they found in me when I stood before the Sanhedrin, ²¹unless it was for having declared in a loud voice when I was before them: ‘Today I am being judged on account of the resurrection of the dead.’”

²²Felix who was well-informed about the Way, postponed the case and said to them, “When the commandant, Lysias, comes down, I will examine the case thoroughly.” ²³So he ordered the captain to keep Paul under guard, giving him certain liberty and without preventing his friends from attending to him.

²⁴After some days, Felix came with his wife Drusilla who was a Jew. He sent for Paul and let him speak about faith in Christ. ²⁵But when Paul spoke about justice, self-control and the future judgment, Felix was frightened and he said to him: “You may leave now; I shall send for you some other time.” ²⁶Felix was hoping that Paul would give him money, so he sent for him often and conversed with him.

²⁷Two years passed, and Felix was succeeded by Porcius Festus; and as Felix wanted to remain on good terms with the Jews, he left Paul in prison.

The trial before Festus

25 ¹Three days after Festus arrived in the province, he went up from Caesarea to Jerusalem. ²There the chief priests and the elders accused Paul again. ³In a very hypocritical way, they asked as a favor from Festus that Paul be brought

17:6;
24:14;
28:22

9:2

17:32;
Mk 6:17

21:26

23:6

12:3

to Jerusalem; but they were planning to kill him on the way. ⁴Festus answered that Paul was under custody in Caesarea and, as he himself had to go there shortly, he added, ⁵Let those of you who have the authority go down with me to Caesarea, and if this man has done anything wrong, let them accuse him.”

⁶Festus did not stay in Jerusalem for more than eight or ten days, and then he went to Caesarea. The next day, he took his seat on the tribunal and sent for Paul. ⁷When Paul arrived, the Jews who came from Jerusalem stood around him and presented many serious charges that they could not prove. ⁸Paul defended himself from all these saying, “I have not committed any offense against the Law of the Jews, or against the Temple or against Caesar.”

Lk 23:14

24:14

⁹Then Festus, who wanted to please the Jews, asked Paul: “Do you wish to go up to Jerusalem to be tried before me?” ¹⁰Paul answered, “I am on trial before Caesar’s tribunal; here I have to be tried. I have done no wrong to the Jews; you yourself know this very well. ¹¹If I have committed any crime which deserves death, I accept death. But if I have not done anything of which they accuse me, no one can give me up to them. I appeal to Caesar.”

¹²So Festus, after conferring with his council, answered, “You have appealed to Caesar. To Caesar you shall go.”

¹³Some days later King Agrippa and his sister Bernice arrived in Caesarea to greet Festus. As they were to stay there several days, Festus told the king about Paul’s case and said to him,

¹⁴“We have here a man whom Felix left as a prisoner. ¹⁵When I was in Jerusalem, the chief priests and the elders of the Jews accused him and asked me to sentence him. ¹⁶I told them that it is not the custom of the Romans to hand over a man without giving him an opportunity to defend himself in front of his accusers. ¹⁷So they came and I took my seat without delay on the tribunal and sent for the man.

¹⁸When the accusers had the floor, they did not accuse him of any of the crimes that I was led to think he had committed; ¹⁹instead they quarreled with him about religion and about a certain Jesus who has died but whom Paul asserted to be alive. ²⁰I did not know what to do about this case, so I asked Paul if he wanted to go to Jerusalem to be tried there. ²¹But Paul appealed to be judged by the emperor. So I ordered that he be kept in custody until I send him to Caesar.” ²²Agrippa said to Festus: “I would like to hear that man.” Festus answered him: “Tomorrow you shall.”

²³On the following day, Agrippa and Bernice arrived with great ceremony and entered the audience hall with the commanders and the elders of the city. Festus ordered that Paul be brought in and said:

²⁴“King Agrippa and all here present, here you see this man about whom the whole community of the Jews came to see me, in Jerusalem as well as here, protesting loudly that he must not live. ²⁵I, for my part, am convinced that he has not done anything that deserves death. But after he appealed to be judged by the emperor, I decided to send him on. ²⁶Well, if I have no definite information, what can I write to Caesar about him? Therefore I present him before all of you, and especially before you, King Agrippa, that you may examine him and that I may know what to write. ²⁷For it seems absurd to me to send a prisoner without indicating the charges against him.”

Paul's speech before King Agrippa

26 • Agrippa said to Paul: "You may speak in your own defense." So Paul stretched out his hand and began in this way:

²"King Agrippa, you have just heard about the accusations of the Jews. I consider myself fortunate in having the opportunity to defend myself against all this before you today, ³for you are an expert in the customs of the Jews and their disputes. Therefore I beg you to listen to me patiently.

⁴All the Jews know how I have lived from my youth, how I have lived among my own people and in Jerusalem. ⁵They have always known me and they can tell you, if they wish, that I have lived as a Pharisee in the most rigorous sect of our religion. ⁶If I am now tried here, it is because of the hope I have in the promise made by God to our ancestors. ⁷The hope of attaining this promise is behind the fervent worship that our twelve tribes render to God night and day. Yet now, O king, the Jews accuse me for this hope! ⁸But why refuse to believe that God raises the dead?

⁹I myself in the beginning thought that I had to use all possible means to counteract the Name of Jesus of Nazareth. ¹⁰This I did in Jerusalem and, with the authorization of the chief priests, I put in prison many who believed; and I cast my vote when they were condemned to death.

¹¹I went round the synagogues and multiplied punishments against them to force them to renounce their faith; such was my rage against them that I pursued them even to foreign cities.

¹²With this purpose in mind I went to Damascus with full authority and commissioned by the chief priests.

¹³On the way, O King, at midday I saw a light from heaven, more brilliant than the sun, that dazzled me and those who accompanied me.

¹⁴We all fell to the ground and I heard a voice saying to me in Hebrew: Saul, Saul, why do you persecute

Rom
4:17;
Heb
11:19

9; 22

• 26.1 Paul did not have the best audience for his speech: an operetta king, Agrippa, to whom the Roman governor, the real authority, wishes to make a gesture; the famous Bernice, sister of Agrippa, who is his concubine before going off to make other conquests; and then all those who have come for a moment of relaxation before the cocktail, including the Roman officers who know very little of the religious quarrels among Jews. So we have a third account of Paul's conversion (see chaps. 9 and 22). This time, Paul shows his conversion is not surprising: he has found what God had for so long promised his people: the resurrection of the dead.

I asked them to repent. It is precisely what the prophets said. It was not enough to proclaim oneself a Jew; all had to convert. And here, Paul speaks openly before this audience who are not outstanding in their moral virtue, except perhaps the Roman Festus.

That the Messiah would rise from the dead. Here again is the decisive point. Paul questions the religion of many Christians who, according to polls accept Christ as Word of God but do not believe in the resurrection. Something beyond death? Perhaps... "I am not like those who think they know everything, I'm searching..." Precisely, as long as we are searching we have not taken the leap of faith. To accept Christ, is to renounce the totalitarian reason with its proven truths. Reason is at home in science but shortsighted in the face of essential truths. As long as there is no belief in the resurrection, there is no understanding of human destiny: a person may be educated, have a religious culture but be unable to grasp the truth. Even if the words of St. Anselm shock us, they are true: "Believe in order to understand."

Paul is not so preoccupied about defending himself as he is about convincing others: Agrippa and Festus are people like everyone else and they need Christ. Festus is amazed by Paul's biblical background and his enthusiasm: Agrippa, moved, says nothing. In fact, if they have been impressed, uneasiness will soon pass: "serious matters" will again take up their time.

me? In vain do you kick against the goad.'

¹⁵I answered: 'Who are you, Lord?' And the Lord said: 'I am Jesus whom you persecute. ¹⁶Get up now and stand on your feet. I have revealed myself to you to make you servant and witness to what I have just shown you and to what I will show you later on. ¹⁷I will rescue you from all evil that may come from your own people or from the pagans to whom I am sending you. ¹⁸For you shall open their eyes that they may turn from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan to God; and, through faith in me, may obtain forgiveness of their sins and a place among those who are sanctified.'

¹⁹Since that time, King Agrippa, I did not stray from this heavenly vision; ²⁰on the contrary, I began preaching first to those in Damascus, then to those in Jerusalem and throughout Judea, and then to the pagan nations, that they should repent and turn to God, showing the fruits of true conversion. ²¹I was carrying out this mission when the Jews arrested me in the Temple and tried to kill me. But with the help of God, I still stand here today to give my testimony both to the great and the small.

²²I do not teach anything other than what Moses and the Prophets announced beforehand: ²³the Messiah had to die, and after being the first to be raised from the dead, he would proclaim the light to his people as well as to all nations.'

²⁴As Paul came to this point of his defense, Festus said in a loud voice: "Paul, you are mad; your great learning has deranged your mind!" ²⁵But Paul answered: "I am not mad, Most Excellent Festus, but everything I have said is reliable and true. ²⁶The king is acquainted with all these things, so to him I speak with such confidence. I am convinced that he knows everything about this case, for these things did not happen in a dark corner. ²⁷King Agrippa, do you believe the Prophets? I know that you do."

²⁸Agrippa said to him: "You almost believe that you have already made me a Christian!" ²⁹Paul answered him: "Whether little or more, I would that not only you but all who hear me this day may come to be as I am—except for these chains."

³⁰Then the king rose and, with him, the governor, Bernice and all the attendants. ³¹When they went out they talked among themselves and said: "This man has done nothing to deserve death or imprisonment." ³²And Agrippa said to Festus: "Had he not appealed to Caesar, he could have been set free."

Departure for Rome

27 ¹When it was decided that we should sail for Italy, they handed over Paul and the other prisoners into the care of an officer of the Augustan battalion, named Julius. ²We boarded a ship of Adramyttium bound for the Asian coasts, and we left accompanied by Aristarchus, a Macedonian from the city of Thessalonica. ³We arrived at Sidon on the next day. Julius was very kind to Paul, letting him visit his friends and be cared for by them. ⁴From there, we sailed along the sheltered coast

Is 42:6;
Jer 1:5

20:32;
Col 1:12

9:27;
Lk 3:8

19:21;
23:11

13:47;
Lk 2:32;
24:46;
1Cor
15:20;
Col 1:18

19:29;
20:4

24:23;
28:16

• 27.1 Paul is taken to Rome with a group of prisoners. It is not difficult for us to imagine that even if the officer shows him much consideration his situation is not all comfort. This officer has his own authority besides that of the ship's captain: the soldiers know that if a prisoner should escape, his guard would be executed (see 12:19 and 27:42). This account is of Cyprus, because the winds were against us. ⁵We sailed across the seas off Cilicia and Pamphylia and arrived at Myra in Lycia. ⁶There the captain found a ship from Alexandria sailing for Italy and made us board it.

⁷We sailed slowly for several days, and arrived with great difficulty at Cnidus. As the wind did not allow us to enter that port, we sailed for the shelter of Crete with the Cape of Salmone within sight. ⁸We turned with difficulty and arrived at a place called Good Ports, near the city of Lasea.

⁹Time passed and the crossing began to be dangerous: we had already celebrated the feast of the Fast. ¹⁰Then Paul said to them: "Friends, I believe that it would not be very wise to proceed with our crossing for we could lose not only the cargo and the ship but also our lives." ¹¹But the Roman officer relied more on the ship's captain and the owner of the ship than on the words of Paul. ¹²And as the port was not suitable for wintering, the majority agreed to set out from there in the hope of reaching the harbor of Crete called Phoenix, overlooking Africa and Choros, where they could spend the winter.

Storm and shipwreck

¹³Then the south wind began to blow and they thought that they had gained their purpose; they weighed anchor and sailed along the island of Crete. ¹⁴But a little later, a strong wind called "the northeaster" swept down on them, from across the island. ¹⁵The ship was dragged along and could not face the wind, so that we remained adrift.

¹⁶As we were crossing under the lee of the small island of Cauda, we managed—but with effort—to secure the lifeboat. ¹⁷After lifting it aboard, they used cables to undergird the hull, and since we feared running aground on the sands of Syrtis, they lowered the sea anchor. So we continued to be dragged along.

¹⁸The storm lashed at us so strongly that on the next day they began throwing the cargo overboard. ¹⁹On the third day the sailors with their own hands threw out the ship's gear. ²⁰For several days neither the sun nor the stars could be seen, and the tempest had not subsided: we lost all hope of saving ourselves.

²¹As we had not eaten for days, Paul stood up among them and said: "Friends, if you had followed my advice when I told you not to set sail from Crete, we would not be in such danger now, and we could have avoided this loss. ²²But now I invite you to regain courage for no one among you shall die; only the ship shall be destroyed. ²³Last night there appeared to me an angel of my God to whom I serve, ²⁴and he said to me: 'Paul, do not be afraid, you must present yourself before Caesar's tribunal, and God has guaranteed you the life of all those who sail with you.'

²⁵Have courage, therefore, my friends, for I trust in God that it will be just as he told me. ²⁶But we have to run aground on some island."

²⁷Near midnight on the fourteenth night, as we were drifting in the Adriatic Sea, the sailors suspected that a very interesting document on navigation in the Mediterranean at that time. Luke has given plentiful details: what a contrast with the account of Jonah and the tempest, written doubtless by someone who had never sailed. It is obvious that Paul was familiar with this kind of journeying: in 2 Corinthians 11:25, he states having been shipwrecked three times. Paul's inner strength stands out in the description of the storm: Paul knows he is to testify before the tribunal of the emperor.

9:15;
18:9;
Mt 10:18

land was near. ²⁸They measured the depth of the water and it was thirty-seven meters. After a while, they measured it again and it was twenty-seven meters. ²⁹They feared that we might hit some rocks, so they cast out four anchors from the stern and waited anxiously for morning. ³⁰Then the sailors tried to escape from the ship under the pretext of extending the cables of the anchors from the bow, so they lowered the lifeboat into the sea. ³¹But Paul said to the captain and to the soldiers: "If they leave the ship, you cannot be saved." ³²So the soldiers cut the mooring cables of the boat and let it fall.

³³As they waited for dawn, Paul urged everyone: "For fourteen days you have not eaten anything because of anxious waiting. ³⁴I ask you to eat now if you want to live; be sure that not even a hair of your head will be lost." ³⁵Having said this, he took bread, gave thanks to God in everybody's presence, broke it and began to eat. ³⁶All were encouraged and they too ate. ³⁷They were two hundred and seventy-six persons in all. ³⁸When they had eaten enough, they threw the wheat into the sea to lighten the boat.

³⁹When morning came, they did not recognize the land but noticed a bay with a beach, so they decided to run the ship aground, if possible. ⁴⁰They cast off the anchors and left them in the sea; at the same time, they loosened the ropes of the rudders, hoisted the foresail to the wind and headed for the beach. ⁴¹But they struck a sandbank and the ship ran aground. The bow stuck and was immovable, while the stern was broken up by the violent waves.

⁴²The soldiers then planned to kill the prisoners for fear that some of them might escape by swimming. ⁴³But the captain, who wished to save Paul, did not allow them to do this. He ordered those who knew how to swim, to be the first to jump into the water and head for the shore, ⁴⁴and the rest to hold on to planks or pieces of the ship. So all of us reached land safe and sound.

On Malta

28 ¹After being saved, we learned that the island was called Malta. ²The natives were very cordial. They lit a big bonfire and took good care of us all, since it was raining and cold.

³Paul gathered a bundle of dried twigs and as he threw them into the fire, a viper suddenly came out because of the heat and entwined itself around his hand. ⁴When the natives saw the viper hanging from his hand, they said to one another: "Surely this man is a murderer: he has barely escaped from the raging sea, yet divine justice will not allow him to live."

⁵But Paul shook off the viper into the fire and did not suffer any harm. They waited to see him swell and die; ⁶but after observing him for a while they saw that nothing happened to him, so they changed their minds and began to say that he was a god.

⁷Near this place was an estate owned by the head of the island, named Publius. For three days this man welcomed us hospitably. ⁸It so 12:19;

16:272Cor
11:26

Mt 10:30

Lk 10:19;
Mk 16:18

12:22

• 28.1 Paul almost perished at sea; on approaching the shore he narrowly escaped being butchered by his guards, and then the episode of the viper: see the promises of Jesus in Mark 16:17-18. Note the first gesture of Paul on arriving at a place the Gospel had not yet reached: he will heal the sick in the name of Christ. Would that he come and do the same in our peripheral urban areas where it seems, the Church has not yet disembarked.

Lk 4:40;
Jas 5:14

happened that his father was in bed with fever and dysentery. Paul went to see him; he prayed and laid his hands on him and healed him. ⁹Because of this, the rest of the sick people on the island came to see him and were cured. ¹⁰So they showered us with kindness, and on our departure they provided us with everything we needed.

From Malta to Rome

¹¹After three months, we boarded a ship that had spent the winter at the island. It belonged to an Alexandrian company and carried the figurehead of Castor and Pollux as insignia. ¹²We sailed for Syracuse, staying there for three days ¹³and, after circling the coast, we arrived at Rhegium. On the following day, a south wind began to blow, and at the end of two days we arrived at Puteoli, ¹⁴where we found some of our brothers who invited us to stay with them for a week. And that was how we came to Rome.

¹⁵There the brothers and sisters had been informed of our arrival and came out to meet us as far as the Appian Forum and the Three Taverns. When Paul saw them, he gave thanks to God and took courage.

¹⁶Upon our arrival in Rome, the captain turned the prisoners over to the military governor but permitted Paul to lodge in a private house with the soldier who guarded him.

Paul meets the Jews in Rome

¹⁷After three days, Paul called together the leaders of the Jews. When they had gathered, he said to them: “Brothers, though I have not done anything against our people or against the traditions of our fathers, I was arrested in Jerusalem and handed over to the Romans. ¹⁸They examined me and wanted to set me free, for they saw nothing in my case that deserved death. ¹⁹But the Jews objected, so I was forced to appeal to Caesar without the least intention of bringing any case against my own people. ²⁰Therefore, I have asked to see you and speak with you, since it is because of the hope of Israel that I bear these chains.”

26:6

²¹They answered: “We have not received any letter about you from Judea, and none of the brothers who have come from there have brought any message or said anything against you. ²²But we wish to hear from you what you think, although we know already that everywhere people speak against this sect that you belong to.”

²³They set a day for him and came in great numbers to his lodging. So Paul explained everything he wanted to tell them regarding the

Lk 24:27;
24:44

• 11. When they get to Rome, Paul is treated fairly well. Instead of being put in jail, he is allowed to stay in the city, handcuffed (with his right arm tied to the left arm of the guard).

• 17. In Rome, Paul immediately wants to meet the authorities of the Jewish community. At this particular time, even if Judaism generally rejected Christian preaching, there had been no official condemnation. Christianity was for them a “sect,” a group, such as Pharisaism or the Essenes. Aware of how news traveled from one community to another in the Jewish world, Paul wanted to make the first move.

For him, it is important not to be considered as a traitor to his country for accusing the Jewish authorities. He is even more anxious to openly attack the refusal to believe in Jesus. The Christian community has already done what it could do among the Jews in Rome but he wants to strike harder.

Luke wished to end his book with the account of this meeting. Here Paul repeats almost all that he said when he first preached at Antioch of Pisidia (13:46-47); the Gospel is to be first preached to the Jews, but if they reject it, that will not prevent the word of God being proclaimed to all the nations.

kingdom of God and tried to convince them concerning Jesus, taking the Law of Moses and the Prophets as his starting point. This continued from morning till night. ²⁴Some were convinced by his words, others were not. ²⁵Finally the Jews left, still arguing strongly among themselves; and Paul sent them away with this statement: "What the Holy Spirit said has come true, when he spoke to your ancestors through the prophet Isaiah:

17:4;
18:6

Is 6:9-10;
Mt 13:14;
Jn 12:40

²⁶*Go to this people and say to them: However much you hear, you will not understand; you will see and see again but not perceive.*

²⁷*The heart of this people has grown hard; they have covered their ears and closed their eyes, lest they should see with their eyes and hear with their ears, lest their spirit understand, and I should heal them.*

• ²⁸Let it be known to you that this salvation of God has been sent to the pagans: they will listen."

13:45;
18:6;
Is 40:5

³⁰Paul stayed for two whole years in a house he himself rented, where he received without any hindrance all those who came to see him. ³¹He proclaimed the kingdom of God and taught the truth about Jesus Christ, the Lord, quite openly and without any hindrance.

2Tim 2:9;
Mt 28:20

• 28. This salvation of God has been sent to the pagans: This is one of Luke's favorite themes. It had been announced in the prophecy to Simeon (Lk 2:30) and this theme marked the beginning of the ministry of Jesus (Lk 3:6).

Paul stayed for two whole years in a house, that is to say, in semi-captivity. This was the time set by the law for preventive detentions. Therefore, it is most likely that everything ended up in a dismissal. Some claim that it was then that Paul was condemned to death. Luke would have had no reason to keep it quiet and even less, to hint at a change of residence.

Without any hindrance. That is the last word: the Gospel has gone out to conquer and nothing will stop it (Rev 6:2).

PAGE 1652 – BLANK

The Letters of PAUL

From the beginning the churches took care to preserve the letters they received from the Apostles, since in them they had authoritative witnesses to the faith. It was more difficult then than it is today to gather these documents, and even save the perishable material of papyrus from dampness.

Before long, there was an initial collection of the first seven epistles arranged in the order of decreasing length: the four “great” letters to the Romans, to the Corinthians and to the Galatians, and “the letters from captivity”. Others came to be added: first, those to the Thessalonians which are actually the oldest; and then those that were passed on under the patronage of Paul: the letters to Timothy and Titus which were written some twenty or thirty years later, and the beautiful letter to the Hebrews, written most likely under the influence of Paul but by an unknown author. A phrase from the “second letter of Peter” (not written by himself but about fifty years after his death) is evidence that from this time the letters of Paul were counted among the inspired Writings (2 P 3:15-16).

Paul saw himself as “the apostle to the pagan nations”, seeing there his personal vocation beside Peter (to whom God had confided the charge of evangelizing the Jewish world) not only in Palestine, but also throughout the Roman Empire, wherever they were established. Paul received this mission from Jesus himself at the time of his conversion (Acts 22:21; Gal 2:7); so highly fundamental was it in the divine project of the mission and extension of the Church that it remained unfinished at the time of his death. The spirit of Paul, one of the great manifestations of the spirit of Jesus, is always at work in our midst through his letters.

LETTER TO THE ROMANS

Jesus presented himself as the Savior. First of all he wanted to save the Jewish people. He spoke to them of the kingdom and they understood that God would reign over them just as he would reign in their lives. Their collective aspirations were not unknown to him, but he oriented them towards a more universal mission: it was truly “good news” for them.

With the beginning of the mission into Roman territory the Gospel had equally to be good news for the Greeks of the Roman Empire who were listening to the word of the apostles. Protected by solid structures that no-one questioned, they did not share the Jewish longing for liberation. In absorbing them the Roman Empire had practically reduced to nothing the pride and ambitions of nations great and small, leaving a void for religious concerns to take root. These people were interested in all that related to the human person and searched high and low in a jumble of doctrines and religions as a means of escaping Fate. So it was essential to speak to them of Christ, as the one who unravels our contradictions and gives us life.

In this letter to the Christians of Rome, capital of the Empire, Paul intends to respond to the concerns of the Greeks but without thereby neglecting the Jews.

The Letter to the Romans is for the most part a long exposition about Christian vocation. To us it will seem difficult, because that is what it is. It must be remembered that Paul’s teaching does not stem from a doctrinal system or from a theology: rather it constantly springs from his own experience. The encounter with the Risen Christ, the call made to Paul that put him at the service of the Gospel, the long experience as an apostle, the gifts of the Spirit acting in him and constant communion with Jesus: these were the sources of his vision of faith.

So Paul spoke of God’s salvation as if forgetful of the explosive Palestinian context where Jewish nationalism was at grips with the Romans and where all religious hopes were politicized. God’s salvation is the salvation of the human race, a total project, but taking place in the heart of people; all will depend on our response to God’s call: can we trust him?

Paul, marked by his own history, presents the beginning of faith as dramatic conversion. People are slaves to Sin (it would be necessary to understand what Paul means by that).

We have been created to share the life of God, and as long as we do not achieve this we carry within ourselves a conscious or unconscious rebellion against God. Must we turn towards religion? We would gain very little, says Paul, with insistence that will shock many people: as long as we believe in becoming “good” through religious practices we turn our back on the only power that can free us: God’s merciful love. The only response he expects from us is our act of faith, a faith which immediately frees us.

This salvation is the one announced by the Bible, but it will disconcert those believers who do not go beyond religious practices. These belong to a first stage of sacred history that ended with Jesus’ death. Our baptism gives us entrance to a mysterious world which is no other than the Risen Christ: from now on we are “in Christ”, and living by his Spirit. The gift of the Spirit opens a new era where all is inspired by the law of love, for those who have become true sons and daughters of God.

Why Did Paul Send This Letter?

Paul had decided to leave the Eastern provinces of the empire and to reach its very heart, that is to say, Rome (Rom 15:23). But others had established and formed that community, Peter for sure, and many others who are unknown. These Christians already had their own ways and their customs. Some of them had heard comments that did not predispose them favorably toward Paul and his methods. Therefore, it is understandable that Paul wanted to prepare his coming. He may have been thinking even more about the Jerusalem Christians who were spreading rumors and slandering him (Acts 21:21). Before Paul went to Rome, he had to go to Jerusalem to bring the proceeds of the collection taken in the Greek communities for the poor of Jerusalem. Paul was not too sure of being welcomed as a brother (Rom 15:31). So, he sent this letter to Rome, knowing that it would quickly reach Jerusalem. In this letter, Paul dwells on the complementary vocation of the Jews and the pagans.

His calls for mutual understanding, that make up the content of chapters 13–15 of this letter, were important concerns of Paul at the time. Even if he addressed the Jewish community of Jerusalem in a special way, his remarks were not out of place in Rome. There, like everywhere, it was not easy to gather Jews and converted pagans in the same community. Paul was already preaching what we fail to put into practice, namely, to accept one another with our differences.

Paul probably sent this letter from Corinth in the winter of 57–58.

The Letter to the Romans in the Church

It is now impossible to speak of the letter to the Romans without saying at least a word on the place it has held and continues to hold in Protestant Churches. It has been considered by many as the key to the interpretation of the whole bible.

It is known that Luther deepened the Reformation by commenting on this epistle. He was not wrong in seeing in this letter the condemnation of a Church established in the world, where faith had been degraded, becoming no more than practice devoid of faith which saves. The Christianity of the Middle Ages was in fact a people, rather like what the people of Israel had become. A person was a Christian by birth and continued to be one; he/she could be a believer, but as one is in any culture whatever. It was thought that salvation was gained by religious rites and by the practice of good deeds that merited heaven.

It was therefore very important to remember that faith is at the heart of every conversion, and that this conversion is the response to a freely given call from God. This letter emphasizes Christ the Savior and this emphasis was sufficient to devalue the whole religious system which at the time was crushed by tradition and devotions. There was faith, at a time when preaching rarely touched on anything other than morality with its catalogues of moral principles. There was the word of God directed towards the individual person at a time when people were quite happy to trust Church leaders. It was then, a radical criticism of the Church which ended up looking at itself instead of turning towards God, and of a Church whose whole system—political, doctrinal and repressive, blocked the horizon.

We have said, however, that this letter had its roots in Paul's experience as a Jew, a Pharisee and as an apostle called directly by Christ. It is from that point that Paul spoke of sin and justification, of call, of salvation through faith. For their part, Luther and his contemporaries read this letter against the backdrop of their own problems—or better—of their anguish.

They magnified the perspective of sin and eternal condemnation, victims of a philosophy (nominalism) in which nothing was good or bad in itself but only if God declares it so. Because of that, everything Paul said about predestination of the Jewish people was interpreted by them as a personal predestination to heaven or hell.

When Paul spoke of justification—a word which at that time had a large and imprecise meaning—he meant that God re-establishes in us an order which is the true one; they understood instead that, if we believe, God will accept us even if nothing has been changed in us. The great perspectives of humankind and history as a battlefield of sin and grace, were reduced to a personal problem: am I really free or am I enslaved to sin or grace. Taking literally Paul's images and comparisons, a doctrine of original sin was developed in which we all pay now and forever, for the sin of our first ancestors.

Several generations of protestants and catholics have been marked by these controversies: salvation through faith alone, or through faith and works, or through faith, works and sacraments? The love of the Father who saves and of Christ the Savior were eclipsed in fact by an obsession for salvation: how can I escape from this rigid frame in which God confines me? The concept of a just God, of inexorable decisions, which so easily condemns people into hell would traumatize the West and prepare a revolt in the next centuries, that of militant atheism.

It is not pointless for us today to know this. We are all children of our time and the remedy, if we do not wish to be enslaved, is to not give over-importance to one biblical text to the detriment of others. When you have become familiar with Paul and first with the letter to the Romans you see that for him the Father of Jesus is really father, and passionately loved. Thousands of details are to be discovered in Paul that disclose his experience of a continual communion and a life "in" the Triune God, an experience very close to that of St. John.

That will not prevent us from finding in this letter just what Luther, after St. Augustine, saw there: a genial presentation of the mystery of humanity redeemed by Christ. There is a certain forgetfulness perhaps of this letter and of this doctrine which too often has allowed Catholics to hem themselves in by their practices and their sacraments, and neglect mission.

1 • ¹From Paul, a servant of Jesus Christ, an apostle called and set apart for God’s Good News, ²the very promises he foretold through his prophets in the sacred Scriptures, ³regarding his Son, who was born in the flesh a descendant of David, ⁴and has been recognized as the Son of God endowed with Power, upon rising from the dead through the Holy Spirit. Through him, Jesus Christ, our Lord, ⁵and for the sake of his Name, we received grace and mission in all the nations, for them to accept the faith. ⁶All of you, the elected of Christ, are part of them, you, the beloved of God in Rome, called to be holy: ⁷May God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ, give you grace and peace.

1Cor 1:1;
Gal 1:1

Is 52:7;
61:1;
Mk 1:1;
1:14

Phi 2:9;
1P 1:21;
1Cor 3:10;
Gal 2:8

Eph 1:14;
6:17

19:5;
1Cor 1:2;
1P 2:9

16:26
1P 3:18;
2Tim 2:8;
Acts 2:33;

1Cor 9:19

Paul longs to visit them

⁸First of all, I give thanks to my God through Jesus Christ for all of you, because your faith is spoken of all over the world. ⁹And God, whom I serve in spirit by announcing the Good News of his Son, is my witness that I remember you in my prayers at all times. ¹⁰I pray constantly that, if it is his will, he make it possible for me to visit you. ¹¹I long to see you and share some spiritual blessings with you to strengthen you. ¹²In that way, we will encourage each other by sharing our common faith.

¹³You must know, brothers and sisters, that many times I have made plans to go to you, but till now I have been prevented. ¹⁴I would like to harvest some fruits among you, as I have done among other nations. Whether Greeks or foreigners, cultured or ignorant, I feel under obligation to all. ¹⁵Hence my eagerness to proclaim the gospel also to you who are in Rome.

12:1;
15:16

1The 3:2

• 1.1 Paul, an apostle called and set apart for God’s Good News. Paul speaks of the Gospel three times in this paragraph. In his time the word Gospel, which signifies Good News, conveyed the meaning of victory. Paul presents himself as one announcing the liberating message given to all humankind.

What is Paul’s Gospel? He develops it briefly in the following lines. The Son of God has come down to earth and after sharing our common condition, has through his Resurrection, taken possession of the Glory due to him.

An apostle called and set apart... (v. 1). The twelve apostles were selected by Jesus and confirmed in their mission by the Holy Spirit at Pentecost. Here Paul reminds us that he himself was made an apostle by Jesus, who met him on the road to Damascus.

Recognized as the Son of God (v. 4). Another possible translation: constituted, or designated as Son of God. That does not mean that Jesus was not the Son of God before his resurrection, but he was so really one of us that nothing of his divinity showed. On the day of the resurrection, the Spirit of God “invaded” his human nature: from now on he is present and active in our history as the Son of God.

Paul usually reserves the term “God” for God the Father, fountain of the divine being, from whom all divine initiatives originate. The Father communicates his life to the Son. The Son, for his part, reflects this life back to the Father in such a way that they mutually generate the Holy Spirit. The whole vocation of a Christian is rooted in this life of God, and that is why Paul constantly mentions the names of the three divine Persons.

We will encourage each other by sharing our common faith (v. 12). The apostle, as well as the believer, needs to share anxieties, hopes and a common faith. The Church is a fellowship and in order to develop our Christian life, we must multiply meetings in which we can be in communion with one another.

1:1 • ¹⁶For I am not ashamed at all of this Good News; it is God's power saving those who believe, first the Jews, and then the Greeks. ¹⁷This Good News shows us the saving justice of God; a justice that saves exclusively by faith, as the Scripture says: The upright one shall live by faith.

Humankind under God's "wrath"

• ¹⁸For the wrath of God is being revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and injustice of those who have silenced the truth by their wicked ways. ¹⁹For everything that could have been known about God was clear to them: God himself made it plain. ²⁰Because his invisible attributes—his everlasting power and divinity—are made visible to reason by means of his works since the creation of the world.

So they have no excuse, ²¹for they knew God and did not glorify him as was fitting, nor did they give thanks to him. On the contrary, they lost themselves in their reasoning and darkness filled their minds.

²²Believing themselves wise, they

Ps 8:3;
19:2

Wis 13:4;
1Cor
1:21

Mic 7:9;
Zep 3:1;
1Thes
1:10

• 16. I am not ashamed... (v. 16). He who is proclaimed Savior by Paul is a crucified Jew, an unknown carpenter. How often they laughed at Paul when he spoke about this dead man who had risen from the tomb to be the Judge of humankind!

It is God's power... (v. 16). The miracles that accompany the preaching of the Gospel are signs of God's powerful action in transforming people and history in every place where the Gospel is preached and inspires those who hear it.

Upright... righteous... righteousness (v. 17). The word justice used by Paul also signifies uprightness. On the other hand, when he speaks of the justice of God usually he is not saying that God is just: his justice denotes an intervention to keep order in the world. In a special way the justice of God has humans to become just, that is, upright before his eyes. It is a matter of understanding that the words justice and just had a wide meaning in the Christian vocabulary and now simply designate all that is good: being just speaks of a life as God would have it. The just person is rather like a saint, in the way we understand it today, or putting it more modestly, she is as she should be in God's eyes.

For that reason we shall at times translate God justifies us by: God makes us just and holy, or: God gifts us with true righteousness.

The Jews, like most humans, thought that people become righteous by their own efforts. Paul retorts that the righteousness God wants is something much greater and beyond what human efforts can achieve. We are upright and friends of God when he allows us to approach him after making us holy by his grace.

The apostles preached the Gospel to two classes of persons:

– the Jews, prepared by God to receive the Savior,

– the Greeks (or people who spoke the Greek language). In fact the Jews considered Greek all those who were subjects of the Roman Empire. These people did not know the Word of God, nor did they have any hope in him.

Paul shows that all people need the Gospel. Because the world lives in sin, and all of us to a greater or lesser degree are responsible for the existing evil, we must believe in the Gospel if we want to be saved.

• 18. In these paragraphs Paul speaks of the pagan world of the Greeks, which included the great majority of humankind who had not received the word of God. In reality, God had not been absent from their conscience, and through centuries of civilization and religious research they tried to know God and the truth. Paul shows the failure of such human endeavor; ignorance and immorality are much more prevalent in the countries where God had not spoken as he did to the Jews.

They knew God and did not glorify him as was fitting... (v. 21). We have to compare this text with another famous one, found in Wisdom 13, and with the speech of Paul in Acts 17:27-29. In these verses the Bible shows clearly that it is possible for everyone to know God. Anyone who looks at the world and reflects on life easily finds signs of the presence of God. Yet, when one lives in sin, truth is silenced. People do not openly deny God; they simply ignore him.

Faith is neither an option nor a luxury, as if

Dt 4:16;
Jer 2:11;
Wis
11:25
Jdg 2:14;
Eph 4:19

became foolish: ²³they exchanged the Glory of the immortal God for the likes of mortal human beings, birds, animals and reptiles. ²⁴Because of this God gave them up to their inner cravings; they did shameful things and dishonored their bodies.

Jer
16:19

²⁵They exchanged God's truth for a lie; they honored and worshiped created things instead of the Creator, to whom be praise for ever, Amen!

²⁶Because of that, God gave them up to shameful passions: their women exchanged natural sexual relations for unnatural ones. ²⁷Similarly, the men, giving up natural sexual relations with women, were lustful of each other, they did, men with men, shameful things, bringing upon themselves the punishment they deserve for their wickedness. ²⁸And since they did not think that God was worth knowing, he gave them up to their senseless minds so that they committed all kinds of obscenities.

Mk 7:21;
1Cor 6:9;
Gal 5:19;
1Tim 1:9;
Rev 2:8

²⁹And so they are full of injustice, perversity, greed, evil; they are full of jealousy, murder, strife, deceit, bad will and gossip. ³⁰They commit calumny, offend God, are haughty; they are proud, liars, clever in doing evil. They are rebellious towards their parents, ³¹senseless, disloyal, cold-hearted and merciless. ³²They know of God's judgment which declares worthy of death anyone living in this way; yet not only do they do all these things, they even applaud anyone who does the same.

The Jews also must fear judgment

2 • ¹Therefore, you have no excuse, whoever you are, if you are able to judge others. For in judging your neighbor, you condemn yourself, for you practice what you are judging. ²We know that the condemnation of God will justly reach those who commit these things, ³and do you think that by condemning others you will escape from the judgment of God, you who are doing the same?

Mt 7:2

⁴This would be taking advantage of God and his infinite goodness, patience and understanding, and not to

Wis
11:23;
2P 3:9;
Lk 13:7

we could well do without it. Certainly a majority on the planet do without it comfortably. Yet, if we were to withdraw all that comes from faith in our culture and life, the world would die for want of hope, as is already the case with nations and ideologies that have renounced it. This is why, in announcing the Gospel we free people who are truly in need of the Gospel, even though they may feel satisfied with themselves.

God gave them up to their inner cravings. Paul stresses the fact of homosexual relationships. In the Greek world, sexual relations especially between men were accepted and even praised by the greatest philosophers. Paul says: such an attitude is not the sign of a more open or free spirit, but comes from their ignorance of God.

This condemnation which only repeats those of the Old Testament (Lev 20:13) astonishes even Christians in the countries where the real religion is liberalism. Total sexual license with, in particular, the acceptance of such relationships flows from an idolatry proper to the liberal society, which has become a society of consumption. There, for those who are well off and in good health, the ideal is to satisfy every desire and profit from life to the maximum. Once God has been replaced by creatures, animals or fabricated articles, one can have him say everything, because, in fact his Glory is not known and darkness fills the mind.

In fact, homosexual relationships are a form of idolatry of one's body. It is not, of course, a question of condemning those inclined towards homosexuality, whether it be by nature, or much more often, through cultural deformation.

• 2.1 You have no excuse, whoever you are... Paul addresses the Jews, who wait for God's judgment on the world and are convinced that they will not be condemned, since they have the true religion. Paul reminds them of something we ourselves know: the greater realize that his goodness is in order to lead you to conversion. ⁵If your heart becomes hard and you refuse to change, then you are storing for yourself a great punishment on the day of judgment, when God will appear as just judge.

⁶He will give each one his due, according to his actions. ⁷He will give everlasting life to those who seek glory, honor and immortality and persevere in doing good. ⁸But anger and vengeance will be the lot of those who do not serve truth but injustice. ⁹There will be suffering and anguish for everyone committing evil, first the Jew, then the Greek. ¹⁰But God will give glory, honor and peace to whoever does good, first the Jew then the Greek, ¹¹because one is not different from the other before God.

Everyone is judged by his conscience

¹²Those who, without knowing the Law, committed sin, will perish without the Law, and whoever committed sin knowing the Law, will be judged by that Law. ¹³What makes us righteous before God is not hearing the Law, but obeying it. ¹⁴When the non-Jews, who do not have law, practice naturally what the Law commands, they are giving themselves a law, ¹⁵showing that the commandments of the Law are engraved in their minds. Their conscience, speaking within them also shows it, when they condemn or approve their actions. ¹⁶The same is to happen on the day when God, according to my gospel, will judge people's secret actions in the person of Jesus Christ.

¹⁷But suppose you call yourself a Jew: you have the Law as foundation and feel proud of your God. ¹⁸You know the will of God and the Law teaches you to distinguish what is better, ¹⁹and so you believe you are the guide for the blind, light in darkness, ²⁰a corrector of the foolish and instructor of the ignorant, because you possess in the Law the formulation of true knowledge. ²¹Well, then, you who teach others, why don't you teach yourself? If you say that one must not steal, why do you steal? ²²You say one must not commit adultery, yet you commit it! You say you hate idols, but you steal in their temples! ²³You feel proud of the Law, yet you do not obey it, and you dishonor your God. ²⁴In fact, as the Scripture says, the other nations despise the name of God because of you.

²⁵Circumcision is of value to you if you obey the Law; but if you do not obey, it is as if you were not circumcised. ²⁶On the contrary, if those who are uncircumcised obey the commandments of the Law, do you not think that, in spite of being pagans, they make themselves like the cir-our religious knowledge, the more arguments we have to justify our faults.

God will give glory... (v. 10). Paul has just condemned the injustice and wrongdoing of the pagan world. Now he recognizes that many who have not received a religious education do indeed live justly. In the next paragraph Paul affirms that:

– God will judge each one according to his own lights; our conscience will fully agree with this judgment of God on us;

– God also has sons and daughters among those who do not believe: he will judge them as he does for us, according to the path on which he has placed them.

On different occasions Paul opposes letter and spirit (vv. 27-29).

Letter denotes the written commandments that Jews observe but which remain exterior to them; the aim of these commandments was to lead them to conversion of heart: this is the spirit God wants. Two sets of words are in contrast in Paul's letters: flesh, old covenant, commandments, Law, letter... and Spirit, spirit, new covenant, promise...

Ezk 7:19;
Rev 6:17

Rev
11:18

Ps
62:13;
Mt 16:27

Dt 10:17;
Acts
10:34;
Eph 6:9;
Jas 2:1;
Lk 12:48;
Acts
10:35

Lk 8:21;
Jas 1:22

1Cor 4:5

Is 48:1;
Mt 3:8

Mt 15:14;
Jn 9:40

Lk 18:9

Ps 50:16

Is 52:5;
Jas 2:7

Jer 9:24;
1Cor 7:19

cumcised? ²⁷The one who obeys the Law without being marked in his body with circumcision, will judge you who have been marked with circumcision and who have the Law which you do not obey. ²⁸For external things do not make a true Jew nor is real circumcision that which is marked on the body. ²⁹A Jew must be so interiorly; the heart's circumcision belongs to spirit and not to a written law; he who lives in this way will be praised, not by people, but by God.

Eph
2:11;
Phil 3:3;
Col 2:11

What advantage is it to be a Jew?

3 ¹Then, what is the advantage of being a Jew? And what is the use of circumcision? ²It is important from any point of view. In the first place, it was to the Jews that God entrusted his word.

Dt 4:6;
Jn 4:22;
Bar 4:4

³Well now, if some of them were not faithful, will their unfaithfulness do away with the faithfulness of God? Of course not. ⁴Rather, it will be proved that God is truthful, every human a liar, as the Scripture says: it will be proved that your words are

9:6;
Ps 89:31;
Rev
11:11;
1Jn 1:9;
Ps
116:11;

true and you will be winner if they want to judge you.

⁵If our wickedness shows God to be just, would it be right to say that God is unjust when he gets angry and punishes us? (I speak in a human way.)

⁶– Not at all because, otherwise, how could God judge the world?

⁷– But if my lie makes the truth of God more evident, thus increasing his glory, is it correct to call me a sinner?

⁸– Then, your only choice would be to sin, so that good may come of it. Some slanderers say that this is my teaching, but they will have to answer for those words.

⁹Do we have, then, any advantage? Not really. For we have just demonstrated that all, Jews and non-Jews, are under the power of sin, ¹⁰as the Scripture says:

11:32;
Gal 3:22;
1Jn 1:8

Nobody is good, not even one, 11 no one understands, no one looks for God.

Ps 14:
1-3

¹²*All have gone astray and have become base. There is no one doing what is good, not even one.*

Ps 53:2

• 3.1 We have just demonstrated that all, Jews and non-Jews, are under the power of sin (v. 9). This is the central sentence of the paragraph. The Jews must, like others, rely on faith and be converted. That is what they have difficulty in understanding, since they have always been believers. They think they are good and are true believers, because they have been instructed in the faith. They trust in being saved merely for being marked in their body by circumcision.

What is the advantage of being a Jew? (v. 1). This is probably what the Jews will ask on hearing of salvation offered to those who do not know the Law, which means the religion taught by God. The same question is asked by Christians in modern times from the very moment they no longer believe that anyone living without Christ and the Church will go to hell. They think: "How fortunate if we were like them: we would be saved without having to follow a burdensome Christian mo-reality!" Paul sees no advantage for the Jew, and we none for the Christian, except in terms of responsibility: God has entrusted his words to them.

In this way our baptism gives us membership with a minority called "people of God," to whom God entrusts a mission to the world, along with many others who go to God without explicit knowledge of his secrets and his Christ. Baptism is not an assurance that gives us the right to feel better than others.

What comes from the Law is the consciousness of sin (v. 20). The Jewish law, or the law of Moses, is that body of religious, liturgical, moral and social laws governing the people of Israel (see 7:4). In the letters of Paul, the Law sometimes designates the Bible and at other times the Jewish religion. Many Jews thought that they deserved a reward for practicing the Law, but Paul says: true holiness is neither the result of our works nor a reward for them.

Ps 5:10

¹³ Their throats are open tombs, their words deceit.

¹⁴ Their lips hide poison of vipers, from their mouth come bitter curses.

Ps 5:10;

Is 59:7;

Ps 10:

7-8;

36:2

¹⁵ They run to where they can shed blood, ¹⁶ leaving behind ruin and misery. ¹⁷ They do not know the way of peace.

¹⁸ There is no fear of God before their eyes.

¹⁹ Now we know that whatever the Scripture says, it is said for the people of the Law, that is for the Jews. Let all be silent then and recognize that the whole world is guilty before God. ²⁰ Still more: no mortal will be worthy before God by performing the demands of the Law. What comes from the Law is the consciousness of sin.

4:15;

Ps 143:2;

Gal 2:16

Faith, the way to salvation

• ²¹ But, now it has been revealed altogether apart from the Law, as it was already foretold in the Law and the Prophets: ²² God makes us righteous by means of faith in Jesus Christ, and this is applied to all who believe, without distinction of persons. ²³ Because all have sinned and all fall short of the Glory of God; ²⁴ and all are graciously forgiven and made righteous through the redemption effected in Christ Jesus. ²⁵ For God has given him to be the victim whose blood obtains us forgiveness through faith.

2Cor 4:6

2Cor

5:19;

Eph 2:4

Lev 16:2;

Heb 9;

1Jn 2:2;

Eph 1:7

So God shows us how he makes us righteous. Past sins are forgiven which God overlooked till now. ²⁶ For now he wants to reveal his way of righteousness: how he is just and how he makes us righteous through faith in Jesus.

Acts

17:30

²⁷ Then what becomes of our pride? It is excluded. How? Not through the Law and its observances, but through another law

1Cor

1:29;

Eph 2:9;

Gal 6:13

• 21. Paul has developed two points: the world lives in sin; and the practice of the Law is not enough to obtain salvation. He then presents the Good News: God has come to save us through Christ.

All lack the glory of God. God is not satisfied with the actual state of humankind, even if the latter feel quite satisfied with their mediocre condition. He calls us to share his Glory, that is, everything in God that makes him great, happy and everlasting. God has created us to bring us into communion with him, and as he is out of reach, he reaches out his hand to us and makes us just (v. 21). We have already said in 1:17 that when Paul speaks of the justice of God he means God's way of making us upright at his eyes. God makes us just and holy.

Now, confronting all those who think they are worthy before God because of their own efforts, because they fulfill all the commandments, Paul says: true holiness must be given to us. For there is no other righteousness or holiness than sharing the perfection and love that are in God himself.

Paul finds it very hard to explain the mystery of salvation with the religious words available at the time, many of which refer to a violent God. He has just spoken of the justice of God, but has pointed out that this "justice" is before anything else, a merciful intervention that makes us holy. He spoke of God's anger; but the result of this anger is the coming of the Savior. He tells us now that God made Christ the victim we needed for the atonement of our sins; but we must not think that God, in anger, demands the suffering of an innocent victim. God is the one who provides the victim, and the coming of Jesus expresses the immensity of the Father's love. In a few words, Paul gives to these terms a totally different and new meaning. The divine way of restoring justice is not by condemning, but by saving; by love God conquers evil in such a way that those who never knew love will be saved.

Many of the Jews converted to Christ thought it useful to continue practicing the religious prescriptions of the Bible, such as circumcision, observance of the Sabbath, cleansings, etc. (Col 2:16) and wanted other believers of the pagan world to observe them as well. Paul rejects that, because the Law had two dimensions. On one hand, it was the divine teaching for human life, such as how to know God, not to kill, etc... and on the other, it was the Law of the Jewish people, with all their own values, rites and customs, unlike that of which is faith. ²⁸For we hold that people are in God's grace by faith and not because of all the things ordered by the Law. ²⁹Otherwise, God would be the God of the Jews; but is he not God of pagan nations as well? ³⁰Of course he is, for there is only one God and he will save by faith the circumcised Jews as well as the uncircumcised nations. ³¹Do we, then, deny the value of the Law because of what we say of faith? Of course not; rather we place the Law in its proper place.

10:12;
Acts
15:11

Mt 5:17

Abraham, father of the just 4 ¹Let us consider Abraham, our father in the flesh. What has he found? ²If Abraham attained righteousness because of his deeds, he could be proud. But he cannot be this before God. ³Because Scripture says: Abraham believed God who took it into account and held him to be a just man.

Is 51:1;
Mt 3:7Gen
15:6;
12:1;
Gal 3:6;
Jas 2:2011:6;
Mt 20:1;
Lk 17:7;

⁴Now, when someone does a work, salary is not given as a favor, but as a debt that is paid. ⁵Here, on the contrary, someone who has no deeds to show but believes in Him who makes sinners righteous before him: such faith is taken into account and that person is held as righteous. ⁶David congratulates in this way those who become righteous by the favor of God, and not by their actions: ⁷*Blessed are those whose sins are forgiven and whose offenses are forgotten;* ⁸*blessed the one whose sin God does not take into account!*

Ps 32:
1-2

⁹Is this blessing only for the circumcised or is it also for the uncircumcised? We have just said that, because of his faith, Abraham was made a just man, ¹⁰but when did this happen? After Abraham was circumcised, or before? Not after, but before. ¹¹He received the rite of circumcision as a sign of the righteousness given him through faith when he was still uncircumcised, that he might be the father of all those uncircumcised who come to faith and are made just. ¹²And he was to be the father of the any other nation. So, since God is God of all nations, he will not oblige them to give up their own culture and to live as the Jews do.

Gen 17:9

• 4.1 Paul then asks his Jewish brothers to go back to the sources of revelation. Long before the Law was given to Moses, there was the faith of Abraham. That means that faith is both more fundamental and more universal. The Law, instead, is a form of religion proper to the Jews and of value only for a period of their history. He asks: "How did Abraham become the friend of God and why is he taken as the model of believers? Was it because he believed in God's promises, or because he had received the rite of circumcision?" It is like asking a Christian today: "What is important, to believe in Christ, or to be baptized?"

The answer is clear; we become the friends of God by believing in his promises. The rite of baptism ratifies with a divine seal the gift of God and our commitment to him.

Therefore, baptism and the other sacraments are the "signs" of faith and have no value without faith. Baptism is the beginning of our living for God in the Christian community. Communion has no meaning unless we live in unity and share the fullness of the life of the Church.

Worthy of notice is the fact that Christian people are now less concerned with rites and devotions that were so important to past generations. At the same time renewal movements give more stress to essentials: our faith and surrender to Christ.

He did not doubt although his body could no longer give life. Abraham had a faith similar to the Christian who believes in the resurrection of Christ. We also are asked to believe in a God who gives life and for whom nothing is impossible.

Faith has no power (v. 14). Here Paul points out something that many times we fail to see. To believe in God who rewards good and obedience to his laws is already faith (Heb 11:6). This faith, however, consisting in respect and awareness of justice remains very far from Abraham's confidence in God's promise. Faith is found in every religion, but for Christians faith is everything.

Jews, provided that besides being circumcised, they also imitate the faith Abraham showed before being circumcised.

Gen 12:2; 22:15; Heb 11:8; Gal 3:15
 13 If God promised Abraham, or rather his descendants, that the world would belong to him, this was not because of his obeying the Law, but because he was just and a friend of God through faith. 14 If now the promise is kept for those who rely on the Law, then faith has no power and nothing is left of the promise. 15 For it is proper of the Law to bring punishment, and it is only when there is no Law that it is possible to live without breaking the Law.

16 For that reason, faith is the way and all is given by grace; and the promises of Abraham are fulfilled for all his descendants, not only for his children according to the Law, but also for all the others who have believed.

Gen 17:5; Ezk 37:1; Heb 11:19
 Abraham is the father of all of us, 17 as it is written: I will make you father of many nations. He is our father in the eyes of Him who gives life to the dead, and calls into existence what does not yet exist, for this is the God in whom he believed.

Gen 15:5
 Heb 11:11; Mk 9:23
 18 Abraham believed and hoped against all expectation, thus becoming father of many nations, as he had been told: See how many will be your descendants. 19 He did not doubt although his body could no longer give life—he was about a hundred years old—and in spite of his wife Sarah being unable to have children. 20 He did not doubt nor did he distrust the promise of God, and by being strong in faith, he gave glory to God: 21 he was convinced that He who had given the promise had power to fulfill it.

22 This was taken into account for him to attain righteousness. 23 This was taken into account: these words of Scripture are not only for him, 24 but for us, too, because we believe in Him who raised Jesus, our Lord, from among the dead, 25 he who was delivered for our sins and raised to life for us to receive true righteousness.

Now we are at peace with God

5 • 1 By faith we have received true righteousness, and we are at peace with God, through Jesus Christ, our Lord. 2 Through him we obtain this favor in which we remain and we even boast to expect the Glory of God.

3 Not only that, we also boast even in trials, knowing that trials produce patience, 4 from patience comes merit, merit is the source of hope, 5 and hope does not disappoint us because the Holy Spirit has been given to us, pouring into our hearts the love of God.

6 Consider, moreover, the time that Christ died for us: when we were still helpless and unable to do any-

Heb 6:15; Jer 32:17; Lk 1:35

1Cor 10:6

Is 53:6; Mt 26:28; 1P 1:3; Col 2:11

Is 9:6; Mic 5:4; Lk 1:79

Phil 3:9; Is 53:5; Eph 2:14; Jn 14:16; Col 1:27

2Cor 4:17; 12:9; Jas 1:2; Ps 22:5; 25:3; Gal 4:6

Tit 3:5; 1Jn 4:13

• 5.1 In this paragraph, Paul shares his own experience to help us discover changes in our life from the moment we have gone beyond the Law or, for us: beyond any religion.

To begin with there is a feeling of peace: we are at peace with God (v. 1). Perhaps we felt well before, with no sin and no debt. The peace we now discover reveals our former emptiness: being alien to God, we were alien to a part of ourselves. It is only now that we are conscious of it, and what do we believe?

We believe in the personal love of God for us and we see it in Jesus' death and resurrection.

Through him we obtain this favor in which we remain (v. 2). It is not necessary for us to "sense" it to be in this state and it would be a mistake to search for a group where we could be "sensitively" aware of God. That is a form of self-satisfaction, and such is not the way of God's true friends. It is not a matter of seeing or feeling but of believing what God does. Yet there are thousands of instances when we are thing. ⁷Few would accept to die for an upright person; although, for a very good person, perhaps someone would dare to die. ⁸But see how God manifested his love for us: while we were still sinners, Christ died for us ⁹and we have become just through his blood. With much more reason now he will save us from any condemnation. ¹⁰Once enemies, we have been reconciled with God through the death of his Son; with much more reason now we may be saved through his life. ¹¹Not only that; we even boast in God because of Christ Jesus, our Lord, through whom we have been reconciled.

Tit 2:14;
1P 3:18

Jn 3:16;
15:13;
1Jn 3:16;
4:10

2Cor
5:18;
Eph 2:16;
Col 1:20

Adam and Jesus Christ

Gen 3;
Wis 2:24;
1Cor
15:21;
Jas 1:15

• ¹²Therefore, sin entered the world through one man and through sin, death, and later on death spread to all humankind, because all sinned. ¹³As long as there was no law, they could not speak of disobedience, but sin was already in the world. ¹⁴This is why from Adam to Moses death reigned among them, although their sin was not disobedience as in Adam's case—this was not the true Adam, but foretold the other who was to come.

1Cor
15:45;
Col 1:15

¹⁵Such has been the fall, but God's gift goes far beyond. All died because of the fault of one man, but how much more does the grace of God spread when the gift he granted reaches all, from this unique man Jesus Christ. ¹⁶Again, there is no comparison between the gift and the offense of one man. The disobedience that brought condemnation was conscious of this presence of God in us. Paul, who battled so much for Christ, says that it is in trials that we can discover the power of Christ working in us and making us mature (2 Cor 12:9).

And we even boast to expect the Glory of God (v. 2). The great Christian hope, unknown to those who have not met Christ is the certitude of a destiny surpassing all that could be imagined, hoped for, experienced by the greatest sages and mystics of all religions: total communion with God himself.

Hope does not disappoint us. In contrast to the people of the Old Testament, who remained always in what was temporary or provisional while waiting for ultimate truth and justice, the Christian already experiences what will one day fully enjoy. Something of that flavor or fragrance of the divinity has been poured into our hearts (v. 5) and that is the peace that God grants us when his Spirit comes to us.

Christ died for us when we were still sinners (v. 6). We are accustomed to hear about Christ dying for our sins, and often enough we are not touched, for his sacrifice seems to be far away and quite unreal. When by the grace of God we understand it, love suddenly pours from our hearts. Return love for love: this is the beginning of true conversion.

We have become just through his blood (v. 9). The text says precisely: We have been justified. Was the blood of Christ necessary? We have said with regard to 3:25 that Paul depended on the religious vocabulary of his time: the forgiveness of sins for the Jews was obtained by the blood of sacrificed victims. The prophets had already declared that the streams of blood from the Temple were of no value without obedience to God. Certain people understood that the true sacrifice able to reconcile the world was the sufferings and humiliations of the faithful minority of God's people (Is 52:13). Whatever the explanation given, the salvation of the world passes through the sufferings and the death of the innocent, and the people of God must accept to be among the victims of violence. So it is that the violent death and the blood shed by Jesus are part of God's language and also part of human experience. Paul knew this well, he who had taken part in the murder of Stephen (Acts 22:20).

• 12. Let us try to understand the thinking of Paul, inasmuch as he develops it here. In the first two chapters, he showed that without faith in Christ, humans lived in sin, including the Jews who had received the word of God. Then he asserted that salvation is brought about not by obedience to a law, but only by faith. Through this we are reconciled to God and we enter into a relationship of friendship with God who guides us towards the goal of of one sinner, whereas the grace of God brings forgiveness to a world of sinners. ¹⁷If death reigned through the disobedience of one and only one person, how much more will there be a reign of life for those who receive the grace and the gift of true righteousness through the one person, Jesus Christ.

¹⁸Just as one transgression brought sentence of death to all, so, too, one man's good act has brought justification and light to all; ¹⁹and as the disobedience of only one made all sinners, so the obedience of one person allowed all to be made just and holy.

²⁰The Law itself, introduced later on, caused sin to increase; but where sin increased, grace abounded all the more, ²¹and as sin caused death to reign, so grace will reign in its own time, and after making us just and friends of God, will bring us to eternal life through Jesus Christ, our Lord.

the whole of life, which is to share the "Glory" of God, or his life in eternity.

Paul now widens his horizon. Jesus has come not only to reconcile sinners, many sinners, but to save humanity as a whole. In modern terms, we would say that he came to save human history; in biblical language, he has come to save "Adam."

For Paul, as for the Jews of his time, Adam meant both the first human created by God and the whole of humankind. The children of Adam are only one with the ancestor whose name they bear. Indeed, from the beginning of humankind to the present generation, only one Adam comes to life, distrusting, rebellious and violent.

Sin entered the world through one man. Here Paul refers to the narrative in Genesis, but not to insist, as others have done after him, on the importance of the sin committed by the first human. In fact, Jesus did not speak of such sin, and the Scripture before him showed much reservation (see Wis 10:2 and Sir 49:16). Paul intends to point out a double solidarity that affects us: in Adam all humans are sinners, in Christ all have been reconciled. God created the world and has visited it to save the human race as a whole, united in Christ. This is why Paul puts the first parent of the old traditions in opposition to that that is the first in the plan of God. If the role of the first forebear remains very mysterious, Paul asserts clearly that humanity is not naturally at peace with God and that it cannot reach its goal as long as it is not saved by Christ.

We do not say that human nature is evil: God created it. It may perhaps be helpful to remember that during the 16th and 17th centuries, the history of the West was greatly influenced by the controversies about original sin. What nonsense was said (God had condemned all humankind to hell because of the sin of Adam)! This led to a reaction under the form of aggressive atheism in order to get rid of such a capricious and evil God. Thus it was asserted that humans are born good and that the society is guilty in making them evil.

The teaching of the apostles maintains that although human nature is good, we are born alienated. To speak to us of this situation, John uses two expressions: "the world" and "the ruler of this world," that is, the devil (see commentary on Jn 3:16 and 1 Jn 2:15). Paul, for his part, will talk of sin. In these passages, sin refers to the totality of forces that have imprisoned humankind and which bring it to evil. We are not totally responsible for the sins that at times we do without really willing them (7:16-24), and this proves our slavery and alienation. And Sin begins with our difficulty in recognizing truth and judging according to truth.

This foretold the other Adam who was to come (v. 14). To the picture of human destiny presented in Genesis (chaps. 2 and 3), Paul presents in contrast another image, that of the crucified Christ. To the scene of sin near the forbidden tree, Paul compares that of redemption fulfilled on the "tree" of the cross. In the first scene there are three characters: Man (Adam), Sin (the serpent), Death. In the second, there are four: Man (Christ), Sin, Death and Justice (or new and holy life).

The gift of God more than compensated for sin (v. 16). The damage caused by sin from the very beginning increases each day; at times we feel crushed and powerless by the evil forces present everywhere. Paul, however, sees the greatness of the gift of God: while humankind increases and sin enters into all areas of society, God calls more people to free themselves.

There is something more. In this paragraph, somewhat complicated, Paul hints that the re-

Through baptism we died with Christ

6 • ¹Then, what shall we say? Shall we keep on sinning so that grace may come more abundantly? ²Can we live again in sin? Of course not: we are now dead regarding sin.

³Don't you know that in baptism which unites us to Christ we are all baptized and plunged into his death? ⁴By this baptism in his death, we were buried with Christ and, as Christ was raised from among the dead by the Glory of the Father, so we begin walking in a new life. ⁵If we have been joined to him by dying a death like his so we shall be by a resurrection like his.

• ⁶We know that our old self was crucified with Christ, so as to destroy what of us was sin, so that we may no longer serve sin—⁷if we are dead, we are no longer in debt to sin. ⁸But if we have died with Christ, we believe we will also live with him. ⁹We know that Christ, once risen from the dead, will not die again and death has no more dominion over him. ¹⁰For by dying, he is dead to sin once and for all, and now the life that he lives is life with God.

¹¹So you, too, must consider yourselves dead to sin and alive to God in Christ Jesus. ¹²Do not allow sin any control over your mortal bodies; do not submit yourselves to its evil inclinations, ¹³and do not give your members over to sin, as instruments to do evil. On the contrary, offer yourselves as persons returned from death to life, and let the members of your body be as holy instru-

1P 3:18;
Heb 9:26

8:3;
2Cor 5:2

1P 2:24

Col 3: 9-10

demption of Christ does much more than correct the errors of humankind. God is not satisfied with helping us and making us better, for, after beginning to lift up men and women, he invites them to reign in life, which is to share his own Glory.

How much more will there be a reign of life for those who receive grace (v. 17). Christ embraces all of us, gathers us in his sacrifice, and becomes the new head of humankind. Perhaps Paul is thinking at times of the salvation of only those who have listened to the Gospel, believed in Christ and entered the Church. Note however that he stresses the fact that Christ saves a world of sinners. Christ is the new Adam and the head not only of believers, but of humankind as well. Humans continue today to be drawn by the flood of evil originated by Adam. Humankind is also saved as a whole, as long as people try to lift up their brothers and sisters. He who does not share in this task loses salvation, because what God wants is not "my" salvation but the salvation of Adam.

The Law caused sin to increase (v. 20). It was an error to see the Law as the great gift of God (yet the Old Testament said it!). Let us say rather that because of the Law the Jews discovered much sooner than other nations how great was their need to be saved. Its first result was to increase sin, because from then on they knew what their duty was and did not do it.

• 6.1 We are now dead regarding sin (v. 2). If we say that the Law has been abrogated we risk a misunderstanding. We do not mean that from now on we shall follow our instincts: we have been freed of a situation where the Law seemed to govern everything, but in fact sin found in us an accomplice: distrust of God. Dead to sin: this means that sin no longer finds a response in us. Dead: it is indeed the right word since it has been a definitive step, one that is intimately linked to the death of Christ. To die with him so as to rise with him: this is the meaning of baptism.

In the early Church, mostly adults were baptized: they had been evangelized and committed themselves to the community of the holy people of God. Baptism followed a conversion. When Paul speaks of baptism we must understand that it takes in the entire journey through conversion, including catechumenate, initiation in Christian life... Otherwise, baptism would be no more than a rite.

We are all plunged into his death (v. 3). Baptism means entering into Christ to share the benefits of his sacrifice. It also means the acceptance of a complete change of life, that of Christ in his death and resurrection.

• 6. You must consider... It is evident that baptism, even when received with faith, does not make us perfect immediately. Is it enough for us to give our whole attention to comments at the service of God. ¹⁴Sin will not lord it over you again, for you are not under the law, but under grace.

¹⁵I ask again: are we to sin because we are not under the Law, but under grace? Certainly not. ¹⁶If you have given yourselves up to someone as his slave, you are to obey the one who commands you, aren't you? Now with sin you go to death, and by accepting faith you go the right way. ¹⁷Let us give thanks to God for, after having sin as your master, you have been given to another, that is, to the doctrine of faith, to which you listen willingly. ¹⁸And being free from sin, you began to serve true righteousness—¹⁹you see that I speak in a very human way, taking into account that you are not fully mature.

There was a time when you let your members be slaves of impurity and disorder, walking in the way of sin; convert them now into servants of righteousness, to the point of becoming holy.

²⁰When you were slaves of sin, you did not feel under obligation to righteousness, ²¹but what were the fruits of those actions of which you are now ashamed? Such things bring death. ²²Now, however, you have been freed from sin and serve God. You are bearing fruit and growing in holiness, and the result will be life everlasting. ²³So on one side is Sin: its reward, death; on the other side is God: he gives us, by grace, life everlasting in Christ Jesus, our Lord.

The Christian is not bound by the Jewish religion

7 • ¹You, my friends, understand law. The law has power only while a person is alive. ²The married woman, for example, is bound by law to her husband while he is alive; but if he dies, she is free from her obligations as a wife. ³If she gives her-mandments? What if the fear of temptation and daily faults paralyze us? Beware of scruples and guilt complexes! Paul proposes a different way: it is most important for us to believe that sin has no power over us. Our eyes will be fixed on Christ knowing that we belong to him and that he himself transforms us. Such an apparent carefree attitude serves us more effectively than nervousness. It is the way Saint Thérèse of Lisieux suggested for those who feel incapable of great things.

Do not allow sin any control over your mortal being. The faithful, although conscious of belonging totally to Christ, commit sins every day. Their sins, however, do not deprive them of what is most important, trust in the Father, which allows them to stand up after each fall (1 Jn 2:1). They know that they are and always will be sinners whom God forgives, as long as they try to amend and be better. We achieve freedom day by day by voluntarily submitting to the requirements of a better life.

In Paul's time there were cases of slaves being exchanged by owners. A free person with debts could sell himself to his debtor in payment of his debts. The comparison used by Paul teaches us to be meekly at the disposal of the Spirit, as slaves who are not owners of their own persons. Let us look at what the Spirit advises before making any decision.

The Christian's life must appear like slavery to whoever looks at it externally. Yet the Christian feels and knows himself to be free. The best example might be that of a mother totally dedicated to her sick child: she is totally free, because she has no other law than her love.

- 7.1 The last chapter presented Christ who frees us from sin and death and becomes our only master. Then Christians of Jewish origin could ask: What about the Law of the Old Covenant? Is it no longer of value? Was it not given by God himself?

You have died to the Law (v. 4). The Law was provisional: the time of the Law ended with the death of Christ. Here we find one of Paul's great intuitions. The death of Jesus was seemingly no more than a minor event in the troubled history of the Jewish people under Roman occupation. Yet it is more than a turning point, a rupture in the history of the world. Before that time was the era of a minor humanity; after it, the time when God could act and make himself known fully and clearly

Jn 8:34

Gal 5:13;
Jn 8:36

12:1

Jn 15:8

Gal 5:8;
Jas 1:151Cor
7:39

self to another while her husband is alive, she will be an adulteress; but once the husband dies, she is free and if she gives herself to another man, she is not an adulteress.

2Cor 5:15; Eph 2:15; Col 2:14
4It was the same with you, brothers and sisters: you have died to the Law with the person of Christ, and you belong to another, who has risen from among the dead, so that we may produce fruit for God. 5When we lived as humans used to do, the Law stirred up the desires for all that is sin, and they worked in our bodies with fruits of death. 6But we have died to what was holding us; we are freed from the Law and no longer serve a written law—which was the old; with the Spirit we are in the new.

Eph 2:3; 4:22
2Cor 3:6
20:17
7Then, shall we say that the Law is part of sin? Of course not. However, I would not have known Sin, had it not been through the Law. I would not be aware of greed if the Law did not tell me: Do not covet.

5:13; Jas 1:14; 1Cor 15:56
8Sin took advantage of the commandment to stir in me all kinds of greed; whereas, without a Law, Sin lies dead.

9First there was no Law and I lived. Then the commandment came and gave life to Sin: 10and I died. It happened that the Law of life had brought me death. 11Sin took advantage of the commandment: it lured me and killed me through the commandment.

Lev 18:5; Dt 4:1; Ezk 20:1

Gen 3:13; 2Cor 11:3

12But the Law itself is holy, just and good. 13Is it possible that something good brings death to me? Of course not. This comes from Sin that may be seen as sin when it takes advantage of something good to kill: the commandment let Sin appear fully sinful.

Dt 4:8

The Law without Christ makes humans divided

• 14We know that the Law is spiritual; as for me, I am flesh and have been sold to sin. 15I cannot explain what is happening to me, because I do not do what I want, but on the contrary, the very things I hate. 16Well then, if I do the evil I do not want to do, I agree that the Law is good; 17but, in this case, I am not the one striving toward evil, but it is sin,

Ps 51:1; Jn 3:6; Gal 5:17

Gen 6:5; 8:21; Jer 10:23

(Gal 4). The death of Jesus marks the death of ancient history. The Christian way of counting the years from the death of Christ is not one among other possibilities: it responds to a reality.

The baptized Jews are no longer obliged to follow all the commandments of this Law that was the supreme authority. Of course, many of the commandments deal with justice and mercy and are not to be neglected. Even so Christians are not left with a religion of commandments: faith in Jesus Christ, the only Savior, inspires all our actions.

We have died to what was holding us (v. 6). The Law of Moses, the great gift of God to Israel was part of a provisional stage, when humankind was not entirely free. The Christians of today see in the laws an indication of God's will but reserve the right to act according to the criteria of their faith. No law or even religious decree can prevail over a well-informed conscience. An ordered life creates more beauty than any religious constitution could ever achieve.

See the same theme in 2 Corinthians 5:14: "if he died for all, then all have died."

First there was no Law and I lived (v. 9). It would be erroneous to think that Paul is speaking about his own past. He is rather playing a role and speaks on behalf of Man (see commentary 5:12-14). The other actors in the drama are Sin, the Law and Death.

For the Jews the conclusion is clear: the Law with its commandments had no power to renew the human person.

• 14. Paul describes the situation of the person who knows the commandments, but not the love of God. He is not a liberated person, but a divided one. Two opposing forces struggle within him; on one side the Law that tells him what to do, and on the other another law in his flesh, that is, in his nature. He is not really free.

living in me. ¹⁸I know that what is right does not abide in me, I mean, in my flesh. I can want to do what is right, but I am unable to do it. ¹⁹In fact I do not do the good I want, but the evil I hate. ²⁰Therefore, if I do what I do not want to do, I am not the one striving towards evil, but Sin which is in me.

²¹I discover, then, this reality: though I wish to do what is right, the evil within me asserts itself first. ²²My inmost self agrees and rejoices with the law of God, ²³but I notice in my body another law challenging the law of the spirit, and delivering me as a slave to the law of sin written in my members. ²⁴Alas, for me! Who will free me from this being which is only death? ²⁵Let us give thanks to God through Jesus Christ, our Lord!

So, with my conscience I am a servant of the law of God, and with my mortal body I serve the law of sin.

We have received the Spirit

8 • ¹This contradiction no longer exists for those who are in Jesus Christ. ²For, in Jesus Christ, the law of the Spirit of life has set me free from the law of sin and death. ³The Law was without effect because flesh was not responding. Then God, planning to destroy sin, sent his own Son, in the likeness of those subject to the sinful human condition; by doing this, he condemned the sin in this

Jer 31:33;
Ezk 36:27;
2Cor 3:17;
Gal 5:18

2Cor 5:21;
Heb 2:14

There is something well disposed within human beings: the spirit; and something that resists the demands of duty: the flesh (see Mk 14:38). The flesh does not mean the body; this word designates what in us is weak in face of duty and God's call to holiness. See commentary on 8:5.

Our liberty is impotent when faced with sin, that is, it can do nothing against the forces of evil dragging down all humankind. Dullness of spirit in our fellow workers, family problems, the general spread of pornography, selfishness and consumerism: the flesh within us becomes an accomplice in all these evils.

In this chapter Paul continues to play the role of the one who still does not know Christ and remains divided and enslaved. The next chapter will deal with the opposition between the spirit and the flesh for those who believe in Christ. For them there is a solution to their conflicts: they live in peace. And so Paul ends crying out: who will free me...? Thanks be to God.

- 8.1 After having shown at length the limitations of a religious law, a reality in every religion that stresses the observance of practices, Paul speaks of life in the spirit: for that is, first of all, Christian life. It would seem that what follows is a long theological discussion: and Paul is arguing the way he learned in the rabbinical schools. In fact, if we look closely, it is not the development of a thesis: all comes from the spiritual experience of Paul.

When a Christian believes he has received the Spirit of God, it is not merely because he has been told that confirmation gave him the Spirit. If in Christian life there is a characteristic experience it is that of the Spirit of God working in us. Of course we should always shun the temptation to want to experience through our senses the things of God instead of believing in his word: nevertheless there is a Christian experience. See commentary on Acts 21:5.

Paul, for his part, knows what life is when permanently directed by the Spirit: he has evaded the situation of the sinner divided between his conscience and his bad habits and found unity in his availability to God. He will boldly speak of total transformation for those who believe in Christ, even if later he had to recognize that this transformation is more in the process than in the accomplishment.

God sent his own Son (v. 3). Would he have sent him only to speak to us, to give us his laws, to give us great examples of divine love? The salvation that God gives us is quite different. Look at what happens when someone wants to help the marginalized: in vain do we assist them materially; they will not become responsible unless they themselves face their own problems. God knew that. It is not he who pities sinners and says: "How sad! So irresponsible! I will dress them up in white and forget their sins, so they may look holy and be seated at my side." God does not want to disguise reality, but to create humankind anew.

Mt 5:17 human condition. ⁴Since then the perfection intended by the Law would be fulfilled in those not walking in the way of the flesh, but in the way of the Spirit.

Life through the Spirit

Gal 5:16 • ⁵Those walking according to the flesh tend towards what is flesh; those led by the spirit, to what is spirit. ⁶Flesh tends towards death, while spirit aims at life and peace. ⁷What the flesh seeks is against God: it does not agree, it cannot even submit to the law of God. ⁸So, those walking according to the flesh cannot please God.

Jas 4:4;
1Jn 2:15

⁹Yet your existence is not in the flesh, but in the spirit, because the Spirit of God is within you. If you did not have the Spirit of Christ, you would not belong to him. ¹⁰But Christ is within you; though the body is branded by death as a consequence of sin, the spirit is life and holiness. ¹¹And if the Spirit of Him who raised Jesus from the dead is within you, He who raised Jesus Christ from among the dead will also give life to your mortal bodies. Yes, he will do it through his Spirit who dwells within you.

1Cor
3:16

1Cor
6:14;
2Cor
4:14

¹²Then, brothers, let us leave the flesh and no longer live according to

So one of the human race must personally defeat Sin (that is, the power of death that keeps humankind paralyzed and divided).

He sent him... in the likeness (v. 3). In the likeness: Jesus carries on his shoulders the sins of others, but he did not commit any sin (Heb 2:14 and 4:15). Since the sacrifice of Christ the power of his Spirit has made believers capable of being victorious over the forces of death.

Through love and forgiveness God created a new world without rancor or desire of revenge or hidden remorse of conscience. We are at peace with him; we are at peace with each other.

- 5. The human life of Christ prepared the way for the communication of the Spirit to those who were to be adopted in order, later on, to be made divine, that is, transformed in God. First comes Christ, then the Spirit. This is why Paul reminded us first of the saving work of Christ (chaps. 5 and 6); now he tells us about the Spirit.

Those walking according to the flesh. What flesh signifies has been discussed in part in the commentary on 7:14. Without doubt, Paul has in mind the inner conflicts that each of us experience, and flesh refers to a human reality that weighs upon us. Nature can never be regarded in its pure state; the human nature of people of this twenty-first century, with their instincts and desires, their images, the things that appear impossible to do away with, is mostly dependent on our education and culture. The tension we experience between flesh and spirit is partly the tension between our culture—the present liberal culture with its unbribed search for pleasure and the latest craze—and the spirit of Christ that seeks only the service of the Father. In such a context, the “resurgence” of sexual freedom among certain groups, which call themselves Christian, should not surprise us. They always speak of rights as if a Christian should have other rights before the Father of whom he should be a servant as Jesus had been and renounce himself.

In verse 5, we read, tend towards what is flesh. The Greek verb refers to what one keeps in his heart, his ambitions and plans. The same word appears in verse 7 which we translate as seeks. This refers to what our nature instinctively desires and what we plan whenever we conform to the ambitions of our contemporaries. Flesh tends towards death... flesh seeks against God: this may come as a shocking statement for us who live in a world estranged from faith, but where many good things happen nevertheless.

We simply say that the Spirit of God works even in places where people do not know him by name. Yet there is no life as long as people do not call in question the ready-made ideas. To please God, it will always be necessary to be among the marginalized, as Abraham was, that is, to run counter against the flesh.

Those walking according to the Spirit (v. 5). Should we write according to the Spirit or according to the spirit? In biblical culture spirit is both God’s and ours. The spirit is what God gives to humans; it is also their ready acceptance of God’s action. In this paragraph we should sometimes use spirit, our spirit visited by God, at other times it would be necessary to

it. ¹³If not, we will die. Rather, walking in the Spirit, let us put to death the body's deeds so that we may live.

¹⁴All those who walk in the Spirit of God are sons and daughters of God. ¹⁵Then, no more fear: you did not receive a spirit of slavery, but the Spirit that makes you sons and daughters and every time we cry, "Abba! (this is Dad!) Father!" ¹⁶the Spirit assures our spirit that we are sons and daughters of God. ¹⁷If we are children, we are heirs, too. Ours will be the inheritance of God and we

Gal 4:6;
2Tim 1:7

Gal 3:4;
2Tim
2:12;
1P 4:13

say spirit, God's way of working in us; again at other times Spirit is God-who-communicates.

What Paul writes here is not a theory of what should take place in us, but what comes directly from his experience. The Spirit that has been given to him habitually possesses but a part of him, that is, his spirit. The rest, what he calls the flesh (it should be termed: the living reality, the basis of his psychology), continues to be what it was. Perhaps it can unwind more freely now that Paul is not always trying to repress it and subject it to the Law as he attempted to do before (7:15-25). Actually, it cannot be subjected; it can only desire rest and nourishment, dreams of sex and well-being.

Paul then is present as from the outside to these desires of the flesh, but he is firmly filled with the spirit. His spirit is now under the influence of the Spirit and knows the joy of letting himself be carried along. Paul then continues to see and feel contradiction within himself (2 Cor 12:7), but it is no longer a bruising test of strength: he is taking part in a victory of the Spirit.

Paul does not forget that others are less advanced than he is and still have to painfully conquer their liberty. He does not tell them that the flesh is evil, but that we must put to death the works of the flesh (v. 13): what we call mortification.

The Spirit that makes you sons and daughters (v. 15). The Greek text could be: "Spirit of adoption" but also "spirit of sons having all the rights of their father" (like in Gal 4:5). In no way does Paul want to emphasize the difference we often make by saying: "Jesus is the only Son, and we, adopted children". Speaking like that, we place a barrier, slight though it be, between God and us, and the will share it with Christ; for if we now suffer with him, we will also share Glory with him.

The universe, too, waits for its redemption

• ¹⁸I consider that the suffering of our present life cannot be compared with the Glory that will be revealed and given to us. ¹⁹All creation is eagerly expecting the birth in glory of the children of God. ²⁰For if now the created world was unable to attain its purpose, this did not come from itself,

2Cor
4:17

Ecl 1:2;
Gen 3:17

Gospel does not so desire, from the moment we have known the Father.

Those led by the Spirit tend towards what comes from the Spirit. Then we begin to freely desire a new way of living in imitation of Christ. The desires of the Spirit animate our life. We experience them as an interior call, a security and a joy.

In following the desires of the Spirit we really feel free; this life, however, is demanding. Each day we have to go a little further in putting to death the body's deeds (v. 13), that is, everything that paralyzes us and makes us cling to this world. Put to death: we call it "mortification."

The Spirit assures our spirit that we are sons and daughters of God (v. 16). Whoever lives in the spirit lives in the light. While we remain firm in the teaching of Christ and share in the life of the Church, the Spirit gives us internal knowledge and joy in the things of God. The Spirit guides us and inspires us each day showing us how to please God.

• 18. The description of "living in the Spirit" continues. The believer who looks around notices that not only his community, but also the whole world is being transformed.

The glory that will be revealed and given to us. Though the Spirit dwells in our innermost being, we expect the transformation of our whole being. Now, though we have the peace of Christ, temptations and sufferings prevent us from enjoying glory and being fully free. With the transformation of our whole being (Paul calls it the body: v. 23) we shall reach the glorious freedom of the children of God.

It is impossible to consider the human being apart from this world in which we live. Are there elsewhere in the Universe other intellectual beings? The Bible does not speak of it: it but from the one who subjected it. But it is not without hope; ²¹for even the created world will be freed from this fate of death and share the freedom and glory of the children of God.

Is 25:7;
65:17;
Rev 21:1;
2P 3:12

²²We know that the whole creation groans and suffers the pangs of birth.

Is 66:7;
Jn 16:21

²³Not creation alone, but even ourselves, although the Spirit was given to us as a foretaste of what we are to receive, we groan in our innermost being, eagerly awaiting the day when God will give us full rights and rescue our bodies as well.

2Cor
1:22;
Eph 1:14

²⁴In hope we already have salvation. But if we saw what we hoped for, there would no longer be hope:

Heb
11:1;
11:27;
1P 1:8

how can you hope for what is already seen? ²⁵So we hope for what we do not see and we will receive it through patient hope.

• ²⁶We are weak, but the Spirit comes to help us. How to ask? And what shall we ask for? We do not know, but the spirit intercedes for us without words, as if with groans. ²⁷And He who sees inner secrets knows the desires of the Spirit, for he asks for the holy ones what is pleasing to God.

Lk 11:13;
Jas 4:5;
Gal 4:6

1Cor
2:12

Who shall separate us from the love of God?

• ²⁸We know that in everything merely tells us that all creation is guided by the same mystery of death and resurrection which marks our destiny and which the Son of God has taken on himself.

Who has subjected it (v. 20)? Is it God or humans? The result is hardly different. Paul shows us that sin has destroyed the order of nature. Some texts in the Old Testament show us nature standing for God against human crimes (Jer 14; Jn 3:7 and 4:11; Wis 5:17-20). It is certain that humanity has developed with aggressiveness and violence; hence the domination of women by men and the bellicose masculine spirit. Hence a science driven by the will to conquer nature: was not Adam's sin the will to take by force knowledge and happiness?

The Bible notices that the progress of society usually involves exploitation and servitude. Scientific discovery has been used to destroy millions of lives and the progress of the liberal world keeps more people marginalized living in misery than there are living at ease.

Modern science has justly shown that the people are the summit towards which the whole current of life tends. We must not forget that we are brothers/sisters to and in solidarity with all that has life. The Bible does not invite us to dream of a nature brought back to the state of an earthly paradise, to be enjoyed by a few rich people. It does not demand that animals be treated as persons with rights. True love respects the order of creation and the "love of animals" is not a substitute for true and responsible love that knows how to accept and commune with free persons.

The whole of nature has been entrusted to Adam: he must bring it back to God, using it in such a way that he himself becomes an offering to God (Rom 12:1 and 15:7). That is the meaning of the sacrifice of animals in the Old Testament. The growing concern about human responsibilities towards creation opens our eyes to an aspect of sin, but also obliges us to ask where our history is taking us.

Creation groans and suffers the pangs of birth (v. 22). We see in the world more contradictions and tensions than peaceful progress: in fact this earth is not our permanent residence. On the contrary it is a place of sorrow, and dark faith prepares us for what we await from God: we wait for our full status of sons and daughters. Nature cannot but participate with us at this birth (v. 22) of which the passion of Jesus is the sign. It will share in the "liberty and glory of the children of God": it would be difficult to think that resurrected persons will not have a place in a spiritualized and transfigured world.

• ²⁶. We do not know how to pray. We often think that we pray only when we are saying something and asking for things. Paul shows that words are not as important as the deep desire of the Spirit of God within us.

The Spirit intercedes for us. It is good to present our problems and worries to God, using words that the Spirit inspires. And still better when the Spirit invites us to remain in silent prayer and God communicates his peace to us.

• ²⁸. In the last pages Paul has described God's action in us through his Spirit. In fact,

Col 1:15;
Eph 1:11;
2Thes
2:13;
1Cor
15:49;
2Cor
3:18

1Cor 4:9;
2Cor
4:11
Ps 44:23

1Cor
3:22;
Col 2:15

God works for the good of those who love him, whom he has called according to his plan. ²⁹Those whom he knew beforehand, he has also predestined to be like his Son, similar to him, so that he may be the Firstborn among many brothers and sisters. ³⁰And so, those whom God predestined he called, and those whom he called he makes righteous, and to those whom he makes righteous he will give his Glory.

³¹What shall we say after this? If God is with us, who shall be against us? ³²If he did not spare his own Son, but gave him up for us all, how will he not give us all things with him?

Is 50:8
Heb 7:21

³³Who shall accuse those chosen by God: he takes away their guilt. ³⁴Who will dare to condemn them? Christ who died, and better still, rose and is seated at the right hand of God, interceding for us?

³⁵Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Will it be trials, or anguish, persecution or hunger, lack of clothing, or dangers or sword? ³⁶As the Scripture says: For your sake we are being killed all day long; they treat us like sheep to be slaughtered.

³⁷No, in all of this we are more than conquerors, thanks to him who has loved us. ³⁸I am certain that neither death nor life, neither angels nor spiritual powers, neither the present nor the future, nor cosmic powers, ³⁹were they from heaven or from the deep world below, nor any creature whatsoever will separate us from the love of God, which we have in Jesus Christ, our Lord.

Why have the Jews not believed?

9 • I tell you sincerely in Christ, and my conscience assures me in the Holy Spirit that I am not lying:

the providence of the Father covers all the events of our lives. Nothing happens in the world, in our family, in our lives merely by chance or because it was so destined.

Those whom he knew beforehand. Paul stresses the Father's personal attention for each one of us. God knows us in Christ from the beginning of the world: children known before they are born, but also destined for a unique place in creation!

He calls them. Whatever be the way we come to know Christ, it is a personal call of God who gives us the opportunity to believe.

He made them just and upright. God put us in order, in an order pleasing to him. That goes far beyond an ordering on a moral level for those who needed it—and besides such an ordering does not guarantee that we always keep to the right path. More deeply something has been achieved in us, something has been sown in the world: we are the bearers of innumerable orderings from which a new conscience will originate and appear in humanity, during our lifetime or centuries later.

Those whom he knew beforehand (v. 20). On reading this verse some have thought that we are not really free, and that those elected by God are saved automatically. In fact, we do not read that some are elected for salvation, others not. Paul only says that they are elected to know Christ, which is not the same as salvation.

The kingdom of God extends much farther than the Church. The great majority of humankind do not know Christ and the Gospel. Yet God knows how to lead and save them, for the sacrifice of Christ saves all humankind. Paul is addressing believers and reminds them that to believe in Christ is a great personal grace; let them not be discouraged.

See also commentary on 9:14.

Who shall be against us? Paul is thinking of the evil surrounding us that frequently drags us down. He is thinking of the Day of Judgment when the accuser, the Spirit of Evil, could face us with the faults we have committed. He thinks of our troubled conscience that often brings us remorse. None of these will be stronger than the love and forgiveness of Christ. The believer should not be alarmed at his repeated faults or doubt the love of God, but try to live according to the truth.

• 9.1 Paul, being a Jew, shares the worries of the few Jews who have believed in Christ. Why did the chosen people not recognize their Savior? If they were a chosen nation, why were so few selected?

It is the same worry of Catholic families when their children do not go to church or 32:32 ²I have great sadness and constant anguish for the Jews. ³I would even desire that I myself suffer the curse of being cut off from Christ, instead of my brethren: I mean my own people, my kin. ⁴They are Israelites whom God adopted, and on them rests his Glory. Theirs are the covenants, the Law, the worship and the promises of God. ⁵They are descendants of the Patriarchs and from their race Christ was born, he who as God is above all distinctions. Blessed be He forever and ever: Amen!

4:22; 19:5; Is 40:5; 2S 7:14; Eph 2:12

1:3; 1Jn 5:20; Tit 2:13

Num 23:19; Is 55:10

2:28; Mt 3:9; Jn 8:39; Gen 21:12

1Cor 10:18;

⁶We cannot say that the promise of God has failed. For not all Israelites belong to Israel. ⁷And not because they are of the race of Abraham are they all his children, for it was said to him: The children of Isaac will be called your descendants. ⁸This means that the children of God are not identified with the race of Abraham, but only with the children born to him because of the promise of God. ⁹To such a promise this text refers: I shall return about this time and Sarah will have a son. ¹⁰And listen: Rebecca, the wife of our father Isaac, became pregnant, ¹¹and before the twins were born, or had done anything right or wrong, in order that God's purpose of election might continue, ¹²not on the merits but of who is called, she was told: The elder will serve the younger, ¹³as the Scripture says: I chose Jacob and rejected Esau.

Gal 6:16

Gen 18:10

Gen 25:23; 1Thes 1:4; 2P 1:10

Mal 1:2-3

God is not unjust

• ¹⁴Shall we say that God is unjust? Of course not. ¹⁵However God said to Moses: I shall forgive whom I forgive and have pity on whom I

Dt 32:4

33:19

when teenagers declare they have lost their faith. It is the same uneasiness we feel in the course of a mission: those who habitually go to church are perhaps the hardest to lead to conversion and are the ones that most obstruct the evangelization of outsiders.

Faith is not transmitted in heritage from father to son, mother to daughter. There have certainly been times and cultural systems where a whole nation followed the same religion and apparently shared the same faith. The Book of the Acts shows how on several occasions the conversion of the head of the family brought about the baptism of the whole household (Acts 11:14; 16:33). Faith however will always be a grace of God. In our days people have acquired complete autonomy and live in a world where all beliefs meet: faith can no longer be a family possession.

• 14. In this paragraph, Paul already anticipates the objection: "If God calls whomever he wishes, will our act of faith really be free?" (v. 19). This is and will always be a mystery. Paul does not intend to explain this, but asserts that God grants to whomever he wishes the grace of coming to Christ (see Jn 6:44). The experience of his conversion in which God took his freedom by force, as he does with the great prophets, brings him to use very strong words which seem to negate our freedom, especially in verse 22 which can be translated more strongly as: "if God endured with patience vessels prepared to be broken."

We have two observations on this:

Paul uses Old Testament texts in which God speaks of saving or destroying the people of Israel (v. 27), of loving Israel, giving it good land, and of giving poor land to the people of Esau or Edom (v. 13), of making Pharaoh more stubborn to bring him to defeat (v. 17). All these are problems of collective failures or salvation, at the level of history, which Paul employs to clarify a historical fact: a great majority of the Jewish people did not recognize Christ. It would be very risky to draw from these conclusions about the responsibility of those who believe and those who do not. We will fall into a still greater confusion if we would apply this text, as others have done, to individual salvation, and discuss about those who will go to heaven and those who will be condemned. It is clear that this question has nothing to do with the argument of Paul: to know God is a grace which God gives to whomever he wills, but he surely gives other graces that other people be saved without knowing Christ.

Then we take note that all speakers, including Paul, say at times words that are somewhat excessive which will be clarified later by showing other aspects of the same reality. We ought to see other words of Scripture to re-establish have pity. ¹⁶So what is important is not that we worry or hurry, but that God has compassion. ¹⁷And he says in Scripture to Pharaoh: I made you Pharaoh to show my power in you, and for the whole world to know my name. ¹⁸And so God takes pity on whom he wishes, and hardens the heart of whomsoever he wishes.

¹⁹Maybe you say: "Why then does God complain, if it is impossible to evade his decision?" ²⁰But you, my friend, who are you to call God to account? Should the clay pot say to its maker: Why did you make me like this? ²¹Is it not up to the potter to make from the same clay a vessel for beauty and a vessel for menial use?

²²Thus God endures very patiently vessels that deserve his wrath, fit to be broken, and through them he wants to show his wrath and the extent of his power. ²³But he also wants to show the riches of his Glory in others, in vessels of mercy prepared for glory. ²⁴And he called us, not only from among the Jews, but from among the pagans, too, ²⁵as he said through the prophet Hosea: I will call "my people" those that were not my people, and "my beloved" the one who was not beloved. ²⁶And in the same place where they were told: "You are not my people," they will be called children of the living God.

²⁷With regard to Israel, Isaiah proclaims: Even if the Israelites are as

2:4;
3:26Eph 1:4;
2:4Hos 1:9;
2:25

Hos 2:1

Is 6:13;
10:22;
Zep 3:12Tit 3:5;
Phil 3:12;
9:16

4:21

Is 29:16;
Wis
12:12;
Job 11:7;
38:2Jer 18:6;
Is 45:9

the balance. If God calls us to a relationship of love and faithfulness with him (Hos 2:21), it is precisely because we are free and responsible (Sir 15:14). If God has destined someone for hell, how could he call him and demand that he live a holy life? It would be the cruelest of jokes.

PREDESTINATION

We must not confuse two different ideas of predestination.

For Paul, predestination refers to the loving plan of God from the very beginning. It was then that God decided how to lavish on each of us the riches of his love through his Son. See commentary on Ephesians 1:5.

It was not the same for the people of the sixteenth century, like Luther, Calvin and many Catholic theologians with them. They thought that God created man without worrying about his possible sin or providing for the coming of Christ. As a result of Adam's sin, the Justice of God condemned all his descendants to hell. Then the Mercy of God decided to save some of them by sending Jesus. This predestination after the sin would mean that no one could escape this blessing or this curse of God.

Paul, speaking of predestination, only praised God for his overflowing love. They, instead, were obsessed by concern for their own salvation, thinking of a whimsical God who perhaps had destined them to hell. Luther escaped from this obsession by stressing the merciful Jesus more than a frightening God.

In that same despairing century our Lord

Jesus made several apparitions asking people to honor his Sacred Heart, so reminding us that he was only love for us. It is not "Jesus" only who is a loving God. The Father who predestines us is love just as his Son is love.

Speaking of predestination, we say:

– God, who is not controlled by time, has no before or after. He sees and determines at the same time the beginning and the end for each of us. No life fails because of the negligence or bad faith of God (Rom 8:28; James 1:13). No one can prevent his saving plans (Rom 8:37).

– Our salvation is a gift of God. No one can believe and please God unless he has been called (Rom 11:5; Phil 2:13). No one is to be proud of his merits or demand a reward (Eph 2:9; Phil 3:9).

– God is the one who works everything in us, as long as we open ourselves to his action. Those who refuse to be receptive are responsible for their own condemnation. The Church therefore speaks of "predestination" to express this saving work; but she has never spoken of predestination with regard to hell. Compare Matthew 25:34, the kingdom prepared for you, with 25:41, the fire reserved for the Devil.

Only a few will be saved (v. 27). Jews, who have believed in Christ, instead of complaining, should give thanks to God for having called them. God saves the world by means of small groups and, even in the Church, not many people take the Gospel seriously: because this is also a grace of God.

numerous as the sand of the sea, only a few will be saved. ²⁸ This is a matter that the Lord will settle in Israel without fail or delay. ²⁹ Isaiah also announced: If the Almighty Lord had not left us some descendants, we would have become like Sodom and similar to Gomorrah.

³⁰ What are we saying, then? That the pagans who were not aiming at true righteousness found it (I speak of righteousness through faith); ³¹ while Israel, striving to observe a law of righteousness, lost the purpose of the Law. ³² Why? Because they relied on the observance of the Law, not on faith. And they stumbled over the stumbling stone (Christ), ³³ as it was said: Look, I am laying in Zion a stone that will make people stumble, a rock that will make them fall; but whoever relies on him will not be deceived.

They tried to achieve their own perfection

10 ¹ My brothers and sisters, I wish with all my heart that the Jews be saved and I pray to God for them. ² I can testify that they are zealous for God, but this is not the way. ³ They don't know God's way of righteousness and they try to achieve their own righteousness: this is why they did not enter God's way of righteousness. ⁴ For Christ is the aim of the Law and it is then that the believer reaches this righteousness.

⁵ Moses, indeed, speaks of becoming just through the Law; he writes: The one who obeys the Law will find life through it. ⁶ But the righteousness coming from the faith says instead: Do not say in your heart: Who will go up to heaven? (because in fact Christ came down from there) ⁷ or who will go down to the world below? (because in fact Christ came up from among the dead). ⁸ True righteousness coming from faith also says: The word of God is near you, on your lips and in your hearts. This is the message that we preach, and this is faith.

⁹ You are saved if you confess with your lips that Jesus is Lord and in your heart you believe that God raised him from the dead. ¹⁰ By be-

Now Paul explains why the Jews lost the purpose of the Law (v. 31). They wanted to become holy relying on their own efforts. In this, some Christians today resemble them. They feel quite sure of their actions and are content with their lives. This presumption prevents them from seeing themselves as sinners.

They try to achieve their own perfection (v. 3). Many Christians likewise would like to come to God with hands full when, in fact, Christ invites us just to receive. In this way we receive the sacraments, not because we are worthy, but by extending our open hands like beggars.

• 10.1 Paul continues to develop the same theme of Israel's unbelief using the Jewish method of discussion of the time. He distinguishes in the Bible various lines of thought. Apparently a great number of Old Testament texts only speak of fidelity in keeping the commandments but other texts make more of the gratuity of God's gift. This once more makes clear that there is not "one" religion of the Bible: it is not enough to read any text and take it literally (which is called "fundamentalism"). The Bible gives us a series of testimonies where we recognize a path and a pedagogy from God. Throughout the centuries and in different cultures, Jewish and then Greek, he leads his people to the fullness of truth.

We have, perhaps, become used to a "progressive" view of history, rather as if all had to develop or "radiate" from what exists. Yet Jesus has shown that times succeed one another but are not alike. If there is progress, and in a sense that is evident, it happens through upheavals and changes of perspectives.

Even in the Church there have been turning points in the course of last century. We must surely abandon the idea of a Church that, starting from western Christianity would by means of missions gradually extend to the rest of the world. Paul points out a different perspective: the current of grace could desert zones it had

Acts
22:32Cor
3:14;
1Tim
1:14;
Phil 3:9Gal 3:24;
2Cor
3:16;
Heb 8:13

Lev 18:5

Dt 9:4;
30:12

Dt 30:14

Acts
2:36;
1Cor
12:3;
Phil 2:11

Is 1:9

Lk 18:9

Is 28:16;
8:14;
Lk 2:34;
Mt 21:42

lieving from the heart, you obtain true righteousness; by confessing the faith with your lips you are saved.

Is 28:16 ¹¹For Scripture says: No one who believes in him will be ashamed.

Gal 3:28; Acts 10:34 ¹²Here there is no distinction between Jew and Greek; all have the same Lord, who is very generous with whoever calls on him. ¹³Truly, all who call upon the name of the Lord will be saved.

¹⁴But how can they call upon the name of the Lord without having believed in him? And how can they believe in him without having first heard about him? And how will they hear about him if no one preaches about him? ¹⁵And how will they preach about him if no one sends them? As Scripture says: How beautiful are the feet of the messenger of good news.

Is 52:7 ¹⁶Although not everyone obeyed the good news, as Isaiah said: Lord, who has believed in our preaching? ¹⁷So, faith comes from preaching, and preaching is rooted in the word of Christ.

Ps 19:5 ¹⁸I ask: Have the Jews not heard?

But of course they have. Because the voice of those preaching resounded all over the earth and their voice was heard to the ends of the world. ¹⁹Then I must ask: Did Israel not understand? Moses was the first to say: I will make you jealous of a nation that is not a nation, I will excite your anger against a crazy nation. ²⁰Isaiah dares to add more: I was found by those not looking for me, I have shown myself to those not asking for me. ²¹While referring to Israel, the same Isaiah says: I hold out my hands the whole day long to a disobedient and rebellious people.

Dt 32:21

Is 65:1

Is 65:2

A remnant of Israel has been saved

11 • ¹And so I ask: Has God rejected his people? Of course not. I myself am an Israelite, a descendant of Abraham, from the tribe of Benjamin. ²No, God has not rejected the people he knew beforehand. Don't you know what the Scripture says of Elijah when he was accusing Israel before God? ³He

2Cor 11:21; Phil 3:5

1S 12:22; Ps 94:14; Jer 31:37

1K 19:10

previously enriched to make other lands fruitful. He affirms that it is not caprice on God's part; for him it is a matter of bringing the whole of humanity to maturity and he alone knows the way. We note at the same time how he defends the privileged role of the Jewish people. The same could be said of our ancient Christian bastions: their role, much less prominent, surely remains decisive, in as much as a remnant still remains faithful.

THE DESTINY OF THE JEWISH PEOPLE

• 11.1 The two paragraphs 11-24 and 25-32 speak of the destiny of the Jewish people. As Jesus had announced, the Jews were dispersed throughout the world, becoming a nation without territory, united only through its Law, its traditions and the certitude of it being God's chosen people.

In times that still ignored the respect of those of other religions, a great number of Jews formed minority groups in Christian countries. It is a fact that people convinced of being the faithful of the one and only God quite naturally become insupportable to others (Es 9). The Jews then have suffered from Christian fanaticism equal to their own. Christians did not see that their faith condemned religious fanaticism. They thought Israel was being punished for the crime of its ancestors in condemning Jesus: they saw in the tragedy of Israel, as in the survival, a sign from God.

In the course of last century Christians have become conscious of the non-violent character of the Gospel and that their vocation is to be a minority in the world: this has been a big step forward. It is time then to re-evaluate the role of the Jewish people, another minority given a place in history by God. They have not ceased being active in the world, often in saying what we ourselves should have said and did not and do not say. It seems that God willed this emulation between Jews and Christians, as Paul understands it. He clearly affirms that at the end of the world Israel would be reconciled with Christ and that Jews and Christians would recognize that their separate histories are one.

said: “Lord, they have killed your prophets, destroyed your altars, and I alone remain; and now they want to kill me.” ⁴What was God’s answer? “I kept for myself seven thousand who did not worship Baal.” ⁵In the same way now there is a remnant in Israel, those who were chosen by grace. ⁶It is said: by grace, not because of what they did. Otherwise grace would not be grace.

⁷What then? What Israel was looking for, it did not find, but those whom God elected found it. The others hardened their hearts, ⁸as Scripture says: God made them dull of heart and mind; to this day their eyes cannot see nor their ears hear. ⁹David says: May they be caught and trapped at their banquets; may they fall, may they be punished. ¹⁰*May their eyes be closed so that they cannot see and their backs be bent forever.*

Do not despise those who stumbled

¹¹Again I ask: Did they stumble so as to fall? Of course not. Their stumbling allowed salvation to come to the pagan nations and this, in turn, will stir up the jealousy of Israel. ¹²If Israel’s shortcoming made the world rich, if the pagan nations grew rich with what they lost, what will happen when Israel is restored?

¹³Listen to me, you who are not Jews: I am spending myself as an apostle to the pagan nations, ¹⁴but I hope my ministry will be successful enough to awaken the jealousy of those of my race, and finally to save some of them. ¹⁵If the world made peace with God when they remained apart, what will it be when they are welcomed? Nothing less than a passing from death to life.

¹⁶When the first fruits are consecrated to God, the whole is consecrated. If the roots are holy, so will be the branches. ¹⁷Some branches have been cut from the olive tree, while you, as a wild olive tree, have been grafted in their stead, and you are benefiting from their roots and sap. ¹⁸Now therefore, do not be proud and despise the branches, because you do not support the roots, the roots support you. ¹⁹You may say, “They cut off the branches to graft me.” ²⁰Well and good. But they were cut off because they did not believe, while you stand by faith. Then do not pride yourself on this too much, rather beware: ²¹if God did not spare the natural branches, even less will he spare you.

²²Admire at the same time both the goodness and severity of God: he was severe with the fallen and he is generous with you, as long as you remain faithful. Otherwise you will be cut off. ²³If they do not keep on rejecting the faith they will be grafted in, for God is able to graft them back again. ²⁴If you were taken from the wild olive tree to which you belonged and, in spite of being a different species, you were grafted into the good olive tree, it will be much easier and natural for them to be grafted into their own tree.

Israel will be saved

• ²⁵I want you to understand the mysterious decree of God, lest you be too confident: a part of Israel will remain hardened until the majority of pagans have entered. ²⁶Then the

• 25. The destiny of the Jewish people is of great interest to us since we have the same ancestors. The first Christians never thought they were breaking away from the Jewish people (Acts 13:26-32; 26:22). On the contrary, they were the ones who had welcomed the Savior for whom they were all waiting. A new people, not a different one, had started with

1K 19:18

9:6-13

Dt 29:3;
Is 29:10Ps 69:
23-24Mt 8:11;
21:431Cor
9:222Cor
5:17

Eph 2:15

Is 7:9

Is 59:
20-21;
Jer
31:33

whole of Israel will be saved, as Scripture says: *From Zion will come the Liberator who will purify the descendants of Jacob from all sin.*²⁷ And this is the covenant I will make with them: I will take away from them their sins.

²⁸Regarding the Gospel, the Jews are opponents, but it is for your benefit. Regarding election, they are beloved because of their ancestors;²⁹ because the call of God and his gifts cannot be nullified.

³⁰Through the disobedience of the Jews the mercy of God came to you who did not obey God. ³¹They in turn will receive mercy in due time after this disobedience that brought God's mercy to you. ³²So God has submitted all to disobedience, in order to show his mercy to all.

³³How deep are the riches, the wisdom and knowledge of God! His decisions cannot be explained, nor his ways understood! ³⁴*Who has ever known God's thoughts? Who has* *ever been his adviser?*³⁵ *Who has given him something first, so that God had to repay him?*³⁶ For everything comes from him, has been made by him and has to return to him. To him be the glory for ever! Amen.

Christian life: be concerned for others

12¹ I beg you, dearly beloved, by the mercy of God, to give yourselves as a living and holy sacrifice pleasing to God; that is the kind of worship for you, as sensible people. ²Don't let yourselves be shaped by the world where you live, but rather be transformed through the renewal of your mind. You must discern the will of God: what is good, what pleases, what is perfect.

³The grace that God has given me allows me to tell each of you: don't pretend too much but think with sober judgement each according to the measure of faith that God has assigned.

Job 41:3
1Cor 8:6;
Heb 2:10

6:11;
15:16;
1P 2:5

Eph 4:23;
2Cor
3:18;
5:17;
Phil 1:10

2Cor
10:13;
Phil 2:3

Dt 4:37;
Num
23:19

Gal 3:22

1Cor
2:11;
Jer
23:18

Is 40:13

them (Ps 22:32) since they were the remnant of Israel.

Our faith is rooted in historical events, in the Old Testament as well as in the New. This is why the Gospels give a prominent place to the national catastrophe and the destruction of Jerusalem in 70, as Jesus had announced. According to Luke, this tragedy of the rejected Savior will mark the destiny of the Jewish people until the time of the pagans is fulfilled, that is to say, until the end of history (Lk 21:24). The Gospel does not say more.

Here, however, Paul is asking us not to confuse two things. On one hand, God is calling those he wants to know Christ and to believe in him, anywhere in the world; and to them, God entrusts his greatest and most secret works. God may multiply the calls to a given people, as it happened in Christian lands for ten centuries and then God can leave this people outside the great current of faith. In this sense, most Jewish people eschewed that call. However, that cannot cancel God's promises to the Jewish people. God has made them into a special people with a unique mission that they continue to fulfill for the salvation of the world.

This should serve to invite us to rethink our own experience of the Church. Even if there are not many Christians who are conscious of being called by God and of their evangelical vocation, the Church as the Christian people, continues to fulfill its mission: it is necessary for the salvation of the world and the "powers of death will not prevail over it."

• 12.1 Paul here begins the second part of his letter: as in his other letters, he will try to be more practical here than in the first part.

Give yourselves as a living and holy sacrifice pleasing to God. It is not only Sunday that belongs to God—even if the weekly Eucharist is essential to Christian life. It is not only specific duties that we are to accomplish. God wants all that springs from our person.

Don't let yourselves be shaped by the world where you live. We are invaded by propaganda, fashion, and songs without considering the weight of our cherished past. All that is the world: it encloses us in its logic and its would-be necessities. Yet we should be free for our heart to be only for God! We however become accustomed to what everyone does and ⁴• See, the body is one, even if formed by many members, but not all of them with the same function. ⁵The same with us; being many, we are one body in Christ, depending on one another. ⁶Let each one of us, therefore, serve according to our different gifts. Are you a prophet? Then give the insights of faith. ⁷Let the minister fulfill his office; let the teacher teach, ⁸the one who encourages, convince.

¹Cor
12:12;
10:17;
Eph 5:30

You must, likewise, give with an open hand, preside with dedication, and be cheerful in your works of charity.

⁹• Let love be sincere. Hate what is evil and hold to whatever is good. ¹⁰Love one another and be considerate. Outdo one another in mutual respect. ¹¹Be zealous in fulfilling your duties. Be fervent in the Spirit and serve God.

Col 4:2

¹²Have hope and be cheerful. Be patient in trials and pray constantly. ¹³Share with other Christians in need. With those passing by, be ready to receive them.

Eph 6:18;
1P 4:9

¹⁴Bless those who persecute you; bless and do not wish evil on anyone. ¹⁵Rejoice with those who are joyful, and weep with those who weep. ¹⁶Live in peace with one another. Do not dream of extraordinary things; be humble and do not hold yourselves as wise.

Mt 5:38;
1Cor
12:26

¹⁷Do not return evil for evil, but let everyone see your good will. ¹⁸Do your best to live in peace with every-

1Thes
5:15;
1P 3:9

Heb
12:14

still more to the sweet slavery of money. Without being aggressive or pessimistic the Christian will always challenge the world.

Inner renewal must transform you. Before adopting a rule of life, you must first have its spirit. You do not imitate St. Francis by wearing a habit: you must first be shattered by the love of the poor Christ. Christian renewal springs from new criteria, from a new vision of existence, of the modern world and of our liberty. Baptism that makes new Christians of us, initiates a renewal of our spirit enlightened by God. See Ephesians 4:3.

You will know what God wants. Following the best rules is not enough; we must constantly force ourselves to discover, meditate and understand the will of God in all the events of our life.

Take for example our body. See 1 Corinthians 12. We all form one body and we cannot give up our responsibility. Where Christians are very much in a minority, they usually depend a lot on the community that takes much of their time: this is the case Paul has in mind. He stresses that each one has his specific function in the Church: we are far from religious practice where the mass has mostly "listeners" who are silent.

• 4. From the way he speaks about Christian community, Paul lets us know that in his time it was not organized as in our churches today. In the early Church not everything depended upon priests educated apart from the common people and sent to the Christian communities from outside. As we said in Acts 14:23, the community elected a council of elders or presbyters, approved by the apostles. The most respected among them were the "prophets." The body of presbyters, who had authority over the Church, were those who celebrated the Eucharist.

Everybody's gifts were taken into account by the organization, which considered also as gift the ability to serve in the Church. See Ephesians 4:11 and commentaries on 1 Timothy 4:14.

Throughout history the Church has had to change its organization and constantly adjust itself to new social structures and cultural development.

Give with an open hand. Paul passes from the good discharge of ministries to the ministry of love for others.

• 9. Verses 9-13 present a program of Christian life. Rather than the commandments concerning external acts, Paul stresses internal attitudes and dispositions.

Do not return evil for evil (v. 17). A demanding commandment of forgiveness so often formulated by Jesus. It is a false wisdom that would advise us to return evil for evil, mean behavior for mean behavior, a tooth for a tooth... It is also false wisdom (v. 16) to strive to be noticed by adopting customs of a higher social class, or to dream of a life without material problems, or to regard more highly moneyed people, the powerful or good speakers.

Lev
19:18;
Dt 32:35;
Heb
10:30

Pro 25:
21-22

body. ¹⁹Beloved, do not avenge yourselves, but let God be the one who punishes, as Scripture says: Vengeance is mine, I will repay, says the Lord. ²⁰And it adds: If your enemy is hungry, feed him; if he is thirsty, give him to drink; by doing this you will heap burning coals upon his head. ²¹Do not let evil defeat you, but conquer evil with goodness.

Submission to authority

Jn 19:11;
Mt 22:16;
1Tim 2:1;
1P 2:13;
Tit 3:1;
Pro 8:15

13 ¹Let everyone be subject to the authorities. For there is no authority that does not come from God, and the offices have been established by God. ²Whoever, therefore, resists authority goes against a decree of God, and those who resist deserve to be condemned.

³In fact, who fears authority? Not those who do good, but those who do evil. Do you want to be without fear of a person in authority? Do good and you will receive praise. ⁴They are the stewards of God for your good. But if you do not behave, fear them for they do not carry arms in vain; they are at the service of God when they judge and punish wrongdoers.

⁵It is necessary to obey, not through fear but as a matter of conscience. ⁶In the same way you must pay taxes, and the collectors are God's officials. ⁷Pay to all what is due

• 13.1 In the world where Paul lived, many people sought in religion an evasion from their family tasks and social duties (see 2 Thes 3:6-12). Paul stresses the "mystical" aspect of Christian life, but does not want such an evasion, so opposed to all his biblical formation. He will therefore insist on civil obedience in the context of a society far removed from our democracies of today.

This text of Paul has been distorted in the past by authoritarian governments, who after imposing their law by violence, expected to be obeyed as if they were the legitimate servants of God and the public good. It is still distorted today in many places—supposed colonies of imperialist countries; central power sees to the sending of preachers who will invite Christians to be silent in the face of injustice and economic plunder, using this paragraph to support their message. It is quite true that in a sense public servants are "God's agents." But do we not also find in the Bible that the devil gives power to those that serve him (Lk 4:5-7; Rev 13:1-9; Jn 12:31 and 14:30)?

Paul and his readers lived in a world where hardly anyone doubted the legitimacy of Roman authority. And as neither the common good nor peace can exist without authority and obedience, Paul declares that obedience to established authority comes from God. When he speaks of those who resist authority he has in mind those who try to impose their own interests or the interest of the group. What he does not accept is an anti-social attitude, a point that will arise in 1 Peter 2:12 and Titus 3:1 when authority begins to mistrust Christians.

No one may use these words to condemn those who resist for reason of conscience. In any case, it is only to God that a Christian submits his conscience. When the authorities demand something that is against truth and justice, he resists with the means his conscience reveals to him, ready to suffer punishment provided by human laws, and even to give his life. The great majority of the martyrs the Church honors today were condemned in their time as subversive persons and enemies of social order.

They are the stewards of God for your good (v. 4). We have to ask, then, if authority promotes goodness. When the laws favor only a minority, or allow corruption, or are oppressive to the poor, they are not at the service of God: let us remember Isaiah 5:8; 10:1-3; Amos 5:7-12.

The believer recognizes but one Lord: he will not accept that certain magnates become real "lords" capable of eliminating those who oppose their absolute power.

Jesus, for his part, refused to take part in politics (Mk 12:13-17), but he did not speak against those who wished to participate. He was free enough to denounce authority and to break the most sacred laws when they became oppressive.

During the past century the Church has reminded us very often that no authority can deprive a human being of his rights, and that everyone should be careful to elect authorities who serve the common good. In these matters, let us hear the doctrine of the Church: Gaudium et Spes 73-76.

them; to whomever you owe contributions, make a contribution; to whom taxes are due, pay taxes; to whom respect is due, give respect; to whom honor is due, give honor.

Jn 13:34; Col 3:14
 Lev 19:18; 20:13-17; Dt 5:17-21
 1Cor 13:4; Mt 19:18
 8 Do not be in debt to anyone. Let this be the only debt of one to another: Love. The one who loves his or her neighbor fulfilled the Law. 9 For the commandments: Do not commit adultery, do not kill, do not covet and whatever else are summarized in this one: You will love your neighbor as yourself. 10 Love cannot do the neighbor any harm; so love fulfills the whole Law.

Children of the light

Eph 5:8; 1Thes 5:4; 1Cor 7:26
 11 You know what hour it is. This is the time to awake, for our salvation is now nearer than when we first believed; 12 the night is almost over and day is at hand. Let us discard, therefore, everything that belongs to darkness, and let us put on the armor of light. 13 As we live in the full light of day, let us behave with decency; no banquets with drunkenness, no promiscuity or licentiousness, no fighting or jealousy. 14 Put on, rather, the Lord Jesus Christ, and do not be led by the will of the flesh nor follow its desires.

The weak and the strong

14 1 Welcome those weak in faith and do not criticize their scruples. 2 Some think they can eat any food, while others, less liberated, eat only vegetables. 3 If you eat, do not despise those who abstain; if you abstain, do not criticize those who eat, for God has welcomed them. 4 Who are you to pass judgment on the servant of another? Whether he stands or falls, the one concerned is his master. But he will not fall, for his master is able to keep him standing.

1Cor 10:25

Jas 4:11; Mt 7:1

5 Some judge one day to be better than the other; let us act according to our own opinion. 6 The one who distinguishes among days does that for the Lord; and the one who eats, eats for the Lord and in eating gives thanks to the Lord. And the one who does not eat does it for the Lord and gives him thanks as well.

Gal 4:10; Col 2:16

1Cor 10:30; 1Tim 4:4

7 In fact, none of us lives for himself, nor dies for himself. 8 If we live, we live for the Lord, and if we die, we die for the Lord. Either in life or in death, we belong to the Lord; 9 It was

1Cor 3:23; 2Cor 5:15

• 11. You know what hour it is. This is the time to awake. Paul was just recalling the duties of a Christian in this world and he already turns to the opposite direction: beware of settling down in this world. The Christian is always awaiting the coming of Christ.

During the first thirty years of the Church, all waited for the imminent return of Jesus. When it became clear to them that history was being extended, they began thinking more of each one's last end: it was then that they would meet Christ. In the present century we have come to realize that history is going towards an end and that we not only have to be ready for the last hour, but that we must also work for the evangelization of the world. The Gospel is the power that, directly or indirectly, brings all human history to maturity; by living holy and responsible lives we hasten the coming of the kingdom of God (2 P 3:11-12).

• 14.1 Were the people in Paul's audience really different from us? Reminding them of great truths, were they capable of smoothing the blocks that make community life so difficult?

Welcome those weak in faith. The Christians of Rome were mainly recruited among foreigners. Jews or Greeks came from different cultures and religions and had not wholly rejected their ancient customs. If the Jews wanted special meat, the vegetarians for their part would only complicate the problem. If the Jews had their Sabbath, others had their days of "fasting" and days of ill omen. In the beginning people were courteous towards one another; but then with time and pride, they did not fail to provoke a neighbor "in a spirit of faith."

Paul reminds us of what Jesus had taught (Mk 7:19): there is no food or drink that is for-

Acts 10:42 for this purpose that Christ both died and come to life again to be Lord both of the living and of the dead.

10 Then you, why do you criticize your brother or sister? And you, why do you despise them? For we will all appear at the tribunal of God. 11 It is written: I swear by myself—word of the Lord—every knee will bend before me, and every tongue shall give glory to God. 12 So each of us will account for himself before God.

13 Therefore, let us not continue criticizing one another; let us try, rather, never to put in the way of our brother anything that would make him stumble or fall. 14 I know, I am sure of this in the Lord Jesus, that nothing is unclean in itself, it is only unclean for those who consider it unclean. 15 But if you hurt your brother or sister because of a certain food, you are no longer walking according to love. Let not your eating cause the loss of one for whom Christ died.

16 Don't put yourself in the wrong with something good. 17 The kingdom of God is not a matter of food or drink; it is justice, peace and joy in the Holy Spirit, 18 and if you serve Christ in this way, you will please God and be praised by people. 19 Let us look, then, for what strengthens peace and makes us better.

20 Do not destroy the work of God because of food. All food is clean, but it is wrong for you to make others fall by what you eat. 21 And it may be better not to eat meat, or drink wine, or anything else that causes your brother or sister to stumble.

22 Keep your own belief before God, and happy are you if you never act against your own belief. 23 Instead, whoever eats something in spite of his doubt is condemned by his conscience, because whatever we do against our conscience is sinful.

15 1 We, the strong and liberated, should bear the weakness of those who are not strong, instead of pleasing ourselves. 2 Let each of us bring joy to our neighbors helping them for the good purpose, for building up. 3 Christ himself did not look for his own contentment, as Scripture says: The insults of those insulting you fell upon me. 4 And we know that whatever was written in the past was written for our instruction, for both perseverance and comfort given us by the Scripture sustain our hope. 5 May God, the source of all perseverance and comfort, give to all of you to live in peace in Christ Jesus, 6 that you may be able to praise in one voice God, Father of Christ Jesus, our Lord.

• 7 Welcome, then, one another, as Christ welcomed you for the glory of God. 8 Look: Christ put himself at the service of the Jewish world to fulfill bidden. Paul rejects, however, the disputes about all these things. Do not criticize their scruples. Whoever has overcome common prejudices must respect the conscience of others. Each must sacrifice his own comfort for the well-being of others when this is required. We find similar difficulties when Christians of different backgrounds, races or political groups have to live together. It is an opportunity for them to show respect for one another.

Whatever we do against our conscience is sinful (v. 23): an important affirmation of the liberty of conscience. Perhaps it is often forgotten; but St. Thomas Aquinas himself reminds us that no law or religious authority should be followed against our conscience. It is, therefore, a grave responsibility to acquire good criteria through readings, conversations, reading the Bible, knowing that the Spirit is at work in all the life of the Church.

• 15.7 In this twofold attitude of God toward the Jews and the “nations,” that is to say non-Jews, Paul sees a manifestation of the two

1Cor 8:13

Jas 4:17

Ps 69:10

1Cor 10:11;
2Tim 3:16;
1Mac 12:9

Phil 2:2

Ps 18:50 the promises made by God to their ancestors; here you see God's faithfulness. ⁹The pagans instead give thanks to God for his mercy, as Scripture says: Because of that, I will sing and praise your name among the pagans. ¹⁰And in another place: Rejoice, pagan nations, with God's people. ¹¹And again: Praise the Lord, all people and let all nations speak of his magnificence. ¹²Isaiah says: A descendant of Jesse will come who will rule the pagan nations and they will hope in him.

Dt 32:43

Ps 117:1

Is 11:10

¹³May God, the source of hope, fill you with joy and peace in the faith, so that your hope may increase by the power of the Holy Spirit.

Paul feels responsible for the Christians of Rome

- ¹⁴As for me, brothers and sisters, I am convinced that you have goodwill, knowledge and the capacity to advise each other; ¹⁵nevertheless I have written boldly in some parts of this letter to remind you of what you already know. I do this ac-ording to the grace God has given to me ¹⁶when I was sent to the pagan nations. I dedicated myself to the service of the Good News of God as a minister of Christ Jesus, in order to present the non-Jews to God as an agreeable offering consecrated by the Holy Spirit. ¹⁷This service of God is for me a cause of pride in Christ Jesus.

1:9;
12:1;
Phil 2:17

¹⁸Of course, I would not dare to speak of other things but what Christ himself has done through me, my words and my works, ¹⁹with miracles and signs, by the power of the Holy Spirit—so that non-Jews may obey the faith. In this way I have extended the Good News to all parts, from Jerusalem to Illyricum.

²⁰I have been very careful, however, and I am proud of this, not to preach in places where Christ is already known, and not to build upon foundations laid by others. ²¹Let it be as Scripture says: Those not told about him will see, and those who have not heard will understand.

2Cor
10:15

Is 52:15

great qualities that prophetic tradition attributes to God: grace and fidelity. What Paul is saying here certainly goes beyond the case of Jews and non-Jews. Two applications of this can be given.

First, for the Christian community. As Jesus stated to the Pharisees, we know that no elitist group by itself constitutes Jesus' Church. It can only be in the truth if it constantly has two groups, on one hand, those who have matured in fidelity, inheriting the faith and sacrifices of their parents and persevering in the community and on the other hand, those who come from the outside and who have undergone a strong personal conversion. Naturally, this creates conflicts and it requires sacrifices from everyone but this is where God likes to work.

In addition, this text helps us to understand that God only reveals himself to a minority while at the same time, God was saving all human beings.

- 14. Here we see how gentle Paul was. He has the authority of an apostle of Christ and is able to solve the problems of the Church of Rome. Yet, he takes great care not to create divisions or rivalries, and he shows respect for the founders and leaders of the Roman community.

As a minister of Christ (v. 16). This term must not be interpreted as meaning what we understand by the Church's priests. The first Christians did not use the word priest to designate their ministers, in order not to confuse them with the Jewish or pagan ministers who offered victims to God. Here, however, Paul compares himself to them. He does not present burnt offerings to God, but instead, he presents the pagans and reconciles them to God. This is the new and spiritual worship (12:1) that the apostles offer to God.

Still today there is danger of forgetting the difficult and often misinterpreted work of reconciling persons who have become both liberated and aware of their human worth. Only those who dedicate themselves to this evangelization can rightly celebrate the Eucharist.

Help for the Christians in Jerusalem

•²² This work has prevented me from going to you. ²³ But now there is no more place for me in these regions, and as I have wanted for so long to go and see you, ²⁴ I hope to visit you when I go to Spain. Then you could help me go to that nation, once I have fully enjoyed your company.

²⁵ Right now I am going to Jerusalem to help that community. ²⁶ Know that the churches of Macedonia and Achaia have decided to make a contribution for the poor among the believers of Jerusalem. ²⁷ They have decided to do that and, in fact, they were indebted to them. For the non-Jews have shared the spiritual goods of the Jews and now they must help them materially. ²⁸ So I am to complete this task and give over the amount that has been collected. Then I will go to you and from there to Spain. ²⁹ And I am sure that when I go to you, I will go with all the blessings of God.

³⁰ I beg of you, brothers and sisters, by Christ Jesus our Lord and by the love of the Spirit, to join me in the fight, praying to God for me; ³¹ pray that I may avoid the snares of the enemies of faith in Judea, and that the community of Jerusalem may welcome the help I bring. ³² And so I will go to you with joy and, God willing, be refreshed in your company. ³³ The God of peace be with you. Amen.

Greetings

16 • ¹ I recommend to you our sister Phoebe, deaconess of the church of Cenchreae. ² Please receive her in the name of the Lord, as it should be among brothers and sisters in the faith, and help her in whatever is necessary, because she helped many, among them, myself.

³ Greetings to Prisca and Aquilas, my helpers in Christ Jesus. ⁴ To save my life, they risked theirs; I am very grateful to them, as are all the churches of the pagan nations. ⁵ Greetings also to the church that meets in their house. Greetings to my dear Epaenetus, the first in the province of Asia to believe in Christ. ⁶ Greet Mary, who worked so much for you.

⁷ Greetings to Andronicus and Junias, my relatives and companions

• 22. The trip to Spain would mean going farther than Rome, center of the known world. This gives us an idea of how zealous Paul was in creating new communities in all parts of the world, without waiting for the newly founded ones to attain perfection. Today the mission is not beyond Rome or overseas: every Christian community should investigate beyond the frontiers of a “nice” area where a person feels at home. Then, perhaps, millions of others would be discovered who live at close range but nevertheless are “far way.”

I am going to Jerusalem to help that community. The attempt of the Jerusalem community to have common ownership of all their possessions had failed (Acts 2:44). So Paul organizes a collection for them in all the Greek communities, hoping this caring assistance would strengthen the links between Christians of Greek origin and Jewish Christians. It is often difficult to avoid tensions in the Church between groups of different cultures or classes. Quite often, it is even difficult to dialogue. Then the service of love will make hearts agree where minds cannot come to an understanding.

• 16.1 This last chapter of the letter to the Romans is not found in the oldest existing papyrus of Paul’s letters. It only has the final hymn 16:25-27. On the other hand, it seems that this chapter was added after the blessing of 15:33. Throughout this letter, Paul was very calmly and prudently addressing a church he did not know and had not founded and suddenly, he is sending greetings to countless persons close to him. A little later, Paul issued a strong warning (vv. 17-19).

The most convincing explanation is that Paul wrote this letter to the Romans from Corinth. He must have sent a copy to Ephesus that he had left the previous year. The version

Acts
19:21;
2Cor
8–9;
Gal 2:10

1Cor
9:11;
Gal 6:6

2Cor
13:11;
Phil 4:9

Acts
18:18

Acts
18:2;
18:26

in prison; they are well known apostles and served Christ before I did.

⁸Give greetings to Ampliatus, whom I love so much in the Lord.

⁹Greetings to Urbanus, our fellow worker, and to my dear Stachys.

¹⁰Greetings to Apelles, who suffered for Christ, and the family of Aristobulus.

¹¹Greetings to my relative Herodion and those in the household of Narcissus, who works in the Lord's service.

¹²Greetings to Tryphaena and Tryphosa, who toil for the Lord's sake.

¹³Greetings to Rufus, elected of the Lord, and his mother who was a second mother to me. ¹⁴Greetings to Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermes, Patrobas, Hermas and the brothers and sisters staying with them. ¹⁵Greetings to Philologus and Julia, Nereus and his sister, Olympas and all the holy ones in Christ Jesus with them.

¹⁶Greet one another with a holy kiss. All the churches of Christ send their greetings.

A warning

• ¹⁷Brothers and sisters, I beg of you to be careful of those who are causing divisions and troubles in teaching you a different teaching from the one you were taught. Keep away from them, ¹⁸because those persons do not serve Christ our Lord, but their own interests, deceiving with their soft and entertaining language those who are simple of heart.

¹⁹Everybody knows that you are very obedient, and because of that I am happy, but I want you to be sensible in doing good and firm against evil. ²⁰The God of peace will soon crush Satan and place him under your feet.

May Christ Jesus, our Lord, bless you. ²¹Timothy, who is with me, sends you greetings, and so do Lucius, Jason and Sosipatros, my relatives.

²²I, Tertius, the writer of this letter, send you greetings in the Lord.

²³Greetings from Gaius, who has given me lodging and in whose house the church meets. Greetings from Erastus, treasurer of the city, and from our brother Quartus. (²⁴)

²⁵Glory be to God!

He is able to give you strength, according to the Good News I proclaim, announcing Christ Jesus.

Now is revealed the mysterious plan kept hidden for long ages in the past.

²⁶By the will of the eternal God it is brought to light, through the prophetic books, and all nations shall believe the faith proclaimed to them.

²⁷Glory to God, who alone is wise, through Christ Jesus, for ever! Amen.

1:8;
1Cor
14:21

Phil 4:9;
Gen 3:15

Mk
15:21

1Cor
16:20;
2Cor
13:12;
1Thes
5:26

Tit 1:10;
3:10

Phil 3:19

Eph 3:20;
Col 1:26

Rev 10:7;
Rom 1:5;
2Cor
10:5;
Rev 7:12;
Eph 3:21

intended for the Romans was that of the old papyrus, while the longer traditional text was the copy sent to Ephesus. Paul must have added this personal page.

• 16.17 Brothers and sisters, I beg of you to be careful. There is no letter of Paul without this warning against divisions and against those who preach a "different Gospel."

The doctrine of the Church is the doctrine of the apostles, the witnesses of Jesus. There is a hierarchy, that is, a legally constituted authority, and Paul demands obedience in matters of faith.

The last sentence is a prayer of thanksgiving to God. It is similar to another prayer, more developed, with which he begins the letter to the Ephesians.

PAGE 1688 – BLANK

THE RISEN CHRIST: HAS JESUS OF NAZARETH BEEN DISTORTED?

Jesus' figure, as it emerges from the gospels of Matthew, Mark and Luke, is the figure of a rabbi, a teacher of the Law in the purest tradition of the people of Israel (Jn 3:2). Although, later on, the first Christian Community gave more importance to the conflicts with the Pharisees than actually occurred, they did not forget that Jesus' teaching was very close to the teaching of the Pharisees on many points (Mk 2:16; 12:28; 12:32). Both disciples and opponents saw him as a self-taught master of the law (Jn 7:15). How then did we go from there to the figure of Christ as it appears particularly in Paul's letters: the Lord of history, the new Adam, the one who received the ineffable "Name"?

The apostles believed in the resurrection of Jesus and so did the entire Christian community who were born of this conviction. There was no doubt that he was the Messiah; people also believed that he was God's Son in a very special sense, different from what the Jews understood by this term. A long time was needed to draw all the inferences from this. This passage was undoubtedly more difficult for those who had known Jesus personally and who had seen him through the eyes of their Jewish culture, not because Jesus was not utterly Jewish, including his way of teaching, but because what they loved in him was preventing them from seeing beyond.

They certainly recognized themselves in James' letter, the most "Jewish" of the apostolic writings. While acknowledging Jesus as "our Lord," the author of the letter sees Jesus first as the teacher of a new law which included the best of the Old Testament (2:1 and 8). With the help of the impact of the Nazareth group, the "brothers of Jesus," the Christian communities of Palestine would grow fond of this image they had of the Galilean rabbi. He had risen, of course, but he had not set the world clock back to zero, and his heritage was first of all an example of doing good, not just teaching the Law.

Within just a few generations, these "Judeo-Christians" would find themselves like strangers to the faith of the Church whose center had moved from Jerusalem to Antioch, then to Rome. It is there that Paul played a decisive role that he himself did not choose. He did not invent Christ the Lord and Redeemer: he was already present in Peter's first proclamations (Acts 2:32-36; 3:15). Paul, however, had not been influenced (and at the same time limited) by the image and the words of the Galilean rabbi. On the contrary, his conversion had been an encounter with God himself in the person of Jesus, and he saw the Master's itinerant preaching as the first stage of a wider destiny (2 Cor 5:16).

If Jesus had not risen, he would have remained a teacher; until then, his words were perhaps more important than he himself was. But his body disappeared from the tomb; this first-ever happening, if true, did not fit into the laws of the universe. So the visions of the resurrected one conveyed but one message: Jesus, the Lord! This went far beyond Jeremiah exultant in glory or Elijah taken up to heaven. On the day of Pentecost Peter said that God had raised his holy servant (Act 3:15) and he added: "God has made him Lord." Before long Jesus will be recognized as "the son of the woman taken up to heaven to seize the book of history" (Rev 12:5; 5:7). Paul and John have authority to speak about him because they are true witnesses; both of them were privileged to get a glimpse of the above (Rev 4:1; 2 Cor 12:2).

From that moment, it was knowing who Jesus was that gave the understanding of his words, because he was God born of God. From that point on, his whole human adventure was a new beginning.

Therefore, when Paul speaks of Christ as the “image of God” (Col 1:15), he is not primarily inviting us to find the goodness of the Father in Jesus’ gestures: instead he is thinking more directly about the Son who, from the beginning, is the manifestation, the projection and the active wisdom of the forever invisible God. Christ is the one who passed through our history and our time so that, through him, all of creation including humankind would be seen as part of the divine mystery (Col 1:20).

In the gospels, Jesus chose to be the proclaimer of the Reign of God. With Paul, however, there is not just Kingdom, but our life in the risen Christ (Col 3:1). There we see the gap between Christian faith and the position of the non-Christian Jews who were the most sympathetic toward Jesus and acknowledged him as one of their own. Paul was not the one who built a wall of misunderstanding; the scandal was found in Jesus’ resurrection as well as in his death on the cross.

These are not less scandalous for today’s Christians. Although we have faith, at times we are besieged by doubt: is all of that certain? Many books written by unbelievers, or even by educated Christians, will reinforce our doubts: “The resurrection? There is no other basis than an empty tomb – and do we even know that? Yet, all these reasons do not overcome a deep-seated conviction in the hearts of believers. Then, people interpreted; they believed; they saw.... To say that he had risen was a way of exalting him and of reasserting the hope of the community...” A sense of God tells them that truth is found in the mystery rather than in the interpretations that seek to do away with it (1 Jn 2:27).

We have just said “a sense of God,” because it is not a matter of human feeling: we believe, which means first of all that we receive the testimony of the apostles and of the Church, and we believe the way they did. If we welcome faith, God will not leave us alone with our doubts, there is also an added promise: the gift of the Holy Spirit (Acts 2:18). There can be no lasting faith without a spiritual experience (Heb 12:18-24), and this is even truer for those living in a culture impervious to faith, as we are.

Some persons praise the first Christians as if they had been models of all virtue. In fact, there were no more miracles then than now. Here as elsewhere, Paul addresses men and women living in a world as real as our own. Corinth had its own particular character among the Mediterranean cities. Situated on a tongue of land separating two gulfs, it had the best part of its privileged site. The two ports of the east and west had been joined by a kind of paved way on which boats were pulled by means of enormous wagons drawn by bullocks. This spared sailors having to detour to Greece by the south: a very long voyage at the time and very dangerous. Obviously it had to be paid for; this financially benefited the town; it also needed labor which meant many slaves. The city had a sanctuary dedicated to the goddess Aphrodite, the goddess of “love” for the Greeks, around which had developed (with the help of money) a prostitution that had nothing sacred about it other than its name. The prostitutes were counted in the thousands. Quite near Corinth, there was a sportive celebration—rather similar to the Olympic Games of our day—every two years. This drew large crowds of people. We notice in these two letters of Paul very clear allusions to these different aspects of Corinthian history: slavery, prostitution, stadium sports.

In Corinth, there existed a dynamic, though not well ordered Church, composed of Jews and Greeks converted by Paul. Many of them were in danger of returning to the vices of their former lives, once the enthusiasm of their first years as Christians had worn off. Those responsible in the Church apparently were not capable of dealing with many problems: internal divisions and doubts about faith. They therefore called upon Paul, who wrote the present letter, because he could not interrupt his work in Ephesus.

We notice the authority with which Paul, from afar, leads the Church in the name of Christ; also his manner of teaching: before answering any question, he reasserts the foundations of the faith.

The Corinthians, in the midst of a pagan world, were concerned about matters that are again relevant in our times:

- about celibacy and marriage,
- about living together with those who do not share the Christian faith,
- about conducting the assemblies, for both the celebration of the eucharist and the use of “spiritual gifts,”
- about the resurrection of the dead.

Rom 1:1;
Gal 1:1Acts
5:11Acts
2:21;
Rom
10:13

1 • ¹From Paul, called to be an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, and from Sosthenes, our brother, ²to God's Church which is in Corinth; to you whom God has sanctified in Christ Jesus and called to be holy, together with those who everywhere call upon the name of our Lord Christ Jesus, their Lord and ours.

³Receive grace and peace from God our Father, and Christ Jesus our Lord.

⁴I give thanks constantly to my God for you and for the grace of God given to you in Christ Jesus. ⁵For you have been fully enriched in him with words as well as with knowledge, ⁶even as the testimony concerning Christ was confirmed in you. ⁷You do not lack any spiritual gift and only await the glorious coming of Christ Jesus, our Lord. ⁸He will keep you steadfast to the end, and you will be without reproach on the day of the coming of our Lord Jesus. ⁹The faithful God will not fail you after calling you to this fellowship with his Son, Christ Jesus, our Lord.

Divisions among the faithful

• ¹⁰I beg of you, brothers, in the name of Christ Jesus, our Lord, to agree among yourselves and do away with divisions; please be perfectly united, with one mind and one judgment.

Lk 17:30;
Phil 3:20;
1P 1:71Thes
5:24;
Heb
10:23;
Rom
8:17Rom
12:16;
2Cor
13:11;
Phil 2:2

• 1.1 From Paul called to be an apostle... to God's church in Corinth... with those who everywhere call upon the name of our Lord Christ Jesus. With these three expressions Paul defends his authority. He reminds the Corinthians, so easily entrenched in their rivalries, that they are part of a greater reality, the Universal Church of God.

Called to be holy. You have to become holy, but you already are. Holy, in the biblical sense, is the person or thing that belongs to God. The baptized have been consecrated to God and form part of the people who belong to God, the assembly of the holy ones, which is the Church.

God's call does not allow them to remain as they are. Their conscience readily adapted to the moral norms of their milieu, but now, God's call demands a renunciation of a certain vision of existence based on 'the natural.' They will have to be orientated, as best they can, towards an ideal of life found in the person of Christ.

In Christ. A single Greek preposition used by Paul is to be translated into English as in or through or with, according to the case. "In Christ" has many meanings:

– We are sons and daughters of God, made after the image of the only Son of God, and God loves us in Christ.

– God the Father saves us through Christ.

– The Father calls us to share with Christ his inheritance.

– We have become part of the body of Christ; we live in Christ and have received his Spirit.

– The word "Christian," used for the first time in Antioch (Acts 11:26) to denote the disciples of Christ, was still not widely used; often in Christ means Christian. So "marry in Christ" signified "to marry in a Christian way."

See Paul's acts of thanksgiving in verses 4-9: what certitude of riches present in a community where all is far from perfect!

In his advice to the Corinthians, Paul shows us how to act when reviewing the activities of our parish or our apostolic group. Instead of being discouraged by the problems we face and accusing one another when something fails, the first thing to do is to remember what we already have in common.

These communities, in fact, like our own had to face their problems and their weakness. Each generation of Christians must learn to follow Jesus and "build Church," or better still "be Church."

He will keep you steadfast to the end (v. 8). The hope that maintains the "tone" of faith is the return of Christ. The first Christian generation expected to witness his glorious coming; he would judge the world and take his own with him (1 Thes 4:13).

• 10. The first sin of the Church is the division among believers. Several apostles (see 12:28) passed through Corinth. Certain members of the community profited by this to affirm their own identity by declaring allegiance to one leader rather than another: a way of satisfying vanity and the need of self-assertion.

Agree among yourselves and do away with divisions (v. 10): be a united family. This ¹¹For I heard from people of Cloe's house about your rivalries.

¹²What I mean is this: some say, I am for Paul, and others: I am for Apollo, or I am for Peter, or I am for Christ.

¹³Is Christ divided or have I, Paul, been crucified for you? Have you been baptized in the name of Paul?

¹⁴I thank God that I did not baptize any of you, except Crispus and Gaius, ¹⁵so that no one can say that he was baptized in my name. ¹⁶Well, I have also baptized the Stephanas family. Apart from these, I do not recall having baptized anyone else.

The folly of the cross

• ¹⁷For Christ did not send me to baptize, but to proclaim his Gospel. And not with beautiful words! That would be like getting rid of the cross of Christ. ¹⁸The language of the cross remains nonsense for those who are lost. Yet for us who are saved, it is the power of God, ¹⁹as Scripture says: I will destroy the wisdom of the wise and make fail the foresight of the foresighted. ²⁰Masters of human wisdom, educated people, philosophers, you have no reply! And the wisdom of this world? God let it fail.

²¹At first God spoke the language of wisdom, and the world did not know God through wisdom. Then God thought of saving the believers through the foolishness that we preach.

²²The Jews ask for miracles and the Greeks for a higher knowledge, ²³while we proclaim a crucified Messiah. For the Jews, what a great scandal! And for the Greeks, what nonsense! ²⁴But he is Christ, the power of God and the wisdom of God for those called by God among both Jews and Greeks.

²⁵In reality, the "foolishness" of God is wiser than humans, and the "weakness" of God is stronger than humans.

²⁶Brothers and sisters, look and see whom God has called. Few

Is 33:18
(LXX);
19:12

Mt 12:38;
16:1;
Jn 2:18;
4:48;
6:30

3:23;
2Cor
10:7

Acts
18:8;
Rom
16:23

2Cor
2:15;
Rom
1:16

Is 29:14;
Ps 33:10

admonition is understood when the Church is a community sharing the same concerns. It is a little different when the church gathers together large numbers of people of different backgrounds who are perhaps opposed to one another in daily life. In this case the Christian community must be united, not by ignoring reality and never talking of inequalities, but by recognizing individual and collective faults in daily life. The Church can never be a reunion of passive or "heavenly" people.

I am for Peter (v. 12). Paul says "for Cephas" like in 3:22; this was the aramaic nickname Jesus gave him. Apollo: see Acts 18:24.

• 17. Christ did not send me to baptize (v. 17). When the Church is fully absorbed in its own problems, Paul reminds them of their mission: Is our first concern to preach the Gospel, or to dispute for the posts of guides and ministers of the community?

Even if these Christians in Corinth are not great "intellectuals," as good Greeks that they are, they enjoy fine discourses and want to be seen as cultured persons. At this time throughout the Roman Empire people are in search of esoteric doctrines and some people in the Church see in faith the means of acceding to a higher knowledge. So Paul will tell them that all Christian wisdom is contained in the cross.

That would be like getting rid of the cross of Christ (v. 17). The cross should be present in the message we preach and in the way we preach it.

Moreover in evangelization it will always cost us to work with poor resources in a world subject to media. We need to count on the grace of God because we are weak and without titles of prestige. It will cost us to remind our communities of the poverty of Jesus and to be criticized by those who are well off in the world.

See whom God has called (v. 26). The Church of Corinth is formed of ordinary people: this is their strength. Everybody has his place and his mission in the Church. Ordinary people and poor communities, often persecuted and calumniated, have a primary role in the evangelization of the world. God wants them to evangelize the rich and at times, even the hierarchy.

14:25;
1Thes
1:5

among you can be said to be cultured or wealthy, and few belong to noble families. ²⁷Yet God has chosen what the world considers foolish, to shame the wise; he has chosen what the world considers weak to shame the strong. ²⁸God has chosen common and unimportant people, making use of what is nothing to nullify the things that are, ²⁹so that no mortal may boast before God. ³⁰But, by God's grace you are in Christ Jesus, who has become our wisdom from God, and who makes us just and holy and free. ³¹Scripture says: Let the one who boasts boast of the Lord.

Col 2:3

Jer 9:23;
2Cor
10:17;
Gal 6:4

ful and trembling; ⁴my words and preaching were not brilliant or clever to win listeners. It was, rather, a demonstration of the Spirit and of power, ⁵so that your faith might be a matter, not of human wisdom, but of God's power.

The Spirit teaches us wisdom

• ⁶In fact, we do speak of wisdom to the mature in faith, although it is not a wisdom of this world or of its rulers, who are doomed to perish. ⁷We teach the mystery and secret plan of divine wisdom, which God destined from the beginning to bring us to Glory.

Heb
5:12;
Col 2:15

Rom
16:25;
Eph 1:9;
Col 1:26

2 • ¹When I came to reveal to you the mystery of God's plan I did not count on eloquence or on a show of learning. ²I was determined not to know anything among you but Jesus, the Messiah, and a crucified Messiah. ³I myself came weak, fear-

⁸No ruler of this world ever knew this; otherwise they would not have crucified the Lord of Glory. ⁹But as Scripture says: Eye has not seen, ear has not heard, nor has it dawned on the mind what God has prepared for those who love him. ¹⁰God has re-

Is 64:3

• 2.1 I myself came weak, fearful and trembling. Paul indeed must have felt weak when for the first time he was bringing the Gospel to a brilliant Greek city well used to slavery and immorality. We experience the same feelings towards the evangelization of the modern world; preparation is important but what is it to prepare ourselves? Paul invites us to accept the mystery of the cross and to find there the strength of the Spirit.

It was a demonstration of the Spirit and of power (v. 4). The power of Spirit, the power of prayer, the power of suffering. The Spirit is poured out after Jesus has suffered and died. With him, we can expect everything. Healings and miracles are worthless (and the devil takes advantage of them) unless they affirm faith in Jesus crucified, acting through the humble, and present in the poor.

• 6. Paul never intended to be considered a wise or eminent speaker by his audience. Yet he speaks of wisdom to the mature in faith (v. 6). The text says in more precise terms: "to the perfect ones." At that time, several religions were calling "perfect" any believer who had received some secret information not given to all the members of the sect. In the Church also some considered themselves as belonging to a higher class of believers because of gifts of the Spirit they had received, especially if they were able to speak endlessly on matters of faith.

Paul opposes them with his own gifts as prophet and apostle. He is capable of teaching these essential truths which need few words but which can only be presented by those who have experienced the living God. What are these secrets? Firstly, what God is for us and what God wishes to give us (vv. 7 and 12).

Christian faith proposes that which no human doctrine, no religion could have given us. At times, comparing ourselves with those who follow a spiritual way outside Christianity, it would seem that we are saying the same thing with different words. This is partly true regarding our attitudes and our choices in life, but we should not be afraid to confess the riches God has given us in Christ: his Spirit gives us what no one has ever penetrated.

Such knowledge is not intellectual, it is a gift of the Spirit that sows and develops in us the one and only truth. It is very difficult to give an explanation of a truly spiritual experience. We can only speak of wisdom to those who have attained a certain spiritual level. That is why vealed it to us, through his Spirit, because the Spirit probes everything, even the depth of God.

¹¹Who but his own spirit knows the secrets of a person? Similarly, no one but the Spirit of God knows the secrets of God. ¹²We have not received the spirit of the world, but the Spirit who comes from God and, through him, we understand what God in his goodness has given us.

¹³So we speak of this, not in terms inspired by human wisdom, but in a language taught by the Spirit, explaining a spiritual wisdom to spiritual persons. ¹⁴The one who remains on the psychological level does not understand the things of the Spirit. They are foolishness for him and he does not understand because they require a spiritual experience. ¹⁵On the other hand, the spiritual person judges everything but no one judges him. ¹⁶*Who has known the mind of God so as to teach him?* But we have the mind of Christ.

There are many workers, the building is one

3 ¹I could not, friends, speak to you as spiritual persons but as fleshly people, for you are still infants in Christ. ²I gave you milk and not solid food, for you were not ready for it and up to now you cannot receive it ³for you are still of the flesh. As long as there is jealousy and strife, what can I say but that you are at the level of the flesh and behave like ordinary people.

⁴While one says: "I follow Paul," and the other: "I follow Apollos," what are you but people still at a human level?

⁵For what is Apollos? What is Paul? They are ministers and through them you believed, as it was given by the Lord to each of them. ⁶I planted, Apollos watered the plant, but God made it grow. ⁷So neither the one who plants nor the one who waters is anything, but God who makes the plant grow.

⁸The one who plants and the one who waters work to the same end, and the Lord will pay each according to their work. ⁹We are fellow-workers with God, but you are God's field and building.

¹⁰I, as a good architect, according to the capacity given to me, I laid the foundation, and another is to build

Paul tells the Corinthians that most of them are unable to criticize him.

The one who remains on the psychological level (v. 14). (Paul says precisely: "the psychic man") does not reach the truth of Christ. However the spiritual person, not necessarily the intellectual person, knows by gift of God the things of God.

The spiritual person judges everything and no one judges him. He who sees has no way of convincing the blind person that there are colors. He sees them, however, and knows that if the blind person does not see them, it is not because the thing is doubtful, but because the blind person has neither eyes nor criteria for that. It is the same with the spiritual person and the carnal one.

• 3.1 As a good architect I laid the foundation (v. 10). Paul is founder of churches and others come after him, apostles, prophets or teachers, to preach and encourage the people. Paul is not jealous, but it could be that some of them seek their own prestige, forgetting that the Church belongs only to God. It could also be that the believers compare one apostle with another, and do this readily inasmuch as they are ignorant of what apostolic work really is.

Fire will test the work of everyone (v. 13). This image suggests many things. To Paul as well as to the readers the day of God's judgment seemed to be imminent and everyone thought that God would purify and cleanse the world by fire. So Paul concludes that whatever we did not do according to the will of God and with the means he wanted will be destroyed by fire. Remember what happened with many apostolic projects that were but a smoke screen (how many tons of documents fit for the

3:1;
12:10;
1Thes
5:19

Is 40:13

1:12

Eph 2:20;
1P 2:5

upon it. Each one must be careful how to build upon it. ¹¹No one can lay a foundation other than the one which is already laid, which is Jesus Christ. ¹²Then if someone builds with gold upon this foundation, another with silver and precious stones, or with wood, bamboo or straw, ¹³the work of each one will be shown for what it is. The day of Judgment will reveal it, because the fire will make everything known. The fire will test the work of everyone. ¹⁴If your work withstands the fire, you will be rewarded; ¹⁵but if your work becomes ashes, you will pay for it. You will be saved, but it will be as if passing through fire.

Is 1:25;
Mal 3:2;
Mt 3:12

6:19;
2Cor
6:16

• ¹⁶Do you not know that you are God's temple, and that God's Spirit abides within you? ¹⁷If anyone destroys the temple of God, God will destroy him. God's temple is holy, and you are this temple.

Do not divide the Church

1:20;
4:10

• ¹⁸Do not deceive yourselves. If anyone of you considers himself wise in the ways of the world, let him become a fool, so that he may become wise. ¹⁹For the wisdom of this world is foolishness in God's eyes. To this, Scripture says: God catches the wise in their own wisdom. ²⁰It also says: The Lord knows the reasoning of the wise, that it is useless.

Job 5:13

Ps 94:11

²¹Because of this, let no one boast about human beings, for everything belongs to you, ²²Paul, Apollos, Cephas—life, death, the present and the future. Everything is yours, ²³and you, you belong to Christ, and Christ is of God.

1:12

Rom
8:28

4 ¹Let everyone then see us as the servants of Christ and stewards of the secret works of God. ²Being stewards, faithfulness shall be demanded of us; ³but I do not mind if you or any human court judges me. I do not even judge myself; ⁴my conscience indeed does not accuse me of anything, but that is not enough for me to be set right with God: the Lord is the one who judges me.

2Cor
5:19;
Tit 1:7

Eph 3:2

2:14;
Jn 5:34

Mt 6:22

⁵Therefore, do not judge before the time, until the coming of the Lord. He will bring to light whatever was hidden in darkness and will disclose the secret intentions of the fire!). To serve Christ without really pure intentions, will not merit hell of course, but a personal purification will be necessary. This text supports the belief in Purgatory, that is, a process of purification at the time of death or after death for all whose transformation by the Spirit of God was only half-concluded (see commentary on Mt 5:21).

Rom
2:16;
2:29

• 16. Do you not know that you are God's temple (v. 16)? Christ is the new Temple that takes the place of the temple of the Jews (Jn 2:19 and Mk 15: 38). The Temple of God is Christ because in him abides all the divine Mystery. The Temple of God is likewise the Church because in her the Holy Spirit is working. The Temple of God is also each home and each believer (see 6:19) because the Spirit lives in each one of them.

• 18. Everything is yours and you belong to Christ (v. 23). We have here a decisive word on Christian freedom.

On the other hand, remember what non-believing philosophers have said: People created God out of their own misery. Whatever was lacking in order for them to feel great and happy, they attributed to a superior being, who had everything. In worshiping him, they felt identified with him and forgot their own misery. This theory is not completely false: in fact people make idols for themselves, be they singers, athletes or politicians; and they feel happy when their idols have and do everything they themselves cannot do or have. They die for causes not their own and they feel proud of people and institutions that exploit them. A Christian is wary of authority becoming idols: he exists and thinks for himself. Even in the Church he is face to face with God with no other intermediary but Christ, and he does not indulge in the cult of personalities.

hearts. Then each one will receive praise from God.

1:12; 3:5
 6 Brothers and sisters, you forced me to apply these comparisons to Apollos and to myself. Learn by this example not to believe yourselves superior by siding with one against the other. 7 How then are you more than the others? What have you that you have not received? And if you received it, why are you proud, as if you did not receive it?

Comforted Christians and harassed apostles

Rev 3:17
 • 8 So, then, you are already rich and satisfied, and feel like kings without us! I wish you really were kings, so that we might enjoy the kingship with you!

15:31; Rom 8:36; 2Cor 4:11; Heb 10:33; Eph 3:10
 9 It seems to me that God has placed us, the apostles, in the last place, as if condemned to death, and as spectacles for the whole world, for the angels as well as for mortals.

2Cor 4:8; 6:4; 11:23
 10 We are fools for Christ, while you show forth the wisdom of Christ. We are weak, you are strong. You are honored, while we are despised.

Mt 5:44; Rom 12:14
 11 Until now we hunger and thirst, we are poorly clothed and badly treated, while moving from place to place. 12 We labor, working with our hands. People insult us and we bless them, they persecute us and we endure everything; 13 they speak evil against us, and ours are works of peace. We have become like the scum of the earth, like the garbage of humankind until now.

14 I do not write this to shame you, but to warn you as very dear children. 15 Because even though you may have ten thousand guardians in the Christian life, you have only one father; and it was I who gave you life in Christ through the Gospel. 16 Therefore I pray you to follow my example. 17 With this purpose I send to you Timothy, my dear and trustworthy son in the service of the Lord. He will remind you of my way of Christian life, as I teach it in all churches everywhere.

18 Some of you thought that I could not visit you and became very arrogant. 19 But I will visit you soon, the Lord willing, and I will see, not what those arrogant people say, but what they can do. 20 Because the kingdom of God is not a matter of words, but of power. 21 What do you prefer, for me to come with a stick or with love and gentleness?

Expel the immoral brother!

5 • 1 You have become news with a case of immorality, and such a case that is not even found among pagans. Yes, one of you has taken as wife his own stepmother. 2 And you feel proud! Should you not be in mourning instead and expel the one who did such a thing. 3 For my part, although I am physically absent, my spirit is with you and, as if present, I

• 4.8 The Corinthians feel rich in their faith, rich in their spiritual gifts. They have made fair progress in the road of knowledge, and as people expert in the matter, they charitably look down on Paul, the poor Jewish preacher.

The Apostle knows that his own culture and strong personality would have given him a bright future. He sees at the same time the narrow-mindedness of his adversaries but allows them to make fun of him. They think he is a fool, and in a way he is. However, even if taken for a fool he brought them to Christ.

• 5.1 Paul knows that such a sinner cannot be brought to repentance unless he experiences the bitterness of his treachery. So the community must ask that he suffer in health and belongings (Paul says “delivered to Satan for the ruin of the flesh:” see in Job 1:12 and 2:6 the meaning of delivered to Satan). This excommunication is not merely a human ges-

11:1;
Phil 2:5;
1Thes 3:6

Acts 19:21

1Thes 1:5;
2Cor 13:3

2Cor 10:2;
Gal 6:1

Lev 18:8

Col 2:5

have already passed sentence on the man who committed such a sin. ⁴Let us meet together, you and my spirit, and in the name of our Lord Jesus and with his power, ⁵you shall deliver him to Satan, for the destruction of the flesh, so that his spirit be saved in the day of Judgment.

Mt
18:18;
Rev 2:22

Mt 16:6

⁶This is not the time to praise yourselves. Do you not know that a little yeast makes the whole mass of dough rise? ⁷Throw out, then, the old yeast and be new dough. If Christ became our Passover, you should be unleavened bread. ⁸Let us celebrate, therefore, the Passover, no longer with old yeast, which is sin and perversity; let us have unleavened bread, that is purity and sincerity.

⁹In my last letter I instructed you not to associate with immoral people. ¹⁰I did not mean, of course, those who do not belong to the church and who are immoral, exploiters, embezzlers or worshipers of idols. Otherwise you would have to leave this world. ¹¹What I really meant was to avoid and not to mingle with anyone who, bearing the name of brother or sister, becomes immoral, exploiter, slanderer, drunkard, embezzler. In which case you should not even eat with them.

6:9;
Mk 7:21;
Gal 5:19;

1Tim 1:9;
Rev
21:8;
Rom
13:13

¹²Why should I judge outsiders? But you, are you not to judge those who are inside? ¹³Let God judge those outside, but as for you, drive out the wicked person from among you.

Col 4:5;
1Thes
4:12

Dt 17:7;
Mt 7:23;
2Cor
6:17

Do not bring another Christian to court

6 • ¹When you have a complaint against a brother, how dare you bring it before pagan judges instead of bringing it before God's people? ²Do you not know that you shall one day judge the world? And if you are to judge the world, are you incapable of judging such simple problems?

³Do you not know that we will even judge the angels? And could you not decide every day affairs? ⁴But when you have ordinary cases to be judged, you bring them before those who are of no account in the ture. What the Church binds on earth is bound in heaven (Mt 18:18). God is committed to send trials that may be at the same time a warning to the Church and a way of repentance for the sinner.

You should be unleavened bread (v. 7). The believers have been spiritually raised with Christ. As the Jews used unleavened bread to celebrate the Passover, in the same way the Christians have to be, in a figurative sense unleavened bread, that is, they must lead a sinless life before God, and so worthily celebrate their Passover, which is the Resurrection of Christ. Jesus compared the kingdom of heaven to yeast that leavens the whole mass. Here Paul uses the same comparison to show how evil spreads everywhere.

Those who do not belong to the Church (Paul says: those of this world) (v. 10). Believers are not afraid of living among sinners, because they themselves are, first, sinners among others (1 Jn 1:8-9) and have as mission to make known the mercy of Christ who ate with sinners. Yet they are not willing to live in a Church community with those who are hardened in sin and refuse to put right a public scandal.

Why should I judge outsiders? (v. 12). Jesus taught us the way to follow, but we cannot demand of unbelievers that they understand and accept our moral standards regarding reconciliation, sex, abortion, as long as their conscience is unable to recognize the criteria of the Gospel. The authorities of the Church are not commissioned to condemn them, but to be witnesses to the light.

• 6.1 "We carry treasures from God in vessels of clay" (2 Cor 4:7). How far is our daily life from what we pretend it is: children of God reborn in the Spirit! What do the members of our own family think about this! What do our near neighbors think of us!

Paul points out the contradiction between the contempt of believers for the false "justice" of the world, and the fact of lawsuits among them. What should they do? Settle their differences in the way indicated by the Gospel (Mt

Church! ⁵Shame on you! Is there not even one among you wise enough to be the arbiter among believers?

⁶But no. One of you brings a suit against another one, and files that suit before unbelievers. ⁷It is already a failure that you have suits against each other. Why do you not rather suffer wrong and receive some damage? ⁸But no. You wrong and injure others, and those are your brothers and sisters. ⁹Do you not know that the wicked will not inherit the Kingdom of God?

Make no mistake about it: those who lead sexually immoral lives, or worship idols, or who are adulterers, perverts, sodomites, ¹⁰or thieves, exploiters, drunkards, slanderers or embezzlers will not inherit the kingdom of heaven. ¹¹Some of you were like that, but you have been cleansed and consecrated to God and have been set right with God by the Name of the Lord Jesus and the Spirit of our God.

Sexual immorality

• ¹²Everything is lawful for me, but not everything is to my profit. Everything is lawful for me, but I will not become a slave of anything. ¹³Food is for the stomach, as the stomach is for food, and God will destroy them both. Yet the body is not for fornication, but for the Lord; and the Lord is for the body. ¹⁴And God who raised the Lord, will also raise us with his power.

¹⁵Do you not know that your bodies are members of Christ? And you would make that part of his body become a part of a prostitute? Never! ¹⁶But you well know that when you join yourselves to a prostitute, you become one with her. For Scripture says: The two will become one flesh. ¹⁷On the contrary, anyone united to the Lord becomes one spirit with him.

¹⁸Avoid unlawful sex entirely. Any other sin a person commits is outside the body but those who commit sexual immorality sin against their own body.

¹⁹Do you not know that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit within you, given by God? You belong no longer to yourselves. ²⁰Remember at what price you have been bought and make your body serve the glory of God.

18:15), in so far as there is a real community. How beautiful it would be to follow the letter of the Gospel (Mt 5:40)!

• 12. Everything is lawful for me, but not everything is to my profit. People without conscience quoted the first part of this sentence to justify their immoral behavior.

Food is for the stomach.... the body is for the Lord (v. 13). Paul contrasts what is purely biological in our body with what makes up our whole person. To eat and drink are requirements of the stomach (modern language: body). In sexual union the body is given (modern language: person). This is why the believer who belongs to Christ cannot give himself to a prostitute.

Paul finds himself with the same problem that had led him to intervene in 1 Thes 4. For the Jews, all the criteria for morality were in the commandments of the Law. It was not usually questioned to what degree these commandments were the expression of an eternal order or depended on the beliefs and the culture of past time. Whatever the Law condemned—interpreted by the religious community—was a sin. Yet the Greeks and the pagans were ignorant of this law. Paul recalls the commandments on sexual matters (5: 11 and 6:10; Eph 5:3), as Jesus had done (Mk 7:21), but he is careful not to make it the only criterion of what is good and bad. For him what obliges Christians to control and even strongly curb the practice of sexuality is their life in Christ. They want to respond to a call from God rather than satisfy the demands of nature.

Paul's way of responding is of particular interest for us today in the universal moral crisis. For centuries and through necessity, sexuality was seen above all as the means of procre-

Col 2:22

Rom
8:11;
2Cor
4:14Rom
6:12Gen
2:24

Jn 6:63

1Thes
4:33:17;
2Cor
6:167:23;
1P 1:18Mt 5:39;
1Thes
5:15;
1P 3:95:11;
Gal 5:19

Marriage and abstinence

Gen
2:18

7[•] Now I will answer the questions in your letter. It is good for a man not to touch a woman. ²Yet to avoid immorality, every man should have his own wife and each woman her own husband. ³Let the husband fulfill his duty of husband and likewise the wife. ⁴The wife is not the owner of her own body; the husband is. Similarly, the husband is not the owner of his own body; the wife is.

Rom
14:7

⁵Do not refuse each other, except by mutual consent and only for a time in order to dedicate yourselves to prayer, and then come together again, lest you fall into Satan's trap by lack of self-control. ⁶I approve of this abstention, but I do not order it. ⁷I would like everyone to be like me, but each has from God a particular gift, some in one way, others differently.

Mt 19:11

⁸To the unmarried and the widows I say that it would be good for them to remain as I am, ⁹but if they cannot control themselves, let them marry, for it is better to marry than to burn with passion.

1Tim
5:14

ation; and from there began the search for the natural law ordering sex, pleasure and procreation. Today, union is no longer, primarily, for procreation even if procreation is desired. The cultural evolution and feminine promotion have made of sexual union, for an ever-increasing number of couples, the occasion of an exceptionally deep human exchange.

At the same time, personal liberation—and the liberation of women who carry all the weight of maternity—has thrown doubt on former moral laws, seen as belonging to a certain time and culture. Almost all countries that are considered “developed” have had to take into account pre-marital sex, homosexuality, abortion on the mother's decision, the choice of maternity without marriage. Christians get in touch with these questions with religious references their contemporaries lack. Yet if they don't have other motivation than a natural law valid for all, limiting sexuality to procreation and only within marriage, they will probably get bogged down in endless discussions that are scarcely convincing.

So they must do what Paul did. Without forgetting the laws in the Old Testament, recognized by the apostles and the tradition of the Church up to our day, it must be said that the sexual conduct of a Christian obeys, first of all, a logic of faith in Jesus Christ. It is less a matter of defining what is “good” or “evil” than showing where the practice and the experience of love and sexuality should lead us. To proclaim moral principles of sexuality, without first highlighting the eminent dignity of our humanity created in the likeness of God, and then consecrated to Christ by baptism and conversion, is wanting to gather the fruits without having planted the tree.

- 7.1 In this chapter Paul begins to answer some of the questions put to him by the Corinthians in writing. The first are about marriage and chastity.

Christian life encouraged the esteem for chastity. That esteem could be inspired as well by other non-Christian motives. Many doctrines in the Greek world considered evil and unclean whatever came from the body; and so, for some Christians, perfection meant living like angels, condemning among other things, marriage.

Paul does not teach everything on marriage, but only clarifies the relation between chastity and marriage. Spouses belong to Christ with all their being, consecrated by baptism. Therefore they cannot become slaves to the demands of their bodies. Love rather than sex guides them.

To avoid immorality (v. 2). Paul says precisely: Because of “porneia” let each one take... This “porneia” has many meanings: prostitution, illegitimate unions, and many other things that go along with the word “porno.” Paul is probably referring to sexual attraction, a force that rebels against our moral projects (similar to the revolt of the flesh in Rom 7:21). He does not say a person should marry “in order to” avoid misconduct but “because” sex is a reality strong enough to impose its demands.

Many are shocked by Paul not speaking of the positive aspect of sexuality at the service of love, but we must not forget that twenty centuries are between him and us. In Paul's time the Greeks considered the sharing of themselves to be an ideal: a spouse for children, a friend for love, and prostitutes for pleasure. Here, on the contrary, Paul presents sexual life as a commitment of the whole human person (6:13) and not the “work of the flesh”: something that is very important.

Marriage and divorce

Mk 10:9

• ¹⁰I command married couples—not I but the Lord—that the wife should not separate from her husband. ¹¹If she separates from him, let her not marry again, or let her make peace with her husband. Similarly the husband should not divorce his wife.

Gen 2:24

¹²To the others I say—from me and not from the Lord—if a brother has a wife who is not a believer but she agrees to live with him, let him not separate from her. ¹³In the same manner, if a woman has a husband who is not a believer but he agrees to live with her, let her not separate from her husband. ¹⁴Because the unbelieving husband is sanctified by the wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified by the husband who believes. Otherwise, your children also would be apart from God; but as it is, they are consecrated to God.

¹⁵Now, if the unbelieving husband or wife wants to separate, let them do so. In this case, the Christian partner is not bound, for the Lord has called us to peace. ¹⁶Besides, are you sure, wife, that you could save your husband, and you, husband, that you could save your wife?

• ¹⁷Except for this, let each one continue living as he was when God called him, as was his lot set by the Lord. This is what I order in all churches. ¹⁸Let the circumcised Jew not remove the marks of the circumcision when he is called by God, and let the non-Jew not be circumcised when he is called. ¹⁹For the important thing is not to be circumcised or

1Mac
1:15;
Rom
2:25;
Gal 5:6

Christianity was to reveal the dignity of marriage and conjugal love; but only in the twelfth century in Christian countries would there be an awareness of the great beauty of a couple's love. What is here revolutionary is the reminder of the equality of rights of husband and wife according to the teaching of Jesus (Mk 10:1-12).

Lest you fall into Satan's trap (v. 5). We should recall these words when speaking about Christian birth control. Paul says that, except in special cases where a special grace is given, it is not good for husband and wife to abstain from intimate relations for a long time.

• 10. I command married couples (v. 10). We read after a while: To the others I say (v. 12), referring again to married persons. It is almost obvious that in verse 10 Paul addresses married couples recognized by the Church; and in verse 12, all those married before they were baptized, but whose partners do not yet belong to the Church.

If she separates... (v. 11). Paul stresses a teaching of Jesus (Mt 5:32 and 19:5). This fundamental law of marriage as a commitment lasting to death is a divine law: not I but the Lord (v. 10). See also Ephesians 5:22.

If the unbelieving... (v. 15). Paul makes an exception for those who at the time of their conversion and baptism were married. In this one case the new Christian, starting a new life, obtains freedom from the marriage ties if his or her partner does not want to accept his (or her) conversion. Even while praising the desire of the believer to convert his spouse, Paul's advice is that sometimes it would be better to separate, notwithstanding the possibility of a new marriage in the new faith. It is important to remember that Paul was living in a pagan world where separation and divorce were legal and constantly practiced.

Your children also would be apart from God (v. 14). Paul says precisely: "your children would be unclean", using this word with the meaning that Jesus gave it: children who do not yet share the privileges of God's people. Would it be right to think that children of Christian parents are alien to God as long as they have not been baptized? Grace has already touched them through the tenderness, the care and the prayers of their parents. We must not use false arguments when we invite Christian parents, (and rightly so) not to delay the baptism of their children.

• 17. Let each one continue living as he was (v. 17). Paul responds to the thirst for improvement of social conditions that are always real. Free people and slaves lived side by side, often in the same houses; and it was not always a distinction between rich and poor. Paul simply wants to put in its right place ambitions that devour the lives of many people, causing not, but to keep the commandments of God.

²⁰Let each of you, therefore, remain in the state in which you were called by God. ²¹If you were a slave when called, do not worry, yet if you can gain your freedom, take the opportunity.

²²The slave called to believe in the Lord is a freed person belonging to the Lord just as whoever has been called while free, becomes a slave of Christ. ²³You have been bought at a very great price; do not become slaves of a human being.

²⁴So then, brothers and sisters, continue living in the state you were before God at the time of his call.

Marriage and virginity

- ²⁵With regard to those who remain virgins, I have no special commandment from the Lord, but I give some advice, hoping that I am worthy of trust by the mercy of the Lord.

²⁶I think this is good in these hard times in which we live. It is good for someone to remain as he is. ²⁷If you are married, do not try to divorce your wife; if you are not married, do not marry. ²⁸He who marries does not sin, nor does the young girl sin who marries. Yet they will face disturbing experiences, and I would like to spare you.

²⁹I say this, brothers and sisters: time is running out, and those who are married must live as if not married; ³⁰those who weep as if not weeping; those who are happy as if they were not happy; those buying something as if they had not bought it, and those enjoying the present life as if they were not enjoying it. ³¹For the order of this world is vanishing.

³²I would like you to be free from anxieties. He who is not married is 7:16;

Lk 12:51;
14:26

Rom
13:11;
Eph 5:16

1Jn 2:15;
Jas 1:11

Gal 5:1;
Lk 14:20

them to forget all the rest. Paul puts interior freedom above recognized liberty and he sees possessing Christ as supreme riches.

Yet if you can gain your freedom, take the opportunity. There are conditions of work and of social life that prevent us from doing God's will and being truly free. However one quickly forgets that each social situation has its element of slavery. The quality of life is not to be confused with better-paid employment, especially if judged according to the criteria of the Gospel. In a world we call inhuman, our slavery largely depends on our whims and our ready response to advertising.

We translate: If you can gain your freedom, take the opportunity. It could also be translated as: Even if you could gain your freedom, take advantage of the present situation, that is, instead of being concerned so much for the advantages of becoming free, live your life fully today.

- 25. A new question to which Paul must reply. In Corinth, a city with a bad reputation where thousands of prostitutes lived in the vicinity of the temple of Aphrodite (as was the custom with pagans) the new community was discovering the way of virginity.

Choosing chastity "for the kingdom of God" is not a way of gaining time and freedom for apostolic work: it is taking a direction that opens to the love of God with new possibilities. Paul defends this choice he himself made. If Christ, to whom we are consecrated by baptism, is a living person, present to us, if he is the Spouse (Mk 2:19), the choice is valid, even if for most people it looks as strange as voluntary poverty.

Paul's response goes further than the question of the Corinthians when he adds: time is running out. He points to much more than a prompt return of Christ, familiar to the first Christians. The coming of Jesus has shortened time in a figurative way: we can no longer settle down in the present world as we did before when we could see no further than the present. We are entirely turned towards what is to come. A Christian lives in the present, but all that matters most for him comes in the "after." Let us not argue with Paul as if he were reasoning on the consequences of a certain coming of Jesus Christ: he is not theologizing but speaks like someone already possessed by Christ.

Paul then points out that all Christian commitments are likely to cause division for those concerned about the things of the Lord and how to please the Lord. ³³While he who is married is taken up with the things of the world and how to please his wife, and he is divided in his interests.

Lk 2:37

³⁴Likewise, the unmarried woman and the virgin are concerned with the service of the Lord, to be holy in body and spirit. The married woman, instead, worries about the things of the world and how to please her husband.

³⁵I say this for your own good. I do not wish to lay traps for you but to lead you to a beautiful life, entirely united with the Lord.

• ³⁶If anyone realizes he will not be behaving correctly with his fiancée because of the ardor of his passion, and that things should take their due course, let him marry; he commits no sin. ³⁷But if another, of firmer heart, thinks that he can control his passion and decides not to marry so that his fiancée may remain a virgin, he does better. ³⁸So then, he who marries does well, and he who does not marry does better.

³⁹The wife is bound as long as her husband lives. If he dies, she is free to be married to whomsoever she wishes, provided that she does so in the Christian way. ⁴⁰However, she will be happier if, following my advice, she remains as she is, and I believe that I also have the Spirit of God.

Rom 7:2

2Cor
10:7

Can we share in pagan customs?

8 • ¹Regarding meat from the offerings to idols, we know that all of us have knowledge but knowledge puffs up, while love builds. ²If anyone thinks that he has knowledge, he who wish to live according to the logic of their baptism, seen as a total consecration to Christ. Married life or family life can present many obstacles to spiritual freedom and apostolic desires: see the words of Jesus in Mark 10:29.

• 36. If anyone realizes (v. 36). This can also be interpreted as: "if anyone feels he cannot behave correctly with his young virgin." In this case Paul would be referring to a spiritual trial that in fact took place in the primitive church. Some Christians shared their house with a girl who could have been their girl friend, both consecrating their virginity to the Lord. Paul, in this case, would invite them not to persevere in this commitment if they did not feel capable of keeping their virginity.

• 8.1 We live in a pluralist society, where many do not share our faith and wonder sometimes if we should take part in their feasts or activities that are not in harmony with our faith. For example, how to deal with relatives or neighbors of another religion. What a married woman may do when her husband does not share her scruples. May a person belong to a group or party when many of its members are opposed to the Church? This is the problem that Paul deals with when answering about meat sacrificed to idols. The discussion begun here continues in paragraph 10:23–11:1.

There were many sacrifices of animals in the pagan temples. After the sacrifices, in a room of the temple a banquet was celebrated at which the meat of the victims was served. Christians were often invited to these banquets by their pagan friends. On other occasions, meat from these sacrifices was offered to them in the homes of their pagan friends. Even in the public market, most of the meat was from animals offered to idols.

Paul does not want the Christians to become a group of fanatics keeping themselves apart from society. Although it is true that offering sacrifice to idols is a sin, not for that reason is the meat unclean. False gods do not exist and have no power. Besides Jesus said that it is not what enters into a person that makes him unclean, but what comes out of his heart (Mk 7:15).

Knowledge puffs up, while love builds (v. 1). Christians with an informed conscience could perfectly well eat of that meat, knowing it was not sinful. However it was their duty to respect the opinion of others and so avoid scandalizing those unable to understand their reasons.

In verse 3 the words in brackets were most probably added later. Here, Paul contrasts the knowledge of God we can acquire and express by means of words and ideas, and another more authentic riches that is God's presence

13:13; Gal 4:9
1K 5:18
12:4; Mt 23:8; Eph 4:5

does not yet know as he should know, ³but if someone loves (God), he has been known (by God).

⁴Can we, then, eat meat from offerings to the idols? We know that an idol is without existence and that there is no God but one. ⁵People speak indeed of other gods in heaven and on earth and, in this sense, there are many gods and lords. ⁶Yet for us, there is but one God, the Father, from whom everything comes, and to whom we go. And there is one Lord, Christ Jesus, through whom everything exists and through him we exist.

Rom 14
⁷Not everyone, however, has that knowledge. For some persons, who until recently took the idols seriously, that food remains linked to the idol and eating of it stains their conscience which is unformed.

⁸It is not food that brings us closer to God. If we eat, we gain nothing, and if we do not eat, we do not lose anything. ⁹We are free, of course, but let not your freedom cause others, who are less prepared, to fall. ¹⁰What if others with an unformed conscience see you, a person of knowledge, sitting at the table in the temple of idols? Will not their weak conscience, because of your example, move them to eat also? ¹¹Then with your knowledge you would have caused your weak brother or sister to perish, the one for whom Christ died. ¹²When you disturb the weak conscience of your brother or sister and sin against them, you sin against Christ himself. ¹³Therefore, if any food will bring my brother to sin, I shall never eat this food lest my brother or sister fall.

Mt 18: 5-6

Rom 14:9

Renouncing one's own rights: the example of Paul

9 ¹As for me, am I not free? I am an apostle and I have seen Jesus, the Lord, and you are my work in the Lord. ²Although I may not be an apostle for others, at least I am one for you. You are, in the Lord, evidence of my apostleship.

6:12; 15:8; 2Cor 3:3

³Now this is what I answer to those who criticize me: ⁴Have we not the right to be fed? ⁵Have we not the right to bring along with us a sister as do the other apostles and the broth-

Mt 10:10; Lk 8:2

to the one he knows and treats in a special way.

In verses 10-12, Paul speaks of those of weak or unformed conscience, meaning the believers who have not yet had sufficient religious instruction or who have been badly instructed. They think that something is sinful when in reality it is not; or they are weak and follow others when their conscience reproaches them for doing so.

What if others with an unformed conscience see you, a person of knowledge, sitting at the table in the temple of the idols (v. 10). This is more serious. Some in the community already follow a path that will be denounced by John in Revelation (2:23), those who later would be known as the "Nicolaites." They wanted to be very open and not separate from the non-Christians around them, so they preferred not to manifest their convictions. Finally one could not tell what truth they were witnesses to. In 10:14-22 Paul will clearly state that a Christian may not participate in such a banquet in the temple. In this passage he does not say it openly, but he shows that such an attitude should be shocking for many people.

• 9.1 Have we not the right to be fed? In asking the Corinthians to forget their right to eat sacrificed meat, Paul gives himself as an example and tells them how he also renounces his right to be supported by the churches. The churches gave food and drink to the apostles who visited them and took care of the Christian women attending them (v. 5), as in the case of Jesus (Lk 8:2). However, to give proof of detachment, Paul did not accept this favor and lived by the work of his hands (Acts 18:3).

I am bound to do it. Woe to me if I do not preach the Gospel (v. 16). As happened with Jeremiah (Jer 1) Christ the Lord began ruling the life of Paul from the day he called him.

I made myself all things to all people (v. 22). Paul gives a guideline for apostles of all ers of the Lord, and Cephas? ⁶Am I the only one, with Barnabas, bound to work?

What soldier goes to war at his own expense? ⁷What farmer does not eat from the vineyard he planted? Who tends a flock and does not drink from its milk? ⁸Are these rights only accepted human practice? No. The Law says the same. In the Law of Moses it is written: Do not muzzle the ox which threshes grain. ⁹Does this mean that God is concerned with oxen, ¹⁰or rather with us? Of course it applies to us. For our sake it was written that no one plows without expecting a reward for plowing, and no one threshes without hoping for a share of the crop. ¹¹Then, if we have sown spiritual riches among you, would it be too much for us to reap some material reward? ¹²If others have had a share among you, we could have it all the more.

Yet we made no use of this right and we prefer to endure everything rather than put any obstacle to the Gospel of Christ. ¹³Do you not know that those working in the sacred service eat from what is offered for the temple? And those serving at the altar receive their part from the altar. ¹⁴The Lord ordered, likewise, that those announcing the Gospel live from the Gospel. ¹⁵Yet I have not made use of my rights, and now I do not write to claim them: I would rather die! No one will deprive me of this glory of mine.

¹⁶Because I cannot boast of announcing the Gospel: I am bound to do it. Woe to me if I do not preach the Gospel! ¹⁷If I preached voluntarily, I could expect my reward, but I have been trusted this office against my will. ¹⁸How can I, then, deserve a reward? In announcing the Gospel, I will do it freely without making use of the rights given to me by the Gospel.

¹⁹So, feeling free with everybody, I have become everybody's slave in order to gain a greater number. ²⁰To save the Jews I became a Jew with the Jews, and because they are under the Law, I myself submitted to the Law, although I am free from it. ²¹With the pagans, not subject to the Law, I became one of them, although I am not without a law of God, since Christ is my Law. Yet I wanted to gain those strangers to the Law. ²²To the weak I made myself weak, to win the weak. So I made myself all things to all people in order to save, by all possible means, some of them. ²³This I do for the Gospel, so that I too have a share of it.

Faith demands sacrifice

• ²⁴Have you not learned anything from the stadium? Many run, but only one gets the prize. Run, therefore, intending to win it, ²⁵as athletes times. Apostolic movements require their members to know their environment very well and the problems of their companions. Committed Christians must share the life-style and human aspirations of their companions in everything that is not sinful. Becoming like Paul, "a Greek among the Greeks," not in appearance but in reality, they will be able to express simply and in all truth their faith in Christ; in that way they will offer to those whose daily life they share, the possibility of one day finding their place in the Church. From then on it will be the entire life of the new convert with all that is linked to his culture and his milieu that will be renewed by faith.

• 24. Paul is now ready to tell the Corinthians that they may not share the cult of idols. To justify his position (for the Corinthians it was very strict), Paul presents two arguments:

- no racing contest is won without self-sacrifice;
- the Bible has many examples of how God punished those who practiced a cult of idols.

As athletes who impose upon themselves a rigorous discipline (v. 25). Like them, we

Acts 18:3;
2Cor
11:7;
1Thes
2:9

Dt 20:6;
2Tim 4:4

Dt 25:4

Rom
15:27;
Gal 6:6

Dt 18:1

Lk 10:7

2Cor
11:10

Acts
26:19;
2Cor
5:14

Acts
16:3;
21:23

11:1;
Gal 2:20;
Rom
14:1;
15:1

who impose upon themselves a rigorous discipline. Yet for them the wreath is of laurels which wither, while for us, it does not wither.

Phil 3:12; 1Tim 2:5 ²⁶So, then, I run knowing where I go. I box but not aimlessly in the air. ²⁷I punish my body and control it, lest after preaching to others, I myself should be rejected.

13:21;
14:22;
16:4

10 ¹Let me remind you, brothers and sisters, about our ancestors. All of them were under the cloud and all crossed the sea. ²All underwent the baptism of the land and of the sea to join Moses ³and all of them ate from the same spiritual manna ⁴and all of them drank from the same spiritual drink. For you know that they drank from a spiritual rock following them, and the rock was Christ. ⁵However, most of them did not please God, and the desert was strewn with their bodies.

Num 20:8

Num 14:16;
Jn 6:58

⁶All of this happened as an example for us, so that we might not become people of evil desires, as they did.

32:6

⁷Do not follow idols, as some of them did, and Scripture says: The people sat down to eat and drink and stood up for orgy. ⁸Let us not fall into sexual immorality as some of them did, and in one day twenty-three thousand of them fell dead. ⁹And let us not tempt the Lord as some of them did, and were killed by serpents; ¹⁰nor grumble as some of them did and were cut down by the destroying angel.

Num 25:1-9

Num 21:5-6

Num 17:6-15

Heb 3:8;
1P 4:7;
1Jn 2:18

¹¹These things happened to them as an example, and they were written as a warning for us, as the last times come upon us. ¹²Therefore, if you think you stand, beware, lest you fall. ¹³No trial greater than human endurance has overcome you. God is faithful and will not let you be tempted beyond your strength. He will give you, together with the temptation, the strength to escape and to resist.

Rom 11:20;
Gal 6:1;
1Thes 5:24;
Heb 10:23;
Mt 6:13;
Lk 21:36

¹⁴Therefore, dear friends, shun the cult of idols.

• ¹⁵I address you as intelligent persons; judge what I say. ¹⁶The cup of blessing that we bless, is it not a communion with the blood of Christ? And the bread that we break, is it not a communion with the body of Christ? ¹⁷The bread is one, and so we, though many, form one body, sharing the one bread.

1Jn 5:21
11:25;
Mk 14:23

Rom 12:5;
Eph 4:4; 4:25

must renounce many things that are not evil. We need discipline to be really free, whether in the use of alcohol or tobacco, or not idly waste time in front of the television or reading magazines. While the world lures us to be spectators and consumers, we must be agents of salvation, the salt of the earth. The second paragraph recalls the example of Israel (see Ex 32 and Num 21).

• 10.1 The rock was Christ (v. 4). The Jewish legends said that the rock mentioned in Ex 17:5 followed the Israelites in their journey. Paul does not affirm that legend as true. He only recalls it as an image of Christ, present in his Church.

• 15. And the bread that we break, is it not a communion with the body of Christ?

(v. 16). Paul will return to speak of the Eucharist in 11:18. This communion through the body and blood of the Risen Christ, besides being a personal encounter with Christ, makes of all of us one body. We form one body. This does not only mean that we feel united, but that the Risen Christ unites us to himself and, so doing, gives the community new strength.

The idol is nothing. The idol in itself was just a material thing, like an image. Yet the Jews thought (and Paul also mentions it) that the cult of idols was addressed to the devils. In fact, when people are now being dragged along by crazy trends or rhythms, or attitudes, and sacrifice to their idols what their families need for survival, and make themselves dependent on “mortals,” we know that in reality they are serving the devil.

Rom 9:4;
Gal 6:16

¹⁸Consider the Israelites. For them, to eat of the victim is to come into communion with its altar.

¹⁹What does all that mean? That the meat is really consecrated to the idol, or that the idol is a being.

Dt 32:17;
Bar 4:7;
Rev 9:20

²⁰However, when the pagans offer a sacrifice, the sacrifice goes to the demons, not to God. I do not want you to come into fellowship with demons. ²¹You cannot drink at the same time from the cup of the Lord and from the cup of demons. You cannot share in the table of the Lord and in the table of the demons. ²²Do we want, perhaps, to provoke the jealousy of the Lord? Could we be stronger than he?

2Cor
6:15

Dt 32:21

Practical solutions

6:12

• ²³Everything is lawful for me, but not everything is to my profit. Everything is lawful for me, but not everything builds up: ²⁴let no one pursue his own interests, but the interests of the other.

Rom
14:19

²⁵Eat, then, whatever is sold at the market, and do not raise questions of conscience about it. ²⁶Because: the earth and whatever is on it belongs to the Lord. ²⁷If someone who does not share your faith invites you, go and eat of anything served to you

Ps 24:1

• ²³. Everything is lawful for me, but not everything is to my profit (v. 23). Paul draws the same practical deductions as in 8:1-13. Except in the cases mentioned, where the believer refuses to share directly in something evil, the supreme rule of conduct will be to seek what is good and respect the conscience of others.

• 11.1 Is it important for a woman to wear a veil while praying in Church? Mediterranean traditions required it and perhaps the new custom originated in "mystery religions." In an earlier paragraph (9:20) Paul said he was "all for all." Here we notice that he didn't always have a fair regard for customs contrary to Jewish tradition.

Paul speaks here according to his Jewish without problems of conscience.

²⁸However, if somebody tells you that the meat is from the offerings to idols, then do not eat out of consideration for those warning you and for the sake of their conscience.

²⁹I say: "In consideration of their conscience," not of yours, for is it convenient that my rights be misinterpreted by them and their conscience? ³⁰Is it good that I bring on me critics for some good thing I am sharing and for which I will give thanks?

³¹Then, whether you eat, or drink, or whatever you do, do it for the glory of God. ³²Give no offense to the Jews, or to the Greeks, or to the Church of God, ³³just as I try to please everyone in everything. I do not seek my own interest, but that of many, this is: that they be saved.

Women's dress and Mediterranean customs

11 • ¹Follow my example as I follow the example of Christ. ²I praise you because you remember me in everything, and you keep the traditions that I have given you. ³However I wish to remind you that every man has Christ as his head, while the wife has her husband as her

Rom
14:14

2Thes
2:15

Eph
4:15;
5:23

culture, chiefly male-centered, and repeats the same arguments of Jewish teachers (vv. 5-10). Then suddenly he realizes that he is denying the equality proclaimed by Jesus and tries to turn back (vv. 11-12). By the way Paul ends the discussion, we see that he himself was aware of the weakness of his arguments.

Let us not lessen these flashes of light thrown at us by Paul: the angels participate in Christian worship (Mt 18:10 and Rev 5:8; 8:3), even our exterior bearing is in a way an active sharing in the liturgy of the Eucharist.

This paragraph helps us to understand that many things in the Church and in Christian life are no more than customs or human traditions, although they maintain among us respectable values. Those in authority, like Paul, cannot impose them on the community.

head; and God is the head of Christ. ⁴If a man prays or prophesies with his head covered, he dishonors his head. ⁵On the contrary, the woman who prays or prophesies with her head uncovered, does not respect her head. She might as well cut her hair. ⁶If a woman does not use a veil, let her cut her hair; and if it is a shame for a woman to have her hair cut or shaved, then let her use a veil.

Gen
1:27

Gen
2:24;
1Tim
2:13

⁷Men do not need to cover their head, for they are the image of God and reflect his glory, while a woman reflects the glory of man. ⁸Man was not formed from woman, but woman from man. ⁹Nor did God create man for woman, but woman for man. ¹⁰Therefore, a woman must respect the angels and have on her head the sign of her dependence.

¹¹Anyway, the Christian attitude does not separate man from woman, and woman from man, ¹²and if God has created woman from man, man is born from woman and both come from God.

¹³Judge for yourselves: is it proper for a woman to pray without a veil? ¹⁴Common sense teaches us that it is shameful for a man to wear long hair, ¹⁵while long hair is the pride of a woman, and it has been given to her precisely as a veil.

¹⁶If some of you want to argue, let it be known that it is not our custom nor the custom in the churches of God.

The Lord's supper

• ¹⁷To continue with my advice, I cannot praise you, for your gatherings are not for the better but for the worse.

¹⁸First, as I have heard, when you gather together, there are divisions among you and I partly believe it. ¹⁹There may have to be different groups among you, so that it becomes clear who among you are genuine.

²⁰Your gatherings are no longer the Supper of the Lord, ²¹for each one eats at once his own food and while one is hungry, the other is getting drunk. ²²Do you not have houses in which to eat and drink? Or perhaps you despise the Church of God and desire to humiliate those

1:11;
2Tim
2:19

• 17. Without making any transition Paul passes to the most important act of the Christian assembly, the Eucharist. These lines are the oldest testimony relating to the Supper of the Lord and were written in the year 55 A.D., some years ahead of the Gospels.

The community gathered in a friendly house. After the supper, solemnized by the singing of the psalms, the leader of the community said a prayer of thanksgiving, remembering the last supper of Jesus, and repeated his words to consecrate the body and blood of Christ. Then everyone received communion from the same bread and the same cup.

In 10:16 Paul recalled two aspects of the Lord's Supper:

- it is the communion of the body and blood of the Lord;
- it affirms a union of love among all: we form one body.

Here Paul denounces the Corinthians for their sin with regard to these two points.

Each one eats at once his own food to avoid sharing with those who are poorer, or to evade the company of certain persons. We can imagine that the groups spontaneously formed and occupied various rooms in the same house: actually each one joined the group from his own milieu. Perhaps the buffet is more promising where the rich are, while the poor are in the yard.

Another is getting drunk and therefore not disposed to receive the body of Christ.

In not recognizing the Body (v. 29). This term points out at the same time:

- the one who does not distinguish consecrated bread from ordinary bread and does not receive it with due respect, as the body of Christ;
- the one who ignores his brothers and sisters in the celebration of the Eucharist. He does not recognize the body of Christ as formed by all the assembled Christians.

The Eucharist is the center and heart of the

Rom 14:22; Heb 12:7

who have nothing? What shall I say? Shall I praise you? For this I cannot praise you.

Lk 22:14

²³This is the tradition of the Lord that I received and that in my turn I have handed on to you; the Lord Jesus, on the night that he was delivered up, took bread and, ²⁴after giving thanks, broke it, saying, "This is my body which is broken for you; do this in memory of me." ²⁵In the same manner, taking the cup after the supper, he said, "This cup is the new Covenant in my blood. Whenever you drink it, do it in memory of me." ²⁶So, then, whenever you eat of this bread and drink from this cup, you are proclaiming the death of the Lord until he comes.

24:8; Jer 31:31

Rev 22:20; Mt 26:29

²⁷Therefore, if anyone eats of the bread or drinks from the cup of the Lord unworthily, he sins against the body and blood of the Lord.

2Cor 13:5

²⁸Let each one, then, examine himself before eating of the bread and drinking from the cup. ²⁹Otherwise, he eats and drinks his own condemnation in not recognizing the Body.

Heb 6:6; Mt 10:29

³⁰This is the reason why so many among you are sick and weak and several have died. ³¹But if we examine ourselves, we will not be examined by God and judged in this way.

³²The Lord's strokes are to correct us, so that we may not be condemned with this world.

³³So then, brothers, when you gather for a meal, wait for one another ³⁴and, if someone is hungry, let him eat in his own house. In this way you will not gather for your common condemnation. The other instructions I shall give when I go there.

Spiritual gifts and harmony

12 ¹With respect to spiritual gifts, I will remind you of the following. ²When you were still pagans, you were irresistibly drawn to your dumb idols. ³I tell you that nobody inspired by the Spirit of God may say, "A curse on Jesus," as no one can say, "Jesus is the Lord," except by the Holy Spirit.

Mt 16:17; Phil 2:11

⁴There is diversity of gifts, but the Spirit is the same. ⁵There is diversity of ministries, but the Lord is the same. ⁶There is diversity of works, but the same God works in all.

Eph 4:11

life of the Church, which is, before all else, a communion with God and with others. The Church is not only an instrument for spreading the Good News, but the place here on earth where people can already experience the union between themselves and Christ.

You are proclaiming the death of the Lord until he comes (v. 26). All the Eucharists celebrated around the world each day and every minute of the day, remind us that the death of Christ fills up the time until his coming.

History cannot cease, nor civilization be stagnant as happened in past centuries. Not only does technical progress force us to advance, but also the requirements of justice springing from the death of the innocent (and here God is the innocent) destroy the established order. Jesus' death does not allow the world to rest or have peace. The Church reminds us of the death of Christ, not to preserve the past, but to draw from this unique event new energy for both reconciling and condemning.

This is the reason why so many among you are sick (v. 30). The Lord uses many signs to admonish us. Sometimes through personal illness; more often, through the weakness and spiritual anemia of the Church. Fulfilling the requirements for a worthy celebration of the Eucharist would be sufficient to renew the Church.

• 12.1 Let us notice the order followed by Paul: the Spirit comes after the Word, the Son. The spiritual gifts distributed in our days are the fruit of the death and resurrection of Jesus.

In the Church of Corinth the Holy Spirit reveals his presence by giving many believers spiritual gifts. All marvel when some of them, touched by the Spirit, begin praising God with words understood by no one. They feel still more the presence of God when a prophet re-

1:5; 2:6 ⁷The Spirit reveals his presence in each one with a gift that is also a service. ⁸One is to speak with wisdom, through the Spirit. Another teaches according to the same Spirit. 13:2 ⁹To another is given faith, in which the Spirit acts; to another the gift of healing, and it is the same Spirit. Acts 2:11; 19:6 ¹⁰Another works miracles, another is a prophet, another recognizes what comes from the good or evil spirit; another speaks in tongues, and still another interprets what has been said in tongues. ¹¹And all of this is the work of the one and only Spirit, who gives to each one as he so desires.

Rom
12:3;
Eph 4:7

Comparison with the body

• ¹²As the body is one, having many members, and all the members, while being many, form one body, so it is with Christ. ¹³All of us, whether Jews or Greeks, slaves or

Rom
12:4

Gal 3:28

veals to some of them what is on their conscience or gives to someone a special message from God.

Paul intervenes in two ways. First to establish order. Pagans went wild in the frenzied celebration of their feasts, while the Spirit makes everyone more responsible. When a frenzied individual cried out something senseless or scandalous, it was proof that he was not inspired.

Paul reminds us that the gifts of the Spirit (sometimes called charisms) have several aspects. They are gifts, especially evident in miracles. But they are also ministries (v. 5), that is services, as is evident in the leading of a community. These should also be called works, because in them a person must not praise himself, but all must be seen as the work of God.

If Paul said that these services come from Christ, people might think that most important in the Church is the authority of those who govern in the name of Christ and at times are considered his “vicars.” Yet these gifts and ministries are also related to the Holy Spirit. The Spirit blows where he pleases and multiplies, among believers of simple heart, gifts and initiatives that renew the church. The mission of the ministers (bishops, priests or lay ministers) is not only to govern and command the Church, but also to recognize the true work of the Spirit in the community.

Who gives to each one as he so desires (v. 11). The Spirit gives the Church what it needs at the right place and the right time. These paragraphs reveal the concerns of the Church of that time, very different from ours today. Now the Spirit reminds the Church of its mission in the world. Many believers possess gifts that, without being apparent in miracles, inspire their exemplary and fruitful lives. Whereas, in those early times, the newly converted Christians discovered that God was among them. Through gifts of prophecy, wisdom, teaching, the Church unfolded day by day the innumerable consequences of the death and resurrection of Christ.

Words of wisdom that indicate an attitude to adopt. Words of knowledge that reveal something that is hidden, or what God is about to do. Faith (not in the meaning we usually give it, but as in Mk 11:22) that means certitude that God wishes to do something and urges us to ask for a miracle. Thus, it was that the Church discovered God’s presence within herself as well as the power issuing from the death and resurrection of Christ.

The same Spirit... the same Lord... the same God. God is the fountain of the various gifts granted to the Church and God is also the model of how diversity may be coupled with unity.

• 12. A detailed comparison with the body helps us to understand what the Church is, showing at the same time how we must complement and respect each other.

We cannot have a true community unless each of us shares in its life, placing our talents at the service of others. Even the least gifted may have riches that will be revealed at the right time. Even the misfortunes of someone may become the riches of the group that welcomes him/her. As soon as one is really committed to a Christian life, the spirit awakens in him new and sometimes unsuspected capabilities. If we pay attention to the riches of our brothers and sisters and awaken in them the consciousness of their dignity and responsibility, we shall see a new resurgence in the Church, fruit of the Spirit. It would take too long to recall the harm done to the Church in some places because of the passivity of Christians in a clericalized church.

At the end of the paragraph Paul lists the various gifts according to their importance.

free, have been baptized in one Spirit to form one body and all of us have been given to drink from the one Spirit.

¹⁴The body has not just one member, but many. ¹⁵If the foot should say, "I do not belong to the body for I am not a hand," it would be wrong; it is part of the body! ¹⁶Even though the ear says, I do not belong to the body for I am not an eye, it is part of the body. ¹⁷If all the body were eye, how would we hear? And if all the body were ear, how would we smell?

¹⁸God has arranged all the members, placing each part of the body as he pleased. ¹⁹If all were the same part where would the body be? ²⁰But there are many members and one body. ²¹The eye cannot tell the hand, "I do not need you," nor the head tell the feet, "I do not need you."

²²Still more, the parts of our body that we most need are those that seem to be the weakest; ²³the parts that we consider lower are treated with much care, ²⁴and we cover them with more modesty because they are less presentable, whereas the others do not need such attention. ²⁵God himself arranged the body in this way, giving more honor to those parts that need it, so that the body may not be divided, but rather each member may care for the others. ²⁶When one suffers, all of them suffer, and when one receives honor, all rejoice together.

²⁷Now, you are the body of Christ and each of you individually is a member of it. ²⁸So God has appointed us in the Church. First apostles, second prophets, third teachers. Then come miracles, then the gift of healing, material help, administration in the Church and the gift of tongues.

²⁹Are all apostles? Are all prophets? Are all teachers? Can all perform miracles, ³⁰or cure the sick, or speak in tongues, or explain what was said in tongues? ³¹Be that as it may, set your hearts on the most precious gifts, and I will show you a much better way.

No gift higher than love

13 • ¹If I could speak all the human and angelic tongues, but had no love, I would only be sounding brass or a clanging cymbal. ²If I had the gift of prophecy, knowing secret things with all kinds of knowledge, and had faith great enough to

Rom
12:5;
Eph 5:30
14:1;
Eph 4:11;
Acts 13:1

Mk 11:23

First, not what appears more miraculous, but what is most constructive for the Church. That is why apostles occupy the first place. These are not only the twelve chosen by Jesus, but also those who, like them and accepted by them, are founding new communities and governing those already existing. Then, in second place, come the prophets, who not only announce words of God, but also strengthen the community with the gifts of faith and wisdom that inspire their preaching.

In the last place are those who receive the gift of speaking in tongues, although in Corinth it was as if they had already reached Heaven.

• 13.1 I will show you a much better way (12:31). As the Corinthians marveled at the spectacular and wonderful things worked by the Spirit, Paul tells them that the only important thing is the ability to love.

Love or charity? At the beginning both words meant the same thing. Later on, the word "charity" came to mean the help given in the form of alms, although the giving of alms alone is not real love. On the other hand, for many people, true love is only that of a man and a woman. So it is irrelevant whether we say charity or love, but we have rather to clarify what love really is. Paul does just that in the present text.

If I could speak... if I had... To love is more important than performing miracles, more important than doing great things for others and dying for a cause, all of which can be done without love.

When I was a child. Already Paul outlines what he will explain in chapter 15 when he remove mountains, but had no love, I would be nothing. ³If I gave everything I had to the poor, and even give up my body to be burned, if I am without love, it would be of no value to me.

⁴Love is patient, kind, without envy. It is not boastful or arrogant. It is not ill-mannered nor does it seek its own interest. ⁵Love overcomes anger and forgets offenses. ⁶It does not take delight in wrong, but rejoices in truth. ⁷Love excuses everything, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

⁸Love will never end. Prophecies may cease, tongues be silent and knowledge disappear. ⁹For knowledge grasps something of the truth and prophecy as well. ¹⁰And when what is perfect comes, everything imperfect will pass away. ¹¹When I was a child I thought and reasoned like a child, but when I grew up, I gave up childish ways. ¹²Likewise, at present we see dimly as in a mirror, but then it shall be face to face. Now we know in part, but then I will know as I am known. ¹³Now we have faith, hope and love, these three, but the greatest of these is love.

8:7;
Gal 4:9;
Col 1:4;
1Thes 5:8

Gifts of prophecy and tongues

14 ¹Strive, then, for love and set your hearts on spiritual gifts, especially that you may prophesy. ²The one who speaks in tongues does not speak to people, but to God, for no one understands him; the spirit makes him say things that are not understandable. ³The prophet, instead, addresses all people to give them strength, encouragement and consolation. ⁴He who speaks in tongues strengthens himself, but the prophet builds the Church.

⁵Would that all of you spoke in tongues! But better still if you were all prophets. The prophet has an advantage over the one speaking in tongues, unless someone explains what was spoken, so that the com-

Acts 15:32

Num 11:29

speaks of our life after the resurrection. Just as the caterpillar must completely change itself to become a butterfly (not merely by sprouting wings), and just as a child's game has no sense for an adult, so will it be for our present life: work, study, love, our understanding of God and the world, the life of the Church—all will be no more than a forgotten past. Paul experienced a love of God that invaded him and divinized his least desires, and he knew it was already God's possession of him, which would be eternal: love would never end.

Faith, hope, love (v. 13). Paul quite often joins these three "virtues," that is the three movements in the Christian soul. In no other place does he state this more clearly than here. There is no authentic love without faith and hope.

The greatest of those is love. Sometimes this sentence is used to misrepresent what is essential to Christian life. For many say, "I do good to my neighbor, what else does God ask of me?" It would not be difficult to prove that such love is very limited, selfish and impure. It is a "love" in which divine love lives in very cramped conditions and so is unable to transform our life. We would need, first of all, great hope in a Christian sense that is a passion for eternal things and then the yielding of ourselves to the Spirit who would complete his work of love in us. Love reaches its perfection when we are in God: I will know him as he knows me. As long as we do not see God, love is immature; this is the time when love must grow through faith and the knowledge of God's word; also through hope and perseverance as we follow Jesus poor, free and in the midst of trials.

- 14.1 It seems that the assemblies in Corinth were very disorderly. People did not wait for their turn to speak, but spoke at the same time, especially the women. Paul invites them to be silent. Those with spectacular gifts felt more important and did not respect the most elementary order. Some who pretended to be inspired spoke and acted very strangely and at times shamefully.

Paul establishes an order of priority, giving preference to those gifts that most help strengthen the Church. He compares the Church to a building. We build it when we help munity may profit. ⁶Suppose, brothers and sisters, I go to you and I speak in tongues, of what use will it be to you if I do not bring you some revelation, knowledge, prophecy or teaching?

⁷When someone plays the flute, or harp, or any musical instrument, if there are not tones and notes, who will recognize the tune? ⁸And if the bugle call is not clear, who will get ready for battle? ⁹The same with you. If your words are not understood, who will know what is said? You will be talking to the moon. ¹⁰There are many languages in the world, and each of them has meaning, ¹¹but if I cannot find any meaning in what is said, I become a foreigner to the speaker, and the speaker to me.

¹²As you set your heart on spiritual gifts, be eager to build the Church and you will receive abundantly. ¹³Because of this, those who speak in tongues should ask God for the ability to explain what they say.

¹⁴When I am praying in tongues, my spirit prays, but my mind remains idle. ¹⁵What shall I do, then? I will pray with the spirit and I will pray with my mind. I will sing with the spirit and I will sing with the mind. ¹⁶If you praise God only with your spirit, how will the ordinary person add the “Amen” to your thanksgiving, since the outsider has not understood what you said? ¹⁷Your thanksgiving was indeed beautiful, but it was useless for others.

¹⁸I give thanks to God because I speak in tongues more than all of you, ¹⁹but when I am in the assembly, I prefer to say five words from my mind, which may teach others, than ten thousand words in tongues.

²⁰Brothers and sisters, do not remain as children in your thinking. Be like infants in doing evil, but mature in your thinking. ²¹God says in the Law: I will speak to this people through those talking other tongues and through lips of foreigners, but even so they will not listen to me. ²²So, speaking in tongues is significant for those who refuse to believe, not for those who believe, while prophecy is a sign for those who believe, not for those who refuse to believe.

²³Yet imagine that the whole Church is gathered together and all speak in tongues when unbelievers and uninformed people enter. What will they think? That you are crazy. ²⁴Instead, suppose that each of you speaks as a prophet; as soon as an unbeliever or an uninformed person enters, all of you call him to account

Eph 4:14

Is 28:
11-12Acts
2:13

Eph 5:19

2Cor
1:20

others to grow, to be better and more united. What makes a person better is charity, and not the performance of extraordinary gifts and charisms, as miracles, languages and such. This is why extraordinary performances do not mean holiness; God can use anybody, even sinners, to perform for others' benefit. The truth of a religion does not rely on the fact that its preachers can heal the sick or do similar things, thereby filling stadiums and impressing large audiences. It depends on its fidelity to the teaching of the Apostles, as found in the Church.

The spirits speaking through prophets are submitted to prophets (v. 32). What comes from the Spirit always blends with what comes from a person. Those who think they are inspired must be careful not to lessen what comes from the Spirit with their own beliefs and desires. No inspiration allows us to disregard our community or rightful authority.

The verses 34-35 have from the beginning scandalized people because of their harshness towards women and in certain texts they have been removed. If they are Paul's they must be understood in the light of 11:1-16. The apostle was infallible regarding faith but no decision touching the organization of the Church whether it comes from Paul or someone else is beyond criticism or irrevocable, even in the case when it could be at a given moment “an order of the Lord.”

and disclose his most secret thinking. ²⁵Then, falling on his face, he would be urged to worship God and declare that God is truly among you.

²⁶What then shall we conclude, brothers? When you gather, each of you can take part with a song, a teaching, or a revelation, by speaking in tongues or interpreting what has been said in tongues. But let all this build up the Church.

²⁷Are you going to speak in tongues? Let two or three, at most, speak, each in turn, and let one interpret what has been said. ²⁸If there is no interpreter, hold your tongue in the assembly and speak to God by yourself.

²⁹As for the prophets, let two or three speak, with the others commenting on what has been said. ³⁰If a revelation comes to one of those sitting by, let the first be silent. ³¹Even all of you could prophesy, one by one, for the instruction and encouragement of all. ³²The spirits speaking through prophets are submitted to prophets, ³³ because God is not a God of confusion, but of peace.

³⁴(Let women be silent in the assemblies, as in all the churches of the saints. They are not allowed to speak. Let them be submissive as the Law commands. ³⁵If there is anything they desire to know, let them consult their husbands at home. For it is shameful for a woman to speak in Church.)

³⁶Did the word of God, perhaps, come from you? or did it come only to you? ³⁷Anyone among you who claims to be a prophet or a spiritual person, should acknowledge that what I am writing to you is the Lord's command. ³⁸If he does not recognize that, God will not recognize him.

³⁹So, my friends, set your hearts on the gift of prophecy, and do not forbid speaking in tongues. ⁴⁰However, everything should be done in a fitting and orderly way.

Resurrection is a fact

15 ¹Let me remind you, brothers and sisters, of the Good News that I preached to you and which you received and on which you stand firm. ²By that Gospel you are saved, provided that you hold to it as I preached it. Otherwise, you will have believed in vain.

³In the first place, I have passed on to you what I myself received: that Christ died for our sins, as Scripture says; ⁴that he was buried; that he was raised on the third day, according to the Scriptures; ⁵that he appeared to Cephas and then to the

Is 45:14;
Zec 8:23

Eph 4:12

1Jn 4:6

Gal 1:11

11:23;
Lk 1:2

1Tim
2:13

Lk 24:27;
24:34

• 15.1 Have we here the response to a last question of the Corinthians? Many Greeks thought that at death the immortal soul leaves the body and remains alone. Was it admitted to the paradise of souls? Did it come to the great reservoir of souls already gone or who were to return, forgetting all the past lived on earth? Others held (as do a good number of Christians today), that all ends with death: see 1 Thes 5:13. Paul will therefore remind the Corinthians that faith in the resurrection is at the heart of the Christian message.

I remind you of the gospel. Here certainly we may speak of Good News, for death as something unknown is and always has been the great burden of human life (Sir 40:1).

How can some of you say that there is no resurrection of the dead? (v. 12). Paul begins with the resurrection of Jesus as a fact: and from that he then draws consequences: our own resurrection.

We hear it said at times, even among believers that the resurrection of Jesus is not an historical fact. This is true in the sense that resurrection escapes the historical dimension. We know and we believe it because there are witnesses, and in no other way does history proceed. Nevertheless there is a vast difference: history deals with testimonies on which we have some ideas: a war, a meeting between two people, an invention. On the contrary, for the resurrection of Jesus, the witnesses can Jn 21:15 Twelve. ⁶Afterwards he appeared to more than five hundred brothers and sisters together; most of them are still alive, although some have already gone to rest. ⁷Then he appeared to James and after that to all the apostles. ⁸And last of all, he appeared to the most despicable of them, this is to me. ⁹For I am the last of the apostles, and I do not even deserve to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the Church of God. ¹⁰Nevertheless, by the grace of God, I am what I am, and his grace towards me has not been without fruit. Far from it, I have toiled more than all of them, although not I, rather the grace of God in me.

¹¹Now, whether it was I or they, this we preach and this you have believed. ¹²Well, then, if Christ is preached as risen from the dead, how can some of you say that there is no resurrection of the dead? ¹³If there is no resurrection of the dead, then Christ has not been raised. ¹⁴And if Christ has not been raised, our preaching is empty and our belief comes to nothing. ¹⁵And we become false witnesses of God, attesting that he raised Christ, whereas he could not raise him if indeed the dead are not raised. ¹⁶If the dead are not raised, neither has Christ been raised. ¹⁷And if Christ has not been raised, your faith gives you nothing, and you are still in sin. ¹⁸Also those who fall asleep in Christ are lost. ¹⁹If it is only for this life that we hope in Christ, we are the most unfortunate of all people.

Christ gave us the way

• ²⁰But no, Christ has been raised from the dead and he comes before all those who have fallen asleep. ²¹A human being brought death; a human being also brings resurrection of the dead. ²²For as in Adam all die, so in Christ all will be made alive. ²³However, each one in his own time: first Christ, then Christ's people, when he comes.

²⁴Then the end will come, when Christ delivers the kingdom to God the Father, after having destroyed

Acts 12:17
Acts 9:3;
Eph 3:8;
1Tim 1:14;
Gal 1:13

2Cor 11:23

Mt 22:23;
Acts 4:2

Acts 1:8;
1:22

Rom 4:24

Rom 8:11;
Col 1:18;
1Thes 4:14

15:45-49;
Rom 5:12
1Thes 4:16;
Col 3:4

Eph 1:21;
Lk 19:17

only speak of apparitions of Jesus or meetings with him. This experience led them to believe something much greater: Jesus had begun a life about which we have no idea, even sharing the power of God! We, then, in this very special case, shall believe not only what they saw but also what they believe, and that is in no way comparable with historical processes. But all the same, Jesus' resurrection and coming in glory is a fact (see commentary on Mk 16).

I have passed on to you (v. 3). Paul will not recall a tale, or a "myth," these stories full of wisdom that abounded with the Greeks. They bared an order in the world, a meaning of life, but were only stories. Today certain people speak of the resurrection in the same way. They say: "It matters little what took place, the gospels are not directly interested in what happened to Jesus, for them it was important that strange events would give courage to the disciples and the hope of another life." Paul says precisely the contrary: the resurrection of Jesus is a fact.

• 20. Whoever shares the faith of the apostles has accepted resurrection as a fact. Paul immediately goes to the consequences for us: shall we also enter another life?

For as in Adam all die (v. 22). See the commentary in Romans 5:12 concerning Adam and Christ. The myths of various religions in the past projected onto some mysterious personage our own condition, but were unable to do more than give a meaning to life. They could not change it. Faith instead tells us that the Son-of-God-made-human has lived among us and lived for all of us. Let us leave aside our individualistic vision in which each one sees no more than his own destiny: for God the entire venture of creation and salvation is that of Adam, one and multiple at the same time. Jesus who is himself Man has lived it fully for us all.

Then the end will come, when Christ delivers the kingdom to God the Father (v. 24). Here again, let us leave aside simplistic images. Let us remember that there is only one God. Here, the Son is the Word of God made flesh every rule, authority and power. ²⁵For he must reign and put all enemies under his feet. ²⁶The last enemy to be destroyed will be death. ²⁷As Scripture says: God has subjected everything under his feet.

When we say that everything is put under his feet, we exclude, of course, the Father who subjects everything to him. ²⁸When the Father has subjected everything to him, the Son will place himself under the One who subjected everything to him. From then on, God will be all in all.

²⁹Tell me: what are these people doing who are baptized on behalf of the dead? If the dead cannot be raised, why do they want to be baptized for the dead?

³⁰As for us, why do we constantly risk our life? For death is my daily companion. ³¹I say that, brothers and sisters, before you who are my pride in Christ Jesus our Lord. ³²Was it for human interest that I fought in Ephesus like a lion tamer? If the dead are not raised, let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we shall die!

³³Do not be deceived; bad theories corrupt good morals. Wake up, and do not sin, ³⁴because some of you are outstandingly ignorant about God; I say this to your shame.

The body after the Resurrection

• ³⁵Some of you will ask: How will the dead be raised? With what kind of body will they come?

³⁶You fools! What you sow cannot sprout unless it dies. ³⁷And what you sow is not the body of the future plant but a bare grain of wheat or any other seed, ³⁸and God will give the appropriate body, as he gives to who has taken on his shoulders the whole history of humankind. He who is eternally returning to the Father from whom he is born brings to the eternity of God all creation. There will not be a re-beginning of history. God will be all in all, we will receive God from God and we will have all, finally becoming ourselves. That, surely, surpasses all we could have imagined, but Paul adds: The last enemy to be destroyed will be death (v. 26). John will say the same in Revelation (21:4).

Why do they want to be baptized for the dead? (v. 29). Perhaps some of them were concerned for the fate of their parents who died without knowing the Gospel, and were baptized in their name. Paul does not give his opinion about this practice. He only takes the opportunity to argue in favor of the resurrection.

• ³⁵. How will the dead be raised? With what kind of body will they come? (v. 35). Here indeed is the question we often ask: we would like to imagine, to know what we shall then be. But how can a human being imagine, know, this new world which is even now being prepared: is it not like a child still enclosed in the universe of its mother's womb, and trying to imagine the world into which it will be projected?

All that Paul can do is to throw light on the mystery by using comparisons.

What you sow is not the body of the future plant (v. 37). Jesus spoke of the grain that is sown (Jn 12:24). With this example he destroyed those primitive ideas that some people still have nowadays: that angels will come to gather the dust of the dead, that corpses will come out of their tombs... In reality, our present body is the grain and the risen body, the spike or ear, will not be the recomposition of the actual body that is put in the earth.

Not all flesh is the same (v. 39). Paul explains that one and the same word can express many different things that have some likeness. For example, the word "light" is used to designate the very different ways in which the sun, the moon and stars, each shines with its own special color. During Paul's time the word "body" was used for many things, even to designate the sun and the stars, called "heavenly bodies." So, when it is said that the dead are raised with their own body, this does not mean with the same shape (with arms and legs and hair...) or the same life, although it will be the same person.

Just as the ear of wheat comes from a grain of wheat, it will be the same person as before, marked by all that has made him grow (the risen Christ rightly wished to show the marks of his passion on his glorious body). Since no one becomes himself alone, but in union and in relation with others, we shall know in all the

Ps 110:1;
Heb 2:8

Rev 20:14

Ps 8:7;
Phil 3:21

Col 3:11;
Eph 4:6

2Cor
4:10

Is 22:13

Jn 12:24

each seed its own body. ³⁹Now look: not all flesh is the same; one is the flesh of human beings; another the flesh of animals, and still others the flesh of birds and of fish. ⁴⁰There are, likewise, heavenly bodies and earthly bodies, but the earthly bodies do not shine as do the heavenly ones. ⁴¹The brightness of the sun differs from the brightness of the moon and the stars, and the stars differ from one another in brightness.

⁴²It is the same with the resurrection of the dead. The body is sown in decomposition; it will be raised never more to die. ⁴³It is sown in humiliation, and it will be raised for Glory. It is buried in weakness, but the resurrection shall be with power. When buried it is a natural body, but it will be raised as a spiritual body. ⁴⁴For there shall be a spiritual body as there is at present a living body. ⁴⁵Scripture says that Adam, the first man, became a living being; but the last Adam has become a life-giving spirit.

⁴⁶The spirit does not appear first, but the natural life, and afterwards comes the spirit. ⁴⁷The first man comes from the earth and is earthly, while the second one comes from heaven. ⁴⁸As it was with the earthly one, so is it with the earthly people. As it is with Christ, so with the heavenly. ⁴⁹This is why, after bearing the image of the earthly one, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly one.

The day of Resurrection

⁵⁰This I say, brothers: Flesh and blood cannot share the kingdom of God; nothing of us that is to decay can reach imperishable life. ⁵¹So I want to teach you this mystery: although not all of us will die, all of us have to be transformed, ⁵²in an instant, at the sound of the trumpet. You have heard of the last trumpet; then in the twinkling of an eye, the dead will be raised imperishable, while we shall be transformed. ⁵³For it is necessary that our mortal and perishable being put on the life that knows neither death nor decay.

⁵⁴When our perishable being puts on imperishable life, when our mortal being puts on immortality, the word fullness of their transfigured persons, those who have helped us most to develop our riches.

For there shall be a spiritual body as there is at present a living body (v. 44). Resurrection comes from what is within, it is like a transfiguration. Each one will have the body he/she deserves; a body that best expresses what he/she has become and what he/she is in God. Could we hope for anything more beautiful than that hope which is beautiful even in its logic? But is it certain? Paul is affirmative with all the boldness of faith. No reasoning can prove faith: only the experience of the working of the Spirit which even now is transfiguring us and will give us day by day, more than an intuition, a certitude of where we are going.

Earthly... heavenly... (vv. 45-49). We all have a double heritage: by nature we are in solidarity with the human race in the person of Adam—man, animal and earthly—but we also belong to this human community which mysteriously forms itself around Christ who is Spirit, source of life and who comes from heaven. Baptism has not made us pass from one to another. Moreover, faithful as we may be, our Adam will continue to grow and increase in weight, with his weakness and temptations, but at the same time our inner being will be strengthened, this embryo of a celestial person, waiting for its true birth.

Flesh and blood cannot share the kingdom of God; nothing of us that is to decay can reach imperishable life (v. 50). It is the opposition between what can only rot and decompose, and the definitive, unaltered which is proper to the world where God is (Rom 8:21). Life has its logic: persons who have chosen to enjoy the present life hardly believe in that other world.

Not all of us will die (v. 51). Paul thinks that Christ is to return soon. On this supposition, he says that those who are alive when Christ returns will not have to “travel” with him to Heaven (that would be a materialist image), but will be transformed. Resurrection is not simply to live again as happened to Lazarus.

Dn 7:13

Gen 5:3;
Phil 3:21;
Rom
8:296:10;
Jn 3:5

2Cor 5:4

1Thes
4:15;
Jl 2:1;
Mt 24:31

Is 25:8

Phil 3:21

Gen 2:7

15:21-23

of Scripture will be fulfilled: Death has been swallowed up by victory. ⁵⁵*Death, where is your victory? Death, where is your sting?*

⁵⁶Sin is the sting of death to kill, and the Law is what gives force to sin. ⁵⁷But give thanks to God who gives us the victory through Christ Jesus, our Lord.

⁵⁸So then, my dear brothers and sisters, be steadfast and do not be moved. Improve constantly in the work of the Lord, knowing that with him your labor is not without fruit.

Commendations and greetings

16 ¹With regard to the collection in favor of the saints, follow the rules that I gave to the churches of Galatia. ²Every Sunday, let each of you put aside what you are able to spare, so that no collection need be made when I come. ³Once I am with you, you will choose the persons whom I may accredit with letters to take your gifts to Jerusalem. ⁴And if it seems better for me to go, they will go with me.

⁵I will visit you after passing through Macedonia, for I want to go only through Macedonia. ⁶I would like to stay with you for a while, and perhaps I will spend the winter so that you may help me on my way wherever I go. ⁷I do not want to see you now just in passing, for I really hope to stay with you, if the Lord permits. ⁸But I will stay in Ephesus until Pentecost, ⁹because I have a door wide open here, even though there are many opponents.

¹⁰When Timothy comes, make him feel at ease with you. Consider that, like me, he is working for the Lord. ¹¹Let no one look down on him. Help him continue his journey so that he may return to me without difficulties. I am expecting him with the brothers.

¹²With respect to our brother Apollos, I have strongly urged him to visit you with the brothers, but he did not want to go at all; he will visit you at his first opportunity.

¹³Be alert, stand firm in the faith, be courageous, be strong. ¹⁴Let love be in all. ¹⁵Now, brothers and sisters, you know that in Achaia, there is none better than Stephanas and his family and that they have devoted themselves to the service of the holy ones. ¹⁶I urge you to be subject to such persons and to anyone who works and toils with them.

¹⁷I am glad about the coming of Stephanas, Fortunatus and Achaicus who were able to represent you. ¹⁸In fact, they appeased my spirit and yours. Appreciate persons like them.

¹⁹The churches of Asia greet you. Aquila and Prisca greet you in the Lord, as does the church that gathers in their house. ²⁰All the brothers and sisters greet you. Greet one another with a holy kiss.

²¹The greeting is from me, Paul, in my own hand. ²²A curse on anyone who does not love the Lord! Maranatha! Come, Lord!

²³The grace of the Lord Jesus be with you. ²⁴My love to all in Christ Jesus.

4:17

1Tim
4:12;
2Tim 1:73:5;
Acts
18:24

1:16

1Thes
5:12;
Phil 2:29Acts
18:2Rom
16:16;
2Cor
13:12;
1Thes
5:26;
Gal 6:11;
Col 4:18;
Phil 4:15;
Rev
22:20

• 16.1 With respect to the collection, see Romans 15:25 and 2 Corinthians 8 and 9.

Sunday, the first day of the Jewish week. See Acts 20:7. During the time of Paul, Christians began to observe Sunday, the day of Christ's resurrection, rather than the Saturday (or Sabbath) of Moses and the Jews.

Through the list of greetings to be passed on, we can form some idea of these first believers from whom we have received the faith. We can see that in spite of their weakness the Christians of Corinth form a real Church, since it is a community where many are active and together trying to solve the problems of their life "in Jesus Christ."

At the end of his first letter to the Corinthians Paul expressed the desire to come back and see them soon. He was unable to return, and they took this badly.

“Judaizing” preachers, that is to say, those Jews insufficiently converted to Christ, whom Paul had to face all the time, were trying to undermine his authority. Paul sent a messenger whom the Corinthians deeply offended: some members of the community were openly rebelling against the apostle. Paul responded in a letter “written in the midst of tears” (2:4) whereby he demanded the submission of the community. One of Paul’s best assistants, Titus, brought the letter and concluded his mission successfully. Upon Titus’ return, Paul, reassured, sent this “second” letter (in fact it was the third or fourth) to the Corinthians.

What is the content of this letter? What Paul feels with regard to the Corinthians and what he suffers from their lack of understanding. It is not much and yet it is a great deal. Paul is incapable of speaking about himself without speaking of Christ. This restless man, eager for understanding and affection, is so permeated with the love of Christ, that he cannot express a suspicion or a reproach without giving most profound sermons on faith. In trying to justify himself he writes the most beautiful pages on evangelization and on what it means to be an apostle of Christ.

We shall see that this letter includes pages which were not a part of it—fragments of other letters or notes sent by Paul to the Church of Corinth: in particular, 6:14-18 was probably written before our First Letter to the Corinthians; chapter 9 (see commentary of 9:1); the chapters 10-13 which should contain a good part of the “letter written in tears” (see preceding paragraph).

Rom 1:1;
1Cor 1:1

1 • ¹Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, and Timothy, our brother, to the church of God in Corinth, and to all the saints in the whole of Achaia. ²May you receive grace and peace from God our Father and from Christ Jesus, the Lord.

Blessed be God, the source of all comfort

Eph 1:3;
Rom
15:6

• ³Blessed be God, the Father of Christ Jesus, our Lord, the all-merciful Father and the God of all comfort!

Is 40:1

⁴He encourages us in all our trials, so that we may also encourage those in any trial, with the same comfort that we receive from God.

Col 1:24;
Phil 1:20

⁵For whenever the sufferings of Christ overflow to us, so, through Christ, a great comfort also overflows. ⁶So, if we are afflicted, it is for your comfort and salvation; and if we receive comfort it is also for you. You may experience the same comfort when you come to endure the same sufferings we endure. ⁷Our hope for you is most firm; just as you share in our sufferings, so shall you also share in our consolation.

⁸Brothers and sisters, we want you to know some of the trials we experienced in the province of Asia. We were crushed; it was too much; it was more than we could bear and we had already lost all hope of coming through alive. ⁹We felt branded for death, but this happened that we might no longer rely on ourselves but on God, who raises the dead. ¹⁰He freed us from such a deadly peril and will continue to do so. We trust he will continue protecting us, ¹¹but you must help us with your prayers. When such a favor is obtained by the intercession of many, so will there be many to give thanks to God on our behalf.

1Cor
15:324:7;
Phil 2:27;
Rom
4:174:15;
9:12

The plans of Paul

• ¹²There is something we are proud of: our conscience tells us that we have lived in this world with the openness and sincerity that comes from God. We have been guided, not by human motives, but by the grace

2:17;
1Cor
1:17

• 1.1 From the very beginning, Paul describes his own situation as an apostle of Christ—wandering, persecuted, ill—to the Corinthians who know how to take it easy. While they feel proud of their large community and look for brilliant preachers (as will be seen below), Paul shares in the passion of Christ. Paul suggests that they too will know the true consolation of God when it is their turn to suffer for him.

• 3. The word comfort will often occur in this letter. God would not be satisfied by just teaching us resignation: comfort is the experience of the presence of God, but relies in part on the signs that show him acting among us. The two go together. Jesus told us to ask so that God would answer and his responses would be a source of joy (Jn 15:24). In any case, God does not free us of trials but gives strength and perseverance to overcome them.

• 12. The Corinthians did not take it well that Paul put off the promised visit. He feels obliged to confess that he has passed the stage of an apostolate based on human projects. He is a man of the Spirit and does not make decisions in the same way as many others do. The Spirit in him matures his decisions and he knows that he is not alone. He will not be one of those who are precipitate in making decisions or who back-pedal because they are not sure of themselves.

In him all the promises of God have come to be a Yes (v. 20). God fulfilled his promises when he sent his Son among us. Christ also did only what his Father wanted. Thus, Christ is a ‘yes’ consenting to the Father’s plan. From there, Paul draws the consequences for Christians. In baptism we say the first yes to Christ. At every Eucharist we repeat the same yes. The “amen” that we say in prayers means yes, it is true. The opposite of all this is sin which is the same as saying ‘no’ to Christ.

In a first outpouring (v. 22). Paul actually says: he gave us the first payment of the Spirit. See commentary on Ephesians 1:14.

of God, especially in relation to you. ¹³There were no hidden intentions in my letter, but only what you can read and understand. ¹⁴I trust that what you now only partly realize, you will come to understand fully, and so be proud of us, as we shall also be proud of you on the Day of the Lord Jesus.

¹⁵With this assurance, I wanted to go and visit you first and this would have been a double blessing for you, ¹⁶for I would have left you to go through Macedonia and I would have come back to you on my way back from Macedonia and you would have sent me on my way to Judea. ¹⁷Have I planned this without thinking at all? Or do I change my decisions on the spur of the moment, so that I am between No and Yes?

¹⁸God knows that our dealing with you is not Yes and No, ¹⁹just as the Son of God, Christ Jesus, whom we—Silvanus, Timothy and I—preach to you, was not Yes and No; with him it was simply Yes. ²⁰In him all the promises of God have come to be a Yes, and we also say in his name: Amen! giving thanks to God. ²¹God himself has anointed us and strengthens us with you to serve Christ; ²²he has marked us with his own seal in a first outpouring of the Spirit in our hearts.

Paul refers to a scandal

• ²³God knows, and I swear to you by my own life, that if I did not return to Corinth, it was because I wanted to spare you. ²⁴I do not wish to lord it over your faith, but to contribute to your happiness; for regarding faith, you already stand firm.

2 ¹So I gave up a visit that would again be a distressing one. ²If I make you sad, who will make me happy if not you whom I have grieved? ³Remember what I wrote you, “May it be that when I come I do not feel sad because of you, who should rather make me happy.” I trust in everyone and I am sure that my joy will be the joy of you all.

⁴So afflicted and worried was I when I wrote to you, that I even shed tears. I did not intend to cause you

1Jn 2:27;
Rev 3:14

5:5;
Eph 1:13

1P 5:2

7:8;
Acts
20:31

• 23. Here Paul refers to the letters preceding this one and which we mentioned in the introduction. We referred to a previous letter that is perhaps preserved in chapters 10–13 of this “second letter.”

I do not wish to lord it over your faith (v. 24); see 10:5-6. May it be that, when I come, I do not feel sad (2:3); see 12:21.

Paul alludes here to the triumph of the victorious Roman generals: the prisoners to be massacred later were dragged behind their chariots. Paul sees himself here as “the prisoner of Christ” (Eph 4:1). Jesus had taken him by force (1 Cor 9:16), making him his apostle. We understand these words as we do for Jeremiah (20:7): this irresistible call of God is in fact the access to a higher form of freedom.

The triumph was the occasion for offering a lot of incense: the perfume was the sign of glory for the one who was being honored rather like a god, a sign of death for the prisoners who were there. This comparison allowed Paul to continue in another direction: for some it smells of death (v. 16). The Gospel divides people. Even without going deeper into the mystery they are able to appreciate the “odor,” namely the style of Christian existence. Some are especially aware of the demands of Christian life, which to them seems a death. Others, on the contrary, envy the mysterious force that animates believers in the midst of their trials, and letting them understand that life is there.

Who is worthy of such a mission? In seeing this, the apostle feels inadequate for his mission. He would like everyone to recognize Christ and the radiance of his love through him, but he is a long way from that! On the contrary, the false apostle does not even think about that, but only wishes to be approved and to make money out of the word of God by hiding its demands: such apostles are famous and are not persecuted by anyone.

Phil 4:1;
1Thes
2:19

Mt 5:37

pain, but rather to let you know of the immense love that I have for you.

⁵If anyone has caused me pain, he has hurt not me but in some measure, (I do not wish to exaggerate) all of you. ⁶The punishment that he received from the majority is enough for him. ⁷Now you should rather forgive and comfort him, lest excessive sorrow discourage him. ⁸So I beg you to treat him with love.

⁹This is why I wrote to you, to test you and to know if you would obey in everything. ¹⁰The one you forgive, I also forgive. And what I forgave, if indeed I had anything to forgive, I forgave for your sake in the presence of Christ, ¹¹lest Satan take advantage of us; for we know his designs.

We are the fragrance of Christ

¹²So I came to Troas to preach the Gospel of Christ, and the Lord opened doors for me. ¹³However I could not be at peace because I did not find my brother Titus there, so I took leave of them and went to Macedonia.

¹⁴Thanks be to God, who always leads us in the triumphant following of Christ and, through us, spreads the knowledge of him everywhere, like an aroma. ¹⁵We are Christ's fragrance rising up to God, and perceived by those who are saved as well as by those who are lost. ¹⁶To the latter, it smells of death and leads them to death. To others it is the fragrance of life and leads to life.

¹⁷But who is worthy of such a mission? Unlike so many who make money out of the word of God, we speak with sincerity: everything comes from God and is said in his presence, in Christ.

The great dignity of Christ's ministers

3 • ¹Am I again commending myself? Or do I need to present to you letters of recommendation as some do; or should I ask you for those letters? ²You are the letter. This letter is written in your inner self, yet all can read and understand it. ³Yes, who could deny that you are Christ's letter written by us—a letter written not with ink but with the Spirit of the living God, carved not in slabs of stones, but in hearts of flesh.

1Cor
1:18

Lk 2:34

1:12;
1P 4:115:12;
10:12;
Acts
18:27;
1Cor 9:224:12;
Ezk
36:26;
Jer
31:33

• 3.1 The preachers who oppose Paul would show letters of recommendation given by some community or some apostle. Whereas Paul relies on personal authority which doesn't owe anything to anyone. Christ himself made him an apostle as he said in several places.

The pagans of that time surrounded their priests with honor and esteem, and so did the Jews. Throughout the Bible the honor of teaching the Law of God is highlighted and more so the unique role of Moses, who received the Law from God on Sinai. Yet an apostle of Christ is much greater than these.

How much more glorious will the ministry of the Spirit be! (v. 8). As Paul showed in Romans 7:1-13, teaching only the Law as the Jewish priests did, was not a great help to people since, because they are sinners, they do not obey the law and deserve their punishment. Whereas Paul brings believers into live communication with Christ and his Spirit so that, from then on, they can also share in the risen life. The apostles and ministers of the Church fulfill a major role if their words and actions are helpful in uplifting people.

In verses 7-13 Paul refers to the traditions found in the Book of Exodus (Ex 34:29-35). These highlighted Moses' glory, but Paul mentions them to prove that Christ's apostles are superior. There is a reference to Moses returning from his encounter with God with his face radiant; but Paul remarks that it did not last. Moses had to cover his face with a veil because his face was so radiant, but Paul notes that when a veil must be used, God does not yet fully reveal himself.

Paul underlines the blindness of the Jews who do not recognize Christ as the promised Savior: they have lost the key to their history and for them the Bible remains a closed book until the day when God, through Christ, gives

Col 3:13

Mt 10:40

Eph 4:27

1Cor
16:9

Jn 3:27
Jer 31:31; Rom 2:29
32:16; 34:29

⁴This is how we are sure of God, through Christ. ⁵As for us we would not dare consider that something comes from us: our ability comes from God. ⁶He has even enabled us to be ministers of a new covenant no longer depending on a written text but on the Spirit. The written text kills, but the Spirit gives life.

⁷The ministry of the Law carved on stones brought death; it was nevertheless surrounded by glory and we know that the Israelites could not fix their eyes on the face of Moses, such was his radiance, though fleeting. ⁸How much more glorious will the ministry of the Spirit be! ⁹If there is greatness in a ministry which uses to condemn, how much more will there be in the ministry that brings holiness? ¹⁰This is such a glorious thing that in comparison the former's glory is like nothing. ¹¹That ministry was provisory and had only moments of glory; but ours endures with a lasting glory.

The veil of Moses

¹²Since we have such a great ambition, we are quite confident—¹³unlike Moses, who covered his face with a veil. Otherwise the Israelites would have seen his passing radiance fade.

¹⁴They became blind, however; until this day, the same veil prevents them from understanding the Old Covenant and they do not realize that in Christ it is nullified. ¹⁵Up to this very day, whenever they read Moses, the veil remains over their understanding ¹⁶but, for whoever turns to the Lord, the veil shall be removed. ¹⁷The Lord is spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom.

¹⁸So, with unveiled faces, we all reflect the Glory of the Lord, while we are transformed into his likeness and experience his Glory more and more by the action of the Lord who is spirit.

We carry this treasure in vessels of clay

4 • ¹Since this is our ministry mercifully given to us, we do not weaken. ²We refuse to stay with half-truths through fear; we do not behave with cunning or falsify the mesthem its true meaning (Lk 24:27; Rev 5:1). All their history should be understood as a mystery of death and resurrection. To enter into a new Covenant they had to welcome Christ without concern for their own privileges, and become his disciples together with other nations.

We are unlike Moses (v. 13). What a daring affirmation! Moses was the founder of the Jewish people and the supreme authority of the Bible! It is a fact that the least among Christians reflects with unveiled face the glory of the Lord. The Christian is the light of Christ and in earlier times those baptized were called "the enlightened."

The Lord is spirit. Paul says this twice in verses 17 and 18. He does not confuse Lord, Christ, with Holy Spirit but plays with the words spirit and Spirit. He recalls that the person who turns to the Lord (16) goes beyond a first stage of faith (that Paul calls the letter) where he found God through laws and practices. He enters the adult age of spiritual life where, through God's Spirit, we know ourselves and act towards God like sons and daughters and free persons. So Paul means: To find the Lord is to receive the Spirit and accede to the "spirit" (see Rom 2:29).

• 4.1 It is worthwhile underlining some features of the portrait of an apostle as Paul sketches it:

- We do not lose heart.
- We do not proceed with trickery nor do we falsify God's message.
- We are more than your servants.
- Let everyone discover in us the glory of God that shines in Christ's face.
- We carry the death of Jesus so that his life may be revealed in us.
- We believe and that is why we speak.

We carry this treasure in vessels of clay (v. 7). Usually, God carries out his plans by using inadequate instruments. Graham Greene be-

34:34

Mk 4:12; Acts 28:27; Rom 10:4; Heb 8:13
Acts 15:21Jn 4:24; Rom 8:2; 1Cor 6:17
4:6; 1Jn 3:2

Rom 1:16; 1Thes 2:4

sage of God but, manifesting the truth, we commend ourselves to the conscience of everyone in the sight of God.

³In fact if the Gospel we proclaim remains obscure, it is obscure only for those who go to their own destruction. ⁴The god of this world has blinded the minds of these unbelievers lest they see the radiance of the glorious Gospel of Christ, who is God's image. ⁵It is not ourselves we preach, but Christ Jesus as Lord; and for Jesus' sake we are your servants. ⁶God who said, Let the light shine out of darkness, has also made the light shine in our hearts to radiate and to make known the Glory of God, as it shines in the face of Christ.

⁷However, we carry this treasure in vessels of clay, so that this all-surpassing power may not be seen as ours but as God's. ⁸Trials of every sort come to us, but we are not discouraged. ⁹We are left without answer, but do not despair; persecuted but not abandoned, knocked down but not crushed. ¹⁰At any moment we carry in our person the death of Jesus, so that the life of Jesus may also be manifested in us. ¹¹For we, the living, are given up continually to death for the sake of Jesus, so that the life of Jesus may appear in our mortal existence. ¹²And as death is at work in us, life comes to you.

¹³We have received the same spirit of faith referred to in Scripture that says: I believed and so I spoke. We also believe and so we speak. ¹⁴We know that He who raised the Lord Jesus will also raise us with Jesus and bring us, with you, into his presence. ¹⁵Finally, everything is for your good, so that grace will come more abundantly upon you and great will be the thanksgiving for the glory of God.

We long for our heavenly dwelling

• ¹⁶Therefore we are not discouraged. On the contrary, while our outer being wastes away, the inner self is renewed from day to day.

came famous for his book "The Power and the Glory" in which we see a priest achieving heroic things despite his many personal faults.

For we, the living, are given up continually to death (v. 11). The apostle's death is necessary so that his work may live. When a good job has been done in one sector of the Church, there has to come the hour of persecution, or of obedience to leaders whose authority we cannot reject, in spite of the fact that they may be unjust or mistaken. Nothing grows without having died first.

• 16. Paul has just reaffirmed his faith; for a few instants he confides what he feels within himself, confronted as he is by a thousand dangers and obstacles.

The outer being... the inner self (v. 16). With these two terms Paul takes up again what he has already said in Romans 8:10-11. There, he opposes "flesh" to "spirit" as here the outer being to the inner self. Here he reveals this strange experience that is his: the discovery in himself of a presence of God increasingly active, and at the same time a precocious wearing away.

With that, will Paul last long enough to see the return of Christ as he hoped a few years earlier (1 Thes 4:15)? He had greatly hoped that his glorious body would cover his earthly tent (5:21; see 1 Cor 15:52)! Now he is doubtful: from day to day it becomes more probable that he must pass through death, of which he has a horror, share the lot of those who have had to shed their clothing of flesh and await the resurrection.

He has no doubt that at death he will meet Christ: compare 5:8 with Philippians 1:23 and Revelation 14:13. We do not cease to exist, as is said by some, until the day of our resurrection.

So we feel confident always (5:6). No certitude of faith removes the horror of death; it may perhaps provide even further reasons for increasing it. Jesus experienced a strange agony before being arrested. This trial is only temporary and faith is reassuring "Who will separate us from the love of God?" (Rom 8:35-39).

2Thes
2:10

Gen 1:3;
3:18;
1P 2:9;
Heb 1:3

12:9

1Cor
15:31;
Phil 3:10

Ps
116:10

Col 3:9

Mt 5:11; Rom 8:17; Heb 12:11; 1P 1:6
Col 1:16; Heb 11:1
17The slight affliction that quickly passes away prepares us for an eternal wealth of glory so great and beyond all comparison. 18So we no longer pay attention to the things that are seen, but to those that are unseen, for the things that we see last for a moment, but that which cannot be seen is eternal.

Job 4:19; Wis 9:15; Is 38:12
Rom 8:23
1Cor 15:33; 1Thes 4:15
5 We know that when our earthly dwelling, or rather our tent, is destroyed, we may count on a building from God, a heavenly dwelling not built by human hands, that lasts forever. 2Therefore we long and groan: Why may we not put on this heavenly dwelling over that which we have? 3(Indeed, are we sure that we shall still be wearing our earthly dwelling and not be unclothed?)

1:22
4As long as we are in the field-tent, we indeed moan our unbearable fate for we do not want this clothing to be removed from us; we would rather put the other over it, that the mortal body may be absorbed by true life. 5This is God's purpose for us, and he has given us the Spirit as a pledge of what we are to receive.

6So we feel confident always. We know that while living in the body, we are exiled from the Lord, 7living by faith, without seeing; 8but we dare to think that we would rather be away from the body to go and live with the Lord. 9So, whether we have to keep this house or lose it, we only wish to please the Lord. 10Anyway we all have to appear before the tribunal of Christ for each one to receive what he deserves for his good or evil deeds in the present life.

1P 1:1
Phil 1:21

Rom 14:10;
Jn 5:27;
Heb 11:6;
Eph 6:8

We proclaim the message of reconciliation

• 11So we know the fear of the Lord and we try to convince people while we live openly before God. And I trust that you know in your conscience what we truly are. 12Once more, we do not try to win your esteem; we want to give you a reason to feel proud of us, that you may respond to those who heed appearances and not the reality. 13Now, if I

• 5.11 There are many ways of understanding faith: for each one of us, one or other aspect of Christian life makes more of an impact. What Paul sees in Christ is the great messenger and artisan of reconciliation.

His first conviction is that, with the death of Christ, a new age has begun for divided humanity. If he died for all, all have died (v. 14), namely, the whole history and wisdom of people before him have been surpassed and now God works among us in other ways.

We do not regard anyone from the human point of view (v. 16). Paul confides something of his affective life. Those around him love him, even if they make difficulties for him, and in the Church each one has his friends, those on whom he may count. Paul loves them, but doubtless not all in the same way. To begin with, he accepts persons with different criteria and is not guided (as are many Corinthians) by the appearance of fine speakers (v. 12). And his affectivity has been renewed in the measure that he has been possessed by Christ: he loves them as God loves them and as God would like them to be.

Even if we once knew Christ personally... (v. 16). (Paul says: "If we have known him in the flesh" or, as he was in his humanity.) He no longer sees Christ as a Galilean preacher, enclosed in the context of Jewish life, but rather dominating history. Without a doubt he is also alluding to certain adversaries who consider themselves superior to him because they have known Jesus or belong to his family. He says to them: "we must" (which means: you must) see him differently: do not see him as your cousin!

The one who is in Christ is a new creature (v. 17): first because the barriers that divide and separate people no longer exist for him (see Gal 3:27; Eph 2:14-16). Also because it is not human desires that guide him, but the Spirit of God who recreates him at every instant (Gal 5:13-21).

In Christ God reconciled the world with himself (v. 19). Many people like to say: Jesus have spoken foolishly, let God alone hear; if what I have said makes sense, take it for yourselves.

Rom 5:18; 6:11
14 Indeed the love of Christ holds us and we realize that if he died for all, all have died. 15 He died for all so that those who live may live no longer for themselves, but for him who died and rose again for them.

Rom 14:8

Phil 3:10
16 And so from now on, we do not regard anyone from a human point of view; and even if we once knew Christ personally, we should now regard him in another way.

Gal 3:28; 6:15; Eph 4:24
17 For that same reason, the one who is in Christ is a new creature. For him the old things have passed away; a new world has come. 18 All this is the work of God who in Christ

Rom 5:10

Col 1:20
reconciled us to himself, and who entrusted to us the ministry of reconciliation. 19 Because in Christ God

Eph 6:20
reconciled the world with himself, no longer taking into account their trespasses and entrusting to us the message of reconciliation.

20 So we present ourselves as ambassadors in the name of Christ, as if God himself makes an appeal to you through us. Let God reconcile you; this we ask you in the name of Christ. 21 He had no sin, but God made him bear our sin, so that in him we might share the holiness of God.

Is 53:6;
Rom 8:3;
1 Jn 3:5;
Gal 3:13;
1 P 2:24

6 1 Being God's helpers we beg you: let it not be in vain that you received this grace of God. 2 Scripture says: At the favorable time I listened to you, on the day of salvation I helped you. This is the favorable time, this is the day of salvation.

Is 49:8

The trials of an apostle

• 3 We are concerned not to give anyone an occasion to stumble or criticize our mission. 4 Instead we prove we are true ministers of God in every way by our endurance in so many trials, in hardships, afflictions, 5 floggings, imprisonment, riots, fatigue, sleepless nights and days of hunger.

6 People can notice in our upright life, knowledge, patience and kindness, action of the Holy Spirit, sin-is love. This is true, but let us not forget that this love is his response to the love of the Father who wishes to reconcile us; we must do away with the idea of an angry God whom Jesus tries to appease (Rom 3:25).

Who entrusted to us the ministry of reconciliation (v. 18). Christians are not satisfied with only singing the praises of God, and their supreme aspiration is not to find a likeable community. They do their part in the task of universal reconciliation that supposes a denunciation of injustice and sin, and the effort to overcome them. Today the Church says a great deal about this so that we may better understand our mission in the world and in the conflicts and tensions that tear our nations apart.

We present ourselves as ambassadors in the name of Christ (v. 20). This is not only true of the apostles and Paul. It is also meant for us when we go to visit the sick or the needy; when, overcoming suspicion, we approach our brother or sister to create an atmosphere of confidence, so that, shortly, we may arrive at fraternal fellowship with others who have the same problems but who, in spite of that, often remain locked in their selfishness.

He had no sin (v. 21). It is difficult to translate Paul's words: "He made sin him who did not know sin," for obviously Paul here speaks according to Hebrew culture where the same word denotes both the sin and the victim who carries the sin. Paul recalls the mystery of the cross: reconciliation is not achieved without voluntary victims who take on themselves the hatred and the sin of humankind.

• 6.3 A distinctive sign of the apostle of Christ: the contrast between the treasure entrusted to him for others, and his own existence hardly enviable and truly unenvied. Like Jesus, he is a sign of contradiction. Paul recalls what he must endure, but does not hide his pride and his conviction: we enrich many, and we possess everything.

The eloquent appeal beginning in verses 11-13 continues in 7:2-16. It is there we find the commentary.

Rom 12:9; Gal 5:22 cere love, ⁷ words of truth and power of God. So we fight with the weapons of justice, to attack as well as to defend.

⁸ Sometimes we are honored, at other times insulted; we receive criticism as well as praise. We are regarded as liars although we speak the truth; ⁹ as unknown though we are well known; as dead and yet we live. Punishments come upon us but we have not, as yet, been put to death. ¹⁰ We appear to be afflicted, yet always joyful; we seem to be poor, but we enrich many; we have nothing, but we possess everything!

¹¹ Corinthians! I have spoken to you frankly and I have uncovered my inner thought. ¹² My heart is wide open to you, but you feel uneasy because of your closed heart: ¹³ repay us with the same measure—I speak to you as to my children—open wide your hearts also.

Have nothing to do with evil

Eph 5:10 • ¹⁴ Do not make unsuitable covenants with those who do not believe: can justice walk with wickedness? Or can light coexist with darkness, ¹⁵ and can there be harmony between Christ and Satan? What union can there be between one who believes and one who does not believe? ¹⁶ God's temple must have no room for idols, and we are the temple of the living God. As Scripture says; I will dwell and live in their midst, I will be their God and they shall be my people.

1Cor 3:16; Lev 26:11-12;

¹⁷ Therefore: Come out from their midst and separate from them, says the Lord. Do not touch anything unclean ¹⁸ and I will be gracious to you. I will be a father to you, that you may become my sons and daughters, says the all-powerful God.

7 ¹ Since we have such promises, dear friends, let us purify ourselves from all defilement of body and spirit, and complete the work of sanctification in the fear of God.

Welcome us in your hearts

• ² Welcome us in your hearts. We have injured no one, we have harmed no one, we have cheated no one. ³ I do not say this to condemn you: I have just said that you are in our heart so that together we live, together we die. ⁴ I have great confidence in you and I am indeed proud of you. I feel very much encouraged and my joy overflows in spite of all this bitterness.

⁵ Know that when I came to Macedonia, I had no rest at all but I was afflicted with all kinds of difficulties: conflict outside and fear within. ⁶ But God who encourages the humble gave me comfort with the arrival of Titus, ⁷ not only because of his arrival, but also because you had re-

• 14. This passage interrupts the flow of the discourse 6:13 continued in 7:2. What is the meaning of this sudden invitation not to have anything to do with bad people?

In the "first" letter to the Corinthians (1 Cor 5:9) Paul recalled a previous message in which he was asking them not to mix with people of immoral behavior. It is quite possible that the present passage comes from that message. Paul himself explains how we should understand these lines when he says in 1 Corinthians 5:10: "I did not tell you to stay away from the sinners of this world (if it were so, you would have to leave this world), but from the believers who went back to their pagan customs."

• 7.2 Welcome us in your hearts. Here again the affective side of Paul is revealed. This indefatigable missionary, never overcome or discouraged, was at the same time very sensitive. Paul here recalls the incident we have spoken of in the introduction. Thanks to Paul's letter, which must have been harsh, the Corinthians were converted, followed Paul and dealt with those who attacked him.

Ezk 37:27

Is 52:12; Jer 51:45

2S 7:14; Jer 31:9

2P 1:4

Acts 20:33

ceived him very well. He told me about your deep affection for me; you were affected by what happened, you worried about me, and this made me rejoice all the more.

⁸If my letter caused you pain, I do not regret it. Perhaps I did regret it, for I saw that the letter caused you sadness for a moment but now I rejoice, ⁹not because of your sadness, but because this sadness brought you to repentance. This was a sadness from God, so that no evil came to you because of me. ¹⁰Sadness from God brings firm repentance that leads to salvation and brings no regret, but worldly grief produces death. ¹¹See what this sadness from God has produced in you: What concern for me! What apologies! What indignation and fear! What a longing to see me, to make amends and do me justice!

You have fully proved that you were innocent in this matter. ¹²In reality, I wrote to you not on account of the offender or of the offended, but that you may be conscious of the concern you have for me before God. ¹³I was encouraged by this.

In addition to this consolation of mine, I rejoice especially to see Titus very pleased with the way you all reassured him. ¹⁴I had no cause to regret my praise of you to him. You know that I am always sincere with you; likewise my praise of you to Titus has been justified. ¹⁵He now feels much more affection for you as he remembers the obedience of all and the respect and humility with which you received him. ¹⁶Really I rejoice for I can be truly proud of you.

The collection for those in Jerusalem

8 ¹Now I want you to know about a gift of divine grace among the Churches of Macedonia. ²While they were so afflicted and persecuted, their joy overflowed and their extreme poverty turned into a wealth of generosity. ³⁻⁴According to their means—even beyond their means—they wanted to share in helping the saints.

They asked us for this favor spontaneously and with much insistence ⁵and, far beyond anything we expected, they put themselves at the disposal of the Lord and of us by the will of God. ⁶Accordingly, I urged Titus to complete among you this work of grace since he began it with you. ⁷You excel in everything: in the gifts of faith, speech and knowledge; you feel concern for every cause and, besides, you are first in my heart. Excel also in this generous service.

⁸This is not a command; I make known to you the determination of others to check the sincerity of your fraternal concern. ⁹You know well the generosity of Christ Jesus, our Lord. Although he was rich, he made himself poor to make you rich through his poverty.

1Cor
16:5;
Gal 2:10

1Cor 1:5

Mt 8:20;
Phil 2:7

• 8.1 The saints (v. 3) are the Christians of Jerusalem. In the year 48 there was a famine in Judea and in Jerusalem (Acts 11:28) due to the poor harvest of the previous year, a sabbatical year (during which the Jews did not sow so that the earth could rest). To remedy this situation of shortage, economic aid for the Christians of Jerusalem was organized. Later, Paul promised to keep the Jerusalem community in mind during his missions among the pagans (Gal 2:10). Here, Paul exhorts the Churches in Corinth and in the province to take up this collection that they had agreed upon.

Paul does not use the word collection in these chapters. Instead he speaks of the liberality and the greatness of generous giving; of the blessed work of grace. It is more a gift for the one who gives than for the one who receives.

2:13

8:24

Mk
12:44

Rom
15:27

16:18

Acts
20:4;
1Cor
16:3

Pro 3:4
(LXX)

¹⁰I only make a suggestion, because you were the first not only in cooperating, but in beginning this project a year ago. ¹¹So complete this work and, according to your means, carry out what you decided with much enthusiasm. ¹²When there is a good disposition, everything you give is welcomed and no one longs for what you do not have. ¹³I do not mean that others should be at ease and you burdened. Strive for equality; ¹⁴at present give from your abundance what they are short of, and in some way they also will give from their abundance what you lack. Then you will be equal ¹⁵and what Scripture says shall come true: To the one who had much, nothing was in excess; to the one who had little, nothing was lacking.

¹⁶Blessed be God who inspires Titus with such care for you! ¹⁷He not only listened to my appeal but he wanted to go and see you on his own initiative. ¹⁸I am sending with him the brother who has gained the esteem of the churches in the work of the Gospel; ¹⁹moreover they appointed him to travel with us in this blessed work we are carrying on for the glory of the Lord but also because of our personal enthusiasm.

²⁰We decided on this so that no one could suspect us with regard to this generous fund that we are administering. ²¹*Let us see to it that all may appear clean not only before God but also before people.* ²²We also send with them another brother who on several occasions has shown us his zeal and, now, is more enthusiastic because of his confidence in you.

²³You then have Titus, our companion and minister, to serve you and, with him, you have our brothers, representatives of the churches and a glory to Christ. ²⁴Show them how you love, and prove before the churches all the good things I said to them about you.

More about the collection

9 • ¹It is not necessary for me to write to you about assistance to the saints. ²I know your readiness and I praised you before the Macedonians. I said, "In Achaia they have been ready for the collection since last year." And your enthusiasm carried most of them along. ³So I send you these brothers of ours. May all my praise of you not fall flat in this case! May you be ready, as I said. ⁴If some Macedonians come with me, let them not find you unprepared. What a shame for me—and perhaps for you—after so much confidence!

8:24

⁵So I thought it necessary to ask our brothers to go ahead of us and see you to organize this blessed work you have promised. It shall come from your generosity and not be an imposed task.

⁶Remember: the one who sows meagerly will reap meagerly, and there shall be generous harvests for the one who sows generously. ⁷Each of you should give as you decided

Pro
11:24

Pro 22:8
(LXX)

Paul takes great care that the collection, involving large amounts, should be duly taken up. It must be collected and held by people who enjoy the confidence of the community.

In verse 18, Paul surely refers to Luke: probably he had not yet published his Gospel, but was already helping the Churches to preach it.

• 9.1 Here again Paul speaks of the collection as if he had not done so in the previous chapter. Some think that at the same time Paul was writing to the Corinthians to invite them to give (chap. 8), he wrote another message for the churches of Achaia, which was the province of Corinth: this message may have been placed here later, at the end of the letter, because the theme is the same (chap. 9).

personally, and not reluctantly as if obliged. God loves a cheerful giver. ⁸And God is able to fill you with every good thing, so that you have enough of everything at all times, and may give abundantly for any good work.

⁹Scripture says: He distributed, he gave to the poor, his good works last forever. ¹⁰God who provides the sower with seed will also provide him with the bread he eats. He will multiply the seed for you and also increase the interests of your good works. ¹¹Become rich in every way, and give abundantly. What you give will become, through us, a thanksgiving to God.

¹²For this sacred relief, after providing the saints with what they need, will result in much thanksgiving to God. ¹³This will be a test for them; they will give thanks because you obey the requirements of Christ's Gospel and share generously with them and with all. ¹⁴They shall pray to God for you and feel affection for you because the grace of God overflows in you.

¹⁵Yes, thanks be to God for his indescribable gift!

Paul's defense and admonition

10¹ It is I, Paul, who by the humility and kindness of Christ appeal to you, the Paul "who is timid among you and bold when far away from you!"

²Do not force me to act boldly when I come, as I am determined and will dare to act against some people who think that I act from human motives. ³Human is our condition but not our fight.

⁴Our weapons for this fight are not human but they have divine power to destroy strongholds—those arguments ⁵and haughty thoughts that oppose the knowledge of God. We compel all understanding, that they obey Christ. ⁶So I am prepared to punish any disobedience when you should show perfect obedience.

⁷See things as they really are. If

Mt 11:29;
1Cor 2:3;
Phil 2:1;
2Cor
10:11;
1Cor
4:21

6:7;
Is 2:13

• 10.1 The tone of violence in these chapters 10–13 does not fit with the reconciliation previously expressed. They may come from the letter Paul had sent before, following the incident in which various members of the Corinthian community rebelled against him.

In this extraordinary page, a few words immediately situate the discussion.

Some members of the community attack Paul's authority, feeling supported by those who have not been able to set foot (v. 14). Who are these people? They have the title of apostle, that is, of founders of communities, but by chance they always arrive where the work is already done (v. 16). People compare one "apostle" with another and Paul who never wanted to be served, who never pretended to be a great orator, or "doctor in religion" appears as a man of weak personality. His letters are severe and strong, some say, but as he is, he has no presence and he is a poor speaker (v. 10).

Do not force me to act boldly (v. 2). Paul sees himself as the apostle of the community, the one who has led them to the faith and communicated the Holy Spirit to them: no one could deny that.

Paul speaks of his power and his weapons in a threatening way. Surely the "power that destroys strongholds" is the Word of God. The Word of God gave birth to the Christian communities and gives them the power to stay united and alive in the face of opposition. The Gospel is "God's power," and when it is boldly proclaimed, the forces that oppose it collapse.

In this case, however, it is also a question of Paul's spiritual power. Naturally, we think of Paul's conviction, the power of his word, the awareness of his mission, all of which made an impact on the Corinthians. It is also in the nature of apostles and prophets to threaten at times, on behalf of God who intervenes in an obvious way to show they are right. Recall the case with Ananias and Sapphira before Peter (Acts 5).

Paul's firm intention is to destroy arguments and haughty thoughts that oppose the knowledge of God (v. 5). One might see here nothing but a rivalry between persons,

Ps 112:9

Is 55:10;
Hos
10:12

Acts
2:42

13:3; Jer 1:10
 someone is convinced that he belongs to Christ, let him consider that just as he is Christ's, so am I. ⁸Although I may seem too confident in the authority that the Lord gave me for building you up and not for pulling you down, I will not be put to shame for saying this. ⁹Do not think that I can only frighten you with letters. ¹⁰"His letters are severe and strong," some say, "but as he is, he has no presence and he is a poor speaker." ¹¹To such people I say, "Be careful: what my letters say from afar, is what I will do when I come."

10:2; 13:10
¹²How could I venture to equate or compare myself with some people who proclaim their own merits? Fools! They measure themselves with their own measure and compare themselves with themselves. ¹³As for me, I will not boast beyond measure, for I will not go past the limits that the God of true measure has set for me: He gave the measuring stick when he made me set foot in your place.

Rom 12:3; Col 1:25
¹⁴It is not the same when someone goes beyond his field to where he has not been able to set foot. But I am he who first reached you with the Gospel of Christ. ¹⁵I am not making myself important where others have worked. On the contrary, we hope that as your faith increases, so too our area of ministry among you will be enlarged without going beyond our limit. ¹⁶So we shall bring the Gospel to places beyond yours without entering into the field of others, or boasting and making ourselves important where the work is already done. ¹⁷*Let the one who boasts, boast in the Lord.* ¹⁸It is not the one who commends himself who is approved, but the one whom the Lord commends.

11 ¹May you bear with me in some little foolishness! But surely you will. ²I confess that I share the jealousy of God for you, for I have promised you in marriage to Christ, the only spouse, to present you to him as a pure virgin. ³And this is my fear: the serpent that seduced Eve with cunning could also corrupt your minds and divert you from the Christian sincerity. ⁴Someone now comes and preaches another Jesus different from the one we preach, or you are offered a different spirit from the one you have received, with a different Gospel from the one you have accepted—and you agree!

⁵I do not see how I am inferior to those super-apostles. ⁶Does my speaking leave much to be desired? Perhaps, but not my knowledge, as I have abundantly shown to you in every way.

Jer 9:23;
 1Cor
 1:31

Jn 3:29;
 Eph
 5:26;
 Rev 21:2

Gen 3

Gal 1:6

12:11;
 1Cor 2:1

but Paul knows what bothers many of them in his leadership: he does not go along with their game of petty interests and makes them live in the truth. If they do not have the courage to continue in that way, they will be nothing more than a religious group among others: they will have lost the path of the knowledge of God.

Faith is obedience (Rom 1:5): we submit to a teaching from God. That always goes together with obedience in a concrete life situation. If God has intended us to be a Church, he has necessarily wanted obedience to a hierarchy and to an established order. It is such obedience that Paul exacts.

Take note: this right to be obeyed is based on the call of Christ that has made him an apostle and on what the Spirit has done through him. When we see a multitude of preachers setting out on a mission, each one for his own church, we would at times have the right to ask who has sent them. We must also remember that it is not a question of Paul reigning over this community or several of them: he has already left to evangelize further afield (vv. 15-16).

Paul commends the apostle PaulActs
18:3;
1Cor
9:12

•⁷Perhaps my fault was that I humbled myself in order to uplift you, or that I gave you the Gospel free of charge. ⁸I called upon the services of other churches and served you with the support I received from them. ⁹When I was with you, although I was in need, I did not become a burden to anyone. The friends from Macedonia gave me what I needed. I have taken care not to be a burden to you in anything and I will continue to do so. ¹⁰By the truth of Christ within me, I will let no one in the land of Achaia stop this boasting of mine.

Phil 4:15

¹¹Why? Because I do not love you? God knows that I do! ¹²Yet I do and I will continue to do so to silence any people anxious to appear as equal to me: this is my glory. ¹³In reality, they are false apostles, deceivers disguised as apostles of Christ. ¹⁴It is not surprising: if Satan disguises himself as an angel of light, ¹⁵his servants can easily disguise themselves as ministers of salvation, until they receive what their deeds deserve.

2:17;
Phil 3:2

¹⁶I say again: Do not take me for a fool, but if you do take me as such, bear with me that I may sing my own

12:6

praises a little. ¹⁷I will not speak with the Lord's authority, but as a fool, bringing my own merits to prominence. ¹⁸As some people boast of human advantages, I will do the same. ¹⁹Fortunately you bear rather well with fools, you who are so wise! ²⁰You tolerate being enslaved, and exploited, robbed, treated with contempt and slapped in the face. ²¹What a shame that I acted so weakly with you!

But if others are so bold, I shall also dare, although I may speak like a fool. ²²Are they Hebrews? So am I. Are they Israelites? So am I. Are they descendants of Abraham? So am I. ²³Are they ministers of Christ? (I begin to talk like a madman) I am better than they.

Phil 3:4;
Gal 1:13;
Rom
11:1

Better than they with my numerous labors. Better than they with the time spent in prison. The beatings I received are beyond comparison. How many times have I found myself in danger of death! ²⁴Five times the Jews sentenced me to thirty-nine lashes. ²⁵Three times I was beaten with a rod, once I was stoned. Three times I was shipwrecked, and once I spent a night and a day adrift on the high seas.

Dt 25:2;
Acts
16:22

²⁶I have been continually in haz-

• 11.7 In chapters 11 and 12, Paul will compare himself to the "apostles" who managed to be appreciated by the Corinthians, and on which his opponents are relying. Paul wants not to treat them as equal to equal: he is conscious of who he is, he can judge them. A dangerous position, even for someone who believes he is truly inspired by God! And yet, see 1 Corinthians 2:14-15.

To begin with, Paul is sure of a direct call from Christ: this contact with the risen Jesus has given him a transforming presence of Christ. He knows that his criteria, his decisions, his prophetic intuition have bypassed his adversaries. It is precisely because he has reached a superior level of life in the Spirit that he feels free vis-à-vis the "religious obligations" that are given such importance, even first place, by his opponents: compare paragraph 11:4-6 with Galatians 2:6-10 and 5:7-12; see also 1 Thessalonians 3:2-11.

Their attachment to the observance of the Jewish Law does not come from a different, legitimate view of matters of faith. They hold to it, because in their own lives, they have not discovered the best of Christian experience. Jesus had already shown, as in the case of the Pharisees that strict observance of religious rites comes from a lack of true faith (Mk 7:6). Whoever has the experience of life in the Spirit, shocks, without wishing to do so, any "religious" people and such was the case of Paul in the Church.

In verses 22-30, Paul speaks of his labors and ards of traveling because of rivers, because of bandits, because of my fellow Jews, or because of the pagans; in danger in the city, in the open country, at sea; in danger from false brothers. ²⁷I have worked and often labored without sleep, I have been hungry and thirsty and starving, cold and without shelter.

²⁸Besides these and other things, there was my daily concern for all the churches. ²⁹Who is weak that I do not feel weak as well? Whoever stumbles, am I not on hot bricks?

³⁰If it is necessary to boast, let me proclaim the occasions on which I was found weak. ³¹The God and Father of Jesus the Lord—may he be blessed for ever!—knows that I speak the truth. ³²At Damascus, the governor under King Aretas placed the city under guard in order to arrest me, ³³and I had to be let down in a basket through a window in the wall. In that way I slipped through his hands.

Extraordinary graces

12 ¹It is useless to boast; but if I have to, I will go on to some visions and revelations of the Lord.

²I know a certain Christian: fourteen years ago he was taken up to the third heaven. ³Whether in the body or out of the body, I do not know, God knows. But I know that this man, whether in the body or out of the body—I do not know, God knows—⁴was taken up to Paradise where he heard words that cannot be told: things which humans cannot express.

⁵Of that man I can indeed boast, but of myself I will not boast except of my weaknesses. ⁶If I wanted to boast, it would not be foolish of me, for I would speak the truth. ⁷However, I better give up lest somebody think more of me than what is seen in me or heard from me. Lest I become proud after so many and extraordinary revelations, I was given a thorn in my flesh, a true messenger of Satan, to slap me in the face. ⁸Three times I prayed to the Lord that it leave me, ⁹but he answered, “My grace is enough for you; my great strength is revealed in weakness.”

Gladly, then, will I boast of my weakness that the strength of Christ may be mine. ¹⁰So I rejoice when I suffer infirmities, humiliations, want, persecutions: all for Christ! For when I am weak, then I am strong.

Acts 9: 22-25

Mt 26:39

Is 40:29

Col 1:24

33:20; Rev 1:17

the risks he has taken, the persecutions he has known. He does not do this to be well thought of. He wants to show others, and remind himself, that he is gifted with an exceptional grace. All are called to follow Jesus and carry his cross, all are called to evangelize. Why is it that so few undertake the true work of evangelization among “those who are afar,” as Jesus and Paul did? That in itself is a grace, and those who have not received it do not perceive the calls and miss the occasions. Paul intends to remain inimitable, not through vainglory but in fidelity to the way on which Christ has placed him.

APOSTOLATE AND CONTEMPLATION

• 12.1 Here Paul briefly alludes to the ecstasies through which he has been formed anew. The word ecstasy seems to many people rather eccentric; for others it is only appropriate for contemplative living apart from the world. It is quite true that ecstasy, if genuine, is relevant to contemplative life. But what is contemplation?

By “contemplation” we often understand the time given to meditation on the things of God and the discovery of his presence in our lives. In this sense we oppose contemplation to action, or we say that both should go together. Yet the word “contemplation” also and more rightly denotes a new stage in spiritual life where the relationship between our spirit and God are profoundly changed.

In this contemplation, it is not we who discover God or who establish ourselves in silence. God is the one who imposes his presence, who, in us, gives birth to our response. Contemplation is a gift of God; it is a way of knowing God, of being guided, reformed by

1Cor
2:4;
1Thes
1:5

¹¹I have acted as a fool but you forced me. You should have been the ones commending me. Yet I do not feel outdone by those super-apostles, ¹²even though I am nothing. All the signs of a true apostle are found in me: patience in all trials, signs, miracles and wonders.

¹³Now, in what way were you not treated like the rest of the churches? Only in this: I was not a burden to you—forgive me for this offense!

This is my third visit to you

• ¹⁴For the third time I plan to visit you, and I will not be a burden to you, for I am not interested in what you have but only in you. Children should not have to collect money for their parents, but the parents for their children. ¹⁵As for me, I am ready to spend whatever I have and even my whole self for all of you. If I love you so much, am I to be loved less?

Phil 2:17

¹⁶Well, I was not a burden to you, but was it not a trick to deceive you? Tell me: ¹⁷Did I take money from you through any of my messengers? ¹⁸I asked Titus to go to you and I sent another brother with him. But did Titus take money from you? Have we not both acted in the same spirit?

¹⁹Perhaps you think that we are again apologizing; but no: we speak in Christ and before God, and I do this for you, dear friends, to build you up. ²⁰I fear that if I go and see you, I might not find you as I would wish, and you in turn, might not find me to your liking. I might see rivalries, envy, grudges, disputes, slanders, gossip, conceit, disorder. ²¹Let it not be that in coming again to you, God humble me because of you and I have to grieve over so many of you who live in sin, on seeing that they have not yet given up an impure way of living, their wicked conduct and the vices they formerly practiced.

2:17;
3:1

Rom
1:29;
Gal 5:20

him that is different from what the majority of Christians experience. It is not exceptional. The transforming and sovereign action of the Spirit is there more efficacious, leading always to the same end: the individual no longer belongs to himself.

This contemplation may be given to those who have retired to convents to answer a call from God; it may be given to those who live the normal life of most people; it is given to apostles. Differing from the practice of transcendental meditation and recollection that come from the East, it eludes our efforts; it is not a matter of leading either a more active or a more retired life. What is essential is that God has taken possession of our liberty (see Jer 1:5).

If Paul has been the apostle we know, if he has had an exceptional understanding of the Christian mystery, it is because he has been a great contemplative—in the sense we have just given. The ecstasies about which he has spoken correspond to the early years following his conversion (see Acts 22:6 and 17); they are proper to an advanced stage of contemplative life, but not the last, which is total and constant union with God.

I was given a thorn in my flesh. Many hypotheses have been offered on what this thorn could be: an illness perhaps (2 Cor 1:8; Gal 4:13) of which the unforeseen relapses reduced him to powerlessness? Or a temptation of the “flesh,” a late consequence of his moral education as rigid as the commandments of the Law? What is certain is that we all aspire to a state of peace in which we feel sure of ourselves, but God for his part, whatever the richness of his gifts, refuses to grant it (1 Cor 2:5; 4:7).

• 14. Paul ends his letter in affirming his authority. Jesus had spoken of a testimony coming both from the apostles and the Holy Spirit; in the same way Paul ends his defense appealing to a discernment which will be the work of the Spirit: verify, examine, recognize. Without a doubt it should be the same in the Church and at all levels; we cannot resolve conflicts or decide on orientation by arguments or votes only. We must necessarily have, besides reflection, times of silence, of true prayer and listening to the word of God.

Notice the “trinitarian” formula in 13:13.

Dt 19:15;
Mt 18:16;
1Tim
5:19

13 ¹This will be my third visit to you. Any charge must be decided upon by the declaration of two or three witnesses. ²I have said and I say again, being still far away, just as I did on my second visit I say to you who lived in sin as well as to the rest: when I return to you, I will not have pity. ³You want to know if Christ is speaking through me? So you will. He is not used to dealing weakly with you, but rather he acts with power. ⁴If he was crucified in his weakness, now he lives by the strength of God; and so we are weak with him, but we will be well alive with him, because God acts powerfully with you.

Rom 6:8

⁵Examine yourselves: are you acting according to faith? Test yourselves. Can you assert that Christ Jesus is in you? If not, you have failed the test. ⁶I hope you recognize that we ourselves have not failed it.

1Cor
11:28;
Gal 6:4

⁷We pray God that you may do no wrong, not that we wish to be acknowledged but we want you to do right, even if in this we appear to have failed. ⁸For we do not have power against the truth, but only for the truth. ⁹We rejoice if we are weak while you are strong, for all we hope is that you become perfect. ¹⁰This is why I am writing now, so that when I come I may not have to act strictly and make use of the authority the Lord has given me for building up and not for destroying.

4:10;
1Cor
13:6

10:8;
Jer 1:10

¹¹Finally, brothers and sisters, be happy, strive to be perfect, have courage, be of one mind and live in peace. And the God of love and peace will be with you. ¹²Greet one another with a holy kiss. All the saints greet you.

Phil 3:1;
4:4

¹³The grace of Christ Jesus the Lord, the love of God and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit be with you all.

1Cor
16:20;
1Thes
5:26

Phil 2:1

PAGE 1736 – BLANK

Who were the Galatians? Galatia was a northern province of today's Turkey. Once Paul had stopped there (Acts 16:6) when an illness had prevented him from pursuing his journey (Gal 4:13-14). He had visited the Galatians again (Acts 18:23) before settling in Ephesus (Acts 19:1) and he had asked them to help the poor in Jerusalem (1 Cor 16:1).

Paul is writing because the community is in danger. Strangely enough, Paul does not make any reference to scandals, laxity or to conflicts of authority, as it was the case in Corinth. There were tensions and doubts as some people wanted to go back to Jewish practices. However, it seems that the community was not expecting such a warning from Paul. He had shown greater foresight. Some people wanted to return to religious practices because they had failed to understand that being Christian was primarily living one's faith rather than practicing a religion.

For the Galatians, discovering the Gospel had been like a bath in freedom. Those who were Jewish were freed from the constraint of religious practices and those who were Greek (and pagan) were freed from the prejudices of their society: it was like a great cleansing. But were they able to follow Paul when he declared that Christ was able to fill our lives and that the Spirit is a much better guide than any religious obligations?

At first, the Galatians had experienced what was at the core of Paul's life. But the community found it difficult to maintain itself along such a new line. After their initial enthusiasm, most of these new Christians felt a need for rules and practices. They did have faith in Christ but it was asking for a lot to want all of them to be "spiritual" people.

It was precisely at that time that preachers of Jewish origin were exhorting them to be circumcised and to observe the customs of Israel (4:10) by promising them a life superior to the life obtained by conversion to Christ.

Belonging to Judaism would have brought material security to the Galatians since the Israelite religion was protected by Roman laws. If they refused both idolatry and the Jewish religion, they were running the risk of being persecuted (6:12-14). On the contrary, if they adopted the Jewish nationality and the customs of Israel, they would have avoided persecution but that would have been the same as saying that Christ had died for nothing (2:21).

This is the reason why Paul reacted passionately. All of us, Jews and pagans, are solely saved by the generosity of God who has forgiven our sins and who has given us, along with his Spirit, the freedom of love (5:13-14). When we give too much credit to the rules and practices of a religion, we are locking ourselves into a system, an order in which we expect, even without saying it, a reward for our good deeds. On the contrary, faith means surrendering to God and his mystery that is as awesome as its symbol, the cross. Faith also means believing that God wants the salvation of all human beings, regardless of their nationality (3:9).

This should be enough to understand that this letter to the Galatians is still addressing us in our time when so many people reduce religion to practices. Moreover, it is a fact that to the extent that the Church has to sustain many Christians who have a very limited experience of life in the freedom of the Spirit, it tends to bring itself to their level and to become a religion. This is why the Church has to regain the awareness of its identity and to rediscover the meaning of living by faith.

1:11;
Rom 1:1;
Acts
20:24

1 • ¹From Paul, an apostle sent not by humans nor by human mediation but by Christ Jesus and by God, the Father, who raised him from the dead;

Acts
16:16;
18:23

²I and all the brothers and sisters who are with me greet the churches in Galatia: ³may you receive grace and peace from God our Father and from Christ Jesus our Lord.

1Jn 5:19;
Acts 2:40

⁴He gave himself for our sins to rescue us from this evil world, in fulfillment of the will of God the Father:

⁵Glory to him forever and ever. Amen.

There is no other gospel

• ⁶I am surprised at how quickly you have abandoned God who called you according to the grace of Christ, and have gone to another gospel.

• 1.1 Paul reminds them and stresses the fact that he has been called and sent directly by God. Speaking of apostles he does not first think of Jesus' Twelve who had been sent by him, but of others who had this title, sent by the Church and God, but in fact chosen by people.

• 6. I am surprised at how quickly you have abandoned God... and have gone to another gospel. There are many ways of preaching the Gospel and making of it a different one, no longer the Good News given by God through Jesus. Some of the Galatians who were of Jewish origin did not understand it. The style of life, in appearance more religious, that they were trying to impose on the community, was in fact a way of doubting Jesus, who alone is Savior.

⁷Indeed, there is no other gospel, but some people who are sowing confusion among you want to turn the Gospel of Christ upside down.

⁸But even if we ourselves were giving you another gospel different from the one we preached to you, or if it were an angel from heaven, I would say: let God's curse be on him! ⁹As I have said I now say again: if anyone preaches the Gospel in a way other than you received it, fire that one. ¹⁰Are we to please humans or obey God? Do you think that I try to please people? If I were still trying to please people, I would not be a servant of Christ.

2Cor
11:4;
Acts
15:24

1Thes
2:4

Paul teaches what he received from God

• ¹¹Let me remind you, brothers and sisters, that the Gospel we

The one we preached to you (v. 8). Astonishing words for us who are used to receiving different points of view: was Paul then infallible? He knew he was bearer, not only of the Word of God, but also of the "truth of the Gospel." In fact the faith of the Church has always been the faith of the apostles: we believe in Jesus as the apostles believed, understood and taught. It is impossible to make this a subject of discussion without departing from the Christian faith. The doctrine received from the apostles and guarded by the Church is what we call Tradition.

• 11. The enemies of Paul criticize his authority saying that he was not an apostle like those Jesus had chosen. Paul will then briefly recall his itinerary: see on this subject Acts 9:1-31.

preached to you is not a human message, ¹²nor did I receive it from anyone, I was not taught of it but it came to me as a revelation from Christ Jesus. ¹³You have heard of my previous activity in the Jewish community; I furiously persecuted the Church of God and tried to destroy it. ¹⁴For I was more devoted to the Jewish religion than many fellow Jews of my age, and I defended the traditions of my ancestors more fanatically.

¹⁵But one day God called me out of his great love, he who had chosen me from my mother's womb; and he was pleased ¹⁶to reveal in me his Son, that I might make him known among the pagan nations. Then I did not seek human advice ¹⁷nor did I go up to Jerusalem to those who were apostles before me. I immediately went to Arabia, and from there I returned again to Damascus. ¹⁸Later, after three years, I went up to Jerusalem to meet Cephas, and I stayed with him for fifteen days. ¹⁹But I did not see any other apostle except James, the Lord's brother. ²⁰On writing this to you, I affirm before God that I am not lying.

²¹After that I went to Syria and Cilicia. ²²The churches of Christ in Judea did not know me personally; ²³they had only heard of me: "He who once persecuted us is now preaching the faith he tried to uproot." ²⁴And they praised God because of me.

Paul with the apostles

2 • ¹After fourteen years I again went up to Jerusalem with Barnabas, and Titus came with us. ²Following a revelation, I went to lay before them the Gospel that I am preaching to the pagans. I had a private meeting with the leaders—lest I should be working or have worked in a wrong way. ³But they did not impose circumcision, not even on Titus who is Greek and who was with me. ⁴But there were some intruders and false brothers who had gained access to watch over the way we live the freedom Christ has given us. They would have us enslaved by the Law, ⁵but we refused to yield even for a moment; so that the truth of the Gospel remain intact for you.

⁶The others, the more respectable leaders—it does not matter what they were before: God pays no at-

To reveal in me his Son (v. 16). Paul has not only "seen" Christ, he discovered him intimately present in himself. The risen Christ, Word and Wisdom of God, gave him in a unique illumination all the truth of faith (not all the truths which are only partial aspects which we may discover in different stages of life).

The case of Paul, whom Christ called directly, is special. Yet we see that Paul did not impose himself on the Church. Christ sent him to ask Ananias for baptism. Later he saw "Cephas" (the Aramean name for Peter), recognized head of the Church, and James, responsible for the Church of Jerusalem. This "union" or "communion" is indispensable for acting in the name of the Church.

Paul says: They acknowledged the graces God gave me (2:9): they recognized that the Spirit of God was in Paul's work. The leaders in the Church do not impose a personal policy, but they try to recognize the call of the Holy Spirit.

• 2.1 This meeting in Jerusalem is related in Acts 15 and its commentary is found there.

When they became Christians, the Jews by race and religion continued to observe the Law of Moses in which the great commandments (to know God, not to murder...), the rituals of worship, and national customs are combined. When people of different races began to be converted to Christ, Paul demanded that they should not be forced to follow the Mosaic Law. Naturally, they had to respect their neighbor and were not to steal, but this emerges from the Gospel without having to impose the Mosaic Law.

So that the truth of the Gospel remain intact for you (v. 5). Because the Gospel frees us from all that limits our horizon. God is pure lib-

Mt 16:17

2Cor 11:21;
Acts 8:1Phil 3:6;
Acts 26:4;
Mt 7:3Jer 1:5;
Is 49:1;
Lk 1:15

Acts 9:26

Acts 9:30;
11:25

Acts 15:2

Acts 15:19

Acts 15:24;
Rom 16:15

Dt 10:17

Rom 1:5;
15:15

tention to the status of a person—gave me no new instructions. ⁷They recognized that I have been entrusted to give the Good News to the pagan nations, just as Peter has been entrusted to give it to the Jews. ⁸In the same way that God made Peter the apostle of the Jews, he made me the apostle of the pagans.

Mk 5:37;
9:2

⁹James, Cephas and John acknowledged the graces God gave me. Those men who were regarded as the pillars of the Church stretched out their hand to me, and Barnabas as a sign of fellowship; we would go to the pagans and they to the Jews.

Acts
24:17;
1Cor
16:8;
2Cor 8:1

¹⁰We should only keep in mind the poor among them. I have taken care to do this.

The conflict with Peter

• ¹¹When later Cephas came to Antioch, I confronted him since he deserved to be blamed. ¹²Before some of James' people arrived, he used to eat with non-Jewish people. But when they arrived, he withdrew and did not mingle anymore with them, for fear of the Jewish group. ¹³The rest of the Jews followed him in this pretense, and even Barnabas was part of this insincerity. ¹⁴When I saw that they were not acting in line with the truth of the Gospel, I said to Cephas publicly: If you who are Jewish agreed to live like the non-Jews, setting aside the Jewish customs, why do you now compel the non-Jews to live like Jews?

Acts
15:10

• ¹⁵We are Jews by birth; we are not pagan sinners. ¹⁶Yet we know that a person is justified not by practicing the law but by faith in Christ Jesus. So we have believed in Christ Jesus that we may receive true right-

Rom
3:22;
Acts
15:11;
Ps 143:2

erty and pure gift. May he be seen (it is not wrong) as the fabulous creator of an immense universe, or (what has more truth) as unique Love and Lover, Father of all who are able to return his love, he cannot tie us to a certain way of dressing nor enclose himself in our cooking and our times of prayer. Time has come for reciprocal kindness (Jn 1:17).

We are concerned, and rightly so, for keeping true faith. Here Paul shows that keeping the truth of the Gospel is not only a matter of formulas; our very way of life, free vis-à-vis of all that is not God, proclaims what the Gospel is.

It does not matter what they were before (v. 6). Peter, James and John had no titles, or money or culture. They may even have been despised by more learned believers. Paul does not pay attention to that; he looks upon them only as the leaders of the Church.

• 11. In the church, Paul feels it is his duty to reprimand the supreme leader, the first pope. Jesus promised Peter that his faith would not fail but he did not say that he would never make a mistake.

Jesus did not eat with pagan non-Jews since, for them, it would have been something "impure," a blemish. When some Jews were converted and entered the Church, if they had maintained this attitude toward their Christian brothers and sisters from another race, they would have kept an inadmissible division within a community renewed by Christ.

Peter (or Cephas: see Jn 1:42) knows that now all people are equal and he accepts for himself, not to take the Law into account. Yet he is afraid of what his friends and compatriots will think. He does not realize that, in order to please them, he is endangering the evangelization of those who are not Jewish. These people, in being seen as impure, are no longer at home in the Church. They are pressured to adopt the Jewish customs and with this, they will become alien to their own people. If they do not comply, they will be second-class citizens in the Church.

This problem is always with us, since often those who give the tone in the Christian community belong to a certain social level: others have no reason to do everything as they do. Each one in the Church comes from a particular milieu with its culture and language: we have the right to be shocked by what is foreign to our own culture but we must bear many things we do not like. The Church has to be open to diverse peoples.

• 15. We are Jews... Paul develops here what his reply to Peter contained: when you welcomed Christian faith, you gave up any eousness from faith in Christ Jesus, and not from the practices of the Law, because no one will be justified by the works of the law.

¹⁷Now, if in our own effort to be justified in Christ we ourselves have been found to be sinners, then Christ would be at the service of sin. Not so!
¹⁸But look: if we do away with something and then restore it, we admit we did wrong.

Rom 7:1; 8:11 ¹⁹As for me, the very Law brought me to die to the Law, that I may live for God. I am crucified with Christ.

Phil 1:21; Col 3:3; Jn 13:1; Tit 2:14 ²⁰Do I live? It is no longer me, Christ lives in me. My life in this body is life through faith in the Son of God who loved me and gave himself for me.

5:4 ²¹In this way I don't ignore the gift of God, for, if justification comes through the practice of the Law, Christ would have died for nothing.

We are saved by faith

1Cor 2:2 3 ¹How foolish you are, Galatians! How could they bewitch you after Jesus Christ has been presented to you as crucified? ²I shall ask you only this: Did you receive the Spirit by the practice of the Law, or by believing the message? ³How can you be such fools: you begin with the Spirit and end up with the flesh!

⁴So you have experienced all this in vain! Would that it were not so!
⁵Did God give you the Spirit and work miracles among you, because of your observance of the Law or because you believed in his message?
⁶Remember Abraham: he believed God and because of this was held to be a just man. ⁷Understand then that those who follow the way of faith are sons and daughters of Abraham.

Gen 15:6; Rom 4:3

⁸The Scriptures foresaw that by the way of faith, God would give true righteousness to the non-Jewish nations. For God's promise to Abraham was this: In you shall all the nations be blessed. ⁹So now those who take the way of faith receive the same blessing as Abraham who believed; ¹⁰but those who rely on the practice hope of being rewarded for fulfilling the commandments; you put instead all your trust in Jesus as a Savior. This challenge has made Christian faith very strong. If now, for fear of scandalizing the Jews you decline from eating with non-Jews, all will understand that you have gone too far and that in fact the Law is still valid.

Gen 12:3

Dt 27:26;

If we do away with something and then restore it (v. 18). This is exactly what the Galatians are doing in their turn. Paul taught them to be free of the prejudices of their pagan religion just as of the practices of the Old Testament. Now without these practices they feel naked: was faith in Christ sufficient when all around them each one had religion and practices? It was not pleasant to be circumcised, but at least, it gave you an identity.

We have here a summary of what Paul will develop four years later in chapters 2–8 in his letter to the Romans. We must not let the defense of Christian freedom, something that was so new and had not finished cracking cultural and social molds, hide from us what Paul would most like to transmit: "Christ lives in me." Paul is not a theoretician; what makes him write today and tomorrow urges him to cross seas and traverse mountains is a passionate love of Jesus–God. It would need audacity to comment on this dwelling of Christ in those he loves and who love him. It has taken nothing less than this love without reserve, to bring about the greatest achievement of Christian faith and yet the least noticed: pardon and humility among others: with Christ I am crucified.

• 3.1 A good number of these Galatians are of Jewish origin, the others already have some notion of the Old Testament given that it is read in Church meetings (the New Testament does not yet exist). Paul then will recall first their own experience in baptism, when they received the Spirit; he will later interpret this experience in reading the Old Testament.

You begin with the Spirit and end up with the flesh (v. 3). This phrase has a double meaning. First the Galatians experienced the working of the Holy Spirit and his miracles and now they want to receive circumcision in the Rom 7:7; Jas 2:10 of the Law are under a curse, for it is written: Cursed is everyone who does not always fulfill everything written in the Law.

Hb 2:4 ¹¹It is plainly written that no one becomes righteous, in God's way, by the Law: by faith the righteous shall live. ¹²Yet the Law gives no place to faith, for according to it: the one who fulfills the commandments shall have life through them.

Lev 18:5; Rom 10:5

Dt 21:23; Acts 5:30 ¹³Now Christ rescued us from the curse of the Law by becoming cursed himself for our sake, as it is written: there is a curse on everyone who is hanged on a tree. ¹⁴So the blessing granted to Abraham reached the pagan nations in and with Christ, and we received the promised Spirit through faith.

The promise, not the Law, was the gift of God

• ¹⁵Brothers, listen to this comparison. When anyone has made his will in the prescribed form, no one can annul it or add anything to it. ¹⁶Well now, what God promised Abraham was for his descendant. Scripture does not say: for the descendants, as if they were many. It means only one: this will be for your descendant, and this is Christ. ¹⁷Now I say this: if God has made a testament in due form, it cannot be annulled by the Law which came four hundred and thirty years later; God's promise cannot be cancelled. ¹⁸But if we now inherit for keeping the law, it is not because of the promise. Yet that promise was God's gift to Abraham.

Gen 12:7

Rom 11:16

The Law was part of God's pedagogy

• ¹⁹Why then the Law? It was added because of transgressions; but was only valid until the descendant would come to whom the promise had been made; and it was ordained through angels by a mediator. ²⁰A flesh. In another sense, they started with the truth of God that was in Jesus: that is "the spirit." Now they go back to Jewish observances which, though they come from God, many times remained, as any religious practice, at a human level: the flesh.

Acts 7:38; 7:53; Gal 4:3; Col 2:15; Heb 2:2

Those who disturbed the Galatians said: you belong to Christ, but Christ is a descendant of Abraham and a Jew. Then follow Abraham and do as the Jews do: and so, along with Christ, you will be children of Abraham. Paul reports that one is not a son of Abraham or a son of God by race: this is a point that he develops more in Romans 4.

Let us not think that such prejudices have disappeared. There are some who think they are Catholics because they have been baptized at birth: they forget that without faith, baptism is meaningless.

Righteousness or justification (v. 8). Like in Romans Paul will use this word abundantly. It means that through faith we are set right with God and our self is re-ordered so as to enter his ways.

• 15. We know that, in the Bible, Testament and Covenant mean the same: the Old Testament is the first covenant of God with humankind. Here Paul compares God with someone making a testament.

First God made a solemn covenant with Abraham. He did not demand anything of him, but made a promise to him. All that God expected of Abraham's children in order to save them was that they would trust him. After such an important initiative from God, the Law which the Lord gave to Moses later did not really change the situation. Therefore, Paul says, most of the Jews are wrong when they are so concerned about observing the Law and so little concerned about opening their hearts.

• 19. In the preceding paragraph Paul began to show that there were different stages in faith history. The Jews already saw a progression in the revelation of God: they spoke of successive covenants of God with Adam, Noah, Abraham, Moses. For them the progress was that God had given a more complete law and that his choice was narrowing to the point of concentrating all his promises on the small Jewish community. Paul, as we have seen, shows that progress is elsewhere: God has replaced a religion where faith was, in mediator means that there are parties, and God is one.

²¹ Does the Law then compete with the promises of God? Not at all. Only if we had been given a Law capable of raising life, could righteousness be the fruit of the Law. ²² But the Scriptures have declared that we are all prisoners of sin, so the only way to receive God's promise is to believe in Jesus Christ.

We are now sons and daughters of God

²³ Before the time of faith had come, the Law confined us and kept us in custody until the time in which faith would show up. ²⁴ The Law then was serving as a slave to look after us until Christ came, so that we might be justified by faith. ²⁵ With the coming of faith, we are no longer submitted to this guidance.

²⁶ Now, in Christ Jesus, all of you are sons and daughters of God through faith. ²⁷ All of you who were given to Christ through baptism, have put on Christ. ²⁸ Here there is no longer any difference between Jew or Greek, or between slave or freed, or between man and woman: but all of you are one in Christ Jesus. ²⁹ And because you belong to Christ, you are of Abraham's race and you are to inherit God's promise.

4 • ¹ But listen, as long as the heir is a child, he does not differ at all from a slave although he is owner of everything. ² He is subject to those who care for him and who are entrusted with his affairs until the time

Rom 3:9;
11:32;
2Cor 3:7

Jn 1:12;
Rom
13:14;
Eph 4:24

Rom
10:12;
1Cor
12:13;
Col 3:11;
Jn 17:21

Col 2:17;
Heb 10:1

3:23

fact, obedience to a law, by faith which is gift of self to God, as response to God, person to person.

Here Paul says more: there is a pedagogy of God in this change. "The Law led us to the school" (3:24): let us look at the word "pedagogy": in Greek it signifies "take the child to school." At this time the children of well-to-do families were entrusted to a servant called "pedagogue" who took the child to school but did not teach. Here Paul says: the Law was the servant, while Christ is the master.

Why then the Law? Paul will raise the question in Romans 3:1; 5:20; 7:7. He gives here his response in 4:1. He points out the negative character of the Law that constantly denounces and condemns: Scriptures have declared that we are all prisoners of sin (v. 22). It is good that for a time God obliges us to keep our eyes fixed on our sins, our infidelity and ingratitude towards him, but he is much more concerned in making us grow, consequently becoming able to deal with him, person to person. Some will say: "This simplicity with God, we shall have up there." That, however, is not what God wishes. He wants his kingdom to be among us now.

The Law was the means of leading the Jewish people to a better understanding of human hard-heartedness in relation to God, and giving them a sense of sin. It served as an education of a people during a certain time.

With this we can understand verse 19: with Moses as their mediator. Paul does not consider the Law something divine and eternal, dictated by God himself. He thinks that God let the angels in charge of diverse historical forces decide together on this temporary arrangement, so that the law would fit a particular time and circumstance; then Moses had to reconcile their diverse demands. The same thought is expressed in 4:3. In short, the Old Testament already contains the divine truth, but it has come down to us through mediators who adapted it to their ways and obscured it.

For each of us, it is necessary to have been submitted to a law, to have learned to obey without discussion during our early years. This first formation is irreplaceable; later we shall know how to obey our conscience without confusing it with our caprices. It was the same for God's people as a whole: the Law led them to the freedom of the Gospel (5:1). So, if Christ has already taught us, why return to Jewish practice?

• 4.1 As long as the heir of the host is a child. God made people to be free, holy, strong, in the image of Christ. No one is born as an adult; she must be a child first. Similarly humankind has to go through infancy. There was a primitive society, a naive science, a simple culture, a transitional religion. People re-

3:19; set by his father comes. ³In the same way we as children were first subjected to the created forces that govern the world. ⁴But when the fullness of time came, God sent his Son. He came born of woman and subject to the Law, ⁵in order to redeem the subjects of the Law, that we might receive adoption as children of God. ⁶And because you are children, God has sent into your hearts the Spirit of his Son which cries out: Abba! that is, Father!

⁷You yourself are no longer a slave but a son or daughter, and yours is the inheritance by God's grace.

⁸When you did not know God, you served those who are not gods.

⁹But now that you have known God—or rather he has known you—how can you turn back to weak and impoverished created things? Do you want to be enslaved again? ¹⁰Will you again observe this and that day, and the new moon, and this period and that year...? ¹¹I fear I may have wasted my time with you.

I still suffer for you

• ¹²I implore you, dearly beloved, do as I do, just as I became like you. You have not offended me in anything. ¹³Remember that it was an illness that first gave me the opportunity to announce the Gospel to you. ¹⁴Although my illness was a trial to you, you did not despise or reject me, but received me as an angel of God, as Christ Jesus.

¹⁵Where is this bliss? For I can testify that you would have even plucked out your eyes to give them to me. ¹⁶But now, have I become your enemy for telling you the truth?

mained “among slaves”; Paul saw them dependent on “created forces” that govern the world. For him the laws of nature as well as the rules and prejudices of primitive peoples are one with the invisible forces of good and evil (the word we translated as “created forces” also means “directing principle”: Eph 3:10; Col 2:15). Now, through Christ, the great door of freedom opens to us. First, Christ liberates people from religious superstitions and from the prejudices that prevent them from knowing the Father and from becoming his children.

He came born of woman and subject to the Law (v. 4). Christ saves humans because he is a man. Christ came first as the savior of the Jewish people and, to save them, he became one of them. He received his whole formation from the Law, namely, from the people and religion of the Old Testament. This Law was highly positive, but, as time passed, we had to be redeemed from the yoke of this Law to receive the fullness of divine truth.

We must see in this obedience of Christ born of woman and subject to the Law a fundamental disposition of the plan of salvation: God saves us by becoming one of us. The same is now true of the Church, which saves people rather than giving to them or “being interested in them.” The Church cannot bring them a permanent and transforming salvation if it does not share in their very condition.

This is the reason why the Lord wants Third World churches to bear the cross of the people of their continents: their marginalization, their sufferings and humiliations, in order to lead them to authentic salvation. When there are only middle-class churches following occidental or Roman patterns, these churches are unfaithful to their mission.

You want to be enslaved again? (v. 9). We soon tire of liberty, for it always complicates life. It would be much simpler to be told: “This is right, that is a sin.”

Paul said to the Galatians: “You belong to Christ, be guided by his Spirit.” Did they really want to be more pliable with their ready-made judgments? Were they ready to restrain that kind of pride that accompanies the eagerness for social recognition? If not, there would be no Spirit. The Galatians actually preferred to walk along familiar paths. They kept certain festive days and obeyed the rules just like the Jews; they were, in fact, quite content with a mediocre faith and a love that risks nothing.

• 12. Here, a few more personal lines. These Galatians loved Paul, and Paul loved them, but some aspect of faith escaped them. That is why they felt more at ease with others than with Paul, those who had a sense of “religion” and did not fail to profit from it.

3:19;
Eph 2:211Cor
10:11;
Eph 1:10;
Heb 1:2;
Rom 7:4Mk
14:36;
Jn 15:15Rom
8:172Cor
12:2;
1Thes
1:91Cor
8:2;
13:12;
Col 2:181Cor
9:21;
1Thes
1:6

1Cor 2:3

Mt 10:40

¹⁷Those who show consideration to you are not sincere; they want to separate you from me, so that you may show interest in them. ¹⁸Would that you were surrounded with sincere care at all times, and not only from me when I am with you!

¹⁹My children! I still suffer the pains of childbirth until Christ is formed in you. ²⁰How I wish I could be there with you at this moment and find the right way of talking to you.

The comparison of Sarah and Hagar

²¹Tell me, you who desire to submit yourselves to the Law, did you listen to it? ²²It says that Abraham had two sons, one by a slave woman, the other by the free woman, his wife. ²³The son of the slave woman was born in the ordinary way; but the son of the free woman was born in fulfillment of God's promise.

²⁴Here we have an allegory and the figures of two covenants. The first is the one from Mount Sinai, represented through Hagar: her children have slavery for their lot. ²⁵We know that Hagar was from Mount Sinai in Arabia: she stands for the present city of Jerusalem which is in slavery with her children.

²⁶But the Jerusalem above, who is our mother, is free. ²⁷And Scripture says of her: Rejoice, barren woman without children, break forth in shouts of joy, you who do not know the pains of childbirth, for many shall be the children of the forsaken mother, more than of the married woman.

²⁸You, dearly beloved, are children of the promise, like Isaac. ²⁹But as at that time the child born according to the flesh persecuted Isaac, who was born according to the spirit, so is it now. ³⁰And what does Scripture say? Cast out the slave woman and her son, for the son of the slave cannot share the inheritance with the son of the free woman.

³¹Brethren, we are not children of the slave woman, but of the free woman.

Heb
12:22;
Rev
21:2;
Is 54:1

1Thes
2:14

Gen
21:10

• 21. In the history of his ancestor Abraham, Paul discovers an image of conflict opposing the true believer to the "Judaizers"—those who say one is saved by religiously observing practices.

At the start of sacred history is Abraham's faith and the promise God made to him. It should be noted that this promise was not to be inherited in the same way as family goods, which had to be distributed among all the children. The promise will not come to Ishmael born like any other. (Paul says: "born according to the flesh".) Rather, what God promised was only destined for the son of promise, Isaac: the one who was born through a miraculous and free intervention of God. Thus, from the very beginning of the Bible, we see that we do not come to faith and to God's inheritance because we have a right to them, but through grace.

By clinging to their religious observances, the Jews were forgetting that they were, above all, the people of the promise. Chosen by God in preference to other people, their mission was to announce that there are promises of God for all nations. They were wrong in thinking thus: since we are chosen by God, let everyone do what we do and observe our practices. Instead they should have shared their hopes with others; they should have taught others to believe in God's promise and not put their trust in particular religious practices.

Hagar, the slave woman who gave birth to Ishmael, ancestor of the Arabs, becomes the image of the people of the first covenant, people who received the Law on Mount Sinai in Arabia: they did not achieve true freedom and held the earthly Jerusalem as their capital.

While Sarah, the free woman, with her son Isaac, born according to the divine promise, represents God's new covenant with those who believe in his promises. These are the free people, the Christians who wait for the heavenly Jerusalem.

Ishmael persecuted Isaac and Abraham sent him away. This means: the inadequately converted Jews are disturbing the Galatians; the Church, then, has to send them away.

Jn 8:36

5 • ¹Christ freed us to make us really free. So remain firm and do not submit again to the yoke of slavery. ²I, Paul, say this to you: if you receive circumcision, Christ can no longer help you. ³Once more I say to whoever receives circumcision: you are now bound to keep the whole Law. ⁴All you who pretend to become righteous through the observance of the Law have separated yourselves from Christ and have fallen away from grace.

Rom 2:25;
Jas 2:10

⁵As for us, through the Spirit and faith, we eagerly wait for the hope of righteousness. ⁶In Christ Jesus it is irrelevant whether we be circumcised or not; what matters is faith working through love.

1Cor 7:19;
Jas 2:14;
1Cor 13:13

⁷You had begun your race well, who then hindered you on the way? Why did you stop obeying the truth? ⁸This was not in obedience to God who calls you: ⁹in fact, a little leaven is affecting the whole of you. ¹⁰I am personally convinced that you will not go astray, but the one who confuses you, whoever he may be, shall receive punishment.

1Cor 5:6

¹¹I myself, brothers, could I not preach circumcision? Then I would no longer be persecuted. But where would be the scandal of the cross? ¹²Would that those who confuse would castrate themselves!

1Cor 1:23

Phil 3:2

True freedom

• ¹³You, brothers and sisters, were called to enjoy freedom; I am not speaking of that freedom which gives free rein to the desires of the flesh, but of that which makes you slaves of one another through love. ¹⁴For the whole Law is summed up in this sentence: You shall love your neighbor as yourself. ¹⁵But if you bite and tear each other to pieces, be careful lest you all perish.

Rom 6:15;
1P 2:16Lev 19:18;
Mk 12:31

¹⁶Therefore I say to you: walk according to the Spirit and do not give

Rom 8:5

• 5.1 Paul does not want converts to be circumcised. See how firmly he speaks to them: this would be a falling away from grace. Why? It was not a sin, Paul could well have tolerated without encouraging it.

Yet for Paul, you cannot preach the Gospel in an authentic way without taking stances that upset others. Again "the truth of the Gospel" is not only in the formulas of dogma: it is also in the stand you take, showing how free we are. If the Gospel is liberation, the apostles should adopt, at least on certain points, positions that disturb and shock. Jesus gave an example in violating the holiest of laws, that of the Sabbath, when it was not necessary to do so.

Such is the necessary scandal in all Christian behavior, which will never be as scandalous as was Jesus' death on a cross (see 1 Cor 1:17). To save people means, somehow, making them discover who they are before God, and then bringing them to confront the forces that have kept them subjugated and alienated. This is why Paul was so opposed to perpetuating Jewish practices. Following Paul, we could ask in our days: Who are those who give in to prejudices and alienating powers, and who are the persecuted (5:11; 6:12)? Oftentimes, the Gospel is lived more authentically in Christian groups that are politically aware and active than in groups that limit themselves to liturgical practices.

• 13. If the Galatians are looking out for religious practices it is partly because they feel that faith should be expressed in a concrete way. Here Paul tells them: if you are anxious for putting faith into life, look at your community life. We, like them, are terribly accustomed to a double life: on one hand we proclaim we are children of God, we speak of grace, of spiritual life, while we are terribly ordinary, often very dishonest and malicious in daily life or with our rivals within the Church, especially if we have a title to defend.

Paul rightly gives a short list of the works of the flesh and another of the fruits of the Spirit. He places side by side idolatry and the ambitions or divisions so common in religious and practicing groups. It is clear that for him flesh and spirit are not the same as "body" and "soul": the pettiness and attachment to our privileges are also sins of the flesh, that is of people alien to the Spirit (see commentary on 3:3 and Rom 7:16).

way to the desires of the flesh! ¹⁷For the desires of the flesh war against the spirit, and the desires of the spirit are opposed to the flesh. Both are in conflict with each other, so that you cannot do everything you would like. ¹⁸But when you are led by the Spirit you are not under the Law.

Rom
1:29

¹⁹You know what comes from the flesh: fornication, impurity and shamelessness, ²⁰idol worship and sorcery, hatred, jealousy and violence, anger, ambition, division, factions, ²¹and envy, drunkenness, orgies and the like. I again say to you what I have already said: those who do these things shall not inherit the kingdom of God.

Eph 5:9;
2Cor 6:6;
1Cor
13:4

1Jn 4:17

²²But the fruit of the Spirit is charity, joy and peace, patience, understanding of others, kindness and fidelity, ²³gentleness and self-control. For such things there is no Law or punishment. ²⁴Those who belong to Christ have crucified the flesh with its vices and desires.

Col 3:3;
1P 2:11

Phil 2:3

²⁵If we live by the Spirit, let us live in a spiritual way. ²⁶Let us not be conceited; let there be no rivalry or envy of one another.

Various counsels

Mt 18:15;
2Thes
3:14;
Jas 5:19

6 ¹Brethren, in the event of someone falling into a sin, you who are spiritual shall set him aright with the spirit of kindness. Take care for you, too, may be tempted. ²Carry each other's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ. ³If anyone thinks he is something, when in fact he is nothing, he deceives himself. ⁴Let each one examine his own conduct and boast for himself, if he wants to do so, but not before others. ⁵In this, let each one carry his own things.

Jn 13:34

1Cor
3:18;
4:7

⁶He who receives the teaching of the Word ought to share the good things he has with the one who instructs him. ⁷Do not be fooled. God cannot be deceived. You reap what you sow. ⁸The person who sows for the benefit of his own flesh shall reap corruption and death from the flesh. He who sows in the spirit shall reap eternal life from the Spirit. ⁹Let us do good without being discouraged; in due time we shall reap the reward of our constancy. ¹⁰So while there is time, let us do good to all and especially to our family in the faith.

1Cor
9:11;
Rom
15:27

Pro 22:8;
2Cor 8:6;
1Cor
15:35

1Thes
5:15

I am crucified with Christ

• ¹¹See these large letters I use when I write to you in my own hand!

1Cor
16:21;
Col 4:18

¹²Those who are most anxious to put a good show in life are trying to persuade you to be circumcised. The only reason they do this is to avoid being persecuted for the cross of

• 6.11 At the moment of saying good-bye, once again Paul speaks about the crisis in the community. It is not only a problem of religious practice; there are also certain persons anxious to put up a good show in life (see Phil 3:2-11).

Those who persuade you to be circumcised: they are members of the community. They want to be different from "ordinary" Christians, forming an apparently more serious group, more religious because of being circumcised. Actually, this rite would assure them a welcome to Jewish homes—a good way of making professional contacts. Already at that time the links uniting Jewish communities established in all the cities of the Roman Empire increased their possibilities. For those middle class people it was advantageous to rely on them. Paul instead chose to break up and he was to be persecuted from city to city till the moment in which his adversaries would have him condemned by imperial justice.

The world has been crucified to me. Paul has chosen a different way. He goes on his way, without a home, persecuted by some, despised by others, feared by those who cannot stand his example of complete abnegation, nor his mingling with so many people whom they consider inferior. This is to follow Christ to the cross.

Mt 23:15 Christ. ¹³Not for being circumcised do they observe the Law: what interests them is the external rite. What a boast for them if they had you circumcised!

2:19; 2Cor 12:9 ¹⁴For me, I do not wish to take pride in anything except in the cross of Christ Jesus our Lord. Through him the world has been crucified to me and I to the world.

2Cor 5:17;
Eph 4:24

¹⁵Let us no longer speak of the circumcised and of non-Jews, but of a new creation. ¹⁶Let those who live according to this rule receive peace and mercy: they are the Israel of God! ¹⁷Let no one trouble me any longer: for my part, I bear in my body the marks of Jesus.

2Cor 11:23

¹⁸May the grace of Christ Jesus our Lord be with your spirit brothers and sisters. Amen.

Phil 4:23

The Captivity Letters

Four letters are gathered under the title of “Captivity Letters”: Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians and Philemon. It is by chance that these four letters are continuous; even if these four letters were written by Paul while in prison, they are not of the same year, nor did he send them from the same prison.

Paul was arrested many times (2 Cor 11:24; Acts 14:29; 16:23). If we speak about his being in prison for any length of time, he may have been imprisoned two times, plus another in “semi-captivity”.

His first stay in prison was undoubtedly in 56, in Ephesus, from where he had sent to the Philippians a letter whose authenticity did not raise any doubts.

His second stay, well documented in Acts 24–26, was in Caesarea on the premises of the Roman administration. Paul stayed there for two entire years and from there, he was taken to Rome (Acts 27–28).

His third stay was in Rome. In Acts, we are told it lasted two years after which Paul was probably acquitted (Acts 28:30). In reality, Paul enjoyed a certain freedom and he was even lodged in a private house (Acts 28:16).

With a lot of probability Paul was executed between 64 and 66 during Nero’s great persecution. A wrong interpretation of 2 Timothy 1:17 led some to think that Paul was again in prison in Rome before his execution.

Therefore, it was either in 58–60, in Caesarea, or in 60–62, in Rome, that Paul would have written the letters, showing him as a prisoner, to the Ephesians, Colossians and Philemon. Many reasons suggest that these letters were written in Caesarea.

Numerous biblicists question Paul as the author of the letters to the Ephesians and even to the Colossians. There are arguments for that although the aspects of these letters in favor of their authenticity are equally numerous. As the hypotheses attributing these letters to a disciple of Paul from the following generation showed their weakness, new theories had to be created.

The letters to the Ephesians and Colossians are intimately linked and the same topics are dealt with in both letters in the same way. Therefore it is impossible that one letter be authentic and not the other. On the other hand, how could a forger convince the Church to accept these letters as written by Paul? It is clear that if the churches received these letters so early and without questioning it is because the churches of Ephesus and Colossa, necessarily well informed, would not have accepted them unless they were Paul’s. Then we have the short message to Philemon that everybody accepts as Paul’s; but this is inseparable from Colossians: see Colossians 4:9 and Philippians 24–26.

In some people’s view, the style and content of the letters differ too much from Paul’s previous letters to have been written by him. However, as they read through, they are constantly forced to recognize words and ideas that are typically Paul’s. Are we sure that an author is always going to speak in the same manner and keep the same style? Who can say that Paul could not say anything new after he had written Romans and Corinthians?

It is clear that the author of the letter to the Romans is no longer the same Paul as in the first letter to the Thessalonians. In addition, after Romans, two major changes were to affect Paul. On one hand, Paul decided to leave for Rome and the West since he believed that he had completed his apostolate in Asia Minor and Greece. On the other hand, Paul was going to experience years in prison.

Under guard, in Caesarea, even though he was treated humanely and well (Acts 24:23), Paul did not live like a lord and his chains impaired his apostolic activity. Paul looked at people and institutions differently and it is here that something more than a theological revision took place: it was a spiritual change of setting. Instead of accumulating contradictions with a simplistic solution, claiming that all the captivity letters were written by a forger, we could ask ourselves what else Paul had to discover, which is precisely what emerges in these captivity letters.

Access to Fulfillment

In simple terms, we might say that, up to that time, Paul had kept the vocabulary and the images of the God of the Old Testament. God the monarch established in heaven, God the judge who welcomes to his heaven or the one who condemns. In the commentary on Romans, we have said that justification primarily consists in a recreation of the human person by God. Yet, we cannot deny the juridical aspect of this justification. Whether it is a question of the relations between God and humankind, or the struggle between good and evil, Paul is always thinking within the juridical setting of the rabbis. In addition, the aggressive language is manifest. A rereading of the first letter to the Thessalonians, will show that the violence of the language corresponds to the persecutions that Paul was enduring on the part of the Jews. That violence was also in Jesus' language, a popular preacher's language that did not, in any way, diminish the mystery of God and always present it through these images.

It was within this legalistic and Jewish setting (we dare say: biblical) that the discovery of God as Father and the experiences of the Spirit occurred, combined with Paul's creativity and interior presence. These experiences had softened up the austerity and the violence that may have been in the religion of God as king and judge and joy was prevailing in the expectation of the Lord. These new feelings, the fruits of the Spirit, continued to go hand in hand with ancient images that contained a good measure of violence. The most notorious passages are in 1 Thessalonians and also in 2 Corinthians 11:13 and Galatians 2:4.

God is spirit. Although Paul knew it, he had not yet become fully aware of it. The day he "realized" that God is not the one "who had the right to rule over our lives" (as some put it), he understood better the way that Father looks at human beings. His encounter with the religions of Asia Minor had probably prepared Paul's new conversion. Paul did use some terms common in the region of Ephesus but changed their meaning. Was Paul thinking only of fighting them or did he discover in them a certain way of conceiving the relations of God and the universe?

Eternity is very much present in Ephesians and Colossians; in the beautiful hymn of Ephesians 1:1-14 the eternal praise of divine grace is everywhere and predestination, already found in Romans 8:28, took its place in the divine nature. All suggests a divine mystery liberated from rights, obligations and laws. God may have lost his throne, but his sanctity remained intact. What appears now in Paul more prominently is a God present in everybody and everything (Eph 3:14-20).

In those years, the expectation of the Day of the Lord was running out of steam and the God of Paul was going to be situated in a radiance that the wrath of God could not reach, there where all humans could be saved (Eph 3:8 and 1 Tim 2:4). Greater than ever, Christ assumed the long history that was just beginning. Paul saw himself as being caught up in a cosmic adventure in which, despite his insignificance, he had been needed for eternal praise. Paul, a prisoner, was entering into the depth of the mystery of redemption that was lavished, from Christ, on all those who loved him, and even on his chains (Eph 4:1; Col 1:24).

Should we speak of a “letter” of Paul? It does not contain any news or personal message to a specific community. Like the letter to the Romans, it is an exposé on faith and the salvation of the world. Was it a kind of circular letter intended for the churches of the Ephesus region? Instead, should we accept testimonies according to which this letter, written as the same time as the epistle to the Colossians, was meant for the Laodiceans (Col 4:16)?

As we are told in Acts (chaps. 24–26), Paul was a prisoner in Caesarea in 58–60. He thought that his apostolate in the East was over and he had been arrested as he was getting ready to leave for Rome, the capital of the empire. A few months earlier, he had written the letter to the Romans, a brilliant presentation of the work of salvation, when the news he received from Ephesus prompted Paul to elaborate a new presentation of the divine work. There were new religions springing up in the Roman province of Asia and soon they would spread to Rome. To the extent that these religions claimed to be offering everyone a way of salvation, they were challenging Christ as the sole savior of humankind.

Christians had to be given a broader vision of the hope of which they were the bearers. Where is humankind going? Is Christ the only Savior? These are questions we have to confront more insistently every day insofar as these past few years have seen a type of “mass movements” on the part of very diverse people. Those who want to dominate can only succeed if they appear to be speaking for the majority. Is there a way and a hope for human beings? From his prison, Paul responds to us.

This letter to the Ephesians is parallel to the letter Paul sent to the Colossians at the same time. The same messenger took it to the two communities at the same time as the note for Philemon (Col 4:2; Phlm 2). Paul takes up again and develops God’s plan that he said he had understood in a revelation. At the core of this revelation we have Christ, the Firstborn of God and the world has been created for new Human Beings, a single family in Christ. From now on, every Christian is urged to live this call to a holy and responsible life.

Some people think that Paul is not the author of this letter. How could he have spoken so impersonally to a community where he had worked for over two years, approximately from 55 to 57? As we have said, the letter was not addressed to the Christians of Ephesus but rather to communities in the valley of the Lycus River: Hierapolis and Laodicea that Paul had not personally evangelized.

Others think that the questions raised are more suited to a time after Paul. Or when they see that, compared to Paul’s previous letters, his style has been renewed, they imagine that someone else wrote those letters. However, all the theories run into enormous obstacles. When one is aware of the very low level of Christian literature immediately after the death of the apostles, it is difficult to think that a letter of such theological conviction, such doctrinal richness and so typically “Pauline” in every page, could have matured in someone other than Paul, even if that someone, Tychicus (Eph 6:21) or Timothy (Col 1:1), assisted in writing it.

Rom 1:1;
Acts 9:13

1 ¹Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, to the saints in Ephesus, to you who share Christian faith:
²receive grace and peace from God our Father and from Jesus the Lord.

Gal 3:14

• ³Blessed be God, the Father of Christ Jesus our Lord, who in Christ has blessed us from heaven with every spiritual blessing.

Jn 17:24;
1P 1:20;
1Jn 3:1

⁴God chose us in Christ before the creation of the world to be holy and without sin in his presence.

Rom
8:29;
Jn 1:12

⁵From eternity he destined us in love to be his adopted sons and daughters through Christ Jesus, thus fulfilling his free and generous will.

This goal suited him:

⁶that his loving-kindness which he granted us in his Beloved might finally receive all glory and praise.

Gal 1:13;
Rom
3:24

⁷For in Christ we obtain freedom, sealed by his blood, and have the forgiveness of sins.

In this appears the greatness of his grace,

⁸which he lavished on us.

• 1.3 This first page of the letter to the Ephesians is the best comprehensive expression of the Christian mystery in the Bible. It also serves to balance Paul's great presentation in his letter to the Romans, which could appear to center God's work in the tragedy of sinful humanity. The Letter to the Ephesians, like the Gospel of John, speaks of a re-creation of the world whereas the Letter to the Romans used more juridical terms: debt and reparation for sin.

Blessed be God! Usually Paul starts his letters with praise and thanksgiving. Here, however, the prayer is unusually lengthy: Paul gives thanks and at the same time proclaims God's mysterious plan, which he understood through a revelation (3:3).

His mysterious design (v. 9). Actually Paul says: this mystery; this term designated at the time a decision or a secret doctrine. Here Paul speaks of the plan of God the Creator: a plan rooted in the mystery of the three divine Persons. We know that from God the Father proceed the Son and the Spirit, and from him they receive his very divinity, the three being only one God. Besides this communication and this effusion of life in God, before the creation of the world, God the Father wished to communicate his riches, beyond himself, to created beings. It is there that we have the beginning of all human history. God willed that sons and daughters (v. 5) multiply around his only Son and in him, be capable of receiving his Spirit and returning it to him. They would return to him at the end of history, forming one body (v. 10).

God chose us in Christ (v. 4). Note the expression in Christ on which we have commented in 1 Corinthians 1:4. Every creature comes from God through his Son in whom God contemplates his own riches, and on whom he pours his love. We are as God has loved us, and we are in him, in some way, from the beginning.

In creating us free, God knows that our freedom is fragile: it will be difficult for us to give him a filial response. How can we return to God, at the heart of his mystery, without dying to ourselves? All history must necessarily be a continual death and resurrection, for nations as for persons. So Divine Wisdom foresaw that the Son would be in our midst, with his cross and his resurrection, to show us the love of the Father who has called us (v. 5). And of course, wherever the Son is, the Spirit will be given (vv. 7 and 13).

In Christ we obtain freedom, sealed by his blood (v. 7). This does not mean that Christ shed his blood to make amends to his Father offended by sin, as if God were resentful as we often are, and as if his dignity were offended. Paul is referring to a biblical law: the emancipation of slaves used to be signed in blood (Ex 21:6).

Sealed with the Spirit (v. 13). The Jews were branded, "sealed" in the flesh by the circumcision ritual that showed they belonged to God. Christians, on the other hand, had re-

In all wisdom and understanding,
 9 God has made known to us his mysterious design,
 in accordance with his loving-kindness in Christ.

Rom
16:25

10 In him and under him God wanted to unite, when the fullness of time had come,
 everything in heaven and on earth.

Mt 1:15;
Gal 4:4;
Col 1:16

11 By a decree of Him who disposes all things
 according to his own plan and decision we, the Jews, have been chosen and called

Dt 7:6

12 and we were awaiting the Messiah, for the praise of his glory.

Is 46:10

13 You, on hearing the word of truth,
 the Gospel that saves you,
 have believed in him.

1Thes
2:13;
2Cor
1:22;
Acts
2:33

And, as promised, you were sealed with the Holy Spirit,

14 the first pledge of what we shall receive, on the way to our deliverance as a people of God,
 for the praise of his glory.

Rom 5:5

ceived the Holy Spirit who acted in them: from the Spirit come faith, hope and love, the many forms of service, the gift of knowledge, miracles and healings. These gifts are the most obvious proof that they have become children of God. These gifts are only a foretaste of all the marvels that God has in store for us.

Paul distinguishes something like two insights: God's plan in eternity (vv. 1-10) and its realization in time (vv. 11-14). The last two stanzas correspond to two stages in sacred history:

– We have been chosen and called (v. 11).

Paul speaks for himself and in the name of the Jewish people chosen to be the people of God.

– You... (v. 13). Here Paul means the pagan people like the Ephesians, whom he is addressing. And so, the fullness of time had come, that is to say the time of the Gospel proclaimed to the entire world so that everyone could receive the gifts of the Spirit.

This page clarifies some essential points of faith.

From eternity he destined us in love (v. 5). Here we recognize what Paul has affirmed in Romans 8:29-30. We cannot omit the word "predestination." Many have used this word in the past in a different way from Paul's. While Paul shows the Father's decision to pour on created sons and daughters the infinite love which is lived within God, these preachers later spoke of a God who decides freely (and even capriciously) who will, and who will not, be saved. On this subject see "PREDESTINATION" in Romans 9.

It is impossible for us to understand how we can be free if we are known by God in eternity. It is not for that reason that we should share the doubts and anguish of those who believe they are subjected to a destiny or a fearsome "will of God." In reality, we are "subject" to love and blessings (v. 3) that await our response (see commentary on Rom 9).

Paul does not speak of condemnation of anyone: he only affirms that God gives proof of a special love for those he calls to become members of Christ.

Many Christians are shocked when told they have received more than others, that in no other place have people been gifted with truth as they have, and they think: would it not be more honest and more humble to accept that all religions have their own truth? Yes, in a way all have some truth, but to doubt this unique grace that is to know God in Christ, is to deny the entire revelation of the Bible. See on this subject the note "The three sayings of God" in Genesis 12.

God chose us in Christ (v. 4). Many Christian authors have spoken as if, in the beginning, God created man without considering his possible fall and that Christ only came to save the lost sinner. This is not what Paul says here: from the beginning the coming of Christ and the gift of the Spirit together with the laws of life and the course of history are mysteriously linked with the order existing in God himself.

The Beloved (v. 6) is always the first for God and for us the desire to be "saved" cannot be

God has put all things under the feet of Christ

Col 1:9

• ¹⁵I have been told of your faith and your affection towards all the believers, ¹⁶so I always give thanks to God, remembering you in my prayers.

Jn 17:3;
1Jn 5:20

¹⁷May the God of Christ Jesus our Lord, the Father of Glory, reveal himself to you and give you a spirit of wisdom and revelation, that you may know him.

¹⁸May he enlighten your inner vision, that you may appreciate the things we hope for, since we were called by God.

May you know how great is the inheritance, the glory, God sets apart for his saints;

¹⁹may you understand with what extraordinary power he acts in favor of us who believe.

²⁰He revealed his almighty power in Christ when he raised him from the dead and had him sit at his right hand in heaven, ²¹far above all rule, power, authority, dominion, or any other supernatural force that could be named, not only in this world but in the world to come as well.

²²Thus has God put all things under the feet of Christ and set him above all things, as head of the Church ²³which is his body, the fullness of him who fills all in all.

By grace you have been saved!

2 • ¹You were dead through the faults and sins. ²Once you lived through them according to this world

Col 2:12;
3:1;
1P 3:22

Phi 2:9

Ps 8:6;
1Cor
15:24;
Col 1:8Col 2:13;
Jn 12:31;
2Cor 4:4

the basis of our faith. It would be just as egoistic as practicing one's religion in order to enjoy good health. The Son has revealed to us the Glory of the Father and how he returned to the Father. He wished to draw us out of our egoism, even our religious egoism (Jn 17 and Phil 2:9).

• 15. I have been told of your faith and your affection. Paul delights in the faith of the Ephesians but, above all, he prays they may have hope that must be the source of their dynamism. He describes the stages of hope this way: to know the Father; to appreciate the inheritance set apart for his saints; to understand the power of God to bring us to the realization of these hopes.

It is this hope that cracked open the immobility of ancient societies. Paul lived in a world where hope was considered an illness. Any project to transform humanity was taken as an illusion, and so the hopes of a nascent science were quickly smothered. Believers, on the contrary, lived the experience of a resurrection. In Christian countries appeared the certainty of a common destiny of humanity (the word "humanity" was non-existent at the time). People were beginning to be seen as persons in a truer way and it was this that set history in motion, never to return. How astonishing to see in our world so many Christians who believe, but who have very little hope: are they not the ones who carry the hope of the world?

Far above all power (v. 21). In Paul's days, neither Jews nor Christians doubted that the world was governed by supernatural powers, "angels." They called them: Rulers, Powers, Authorities, Dominion, and Paul was saying to them: all these Powers are inferior to Christ. In our days we express ourselves differently. Nevertheless, we see the universe subject to the laws of nature, to the forces of matter and of life. It is also subject to obscure forces: collective prejudices, vice and fanaticism. These ruled the world, preventing the emergence of humanity, until the coming of Christ: see Galatians 3:23.

God has put all things under the feet of Christ (v. 22). This means the same as the words of our creed: "Jesus is seated at the right hand of God." It means that in rising, Christ, the God-Human became the First in the universe. All things under his feet except humankind.

Paul adds: "He made him head of the Church." Christ acts differently in two areas: in the world, where he is the invisible center in charge; in the Church, of which he is the head, where he can show the riches of his Spirit.

• 2.1 The path of humans without Christ leads to death.

We obeyed the urges of our human nature and consented to its desires (v. 3). There is no need to seek a clearer affirmation of what we call original sin. Paul does not speak of a and followed the Sovereign Ruler who reigns between heaven and earth and who goes on working in those who resist the faith. ³All of us belonged to them at one time and we followed human greed; we obeyed the urges of our human nature and consented to its desires. By ourselves, we went straight to the judgment like the rest of humankind.

^{34:6; Rom 5:8} ^{2Tim 2:12} ⁴But God, who is rich in mercy, revealed his immense love. ⁵As we were dead through our sins, he gave us life with Christ. By grace you have been saved! ⁶And he raised us to life with Christ, giving us a place with him in heaven.

⁷In showing us such kindness in Christ Jesus, God willed to reveal and unfold in the coming ages the extraordinary riches of his grace. ⁸By the grace of God you have been saved through faith. This has not come from you: it is God's gift. ⁹This was not the result of your works, so you are not to feel proud. ¹⁰What we are is God's work. He has created us in Christ Jesus for the good works he has prepared that we should devote ourselves to them.

2Cor
5:17

Christ is our Peace

• ¹¹Remember that you were pagans even in your flesh and the Jews, who call themselves Circumcised (because of a surgical circumcision), called you Uncircumcised. ¹²At that time you were without

Col 2:11;
Rom 9:4

Col 1:21

fault committed before our personal sins, and in addition to the sins we are responsible for. It is a flaw easily seen in human condition and in all our acts; it is the liabilities of our life insofar as God has not taken us in hand.

The account of Genesis (chaps. 2–3) has placed in the past this “original” sin, as well as creation. It is a way of speaking proper to Hebrew culture. In fact both our creation by God (v. 10) and our revolt against him are a part of our daily reality.

He raised us to life with Christ (v. 6). Actually an authentic conversion is experienced as a resurrection. Paul is saying more: nothing can stop God's merciful plan. He sees beyond time and has already raised us with Christ. We are seated with him in heaven, that is to say, assured of victory.

• 11. Another aspect of the human condition without Christ: death goes hand in hand with divisions. Before Christ, humanity was divided and people did not know our common Father. Since they were not mature enough for a quick unification in the true faith, God took that into account when he began to prepare for Christ's coming. He chose a people and to avoid their being contaminated by the errors of the pagans, he separated them through a law that forbade their living together with other peoples (see Mk 7:14 and Acts 10:1). So there was in the Jerusalem Temple, far from the Sanctuary, a patio open to the pagans and another one, near the Sanctuary reserved for the Jews, and a wall between the two. There came a time when this dividing line became a sign of all the barriers that Christ was going to destroy.

He taught them to share life with non-Jews, forbidden until then. Christ, put on the cross by Jews and pagans, overcomes the hatred of all by a love that forgives and, once risen, gathers all people to himself.

Thus, just as the cross is made of two pieces, one vertical, towards heaven and the other, horizontal, towards the earth, so peace goes in two directions: towards God and towards others. He has made the two peoples one... and reconciled us both to God. These are the two sides of only one thing, because human violence is the other expression of our inability to meet God.

Christ united them, that is to say, whether we like it or not, the Gospel will destroy all differences between people. No matter how much segregation emerges in our societies, our laws and our institutions will collapse perhaps through violence, but better by being discredited through the sacrifices of their victims.

In one Spirit. It is only through the Spirit that each one has communion with others. Often, unity among people means one party, one ideology, one religion. Imposed order destroys both the one who accepts it and the one capable of silencing his adversaries.

Unity in the Church is not uniformity: the believers are not of one mold. It is not a question of having the same options regarding human problems; we have the right to differ in Christ, you did not belong to the community of Israel; the covenants of God and his promises were not for you; you had no hope and were without God in this world. ¹³But now, in Christ Jesus and by his blood, you who were once far off have come near.

1Thes
4:13;
Is 57:19

Is 9:5
Ezk 37:1;
2Cor
5:17

¹⁴For Christ is our peace, he who has made the two peoples one, ¹⁵destroying in his own flesh the wall—the hatred—which separated us. He abolished the Law with its commands and precepts. He made peace in uniting the two peoples in him, creating out of the two one New Man. ¹⁶He destroyed hatred and reconciled us both to God through the cross, making the two one body.

Is 52:7;
57:19

¹⁷He came to proclaim peace; peace to you who were far off, peace to the Jews who were near. ¹⁸Through him we—the two peoples—approach the Father in one Spirit.

Phil 3:20;
Heb
12:22

¹⁹Now you are no longer strangers or guests, but fellow citizens of the holy people: you are of the household of God. You are the house ²⁰whose foundations are the apostles and prophets, and whose cornerstone is Christ Jesus. ²¹In him the whole structure is joined together and rises to be a holy temple in the Lord. ²²In him you too are being built to become the spiritual sanctuary of God.

1Cor 3:9;
Mt 16:18;
Rev
21:14

Is 28:16;
1P 2:8

1Cor
3:16;
2Cor
6:16;
Jn 2:21

God's inheritance is for all

3 • ¹For this reason I, Paul, came to be the prisoner of Christ for you, the non-Jews. ²You may have heard of the graces God bestowed on me for your sake. ³By a revelation he gave me the knowledge of his mysterious design, as I have explained in a few words. ⁴On reading them you will have some idea of how I understand the mystery of Christ.

4:1;
Col 1:24

Gal 1:12

⁵This mystery was not made known to past generations but only now, through revelations given to holy apostles and prophets. ⁶Now

Rom
16:25;
Col 1:25

our view of faith provided that we accept all that the Credo contains. The Spirit enables each person to be true to himself and to continue “in communion” with the community. This is how the “new creature” is born: not as the work of politics or of any ideology, but as the work of God, since we are dealing with a new creation as Paul says.

You are of the household of God. In biblical language this means: to belong to God's family. From there, Paul moves on to another image: you are the household, namely, the true temple of God. The community of believers form the temple, or better, is being transformed into the temple of God.

This imposing vision of the Church and our unity in the Church will perhaps astonish many Christians of today who are usually more aware of their responsibilities towards the world than towards our antiquated Church. Yet, of what Spirit shall we be bearers, and shall we do this work if we are not supported by a community? Solidarity with those who share our options and our culture cannot replace participation in the Christian community. There are probably many things in the Christian community we are not happy with. However, it would be a bad sign if we were unable to recognize in it the truth that is missing in our non-Christian friends, and without which we would lose our reason for living.

• 3.1 Prisoner of Christ. Paul writes this letter from his prison in Rome, but he does not say: prisoner “for the cause” of Christ. He is prisoner of Christ, for he cannot escape from Christ's continual hold on him, nor from the apostolate that God has destined for him (1 Cor 9:16).

Paul emphasizes what he has meditated on in jail, what seems most new in the work of Christ: this is the “mystery,” or God's plan calling all people to become a single body, without any racial distinctions. Jesus proclaimed this equality (Mt 20), but the early Christians needed several divine interventions before they were convinced (Acts 10).

The heavenly forces... (v. 10): see commentary on Galatians 3:23 and Ephesians 1:21. We would not be distorting Paul's thinking by saying that multinational directors, presidents and the great of this world are going to

Heb 4:16;
10:19

1:17;
Mt 11:25

Jn 14:23;
Rom 8:11

Col 2:2;
1Cor 13

the non-Jewish people share the Inheritance; in Christ Jesus the non-Jews are incorporated and are to enjoy the Promise.

This is the Good News ⁷ of which I have become minister by a gift of God, a grace he gave me, when his power worked in me.

from the beginning in Christ Jesus, our Lord. ¹²In him we receive boldness and confidence to approach God.

¹³So I ask you not to be discouraged at seeing the trials I endure for you, but rather to feel proud because of them.

• ¹⁴And now I kneel in the presence of the Father ¹⁵from whom every family in heaven and on earth has received its name.

¹⁶May he strengthen in you the inner self through his Spirit, according to the riches of his glory;

¹⁷may Christ dwell in your hearts through faith;

may you be rooted and founded in love.

¹⁸All of this so that you may understand with all the holy ones the

1Cor 15:9;
1Tim 1:15

⁸This grace was given to me, the least among all the holy ones: to announce to the pagan nations the immeasurable riches of Christ ⁹and to make clear to all how the mystery, hidden from the beginning in God, the Creator of all things, is to be fulfilled.

¹⁰Even the heavenly forces and powers will now discover through the Church the wisdom of God in its manifold expression, as the plan is being fulfilled ¹¹which God designed

1Cor 2:7;
1P 1:12;
Rom 11:33

discover the true face of God, who manifests his glory in his poor and his saints (2 Thes 1:10), through the Church.

How fitting it would be to also express in poetry the wonderment of all nature, in discovering what God's power has achieved after billions of years. Paul believes he is approaching the end, and we as well in this century where events move faster and faster, and we discover every day new signs of human awareness at a world level.

• 14. And now I kneel... without further delay. Paul moves from his presentation to prayer. Such is the way of the interior person (v. 16) who is not satisfied with thinking about God or talking about him as if he were an object. The Spirit preserves in him the awareness of this Presence that gives him life. As St. Teresa said: "I carry the heart of my God and the God of my heart everywhere."

The Father from whom every family in heaven and on earth has received its name (v. 15). Our time has greatly devalued "the Father" with the obsession of an authority that would smother the personality of its children. This is not Paul's way: he marvels before the One who alone is from all eternity. The Father is the source of the divine being, from him comes the order and the mystery of the divine persons. From him the universe draws its riches. Paul, speaking of the common destiny of all peoples, recalls that each one of them, every family, has received its name from the Father, which means its identity and its dignity.

Certainly we must recognize that the word Father no longer has the same meaning as in Paul's time, when father was given a greater authority and respect. Once woman found her rightful place in the family and in society we are inclined to speak of "parents" rather than of "father." Yet it is not by chance that God revealed himself in a culture—that of the Hebrews—where God was a masculine figure. Indeed they had already passed the primitive culture in which the woman was the center of family and the religion subsequently gave highest place to a female divinity. Among the neighboring peoples gods and goddesses went together. So God could have revealed to them with diverse faces, but this he did not do. Even if the Bible states that in God are all the riches of paternal and maternal love (Is 49:14), it keeps to the word Father. In so doing it insists on the liberty and initiative of God in all that he does: the universe and we ourselves have not come from God as a spontaneous "emanation", as naturally born from the bosom of the all-powerful divinity. Everything was a lucid and creative decision.

Therefore, the family, with parental authority, is the basis of society, and fatherhood is also seen in the Church: the succession of bishops, with the authority of the hierarchy not de-

Col 2:9 width, the length, the height and the depth—in a word, ¹⁹that you may know the love of Christ that surpasses all knowledge, that you may be filled and reach the fullness of God.

²⁰Glory to God who shows his power in us and can do much more than we could ask or imagine; ²¹glory to him in the Church and in Christ Jesus through all generations for ever and ever. Amen.

We shall become the perfect creation

Phil 1:27 4 • ¹Therefore I, the prisoner of Christ, invite you to live the vocation you have received. ²Be humble, kind, patient, and bear with one another in love.

³Make every effort to keep among you the unity of Spirit through bonds of peace. ⁴Let there be one body and one spirit, for God, in calling you, gave the same Spirit to all. ⁵One Lord, one faith, one baptism. ⁶One God, the Father of all, who is above all and works through all and is in all.

⁷But to each of us divine grace is given according to the measure of Christ's gift. ⁸Therefore it is said: When he ascended to the heights, he brought captives and gave his gifts to people.

⁹*He ascended*, what does it mean but that he had also descended to the lower parts of the world? ¹⁰He himself who went down, then ascended far above all the heavens to fill all things. ¹¹As for his gifts, to some he gave to be apostles, to others prophets, or even evangelists, or pastors and teachers. ¹²So he prepared those who belong to him for the ministry, in order to build up the Body of Christ, ¹³until we are all united in the same faith and knowledge of the Son of God. Thus we shall become the perfect Man, upon reaching maturity and sharing the fullness of Christ.

¹⁴Then no longer shall we be like children tossed about by any wave or wind of doctrine, and deceived by the cunning of people who drag pendent on people's votes, is part of the divine order in the Church. A society which does not acknowledge fathers and which scorns marriage, as well as "spontaneous" churches, are devious structures.

The love of Christ that surpasses all knowledge (v. 19). Paul is certainly thinking of the love Christ has shown and continues to show him personally even in proportion to his trials. The knowledge and experience of this love surpasses all that could ever be imagined. We shall not find it through books and study or transcendental meditation. It will be freely given to us, on God's initiative, on the way of love of which Christ made himself the model and the center.

• 4.1 Here, Paul returns to an important problem in communities where the style was still very free, we might say very charismatic, since the community counted on the unpredictable action of the Spirit through the charisms of different members. It is necessary that all in their own vocation work for the building up of the one body. Paul enthusiastically names all that we have in common through Christ and the action of the Spirit. It is not merely a temple that is constructed (see chap. 2:19-22); it is the Body of Christ, of the Perfect Man, the mature one in which Christ expresses his fullness.

Jesus of Nazareth lived humbly until his death only once, but having been made the Head of humanity through his resurrection, he suffers everywhere; he works in every field of human activity; gives his life in every possible way; he gathers in himself every form of love, and lives the whole diversity of human existence in the person of his members.

Then, we will no longer be like children. Paul suggests that the Ephesians are still children, at least from time to time, when they allow themselves to be influenced by some trend of opinion. He invites them to become a mature community, capable of being led by the truth, and of building itself up through love. We too should ask ourselves if we have really gone beyond the time when the "faithful" constantly waited for others to think for them, guide them and push them.

Ps 68:19

Phil 2:7;
Jn 3:13;
1P 3:191Cor
12:28;
14:26

Col 1:28

1Cor 3:1;
14:20

them along into error. ¹⁵Rather, speaking the truth in love, we shall grow in every way towards him who is the head, Christ. ¹⁶From him comes the growth of the whole body to which a network of joints gives order and cohesion, taking into account and making use of the function of each one. So the body builds itself in love.

Put on the new self

Rom 1:18

• ¹⁷I say to you, then, and with insistence I advise you in the Lord: do not imitate the pagans who live an aimless kind of life. ¹⁸Their understanding is in darkness and they remain in ignorance because of their blind conscience, very far from the life of God. ¹⁹As a result of their corruption, they have abandoned themselves to sensuality and have eagerly given themselves to every kind of immorality.

²⁰But it is not for this that you have followed Christ. ²¹For I suppose that you heard of him and received his teaching which is seen in Jesus himself. ²²You must give up your former way of living, the old self, whose deceitful desires bring self-destruction. ²³Renew yourselves spiritually, from inside, ²⁴and put on the new self, or self according to God, that is created in true righteousness and holiness.

Col 3:9
Rom 12:2;
Gen 1:26;
Lk 1:75

²⁵Therefore, give up lying; let all of us speak the truth to our neighbors for we are members of one another. ²⁶*Be angry but do not sin*: do not let your anger last until the end of the day, ²⁷lest you give the devil a foothold.

Zec 8:16
Ps 4:5

²⁸Let the one who used to steal, steal no more, but busy himself working usefully with his hands so that he may have something to share with the needy. ²⁹Do not let even one bad word come from your mouth, but only good words that will encourage when necessary and be helpful to those who hear.

Acts 20:34;
1Thes 4:11
Jas 3:10

³⁰Do not sadden the Holy Spirit of God which you were marked with. It

1Thes 5:19;
Is 63:10

• 17. The old self and the new self. This image of Paul opposes two kinds of life that co-exist in every society and in a certain sense, in each of us. Conversion has not installed us in a state of perfection; even if we are at peace with God in a very real sense (Rom 5:1) unity is not in us. We experience temptation and struggle; our decisions both small and great lead us in one of two directions, either the old self hopelessly ruined and a slave of selfishness, or a person transfigured by love.

The self according to God. God created Man in his image, but the one who is truly this image is the risen Christ, conqueror of sin and of death. Here, as elsewhere in the Bible, Man is both Christ and humanity at the same time, and it is each one of us at our place in the "Body." All that we admire in Christ is also for our benefit.

The white garment that adults put on at baptism denotes the change of life that they are beginning. This renewal may also take place after a retreat or when God unexpectedly makes us abandon a routine Christian life devoid of ambition. Then we put on Christ with rediscovered faith.

Paul immediately points out some of the moral requirements of this daily renewal: frankness, sobriety, cleanliness of language and imagination. Christian faith does not allow us to live in a carefree way, as did the oriental religions in the time of Paul. There much was said about renaissance and knowledge of mysteries, but nothing about the slavery of sex and the evil of social life.

Old self, new self correspond with other expressions of Paul: "according to the flesh" or "according to the Spirit" (Rom 8:5); "children of darkness" or "children of light" (Eph 5:8); "slaves of sin" or "persons free in Christ" (Gal 5:1).

Do not sadden the Holy Spirit. It is easy to understand this expression if we think of the sadness we feel each time we reject a good idea, a desire to do better: sadness of the "Holy Spirit" who suggested it in the first place, sadness of our own spirit, for it knows what we have lost.

will be your distinctive mark on the day of salvation. ³¹Do away with all quarreling, rage, anger, insults and every kind of malice: ³²be good and understanding, mutually forgiving one another as God forgave you in Christ.

Imitate God

5¹ As most beloved children of God, strive to imitate him. ²Follow the way of love, the example of Christ who loved you. He gave himself up for us and became the offering and sacrificial victim whose fragrance rises to God. ³And since you are holy, there must not be among you even a hint of sexual immorality or greed, or any kind of impurity: these should not be named among you. ⁴So too for scandalous words, nonsense and foolishness, which are not fitting; instead offer thanksgiving to God.

⁵Know this: no depraved, impure or covetous person who serves the god 'Money' shall have part in the kingdom of Christ and of God. ⁶Let no one deceive you with empty arguments, for these are the sins which God is about to condemn in people who do not obey. ⁷Do not associate with such people. ⁸You were once darkness, but now you are light in the Lord. Behave as children of light; ⁹the fruits of light are kindness, justice and truth in every form.

¹⁰You yourselves search out what pleases the Lord, ¹¹and take no part in works of darkness that are of no benefit; expose them instead. ¹²Indeed it is a shame even to speak of what those people do in secret, ¹³but as soon as it is exposed to the light, everything becomes clear; and what is unmasked, becomes clear through light. ¹⁴Therefore it is said:

"Awake, you who sleep, arise from the dead that the light of Christ may shine on you."

¹⁵Pay attention to how you behave. Do not live as the unwise do, but as responsible persons. ¹⁶Try to make good use of the present time, because these days are evil. ¹⁷So do not be foolish but understand what the will of the Lord is.

¹⁸Do not get drunk: wine leads to levity; but be filled with the Holy Spirit. ¹⁹Gather together to pray with psalms, hymns and spiritual songs. Sing and celebrate the Lord in your

• 5.1 Here are a few elements of a new way to live, as was already shown in the previous verses.

To imitate God (Rom 5:6-11) who loves everyone, the good and the bad (Mt 5:48). In a more tangible way we have a model in Christ, the Son of God, who gave himself out of love for us, as the way, the light and life.

Reject all that is shameful (v. 12) and that can only be done in the dark. It is true that much that was shameful has become normal today for many people: will it be so for a person who often seeks light and looks for it in the face in Christ? The witness of one Christian who lives in light (and still more of a community) is enough to condemn what has been taken as normal (v. 13).

To be more sensible and responsible in our lives. Because these days are evil (v. 16): that means that if we are unable to judge, choose, make a personal decision, the very current of daily events will keep us in mediocrity or will lead us to evil. Everything changes when a believer, a couple, a group "awakens" and takes daily or weekly time out to discover what is God's will for them, in the time and circumstances in which they live.

Do not get drunk (v. 18)! We need stimulants; there is nothing wrong in experiencing a sort of trance to the point of feeling happy and relaxed when ice is broken and tongues untied. The Bible has praise for wine. It is impossible, however, to experience at the same time the ecstasy that comes from the spirit and that which is the effect of alcohol, drugs and dangerous diversions. We must constantly make choices.

Sing and celebrate the Lord in your heart, giving thanks (v. 19)! Experience the comfort of the Spirit and find it in a community gathering.

2Cor 4:6;
6:14

Jn 3:20;
Is 26:19;
60:1

Col 3

Mt 5:48

5:25;
Ps 40:7;
1Jn 3:16

1Cor 6:9;
Heb 13:4

Col 3:6

1Thes 5:18 heart, ²⁰ giving thanks to God the Father in the name of Christ Jesus, our Lord, always and for everything.

the Word. ²⁷ As he wanted a radiant Church without stain or wrinkle or any blemish, but holy and blameless, he himself had to prepare and present her to himself.

1:4;
Tit 3:5;
1Cor 6:11;
2Cor 11:2;
Rev 21:12;
19:7

Husbands, love your wives

1P 5:5 • ²¹ Let all kinds of submission to one another become obedience to Christ. ²² So wives to their husbands: as to the Lord.

²⁸ In the same way, husbands should love their wives as they love their own bodies. He who loves his wife loves himself. ²⁹ And no one has ever hated his body; he feeds and takes care of it. That is just what Christ does for the Church, ³⁰ because we are members of his body.

1Cor 12:12

Col 3:18;
1P 3:1;
1Cor 11:3

²³ The husband is the head of his wife, as Christ is the head of the Church, his body, of whom he is also the Savior. ²⁴ And as the Church submits to Christ, so let a wife submit in everything to her husband.

³¹ Scripture says: Because of this a man shall leave his father and mother to be united with his wife, and the two shall become one flesh.

Gen 2:24;
Mt 19:5

²⁵ As for you, husbands, love your wives as Christ loved the Church and gave himself up for her. ²⁶ He washed her and made her holy by baptism in

³² This is a very great mystery, and I refer to Christ and the Church. ³³ As

• 21. In the passage 5:21–6:9, Paul more or less repeats what he wrote in the letter to the Colossians (3:18–4:1). Here he has so much on his mind on the role of Christ as head of redeemed humanity that he will develop in an unexpected way the meaning of marriage.

however prefers to show him as the savior of his partner baptized humanity.

So wives to their husbands (v. 22). It is not Paul who in the name of God demands that the wife be submissive: it is the society of the time that required it. And Paul says: “Let all kinds of submission become obedience to Christ.”

Paul points out what is essential in conjugal love when he recalls the word of Scripture: a man shall leave... (v. 31). He applies this word to the union of God with humanity in Christ, the Beloved (Mk 2:19). For marriage contains a mystery, that is a divine treasure which cannot be understood before the coming of Christ. When it is said that marriage is a “sacrament,” that does not mean primarily that there is a Church ceremony: it signifies that through marriage and the couples who live a life of love “according to Christ,” the mystery of the love of God is manifested among humankind. That is, in our midst, the sign of a covenant that God made with humanity, as the husband with his wife: a covenant of love, fidelity, fruitfulness.

So, even if Paul’s way of speaking reflects the culture of his day with regard to marriage, there is no reason to scorn his teaching in support of feminism. There have been and there are different cultural models regarding the relationship between husband and wife. In our time the models differ in the economically developed countries from those of the Third World, for the middle and lower classes. What is still better, it is each couple that should find its own balance and the taking of initiatives according to the natural authority and the capacity of each one.

He gave himself up for her. Christ finds us in our sins and he takes charge of us, even to the ultimate consequences: he gives his life to purify us. This is the way to show the main quality of Christian love, which is faithfulness. The self-gift of the spouse is permanent and from that moment on, each will do his best to save the other, that is, to help the other grow and be better. The perfect couple is not the one that lives without problems and accepts mediocrity, but the two who compel each other to give their best.

In any case, whether one partner makes a decision or follows it, neither will feel superior or inferior since the ideal for both is to “make oneself slave” (Mk 9:35). Paul says: The husband is the head but being the head is not the same as being the boss. Think of Christ: he has authority since he is the truth of God (which the husband is not to his wife); Paul

He washed her by the baptism in the Word (see James 1:18-21 and Jn 15:3). If the ritual of baptism is important, what is even for you, let each one love his wife as himself, and let the wife respect her husband.

Children, parents, servants and masters

20:12;
Col 3:
20:21

6[•] ¹Children, obey your parents for this is right: ²*Honor your father and your mother.* And this is the first commandment that has promise: ³*that you may be happy and enjoy long life in the land.* ⁴And you, fathers, do not make rebels of your children, but educate them by correction and instruction which the Lord may inspire.

Pro
13:24

Col 3:22;
Tit 2:9;
1P 2:18;
Rom
6:15

⁵Servants, obey your masters of this world with fear and respect, with simplicity of heart, as if obeying Christ. ⁶Do not serve only when you are watched or in order to please others, but become servants of Christ who do God's will with all your heart. ⁷Work willingly, for the Lord and not for humans, mindful that the good each one has done, ⁸whether servant or free, will be rewarded by the Lord.

⁹And you, masters, deal with your servants in the same way, and do not threaten them, since you know that they and you have the same Lord who is in heaven, and he treats all fairly.

Be strong in the Lord

¹⁰Finally, be strong in the Lord with his energy and strength. ¹¹Put on the whole armor of God to be able to resist the cunning of the devil. ¹²Our battle is not against human forces but against the rulers and authorities and their dark powers that govern this world. We are struggling against the spirits and supernatural forces of evil.

2Cor
6:7;
10:4

¹³Therefore put on the whole armor of God, that in the evil day, more important is for us to welcome the Word of God that gives us life.

Many young people flee marriage, partly because they fear a risk (total fidelity is indeed a way of losing one's life: Mk 8:35), partly because they consider that their love is their own business. Paul shows that Christ's love for us, however personal it may be, never forgets his love for all those who make up his body. It is an example: married Christians are invited to have their place in the transformation of the world through the radiation of their love and their service to others.

• 6.1 Paul reminds children that God asks for obedience, and parents that they must not neglect their duty as educators (see commentary on Sir 30:1-2). Parents have the difficult task of leading their children to true freedom, teaching them first to obey a law, to serve rather than be served, to share rather than demand. Later, they will show them how to follow the calls of the Spirit, well beyond what is considered good or bad all around them.

Paul reminds the slave of his nobility. Let him live without servility: this is the first step toward genuine liberation.

• 10. Paul has said what he had to say. What does his invitation to be strong mean, when he takes his examples from military life? Is it because he feels the Christians of Ephesus are not sufficiently strong? See verses 18-20: Paul invites them, without saying it, to compare their situation with his. Free or slaves, most of them were people of modest means of the cities near Ephesus. Subjected for a long time to the Roman Empire that imposed peace on them, they were free of serious problems. They were not rich but they were able to content themselves with little. Under a Mediterranean sky they had abundant light and a friendly, natural environment. They found the faith at a time when it cost them little; what would they do the day the Empire became an obstacle and when suddenly they would be classed a bad lot, responsible for all that was wrong?

This is why Paul warns them: peace is only provisional, for the demon is waiting for his hour (vv. 11 and 16). Paul asks them to persevere in prayer: the only effective arms against evil are those that Christ has left us: truth, faith, the word of God... and if they believe they have found salvation, let them exert themselves to evangelize others.

you may resist and stand your ground, making use of all your weapons. ¹⁴Take truth as your belt, justice as your breastplate, ¹⁵and zeal as your shoes to propagate the Gospel of peace. ¹⁶Always hold in your hand the shield of faith to repel the flaming arrows of the devil. ¹⁷Finally, use the helmet of salvation and the sword of the Spirit, that is, the Word of God.

1Thes
5:8;
Is 59:17

Heb
4:12;
Rev 1:16

Col 4:2;
Lk 18:1

Rom
15:30;
Phil 1:14

¹⁸Pray at all times as the Spirit inspires you. Keep watch, together with sustained prayer and supplication for all the holy ones. ¹⁹Pray also for me, so that when I speak, I may be given words to proclaim bravely the mystery of the Gospel. ²⁰Even when in chains I am an ambassador of God; may he give me the strength to speak as I should.

²¹I also want you to know how I am and what I am doing. Tychicus, our beloved brother and faithful minister in the Lord, will tell you everything. ²²I am sending him precisely to give you news of us and comfort you all.

Col 4:7

²³May peace and love with faith from God the Father and from Christ Jesus the Lord, be with the brothers and sisters. ²⁴And may his blessing be with all who love Christ Jesus, our Lord, with undying love.

Here again a real letter from Paul, personal, full of attention and tenderness that Paul sent from prison to the community that had always been the most concerned for his well-being. More than once Paul counted on their material assistance, showing the confidence he had in them. Usually, in order to avoid any suspicion of personal interest, he preferred to earn his living while continuing his mission. In this letter we have the famous page: "Let the same project that was in Christ Jesus be found in you."

We have just said it is a real letter from Paul. Actually, all in it does not follow, as if fragments of several letters from Paul had been combined. We shall draw attention to it as we proceed: 2:19, 21; 4:1. It may well be a question of two short letters, one where Paul wanted to give his news and to thank, the other a warning, in the same style as the letter to the Galatians.

When Paul's letters were gathered together, the most important were arranged according to length: Romans, Corinthians, Galatians. Then came those we call "captivity letters." It is there we have Philippians between Ephesians and Colossians as if the three had been sent from the same prison. Yet there is every reason to think that Philippians was not written when Paul was in Rome, about 60 A.D., but several years earlier, more like 56 A.D. Perhaps he was at that time imprisoned in Ephesus.

Acts
9:13;
16:1;
16:12

1 • ¹From Paul and Timothy, servants of Christ Jesus, to the saints in Philippi, with their bishops and deacons;

to you all in Christ Jesus:

²May grace and peace be yours from God, our Father, and Christ Jesus the Lord.

³I give thanks to my God each time I remember you, ⁴and when I pray for you, I pray with joy. ⁵I cannot forget all you shared with me in the service of the Gospel, from the first day until now. ⁶Since God began such a good work in you, I am certain that he will complete it in the day of Christ Jesus.

1Cor 1:8;
1Thes
5:24

⁷This is my hope for you, for I carry you all in my heart: whether I am in prison or defending and confirming the Gospel, you are with me and share the same grace.

⁸God knows that I love you dearly with the love of Christ Jesus, ⁹and in my prayers I ask that your love may lead you each day to a deeper knowledge and clearer discernment, ¹⁰that you may have good criteria for everything. So you may be pure of heart and come blameless to the day of Christ, ¹¹filled with the fruit of holiness that comes through Christ Jesus, for the glory and praise of God.

Heb 5:14

Heb
12:11;
Jas 5:16;
Jn 15:8

Christ is my life

• ¹²I want you to know, brothers and sisters, that what has happened to me has served to advance the Gospel. ¹³Actually the whole praeto-

Eph 3:1

• 1.1 With their bishops and deacons. In Acts we saw how the apostles used to establish a community, a church, in every city where they proclaimed the Gospel. They did not leave without having established a council of leaders, called presbyters, or elders, according to Jewish custom. After a few years bishops, or supervisors, stood out: they may have been the leading members of the council of presbyters. They were not then like today's bishops.

As to the deacons, they were in charge of various services in the community. And may have done missionary work in areas that did not yet have a community.

God began such a good work in you, I am certain that he will complete it in the day of Christ Jesus (v. 6). The end for which they long is always the manifestation (2 Thes 1:7), or the visit, or the Day of the Lord Jesus (1 Cor 1:8). No work is done without the expectation of the day when there will be all that one dreamed about. There is no Christian life where someone is content with looking forward to his retirement or feels fulfilled because he has a country house or because the family is growing up without a problem. Let us stop saying these first Christians still had the "illusion" of an early return of Christ. They wanted to meet him personally and be transfigured by him. That is an illusion only for those who enclose themselves in oases of peace within a world in crisis.

Knowledge and discernment... A good heart and generosity are not everything in Christian life. We are not saved, we do not reach our true stature, we are not remade as God would like us to be, unless clarity has guided generosity. It is the same for world salvation. God calls us to discover new ways. We need to reflect, to be attentive, what we could call "revision of life," in order to discover what is positive and negative in our daily life, work relationships, social duties, leisure. This reflection, however, is not sufficient: among God's gifts, there is spiritual knowledge that gives us a fresh vision of the order of values and of the will of God.

• 12. Paul is not only persecuted by the Jews: even in the Church "false brothers," delighted he is in prison, see in this situation the possibility of increasing their own importance. The problem is one for all times: the great names of the apostolate have spent half of their energy in limiting the harm caused by rivals or by powerful groups in the Church. Paul, however, is gifted with wisdom: he sees that even if many do for personal interest what they believe they are doing for God, he knows how to turn it to account.

I am hopeful, even certain, that I shall not be ashamed (v. 20). Paul's concern is that his trial and his appearances should serve to reveal Christ's message to the authorities.

For to me, living is Christ. It is quite trendy to say that Christians should "understand the rian guard, and even those outside the palace, know that I am in chains for Christ. ¹⁴And what is more, my condition as prisoner has encouraged most of our brothers who are now emboldened to proclaim the Word of God more openly and without fear.

¹⁵Some, it is true, are moved by envy and rivalry, but others preach Christ with a good intention. ¹⁶These latter are moved by love and realize that I am here to defend the Gospel.

¹⁷The others announce Christ to challenge me. They do not act with a pure intention but think they are making my prison more unbearable.

^{1:4} ¹⁸But in any case, whether they are sincere or showing off, Christ is proclaimed and because of this I rejoice and have no regrets.

¹⁹I know that all this will be a grace for me because of your prayers and the help given by the Spirit of Christ. ²⁰I am hopeful, even certain, that I shall not be ashamed. I feel as assured now, as before, that Christ will be exalted through my person, whether I live or die.

1Cor 6:20

²¹For to me, living is for Christ, and dying is even better. ²²But if I am to go on living, I shall be able to enjoy fruitful labor. Which shall I choose? ²³So I feel torn between the two. I desire greatly to leave this life and to be with Christ, which will be better by far, ²⁴but it is necessary for you that I remain in this life. ²⁵And because I am convinced of this, I know that I will stay and remain with you for your progress and happiness in the faith. ²⁶I will surely come to you again, and give you more reason for being proud of belonging to Christ Jesus.

Gal 2:20

2Cor 5:6

1Thes 2:19;
2Cor 1:14

Stand firm in faith

• ²⁷Try, then, to adjust your lives according to the Gospel of Christ. May I see it when I come to you, and if I cannot come, may I at least hear that you stand firm in the same spirit, striving to uphold the faith of the Gospel with one heart. ²⁸Do not be afraid of your opponents. This will be a sign that they are defeated and you are saved, that is saved by God. ²⁹For through Christ you have been granted not only to believe in Christ but also to suffer for him. ³⁰And you now share the same struggle that you saw I had and that I continue to have, as you know.

Eph 4:3;
Col 2:5

2Thes 1:4

Imitate the humility of Jesus

2 • ¹If I may advise you in the name of Christ and if you can hear it as the voice of love; if we

2Cor 13:13;
10:1

world” and be “fully human.” This is true in a certain way, but it does not say everything. God’s love increases in us through the gift of ourselves to persons and to tasks that he entrusts to us, but as the love of God grows, the desire of Christ and eternity takes root with it: this desire makes us like strangers in the world.

Paul would like to see his friends but not for that will he linger over fraternal meals in which his friends would try to provide him with a warm atmosphere. His deep desire is for what he still lacks: to meet Christ in his glory (see 2 Cor 4:16 and Phil 3:10).

I desire greatly to leave this life and to be with Christ (v. 23). Thus, those who say that a person ceases to exist at the time of death and only recovers life in the resurrection at the end of times are wrong. See 2 Corinthians 5:8 also.

• 27. See how throughout this paragraph Paul invites the Philippians to fully share his own struggle: he is in prison, but they must remain in the front line of the battle. What does he expect? First that their community be a true one (v. 27). Unity is a decisive sign for those who see us from the outside. Uphold the faith of the Gospel with one heart. Whether there be a persecution or not, people from the outside will try to divide us.

• 2.1 Unity is often supported by a shared feeling of being the best, or the strongest, or share the same spirit and are capable of mercy and compassion, then I beg of you ²make me very happy: have one love, one spirit, one feeling, ³do nothing through rivalry or vain conceit. On the contrary let each of you gently consider the others as more important than yourselves. ⁴Do not seek your own interest, but rather that of others. ⁵Your attitude should be the same as Jesus Christ had:

1Cor
1:10;
Rom
12:3;
Jn 13:14

Jn 1:1;
Col 1:15;
Heb 1:3

2Cor 8:9;
Mt 20:28;
Gal 4:4

Rom
5:19;
Heb 5:8

⁶Though he was in the form of God, he did not regard equality with God as something to be grasped, ⁷but emptied himself,
taking on the nature of a servant,
made in human likeness,
and in his appearance found as a man.
⁸He humbled himself by being obedient to death,
death on the cross.

⁹That is why God exalted him and gave him the Name which outshines all names,
¹⁰so that at the Name of Jesus all knees should bend in heaven, on earth and among the dead,

Mt 23:12;
Jn 10:17;
Eph 1:20;
Acts
5:41;
Eph 4:10

¹¹and all tongues proclaim that Christ Jesus is the Lord to the glory of God the Father.

Is 45:23;
Rom
10:9;
Acts 2:36

• ¹²Therefore, my dearest friends, as you always obeyed me while I was with you, even more now that I am far from you, continue working out your salvation “with fear and trembling.” ¹³It is God who makes you not only wish but also carry out what pleases him. ¹⁴Do everything without grumbling, ¹⁵so that without fault or blame, you will be children of God without reproach among a crooked and perverse generation. You are a light among them, like stars in the

2Cor
7:15

Eph 2:10;
3:20;
Heb 13:2

Dt 32:5;
Mt 5:14;
1P 4:4

having to contend with another group: in that way many religious groups maintain their strength, their discipline and the efforts and sacrifices needed for this. All that is also found in Christian groups, but it should not be, for we have another spirit (Lk 9:55). With us, unity will follow from much humility and understanding of others. Here, Paul gives the secret of Christian co-existence: look for what is humble and do nothing through rivalry or for glory.

In a hymn which is a sort of creed, Paul proposes the example of Christ: his path from God to man, from rich to poor, from first to last, from master to servant.

The Lord Jesus desired to identify with the most humble, the most afflicted, the most despised. Such were Jesus' attitudes and they must be those of his followers, the Christians. A desire to identify with the most humble and to share with them is the motivation for a truly evangelical life.

In this we must differ from the majority of people who are mainly interested in their personal or family fulfillment. Their ambitions are legitimate, and who among us does not share them at least partly? Yet they have been devalued by Christ by the simple fact that he took the opposite way.

He did not regard equality with God: the mystery of God's Son who became a mortal man and gave up God's Glory, although he could have preserved it even in his human life. Since Christ was to be the New Man, glorified by God and placed above everything, his being subject to misery and limitations was a way of being reduced to nothingness.

God exalted him. The humiliation and obedience of Christ were the condition for receiving his glory. He gave him the Name (of God), that is, he made him fully enjoy in his human nature the divine Power (or Name).

• 12. Continue working out your salvation with fear and trembling. It is not a matter of being afraid of God. Paul has just urged his readers to rejoice, since they no longer have the spirit of slaves to make them fearful, but the spirit of sons and daughters (Rom 8:15).

Paul, in fact, has just recalled Christ's sacrifice and he draws this conclusion: take your life very seriously (this is the meaning of fear and trembling: as does the one who carefully carries a precious load). Be aware that God is at work in you through these good desires that come to you. Live in the presence of God.

universe, ¹⁶holding to the Word of life. I shall feel proud of you on the day of Christ on seeing that my effort and labor have not been in vain.

¹⁷And if I am being poured out as a libation over the sacrifice and the offering of your faith, I rejoice and continue to share your joy; ¹⁸and you likewise should rejoice and share my joy.

Paul's messengers

• ¹⁹The Lord Jesus lets me hope that I may soon send you Timothy, and have news of you. With this I will feel encouraged. ²⁰For I have no one so concerned for you as he is. ²¹Most follow their own interest, not those of Christ Jesus. ²²But Timothy has proved himself, as you know. Like a son at the side of his father, he has been with me at the service of the Gospel. ²³Because of that I hope to send him to you as soon as I see how things work out for me. ²⁴Nevertheless the Lord lets me think that I myself shall be coming soon.

²⁵I judged it necessary to send back to you Epaphroditus, who worked and fought at my side and whom you sent to help me in my great need. ²⁶In fact, he missed you very much and was still more worried because you had heard of his sickness. ²⁷He was indeed sick and almost died, but God took pity on him and on me, sparing me greater sorrow. ²⁸And so I am eager to send him to you, so that on seeing him you will be glad and I will be at peace. ²⁹Receive him then with joy, as is fitting in the Lord. Consider highly persons like him, ³⁰who almost died for the work of Christ; he risked his life to serve me on your behalf when you could not help me.

Do not turn back to the Jewish law

3 ¹Finally, my brothers and sisters, rejoice in the Lord.

• It is not a burden for me to write again the same things, and for you it is safer. ²Beware of the dogs, beware of the bad workers; beware of the circumcised. ³We are the true circumcised people since we serve according to the Spirit of God, and our confidence is in Christ Jesus rather than in our merits.

⁴I myself do not lack those human qualities in which people have confidence. If some of them seem to be

• 19. Paul usually deals with personal matters at the end of his letters. Here he seems to interrupt the subject of his letter that he will take up again in 3:1. Paul announces two visits to the Christians of Philippi.

Timothy is Paul's assistant; he is entrusted with several missions to the communities. It seems that Timothy did not have much authority and could be easily humiliated by those who disliked Paul's direction.

As to Epaphroditus, he was a Christian from Philippi who had left his family, spent his money and faced risks in order to go and visit Paul. The community of believers must pay attention to its most committed members, who have little means, in order to assist them. The Church sometimes presents as examples, militants from the working class or peasants who were quite forgotten by their brothers and sisters in the faith during their lives.

• 3.1 The discourse of Paul seems to be interrupted here. Paul begins a violent polemic against ill-converted Jews who keep repeating that one must first be faithful to the laws and customs of the Old Testament in order to be a good Christian.

Beware of the dogs...! (v. 2) Paul applies to the Jews, proud of being the chosen people, the very insults that they reserved for non-Jews. Jews were sealed by the circumcision, but they mocked people of other religions who incised their skin (1 K 18:28).

Through what Paul says concerning his faithfulness to Judaism, we know something of his past. He was born in Tarsus to a Jewish family who had left their country and had settled there, in "Greek" territory, where they dedicated themselves to business. His parents were wealthy and well thought of since they had the dignity and the rights of Roman citi-

2Tim 4:6;
Rom
12:1;
15:6

1Cor
16:16

1:4;
2Cor
13:11

Rom
16:17;
Gal 6:12

Col 2:11;
Jer 4:4;
2Cor
11:21

4:18

Gen
17:10;
Acts
23:6;
Gal 1:14

accredited with such qualities, how much more am I! ⁵I was circumcised when eight days old. I was born of the race of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin; I am a Hebrew, born of Hebrews. With regard to the Law, I am a Pharisee, ⁶and such was my zeal for the Law that I persecuted the Church. As for being righteous according to the Law, I was blameless.

Mt 5:20;
Rom
10:3;
Gal 2:16

⁷But once I found Christ, all those things that I might have considered as profit, I reckoned as loss. ⁸Still more, everything seems to me as nothing compared with the knowledge of Christ Jesus, my Lord. For his sake I have let everything fall away and I now consider all as garbage, if instead I may gain Christ. ⁹May I be found in him, not having a righteousness of my own that comes from the Law, but with the righteousness that God gives to those who believe.

zens (see Acts 22:28). Along with Greek culture, Paul received religious education from the Bible and the Jewish people. He saw firsthand the pagan feasts and sacrifices, but was proud of belonging to God's people, of being circumcised and instructed in God's promises to his race. His parents sent him to Jerusalem to study Scripture and the Law with the great masters of his time (see Acts 22:3).

He was a model of strict Pharisee. He did not meet Christ but did meet the early Christians. Because he was faithful to the religion of his ancestors, he believed it was necessary to persecute, imprison and even kill those preaching a new doctrine and deceiving (so he thought) the people, since they proclaimed a false, defeated and crucified Messiah.

At times, Paul must have had doubts (Acts 26:14), and increasingly so, when he felt duty bound to increase repression. The Pharisees were against the death penalty. To hesitate or go backwards was to recognize that God had taken another road than the one where he himself had been the defender of God's cause. Worse still: with Jesus, never more would he be the just man but rather the pardoned sinner. When Jesus forcefully entered into Paul's life, it was a matter of losing all and Paul from ¹⁰May I know him and experience the power of his resurrection and share in his sufferings and become like him in his death, ¹¹and attain through this, God willing, the resurrection from the dead!

2Cor
4:11;
2Tim
2:11

¹²I do not believe I have already reached the goal, nor do I consider myself perfect, but I press on till I conquer Christ Jesus, as I have already been conquered by him. ¹³No, brothers and sisters, I do not claim to have claimed the prize yet. I say only this: forgetting what is behind me, I race forward and run towards the goal, ¹⁴my eyes on the prize to which God has called us from above in Christ Jesus. ¹⁵Let all of us who claim to be perfect have the same way of thinking, but if there is something on which you differ, God will make it clear to you. ¹⁶Meanwhile, let us go forward from the point we have each attained.

1Jn 4:10

Lk 9:62;
1Cor
9:25

then on accepted to regard as garbage all that he had been proud of.

Forgetting what is behind me (v. 13). Paul only wanted to "forget." Forget his merits and his gains (in the judgment of others) so as to receive more fully the free grace of God; forget what he already knew of God and be available for new experiences.

I want to know him. The greatest thing for Christians is not to perform miracles, or to speak in tongues, but to know Christ and meet him as a living person. I want to experience the power of his resurrection. All of us would like to feel the presence of God and to see him in some way, but the way to experience his power that transfigures us is by sharing in Christ's sufferings (2 Cor 1:3-5).

All of us who claim to be perfect (v. 15). See what was said in 1 Corinthians 2:6. Paul speaks ironically again about those who believe they belong to a superior class of Christians, while he would not dare consider himself to be perfect (v. 12).

Finally, he insists on the resurrection. Because we know that our bodies (or persons) will be raised and that the universe will be renewed, we must put passing things in their place: food, wine, sex—all must stop being the idols that enslave us.

¹⁷Unite in imitating me, brothers and sisters, and look at those who walk in our way of life. ¹⁸For many live as enemies of the cross of Christ. I have said it to you many times, and now I repeat it with tears: ¹⁹they are heading for ruin; their belly is their god and they feel proud of what should be their shame. They only think of earthly things.

²⁰For us, our citizenship is in heaven, from where we await the coming of our Savior, Jesus Christ, the Lord. ²¹He will transfigure our lowly body, making it like his own body, radiant in Glory, through the power which is his to submit everything to himself.

Agree with one another and be happy

4 ¹Therefore, my brothers and sisters, whom I love and long for, you my glory and crown, be steadfast in the Lord. ²I beg Evodia and Syntyche to agree with each other in the Lord. ³And you, Sycy-gus, my true companion, I beg you to help them. Do not forget that they have labored with me in the service of the Gospel, together with Clement and my other fellow-workers whose names are written in the Book of Life.

⁴Rejoice in the Lord always. I say it again: rejoice ⁵and may everyone experience your gentle and understanding heart. The Lord is near: ⁶do not be anxious about anything. In everything resort to prayer and supplication together with thanksgiving and bring your requests before God. ⁷Then the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will keep your hearts and minds in Christ Jesus.

⁸Finally, brothers and sisters, fill your minds with whatever is truthful, holy, just, pure, lovely and noble. Be mindful of whatever deserves praise and admiration. ⁹Put into practice what you have learned from me, what I passed on to you, what you heard from me or saw me doing, and the God of peace will be with you.

Paul's thankfulness

• ¹⁰I rejoice in the Lord because of your concern for me. You were indeed concerned for me before, but you had no opportunity to show it. ¹¹I do not say this because of being in want; I have learned to manage with what I have. ¹²I know what it is to be in want and what it is to have plenty. I am trained for both: to be hungry or satisfied, to have much or little. ¹³I can do all things in him who strengthens me.

¹⁴However you did right in sharing my trials. ¹⁵You Philippians, remember that in the beginning, when we first preached the Gospel, after I left Macedonia you alone opened for me a debit and credit account, ¹⁶and when I was in Thessalonica, twice you sent me what I needed.

¹⁷It is not your gift that I value but

• 4.1 Once again the theme is interrupted; this passage seems to be the continuation of 2:19-3:1.

The Book of Life (v. 3) is a common Jewish term meaning those who will be saved (Rev 20:12).

Fill your minds with whatever is truthful, holy, just, pure, lovely and noble (v. 8). Paul continuously repeats that it is not enough to avoid what is forbidden. Let us discover this free and open attitude of a believer who knows that God speaks to him in a thousand ways through others. How many examples before our eyes each day! What great, noble and true things there are in this world about which we speak negatively! Let us accept what is good, wherever we find it, even among unbelievers.

• 10. Paul thanks the Church of Philippi for their help. He, who is so jealous of his independence and anxious not to seem to take advantage of others under the pretext of religion, accepts what his real friends give him.

2Thes 3:7;
1Cor 4:16

Mt 6:19;
Col 3:2

Eph 2:6;
Heb 12:22

Rom 8:19;
1Cor 15:51;
Tit 2:13

1Thes 2:19

Dn 12:1;
Rev 20:12

3:1;
1Cor 16:22

Rom 13:11;

Eph 6:18;
Lk 18:1

Jn 14:27;
Col 3:15

Rom 12:2

Heb 13:5

2Cor 12:9;
Col 1:29

Acts 16:2

Acts 17:1

rather the interest increasing in your own account. ¹⁸Now I have enough and more than enough with everything Epaphroditus brought me on your behalf and which I received as “fragrant offerings pleasing to God.” ¹⁹God himself will provide you with everything you need, according to his riches, and show you his generosity in Christ Jesus. ²⁰Glory to God, our Father, forever and ever: Amen.

²¹Greet all who believe in Christ Jesus. The brothers and sisters with me greet you. ²²All the believers here greet you, especially those from Caesar’s household. ²³The grace of Christ Jesus, the Lord, be with your spirit.

1Cor
9:11;
Phil
2:17;
Gen
8:21;
Heb
13:16

1:13

Towards the year 62, Paul, a prisoner in Rome, writes to the Christians of Colossae, who, without being aware of it, belittle Christ. They do not feel assured with only faith in Christ and they want to add some practices from the Old Testament. Or they try to include Christ in a board of celestial persons, or “angels” who are supposed to have the key to our destiny in hand.

Something was lacking in them and in the majority of their contemporaries. They were caught in the Roman Empire which had imposed its peace on the known world at that time, but also prevented them from living a life of their own. They fell back on the “spiritual.” Secret doctrines offered to lead their “perfect ones” to a higher state and theories called “gnosis” (that is, knowledge) were drawn up on the origin of the human and the world. According to them, all comes from a cosmic soup that had been boiling for ages, with impressive celestial families of angels or “eons”, male and female, who devour each other, couple and finally imprison sparks of spirit in material bodies. So people are manufactured who, after “putting on” a series of successive existences, may return to the kingdom of light.

Caught in the wind of these fine discourses, the Colossians went the way of certain Christians today who trust in their devotion to souls or who allow their life to be led by spiritualism, astrology and horoscopes. They no longer consider Christ as the only savior since they give the priority to others or to practices that are not of the Church.

This crisis in the Church of the first century gave us this letter of Paul where he establishes the absolute supremacy of Christ. As in other letters of Paul, the letter to the Colossians mentions that Timothy is with him (1:1). Paul chose him as assistant and looked on him as “his true Son in Christ.” Perhaps it was Timothy who wrote a fair part of this letter; it would explain the difference in style from the more authentic of Paul’s letters while its content—exceptionally rich—is constantly faithful to the inspiration of the apostle. On this subject see the Letter to the Ephesians which has the same themes as the one to the Colossians, but in a more developed way. In several passages of Colossians, relevant commentaries in Ephesians will be indicated.

1Cor 1:1

1 •¹ Paul, apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God and Timothy our brother,

² to the saints in Colossae, our faithful brothers and sisters in Christ:

Receive grace and peace from God our Father, and Christ Jesus our Lord.

Eph 1:15

³ Thanks be to God, the Father of Christ Jesus, our Lord!

We constantly pray for you, ⁴ for we have known of your faith in Christ Jesus and of your love for all the saints. Indeed you await in hope the inheritance reserved for you in heaven, ⁵ of which you have heard through the word of truth. This Gospel, ⁶ already present among you, is bearing fruit and growing throughout the world, as it did among you from the day you accepted it and understood the gift of God in all its truth.

1P 1:3

4:12;
Phlm
1:23

⁷ He who taught you, Epaphras, our dear companion in the service of Christ, faithful minister of Christ on our behalf, ⁸ has reminded me of the love you have for me in the spirit.

⁹ Because of this, from the day we received news of you, we have not ceased praying to God for you, that you may attain the full knowledge of his will through all the gifts of wisdom and spiritual understanding.

¹⁰ May your lifestyle be worthy of the Lord and completely pleasing to him. May you bear fruit in every good work and grow in the knowledge of God.

¹¹ May you become strong in everything by a sharing of the Glory of God, so that you may have great endurance and persevere in joy.

¹² Constantly give thanks to the Father who has empowered us to receive our share in the inheritance of the saints in his kingdom of light.

¹³ He rescued us from the power of darkness and transferred us to the kingdom of his beloved Son. ¹⁴ In him we are redeemed and forgiven.

1Thes
2:121P 2:9;
Acts
26:18;
Dt 33:3;
Wis 5:5Eph 1:7;
Rom
3:24Jn 1:1;
Wis 7:26;
Gen 1:26;
Pro 8:22;
2Cor 4:4;
Phil 2:6;
Heb 1:3;
1:6;

Christ is the beginning of everything

• ¹⁵ He is the image of the unseen God,

• 1.1 Paul, as usual, praises his readers. Actually, he is writing because of the information Epaphras gave him about the Colossians' concerns.

Epaphras, about whom Paul speaks (v. 7), is a man from Colossae. When Paul was organizing the evangelization of the province of Ephesus (see Acts 19:26 and 20:4), he did not go to every city, but would send his assistants. Epaphras of Colossae announced the Good News and had started to form communities in Colossae and then in the neighboring cities of Laodicea and Hierapolis (see Col 4:13). He was the man who came to Rome to inform Paul of the difficulties.

Your faith... your love... in hope... (vv. 4-5). Paul constantly regroups these three Christian powers: believe, love and hope. In the Christian world, they are called theological virtues (i.e., powers that go straight to God). The three go together, otherwise they do not exist. In a sense hope is the first: if it is no longer alive, faith and love remain powerless.

Straight away, Paul presents faith as being matchless: the Gospel has already been preached and believed throughout the world (v. 6) (which is rather too quickly said); faith opens for us the way to true knowledge: precisely what the Colossians are looking for (see Introduction); through this faith God has already placed us in the kingdom of Light (v. 12).

He has transferred us to the kingdom of his beloved Son. While the Colossians are interested in an invisible world of supernatural forces, where luminous powers battle with those of darkness (see the Introduction, and also Eph 1:21), Paul immediately clarified the situation: there is nothing other than the power of Darkness and the kingdom of the Son.

• 15. Paul shows that the angels or invisible powers (v. 16) whether from the Bible or the story tellers of "gnosis" with their Thrones, Authorities, Principles... are nothing compared with Christ. He is neither agent nor intermediary of a creative adventure without a true creator. He is not one of the saviors of a history rather impersonal: there is only God-Creator and in him is Christ. See the same idea in Hebrews 1.

Jn 1:3; Heb 1:2; 1Cor 8:6 and for all creation he is the firstborn, Rom 8:29 ¹⁶for in him all things were created, in heaven and on earth, visible and invisible:
 thrones, rulers, authorities, powers... All was made through him and for him.
 Jn 8:58 ¹⁷He is before all and all things hold together in him.
 Eph 1:22; 4:15; 5:23 ¹⁸And he is the head of the body, that is the Church, for he is the first, the first raised from the dead
 2:9; Eph 1:23; Jn 1:16; Eph 1:10; Rom 5:10; 2Cor 5:18; Eph 2:14 ¹⁹for God was pleased to let fullness dwell in him.
²⁰Through him God willed to reconcile all things to himself, and through him, through his blood shed on the cross, God establishes peace, on earth as in heaven.

• ²¹You yourselves were once estranged and opposed to God because of your evil deeds, ²²but now God has reconciled you in the human body of his Son through his death, so that you may be without fault, holy and blameless before him. ²³Only stand firm, upon the foundation of your faith, and be steadfast in hope. Keep in mind the Gospel you have heard, which has been preached to every creature under heaven, and of which I, Paul, became a minister.
²⁴At present I rejoice when I suffer for you; I complete in my own flesh what is lacking in the sufferings of Christ for the sake of his body, which is the Church. ²⁵For I am serving the Church since God entrusted to me the ministry to make the word of God fully known. ²⁶I mean that mys-

Eph 4:18; 2:1
 Eph 5:21
 1Cor 15:58; Mk 16:15; 1Tim 3:16
 Acts 9:16; 2Cor 4:10
 2Cor 3:6
 Mk 13:10

In Galatians 4:1-5 Paul recognizes that the history of humanity has been deeply marked by natural and social forces that he does not name. He also affirms that since the resurrection of Jesus, it is he who has in hand all the movement of history (Rev 5:3-5). Something that may astonish those among us who think all history is the responsibility of humankind. In one sense, they are right but on condition that they do not forget the Firstborn, the one who has already come to the end of history and of whom we say he is Lord (Phil 2:11) of history.

He is the image of the unseen God. We should not imagine that God has a human form beyond the clouds, and that Jesus is his image; human creature is the image of God, but God is not in the image of human creature.

In all that he is and in all that he does, Christ among us is the perfect image of the Father and of his mercy: his actions reveal God's way of thinking and acting. Already before he became man, the Son of God existed in God, as the eternal and invisible image of God eternal and invisible, the radiance of the glory of the Father (Heb 1:3), the Expression or Word of God (Jn 1:1).

For all creation, he is the firstborn. We take this word in its biblical sense. He is not the first of many creatures, but the one who has a place apart. In his human nature, Christ is a Galilean Jew, a descendant of David. His person, however, is rooted in God and is presented to us as the model and the firstborn not of people but of all creation.

God was pleased to let fullness dwell in him who is the only bridge between God and the universe. The fullness of God is in him to be communicated to the universe, and the fullness of the universe will be found in him when all human beings are reconciled and reunited in him.

All was made through him: John 1:1 and Hebrews 1:2.

And was the first raised... Paul says more precisely "and as the first fruits offered to God, was raised" (as in 1 Cor 15:23). He has not come only for the forgiveness of sins, but for a "passover," a passage from death to life, and his resurrection after his total abandonment to his Father was a first necessary step so that we too would have a resurrection.

God willed to reconcile. Once again the work of Christ is presented as reconciliation: reconciliation between people (2 Cor 5:17-21) and reconciliation of the whole of creation.

• 21. Paul now requires the Colossians to keep their feet on the ground. Do not waste your time imagining struggles between celestial beings and evil ones. The struggle is here

Acts 20:24;
Eph 3:3;
Rom 16:25

terious plan that for centuries and generations remained secret, and which God has now revealed to his holy ones.

Eph 1:18;
Rom 5:2;
8:19

²⁷ God willed to make known to them the riches and even the Glory that his mysterious plan reserved for the pagan nations: Christ is in you and you may hope God's Glory.

Phil 4:13;
Eph 3:7

²⁸ This Christ we preach. We warn and teach everyone true wisdom, aiming to make everyone perfect in Christ. ²⁹ For this cause I labor and struggle with the energy of Christ working powerfully in me.

Let Christ Jesus, the Lord, be your doctrine

Rev 1:11

2 ¹ I want you to know how I strive for you, for those of Laodicea and for so many who have not met me personally. ² I pray that all may be encouraged. May you be established in love, that you may obtain all the riches of a full understanding and know the mystery of God, Christ himself. ³ For in him are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge.

Is 45:3

⁴ So let no one deceive you with persuasive arguments. ⁵ Although I am far from you, my spirit is with you and I rejoice in recalling how well-disciplined you are and how firm in the faith of Christ.

1Cor 5:3

⁶ If you have accepted Christ Jesus as Lord, let him be your doctrine. ⁷ Be rooted and built up in him; let faith be your principle, as you were taught, and your thanksgiving overflowing.

⁸ See that no one deceives you with philosophy or any hollow discourse; these are merely human doctrines not inspired by Christ but by the wisdom of this world. ⁹ For in Him dwells the fullness of God in bodily form. ¹⁰ He is the head of all

Eph 5:6;
2Tim 4:3;
Mt 15:6;
Gal 4:3

1:16;
Jn 1:14;
Eph 1:21

below and costs blood and life. This is why Paul reminds his readers what he himself is suffering because of the Gospel.

The body of Christ is the place where the peace of all humanity with God, and peace between individuals and nations can be achieved (Eph 2:11).

That you may be, without fault, holy and blameless before him (v. 22): see commentary on Ephesians 5:26.

I complete in my own flesh what is lacking in the sufferings of Christ. After Christ's death something would be lacking in the salvation of the world, if Jesus' followers and apostles did not, in their turn, meet with trials and sufferings. Working for the Church means suffering for the Church; to work for the rule of justice is to suffer for the sake of justice.

His mysterious plan: see Ephesians 3:5. We must not forget that in those days, no one even thought of the common destiny of humanity: they did not even speak of humanity. Moreover, neither the Greeks nor the Romans looked beyond their actual existence. Paul is amazed by the generosity of God whose promises are for all people, without distinction (v. 27). We, too, are offered nothing less than a share in the Glory of God, that is to say, all the riches found in him.

• 2.1 I want you to know how I strive for you. This struggle of Paul signifies labor (1:28-29) and prayer (4:2 and Rom 15:30). It would be very tempting (and it is the temptation of the Colossians) to make Christianity an attractive religion, with beautiful explanations, leaving people hanging on to their dreams and passions, a religion that does not attack the sin rooted in our way of life and in our society. To join the attack we must first be convinced that it is in Christ that we find the whole mystery of God.

Let no one deceive you. Philosophy and the search for wisdom are highly respectable. Philosophies always contain some truth; their danger is in seeming to give a total response to our problems. They are deceptive insofar as they come from philosophers who have in fact had either a limited or questionable experience of human reality. In faith, on the contrary, rather than a discourse on human concerns, we have a person: Christ. While all the currents of thought are the product of their day and grow old with time, Paul assures us that all the fullness of God is in Christ in a human form.

cosmic power and authority, and in him you have everything.

Baptized and risen

Phil 3:3; Rom 2:25; Jer 4:4
 Rom 6:4; Eph 2:6
 • ¹¹In Christ Jesus you were given a circumcision but not by human hands, which removed completely from you the carnal body: ¹²I refer to baptism. On receiving it you were buried with Christ; and you also rose with him for having believed in the power of God who raised him from the dead.

Eph 2:15; 1P 3:22
 2Cor 2:14
 • ¹³You were dead. You were in sin and uncircumcised at the same time. But God gave you life with Christ. He forgave all our sins. ¹⁴He canceled the record of our debts, those regulations which accused us. He did away with all that and nailed it to the cross. ¹⁵Victorious through the cross, he stripped the rulers and authorities of their power, humbled them before the eyes of the whole world and dragged them behind him as prisoners.

Useless doctrines

Rom 14; 1Cor 8:8; Gal 4:10
 Heb 8:5; 10:1; Mt 11:13
 1Cor 8:1
 Eph 4:15
 • ¹⁶So, then, let no one criticize you in matters of food or drink or for not observing festivals, new moons or the Sabbath. ¹⁷These things were only shadows of what was to come, whereas the reality is the person of Christ. ¹⁸Do not let anyone disqualify you, insisting on humbling practices and worship of angels. In fact, they are only good to satisfy self-indulgence, ¹⁹instead of holding firmly to the head, Christ. It is he who nourishes and gives unity to the whole body by a complex system of nerves and ligaments, making it grow according to the plan of God. ²⁰If you have really died with Christ, and are rid of the principles of

• 11. Paul has just said that a Christian has wisdom and is on a way of knowledge. He now reminds us that our entry into the Church has been much more than an exterior rite. Through baptism, we have become part of this renewal of the world brought about by the death and resurrection of Jesus.

Paul had been circumcised, and knew from experience that it did not save him. We can be fairly sure baptism did not also miraculously free him of his aggressiveness and weaknesses, but he began to live his human existence differently. He had been liberated, among other things, of what weighed heavily on him: religion with all its commandments. Religion for him was not, as it is for some who like principles, a defensive shield as necessary as a policeman: religion was for him a reminder of a debt towards God, something that made love and real trust impossible. Jesus in dying had nailed to the cross all kinds of fears of God; at the same time he did away with all the moral principles and pressures (“powers and authorities” of v. 15) that smother our free response to God.

In some countries, many people are baptized but baptism scarcely changes their life and generally speaking they do not belong to communities seeking to renew their faith. It is not enough for us to admit that we are poor Christians, that we have not really buried the sinner within us. Our resurrection depends, first of all on faith in God who resurrected Jesus, who has pardoned us, and prepared everything so that we may live our life.

• 16. Paul has just reminded us that baptism is the beginning of a new life. It is not a matter of replacing old commandments with better commandments: the coming of Christ has put an end to all religions with commandments. That will perhaps shock many Christians: should we not obey the commandments of God and of the Church? What will become of us if there are no longer religious duties?

Indeed there is no religious group—no Christian community—without rites, habits, commandments: what would become of a community where the members would no longer gather to hear the word of God or celebrate the Eucharist? Paul nevertheless shows it is finished with religions where the most important consideration is to do or not to do, where it is believed that God likes us to rest on such a day, not to eat such and such a food, to dress in a certain way, abstain from this or that. Religions give great importance to these laws for they help the faithful to maintain their cohesion and to retain their own identity. All that deforms the idea we have of God. All that the world, why do you now let yourselves be taught as if you belonged to the world? ²¹“Do not eat this, do not taste that, do not touch that...”

1Cor
6:13

²²These are human rules and teachings, referring to things that are perishable, that wear out and disappear.

Mt 15:9;
Is 29:13

²³These doctrines may seem to be profound because they speak of religious observance and humility and of disregarding the body. In fact, they are useless as soon as the flesh rebels.

Seek the things that are above

Mt 6:20;
Phil 3:20;
Jn 3:1

3¹So then, if you are risen with Christ, seek the things that are above, where Christ is seated at the right hand of God. ²Set your mind on the things that are above, not on earthly things. ³For you have died and your life is now hidden with Christ in God. ⁴When Christ, who is your life, reveals himself, you also will be revealed with him in Glory.

Gal 2:20;
1Thes
4:17;
1P 1:7;
1Jn 3:2

is human regulation, very useful perhaps, old fashioned perhaps, but still always human. Paul says: God does not share our interest in what is transient, in our cooking, feast days and the like; he does not treat us like little children, saying, “Don’t do that!”

All that may seem very religious. Religious prohibitions always impress those who are not free of their fear of God. Instead of freeing us and leading us to child-like trust in God, these restrictions favor a narrow-mindedness, and later violence exerted against those who think differently from us.

Do not be mistaken in thinking that contempt for the body is a sign of holiness (v. 23). Fewer kilos do not mean more Spirit! The penances and sacrifices that we impose on ourselves could cause us to feel superior to others. If you belong to a group that has its fasts, would you not like it to be known?

Let no one criticize you. Who is going to criticize us for celebrating Sunday with the resurrection of the Lord instead of the Jewish Sabbath?

• 3.1 Here we have what was said about baptism (2:12) which joins us to Christ and ⁵Therefore, put to death what is earthly in your life, that is immorality, impurity, inordinate passions, wicked desires and greed which is a way of worshiping idols. ⁶These are the things that arouse the wrath of God.

Rom 6:6;
Gal 5:24;
Mk 9:43

⁷For a time you followed this way and lived in such disorders. ⁸Well then, reject all that: anger, evil intentions, malice; and let no abusive words be heard from your lips.

Eph 2
Jas 1:21;
1P 2:1

Put on the new self

• ⁹Do not lie to one another. You have been stripped of the old self and its way of thinking ¹⁰to put on the new, which is being renewed and is to reach perfect knowledge and the likeness of its creator. ¹¹There is no room for distinction between Greek or Jew, circumcised or uncircumcised, barbarian, foreigner, slave or free, but Christ is all and in all.

2Cor 4:6;
Gen 12:6

Gal 3:27;
1Cor
12:13

¹²Clothe yourselves, then, as is fitting for God’s chosen people, holy

Eph 4:1;
Phil 2:1

makes us share in all his wealth. Since Christ left this earth, we leave it too: what is best in our lives, what motivates us to do things is neither visible, nor is it of the earth. God alone knows the riches of the believer’s heart, even when her life seems tarnished by various faults and weaknesses: one day God will manifest the goodness, the “glory” which we do not yet see (see Mt 25:31-46).

Put to death what is earthly in your life. It is not that we have to kill ourselves, but to destroy egoism, wickedness, envy, excessive confidence in self, for sin is there. Being free of a religion of commandments should not make us less aware of what is required in a new life: it means being still more perfect (Mt 5:20 and 48).

• 9. See Ephesians 4:20-24 where Paul develops the same idea of the new self created in Christ and of the old self which must be abandoned.

While the old self is self-centered, enslaved by passions, the new self is characterized by a communal attitude, a constant concern for others. He lives with a thankful heart.

and beloved of him. Put on compassion, kindness, humility, meekness and patience ¹³to bear with one another and forgive whenever there is any occasion to do so. As the Lord has forgiven you, forgive one another. ¹⁴Above all, clothe yourselves with love which binds everything together in perfect harmony. ¹⁵May the peace of Christ overflow in your hearts; for this end you were called to be one body. And be thankful.

Jn 15:12;
Rom 5:7

1Cor 13

Eph 5:4

1Thes 5:11;
Eph 5:18

¹⁶Let the word of God dwell in you in all its richness. Teach and admonish one another with words of wisdom. With thankful hearts sing to God psalms, hymns and spontaneous praise. ¹⁷And whatever you do or say, do it in the Name of Jesus, the Lord, giving thanks to God the Father through him.

Rom 14:7;
1Cor 10:31

On obedience

• ¹⁸Wives, submit yourselves to your husbands, as you should do in the Lord. ¹⁹Husbands, love your wives and do not get angry with them. ²⁰Children, obey your parents in everything, because that pleases the Lord. ²¹Parents, do not be too demanding of your children, lest they become discouraged.

Eph 5:21;
6:9

• 18. The brief counsel given to spouses (vv. 18-19) will be largely developed in Ephesians 5:21-33. Paul would not accept the attitude of many Christians who say: "Religion has nothing to do with what I do in my home, my work, my leisure, or in politics." On the contrary, Paul insists that Christians live all of this before the Lord, for the Lord and in the Lord.

This is why Paul preaches the same ethics to everyone: men, women, slaves (we would say bosses and workers); all must be just, loyal and respectful of others, even when they have faults. We should struggle to bring about change and defend our rights; but we must lead these struggles and live our commitments according to the spirit of Christ. Very often what we ask for in order to change the world is less important than the way in which we ask it, and it is often there that a Christian will give ²²Servants, obey your masters in everything; not only while they are present, to gain favor with them, but sincerely, because you fear the Lord. ²³Whatever you do, do it wholeheartedly, working for the Lord, and not for humans. ²⁴You well know that the Lord will reward you with the inheritance. You are servants, but your Lord is Christ. ²⁵Every evildoer will be paid back for whatever wrong has been done, for God does not make exceptions in favor of anyone.

1Cor 7:21;
Tit 2:9;
1P 2:18

Rom 2:11;
1P 1:17

4 ¹As for you, masters, give your servants what is fair and reasonable, knowing that you yourselves have a Master in heaven.

Further instructions

• ²Be steadfast in prayer and even spend the night praying and giving thanks. ³Pray especially for us and our preaching: may the Lord open a door for us that we may announce the mystery of Christ. Because of this I am in chains; ⁴pray then that I may be able to reveal this mystery as I should.

Eph 6:18

⁵Deal wisely with those who do not belong to the Church; take advantage of every opportunity. ⁶Let

1Cor 5:12;
1Thes 4:12

a witness that only she can give. Let others be successful whatever the means that are taken and whatever the disastrous consequences for society: see on this subject the Sermon on the Mount (Mt 5-7).

• 4.2 All this is commented on in Ephesians 6:18-21.

Onesimus is a runaway slave who returns to Colossae with Tychicus after Paul converted him to the faith (see Letter to Philemon).

The evangelist Mark, now reconciled with Paul (see Acts 15:38), is with him. Luke (v. 14) mentioned here is the author of the Gospel and Acts.

We can see there was much communication between churches of different places. Each one was not locked within its own community: had this been the case, within a short time, 1P 3:15 your conversation be pleasing with a touch of wit. Know how to speak to everyone in the best way.

⁷Tychicus will give news of me. He is our dear brother and for me a faithful assistant and fellow worker for the Lord. ⁸I am purposely sending him to give you news of me and to encourage you. ⁹With him I am sending Onesimus, our faithful and dear brother, who is one of yours. They will tell you about everything that is happening here.

Phlm 1:10

Acts 12:12; 2Tim 4:11; 1P 5:13

¹⁰My companion in prison, Aristarchus, greets you, as does Mark, the cousin of Barnabas, about whom you have already received instructions. If he calls on you, receive him warmly. ¹¹Jesus, called Justus, also greets you. They are the only Jewish people working with me for the kingdom of God, and because of that they have been a comfort to me.

¹²Greetings from your countryman Epaphras, a good servant of Christ Jesus. He constantly battles for you through his prayer that you be perfect and firm in whatever God asks of you. ¹³I assure you that he has worked hard for you, as well as for those at Laodicea and Hierapolis.

1:7; Rom 15:30

¹⁴Greetings from Luke, our dear doctor and from Demas. ¹⁵Greet the brothers and sisters of Laodicea, and don't forget Nympha and the church that gathers in her house.

2Tim 4:11

¹⁶After reading this letter, see that it is read in the Church of the Laodiceans, and have the letter they received read in yours. ¹⁷And say to Archipus, "Do not forget the ministry due to you in the Lord."

1Thes 5:27; Rev 1:3

Phlm 1:2

¹⁸Greetings in my own hand, Paul. Remember that I am in chains. Grace be with you.

1Cor 16:2; Gal 6:11

there would have been as many religions as there were churches. Quite to the contrary, they were conscious of being the Church of Christ, established in various places, but with one testimony concerning Christ, which explains the interest the believers had in keeping in close contact with one another. At a time in which it seemed difficult to preserve unity due to the distance and differences among the people, the power that preserved unity—more than a rigid organization—was the profound sense all the people had that the church was a “communion” or a community enlivened by the Spirit of Christ.

Nowadays when we attempt to form “basic Christian communities,” we must also be careful to remain in contact and in harmony with other communities.

LETTER TO PHILEMON

Philemon from Colossae has a slave named Onesimus: a typical name for a slave since Onesimus means “useful” (v. 11). Onesimus escapes and goes to Rome where he expects to disappear in the crowd. Accidentally, or luckily, he meets Paul whom he had known in his master’s house. At this point, Paul is imprisoned in Rome, but enjoys certain privileges enabling him to go out in the company of a policeman. Onesimus is converted and baptized; then Paul makes him go back to his former master with the letter of recommendation that we read here.

Paul asks that the slave be seen as a brother, and even suggests that the slave be freed (v. 21).

We have already seen the advice Paul gives to slaves in Colossians 3:22. In those first years of the Church, obtaining God’s life in Christ seemed such a tremendous privilege, providing such inner freedom, that being a slave or being free did not greatly matter (see 1 Cor 7:17).

At that time no one thought that a change of social structure was feasible: there were slaves and there would always be slaves. The Christians were few and without any influence. Thus, they were not concerned about reforming society, nor about laws to eliminate slavery. Even before the time it became necessary to think about changing the laws, faith was already against treating slaves as “objects” or inferiors: because they were Christians, an increasing number of masters—in the Church—spontaneously renounced their rights and granted freedom to their slaves.

Many people think that the Christian community has nothing to say concerning their responsibilities to society. Here, on the contrary, we see how Paul involves the whole community in Philemon’s problem.

Col 4:10;
Phil 1:7

Rom
16:5;
1Cor
16:19

¹From Paul, a prisoner of Christ Jesus, and from our brother Timothy to Philemon, our friend and fellow worker, ²to our dear sister Apphia, to Archippus faithful companion in our soldiering, and to all the Church gathered in your house.

³Grace and peace be with you from God the Father and Jesus Christ the Lord.

⁴I never cease to give thanks to my God when I remember you in my prayers, ⁵for I hear of your love and faith towards the Lord and all the holy ones. ⁶And I pray that the sharing of your faith may make known all the good that is ours in Christ. ⁷I had great satisfaction and comfort on hearing of your charity, because the hearts of the saints have been cheered by you, brother.

1Cor
4:15;
Col 4:9

⁸Because of this, although in Christ I have the freedom to command what you should do, ⁹yet I prefer to request you in love. The one talking is Paul, the old man, now prisoner for Christ. ¹⁰And my request is on behalf of Onesimus, whose father I have become while I was in prison.

¹¹This Onesimus has not been helpful to you, but now he will be helpful both to you and to me. ¹²In returning him to you, I am sending you my own heart. ¹³I would have liked to keep him at my side, to serve me on your behalf while I am in prison for the Gospel, ¹⁴but I did not want to do anything without your agreement, nor impose a good deed upon you without your free consent.

¹⁵Perhaps Onesimus has been parted from you for a while so that you may have him back forever, ¹⁶no longer as a slave, but better than a slave. For he is a very dear brother to me, and he will be even dearer to you. ¹⁷And so, because of our friendship, receive him as if he were I myself. ¹⁸And if he has caused any harm, or owes you anything, charge it to me. ¹⁹I, Paul, write this and sign it with my own hand: I will pay it... without further mention of your debt to me, which is you yourself. ²⁰So, my brother, please do me this favor for the Lord's sake. Give me this comfort in Christ.

1Cor
7:22;
1Tim 6:2

²¹Confident of your obedience I write to you, knowing you will do even more than I ask. ²²And one more thing, get a lodging ready for me because, thanks to all your prayers, I hope to return to you.

²³Epaphras, my fellow prisoner in Christ Jesus, sends greetings. ²⁴So do Mark, Aristarchus, Demas and Luke, my assistants.

Col 4:12
Col 4:14

²⁵May the grace of the Lord Christ be with you. Amen!

In the year 50, Paul arrived in Thessalonica, a major city and the capital of the province of Macedonia (see Acts 17:1). Here, after being rejected by the Jews, he addressed his preaching to the pagans and succeeded in forming a community. After barely three months, a riot caused by the Jews forced him to leave.

What is going to happen to these new Christians who have only received the basics of Christian life from Paul? Because of his concern, Paul asks Timothy to go and to strengthen this young church. Upon his return, Timothy is optimistic and being reassured, Paul sends this letter at the beginning of 51. This is the oldest text of the New Testament.

We do not always find this letter very inspiring. We might say that Paul's style is still quite "green." We sense both a missionary's attachment to the converts for whom he had spared no effort, his concern about them and the remnants of Paul's early training as fanatic as it was generous.

Christian faith was going against reason in the first communities of the Greco-Roman world, just as it does in our own communities. Sexual freedom seemed just as legitimate to them as it does to our contemporaries. The resurrection of the dead and the afterlife did not readily enter into their perspectives even if, from time to time, some "mystery-prone" philosophers or some religions were trying to revive such hopes.

In chapter 4, Paul re-asserts the biblical doctrine concerning these matters. There, we will find the clear and sound affirmation of the moral demands to form an integral part of Christ's followers: be holy, alert and be people who are waiting for something else.

We will also find the first affirmation of the resurrection of the dead expressed in apocalyptic language and images.

From its beginnings, the community is invited to live in constant prayer and to give priority to the care of its weakest members.

Acts
15:40;
16:1;
17:1

1 • ¹From Paul, Sylvanus and Timothy to the church of Thessalonica which is in God the Father and in Christ Jesus, the Lord.

May the peace and grace of God be with you.

5:8;
1Cor
13:13

²We give thanks to God at all times for you and remember you in our prayers. ³We constantly recall before God our Father the work of your faith, the labors of your love and your endurance in waiting for Christ Jesus our Lord.

1Cor 2:4;
2Cor
12:12

⁴We remember, brothers and sisters, the circumstances of your being called. ⁵The gospel we brought you was such not only in words. Miracles, Holy Spirit and plenty of everything were given to you. You also know how we dealt with you for your sake.

Phil 3:17

⁶In return, you became followers of us and of the Lord when, on receiving the word, you experienced the joy of the Holy Spirit in the midst of great opposition. ⁷And you became a model for the faithful of Macedonia and Achaia, ⁸since from you the word of the Lord spread to

Rom 1:8

Macedonia and Achaia, and still farther. The faith you have in God has become news in so many places that we need say no more about it. ⁹Others tell of how you welcome us and turned from idols to the Lord. For you serve the living and true God, ¹⁰and you wait for his Son from heaven whom he raised from the dead, Jesus, who frees us from impending trial.

Acts
14:15;
Jn 17:3

Mt 3:7;
1Cor 1:7;
Tit 2:13

The beginning of the Church of Thessalonica

2 • ¹You well know, brothers and sisters, that our visit to you was not in vain. ²We had been ill-treated and insulted in Philippi but, trusting in our God, we dared announce to you the message of God, and face fresh opposition. ³Our warnings did not conceal any error or impure motive, nor did we deceive anyone. ⁴But as God had entrusted his Gospel to us as to faithful ministers, we were anxious to please God who sees the heart, rather than human beings. ⁵We never pleased you with flattery,

Acts 16:
19-40

Gal 1:10

• 1.1 Faith, endurance, love. For us, sometimes hope (or: endurance) goes unnoticed between faith and love. For Paul it has two important meanings:

– Those who hope bear trials and persecutions with patience and perseverance. That is why Paul speaks of faith, perseverance and love. As we know from the Gospel, hope is not an easy optimism; it is the capacity to endure when faced with trials.

– The person with hope looks forward to the glorious coming of Christ who will judge this world and take us to the next one. He frees us from impending punishment. In those years, all believers were convinced that judgment was imminent and that they would witness Christ's coming.

The Gospel we brought you was such not only in words (v. 5). There were many signs, miracles and other manifestations in Thessalonica. Perhaps God increased the signs in view of the coming persecution; since very soon there would not be many with adequate formation to orient the community. In fact the Gospel cannot be proclaimed without God doing something to confirm it (Mk 16:17). Jesus criticized those who came to him to see miracles, but he performed miracles throughout his ministry. Let us not say: "I do not need miracles to believe." Human beings as we are, we will have quite a different enthusiasm if we see that God is beside us, doing the incredible to confirm his word.

• 2.1 As a nursing mother who feeds and cuddles her baby (v. 7): Paul's tenderness. Paul recalls the work and energy he spent to convince, to call each one personally. The conversion of a single person demands perseverance, weariness and struggles for the apostle.

All the Christians of Paul's time know that the mother Church in Jerusalem has been the first to suffer heavy persecution. For the Thessalonians, it was also an honor to have remained steadfast in the face of persecution.

Jn 5:41 as you know, nor did we try to earn money, as God knows. ⁶We did not try to make a name for ourselves among people, either with you or anybody else, although we were messengers of Christ and could have made our weight felt.

Gal 4:19 ⁷On the contrary, we were gentle with you, as a nursing mother who feeds and cuddles her baby. ⁸And so great is our concern that we are ready to give you, as well as the Gospel, even our very lives, for you have become very dear to us.

4:11; 2Thes 3:7 ⁹Remember our labor and toil; when we preached the Gospel, we worked day and night so as not to be a burden to you. ¹⁰You are witnesses with God that we were holy, just and blameless toward all of you who now believe. ¹¹We warned each of you as a father warns his children; ¹²we encouraged you and urged you to adopt a way of life worthy of God who calls you to share his own glory and kingdom.

Jn 14:10; Heb 4:12 ¹³This is why we never cease giving thanks to God for, on receiving our message, you accepted it, not as human teaching, but as the word of God. That is what it really is, and as such it is at work in you who believe.

Acts 17:23; Mt 23:32 • ¹⁴Brothers and sisters, you followed the example of the churches of God in Judea, churches of Christ

Jesus. For you suffered from your compatriots the same trials they suffered from the Jews, ¹⁵who killed the Lord Jesus and the prophets, and who persecute us. They displease God and harm all people ¹⁶when they prevent us from speaking to the pagans and trying to save them. By doing so they are heaping up their sins, but now Judgment is coming upon them.

¹⁷We are for a time deprived of your presence, but not in our heart, and we eagerly long to see you. ¹⁸For we have wanted to visit you, and I, Paul, more than once; but Satan prevented us. ¹⁹In fact, who but you are our hope and our joy? Who but you will be our glorious crown before Jesus, our Lord, when he returns? ²⁰Yes, indeed, you are our glory and our joy.

Paul's concern

3 • ¹As I could no longer bear it, I decided to go alone to Athens, ²and send you Timothy, our brother and co-worker of God in the Gospel of Christ. I wanted him to encourage you in the faith and strengthen you ³so that none of you might turn back because of the trials you are now enduring. You know that such is our destiny. ⁴I warned you of this when I was there: "We shall have to face persecution"; and so it was, as you

Gen 15:16;
Rom 1:18

Phil 2:16;
2Cor 1:14

Mt 10:24;
Heb 10:32

• 14. Some people will find Paul's words concerning the Jews harsh and exaggerated: It is obvious that verses 15-16 do not refer to all the Jews or to the Jewish people of future time. Paul means those Jews and Judeo-Christians who persecute him from city to city. The divine sentence condemning them has already been pronounced yet they reflect his experience, verified in Acts 15-28.

The anger that Paul mentions in verse 16, means a decision of divine justice that is preparing punishment. It does not concern the Jewish people as a whole or the Jewish people of the future, as some fundamentalists believe but rather, it deals with those Jews and Judeo-Christians who persecute Paul and constantly thwart his preaching to the pagans. The judgment of God is soon coming upon them.

• 3.1 May the Lord increase more and more your love for each other and for all people (v. 12). Love manifests itself first within the community and then it must be expanded to all people.

Note also Paul's constant preoccupation: his apostolic mission does not allow him to remain in any community. He is always moving, leaving his work unfinished, but he entrusts his have seen. ⁵Therefore I could not stand it any longer and sent Timothy to appraise your faith and see if the Tempter had tempted you and made our work useless.

Acts 14:22; 15:36

2Cor 7:13

⁶But now Timothy has just returned with good news of your faith and love. He told us that you remember us kindly and that you long to see us as much as we long to see you. ⁷What a consolation for us, brothers and sisters, in the midst of our troubles and trials, this faith of yours! ⁸It is a breath of life for us when you stand firm in the Lord. ⁹How can we thank God enough for all the joy that we feel before God because of you? ¹⁰Day and night we beg of him to let us see you again, that we may complete the instruction of the believers.

5:15; Gal 6:10

¹¹May God our Father and Jesus our Lord prepare the way for us to visit you. ¹²May the Lord increase more and more your love for each other and for all people, as he increases our love for you. ¹³May he strengthen you internally to be holy and blameless before God, our Father, on the day that Jesus, our Lord, will come with all his saints.

5:23; 1Cor 1:8; Zec 14:5

A call to a life of purity and work

1Cor 11:2

4 [•]For the rest, brothers, we ask you in the name of Jesus, the converts to the grace of God that does not suppress the freedom of the recent converts nor the work of the Tempter in the world.

You know that such is our destiny (v. 3). There is no church, nor Christian life, without trials and persecutions.

• 4.1 If we have given ourselves to Christ, that should surely make our life different from what we lived before. The Jews who accepted baptism had a solid moral basis in the laws of the Old Testament. On the other hand, the pagans had only the moral laws observed in their society. Chastity, among others, was completely foreign to them. They considered oc-

Lord, and we urge you to live in a way that pleases God, just as you have learned from us. This you do, but try to do still more. ²You know the instructions we gave you on behalf of the Lord Jesus: ³the will of God for you is to become holy and not to have unlawful sex.

Mt 6:10; Eph 1:4

⁴Let each of you behave towards his wife as a holy and respectful husband, ⁵rather than being led by lust, as are pagans who do not know God. ⁶In this matter, let no one offend or wrong a brother. The Lord will do justice in all these things, as we have warned and shown you. ⁷God has called us to live, not in impurity but in holiness, ⁸and those who do not heed this instruction disobey, not a human, but God himself who gives you his Holy Spirit.

1Cor 6:13

Dt 32:35

Jn 17:19

1Cor 6:10; Lk 10:16; Is 63:12

⁹Regarding mutual love, you do not need anyone to write to you, because God himself taught you how to love one another. ¹⁰You already practice it with all the brothers and sisters of Macedonia, but I invite you to do more. ¹¹Consider how important it is to live quietly without bothering others, to mind your own business, and work with your hands, as we have charged you. ¹²In obeying these rules you will win the respect of outsiders and be dependent on no one.

2Thes 3:6; Acts 18:3

casional sexual relationships a necessity of nature, having nothing to do with moral values.

Paul reacts strongly: The will of God for you is to become holy and not to have unlawful sex. Facing what humans consider demands of nature, are other demands due simply to the fact that God has called us and put us on the path to divinization (Paul says: sanctification). Paul will take up the same argument in other words in 1 Corinthians 6:12-20. Here in verses 4-8, Paul is certainly thinking of adultery and relationships with prostitutes. If he were living in our social context, he would surely include sexual freedom among youth.

Paul never ceases telling us we are free. He

Do not grieve as others doEph
2:12;
Col 1:27

•¹³ Brothers and sisters, we want you not to be mistaken about those who are already asleep, lest you grieve as do those who have no hope. ¹⁴We believe that Jesus died and rose; it will be the same for those who have died in Jesus. God will bring them together with Jesus and for his sake.

1Cor
15:51

¹⁵By the same word of the Lord we assert this: those of us who are to be alive at the Lord's coming will not go ahead of those who are already asleep. ¹⁶When the command by the

Mt 24:30;
Jn 5:28

passes over liturgical rules, customs proper to Jewish people—reminders of the past—all that kept believers in a religion of obedience to laws. He reaffirms fundamental moral rules that are valid at all times and in all places, especially when one has entered through the Gospel the age of spiritual maturity.

• 13. Lest you grieve as do those who have no hope. The Thessalonian community is made up of Christians who are all recent converts with little experience. For years they had accepted the fate of being born to die. Now, on the contrary, they awaken each day with the assurance of overcoming death: Christ will come soon and take them to the heavenly Kingdom. They are grieved nevertheless over their dead relatives whom Christ will not be able to save. This is what they thought because Greek culture had difficulties believing in a resurrection of the dead.

Those who are already asleep. Those who have died are not dead, but they are asleep, waiting for the time of the resurrection, the time of rising as new persons transformed by Christ: we will all be transformed. The word “cemetery” comes from a word meaning sleeping place.

God will bring them together with Jesus. Paul supposes that he and his readers will be alive when Christ returns and he describes the event according to the cultural expressions of the time. Let us not forget that up to the time of Galileo, everyone thought that heaven had its place in the universe, very high above and that God, although a spirit, was in some way present there.

We will be with the Lord forever. That is essential and always true even if it does not archangel's voice is given, the Lord himself will come down from heaven, while the divine trumpet call is sounding. Then those who have died in the Lord will rise first; ¹⁷as for us who are still alive, we will be brought along with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the celestial world. And we will be with the Lord forever.

Jn 17:24

¹⁸So, then comfort one another with these words.

You are citizens of the light

5 •¹ You do not need anyone to write to you about the delay and mean that Jesus will come on a beautiful cloud to the sound of heavenly trumpets. We already have some experience of the Lord's presence in our earthly life, but then there will be nothing but this presence and this joy.

Acts 1:7

This brief message of hope leaves obscure essential questions concerning the resurrection of the dead. Paul will fully deal with this subject later on in 1 Corinthians 15. There he will show that resurrection is first a transformation of our whole being through the energies flowing from the resurrected Christ.

Comfort one another. The way of celebrating funerals in the Church must comfort the dead person's relatives and strengthen their faith in the resurrection. There is no room for expressions of despair which Jesus himself scorned (see Mk 5:40): these are peculiar to people who consider the separation to be final. A funeral mass without any spectacular display, when the fervent prayer of the community is experienced, produces a great impact on people who are indifferent.

Paul then gives a warning he will repeat at the end of this letter (5:14): all should work. The community is disturbed by certain believers more inclined to attract attention with an enthusiastic show of faith rather than work; they discredit the Church in the eyes of pagans. Paul, the good Jew and Pharisee he was, could earn his own living by manual labor. He would not have understood how a believer could be without some qualification and unable to find an outlet, be it well or poorly considered and paid.

• 5.1 Christ comes at night and believers are people of the light. These words are rich in meaning. Those who follow their evil desires the appointed time for these events.

²You know that the Day of the Lord will come like a thief in the night.

³When people feel secure and at peace, the disaster will suddenly come upon them as the birth pangs of a woman in labor, and they will not escape.

⁴But you, beloved, are not in darkness; so that day will not surprise you like a thief. ⁵All of you are citizens of the light and the day; we do not belong to night and darkness.

⁶Let us not, therefore, sleep as others do, but remain alert and sober.

⁷Those who sleep, go to sleep at night, and those who drink, get drunk at night. ⁸Since we belong to the day, let us be sober, let us put on the breastplate of faith and love, and let the hope of salvation be our helmet. ⁹For God has not willed us to be condemned but to win salvation through Christ Jesus our Lord. ¹⁰He died for us so that we might enter into life with him, whether we are still awake or already asleep. ¹¹Therefore encourage one another and build up one another, as you are doing now.

¹²Brothers and sisters, I want you to be thankful to those who labor among you, who lead you in the way of the Lord and also reprimand you. ¹³Esteem them highly and love them for what they are doing. Live at peace among yourselves.

¹⁴We urge you to warn the idle, encourage those who feel discouraged, sustain the weak, have patience with everyone. ¹⁵See that no one repays evil for evil, but try to do good, whether among yourselves or towards others.

¹⁶Rejoice always, ¹⁷pray without ceasing ¹⁸and give thanks to God at every moment. This is the will of God, your vocation as Christians.

• ¹⁹Do not quench the Spirit, ²⁰do not despise the prophets' warnings.

Mt 24:36;
2P 3:10;
Rev 3:3

Jer 6:14;
Lk 21:36

Rom
13:12;
Eph 5:9

1P 1:13;
5:8

Is 59:17;
1Cor
13:13

Heb
13:17;
2Tim
5:17

Gal 6:6

Mt 5:44;
Rom
12:17

are people of darkness, hiding to do evil. While children of the light are beyond reproach, transparent before God and with nothing to hide from him. The unbeliever sleeps and is off-guard while the believer keeps watch and stays awake: he likes to pray all night long until dawn as if waiting for the day to welcome Christ. As for those who have died, they are not dead: they are only "asleep," ready to rise when the Lord comes.

Encourage one another and build up one another (v. 11). In this the Church is seen as the true community needed by believers so they can grow in faith and overcome trials. In every difficulty, the help of the community will be the proof that we are surrounded by the love of God and of Christ, as was said in the first line of the letter.

According to verse 12, after only three months of evangelization this community already had leaders in charge.

• 19. Do not quench the Spirit (v. 19). A community such as this with few traditions and written instructions, depended on the intervention of the Spirit. Among these Christians there were some gifted with the charism of prophets: they would receive their communications during the Eucharistic assemblies. That is why Paul asks to profit by these spiritual messages, but not without first examining them as he will remind them in 1 Corinthians 14. This is a delicate situation: the community is subject to the Spirit who speaks through the prophet, but it must—and its leaders must—judge if it is truly the Spirit of God speaking.

May you be completely blameless in spirit, soul and body (v. 23). Neither the Jews nor the majority of Greeks would have agreed with our definition of the human: body and soul. They spoke at the same time of the soul that gives life to the body and deals with material activities, and of the spirit that is capable of truth and justice.

Paul's way of speaking, like the great spiritual Christians, shares this conception. When Paul speaks of the deep life of believers, he does not use the word soul but spirit. We do not face God as we do in facing an interlocutor and look at each other from the exterior: to understand better our relationship with God, through the Spirit we must think of what unites beings who love each other and in some way live in one another.

²¹Put everything to the test and hold fast to what is good. ²²Avoid evil, wherever it may be.

²³May the God of Peace make you holy and bring you to perfection. May you be completely blameless, in spirit, soul and body, till the coming of Christ Jesus, our Lord; ²⁴he who called you is faithful and will do it.

1Cor 1:9

²⁵Brothers and sisters, pray for us.

²⁶Greet all the brothers and sisters with a holy kiss. ²⁷I order you in the name of the Lord that this letter be read to all of them.

²⁸May the grace of Christ Jesus our Lord be with you.

According to the Bible, God's Spirit can be omnipresent, insinuate itself, adapt itself, become our spirit without ceasing to be itself. Our spirit is not a part of ourselves, it is us, and it is at the same time our access to God. Our soul expresses itself in different ways, for example in dreams. We only discover our spirit in the measure of our experience of God. Only when we see God shall we truly know what and who we are.

The First Letter to the Thessalonians taught us the importance of looking forward to the coming of Christ in Paul's preaching.

The hope of the Day of Christ was a powerful incentive for the faith of the first Christians but it could also lead to an unhealthy nervousness. The church of Thessalonica appears to have suffered from a rather frequent illness among minorities and persecuted groups, namely, the expectation of the end of the world that will solve all the problems. For the time, this expectation only disturbs Christian life.

Is this letter authentic? There have been many doubts on the subject. Why was there a second letter, seemingly so close to the first? In fact, several paragraphs are almost the same as in the first letter to the Thessalonians. There is only one clear new point, in the middle of the letter and of great interest to the author, namely, the warning about the coming of the antichrist and the hour of judgment. Since this warning appears to correct the first letter in which there was an expectation of the imminent coming of the Lord, it was surmised that, in Paul's name, someone had wanted to add what Paul did not say before.

But what are these arguments worth even if we add to them some stylistic differences? What do we know about problems of communication, delays or about the way Paul dictated his letters? Some people claim that it was common to write a book under the name of a master or of someone whose ideas one wanted to interpret. This is true in the area of philosophical treatises but when we are dealing with a letter and with personal recollections, it is an entirely different situation. You will observe that in 2 Thessalonians 2:2, Paul issues a warning against letters that could be attributed to him and at the end of the letter in 3:17, he gives an example of his own handwriting. If it were the letter of an imitator, shouldn't we speak of a pure and simple lie? Since from the beginning, it was accepted as a letter of Paul and an inspired book, shouldn't we attribute these lies to the Holy Spirit? We cannot suspect the first Christians of having been overly naive and in the context of the Church of that time with so many personal contacts among the communities, it is hard to see how a forger could have succeeded in having his own work taken to be a letter of Paul.

This being the case, the letter fills a small gap in revelation as a whole. It serves to invite us not to let ourselves be impressed by rumors of revelations, tragedies and the end of the world as it has happened throughout history.

¹Thes 1:1 1 • ¹From Paul, Sylvanus and Timothy, to the church of the Thessalonians which is in God our Father and in Christ Jesus, the Lord.

²May grace and peace be yours from God the Father and Christ Jesus, the Lord.

¹Thes 3:6 ³Brothers and sisters, we should give thanks to God at all times for you. It is fitting to do so, for your faith is growing and your love for one another increasing. ⁴We take pride in you among the churches of God because of your endurance and your faith in the midst of persecution and sufferings. ⁵In this the just judgment of God may be seen; for you must show yourselves worthy of the kingdom of God for which you are now suffering.

The judgment and the coming of Christ

• ⁶Indeed, it is just that God repays with affliction those who persecute you, ⁷but to you who suffer, he will grant rest with us when the Lord Jesus will be shown in his Glory, coming from heaven and surrounded by his court of angels. ⁸*Then with flaming fire will be punished those who do not recognize God* and do not obey the Gospel of Jesus, our Lord.

⁹They will be sent to eternal damnation far away from the face of the Lord and his mighty glory. ¹⁰On that day the Lord will be glorified in the midst of his saints, and reveal his wonders through those who believe in him, that is through you who have received our testimony.

¹¹This is why we constantly pray for you; may our God make you worthy of his calling. May he, by his power, fulfill your good purposes and your work prompted by faith. ¹²In that way, the name of Jesus our Lord will be glorified through you, and you through him, according to the loving plan of God and of Christ Jesus the Lord.

2 • ¹Brothers and sisters, let us speak about the coming of Christ Jesus, our Lord, and our gathering to meet him. ²Do not be easily unset-

• 1.1 We again encounter the same ideas we have explained in 1 Thessalonians. A persecuted community. The basis of Christian life: faith, hope (or endurance), love. The day of Christ.

• 6. When the apostles preached to the pagans, they insisted on the judgment of God (Rom 1:18; Acts 17:31). In fact, these pagans never thought they would be judged at the end of their lives. For almost a century there has been a tendency among us Christians not to mention judgment in reaction to several centuries when it was over emphasized and with it the fear of punishment. Actually, the evangelization of modern pagans, in whom conscience has not even been awakened in the family, demands that it be spoken of as in Paul's time.

To know that good and evil exist, that life prepares for definitive salvation (or the loss of it) and that God will judge us is an essential basis for Christian life. It is precisely from this truth that many turn away, saying for example that God is all-love, or imagining successive existences where we can catch up for our mistakes.

Indeed it is just that God repays with affliction. Let us not forget that the letters to the Thessalonians are the earliest of Paul's letters. Even if it was his duty to remind them of the judgment, as did the prophets, and Jesus himself—certainly he had not yet totally purified his thirst for justice of every trace of violence. This violence against the wicked has been (and still is in many religions) a support for faith, but Jesus has invited us to get rid of it (Mt 13:29).

Coming from heaven... he will do justice. In the early years of the apostles, it was believed that the Day of the Lord would soon come and judgment (the Last Judgment) would inaugurate the reign of God the Father (1 Cor 15:24). We now suppose—perhaps mistakenly—that it is not imminent, and we prefer to think of judgment as coming at the death of each one: individual judgment.

• 2.1 Do not be alarmed. What happens in Thessalonica is what frequently occurs in a

Is 66:15;
Rom 1:5

Is 2:10

Is 66:5;
Jn 17:22

1Cor
15:23;
1Thes
4:15

Mt 24:31

tled. Do not be alarmed by what a prophet says or by any report, or by some letter said to be ours, saying the day of the Lord is at hand.

Rev 13;
Dn 11:36

³Do not let yourselves be deceived in any way. Apostasy must come first, when the man of Sin will appear, ⁴that instrument of evil who opposes and defiles whatever is considered divine and holy, even to the point of sitting in the temple of God and claiming to be God.

⁵Do you not remember I spoke of it when I was still with you? ⁶But you also know what prevents him from appearing until his due time. ⁷The mystery of sin is already at work, but the one who restrains it at present has to be taken away. ⁸Then the wicked one will appear, whom the

Is 11:4;
Ps 33:6

Lord is to sweep away with the breath of his mouth and destroy in the splendor of his coming. ⁹This lawless one will appear with the power of Satan, performing miracles and wonderful signs at the service of deception. ¹⁰All the deceits of evil will then be used for the ruin of those who refused to love truth and be saved. ¹¹This is why God will send them the power of delusion, that they may believe what is false. ¹²So all those who chose wickedness instead of believing the truth will be condemned.

Mt 24:24

1K
22:22;
Is 6:10;
2Cor
2:16

Jn 3:19;
9:39

Persevere in faith

- ¹³But we have to give thanks for you at all times, dear brothers and sisters in the Lord. For God chose persecuted community: people tend to withdraw from real life. There are rumors that the Lord's coming is imminent and hope verges on hysteria. This is why Paul reminds them of certain truths, some of which are not new, for the Old Testament had more than once spoken of crises that would precede the Judgment. We cannot take as literally true all that the prophets have said on this subject, for they spoke with images proper to their time. They did agree in announcing difficult times for believers and almost a triumph, to begin with, for God's enemies. Jesus did not disagree.

The apostasy must come first. Before Christ's return, there must be a "general apostasy," or a worldwide religious crisis. An "antichrist" must come. It is true that there are antichrists in all times (see 1 Jn 2:18). Yet, at the end, there will be a more typical antichrist than all the previous ones. Christ will return in glory at the time the Church seems crushed.

You know what prevents him (v. 6). For us, this phrase is obscure. For Paul the apostasy is that of the nations already converted to the Gospel and the force of evil was already at work within them (v. 7). It is probable that Paul follows the thinking of the "apocalyptic" authors (some of their works are part of the Bible, among others Ezk 38–39 and Dn 2–10). Everything happens at the time fixed by God and every person in history lasts the time needed to carry out the good and the evil that he has within himself.

Therefore, there cannot be apostasy or antichrist as long as two preceding events have not taken place: the Gospel has to be proclaimed to all the nations (Mk 13:10), and judgment passed on the Jewish nation. The fact that these events have not been realized, especially the second (1 Thes 2:16), is perhaps for Paul the reason why the coming of the antichrist is not imminent.

Paul had no idea that the time of the nations mentioned in Luke (21:24) would last for so many centuries; for him, it was a matter of years. Let us keep in mind his way of foreseeing the end of the world. All that is in human history must mature; history will end with a last adventure inspired by diabolical pride; faith or the rejection of the Gospel will be at the heart of the worldwide confrontation.

God will send them the power of delusion. Once again we have the Hebrew turn of phrase that should be translated: God will allow the forces of deceit to act. The same people who do not take into account decisive arguments in favor of the faith, later follow doctrines and opinions without foundation.

Paul invites the Church, as he did in 1 Thessalonians, to follow his instructions and rules. He is more severe in insisting that they have an obligation to work: if everybody works, their faith will be more peaceful.

- 13. Note the word traditions used by Paul. The traditions are the customs, rites and you from the beginning to be saved through true faith and to be made holy by the Spirit. ¹⁴To this end he called you through the gospel we preach, for he willed you to share the glory of Christ Jesus our Lord.

¹⁵Because of that, brothers and sisters, stand firm and hold to the traditions that we taught you by word or by letter. ¹⁶May Christ Jesus our Lord who has loved us, may God our Father, who in his mercy gives us everlasting comfort and true hope, strengthen you. ¹⁷May he encourage your hearts and make you steadfast in every good work and word.

^{Mt 6:13} 3 ¹Finally, brothers and sisters, pray for us that the Word of God may spread rapidly and be glorified everywhere as it was with you. ²May God guard us from wicked and evil people, since not everyone has faith. ^{Mt 6:13} ³The Lord is faithful; he will strengthen you and keep you safe from the Evil One. ⁴Besides, we have in the Lord this confidence that you are doing and will continue to do what we order you. ⁵May the Lord direct your hearts to the love of God and to the steadfastness of Christ.

Let everyone work

⁶We command you, beloved, to stay away from believers who are living in idleness contrary to the traditions we passed on to you. ⁷You know how you ought to follow our example: we worked while we were with you. ⁸Day and night we labored and toiled so as not to be a burden to any of you. ⁹We had the right to act otherwise, but we wanted to give you an example.

¹⁰Besides, while we were with you, we said clearly: If anyone is not willing to work, neither should that one eat. ¹¹However we heard that some among you live in idleness—busybodies, doing no work. ¹²In the name of Christ Jesus our Lord we command these people to work and earn their own living. ¹³And you, brothers and sisters, do not weary in doing what is right.

¹⁴If someone does not obey our instruction in this letter, take note and do not have anything to do with him, so that he may be ashamed.

¹⁵However, do not treat him as an enemy, but warn him as a brother.

¹⁶May the Lord of peace give you his peace at all times and in every way. May the Lord be with you all.

¹⁷I, Paul, write this greeting with my own hand. This is my signature in all my letters. This is how I write.

¹⁸May the grace of Christ Jesus our Lord be with you.

1Thes
2:9;
4:11
Mt 10:10

1Cor 5:9

Mt 18:15

teachings that people pass down from one generation to another. They are also the usages and lifestyles which are adopted upon joining a community. Jesus condemned the exaggerated importance the Pharisees gave to their own traditions, to the point that they prevailed over God's commandments (see Mk

7:5). Yet Jesus himself, while he was with his apostles, taught them a certain way of praying, of doing, and of living in fellowship. It is in this sense that Paul here speaks of traditions: see Traditions and Tradition in the commentary on Mark 7:1.

Pastoral Letters to Timothy and Titus

It is impossible to present Paul's letters to Timothy and Titus, the so-called Pastoral letters, without dealing first with their authenticity. For over a century, many specialists have deemed it proven that they were not Paul's but that they were written after the death of the apostles Peter and Paul, under the cover of their authority, to deal with the problems of a new generation of Christians.

However, all the hypotheses attributing these letters to a disciple of Paul writing long after him also raise serious objections. We will more readily accept their authenticity if we notice that they contain many medical terms which lead us to discern the collaboration of Luke, the physician (Col 4:14). Luke was with Paul when he wrote the second letter to Timothy (4:11). On the other hand, these letters are not only meant for Paul's assistants. They could be a type of circular letter that Paul wrote upon their request in order to help them to structure and to discipline the communities.

These three letters are addressed to pastors of souls, more precisely to two close collaborators of Paul and this is why, as a whole, they are called Pastoral Epistles. Like Paul, his delegates Timothy and Titus were like itinerant ministers. Although they did not enjoy the title of apostles (they were more like evangelists: 2 Tim 4:5; Acts 21:8 and Eph 4:11), they had authority over the local churches and they were particularly interested in the guidelines concerning the choice and responsibilities of their ministers or pastors.

So the organization of the Church is based on two types of ministries. The first, with Timothy and Titus as examples, extends the mission of the apostles and it enjoys apostolic authority. The others remain involved with the community that presented them to exercise their responsibilities (see Acts 6:1-5 and 1 Tim 5:22). Whether they are called episcopos (overseers), presbyters (elders) or deacons (in charge of serving), these ministers who perform a special role for the proclamation of the Word and the Eucharist, continue to belong to their families and the community.

We will have to strive to understand this complementarity, considering the evolution of the Latin Church. Within a few centuries, it unified these very different ministries within the framework of a hierarchized clergy. See the commentaries on Numbers 4:1 and Hebrews 9:1 on this topic.

The choice of the people responsible for the churches was not the only objective of these letters. They provide guidelines for the life of Christian communities as they no longer expect an imminent return of Christ and they have to learn how to persevere. They also insist on fidelity to the tradition of the apostles. For the Greeks, the Christian message was just as difficult to accept, as it was for the Jews, and even people of good will heard the message (and distorted it), just as we do, through their own way of thinking. Some wanted to do better than the apostles, to choose what fit or did not fit the perspectives of their own culture. In the end, some people were taking the liberty of teaching their own doctrine. People are quick to replace the imitation of Christ by eloquent speeches!

Therefore, the successors of the apostles had to defend the doctrine—this term comes up more than once—that they had received and Paul reminds them that the cult of the Word of God goes hand in hand with the fidelity to the message received from the apostles.

1 From Paul, apostle of Christ Jesus by a command of God our Savior and of Christ Jesus our hope, ²to Timothy, my true son in the faith.

Acts
16:1;
Tit 1:4

May God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord give you grace, mercy and peace.

False teachers

³When I left for Macedonia I urged you to remain in Ephesus to warn certain persons not to teach false doctrine ⁴or to concern themselves with fables and endless genealogies. These give rise to discussions rather than promoting a better service of God through faith. ⁵The aim of our warning is love which comes from a pure mind, a good conscience and sincere faith.

Tit 1:14;
3:9

⁶Some have turned away from such a motivation and have strayed into useless discussions. ⁷They claim to be teachers of the Law when, in fact, they understand neither what they say nor the things they speak about.

Rom
1:20

⁸We know that the Law is good, as long as it serves its purpose. ⁹The Law is not for the righteous, but for the lawless and for the wicked and sinful, for those who do not respect God and religion, for those who kill their parents, for murderers, ¹⁰for those who indulge in unlawful sex and homosexuality, for kidnappers

1Cor 6:9;
Gal 5:23

and exploiters, for liars and perjurers and for all that is contrary to sound doctrine, ¹¹to the Gospel of the God of glory and happiness, which was entrusted to me.

2Cor 4:4

¹²I give thanks to Christ Jesus, our Lord, who is my strength, who has considered me trustworthy and appointed me to his service, ¹³although I had been a blasphemer, a persecutor and a rabid enemy. However he took mercy on me because I did not know what I was doing when I opposed the faith; ¹⁴and the grace of our Lord was more than abundant, together with faith and love that are in Christ Jesus.

Acts
9:15;
Gal 1:15

Rom
5:20;
1Cor
15:10

¹⁵This saying is true and worthy of belief: Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am the first. ¹⁶Because of that I was forgiven; Christ Jesus wanted to display his utmost patience so that I might be an example for all who are to believe and obtain eternal life. ¹⁷To the King of ages, the only God who lives beyond every perishable and visible creation—to him be honor and glory forever. Amen!

Lk 15:2;
19:10

6:16;
Rom
16:27

¹⁸Timothy, my son, I command you to fight the good fight, fulfilling the prophetic words pronounced over you. ¹⁹Hold onto faith and a good conscience, unlike those who, ignoring conscience, have finally wrecked their faith. ²⁰Among them are Hymeneus and Alexander whom

2Tim 4:7

2Tim
2:17;
1Cor 5:5

• 1.3 In this first chapter we have a mixture of various topics: it practically repeats what Paul said in other letters where the commentaries have already been given.

We will note only what refers to false prophets. Since the apostles who had seen Christ were dead, some people forgot that all of faith is based on what Christ taught. Instead of reading and actually living the Gospel, certain people began to discuss and work out religious theories. See Introduction to Colossians.

The aim of our warning is love which comes from a pure mind (v. 5). Timothy must be firm in eliminating these discussions that weaken the Church and prevent development of the love that saves people. Even bloody wars came out of sterile religious arguments. The center of the paragraph is doubtless verse 15: Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners. The new masters remain with their theories instead of facing the reality of sin. It is the reality of our sin that makes the grace of God a grace, and our salvation a true salvation.

I have delivered to Satan to be taught not to blaspheme.

2 • ¹First of all I urge that petitions, prayers, intercessions and thanksgiving be made for everyone, ²for rulers of states and all in authority, that we may enjoy a quiet and peaceful life in godliness and respect. ³This is good and pleases God. ⁴For he wants all to be saved and come to the knowledge of truth. ⁵As there is one God, there is one mediator between God and human-kind, Christ Jesus, himself human, ⁶who gave his life for the redemption of all. This is the testimony, given in its proper time, ⁷and of this, God has made me apostle and herald. I am not lying, I am telling the truth: He made me teacher of the nations regarding faith and truth.

⁸I want the men in every place to lift pure hands in prayer to heaven without anger and dissension.

⁹Let women dress with simplicity and modesty, not adorned with fancy hairstyles, gold, jewels and expensive clothes, ¹⁰but with good works, as is fitting for women serving God.

¹¹Let a woman quietly receive instruction and be submissive. ¹²I allow no woman to teach or to have authority over men. Let them be quiet.

¹³For Adam was created first and then Eve. ¹⁴Adam was not deceived; it was the woman who was deceived and fell into sin. ¹⁵But she will be

Eph 3:1

1P 3:2

1Cor
14:34Gen 2:18;
1Cor 11:8

Gen 3:6

Rom
13:1;
Tit 3:1Rom
3:29;
2P 3:9;
Jn 17:3Mt 20:28;
Is 53:11;
Gal 4:4Heb
9:15;
Gal 2:7;

• 2.1 Heading the rules for every category of believers, we find rules for the community assemblies with two outstanding points:

- praying for rulers;
- the behavior of women in church.

I urge that petitions be made (v. 1). Paul wants Christians to be in solidarity with their compatriots, loyal toward their nation and praying for them. In spite of its sins and superstitions, the pagan world was religious. Religion accompanied their every action. This explains why, some years later, Christians were persecuted as rebels and traitors because they did not worship the emperor, nor his gods. Perhaps this insistence on prayer for rulers is due to the fact that the paragraph was written when there already was some suspicion about Christians: it was necessary to remove these suspicions.

Faithfulness to Christ does not prevent loyalty to the nation unless the nation becomes an idol, and this happens when, in the name of the nation, people are asked to obey its rulers blindly. We cannot give up criticizing their errors, nor stop considering as our brothers and sisters those who do not agree with us.

We should pray for rulers. Does that mean that we cannot look for more honest and better rulers? Of course, we can: see Romans 13.

Verses 9-14 concern women, and to understand why the letter is so strict, we must recall that there was a lot of talk about freedom in the Church, and there were abuses.

On the other hand, we always have a hard time accepting the demands of the Gospel when society teaches us something different. Jesus' attitude regarding women was revolutionary and liberating, and at the beginning, the Church followed his example (see 1 Cor 7). Before long, they went back to the usual way of giving a very limited place in society to women and that applied also in their religious assemblies.

In the whole history of the Church there was a great respect for the dignity of women and there were many initiatives favoring them; yet there were few periods when women enjoyed equality with men. In many places women were more emancipated during the Middle Ages than closer to our times, in the 19th century. Likewise, in urban societies dealing with business, in the world and in the Church, women occupied a place very different from that granted them in more closed societies.

In fact, the Church alone does not change the world and society until people have learned to know the human reality better.

This passage, reminding us of 1 Corinthians 11:1-10 and 14:34, opposes women's emancipation with the same biblical arguments commonly used by the Jewish masters.

God wants all to be saved. Paul repeats in his own way the passage from the last words of Jesus in Matthew's Gospel: the Gospel must be preached to everyone, to all the nations. Perhaps only a minority will believe but this evangelization is necessary so that all humanity may reach the goal fixed by God.

saved through motherhood, provided that her life be orderly and holy, in faith and love.

Regarding overseers and deacons

Tit 1:6

3:12;
Tit 2:6;
2Tim
2:24

3 ¹If someone aspires to the overseer's ministry, he is without a doubt looking for a noble task. ²It is necessary that the overseer (or bishop) be beyond reproach, the husband of one wife, responsible, judicious, of good manners, hospitable and skillful in teaching. ³He must not be addicted to wine or quarrelsome, but gentle and peaceful, and not a lover of money, ⁴but a man whose household is well-managed, with obedient and well-mannered children. ⁵If he cannot govern his own house, how can he lead the assembly of God?

⁶He must not be a recent convert, lest he become conceited and fall into the same condemnation as the devil. ⁷Moreover he must enjoy a good reputation among the outsiders, lest people speak evil about him and he fall into the snare of the devil.

Phil 1:1

⁸Deacons, likewise, must be serious and sincere and moderate in drinking wine, not greedy for money, ⁹they must keep the mystery of faith with a clear conscience. ¹⁰Let them be first tried and, if found blameless, be accepted as deacons. ¹¹In the same way the women must be conscientious, not given to gossip, but reserved and trustworthy.

Tit 2:3

¹²A deacon must be husband of one wife, and must know how to guide his children and manage his household. ¹³Those who serve well as deacons will win honorable rank, with authority to speak of Christian faith.

¹⁴I give you these instructions, although I hope I will see you soon. ¹⁵If I delay, you will know how you ought to conduct yourself in the household of God, that is, the Church of the living God, which is the pillar and foundation of the truth. ¹⁶How great indeed is the mystery of divine blessing!

Eph 2:19

*He was shown in the flesh and sanctified by the Spirit; presented to the angels
and proclaimed to all nations.
The world believed in him:
He was taken up in glory!*

Jn 1:14;
16:10;
Rom 1:4;
1P 1:12;
Mk 16:19;
Acts 1:9

4 ¹The Spirit tells us clearly that in the last days some will defect from the faith and follow deceitful

Mt 24:23;
Acts
20:29

• 3.1 Here Paul deals with leaders, bishops and deacons (see commentary on Tit 1:6 and Phil 1:1).

• 14. This short paragraph reminds us that, if indeed we are in charge of the Church of God, we are neither its founders nor its masters. The Church was born through a merciful intervention of God, when he decided that his Son should identify with the human race, as is expressed in this short poem.

Here we use divine blessing (v. 16) for a word that we translated elsewhere as "piety" or "religion" (see 2:2; 4:7; 6:3; 5, 6; 2 Tim 3:5 and Tit 1:1). In those years, the word was mostly used to mean a loving attitude toward the Father and neighbors, characteristic of true believers who simply imitate God's example.

The Church is the pillar and foundation of the truth. We must understand this phrase as referring to the concepts of that time: from above, from a world in which everything is truth, God lowers his Truth to the earth, as a column or a visible sign on which we can lean. In spite of all the infidelities of the Church, God uses it to preserve true knowledge of the Father, the Son and the Spirit in the world. Without this knowledge, people cannot be free, nor can humanity reach its maturity.

• 4.1 After the death of the apostles, new masters who tamper with the faith appear in the Church.

Rom
16:25

2Tim 3:1; 1Jn 2:18 spirits and devilish doctrines, ²led by lying hypocrites whose conscience has been branded with the stamp of infamy.

Col 2:16 ³These persons forbid marriage and condemn the use of certain foods which God created for those who know the truth, and which the believers receive with thanksgiving. ⁴Everything created by God is good, and all food is lawful; nothing is to be rejected if we receive it with thanksgiving, ⁵for it is blessed with the word of God and prayer, and made holy.

Gen 1:31;
1Cor
10:31;
Rom
14:14;
Mt 15:11

⁶If you explain these things to the brothers and sisters, you will prove to be a good servant of Christ Jesus, nourished by the teachings of faith and the sound doctrine that you have followed. ⁷Reject irreligious fables and old wives' tales. Train yourself in godliness. ⁸Physical training is of limited value; godliness, instead, is useful in every way, holding promise for the present life and for the life to come. ⁹Here you have a sure doctrine you can trust. ¹⁰We toil and endure because we trust in the living God, the Savior of all, especially of those who believe.

2Tim
2:16

2:3

Advice to Timothy

[•] ¹¹Command and teach these things. ¹²Let no one reproach you on account of your youth. Be a model to the believers in the way you speak and act, in your love, your faith and purity of life. ¹³Devote yourself to

Tit 2:7

One of the numerous errors of these people is to despise all that comes from the body: they condemn marriage, forbid meat and wine. Concerning marriage, see the Introduction to Colossians. For those who said matter comes from evil powers whereas souls come from God who is good, having children was to imprison in an evil body souls which later would have to be saved. This is why they condemned, not sexual relations but marriage and procreation. In this contempt of the body and of a nature created by God, there is nothing Christian (see Col 2:23).

In the last days (v. 1): these are the days beginning with Jesus' resurrection and stretching to his second coming (Heb 1:2; James 5:3).

The Spirit tells us clearly. The prophets of the Church often predicted that people would come to preach their own theories, and not authentic faith.

The believers receive with thanksgiving. From the beginning, it was the custom in Christian families to give thanks to God at the family meal.

Train yourself in godliness (v. 7). Here we have another danger. Contrary to teachers who despise life and want us to live as strange characters, there are others who are totally absorbed in external things. In the Greco-Roman world there was much enthusiasm for sports and races. Without despising the body we are asked to check if we give each part the importance it deserves and the time corresponding to it.

[•] 11. Faced with all these false teachers, Timothy must be an example of a true apostle.

Let no one reproach you on account of your youth. Usually, in the Christian communities and in the Jewish ones, the leaders were older men. This is why they were called "elders" or "presbyters" (which means the same thing). Timothy, who is visiting the church on behalf of Paul, has authority over these elders, even though he is much younger than they are. The example of his sincere faith and profound knowledge of the Bible will be his strength.

Do not neglect the spiritual gift (v. 14). If someone was named to a ministry or an official position in the church, this was considered as a spiritual gift: for example, presbyters, deacons, bishops, prophets. While other gifts, such as healing the sick, came directly from the Holy Spirit, ministries were received through a laying on of hands. An apostle or a prophet would lay his hands on the candidate to transfer to him the authority that he had received in a similar way. Thus, in the Church, every leader receives his authority from Christ through a succession of people going back to the apostles.

On this occasion the prophets present would also address the candidate with exhortations and warnings (see 1:18).

Devote yourself to reading, preaching and teaching until I come. This counsel is always valid. To be steadfast in reading and study is what costs most in the majority of liberal pro-reading, preaching and teaching, until I come.

Rev 3:1

2Tim 1:6

¹⁴Do not neglect the spiritual gift conferred on you with prophetic words when the elders laid their hands upon you. ¹⁵Think about it and practice it so that your progress may be seen by all. ¹⁶Take heed of yourself and attend to your teaching. Be steadfast in doing this and you will save both yourself and your hearers.

The widows in the Church

Lev 19:32

5 ¹Do not rebuke an older man; on the contrary, advise him as if he were your father. Treat the young as your brothers, ²the elder women as mothers and the young girls as your sisters, with great purity.

³Take care of widows who are really widows. ⁴If a widow has children or grandchildren, they should first learn their family duties and give their parents financial help. This is correct and pleases God.

Lk 2:37

⁵A true widow is one who, in being left alone, has set her hope in God, praying day and night to God and asking him for help. ⁶On the contrary, a widow who lives for pleasure is dead even while she lives. ⁷Warn them about this that they may be blameless. ⁸Those who do not take care of their own, especially those of their household, have denied the faith and are worse than unbelievers.

⁹Let no one be put on the list of widows unless she is sixty years old and has been married only once. ¹⁰She must be commended for her good works and the education of her children. Has she offered hospitality to, washed the feet of the saints, helped the suffering and practiced other good deeds?

Jn 13:14; Heb 13:2

¹¹Do not accept younger widows; they may have other desires than for Christ and want to marry; ¹²then they deserve condemnation for breaking their first commitment. ¹³Besides they form the habit of being idle, going from house to house. And it is not just idleness! They become gossips and busybodies, saying what they should not.

2Thes 3:11

¹⁴So I want young widows to marry and have children, to rule their

Tit 2:8

fessions. Very few people are courageous enough to persevere in study once they have passed their examinations. This is so, even in the Church. The “pastors,” clergy and lay, are constantly tempted in thinking such and such an activity is pastorally useful, that leisure is “relaxing” even at the cost of postponing study and meditation on the Word. The Church is always lacking people able to express their faith creatively—a gift that springs from spiritual knowledge and habitual contact with the Word of God: smiles, goodwill and psychology cannot replace this charism.

• 5.1 From the beginning, women had their own unique role in the Church. Some of them, called widows occupied an official position.

Paul sees three kinds of widows: some did not need help from the Church because they had relatives; others did need Church assistance. Finally, there were some, with or without the help of the Church, who were in charge of certain functions.

They deserve condemnation... (v. 12). This means that by leaving her position and marrying, the “widow” of the third category broke a commitment she had made publicly. The “widows” were dedicated to the service of Christ in the same way as religious women of today.

A true widow is she who has set her hope on God. We should read what Paul says in 1 Corinthians 7 concerning the greater freedom celibates have to serve the Lord. Every baptized person is called to belong totally to Christ. If, through circumstances of life, we are alone again and free from family responsibilities, this may be an invitation from God to dedicate ourselves completely to the service of the Church and to constant prayer.

If today retired Christians looked into their lives in the light of God’s presence, the Church would have more leaders and missionaries than are necessary.

household and give adversaries no grounds for criticism. ¹⁵Some have already strayed to follow Satan. ¹⁶If any Christian woman has widows in her family, let her assist them; in this way the church will not be burdened and may assist those who are truly widows.

Regarding the presbyters

• ¹⁷Let the elders who preside well receive double compensation, especially those who labor in preaching and teaching. ¹⁸Scripture says: Do not muzzle the ox while it threshes grain, and: The worker deserves his wages.

¹⁹Do not accept accusations against an elder except on the evidence of two or three witnesses. ²⁰If he continues to sin, rebuke him in the presence of the community, as a warning to the rest.

²¹I urge you, in the presence of God and Christ Jesus and of the holy angels, to obey these rules with impartiality, without making distinctions. ²²Do not be hasty in the laying on of hands, thus becoming an accomplice in the sins of others. Keep yourself free from blame. ²⁴The sins of some people are plain to see, even before they are examined; the sins of others are known only later on. ²⁵Likewise good deeds are conspicuous; even when they are not, they cannot remain hidden.

²³(Do not drink only water but take

¹Thess
5:12

Dt 25:4;
1Cor 9:9;
Lk 10:7

Dt 17:6;
2Cor
13:1;
Mt 18:16

2Tim 1:6

Mt 5:16;
10:26

• 17. Paul speaks again of the elders or “presbyters” who are in charge of the local community. Paul wants the community to help its leaders spiritually and financially.

We have already noted that the elders who were in charge of the community and who presided at the Eucharist were chosen from the most esteemed believers. This paragraph shows that the primary service expected from them was the preaching of the Word.

They deserve double compensation. It is rather astonishing to see that in many parishes the council consists of more lay people competent in social or material matters than persons of the Word, learned or prophetic, capable of giving life to the community.

They must fulfill their duties. Rebuke him in the presence of the community as a warning to the rest: the first Christians were no angels. Sometimes their enthusiastic and sincere faith needed strong discipline in order for them to remain faithful to their commitments. Besides when have leaders of communities not caused problems?

In verse 18 note the quotation of the Gospel: “the worker deserves his wages” (Lk 10:7). This passage shows us that when this letter was written, towards the year 90, the Gospels were already considered “Scripture.”

At the beginning and end of the chapter, the author insists on faithfulness to tradition. Faith is not a doctrine that can be adapted to one’s tastes. Leaders are required to have a respectful and humble attitude towards this treasure entrusted to them to be transmitted to others. We can already see two faults:

– instead of deepening faith, some multiply words;

– some replace surrender to God’s Word with a critical attitude that attempts to judge faith and decide if it agrees with their own ideas.

Money is mentioned twice (6:10 and 6:17-19). After the first years of enthusiastic faith, the Church finds that, even for believers, everything is lost when love for money persists. That is the drama in certain countries where solid Christian groups have been caught up with the best of society in the pursuit of money: faith continues to be important for them but this faith only motivates fidelity to religious practice. Money that has become our security lessens our trust in God (6:10) and isolates us from others.

The pastors of the Church should be the most aware of the danger (6:11). Salvation for them will be to place themselves in the less secure areas of life and society, where an act of faith is constantly necessary to overcome difficulties and joyously accept sacrifices (v. 12). It is not in seeking first of all our personal fulfillment that we become God’s agent and a witness of Christ, as he himself has been the witness of the Father (6:13).

Paul calls upon Timothy to avoid all those dangers and remain true to faith and free from greed. By doing so, he will be “a man of God,” a witness of Christ.

a little wine to help your digestion, because of your frequent illness.)

6¹Let those who are slaves always show respect to their masters, so that no one may speak ill of God and his teaching. ²Those whose masters are Christians should not show less respect under the pretext that they are members of the church. On the contrary, they must give a better service since they are doing good works on behalf of believers and dear friends.

Love of money

Teach and stress these things.

³Whoever teaches in some other way, not following the sound teaching of our Lord Christ Jesus and true religious instruction, ⁴is conceited and understands nothing. This one is crazy about controversies and discussions that result in envy, insults, ⁵blows and constant arguments between people of depraved minds and far from the truth. For them, religion is merely for financial gain.

⁶In reality, religion is a treasure if we are content with what we have.

⁷We brought nothing into the world and we will leave it with nothing. ⁸Let us then be content with having food and clothing. ⁹Those who strive to be rich fall into temptations and traps. A lot of foolish and harmful ambitions plunge them into ruin and destruction. ¹⁰Indeed, the love of money is the root of every evil. Because of this greed, some have wandered away from the faith, bringing on themselves afflictions of every kind.

¹¹But you, man of God, shun all this. Strive to be holy and godly. Live in faith and love, with endurance and gentleness. ¹²Fight the good fight of faith and win everlasting life to which you were called when you made the good profession of faith in the presence of so many witnesses.

¹³Now, in the presence of God who gives life to all things, and of Jesus Christ who expressed before Pontius Pilate the authentic profession of faith: ¹⁴preserve the revealed message to all. Keep yourself pure and blameless until the glorious coming of Christ Jesus, our Lord, ¹⁵which God will bring about at the proper time, he, the magnificent sovereign, King of kings and Lord of lords. ¹⁶To him, alone immortal, who lives in unapproachable light and whom no one has ever seen or can see, to him be honor and power for ever and ever. Amen!

¹⁷Command the rich of this world not to be arrogant or to put their trust in the uncertainty of wealth. Let them rather trust in God who generously gives us all we need for our happiness. ¹⁸Let them do good, be rich in good deeds and be generous; let them share with others. ¹⁹In this way, they shall heap up a sound capital for the future and gain true life.

²⁰Timothy, guard what has been entrusted to you; avoid useless and profane words, as well as discussions arising from false knowledge. ²¹Some have lost the faith in accepting such knowledge.

The grace of God be with you all.

1Cor
7:21;
Col 3:22;
Tit 2:9;
Rom
2:24

Gal 1:8;
2Tim
1:13

Phil 4:11

Heb 3:5;
Ecl 5:14

Jn 18:36

Dt 10:17;
Ps 136:3;
Rev
17:14

33:20;
Jn 1:18

Lk 12:16

Mt 6:20

2Tim
2:18

Read the introduction to the first letter to Timothy.

While the first letter to Timothy showed us that Paul was still free to move about, he wrote this letter from one of his prisons. Which one? One of Paul's remarks about the Christians who assisted him (2 Tim 1:17) seems to suggest Rome. That would be around 61–63, or even later, during Paul's second captivity in Rome shortly before he was condemned to death. However, this traditional interpretation was based on a bad translation of this passage. The themes of this letter show that it must have been written from Caesarea where Paul was detained before governor Felix (Acts 24). The letter would have come only a few months after the first one.

Paul speaks about his being a prisoner, a new situation that threatens to be ongoing. Then he focuses his attention on the place of failure and suffering within God's plan. Apparent failure of many Christian lives after a conversion and promising beginnings and the suffering of the apostle in chains on account of the Gospel. At times, he envisions the worst and appears ready to sacrifice his life, as in Philippians 1:20. But at other times, he comes back to the conviction that we also read in Philippians 1:19: this captivity forms part of his mission and it will enable him to bear witness to the Gospel before the highest authorities of the Roman Empire.

Some people think Paul could not have written chapter 3: it seems foreign to Paul's style and his concerns. We can easily compare 2 Timothy 3:1-5 with two paragraphs of Romans 1:29-32 and 3:10-19 and see that there is nothing new here. And the rest of this chapter takes up what we read in Romans 15:5 and 13. The style of this chapter might be surprising if it had been a letter meant to remain private but this is certainly not the case. Even though he was addressing Timothy, Paul knew that the letter, not devoid of rhetoric, would be read.

Let us not forget that since leaving Miletus and even more after his arrest in the Temple (Acts 21:27), Paul had turned the page. He had said goodbye to the Jewish world as well as to the Greek world that he knew and loved. He was not mistaken to foresee a rather dark future.

Timothy was the first and the most loved of Paul's assistants. Paul would like to pass on to him his own strength and apostolic conviction. Therefore, Paul reminds him that meditation and knowledge of the Word of God form the foundation of a life of faith and of apostolic activity.

1 From Paul, apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, for the sake of his promise of eternal life in Christ Jesus, ²to my dear son Timothy.

May grace, mercy and peace be with you from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord.

God did not give us a spirit of bashfulness

³I give thanks to God whom I serve with a clear conscience the way my ancestors did, as I remember you constantly, day and night, in my prayers. ⁴I recall your tears and I long to see you that I may be filled with joy. I am reminded of your sincere faith, ⁵so like the faith of your grandmother Lois and of your mother Eunice, which I am sure you have inherited.

⁶For this reason I invite you to fan into a flame the gift of God you received through the laying on of my hands. ⁷For God did not confer on us a spirit of bashfulness, but of strength, love and good judgment. ⁸Do not be ashamed of testifying to our Lord, nor of seeing me in chains. On the contrary, do your share in laboring for the Gospel with the strength of God. ⁹He saved us and called us—a calling which proceeds from his holiness. This did not depend on our merits, but on his generosity and his own initiative. This calling given to us from all time in Christ Jesus ¹⁰has just been manifested with the glorious appearance of Christ Jesus, our Lord, who destroyed death and brought life and immortality to light in his Gospel. ¹¹Of this message I was made herald, apostle and teacher.

¹²For its sake I now suffer this trial, but I am not ashamed, for I know in whom I have believed and I am convinced that he is capable of taking care of all I have entrusted to him until that day.

¹³Follow the pattern of the sound doctrine which you have heard from me, concerning faith and love in Christ Jesus. ¹⁴Keep this precious deposit with the help of the Holy Spirit who lives within us.

¹⁵You must know that those from Asia have turned away from me, including Phygelus and Hermogenes. ¹⁶May the Lord show his mercy to the household of Onesiphorus, because he often comforted me and was not ashamed when he found out that I was in prison. ¹⁷On the contrary, he showed courage, searched for me and found me. ¹⁸May the Lord grant that he find mercy on that day. You know better than I all the services he had rendered in Ephesus.

Tit 2:11

Heb 2:14;
1Tim 2:71Tim
6:20

4 16

• 1.6 Fan into a flame the gift you received. See 1 Timothy 4:14. Paul tries to give his own energy to Timothy and he reminds him of God's love and promises.

The sound doctrine... the precious deposit... which you have heard from me (vv. 13-14): see 1 Timothy 1:3. The doctrine of the faith cannot be altered, but neither can it be put in storage. It must be lived, which brings into play our creativity as well as that of the Holy Spirit that lets it be rediscovered each day.

He saved us and called us: see Ephesians 2:8-10.

He is capable of taking care of all I have entrusted to him (v. 12). These words invite us to remember the exact meaning of the word "faith." In Hebrew, for the Old Testament, the word "faith" had the same root as "to be firm," or "to lean on something." In Greek, the word that has become "faith" signifies both the trust that could be had in a debtor, and the guarantee given to the creditor. So Paul considers all his apostolic life as the deposit he has placed in God's hands. Like Paul a person of faith is not deceived by the mirages of a happy life but prefers to use his life in an often thankless labor and persevere as if he already saw what couldn't yet be seen (Heb 11:27).

Phil 3:5;
Acts
26:4Acts
16:11Tim
4:14Rom
8:15Eph 2:8;
Tit 3:5

Labor like a good soldier of Christ

2^{•1}You, my son, be strong with the grace you have in Christ Jesus. ²Entrust to reliable people everything you have learned from me in the presence of many witnesses, that they may instruct others.

³Labor like a good soldier of Christ Jesus. ⁴No soldier gets involved in civilian trade; the soldier's aim is to please his commanding officer. ⁵No athlete is crowned unless he competes according to the rules. ⁶And again, the farmer who tills the land is the first to enjoy the fruits of the harvest. ⁷Think over what I am telling you; the Lord will give you understanding in everything.

⁸Remember Christ Jesus, risen from the dead, Jesus, son of David, as preached in my Gospel. ⁹For this Gospel I labor and even wear chains like an evildoer, but the word of God is not chained. ¹⁰And so I bear everything for the sake of the chosen people, that they, too, may obtain the salvation given to us in Christ Jesus and share eternal glory. ¹¹This statement is true:

If we have died with him, we shall also live with him;

¹²If we endure with him, we shall reign with him;

If we deny him, he will also deny us;

¹³If we are unfaithful, he remains faithful for he cannot deny himself.

Do not fight over words

^{•14}Remind your people of these things and urge them in the presence of God not to fight over words, which does no good, but only ruins those who listen. ¹⁵Be for God an active and proved minister, a blameless worker correctly handling the word of truth. ¹⁶Do not take part in useless conversations, alien to the faith. This

Rom
8:17;
Mt 10:33

1Cor 1:9;
Num
23:19

Tit 2:7;
1Tim 4:7

• 2.1 Entrust to reliable people (v. 2). We have seen in Paul's first missions that he took care to establish elders in each community (Acts 14:23; see also Tit 1:6). They must be able to preserve the faith in full. We often give more importance to immediate effectiveness of our actions rather than to doctrinal exactitude. In the long run, there is never an error that is not paid for. Saint Irenaeus affirms that the primary mission of the Church is to maintain in the world a true knowledge of God, Father, Son and Holy Spirit. See however the commentary on Galatians 2:5.

Then Paul invites Timothy to surrender completely, with the assurance that his efforts will be rewarded.

Be strong with the grace you have in Christ Jesus. Christ's witness must be courageous and strong, as the messenger of the victorious Christ. His own conviction will convince others. He must avoid the many ways of wasting time and getting off track in his mission: idle conversations devoid of value. Things that do not promote a better service of God (1 Tim 1:4): false religious problems unrelated to real life.

No soldier gets involved (v. 4). It happened at times that Paul earned his living while preaching (2 Cor 11:9; 2 Thes 3:7), but now here the letter speaks for those who waste their time in working for a living when the community has the duty of seeing to their needs. For a minister of the Church, work can be a way of placing oneself in the world and in the midst of people; but it could also be a way of escaping the difficulties and humiliations of every apostolic task.

• 14. Return to the experiences of the apostolic worker. In time the converted are tested: some make progress and others are lost. The apostle should not be astonished: no fall, no scandal can shake the solid foundations laid by God (v. 19): the Church will never be defeated.

They hold that the resurrection has already taken place (v. 18). Faith in the resurrection was accepted with as much difficulty in those times as it is today, and many wanted to keep the word without being embarrassed by a God who shatters our way of thinking. Perhaps those named here held that a spiritual resurrection took place at baptism and there was nothing more to hope for after death. On this subject, see in the Gospel of John the precision given in 5:28 immediately following 5:25.

1Cor 9:7;
9:25

Acts
13:30;
Rom 1:4
Eph 3 1;
Phil 1:12

leads to a greater impiety. ¹⁷Such teaching spreads like gangrene: I am thinking of Hymeneus and Philetus.

¹⁸They strayed from the truth, holding that resurrection has already taken place; and with this they upset the faith of some. ¹⁹But the solid foundations laid by God are not shaken; on them it is written: The Lord knows those who are his, and: Let him who confesses the name of the Lord turn away from evil.

²⁰In a large house we find not only vessels of gold and silver, but also of wood and clay. Some are reserved for special uses, others, for ordinary ones. ²¹All who clean themselves of what I speak of, will become a noble vessel, useful to the Lord, prepared for any holy purpose.

²²So shun the passions of youth and seek righteousness, faith, love and peace, together with those who call upon the Lord with a pure heart.

²³Avoid stupid and senseless discussions, since such are the cause of misunderstanding. ²⁴God's servant must not be quarrelsome, but kind to all, always teaching and patient with those who do not understand, ²⁵gently correct opponents; perhaps God may grant them to repent and discover the truth, ²⁶withdrawing them from the snare of the devil who held them captive to his own will.

3 • ¹Be quite sure that there will be difficult times in the last days.

²People will become selfish, lovers of money, boastful, conceited, gossips, disobedient to their parents, ungrateful, unholy. ³They will be unable to love and to forgive; they will be slanderers, without self-control, cruel, enemies of good, ⁴traitors, shameless, full of pride, more in love with pleasure than with God. ⁵They will keep the appearance of piety, while rejecting its demands. Keep away from such people.

⁶Of the same kind are those who enter houses and captivate weak women, full of sins, swayed by all kinds of passion, ⁷who are always learning but never grasping knowledge of the truth. ⁸These people of corrupt mind and false faith oppose the truth just as Jannes and Jambres opposed Moses. ⁹Yet they may not go very far, for their folly will be clear to all, as in the case of those two.

¹⁰You, instead, have closely followed my teaching, my way of life, my projects, faith, patience, love, en-

• 3.1 In the last days (v. 1): see 1 Timothy 4:1. Even the presence of evil in the Church should not surprise us.

The paragraph 14-17 gives us in a few words a full message on biblical meditation: the Scriptures will give you wisdom (v. 15). Biblical meditation is the best means of making faith mature (vv. 15-17). When these lines were written Scripture was essentially the Old Testament, but already the Church possessed and considered as Scripture several Gospels and some of Paul's letters.

Just before the mention of Scripture we read: Continue with what you have learned—knowing from whom you received it. "Tradition" means precisely what we receive from our elders. The reading of the Bible is inseparable from the "Tradition of the Apostles," which is the "Tradition of the Church," and it is a way of understanding the Bible, just as Jesus immediately after his resurrection opened to his apostles a new way of reading salvation history. This tradition is the second support of faith.

All Scripture is inspired by God (v. 16) and there we look for a message from God to his people rather than an occasion for personal speculation. The same Spirit that directs the Church has equally inspired the biblical authors.

For many years, we spoke of the "inspiration" of the Bible, not so much to encourage the reading of it in the family or community, but to affirm the fact of it being without error. It was also because some people saw contradictions between Bible and science. These

1Tim
6:21Num
16:5;
16:26Rom
9:21

1Tim 3:2

1Tim 4:1

Rom
1:29

Mt 7 15

Acts 13:50; 14:5; 14:19
 Jn 15:20; 1Thes 3:4; Acts 14:22
 durance, ¹¹persecutions and sufferings. You know what happened to me at Antioch, Iconium and Lystra. How many trials I had to bear! Yet the Lord rescued me from them all. ¹²All who want to serve God in Christ Jesus will be persecuted, ¹³while evil persons and impostors will go from bad to worse, deceiving and being deceived.

¹⁴As for you, continue with what you have learned and what has been entrusted to you, knowing from whom you received it. ¹⁵Besides, you have known the Scriptures from childhood; they will give you the wisdom that leads to salvation through faith in Christ Jesus. ¹⁶All Scripture is inspired by God and is useful for teaching, refuting error, for correcting and training in Christian life. ¹⁷Through Scripture the man of God is made expert and thoroughly equipped for every good work.

Preach the Word

4^{*}In the presence of God and Christ Jesus, who is to judge the living and the dead, and by the hope I have of his coming and his kingdom, I urge you ²to preach the Word, in season and out of season, reproofing, rebuking or advising, always with patience and providing instruction. ³For the time is coming when people will no longer endure sound doctrine but following their passions they will surround themselves with teachers to please their itching ears. ⁴And they will abandon the truth to hear fables. ⁵So be prudent, do not mind your labor, give yourself to your work as an evangelist, fulfill your ministry.

⁶As for me, I am already poured out as a libation, and the moment of my departure has come. ⁷I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith. ⁸Now there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness with which the Lord, the just judge, will reward me on that day; and not only me, but all those who have longed for his glorious coming.

Final greetings

⁹Do your best to come to me quickly. ¹⁰You must know that Demas has deserted me for the love of this world: he returned to Thessalonica. Crescens has gone to Galatia and Titus to Dalmatia. ¹¹Only Luke remains with me. Get Mark and bring him with you, for he is a useful helper in my work. ¹²I sent Tychicus to Ephesus.

¹³Bring with you the cloak I left at problems have partly disappeared. Each book is as the human authors wrote it, reflecting their culture and their limitations (before the coming of Christ, faith had not attained full maturity; before rational science, people could not express themselves according to scientific views). The entire book is also from God and every text is part of a definitive message. It is there we find the truth of God, and not in the exactitude of details and literary form, which we necessarily must adapt to our modern language.

Above all we must remember that the Word of God is the normal nourishment of faith. It is not only useful for teaching: Bible reading has the value of a sacrament for the faithful. No preaching, no catechism even though “biblical” can replace the frequent meditative reading of the word of God for the development of faith.

- 4.1 Preach the Word (v. 2): this is Paul’s last advice. It must be the first concern of the Church and of any church leader.

Paul knows that he will not be freed and that he will be condemned to death. He embraces his own sacrifice just as Jesus did.

We find the comparison of the soldier and the athlete that Paul liked so much. In those days athletes received a crown of laurels as a symbol of immortality: As for me the time of sacrifice has arrived, and the moment of my departure has come.

1Tim 4:1

Phil 2:17

1Tim 1:18; 6:12; 1Cor 9:25; Phil 3:14; 1P 5:4; Rev 2:10

Col 4 14

Col 4 10

Troas, in Carpos' house and also the scrolls, especially the parchments.

Pro 24:12; 1Tim 1:20 ¹⁴Alexander the metalworker has caused me great harm. The Lord will repay him for what he has done.

¹⁵Distrust him for he has been very much opposed to our preaching.

¹⁶At my first hearing in court no one supported me; all deserted me. May the Lord not hold it against them.

Mt 10:19; Phil 1:19; Ps 22:22 ¹⁷But the Lord was at my side, giving me strength to proclaim the Word fully, and let all the pagans hear it. So I was rescued from the lion's mouth. ¹⁸The Lord will save me from all evil, bringing me to his heavenly kingdom. Glory to him for ever and ever. Amen!

¹⁹Greetings to Prisca and Aquila and to the family of Onesiphorus. ²⁰Erastus remained in Corinth. I left Trophimus sick in Miletus.

²¹Try to come here before the winter. Eubulus, Pudens, Linus, Claudia and all the brothers and sisters send you greetings. ²²The Lord be with your spirit.

May grace be with you all.

Dn 6 23

Acts 18:2

Acts 19:22; 20:4

This letter appears to be the first of the pastoral letters: see the introduction to the first letter to Timothy.

This was early in 58 and shortly before, Paul had written a letter to the Christians of Rome. Paul thinks that he does not have any more work to do in the eastern part of the Roman Empire and he prepares to go to the western part of the Empire, especially Spain. In fact, God had planned things differently: in a short time, Paul would be arrested in Jerusalem and after several years of captivity in Caesarea, he would be taken to Rome to be tried before the emperor's tribunal.

Paul said goodbye to the communities of Greece and of "Asia," the province of the empire corresponding to western Turkey (Acts 20:25). It was no doubt the day before meeting with the presbyters (elders) of the Ephesus area, a meeting that took place in Miletus (Acts 20:1), that Paul wrote this letter that precisely gives special attention to pastors of the Christian communities. The other important points of the letter deal with the duties of Christians according to their situation in society, respect for their social obligations and submission to authorities. Here, Paul repeats or develops what he had presented in the second part of the letter to the Romans. This same letter inspires him a few shortcuts about God's plan that we find in 1:3-4; 2:11-14 and 3:4:7.

Paul was already thinking about his journey to Rome. He did not know that he was going to be arrested in Jerusalem and he planned to go to the capital of the empire by land after handing the collection he had brought over to the Jerusalem Christians (Rom 15:25-28). One of the stages was Nicopolis on the west coast of Greece, an area that Paul had evangelized (Rom 15:19) and where he had arranged to meet Titus who was in Crete.

1 ¹From Paul, servant of God, apostle of Christ Jesus, at the service of God's chosen people, so that they may believe and reach the knowledge of truth and godliness.

2Tim
2:13

²The eternal life we are waiting for was promised from the very beginning by God who never lies, ³and as the appointed time had come, he made it known through the message entrusted to me by a command of God, our Savior.

⁴Greetings to you, Titus, my true son in the faith we share. May grace and peace be with you from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord.

On the elders of the Church

1Tim 3:2

• ⁵I left you in Crete because I wanted you to put right what was defective and appoint elders in every town, following my instructions. ⁶They must be blameless, married only once, whose children are believers and not open to the charge of being immoral and rebellious. ⁷Since

the overseer (or bishop) is the steward of God's house, he must be beyond reproach: not proud, hot-headed, over-fond of wine, quarrelsome or greedy for gain.

⁸On the contrary he must be hospitable, a lover of what is good, wise, upright, devout and self-controlled. ⁹He must hold to the message of faith just as it was taught, so that, in his turn, he may teach sound doctrine and refute those who oppose it.

Heb 3:2;
1P 5:2

1Tim
1:10

¹⁰You know that there are many rebellious minds, talkers of nonsense, deceivers, especially the party of the circumcised. ¹¹They have to be silenced when they go around disturbing whole families, teaching for low gain what should not be taught. ¹²A Cretan, one of their own prophets has said, "Cretans: always liars, wicked beasts and lazy gluttons." ¹³This is true. For this reason rebuke them sharply if you want them to have a sound faith ¹⁴in-

1Tim 4:1

• 1.5 Titus had to organize the churches of Crete with leaders in every city.

We do not know if the title overseer (in Greek, episcopos, from which comes bishop) was given to all these elders or presbyters, or if the title was reserved for those with executive duties. After a while, there was only one bishop in charge of the entire community. After the apostles' death, bishops served as their representatives and ruled the Church with the same authority.

What Paul says here about the requirements for a presbyter or bishop is the same as what we have in 1 Timothy. We may note the following:

– Married only once. Obviously it is not necessary to be married, but as men of a certain age, usually married, were the ones who were consecrated, Paul is here considering the frequent case of Christians who had been divorced and remarried several times while they were still pagans.

– He must be blameless, not he alone but his family as well. His fitness to preside is essential to his vocation, and he will not be accepted by the community if his background gives an unfavorable witness.

– He must be hospitable. The Church is communion more than organization. Everyone must be welcomed and feel at home in the house of the presbyter or the bishop. He must also welcome the brothers and elders from other districts in order to assure unity and communion among different communities. The human balance in this bishop is then part of his vocation: he cannot be a man of uneven character whose interventions could wound, whose authority ignores the elementary rules of social contact and respect of persons: although known for their faith, Church leaders are often reproached for not knowing how to act in a human way.

The paragraph 12-16 is a cautionary measure against the return to a religion of practices and abstinences inspired by Jewish law. To the pure, everything is pure: in the spirit of Matthew 15:11 and Romans 14:20. That will never mean to say that our intentions (our intentions are always pure!) justify our actions. That would be to forget that the tree (the desire urging us to act) is judged by its fruit; these cannot be justified if they are contrary to the will of God manifested in the Law.

stead of heeding Jewish fables and practices of people who reject the truth.

¹⁵To the pure everything is pure; to the corrupt and unbelieving nothing is pure: their minds and consciences have been defiled. ¹⁶They pretend to know God but deny him with their deeds. They are detestable, disobedient and unfit for doing anything good.

Live as responsible persons

2 ¹Let your words strengthen sound doctrine. ²Tell the older men to be sober, serious, wise, sound in faith, love and perseverance.

³The older women in like manner must behave as befits holy women, not given to gossiping or drinking wine, ⁴but as good counselors, able to teach younger women to love their husbands and children, ⁵to be judicious and chaste, to take care of their households, to be kind and submissive to their husbands, lest our faith be attacked.

⁶Encourage the young men to be self-controlled. ⁷Set them an example by your own way of doing. Let your teaching be earnest and sincere, ⁸and your preaching beyond reproach. Then your opponents will feel ashamed and will have nothing to criticize.

⁹Teach slaves to be subject to their masters, and to give satisfaction in every respect, instead of arguing. ¹⁰They must not steal from them but be trustworthy. In this way they will draw everyone to admire the doctrine of God our Savior.

¹¹For the grace of God has appeared, bringing salvation to all, ¹²teaching us to reject an irreligious way of life and worldly greed, and to live in this world as responsible persons, upright and serving God, ¹³while we await our blessed hope—the glorious manifestation of our great God and Savior Christ Jesus. ¹⁴He gave himself for us, to redeem us from every evil and to purify a people he wanted to be his own and dedicated to what is good.

¹⁵Teach these things, encourage and reprove with all authority. Let no one despise you.

3 ¹Remind the believers to be submissive to rulers and authorities, to be obedient and to be ready for every good work. ²Tell them to insult no one; they must not be quar-

• 2.1 Here, there is a reminder of the duties of the faithful according to their situation in life. In the society of the time, far simpler than ours, all was reduced to slaves or the free, men or women, young or old. In our age, it would be necessary to ask people to look more closely at their responsibilities in life.

There is insistence on our duty to bear fruit: the following paragraph will say that if Christ has sacrificed himself for us, such a sacrifice must not remain fruitless.

The grace of God has appeared, bringing salvation to all (v. 11). Here Paul returns to the essence of the Christian message: it is a gift of God and so it must produce the fruits of goodness and reconciliation and draw people away from the self-centeredness which paralyzes them.

He gave himself for us (v. 14). As in Ephesians 5:25 and 1 Corinthians 11:25, Jesus' sacrifice is primarily to purify those who become his people. In fact, it is by looking at Jesus that, little by little, we let go of what is evil and violent in us.

Teaching us to reject an irreligious way of life (v. 12). God brings us to purify our motives and our hearts.

– Responsible, because the practice of Christian living brings us to a more serious attitude.

– Just with others by being primarily just with God.

– Serving God: this means first of all being sincere with God.

• 3.1 Speaking to the first Christian generation, Paul had underscored the transformation of the one who has been converted: be-

Mt
15:11;
23:25;
Rom
14:14

1Tim 5:1

1Tim
3:11

Eph
5:22;
Col 3:18

1P 2:15

Eph 6:5;
1Tim 6:1

1Jn 2:16

1Cor 1:7;
Phil 3:20

19:5;
Eph 5:25

1Tim
4:12

Rom
13:1;
1P 2:13;
1Tim 2:2

relsome but gentle and understanding with everyone.

Eph 2:5; 5:8 ³We ourselves were once foolish, disobedient and misled. We were slaves of our desires, seeking pleasures of every kind. We lived in malice and envy, hateful and hating each other. ⁴But God our Savior revealed his eminent goodness and love for humankind ⁵and saved us, not because of good deeds we may have done but for the sake of his own mercy, to the water of rebirth and renewal by the Holy Spirit ⁶poured over us through Christ Jesus our Savior, ⁷so that having been justified by his grace we should become heirs in hope of eternal life.

2Tim 1:9; Eph 2:8; 5:26 Rom 3:24; 8:17

• ⁸This is the truth. I want you to insist on these things, for those who believe in God must excel in good deeds; that is what matters and is profitable to us. ⁹Avoid stupid arguments, discussions about genealogies and quarrels about the Law, for they are useless and unimportant.

2Tim 2:14

¹⁰If anyone promotes sects in the church, warn him once and then a second time. If he still continues, break with him, ¹¹knowing that such a person is misled and sinful and stands self-condemned.

¹²When I send Artemas or Tychicus to you, try to come to me at Nicopolis as soon as possible, for I have decided to spend the winter there. ¹³Do your best to send Zenas the lawyer and Apollos on their way soon, and see to it that they have everything they need. ¹⁴Our people must learn to be outstanding in good works and to face urgent needs, instead of remaining idle and useless.

¹⁵All who are with me send greetings. Greet those who love us in the faith.

Grace be with you all.

Mt 18:15

coming Christian involved breaking away from the past. In the following generation, while the Church was being established in various provinces of the Roman Empire, the hope of an imminent return of Christ began to decline. Thus, if the Church is called to last, it is important for the Christian to appear, first of all, as a model of an ordered and just life. Since obedience was then the pillar of family and social life, this letter insists that the believer must obey from the heart in every aspect that is not opposed to his faith.

In the teaching of the New Testament, it will be easy to speak of contradictions, or opportunism: here, social loyalty and family virtues; or else ignoring one's father and mother. Actually, they are not contradictory: obedience coming from the heart as long as there is no opposition to the will of God, but a complete rejection of dependence when a human autho-riety presumes to replace God, disregarding the conscience and rights of a person.

What remains here is an insistence on social virtues; it was the same in 2:5; 2:10 and also 1 Timothy 2:2 and 2:11.

• 8. Possible translations for the word Paul uses here are "sects" or "heresies" (v. 10): they are two aspects of a Greek word that means "selection." Instead of accepting the faith as the Church transmits it, a heretic chooses what seems most important to her and what she likes the most. She rejects part of the message and leaves the Church taking with her disciples to form her own group. In preferring her own judgment to the doctrine of the Church, she loses the in-depth faith attitude; she destroys unity and condemns herself, even though she keeps a major part of the message.

PAGE 1812 (BLANK)

“Hebrews” was the name given to the Jews who lived in Palestine, unlike the majority who had emigrated to other countries. This letter is addressed to the first Christian communities of Palestine, formed by Jews—by race—who had been persecuted and punished and whose possessions had even been confiscated, all because they had become followers of Christ. They no longer had anything in this world and they had to encourage one another with the assurance that, at the conclusion of their exile, they would find the true Home where Jesus went after his suffering. In this way they were like their Hebrew ancestors who had lived in the desert, hoping and searching for the Promised Land.

It is helpful to know that this letter is addressed to people familiar with the Old Testament: they may well have been Jewish priests who had believed in Jesus and now were going through a serious crisis. Indeed, up until then the Temple had been their whole lives, since they were priests: they would offer sacrifices and would receive part of the sacrificed animals in payment. Now, not only had they been excluded and removed from the temple by the Jews, but Christ had replaced them. For he had come as the New Temple and the perfect victim pleasing to God, as the only Priest capable of putting people in touch with God.

He had relegated the Temple of Jerusalem and its cult to the rank of the outmoded. He, a layman had organized his Church, disregarding the priesthood of the “sons of Aaron,” the Jewish priests. The priest, he who is the link between humans and the all-holy God, was he and he alone.

So Christ had taken their work away from them, as well as their reason for being. At times, these men who had known Jesus, the man, had their doubts: was it certain that everything had changed because of him?

To confirm their faith, this letter shows them that the Jewish religion with its imposing ceremonies in the Temple of Jerusalem, was but the image of something greater. The pardon

Gal 4:4;
Jn 1:3;
Col 1:16

1 • ¹ God has spoken in the past to our ancestors through the prophets, in many different ways, although never completely; ² but in our times he has spoken definitively to us through his Son.

He is the one God appointed heir of all things, since through him he unfolded the stages of the world.

2Cor 4:4;
Col 1:17;
Wis 8:1;
Mk 16:19;
Acts
2:33

³ He is the radiance of God's Glory and bears the stamp of God's hidden being, so that his powerful word upholds the universe. And after taking away sin, he took his place at the right hand of the divine Majesty in heaven.

Phil 2:9

⁴ So he is now far superior to angels just as the name he received sets him apart from them. ⁵ To what angel did God say: You are my son, I have begotten you today? and to what angel did he promise: I shall be a father to him and he will be a son to me? ⁶ On sending his Firstborn to the world, God says: Let all the angels adore him. ⁷ Whereas about angels we find words like these: God sends the angels like wind, makes his servants flames of fire. ⁸ But of the Son we read this: Your throne, O God, will last forever and ever; a rule

Dt 32:43;
Ps 97:7

Ps 104:4

Ps 45: 7-8

of justice is your rule. ⁹ You loved righteousness and hated wickedness; therefore God, your God, has anointed you with the oil of gladness, above your fellow kings.

¹⁰ And also these words: Lord, in the beginning you placed the earth on its foundation and the heavens are the work of your hands. ¹¹ They will disappear, but you remain. They all wear out like a garment; ¹² you will fold them like a cloak and change them. You, on the contrary, are always the same and your years will never end.

Ps 102:
26-28

¹³ God never said to any of his angels: Sit here at my right side until I put your enemies as a footstool under your feet. ¹⁴ For all these spirits are only servants, and God sends them to help those who shall be saved.

Ps 110:1;
Acts
2:33

Mt 4:11;
18:10

2 • ¹ So we must pay the closest attention to the preaching we heard, lest we drift away. ² If words spoken through angels became law and all disobedience or neglect received its due reward, ³ how could we now escape if we neglect such powerful salvation? For the Lord himself announced it first and it was later of sin and the spirit of religion—the aspiration of the entire Old Testament—was to be the work of the authentic priest of all humanity, Jesus, the Son of God. There is now no other sacrifice but his, which begins on the cross and ends in glory.

Gal 3:19

Are there not many “Hebrews” in today’s world? The sick who no longer have hope, the persecuted Christians, the people who do not accept the injustice and mediocrity of the society in which we live. Although many of them may not understand all the premises and biblical quotations in this letter, they will feel encouraged in the faith.

Besides, the word “priest” has become so important in the Church that it is useful to find here the biblical text which has gone deeper into the meaning of priesthood and its reorientation through the very fact of the sacrifice of Jesus.

This letter was written in Rome, perhaps in the year 66, when the war in which Jerusalem was destroyed was approaching. These were the last months of Paul’s life; he was imprisoned in Rome for the second time. This letter reflects Paul’s thoughts, but he did not write it. It is quite possible that the author is Apollos, mentioned in Acts 18:24-28, “a man well-versed in Scriptures” and who “proved from the Scriptures (the Old Testament) that Jesus is the Messiah.”

confirmed by those who heard it. ⁴God confirmed their testimony by signs, wonders and miracles of every kind—especially by the gifts of the Holy Spirit that he distributed according to his will.

Mk
16:17;
1Cor
12:11;
2Cor
12:12

Col 2:15

Ps 8:5-7

1Cor
15:25;
Eph 1:20

⁵The angels were not given dominion over the new world of which we are speaking. ⁶Instead someone declared in Scripture: What is man, what is the son of man that you should care for him? ⁷*For a while you placed him a little lower than the angels, but you crowned him with glory and honor.* ⁸*You have given him dominion over all things.*

When it is said that God gave him dominion over all things, nothing is excluded. As it is, we do not yet see his dominion over all things. ⁹But Jesus who suffered death and for a little while was placed lower than the angels has been crowned with honor and glory. For the merciful plan of God demanded that he experience death on behalf of everyone.

Phil 2:6

¹⁰God, from whom all come and by whom all things exist, wanted to bring many children to glory, and he thought it fitting to make perfect through suffering the initiator of their salvation. ¹¹So he who gives and those who receive holiness are one.

Rom
11:36;
1Cor 8:6;
Jn 17:19

• 1.1 The addressees of this letter were formed by a religion in which the role of the high priest, consecrated by God, was essential. The author wants to show that now Jesus is the only high priest on whom people can depend. The starting point of his argument is the unique dignity of Jesus, not a prophet or a supernatural personage like so many others, but rather, the Son of God. Every word of this verse asserts that Jesus is unique, God born of God (Jn 1:1-14).

This comparing Jesus with the angels may surprise us (as in Eph 1 and Col 1). For believers of Jesus' time, it was enough to contemplate nature to presume, beyond the harmony and splendor of creation, the active presence of cosmic powers, beings that they called angels—the distributors of divine riches. In the same degree that the Old Testament had battled against the gods of nature, God remained extremely distant and far above. If people refrained from pronouncing his name, it was an additional reason for seeing the action of heavenly spirits in the constant proofs of divine providence in our favor.

When evoking Israel's past, many things were attributed to angels. If we have any idea about God's mystery, we are also bewildered at the thought of being able to enter into communion with God. Today many people seek some contact with spiritual powers, although at a much lower level. The word angel may appear old-fashioned but the fact remains that many people believe in cosmic powers. Therefore, it was necessary to reaffirm that Jesus, who is not an angel but one of us, surpasses them all.

Lord, in the beginning (v. 10). Let us pay attention to the method of discussion: from the beginning of the Church, the apostles attributed to Christ all the texts where the Bible says "Lord." In fact, the word "Lord" which they read in the Greek text translated "Yahweh" in the Hebrew text. They consciously attributed to Christ a great number of words addressed to Yahweh-God. This suffices to destroy what we hear sometimes, namely that it was only with time that Jesus was recognized as Son of God and fully God; and that in the early Church the apostles saw him only as a Messiah.

• 2.1 The author has just reaffirmed the divinity of Christ, but immediately takes other texts from the Old Testament which speak of "man" (son of man is the Hebrew term) and this time applies them to Christ. This shows that in God's design, Man and Christ are one. All that he has been, the glory that is his, of all this we are invited to share.

The new world (v. 5). Actually the text says: the world to come. This does not mean future times, or the end of the world, but the new and definitive times that began with the resurrection of Christ.

The new world is where the risen Christ is. It is the homeland we are hoping for. This new world has already come to us: a believer who lives in the Spirit constantly has experiences which are not of the earth even if in the beginning he is not aware of it.

All the history of Jesus is then both his and ours. He thought it fitting to make perfect through suffering the initiator of their salvation (v. 10). There is no other way to human

He himself is not ashamed of calling us brothers and sisters, ¹² as we read: Lord, I will proclaim your name to my brothers; I will praise you in the congregation. ¹³ He also says: I will trust in God; here I am and the children God has given me. ¹⁴ And because all those children share one same nature of flesh and blood, Jesus likewise had to share this nature. This is why his death destroyed the one holding the power of death, that is the devil, ¹⁵ and freed those who remained in bondage all their lifetime because of the fear of death.

Mt 28:10;
Jn 20:17;
Ps 22:23

Is 8: 17-18

Rom 8:3;
Wis 2:24;
1Jn 3:8

Is 41:8-9

Phil 2:7

¹⁶ Jesus came to take by the hand not the angels but the human race. ¹⁷ So he had to be like his brothers and sisters in every respect, in order to be the High Priest faithful to God and merciful to them, a priest able to ask pardon and atone for their sins.

¹⁸ Having been tested through suffering, he is able to help those who are tested.

Christ came as the new Moses

3 ¹ Therefore, holy brothers, partners in a heavenly calling, consider Jesus, the apostle and High Priest of our faith.

² He is faithful to God who appointed him, just as Moses was a faithful steward over God's household ³ but Jesus deserves much greater honor than Moses, since he who builds the house is greater than the house. ⁴ As every house has a builder, God is the builder of all. ⁵ It is said that Moses was found faithful as a servant of God over all his household, and as witness of a former revelation from God. ⁶ Christ came as the Son, to whom the house belongs; and we are his household, provided

Num
12:7
(LXX)

2Cor 3:7

1Cor 3:9;
Eph 2:19;
1P 2:5

liberation than the way of the cross. Those who are eager to free others must be tested, some through opposition, others through indifference. Suffering is a good teacher and it tests the strength of our surrender.

It is on the cross of Christ that we must discover the love of the Father for his Son, since he did not “condemn him” to suffer on earth, but rather, by way of suffering, he called him to be the Savior and model for everyone.

Jesus had to share this nature (v. 14). God uses human solidarity to save us. Christ saves us through sharing flesh and blood, and human destiny. In the same way, we are saved if we help in the liberation of the world, if we courageously accept our dependence on and solidarity with others. To work side by side with others, to suffer and rejoice with them is a way of saving them. We would like, at times, to escape our human condition and to be more independent: it seems to us that we would be better able to serve God, yet this dependence in the details of daily life is the means by which God wants us to take the human race by the hand.

• 3.1 It was normal to compare Jesus with Moses; there was no one greater than he in the Old Testament, but in fact the author only mentions the experience of the people under Moses: the Hebrews wandered through the desert searching for the land that God had promised them.

Through Moses, God was inviting them to enter a new world. They were unable to see that they should raise themselves to a higher life. Once their difficulties were less acute they no longer wanted the Promised Land.

Now believers have to begin anew the search for the Promised Land, that is, the Rest that God offers. The first time, it was Moses, the servant of God, who guided his people and was responsible for his household. Now it is the Son: they thought they would find rest in a specific place, in Palestine. The true Rest is intimate life with God that we reach through faith and entrance into the Christian community.

Several times this letter will recall the warning given the Hebrew pilgrims in the desert: If only you would hear God's voice today! The road is long and the believer grows tired when difficult times come, after the enthusiasm of the first days. Supported by Christ's words, we must continue to hope for that which God promised, but which is invisible to our eyes.

The creation poem spoke of God's Rest after creating the world: this meant that the that we stand firm in hope and courage.

Ps 95:
7-11

⁷Listen to what the Holy Spirit says: *If only you would hear God's voice today!*⁸ *Do not be stubborn, as they were in the place called Rebellion,*⁹ *when your ancestors challenged me in the desert, although they had seen my deeds*¹⁰ *for forty years. That is why I was angry with those people and said: Their hearts are always going astray and they do not understand my ways.*¹¹ I was angry and made a solemn vow: They will never enter my rest.

2Thes
2:10

¹²So, brothers, be careful lest some of you come to have an evil and unbelieving heart that falls away from the living God.¹³ Encourage one another, day by day, as long as it is called today. Let no one become hardened in the deceitful way of sin.

Phil 3:12

¹⁴We are associated with Christ provided we hold steadfastly to our initial hope until the end.

¹⁵Scripture says: If you hear God's voice, do not be stubborn as they were in the place called Rebellion.

¹⁶Who are those who having heard still rebelled? They were all those who came out of Egypt with Moses.

Num
14:29;
Jn 6:58;
1Cor
10:5

¹⁷With whom was God angry for forty years? With those who sinned and whose bodies fell in the desert.¹⁸ To whom did God swear that they would not enter into his rest? To those who had disobeyed.¹⁹ We see then that unbelief prevented them from reaching their rest.

4¹Therefore let us fear while we are invited to enter the rest of God, lest any of you be left behind.

²We received the Gospel exactly as they did, but hearing the message did them no good, because they did not share the faith of those who did listen.³ We are now to enter this rest because we believed, as it was said: I was angry and made a solemn vow: they will never enter my rest—that is the rest of God after he created the world.⁴ In another part it was said about the seventh day: *And God rested on the seventh day from all his works.*⁵ But now it is said: *They will not enter my rest.*⁶ We must conclude that some will enter the rest of God and that those who first received the good news did not, because of their disobedience.⁷ Yet God again assigns a day when he says: today, and declares through David many years later: If you hear God's voice today, do not be stubborn.

Ps 95:11

Gen 2:2

Ps 95:
7-8

Jos 22:4

⁸So it was not Joshua who let them enter the land of rest; otherwise God would not have assigned another day later on.⁹ Then some other rest, or sabbath, is reserved for the people of God.¹⁰ For those who enter this rest of God rest from all their works as God rests from his work.

Rev
14:13

¹¹Let us strive, then, to enter the rest and not to share the misfortune of those who disobeyed.¹² For the word of God is living and effective, sharper than any two-edged sword. It pierces to the division of soul and spirit, of joints and marrow, and judges the intentions and thoughts of the heart.¹³ All creation is transparent to Him; everything is uncovered and laid bare to the eyes of Him to whom we render account.

Eph
6:17;
Wis
18:25

Jer
17:10;
Ps 139;
Rom
14:12

universe must come to a point of entering into the fullness of the mystery of God. Human sorrow and work on this earth bring a person to her true end, which is "to rest" in the happiness of God.

• 4.14 For the Jews, the High Priest—despite his personal defects—was a sacred person protecting the people from the punishment deserved by their sins. The people needed not only leaders to govern them, but

Christ is our High Priest

• ¹⁴We have a great High Priest, Jesus, the Son of God, who has entered heaven. Let us, then, hold fast to the faith we profess. ¹⁵Our high priest is not indifferent to our weaknesses, for he was tempted in every way just as we are, yet without sinning. ¹⁶Let us, then, with confidence approach the throne of grace; we will obtain mercy and, through his favor, help in due time.

Gal 4:4;
2Cor
5:21;
Jn 8:46

10:19

8:3

5 ¹Every High Priest is taken from among mortals and appointed to be their representative before God to offer gifts and sacrifices for sin. ²He is able to understand the ignorant and erring for he himself is subject to weakness. ³This is why he is bound to offer sacrifices for his sins as well as for the sins of the people. ⁴Besides, one does not presume to take this dignity, but takes it only when called by God, as Aaron was.

Lev 9:7

28:1

an advocate before God. Aaron, Moses' brother, the first priest of the Jews, had been such a man. His successors, the High Priests, were to be the same.

This idea is developed here: the High Priest is the people's representative before God, and he must be weak as they are but accepted by God. Christ is just that and perfectly so. Forgetting that Jesus is a man among humans is as serious for the faith as forgetting that he is the Son of God.

It is helpful to look at the role of Christ, the High Priest, at this time when the Church reminds us that all the faithful are associated with the priestly role of Christ. We must represent humanity before God; we are consecrated to God for that purpose.

In the Eucharist we thank God in the name of everyone. In daily life we must be instruments of the grace of God by being people who promote truth, encourage love and establish peaceful relationships.

He offered his sacrifice with tears and cries (v. 7). In the Bible, these words are used to express the insistent prayer of the oppressed children of God: they cry to God in such a loud voice that he listens to them. Thus, the night ⁵Nor did Christ become High Priest in taking upon himself this dignity, but it was given to him by the One who says: You are my son, I have begotten you today. ⁶And in another place: You are a priest forever in the priestly order of Melchizedek.

Ps 2:7

Ps 110:4

⁷Christ, in the days of his mortal life, offered his sacrifice with tears and cries. He prayed to him who could save him from death, and he was heard because of his humble submission. ⁸Although he was Son, he learned through suffering what obedience was, ⁹and once made perfect, he became the source of eternal salvation for those who obey him. ¹⁰This is how God proclaimed him Priest in the order of Melchizedek.

Phil 2:8;
Jn 17:19

You should be teachers

• ¹¹About this we have much to say, but it is difficult to explain, for you have become dull in under-before his death, Jesus identified with men and women who suffer and do not want to die.

• 5.11 You should be teachers. There are different stages in the development of faith. We cannot begin again to take our first steps. To be in the Church for years, without achieving a more enlightened faith and a richer experience, is to grow old and to become incapable of progress.

This letter tells us briefly the basic points of Christian teaching (6:1-3).

Teaching on baptisms: it was perhaps an explanation of the different ways offered to those searching for a religion. There were Jewish baptisms, John's baptism and also Christian baptism. It was also perhaps an instruction on baptism and the gift of the Spirit. For us, usually, it is clear: there is a baptism, and later at confirmation we especially receive the gifts of the Spirit. At that time, things were not so evident: people spoke of several baptisms, baptism of water, baptism of the Spirit.

The laying on of hands. This was the primitive name of confirmation.

In these basic points the seriousness of human life stands out: there are only two roads 1Cor 3:1; 1P 2:2 standing. ¹²You should be teachers by this time, but in fact you need to be taught again the basic elements of God's teaching. You need milk, not solid food. ¹³Those fed with milk are still infants: this refers to those who have not been tested in the way of righteousness. ¹⁴Solid food is for adults who have trained themselves to distinguish good from evil.

1Cor 2:6;
Phil 1:10

6 ¹Therefore let us leave the elementary teaching about Christ and move forward to a more advanced knowledge without laying again the foundation, that is: turning away from dead works, faith in God, ²the teaching about baptisms and laying on of hands, the resurrection of the dead and the final judgment. ³This is what we shall do, God permitting.

1P 2:3

⁴In any case, it would be impossible to renew again through penance those who have once been enlightened and have tasted the heavenly gift and received the Holy Spirit, ⁵tasted the beauty of the word of God and the wonders of the supernatural world. ⁶If in spite of this they have

10:26;
12:25;
1Jn 5:16

ceased to believe and have fallen away, it is impossible to move them a second time to repentance when they are crucifying, on their own account, the Son of God, and spurning him publicly. ⁷Soil that drinks the rain falling continually on it and produces profitable grass for those who till it, receives the blessings of God, ⁸but the soil that produces thorns and bushes is poor soil and in danger of being cursed. In the end it will be burned.

Remain firm in our hope

⁹Yet even though we speak like this, we are more optimistic, dear friends, regarding you and your salvation. ¹⁰God is not unjust and will not forget everything you have done for love of his name; you have helped and still help the believers. ¹¹We desire each of you to have, until the end, the same zeal for reaching what you have hoped for. ¹²Do not grow careless but imitate those who, by their faith and determination, inherit the promise.

¹³Remember God's promise to Abraham. God wanted to confirm it that lead to judgment and they go in opposite directions. If one does not decide for the road leading to Christ, one loses one's life.

Those who have once been enlightened (v. 4). In the early Church, baptism was often called "enlightenment." Not only because people had been instructed in the true faith, but also because, very often, the Lord grants a very tangible experience of his presence to a person who enters the Church after an authentic conversion. It is the same experience of God which people who take part in spiritual exercises with very sincere dedication often have.

Such an experience is explained more extensively in 12:18-24.

Those who have tasted the wonders of the supernatural world (v. 5). Let us remember that up until a few centuries back, everyone believed that the earth was the center of the universe. They thought heaven was above the earth, like a vault, and beyond this vault were the "high heavens" also called the heavenly world. They thought that God dwelt there with those who have a share in his glory.

Thus, heavenly things were also supernatural things as we say now, or divine. For this reason, in this letter we use supernatural wherever we might also say: heavenly (3:1; 8:5; 9:23; 11:16), because the author is referring to divine things that are already experienced on earth.

An anchor that is thrust beyond the curtain (v. 19). In the Temple of Jerusalem only the High Priest entered the Holy of Holies, separated from the adjoining room by a veil. This is the image of heaven, the authentic Holy of Holies, which Jesus alone has entered. We remain behind, but our hope is already in heaven: this is not human illusion; Jesus is incapable of deceiving us. We will surely arrive there where we have placed our hope.

with an oath and, as no one is higher than God, ¹⁴he swore by himself: I shall bless you and give you many descendants. ¹⁵By just patiently waiting, Abraham obtained the promise.

¹⁶People are used to swearing by someone higher than themselves and their oath affirms everything that could be denied. ¹⁷So God committed himself with an oath in order to convince those who were to wait for his promise that he would never change his mind. ¹⁸Thus we have two certainties in which it is impossible that God be proved false: promise and oath. That is enough to encourage us strongly when we leave everything to hold to the hope set before us. ¹⁹This hope is like a steadfast anchor of the soul, secure and firm, thrust beyond the curtain of the Temple into the sanctuary itself, ²⁰where Jesus has entered ahead of us—Jesus, High Priest for ever in the order of Melchizedek.

Melchizedek, a figure of Christ

7 • Scripture says that Melchizedek, king of Salem, priest of the Most High God, came out to meet Abraham who returned from defeating the kings. He blessed Abraham and Abraham gave him a tenth of everything.

²Let us note that the name Melchizedek means King of Justice, and that king of Salem means king of Peace. ³There is no mention of father, mother or genealogy; nothing is said about the beginning or the end of his life. In this he is the figure of the Son of God, the priest who remains forever.

⁴See then how great Melchizedek was. Even Abraham gave him a tenth of the spoils! ⁵When the descendants of Levi are consecrated priests, they are commanded to collect tithes from their people, that is from their kindred, though these also are descended from Abraham. ⁶Here,

• 7.1 The author has already quoted thrice the verse of Psalm 110 which mentions Melchizedek and now he sets out to show that, what is said of this legendary person prophesies a radical reform of the priesthood. Let us not forget that this letter is addressed to Jewish priests, descendants of Aaron: they were priests from father to son and thought this privilege would last forever (the Bible itself says so in Num 18:19). Here they are told that God himself has announced their replacement.

We can admire the way this Melchizedek event, which occupies such a minor place in the Bible, is probed in depth to prove with irrefutable logic that Christ had to renew and bring to fulfillment the whole worship of Israel. We said in the introduction that Apollos, a prophet of the early Church, may have written this letter. His gifts as a prophet are obvious here.

The only Bible the Church had in the beginning was the Old Testament. Yet this book did not seem to mention Jesus and many Jews even thought, in good faith, that Christ was destroying the teaching of the Bible. The task of these Christian prophets was to demonstrate how the Bible led to Christ, and to refute the Jews' arguments they provided the Church with a Christian understanding of the Old Testament. When Christians read the Old Testament now, they are no longer able to look on it as do the Jews who see in it their own history in the land of Palestine. They await a fulfillment of God's promise that Jesus brushed aside. For us, the key to the truth of the Old Testament is in the person of Jesus: without him the book no longer holds God's message.

Melchizedek is clearly in the Bible, but how did he come? In fact, the texts that mention him are later ones: they were doubtless written two centuries before Jesus to serve the cause of the Maccabees. Many among the Jews did not pardon these sovereigns for usurping the place of the high priest when they belonged to an ordinary priestly family. The story of Melchizedek was intended to justify the sovereign who, like him, was both king and priest at the same time. The texts were then written to justify a dictatorship; but in fact they ended up in the Bible and were accepted as the word of God; and later it was found that they told of something that had not been thought of at the time: one of the ironies of the Word of God!

Gen 22:17

Rom 4:20

Num 23:19

10:20; Lev 16:2; Mt 27:51

Ps 110:4

Gen 14: 17-20

Jn 7:27

Dt 14:22

however, Melchizedek, who does not belong to the family of the Levites, is given tithes from Abraham. Still more, he blesses him, the man of God's promise. ⁷There is no doubt that he who blesses is higher than the one who is blessed. ⁸In the first case we see that tithes are received by those who are mortals; here instead, Melchizedek is mentioned as one who lives on.

⁹When Abraham pays the tenth, it is, so to speak, the Levites, receivers of the tithes, who pay the tithe, ¹⁰because, in a way, Levi was still in the body of Abraham, his ancestor, when Melchizedek met him.

Ps 110:4

¹¹The institutions of the chosen people are founded upon the Levitical priesthood, but with it they could not attain what is perfect and permanent. If that were possible, why would there be need of another priest after the order of Melchizedek instead of Aaron's? ¹²If there is a change in the priesthood, the Law also has to be changed. ¹³Jesus, to whom all this has reference, was from a tribe that never served at the altar. ¹⁴All know that he belonged to the tribe of Judah that is not mentioned by Moses when he speaks of the priesthood.

Mt 1:1;
Rom 1:3;
Rev 5:5

¹⁵All this, however, becomes clear if this priest after the likeness of Melchizedek ¹⁶has in fact received his mission, not on the basis of any human law, but by the power of an immortal life. ¹⁷Because Scripture says: You are a priest forever in the priestly order of Melchizedek. ¹⁸With this the former disposition is removed as insufficient and useless ¹⁹(for the Law did not bring anything to perfection). At the same time a better hope is given to us: that of drawing near to God.

Ps 110:4

²⁰This change is confirmed by God's oath. When the others became priests, God did not compromise himself with an oath, ²¹but Jesus is confirmed with an oath, as it is said: The Lord has sworn and will not change his mind: you are a priest forever. ²²Therefore, Jesus is our assurance of a better covenant.

Ps 110:4

2Cor 3:6

²³The former priests were many since, as mortal men, they could not remain in office. ²⁴But Jesus remains forever and the priesthood shall not be taken from him. ²⁵Consequently he is able to save for all time those who approach God through him. He always lives to intercede on their behalf.

²⁶It was fitting that our High Priest be holy, undefiled, set apart from sinners and exalted above the heavens; ²⁷a priest who does not first need to offer sacrifice for himself before offering for the sins of the people, as high priests do. He offered himself in sacrifice once and for all. ²⁸And whereas the Law elected weak men as high priests, now, after the Law, the word of God with an oath appointed the Son, made perfect forever.

5:3

A new sanctuary and a new covenant

8 • ¹The main point of what we are saying is that we have a high priest. He is seated at the right hand of the divine majesty in heaven, ²where he serves as minister of the

• 8.1 For the people of Israel, the institution of priests—and high priest—were closely linked to God's covenant with his people; it could not be questioned without questioning the bond uniting Israel with its God. No one would have dared to do it. However, the author quotes a central text of Jeremiah announcing a new covenant with his people.

When we speak of covenant, we speak of the way God treats us and the way we treat him. Jeremiah says: God will make himself known to believers in a personal way and no longer will it be a duty for them to love him, because they will have him present at every moment. This word of Jeremiah was known but it was given little attention: was he not speaking for true temple and sanctuary, set up not by any mortal but by the Lord.

³A high priest is appointed to offer to God gifts and sacrifices, and Jesus also has to offer some sacrifice. ⁴Had he remained on earth, he would not be a priest, since others offer the gifts according to the Law. ⁵In fact, the ritual celebrated by those priests is only an imitation and shadow of the heavenly sanctuary. We know the word of God to Moses with regard to the construction of the holy tent. He said: You are to make everything according to the pattern shown to you on the mountain.

⁶Now, however, Jesus enjoys a much higher ministry in being the mediator of a better covenant, founded on better promises. ⁷If all had been perfect in the first covenant, there would have been no need for another one. ⁸Yet God sees defects when he says:

The days are coming—it is the word of the Lord—when I will draw up a new covenant with the people of Israel and with the people of Judah.

⁹It will not be like the covenant that I made with their ancestors on the day I took them by the hand and led them out of Egypt. They did not keep my covenant, and so I myself have forsaken them, says the Lord.

¹⁰But this is the covenant that I will make with the people of Israel in the days to come: I will put my laws into their minds and write them on their hearts. I will be their God and they will be my people.

¹¹None of them will have to teach one another or say to each other: Know the Lord, for they will know me from the least to the greatest. ¹²I will forgive their sins and no longer remember their wrongs.

¹³Here we are being told of a new covenant; which means that the first one had become obsolete, and what is obsolete and aging is soon to disappear.

The temple in Jerusalem

9¹The first covenant had rites and regulations. There was also a sanctuary—an earthly one. ²A first

1Cor
11:25;
Mt
26:28;
2Cor
5:17;
Rev 21:4

25—26

a later time than his own? Here, the author says: with Jesus, we have this new covenant.

Jesus also has to offer some sacrifice (v. 3). The passage 1-5 draws our attention to the priesthood that is now Christ's in God's world. Is there a connection between that and the Eucharist we celebrate every day or every Sunday?

In 1 Corinthians 11:23-26, Paul closely united the Eucharist of today with the death of Jesus that truly appears as the sacrifice. In so doing he gives the orientation that has prevailed everywhere in the Church of the West. For us the mass is linked most of all to the crucifix which is above the altar. Here, we are invited to look towards this "heavenly cult" that Christ celebrates in glory. There the world of eternity with all the elect assembled in God meets the world of time, where they succeed each other, each one in its own time. The Apocalypse of John will invite us to look towards this celestial liturgy and it is precisely this understanding of Jesus' sacrifice that is stressed in the liturgy of the Eastern Church. It is not a matter of opposing, but of discovering the multiple richness of the faith.

Jesus enjoys a much higher ministry (v. 6). Our liturgical service on earth is glorious inasmuch as we try to associate with the perfect praise of God in his "heaven." It is the sunshine of our week, but it cannot be our essential duty unless we have received a special charism. Here below, we must follow Jesus who did not envy the priests of his time but labored and died to reconcile humans with one another and with God.

Those who wish to meet Jesus in real life where truth must be observed will be easily accused of meddling in politics (which is not a sin). However it is a fact that Jesus did not die to defend religious practice, but to show that it is not what is most important. His "baptism" was a real death, likewise his "eucharist": this did not resemble a beautiful liturgy, in which no one (of course) risks life.

• 9.1 Chapter 8 established that Jesus replaces the priests of the people of God, and

Rev
11:19;
25:40

Jer 31: 31-34

16:34;
Num
17:23

tent was prepared with the lampstand, the table and the bread of the presence, this is called the Holy Place. ³Behind the second curtain, there is a second sanctuary called the Most Holy Place, ⁴with the gold altar for the burning of incense, and the ark of the Covenant, fully covered with gold. The ark contained a golden jar holding the manna, Aaron's rod that had sprouted leaves and the two slabs of the covenant. ⁵Above the ark the two cherubim of glory overshadowed the Seat of Mercy. But we cannot here describe it in detail.

⁶With everything arranged as described, the priests continually enter the first room to fulfill their ministry; ⁷but the High Priest enters only once a year the second one, and not without bringing the blood which he will offer for himself and for the sins of the people. ⁸By this, the Holy Spirit teaches us that the way into the inner sanctuary is not open as long as the first tent still stands. ⁹Here is a teaching by means of figures for the present age: the gifts and sacrifices presented to God cannot bring the people offering them to interior perfection. ¹⁰These are no more than food, drink and different kinds of cleansing by water; all these are human regulations awaiting a reformation.

that with his "priesthood" our relation with God has changed. Chapter 9 compares the celebrated cult in the Temple of Jerusalem and the new cult celebrated by Christ-priest.

The sacrifice offered by Christ, his death, were not like the ancient sacrifices to appease the anger of God. His death has been his final testimony and his way of sowing among people what they did not want to receive; with this testimony, he gave himself into his Father's hands.

Knowing who the author of this letter was and to whom it was addressed, we understand that he relates the blood of Jesus and his death to that of the victims that were offered in the Temple, since for them these things were very important. Yet today we have the right to relate the blood and the death of Christ to the death of all the murdered innocent, as Jesus himself gave us to understand (Mt 23:35): their blood is sacred, too (Rev 6:9).

THE ONE AND ONLY PRIEST AND "PRIESTS"

Jesus is the unique priest, and we speak of priests in the Church. Let us understand clearly, especially when, almost everywhere, the priesthood is in crisis.

In Latin there is the word "sacerdos" which signifies both the priests at the service of the Roman gods and the priests of the Jewish people. When the Church came to be, not for an instant did it think of priests of this kind, holy persons who were privileged in being able to approach God to offer sacrifice. Christ alone was "sacerdos," and all that the Church had were "presbyters," meaning elders, the same title that the Jews used for those responsible for communities. Yet it is fact that now presbyter has become priest and this word has revived the meaning of the ancient "sacerdos" which had been put aside.

It is not the result of chance. From the fourth century the Church adopted the term "sacerdos" for its use, the man of the sacred and the consecrated man. Why this going backwards?

One reason was that times had changed: the Church of the catacombs had developed into a Christianity recognized by authority, with the Christian population grouped and cared for by an organized clergy (see commentary on Num 4).

There were other profound reasons. It was recognized that the Church was not a human society and that its organization must reflect the very order that is in God. The bishops, therefore, must incarnate the authority of the apostles chosen by Jesus. They were, in their turn, official witnesses of Christ and guided the Church without having to bend to the will of the majority; in so doing, they were maintaining in the Church the principle of fatherhood (see commentary on Eph 3:14). The Church, moreover, considered the ordination of priests and bishops as a sacrament: they were not functionaries who assumed service for a time, and for a part of their life, keeping for themselves the rest of their life, as the term "ministers" might lead us to believe. Their responsibility in the Church was inseparable from an attachment and a consecration of their person to Christ.

The ministers, successors of the apostles, were then priests in a certain sense but it is dif-

Jesus entered with his own blood

¹¹ But now Christ has appeared as the high priest with regard to the good things of these new times. He passed through a sanctuary more noble and perfect, not made by hands, that is, not created. ¹² He did not take with himself the blood of goats and bulls but his own blood, when he entered once and for all into this sanctuary after obtaining definitive redemption. ¹³ If the sprinkling of people defiled by sin with the blood of goats and bulls or with the ashes of a heifer provides them with exterior cleanness and holiness, ¹⁴ how much more will it be with the blood of Christ? He, moved by the eternal Spirit, offered himself as an unblemished victim to God and his blood cleanses us from dead works, so that we may serve the living God.

1P 1:19;
1Jn 1:7

Mt 26:28

Gal 3:15

¹⁵ So Christ is the mediator of a new covenant or testament. His death made atonement for the sins committed under the old testament, and the promise is handed over to all who are called to the everlasting inheritance. ¹⁶ With every testament it is necessary to wait until its author has died. ¹⁷ For a testament infers death and has no value while the maker of it is still alive.

¹⁸ That is why the first covenant was not ratified without blood. ¹⁹ Moses proclaimed to the assembled people all the commandments of the Law; then he took the blood of bulls and goats and mixed it with water, and with these he sprinkled the book itself and all the people using scarlet wool and hyssop ²⁰ saying: This is the blood of the Covenant that God commanded you. ²¹ In the same way he sprinkled with blood the Sanctuary and all the objects of the ritual. ²² According to the Law, almost all cleansings have to be performed with blood; there is no forgiveness without the shedding of blood.

24:8

²³ It was necessary that mere copies of supernatural realities be purified, but now these realities need better sacrifices. ²⁴ Christ did not enter some sanctuary made by hands, a copy of the true one, but heaven itself. He is now in the presence of God on our behalf. ²⁵ He had not to offer himself many times, as the High Priest does: he who may return every year, because the blood is not his own. ²⁶ Otherwise he would have suffered many times from the creation of the world. But no; he manifested himself only now at the end of the ages, to take away sin by sacrifice, ²⁷ and, as humans die only once and afterwards are judged, ²⁸ in the same way Christ sacrificed himself once to take away the sins of the multitude. There will be no further question of sin when he comes again to save those waiting for him.

Gal 4:4;
Jn 1:29

1Tim
6:14;
Is 53:12;
1Thes
1:10;
Phil 3:20

difficult for these strongly opposing terms to have a happy marriage. It was essential for them to have spiritual authority but not tolerate any exterior marks that neither Jesus nor his apostles accepted. They would have to be on their guard not to allow their recognized authority to serve our innate aspiration to have the last word, or to be different from others, or served by others. They must be masters in faith, but without deciding for others; be leaders but not obligatory intermediaries between God and the baptized.

All that is asking for something impossible, if it is not through the imitation of Christ-priest: the renunciation of self even to death.

These chapters allow us to see at close range what the unique priest has been—far removed from the liturgies of the earth. It helps us to see the priesthood of Christ in all the baptized who “do not say mass” in the measure of their involvement in the life of the Church, be it in the apostolate, preaching, service of neighbors, or quite simply in a silent or suffering life.

The old covenant prefigures the new

Col 2:17

10 •¹The religion of the Law is only a shadow of the good things to come; it has the patterns but not the realities. So, year after year, the same sacrifices are offered without bringing the worshipers to what is the end. ²If they had been cleansed once and for all, they would no longer have felt guilt and would have stopped offering the same sacrifices. ³But no, year after year their sacrifices witness to their sins ⁴and never will the blood of bulls and goats take away these sins.

Ps 40:7-9
(LXX)

⁵This is why on entering the world, Christ says: You did not desire sacrifice and offering; ⁶*you were not pleased with burnt offerings and sin offerings.* ⁷*Then I said: "Here I am. It was written of me in the scroll. I will do your will, O God."*

⁸*First he says: Sacrifice, offerings, burnt offerings and sin offerings you did not desire nor were you pleased with them—although they were required by the Law.* ⁹Then he says: Here I am to do your will.

This is enough to nullify the first will and establish the new. ¹⁰Now, by this will of God, we are sanctified once and for all by the sacrifice of the body of Christ Jesus. ¹¹So, whereas every priest stands daily by the altar offering repeatedly the same sacrifices that can never take away sins, ¹²Christ has offered for all times a single sacrifice for sins and has taken his seat at the right hand of God, ¹³waiting until God puts his enemies as a footstool under his feet. ¹⁴By a single sacrifice he has brought those who are sanctified to what is perfect forever.

Ps 110:1

¹⁵This also was testified by the Holy Spirit. For after having declared: ¹⁶*This is the covenant that I will make with them in the days to come—says the Lord—I will put my laws in their hearts and write them on their minds.* ¹⁷He says: Their sins and evil deeds I will remember no more. ¹⁸So, if sins are forgiven, there is no longer need of any sacrifice for sin.

Jer 31:
33-34

Be confident in God

•¹⁹So, my friends, we are assured of entering the Sanctuary by the

• 10.1 These paragraphs (vv. 1-8) say that we passed from a religion where everything is a continual beginning again to a new state where we are in the definitive now. Here we have an aspect of the Christian faith that is not easy to accept. Are we alone holding the definitive truth in the midst of so many religions in which all presume to have the truth? Are we in a definitive situation when every day we fall into the same sins? Are we the definitive people of God when the Christian witness in the world is so far from convincing? No one will answer our doubts on this point: our only hope is to personally enter more deeply into the Christian experience.

If they had been cleansed once and for all (v. 2). If they multiplied sacrifices for pardon, it proves that no one would have freed them of sin. As for ourselves, do we not often receive the sacrament of pardon? How then can we affirm that Christ's sacrifice has freed us?

The sacraments we receive—and the pardon we receive in the Church—are never more than the application at the present moment of that which has been done once and for all. For a baptized person, there is no further rite, commitment, new baptism (baptism with a lot of water, baptism "in the spirit"...) that can give more. All has been given in Jesus. John does not hesitate to say that whoever is in Christ does not sin (Jn 3:6): he does not commit a sin that leads to death (1 Jn 5:17). Only sins that cause a total rupture with Christ can bring us back to our former state of "death." Although it is certain that confession is of great help to overcome sin, let us not think a Christian continually passes from mortal sin to grace by confessing, sinning again, and confessing again.

• 19. The paragraph 19-39 draws the conclusion to what has just been said: if we have blood of Jesus ²⁰who opened for us this new and living way passing through the curtain, that is, his body.

²¹Because we have a high priest in charge of the House of God, ²²let us approach with a sincere heart, with full faith, interiorly cleansed from a bad conscience and our bodies washed with pure water.

²³Let us hold fast to our hope without wavering, because he who promised is faithful. ²⁴Let us consider how we may spur one another to love and good works. ²⁵Do not abandon the assemblies as some of you do, but encourage one another, and all the more since the Day is drawing near.

²⁶If we sin willfully after receiving knowledge of the truth, there is no longer sacrifice for sin, ²⁷but only the fearful prospect of judgment and of fire which devours the rebellious.

²⁸For whoever violated the law of Moses there is no mercy: is put to death by the testimony of two or three persons. ²⁹What, then, do you think it will be for those who have despoised the Son of God? How severely shall he be punished for having defiled the blood of the covenant by which they were sanctified and for having insulted the Spirit given to them? ³⁰For we know the One who says: Revenge is mine, I will repay. And also: The Lord will judge his people. ³¹What a dreadful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

³²Remember the first days when you were enlightened. You had to undergo a hard struggle in the face of suffering. ³³Publicly you were exposed to humiliations and trials, and had to share the sufferings of others who were similarly treated. ³⁴You showed solidarity with those in prison; you were dispossessed of your goods and accepted it gladly for you knew you were acquiring a much better and more durable possession. ³⁵Do not now throw away your confidence that will be handsomely rewarded. ³⁶Be patient in doing the will of God, and the promise will be yours: ³⁷*A little, a little longer—says Scripture—and he who is coming will come; he will not delay.* ³⁸*My righteous one will live if he believes; but if he distrusts, I will no longer look kindly on him.*

³⁹We are not among those who withdraw and perish, but among those who believe and win personal salvation.

Remembering the heroes of faith

11 • ¹Faith is the assurance of what we hope for, being cerentered the definitive now, beware of the real sin that would be to lose hope. True sin is to lose the taste for what we have already partly shared. The only remedy is to advance. Remember the word of St. Gregory: “We desire the pleasures of the world when we do not possess them, when we have them we tire of them; as long as we have not discovered spiritual joy we do not desire it, but we desire it in the same degree that we possess it.”

Do not abandon the assemblies (v. 25). When our hope is sick, we find reasons for not attending our Sunday celebration or the assembly of the community to which we belong. If it becomes general, the Christian community falls apart. As for ourselves who are not angels, are we going to live Christ if we have no community? In vain shall we be present with those who do not share our faith in every kind of excellent activity; we will lack what is essential: to be among them as witnesses to what they do not know.

A little longer (v. 37). This is taken from Habakkuk 2:3 and refers to the judgment of God which is approaching. The author of the letter may have wished to allude to the crisis that, very soon, was going to destroy the Jewish nation.

• 11.1 Doubts overcome those who isolate themselves. Why do we not look at those who have gone before us, not just one or the other

Ezk 36:25; Eph 5:26

Is 26:11

Dt 17:6

Mt 26:28; 1Cor 11:27

Dt 32:35

Mt 10:28

Is 26:20 (LXX); Hb 2:3-4 (LXX)

1P 1:9

Rom 8:24

tain of what we cannot see. ²Because of their faith our ancestors were approved.

³By faith we understand that the stages of creation were disposed by God's word, and what is visible came from what cannot be seen.

Gen 4:4 ⁴Because of Abel's faith his offering was more acceptable than that of his brother Cain, which meant he was upright, and God himself approved his offering. Because of this faith he cried to God, as said in Scripture, even after he died.

Gen 5:24 ⁵By faith Enoch was taken to heaven, instead of experiencing death: he could not be found because God had taken him. In fact, it is said that before being taken up he had pleased God. ⁶Yet without faith it is impossible to please him: no one draws near to God without first believing that he exists and that he rewards those who seek him earnestly.

Gen 6: Rom 3:22 ⁷By faith Noah was instructed of events which could not yet be seen and, heeding what he heard, he built a boat in which to save his family. The faith of Noah condemned the world and he reached holiness born of faith.

⁸It was by faith that Abraham, called by God, set out for a country that would be given to him as an inheritance; for he parted without knowing where he was going. ⁹By faith he lived as a stranger in that promised land. There he lived in tents, as did Isaac and Jacob, beneficiaries of the same promise. ¹⁰Indeed, he looked forward to that city of solid foundation of which God is the architect and builder.

¹¹By faith Sarah herself received power to become a mother, in spite of her advanced age; since she believed that he who had made the promise would be faithful. ¹²Therefore, from an almost impotent man were born descendants as numerous as the stars of heavens, as many as the grains of sand on the seashore.

Gen 12

Gen 26

Gen 17:19

Gen 15:5

but the mass of witnesses: all cannot be illusory.

Faith is the assurance of what we hope for, being certain of what we cannot see. The examples chosen show that faith cannot remain within us as an intimate conviction. What matters is to act according to faith and make decisions inspired by faith. That is why this chapter offers so many biblical examples of men and women who risked everything for faith. We cannot understand the obedience of Abraham unless he had trust in God against all hope. The same when Moses gave up a promising future for the impossible task of leading his people: his faith made him act in the present as if he saw what was invisible (v. 27).

It is not so simple to say what a believer believes, what she hopes for and what she does not want: the given examples show many different attitudes. Enoch searched for God, Noah prepared for the future of the world on the eve of a catastrophe, some lived on earth without looking for a fixed abode, others gave their lives in defense of an earthly homeland. All were certain that God wanted to do something with them: their life would be fruitful in one way or another. The contrast in verse 35 is to be noted: some through faith obtained from God the resurrection of a dead child (1 K 17:23) but the faith of others led them to choose torture and death, expecting from God a resurrection in the future.

This selection of heroes of faith gives a place of honor to leaders and valiant people who have wished to free and serve their people. In so doing they were perhaps unconsciously seeking their real homeland. How many people today, unbelievers perhaps, shunned by the churches, are in fact on the road to the city of God when they sacrifice themselves in preparing for the future of the world! They are the Hebrews of the modern world and God is not ashamed of being called their God (v. 16).

These heroes of the faith died without having seen what God promised; it would seem that many have failed but their successors will discover that it is they who have made authentic history. The author addresses the Christians saying: "We are people of faith and we shall save our soul," which means: we shall fulfill all that is in us, and await what God has reserved for us in eternity.

Gen 23:4; 47:9; Ps 39:13; 119:19

¹³Death found all these people strong in their faith. They had not received what was promised, but they had looked ahead and had rejoiced in it from afar, saying that they were foreigners and travelers on earth. ¹⁴Those who speak in this way prove that they are looking for their own country. ¹⁵For if they had longed for the land they had left, it would have been easy for them to return, ¹⁶but no, they aspired to a better city, that is, a supernatural one; so God, who prepared the city for them is not ashamed of being called their God.

Jas 2:20

¹⁷By faith Abraham went to offer Isaac when God tested him. And so he who had received the promise of God offered his only son ¹⁸although God had told him: Isaac's descendants will bear your name. ¹⁹Abraham reasoned that God is capable even of raising the dead, and he received back his son, which has a figurative meaning.

Gen 48:15-16; 47:31 (LXX)

Gen 50:24-25

²⁰By faith also Isaac blessed the future of Jacob and Esau. ²¹By faith Jacob, before he died, blessed both children of Joseph and worshiped as he leaned on his staff. ²²By faith Joseph, when about to die, warned the children of Israel of their exodus and gave orders about his remains.

2:2; 1:22

²³By faith the parents of the newly born Moses hid him for three months, for they saw the baby was very beautiful and they did not fear the order of Pharaoh. ²⁴By faith Moses, already an adult, refused to be called son of Pharaoh's daughter. ²⁵He preferred to share ill treatment with the people of God, rather than enjoy the passing pleasures of sin. ²⁶He considered the humiliation of Christ a greater riches than the wealth of Egypt, and he looked ahead to his reward. ²⁷By faith he left Egypt without fearing the king's anger, and he persevered as someone who could see the Invisible.

²⁸By faith Moses had the Passover celebrated, sprinkling the doors with blood so that the Destroyer would not kill their firstborn sons. ²⁹By faith they crossed the Red Sea, as if on dry land, while the Egyptians who tried to cross it were swallowed by the waters and drowned.

³⁰By faith the walls of Jericho crumbled and fell, after Israel had marched round them for seven days; ³¹by faith, also, the prostitute Rahab escaped death which befell the unbelievers for having welcomed the spies.

³²Do I need to say more? There is not enough time to speak of Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephthah, David, as well as Samuel and the prophets. ³³Through faith they fought and conquered nations, established justice, saw the fulfillment of God's promises, shut the mouths of lions, ³⁴quenched raging fire, escaped the sword, were healed of their sicknesses; they were weak people who were given strength to be brave in battle and repulse foreign invaders.

³⁵Some women recovered their dead by resurrection but there were others—persecuted and tortured believers—who, for the sake of a better resurrection, refused to do what would have saved them. ³⁶Others suffered chains and prison. ³⁷They were stoned, sawn in two, killed by the sword. They fled from place to place with no other clothing than the skins of sheep and goats, lacking everything, afflicted, ill-treated. ³⁸These people of whom the world was not worthy had to wander through wastelands and mountains, and take refuge in the dens of the land.

³⁹However, although all of them were praised because of their faith,

12

Jas 6:20

Jas 2:11; Jas 2:25

Jdg 6:11; 4:6; 1S 12:11

1K 17:23; 2Mac 6:18

Jer 20:2; 37:15

they did not enjoy the promise ⁴⁰because God had us in mind and saw beyond. And he did not want them to reach perfection except with us.

Accept the correction of the Lord

12 ¹What a cloud of innumerable witnesses surround us! So let us be rid of every encumbrance, and especially of sin, to persevere in running the race marked out before us.

13:13;
Phil 2:5

Lk 2:34

²Let us look to Jesus the founder of our faith, who will bring it to completion. For the sake of the joy reserved for him, he endured the cross, scorning its shame, and then sat at the right of the throne of God. ³Think of Jesus who suffered so many contradictions from evil people, and you will not be discouraged or grow weary. ⁴Have you already shed your blood in the struggle against sin?

Pro 3:
11-12

⁵Do not forget the comforting words that Wisdom addresses to you as children: My son, pay attention when the Lord corrects you and do not be discouraged when he punishes you. ⁶*For the Lord corrects those he loves and chastises every-one he accepts as a son.*

⁷What you endure is in order to correct you. God treats you like sons and what son is not corrected by his father? ⁸If you were without correction which has been received by all, (as is fitting for sons), you would not be sons but bastards. ⁹Besides, when our parents according to the flesh corrected us, we respected them. How much more should we be subject to the Father of spirits to have life? ¹⁰Our parents corrected us as they saw fit, with a view to this very short life; but God corrects us for our own good that we may share his holiness.

¹¹All correction is painful at the moment, rather than pleasant; later it brings the fruit of peace, that is, holiness to those who have been trained by it.

¹²Lift up, then, your drooping hands, and strengthen your trembling knees; ¹³make level the ways for your feet, so that the lame may not be disabled, but healed.

Is 35:3

Pro 4:26

Strive to be holy

¹⁴Strive for peace with all and strive to be holy, for without holiness no one will see the Lord.

¹⁵See that no one falls from the grace of God, lest a bitter plant spring up and its poison corrupt

Dt 29:17

• 12.1 Three reasons for remaining steadfast under testing:

- think about Jesus and his sufferings;
- think about “the communion of saints,” that is to say, the mysterious bonds uniting all believers;
- think of the trial as a test coming from the Father.

The Father of spirits (v. 9). In Numbers 16:22, Moses begs the God of the spirits of all humankind: it is a way of saying that, since God knows the inner core of all people, he knows their misery and he will not punish them severely.

• 14. After this long invitation to live by faith, the author intends to deal with more practical matters (vv. 14-15). In fact, he immediately returns to the exceptional gift that is faith in Christ. He reminds his readers of what they experienced in baptism when they received the gifts of the Spirit.

You came near to Mount Zion (v. 22). This mountain on which Jerusalem was built was for the Jews the image of the heavenly city. At the time of their baptism the believers experienced to different degrees a transformation giving them a joyful awareness of belonging to God. They experienced it in a community context where they became aware of what the holy Church is. They became one in the family of God, of saints and angels. Perhaps they came to know something of this mysterious center where the destiny of the world is decided and where Jesus himself is present. They must not forget later the experiences given them in enlightened times.

Gen 25:33 many among you. ¹⁶Let no one be immoral or irreligious like Esau, who sold his birthright for a single meal. ¹⁷You know that later, when he wished to get the blessing, he was rejected although he pleaded with tears.

19:16 ¹⁸What you have come to is nothing known to the senses: nor heat of a blazing fire, darkness and gloom and storms, ¹⁹*blasts of trumpets* or such a voice that the people pleaded that no further word be spoken. ²⁰For they could not endure the order that was given: Every man or beast reaching the mountain shall be stoned.

Dt 9:19 ²¹The sight was so terrifying that Moses said: I tremble with fear.

Gen 4:26; Rev 21:2 ²²But you came near to Mount Zion, to the city of the living God, to the heavenly Jerusalem with its innumerable angels. You have come to the solemn feast, ²³the assembly of the firstborn of God, whose names are written in heaven. There is God, Judge of all, with the spirits of the upright brought to perfection. ²⁴There is Jesus, the mediator of the new covenant, with the sprinkled blood that cries out more effectively than Abel's.

Ps 82:2 ²⁵Be careful not to reject God when he speaks. If those who did not heed the prophet's warnings were not spared on earth, how much more shall we be punished if we do not heed the One warning us from heaven? ²⁶His voice then shook the earth, but now he says: Once more I will shake not only the earth but also the heavens.

Hg 2:6

²⁷The words once more indicate the removal of everything that can be shaken, that is, created things, and only those that cannot be shaken will remain. ²⁸Such is the kingdom that we receive. Let us then be grateful and offer to God a worship pleasing to him with reverence and awe. ²⁹Our God is indeed a consuming fire.

Dn 7:18

Dt 4:24; Is 33:14

Words of encouragement

13 ¹Let mutual love continue. ²Do not neglect to offer hospitality; you know that some people have entertained angels without knowing it. ³Remember prisoners as if you were with them in chains, and the same for those who are suffering. Remember that you also have a body.

Gen 18:2

⁴Marriage must be respected by all and husband and wife faithful to each other. God will punish the immoral and the adulterous.

1Cor 6:13; 1Thes 4:4

⁵Do not depend on money. Be content with having enough for today for God has said: I will never forsake you or abandon you, ⁶and we shall confidently answer: The Lord is my helper, I will not fear; what can man

1Tim 6:6; Dt 31:6

Ps 118:6

• 13.1 Faith is great, but it is lived in the little things of daily life. The persecuted people to whom this letter is addressed need not undertake new tasks. They will manifest their faith through an upright and generous life. They will also have to accept their situation of being marginalized, sharing the shame of Christ.

Jesus suffered his Passion outside the holy city (v. 12). The Bible required that victims sacrificed for the forgiveness of sins be burned outside the sacred area of the Temple: that was a way of showing that the sin of the people had been transferred to those victims, then thrown out to take all evil and sin away from the people. This rite somehow already announced what was to happen with Jesus who died outside the holy city of Jerusalem: he was the true victim for sin.

We can draw another lesson, as well: believers must leave the holy area, that is, a comfortable and respected life, in order to seek the Kingdom of Justice to which little care is given. Believers oppose the present world, and "are not of this world"; and they refuse to enjoy this world as if it were their final homeland.

1Thes
5:12;
1Cor
6:16;
Phil 2:29

do to me? ⁷Remember your leaders who taught you the word of God. Consider their end and imitate their faith. ⁸Christ Jesus is the same today as yesterday and forever.

Eph 4:14;
Col 2:17
⁹Do not be led astray by all kinds of strange teachings. Your heart will be strengthened by the grace of God rather than by foods of no use to anyone. ¹⁰We have an altar from which those still serving in the Temple cannot eat.

Lev 16:27
Jn 19:20;
Acts 7:58;
Mt 21:39;
Heb 13:14;
1Cor 7:29;
Phil 3:21
¹¹After the High Priest has offered the blood in the Sanctuary for the sins of the people, the carcasses of the animals are burnt outside the camp. ¹²For this same reason Jesus, to purify the people with his own blood, suffered his Passion outside the holy city. ¹³Let us, therefore, go to him outside the sacred area, sharing his shame. ¹⁴For we have here no lasting city and we are looking for the one to come.

Ps 50:14;
Rom 10:9
Phil 4:18
¹⁵Let us, then, continually offer through Jesus a sacrifice of praise to God, that is the fruit of lips celebrating his name. ¹⁶Do not neglect good works and common life, for these are sacrifices pleasing to God. ¹⁷Obey your leaders and submit to them, for they are concerned for your souls and are accountable for them. Let this be a joy for them rather than a burden, which would be of no advantage for you.

¹⁸Pray for us, for we believe our intentions are pure and that we only want to act honorably in all things. ¹⁹Now I urge you all the more to pray for me that I may be given back to you the sooner.

²⁰May God give you peace, he who brought back from among the dead Jesus our Lord, the Great Shepherd of the sheep, whose blood seals the eternal covenant.

²¹He will train you in every good work, that you may do his will, for it is he who works in us what pleases him, through Jesus Christ, to whom all glory be for ever and ever. Amen!

²²Brothers, I beg you to take these words of encouragement. For my part, I will add few words. ²³Know that our brother Timothy has been released. If he comes soon I will visit you with him. ²⁴Greetings to all your leaders and to the saints. Greetings from those in Italy.

²⁵Grace be with you all.

Jn 10:11;
1P 2:22

PAGE 1832 – BLANK

Who is this James? He is probably the “brother of the Lord,” barely mentioned in the Gospel, with regard to his mother (Mk 6:3; 15:40; 16:1). And yet, he was privileged to have the risen Jesus appear to him (1 Cor 15:7). It also seems that when he is about to go underground, Peter entrusts the Church of Jerusalem to him (Acts 12:17; 15:13; 21:18). Later on, James appears to have been responsible for all the Christian communities, with a majority of Jews, that were established in Palestine, Syria and Cilicia (see Acts 15:13-29).

Of all the apostles, James was the most attached to Jewish traditions (the opposite of Paul). Yet, although Paul harshly criticized James’ associates, he seemed to have more than personal respect for James. In addressing the faithful dispersed outside Palestine, James is teaching them simple and practical things inspired from the wisdom of the Old Testament. We recognize authentic religion by the way we live and treat people around us.

We cannot fail to see that the passage where James shows that faith is nothing without works (2:14-26) contradicts, at least seemingly, Paul’s declarations about justification by faith in Galatians 5 and Romans 4. However, a careful study shows that James was familiar with Paul’s first letter to the Corinthians when he wrote his letter. Paul had forcefully declared that faith is nothing without love (1 Cor 13:2) and James simply approved. Without contradicting James, in Galatians and Romans, Paul emphasized that faith purifies the heart of pagans and Jews, long before we accomplish the works of love that God has prepared beforehand for us to practice (Eph 2:10).

What is evident from the many contacts between the letters of Peter, James and Paul is that the Church was not a galaxy of dispersed communities set in their own interpretations of the faith and their attachment to a particular apostle—something we read all too often in works of the last century such as the—“Johannine circles,” the “Pauline communities,” the “Lukan communities,” etc. The letters of the apostles traveled very fast and people received them from one end of the Mediterranean basin to the other. The Church of the apostles was a reality even when the apostles confronted one another.

Here, Christians are called the twelve tribes dispersed among the nations. In fact, the term “Diaspora,” that is to say, “dispersion” was used to refer to Jews who had settled outside their homeland. In view of what we have said, James must have written his letter in 56, between 1 Corinthians and Galatians. In any case, we know that James was stoned to death in 62.

Endure trials patiently

Mt 7:7;
21:21

1 ¹James, a servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, sends greetings to the twelve tribes scattered among the nations.

• ²Consider yourselves fortunate, my brothers and sisters, when you meet with every kind of trial, ³for you know that the testing of your faith makes you steadfast. ⁴Let your steadfastness become perfect with deeds, that you yourselves may be perfect and blameless, without any defect.

⁵If any of you is lacking in wisdom, ask God who gives to all easily and unconditionally. ⁶But ask with faith, not doubting, for the one who doubts is like a wave driven and tossed on the sea by the wind. ⁷Such a person should not expect anything from the Lord, since the doubter has two minds ⁸and his conduct will always be insecure.

Jer 9:22
Is 40:6-7

⁹Let the believer who is poor boast in been uplifted, ¹⁰and let the rich one boast in being humbled, because he will pass away like the flower of the field. ¹¹The sun rises and its heat dries the grass; the flower withers and its beauty vanishes. So, too, will the rich person fade away even in the midst of his pursuits.

¹²Happy are those who patiently endure trials, because afterwards they will receive the crown of life which the Lord promised to those who love him. ¹³No one, when tempted, should say, "This temptation comes from God." God is never tempted and he can never tempt anyone. ¹⁴Instead, each of us is lured and enticed by our own evil desire. ¹⁵Once this desire has conceived, it gives birth to sin, and sin, when fully grown, gives birth to death.

Wis
5:15;
2Tim 4:8

Sir 15:11

1Cor
10:13;
Mt 6:13
Rom
6:23

• ¹⁶Do not be deceived, my beloved. ¹⁷Every good and perfect gift comes from above, from the Father of Light, in whom there is no change or shadow of a change. ¹⁸By his own will he gave us life through the Word of Truth, that we might be a kind of offering to him among his creatures.

1Jn 1:5;
1Tim
6:16;
1P 1:23;
Jn 1:12

• 1.2 What is most impressive at the beginning of the letter is the firmness of faith. James is a man who does not hesitate and we feel very reassured by his conviction: ask God because he gives to everyone. Fortunate when you meet with every trial.

The testing of your faith (v. 3). We are not in this world to have a good time. What matters is to take advantage of the time God gives us to grow and mature as persons. The person who has not suffered knows very little. Often-times, those who have suffered do not realize that they owe the best in themselves to their having had to overcome a thousand difficulties.

To save the poor and the afflicted does not consist so much in comforting them or giving them bread as in helping them to face their destiny, to realize themselves through their own efforts and to discover they are helpless if they do not first acknowledge their brothers and sisters and act with them.

If any of you is lacking in wisdom (v. 5). God has placed in our midst all that we need to solve our problems. The wisdom that makes us be responsible for our destiny instead of being passive comes from him.

Ask with faith (v. 6). The one who knows what are the obstacles from which God wishes to save him will be the one who has no hesitation in asking with faith.

No one should say (v. 13). Most people are secretly resentful toward God and do not miss an opportunity to blame him for their own mistakes.

• 16. The Father of Light in whom there is no change or shadow of a change (v. 17). Because we are inconstant, James invites us to look to the Father who does not change and whose holiness and happiness are touched by nothing. What an amazing thing: in his eternity, the Father enjoys our presence, while we who live in time do not yet know how to focus on him. We must acquire the same firmness and constancy that are in God.

He gave us life (v. 18). This affirmation will be developed in 1 Peter 1. It is a reminder of baptism through which we received new life.

Pro
10:19;
1P 2:1

¹⁹My beloved, be quick to hear but slow to speak and slow to anger, ²⁰for human anger does not fulfill the justice of God. ²¹So get rid of any filth and reject the prevailing evil, and welcome the Word that has been planted in you and has the power to save you.

Lk 8:21;
1Jn 3:17

²²Be doers of the Word and not just hearers, lest you deceive yourselves. ²³The hearer who does not become a doer is like that one who looked himself at the mirror. ²⁴He looked and then promptly forgot what he was like. ²⁵But those who fix their gaze on the perfect law of freedom and hold onto it, not listening and then forgetting, but acting on it, will find blessing on their deeds.

Mt 5:17;
Ps 19:8;
1Jn 13:17

²⁶Those who think they are religious but do not restrain their tongue, deceive themselves and their religion is in vain. ²⁷In the sight of God, our Father, pure and blameless religion lies in helping the orphans and widows in their need and keeping oneself from the world's corruption.

22:21

Treat the rich and the poor equally

2 • ¹My brothers and sisters, if you truly believe in our glorified Lord, Jesus Christ, you will not discriminate between persons. ²Suppose a person enters the synagogue where you are assembled, dressed magnificently and wearing a gold ring; at the same time, a poor person enters dressed in rags. ³If you focus your attention on the well-dressed and say, "Come and sit in the best seat," while to the poor one you say, "Stay standing or else sit down at my feet," ⁴have you not, in fact, made a distinction between the two? Have you not judged, using a double standard?

⁵Listen, my beloved brothers and sisters, did God not choose the poor of this world to receive the riches of faith and to inherit the kingdom which he has promised to those who love him? ⁶Yet you despise them! Is it not the rich who are against you and drag you to court? ⁷Do they not insult the holy name of Christ by which you are called?

1Cor
1:26;
Zep 2:3;
Rev 2:9

1P 4:11

James draws this conclusion: we must keep the word of God, meditate on it to find out what it demands of us. It is not enough to have improved our lives for a while in preparation for baptism; we must persevere on the path of goodness.

• 2.1 Whoever makes a distinction between persons (v. 4) is not Christian.

Distinction of class, of color: there is never a reason for showing favoritism and not respecting the rights of each person, for making her wait or treating her less well. There is at stake an instinct for justice that is linked with faith.

James speaks of distinctions within the Church and alas! Often it is there that they tenaciously cling. If in many countries the Church is much frequented by those who are socially well off, better educated, it is surely because of its choices: our practices have cast aside others until they are no longer seen.

Did God not choose the poor of this world to receive the riches of faith? The apostles who are our undisputed masters in faith were poor with regard to money and influence, but they were sufficiently rich in faith to sign it with their blood.

James says that the rich profane the name of Christ. He speaks perhaps of the rich unbelievers who ridicule the simple faithful, or perhaps of the wealthy Christians whose way of life draws criticism of the name of Christ. They profane the name of Christ and bring contempt on the Church.

James invites the Church to examine itself on the way we treat each other in our institutions: with whom are the pastors of the Church usually found, who are those with whom they feel at ease and in whom they confide. What terrible truth would be revealed by an investigation of these points!

The law of freedom: Paul, John, Peter and James all agree on the point that Christians cannot be satisfied with simply obeying the commandments, or respecting a master's will in order not to get in trouble. No, Christians

Lev 19:18; Mt 22:39
 Lev 19:15; Mt 5:19
 20:13-14; Dt 5:17-18
 Mt 5:7; 18:34

⁸If you keep the Law of the Kingdom, according to Scripture: Love your neighbor as yourself, you do well; ⁹but if you make distinctions between persons, you break the law and are condemned by the same law. ¹⁰For whoever keeps the whole law but fails in one aspect, is guilty of breaking it all. ¹¹For he who said, Do not commit adultery, also said, Do not kill. If, then, you do not commit adultery but you do commit murder, you have broken the Law. ¹²Therefore, speak and behave like people who are going to be judged by the law of freedom. ¹³There will be justice without mercy for those who have not shown mercy, whereas mercy has nothing to fear of judgment.

Faith is shown in action

2:24; Mt 25:41; Gal 5:6
 1Jn 3:17

• ¹⁴What good is it, my brothers and sisters, to profess faith without showing works? Such faith has no power to save you. ¹⁵If a brother or sister is in need of clothes or food ¹⁶and one of you says, “May things go well for you; be warm and satisfied,” without attending to their material needs, what good is that? ¹⁷So it is for faith without deeds: it is totally dead.

¹⁸Say to whoever challenges you, “You have faith and I have good deeds; show me your faith apart from actions and I, for my part, will show you my faith in the way I act.” ¹⁹Do you believe there is one God? Well enough, but do not forget that the demons also believe and tremble with fear!

²⁰You foolish one, do you have to be convinced that faith without deeds is useless? ²¹Think of our father Abraham. Was he not justified by the act of offering his son Isaac on the altar? ²²So you see, his faith was active along with his deeds and became perfect by what he did. ²³The word of Scripture was thus fulfilled, Abraham believed in God so he was considered a righteous person and he was called the friend of God.

²⁴So you see, a person is justified by works and not by faith alone. ²⁵Likewise, we read of Rahab, the prostitute, that she was acknowledged and saved because she welmust have the free and intelligent generosity of volunteers whose only law is their commitment to Christ.

• 14. It is necessary to have faith to be saved, but following Christ cannot be theoretical; it must be shown in action, in deeds. Christ himself says the same thing in Matthew 7:21: “Not everyone who says, ‘Lord, Lord,’ will enter the kingdom of heaven.”

Let us look at the two examples that James takes from the Old Testament and let us compare them with Hebrews 11:31, and above all with Romans 4 (Gal 3). It seems that James and Paul draw opposite teachings from the same examples. Paul says: Abraham was justified by faith and not by following the Law. James, on the other hand, says that they were saved by putting their faith into practice. Actually, in speaking of practices, Paul is thinking about the religious rites and observances of the Jews that are useless for salvation, and he says that faith is at the root of all Christian life. James, in speaking of practices, is thinking about deeds inspired by love. Paul said the same when he wrote: “Faith works through love” (Gal 5:6).

These apparently contrary affirmations of James and Paul were widely discussed at the beginning of the Reformation, when certain commentators bluntly affirmed that a person is saved by faith alone. Yet it would not be sufficient to show how we can achieve reconciliation between the words of Paul and James. There is clearly with them quite different ways of seeing and feeling and that is due as much to the diversity of human temperaments as to the richness of the Christian experience, which is not always the same for everyone. These real differences that we find even among the apostles encourage us to accept that others may think and express their faith in ways different from our own.

Mk 1:24

Gen 22:9

Gen 15:6

Rom 4:12

Jos 2:4; 6:17

comed the spies and showed them another way to leave.

Gal 5:6 ²⁶So, just as the body is dead without its spirit, so faith without deeds is also dead.

Sins of the tongue

Sir 14:1 3 ¹My brothers and sisters, don't all be teachers! You know that, as teachers, we will be judged most strictly; ² in fact, we make mistakes, like everybody else. A person who commits no offense in speech is perfect and capable of ruling the whole self. ³We put a bit into the horse's mouth to master it and, with this, we control its whole body. ⁴The same is true of ships: however big they are and driven by strong winds, they are guided by a tiny rudder. ⁵In the same way, the tongue is a tiny part of the body but it is capable of great things.

A small flame is enough to set a huge forest on fire. ⁶The tongue is a similar flame; it is in itself a whole world of evil. It infects the whole being and sets fire to our world with the very fire of hell. ⁷Wild animals, birds, reptiles and sea creatures of every kind are and have been ruled by the human species. ⁸Nobody, however, can control the tongue; it is an untiring whip, full of deadly poison. ⁹We use it to bless God, our Father, and also to curse those made in God's likeness. ¹⁰From the same mouth come both blessing and curse.

Eph 4:29

Brothers and sisters, this should not be the case. ¹¹Can both fresh and salt water gush from the same source? ¹²Can a fig tree produce olives or a grapevine give figs? Neither is the sea able to give fresh water.

Mt 7:16

True wisdom

• ¹³If you consider yourself wise and learned, show it by your good life and let your actions, in all humility, be an example for others. ¹⁴But if your heart is full of bitter jealousy and ambition, do not try to show off; that would be covering up the truth; ¹⁵this kind of wisdom does not come from above but from the world and it is earthly and devilish. ¹⁶Wherever there is jealousy and ambition, you will also find discord and all that is evil. ¹⁷Instead, the wisdom that comes from above is pure and peace-loving. Persons with this wisdom show understanding and listen to advice; they are full of compassion and good works; they are impartial and sincere. ¹⁸Peacemakers who sow peace reap a harvest of justice.

1Cor 3:3;
Eph 4:31

Wicked ambitions

4 • ¹What causes these fights and quarrels among you? Is it not your cravings that make war within your own selves? ²When you long for something you cannot have, you kill for it and when you do not get what you desire, you squabble and fight. The fact is, you do not have what you want because you do not pray

Mt 5:9;
Phil 1:11;
Heb 12:11

Rom 7:23;
1P 2:11;
Mt 7:7

• 3.13 What is wisdom? Let us read the Wisdom books of the Bible if we wish to know something of wisdom. They put us on the trail of a wisdom that is a gift of God (1 Cor 1:5; Eph 1:9), which is acquired by prayer (Wis 9; Sir 51:13; Col 1:9), perseverance in meditation on the word of God (2 Tim 3:17), the purification of the heart through ordinary living. James does not speak of a theoretical wisdom, but of practical wisdom.

• 4.1 You pray wrongly. James tells us that prayer obtains for us things that enable us to respond to God's plan (see 1:5-8). Our prayers will not be heard if love for the world takes the place of God in our hearts.

What is the friendship with the world that prevents our being heard? We explain this in more detail in the commentary on John 3:17 and 1 John 2:15. God asks us to love all the things he created, viewing them as means of for it. ³You pray for something and you do not get it because you pray with the wrong motive of indulging your pleasures. ⁴You adulterers! Don't you know that making friends with the world makes you enemies of God? Therefore, whoever chooses to be the world's friend becomes God's enemy.

⁵Can you not see the point of the saying in Scripture: "The longing of the spirit he sent to dwell in us is a jealous longing?" ⁶But God has something better to give, and Scripture also says, God opposes the proud but he gives his favor to the humble. ⁷Give in, then, to God; resist the devil and he will flee from you. ⁸Draw close to God and he will come close to you. Clean your hands, you sinners, and purify your hearts, you doubters. ⁹Recognize your distress, be miserable and weep. Turn your laughter into tears and your joy into sadness. ¹⁰Humble yourselves before the Lord and he will raise you up.

¹¹Brothers and sisters, do not criticize one another. Anyone who speaks against or condemns another, speaks against the Law and condemns the Law. If, however, you condemn the Law, you are no longer an observer of the Law but a judge of it. ¹²There is only one lawgiver and one judge: he who has the power to save or condemn. So you, who are you to judge your neighbor?

¹³Listen now, you who speak like this, "Today or tomorrow we will go off to this city and spend a year there; we will do business and make money." ¹⁴You have no idea what tomorrow will bring. What is your life? No more than a mist which appears for a moment and then disappears. ¹⁵Instead of this, you should say, "God willing, we will live and do this or that."¹⁶But no! You boast of your plans: this brazen pride is wicked. ¹⁷Anyone who knows what is good and does not do it, sins.

The misfortunes of the rich

5 ¹So, now for what concerns the rich! Cry and weep for the misfortunes that are coming upon you. ²Your riches are rotting and your clothes eaten up by the moths. ³Your silver and gold have rusted and their rust grows into a witness against you. It will consume your flesh like fire, for having piled up riches in these the last days.

⁴You deceived the workers who

Rom 2:1; 14:4

Pro 27:1; Lk 12:18

Lk 6:24; Mt 6:19

Pro 16:27; 11:4; 11:28

Lev 19:13;

Mt 6:24; 1Jn 2:15

Pro 3:34

Eph 6:11; 1P 5:6; Mal 3:7

Job 5:11; Mt 23:12

Lev 19:16; Mt 7:1

reaching him, and to reject what does not serve this purpose. Loving the world is wishing for and clinging to things, without looking beyond them for God himself and the brothers and sisters that he gave us. It is adultery in the same sense as the phrase from the Gospel: "No one can serve two masters" (Mt 6:24). We cannot divide our love between God and the world; neither can we ask God to help us satisfy egotistical ambitions.

Criticizing others is the same as despising the law of love. We must see, and at times say, what is wrong in an action, but we must not judge the responsibility of others, nor their intentions, which God alone knows. God is the only judge. See Romans 14:4 and Matthew 7:1.

You who are making plans. We all make many plans: to earn more, to buy things, to have a good time. What is serious about this is that we forget meanwhile to do good. We know it has to be done and we know how to do it, but what we do not know is if we will have time to accomplish it. We may die without having done what mattered most.

- 5.1 The rich will lose all they have stockpiled through injustice. Just as serious as having stolen from the salaries of workers and having condemned those who spoke of justice is the sin against hope. "The last days already came and you were looking for riches!" The last days are those that began with the coming of Christ, with the kingdom already there. James sees the second coming of the Lord as if it was imminent and it is the only way to rightly judge riches.

What was taking place in the poor civilization of James' time is happening again today.

Dt 24:14; Mal 3:5 harvested your fields but now their wages cry out to the heavens. The reapers' complaints have reached the ears of the Lord of hosts. ⁵You lived in luxury and pleasure in this world thus fattening yourselves for the day of slaughter. ⁶You have easily condemned and killed the innocent since they offered no resistance.

Is 5:7;
Jer 25:34;
Lk 16:19

Wis 2:10

Look forward to the Lord's coming

Lk 18:1; Heb 10:36; Dt 11:14; Mk 4:26 ⁷Be patient then, beloved, until the coming of the Lord. See how the sower waits for the precious fruits of the earth, looking forward patiently to the autumn and spring rains. ⁸You also be patient and do not lose heart, because the Lord's coming is near.

1Thes 3:1

Mk 13:29

Mt 5:11

⁹Beloved, do not fight among yourselves and you will not be judged. See, the judge is already at the door. ¹⁰Take for yourselves, as an example of patience, the suffering of the prophets who spoke in the Lord's name. ¹¹See how those who were patient are called blessed. You have heard of the patience of Job and know how the Lord dealt with him in the end. For the Lord is merciful and shows compassion.

34:6

¹²Above all, my beloved, do not swear either by heaven or by earth, or make a habit of swearing. Let your yes be yes and your no be no, lest you become liable for judgment.

Mt 5:34

The sick

• ¹³Are any among you discouraged? They should pray. Are any of you happy? They should sing songs to God. ¹⁴If anyone is sick, let him call on the elders of the Church. They shall pray for him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord. ¹⁵The prayer said in faith will save the sick person; the Lord will raise him up and if he has committed any sins, he will be forgiven.

Acts 16:25

Mk 6:13;
Sir 38:14

The prosperity of a quarter of the world depends on the system that leaves two billion people in misery.

In our countries money destroys hope in the Christian meaning of the word; life is considered as a fortune to be enjoyed by oneself, without accepting responsibilities, beginning with the transmission of life. Far removed from us, the safeguarding of our privileges involves, like a series of cascades, the unjust death of millions of people because of famine, oppression and wars.

• 13. We know, through James' words, that the Church continued—and must continue today—Christ's ministry to the sick. Salvation includes both physical and spiritual health. The Gospel shows us that the latter is the most important and God always grants it, although he does not always restore physical health.

In the Gospel, Jesus lays his hands on the sick and when he sends his missionaries, he asks them to lay their hands on the sick or to anoint them with oil (Mk 6:13 and 16:18). The laying on of hands is like communicating to another person the power that will heal him, in the name of Christ and with his authority. As to oil, it was used in those days as a remedy. The two signs—anointing and laying of hands—accompany prayer.

The elders are those in charge of Christian communities. They were lay people but had been charged with the direction of the community, the celebration of baptism, presiding at the Eucharist. They must visit the sick and animate the community prayer for them, requesting God to cure them. At the same time they must invite the sick to recognize their sins, and prepare them to receive the grace of God.

When the Church speaks of the sacrament of the sick, it refers only to the anointing with oil done by someone who has officially received the power for this sacrament (up to now, only priests can administer this sacrament). This in no way excludes leaders of the Christian communities from praying, from anointing, and laying hands on the sick. When they do this with faith in the name of the Church, there is an increase in God's intervention in healing the sick, thus preparing them for conversion.

It has been a great error in past days to reserve the anointing of the sick to the dying and to call it extreme unction. It is also a serious error to wait until the sick person is unconscious in order not to frighten him into thinking that death may be near.

See the commentary on Luke 10:9.

Pro
28:13;
1Jn 1:8

• ¹⁶There will be healing if you confess your sins to one another and pray for each other. The prayer of the upright man has great power, provided he perseveres. ¹⁷Elijah was a human being like ourselves and when he prayed earnestly for it not to rain, no rain fell for three and a half years. ¹⁸Then he prayed again:

1K 17:1;
Rev 11:6

the sky yielded rain and the earth produced its fruit.

¹⁹Brothers, if any one of you strays far away from the truth and another person brings him back to it, ²⁰be sure of this: he who brings back a sinner from the wrong way will save his soul from death and win forgiveness for many sins.

Mt 18:15;
Gal 6:1

Pro
10:12;
1P 4:8

• 16. Jesus said to Peter: “What you forgive on earth will be forgiven in heaven” (Mt 16:19). He said the same thing to the apostles, “What you forgive on earth...” (Jn 20:23). He says the same to the Church (Mt 18:18). It is the task of pastors of the Church to decide on the reconciliation of sinners with the community—and with God. Yet, in many cases, we have more need for the forgiveness of one or several persons whom we have offended, and we must ask for it with simplicity: the forgiveness of a brother or sister in the faith will be the forgiveness of God.

Likewise, it is good to confess our faults to those who are able to understand us. The trust of the one and the mercy of the other: nothing more is needed for God to be in the middle.

We know almost nothing about the life of the apostle Peter after the Council of Jerusalem in 49 (see Acts 15). What was his situation in Jerusalem after his miraculous deliverance the night before his execution (Acts 12)? It was in 44. The death of Herod Agrippa, a few months later, did not prevent the high priests from wanting Paul's death. When did he leave for the Greek world? What contacts did he have with the communities that Paul established? We do know that, in Corinth, a party laid claim on him and apparently knew him (1 Cor 1:12). When did he get to Rome? This letter is helpful in finding an answer.

This is an important letter not only because of what it says but also because it gives us a glimpse of the Church of the apostles. It has many points of contact with the letters of James and Paul, especially the epistle to the Romans. Faith was not made up of beliefs evolving according to the feelings of diverse communities. The testimonies about Jesus, his person and his Gospel were not left to anonymous writers ready to alter them according to the needs of the moment. There was a solid and coordinated preaching of the apostles based on untouchable information that was already called Tradition or Doctrine. Prophets, who were used to giving a Christian interpretation of the Old Testament, were gradually creating a Christian language and since they were itinerant, this language had to be in agreement with the testimony of the apostles.

Peter tells us that his letter, handwritten by Silas or Silvanus, Paul's former companion (5:12), is addressed to the communities of the different Roman provinces located in today's Turkey. Did Peter know them personally? He refers to a persecution threatening them or, at least, to the hostile attitude of the authorities, and he encourages them by showing them the example of Christ. We do not have to imagine a widespread and official persecution as the one that occurred under Domitian at the time of Revelation or under Trajan in 110. Instead, it was a matter of nuisances and slander on the part of unbelievers before the courts. An analysis of the themes and the terminology seems to show that Peter's letter precedes Paul's letters to the Ephesians and Colossians, therefore, before 60. It would be very difficult to deny that it was known by the author of the letter to the Hebrews, written before 66. The occasion for writing it may have been Paul's arrest in Jerusalem in 58, an event that impacted the provinces of Asia where the Jews were influential.

In looking for the originality of this letter, we should emphasize the following three points:

- From 1:3 to 3:7, everything draws its inspiration from the baptismal ceremony, hymns and the homily on the meaning of baptism and the type of life that the newly baptized will lead.
- The letter praises the new people of the baptized, living stones of the real temple and priests of God for spiritual worship.
- On many occasions, Peter invites us to meditate on Christ's passion: his sacrifice is still present at the heart of God's people and persecution is part of their vocation.

An ancient tradition assures us that Peter was killed during Nero's persecution and that he was buried on the property of Vatican hill. Recent excavations have enabled us to find a tomb containing bones and bearing different inscriptions. It is almost certainly the tomb of the apostle, the first stone of the Church.

Jas 1:1 1 • ¹From Peter, apostle of Jesus Christ, to all those living as aliens in the Dispersion, in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia and Bithynia, Jn 3:3; 1Jn 3:9 ²to those whom God the Father has called, according to his plan, and made holy by the Spirit, to obey Jesus Christ and be purified by his blood: may grace and peace increase among you.

You have been saved

Eph 1:19 ³Let us praise God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, for his great mercy. In raising Jesus Christ from the dead he has given us new life and a living hope. ⁴The inheritance that does not corrupt nor goes bad nor passes away was reserved to you in heavens, ⁵since God's power shall keep you faithful until salvation is revealed in the last days.

Jn 17:11 ⁶There is cause for joy, then, even though you may, for a time, have to suffer many trials. ⁷Thus will your faith be tested, like gold in a furnace. Gold, however, passes away but faith, worth so much more, will bring you in the end praise, glory and honor when Jesus Christ appears.

Jn 20:27; 2Cor 5:7 ⁸You have not yet seen him and yet you love him; even without seeing him, you believe in him and experience a heavenly joy beyond all words, ⁹for you are reaching the goal of your faith: the salvation of your souls.

¹⁰This was the salvation for which the prophets so eagerly looked when, in days past, they foretold the favor of God with regard to you. ¹¹But they could only investigate when the Spirit of Christ present within them pointed out the time and the circumstances of this—the sufferings of Christ and the glories which would follow.

¹²It was revealed to them that they were working not for themselves but for you. Thus, in these days, after the Holy Spirit has been sent from heaven, the Gospel's preachers have taught you these mysteries which even the angels long to see.

Be holy

• ¹³So, then, let your spirit be ready. Be alert, with confident trust in the grace you will receive when Jesus Christ appears. ¹⁴Like obedient children, do not return to your former life given over to ignorance

Mt 13:17

Is 52:13; Lk 18:31

1Thes 1:5; 1Cor 2:4

• 1.1 Notice the greeting, "in the name of the Father, of the Son and of the Holy Spirit," which is the same as Paul's greetings.

This passage could be the preaching of a leader of a Christian community, addressed to adults who have just been baptized. In those days people were more preoccupied than they are now about their salvation after death. To those being baptized, the apostles spoke of the inheritance of God which was reserved for them and had been won by Christ in his resurrection: The inheritance that does not corrupt nor goes bad nor passes away (v. 4).

The newly baptized knew that their Christian faith was threatened and persecuted. To ask for baptism meant to commit oneself to Christ until death.

You have not yet seen him... (v. 8). Hope, love for Christ: the three virtues (or powers) urging Christians, go together. Christ came to glory through suffering. The Christian follows the same path and already knows true joy in the midst of trials.

• 13. The logical consequences of baptism are developed. We cannot go backward; giv-

Eph 2:1; 4:7 and passions. ¹⁵Imitate the one who called you. As he is holy so you, too, be holy in all your conduct, ¹⁶since Lev 11:44 Scripture says: Be holy for I am holy.

¹⁷You call upon a Father who makes no distinction between persons but judges according to each one's deeds; take seriously, then, these years which you spend in a strange land. ¹⁸Remember that you were freed from the useless way of life of your ancestors, not with gold and silver ¹⁹but with the precious blood of the Lamb without spot or blemish. ²⁰God, who has known Acts 20:28; Heb 9 12 Christ before the world began, revealed him to you in the last days. ²¹Through him, you have faith in God who raised him from the dead and glorified him in order that you might put all your faith and hope in God.

²²In obeying the truth, you have gained interior purification from which comes sincere mutual love. Love one another, then, with all your heart, ²³since you are born again, not from mortal beings, but with enduring life, through the Word of God who lives and remains forever. ²⁴It is written: All flesh is grass and its glory like the flowers of the field. The grass withers and the flower falls, ²⁵but the Word of the Lord endures forever. This Word is the Gospel which has been brought to you.

Christ is the cornerstone

2 ¹So, give up all evil and deceit, Jas 1:21 hypocrisy, envy and every kind of gossip. ²Like newborn children, Mk 10:15; 1Cor 3:2 seek eagerly for the pure milk of the Word that will help you grow and reach salvation. ³Did you not taste the goodness of the Lord? ⁴He is the Ps 34:9 Mt 21:42 living stone rejected by people but chosen by God and precious to him; set yourselves close to him ⁵so that you, too, become living stones built into a spiritual temple, a holy community of priests offering spiritual sacrifices that please God through Jesus Christ. ⁶Scripture says: See, I lay in Zion a chosen and precious cornerstone; whoever believes in him will not be disappointed.

⁷This means honor for you who believed, but for unbelievers also the stone which the builders rejected has ing in to the evils of the world would mean going back to the slavery from which Christ delivered us through his blood.

Verses 22-25: here we recognize this being born anew, being born from above, which Jesus tells Nicodemus in John 3:9.

What follows is a call to live perfectly: not attached to the things of the present, but eager to live a useful and holy life before God, in proportion to what we have cost him.

• 2.1 Two words stand out in this paragraph: stones and priests. They speak about what the new Christians will be.

You are stones. God's presence in his people is the stone which stands out and on which, all those who neither saw nor took notice of him, stumbled (Is 8:14). In another sense, Jesus is the stone rejected by the builders, which becomes the foundation of a new building: this is the new people of God that arises from the remnant of Israel and then extends to all nations. Christians are the stones of this Church: living stones because each one shares the life of God, and because each one has an active part to play in the Church, the body of Christ (Eph 4:12-16).

You will also be priests. To understand what this means, we must read God's words to Moses in Exodus 19:5. God decided then to become present in the world and to transform the course of history through a people of his own which would be Israel. Peter tells us: "The real people of God, the true Israel, are you who have accepted Christ." We, who are baptized, do not form one more religion: we are an active minority and the leaven of the world.

We are priests in the sense this word had for ancient people: those who know, those who risk coming close to God. We were made responsible for the mission of preparing men and women so that salvation may mature in them. People and nations may discover their common destiny and, in the end, admit that

Is 8:14 become the cornerstone ⁸ and it is a stone to stumble over; a rock which lays people low. They stumble over it in rejecting the Word, but the plan of God is fulfilled in this.

Is 43:20; 19:5; Rom 3:24; Eph 1:14; Col 1:12
 Hos 1:6; 2:3; 2:25
⁹You are a chosen race, a community of priest-kings, a consecrated nation, a people God has made his own to proclaim his wonders. For he called you from your darkness to his own wonderful light. ¹⁰At one stage you were no people, but now you are God's people, you had not received his mercy, but now you have been given mercy.

Live a blameless life

Gal 5:24; Jas 4:1
 Mt 5:16
 • ¹¹Beloved, while you are strangers and exiles, I urge you not to indulge in selfish passions that wage war on the soul. ¹²Live a blameless life among the pagans; so when they accuse you falsely of any wrong, they may see your good works and give glory to God on the day he comes to them.

Rom 13:1; Tit 3:1
 Gal 5:13; Jud 1:4
 Pro 24:21; Mt 21:21
¹³For the Lord's sake, respect all human authority: the king as chief authority, ¹⁴the governors as sent by him to punish evildoers and to encourage those who do good. ¹⁵And God wants you to do good so that you may silence those fools who ignorantly criticize you. ¹⁶Behave as free people but do not speak of freedom as a license for vice; you are free men and God's servants. ¹⁷Reverence each person, love your brothers and sisters, fear God and show respect to the emperor.

Eph 6:5
¹⁸Servants must respect their masters, not only those who are good and understanding but also those who are difficult. ¹⁹For there is merit in putting up with unprovoked suffering, for the sake of God. ²⁰What merit would there be in taking a beating when you have done wrong? But if you endure punishment when you have done well, that is a grace before God.

²¹This is your calling: remember Christ who suffered for you, leaving you an example so that you may follow in his way. ²²He did no wrong and there was no deceit in his mouth. ²³He did not return insult for insult and, when suffering, he did not curse but put himself in the hands of God who judges justly. ²⁴He went to the cross bearing our sins on his own body on the cross so that we might die to sin and live an upright life. For by his wounds you have been healed. ²⁵You were like stray sheep, but you have come back to the Shepherd and Guardian of your souls.

Duties of husbands and wives

Eph 5:22; Col 3:18; 1Cor 7:12; Tit 2:5
3 • ¹In the same way, wives must be submissive to their husbands. If any of them resists the Word, they will be won over without words by the conduct of their wives. ²It will be enough for them to see your responsible and blameless conduct.

they cannot solve their problems without making the Gospel the Law of their whole lives.

A Christian aware of his dignity as a priestly member of the people of God, by sheer gift and grace cannot but proclaim his wonders (v. 19). This is what evangelization is all about. These Christians are a chosen race, a community of priest-kings called to proclaim the Gospel.

• 11. Here we are invited to be model citizens, workers and spouses. If we are slandered, that is one more occasion to show the beauty of Christian life and that those who slander us are wrong. If the authorities begin to persecute us, this is not an excuse to disobey the laws.

Also see the commentary on Titus 3:1.

• 3.1 In speaking to married couples, Peter prefers to address himself to women. Is it because he recognizes the importance of their mission? Or rather, because in the rest of the letter, he paid more attention to men who,

1Tim 2:9 ³Do not be taken up with outward appearances: hairstyles, gold necklaces and clothes. ⁴There is something more permanent that shines from within a person: a gentle and peaceful disposition. This is really precious in God's eyes. ⁵This was the way the holy women of the past dressed. They put their trust in God and were obedient to their husbands, ⁶namely Sarah who had such respect for Abraham that she called him her lord. You are her children if you do what is right and are not afraid.

Eph 5:25; Col 3:19 ⁷Husbands, in your turn, be sensible in your life together. Be considerate, realizing that the woman is of a more frail disposition and that you both share in the gift of life. This will prevent anything from coming in the way of your prayer.

Rom 12:14 ⁸Finally, you should all be of one mind: share each other's troubles with mutual affection, be compassionate and humble. ⁹Do not repay evil for evil or answer one insult with another. Give a blessing, instead, since this is what you have been called to do, and so you will receive the blessing. ¹⁰For if you seek life and want to see happiness, keep your tongue from evil and your mouth from speaking deceit. ¹¹Turn away from evil and do good; seek peace and pursue it. ¹²Because the Lord's eyes are turned to the just and his ears listen to their appeal. But the Lord frowns on evildoers.

Ps 34:13-17

Do not fear or be disturbed

¹³Who can harm you if you devote yourselves to doing good? ¹⁴If you suffer for the sake of righteousness, happy are you. Do not fear what they fear or be disturbed as they are, ¹⁵but bless the Lord Christ in your hearts. Always have an answer ready when you are called upon to account for your hope, but give it simply and with respect. ¹⁶Keep your conscience clear so that those who slander you may be put to shame by your upright, Christian living. ¹⁷Better to suffer for doing good, if it is God's will, than for doing wrong.

Mt 5:10
Is 8:12
(LXX)

Mt 10:26;
Pro 3:25

Endure sufferings as Christ did

• ¹⁸Remember how Christ died, once and for all, for our sins. He, the just one, died for the unjust in order to lead us to God. In the body he was put to death, in the Spirit he was raised to life, ¹⁹and it was then that he went to preach to the imprisoned spirits. ²⁰They were the generation who did not believe when God, in his great patience, delayed punishing the world while Noah was building the ark in which a small group of eight persons escaped through wa-

Rom 6:10;
Heb 9:26

2P 2:5;
Gen 7:7

according to Jewish customs, occupied the front rows of the assembly?

Why does he ask them to obey their husband? Is it because God wants it that way, or because the Church is anti-feminist and wants women to be submissive? This point was explained in 1 Corinthians 11:9 and Ephesians 5:22. The apostles heard and taught the revolutionary ruling of Jesus who gave women the same rights as husbands in marriage. However, since they lived in a male-dominated society, they could hardly imagine or discover a new way of sharing between spouses.

In any case, they could not reform the male-centered culture of their time overnight. They were speaking for women accustomed to obey. Some among them understood their promotion (Lk 8:1), but it happened that they showed this with actions which scandalized many (see commentaries on 1 Cor 11:6 and 1 Tim 2:11).

• 18. In this paragraph we have the reference to "the descent of Christ into hell" mentioned in our creed: see also Ephesians 4:9 and the commentary on Matthew 27:52.

Peter, using the expressions of his day, speaks of the sinful people in Noah's time. For the Jews, they were the example of those who sin by irresponsibility and lack of real concern

Heb
10:22;
Col 2:12

ter. ²¹That was a type of the baptism that now saves you; this baptism is not a matter of physical cleansing but of asking God to reconcile us through the resurrection of Christ Jesus. ²²He has ascended to heaven and is at the right hand of God, having subjected the angels, Dominations and Powers.

Ps 110:1

4 • ¹Given that Christ suffered in his human life, arm yourselves with this certainty: the one who suffers in his body has broken with sin ²so as to spend the rest of his life following the will of God and not human passions.

1Jn 2:16

³You have given enough time, in the past, to living as the pagans do: a life of excess, evil passions, drunkenness, orgies and worship of idols. ⁴They now find it strange that you are no longer swept along with them in this ruinous flood, and then abused you for it. ⁵But they will be accountable to the one who is ready to judge the living and the dead. ⁶The Gospel has been preached to many who are now dead. As humans they received a deadly sentence, but through the Spirit they shall live for God.

Tit 3:3

⁷The end of all things is near; keep your minds calm and sober for prayer. ⁸Above all, let your love for one another be sincere, for love covers a multitude of sins. ⁹Welcome one another into your houses without complaining. ¹⁰Serve one another with the gifts each of you received, thus becoming good managers of the varied graces of God. ¹¹If you speak, deliver the word of God; if you have a special ministry, let it be seen as God's power so that, in everything, God may be glorified in Jesus Christ. To him belong glory and power forever and ever. Amen.

Pro
10:12;
Jas 5:20

Rom
12:16;
1Cor
12:4

Be glad to share in the sufferings of Christ

• ¹²My dear people, do not be surprised at the testing by fire which is taking place among you, as though something strange were happening to you. ¹³Instead, you should be glad to share in the sufferings of Christ because, on the day his Glory is revealed, you will also fully rejoice.

Mt 5:11

for the will of God. Yet, Christ saved them: he came for everyone, and not only for those who have been faithful or who had the chance of meeting him in his Church.

Note the comparison between the deluge and baptism: water washes away the old world, a life of sin: the person who comes to Christ begins a new life, striving for "a pure conscience."

In the body he was put to death, in the Spirit he was raised to life (the text says, "he died according to flesh."). This means that he died because he had accepted and really taken on our mortal condition, but he had to be repossessed by the Spirit of God. It is a reaffirmation of the double nature of Christ. Compare with Romans 1:4.

• 4.1 Given that Christ suffered. See Romans 6.

They find it strange (v. 4). We, perhaps, too easily accept to organize our life, as do those who are not waiting for the promises of Jesus; in our conduct there is nothing to surprise them.

The Gospel was preached to the dead (v. 6). This refers to the previous passage 3:18-20. It is a way of speaking about the mysterious encounter that, after his death, Jesus had with the dead of past ages, whom he had come to save as well.

Keep your minds calm and sober for prayer (v. 7). Prayer requires a disciplined life. Go to bed when it is time and give up entertainments that only devour time and make us half-wits.

• 12. These verses present a summary of the central idea in this letter.

Let us note that Peter cannot concede that a Christian should have to be judged or go to jail through his own fault, murder, theft, etc. How many "Christians" in name only are in jail today? And, how many more should be there?

Col 3:4 ¹⁴You are fortunate if you are insulted because of the name of Christ, for the Spirit of glory rests on you. ¹⁵I suppose that none of you should suffer for being a murderer, a thief, a criminal or an informer; ¹⁶but if anyone suffers on account of being a Christian, do not consider it a disgrace; rather let this name bring glory to God.

Jer 25:29; Lk 23:31; 2Thes 1:8 ¹⁷The time of judgment has come and it begins with God's household. If its beginning so affects you, what will be the end of those who refuse to believe in the Gospel? ¹⁸*If the just one is barely saved, what will happen to the sinner and unbeliever?* ¹⁹So, then, if you suffer according to God's will, entrust yourself to the faithful Creator and continue to do good.

Pro 11:31 (LXX)

Ps 36:6; Lk 23:46

Further admonitions

5 ¹I now address myself to those elders among you; I, too, am an elder and a witness to the sufferings of Christ, hoping to share the Glory that is to be revealed. ²Shepherd the flock which God has entrusted to you, guarding it not out of obligation but willingly for God's sake; not as one looking for a reward but with a generous heart; ³do not lord it over those in your care, rather be an example to your flock. ⁴Then, when the Chief Shepherd appears, you will be given a crown of unfading glory.

⁵In the same way, let the younger

2Tim 3:8; Tit 1:7

1Cor 4:16; Tit 2:7

Jn 2:12; Pro 3:34

ones among you respect the authority of the elders. All of you must clothe yourself with humility in your dealings with one another, because God opposes the proud but gives his grace to the humble.

⁶Bow down, then, before the power of God so that he will raise you up at the appointed time. ⁷Place all your worries on him since he takes care of you.

⁸Be sober and alert because your enemy the devil prowls about like a roaring lion seeking someone to devour. ⁹Stand your ground, firm in your faith, knowing that our brothers and sisters, scattered throughout the world, are confronting similar sufferings. ¹⁰God, the giver of all grace, has called you to share in Christ's eternal Glory and after you have suffered a little he will bring you to perfection: he will confirm, strengthen and establish you forever. ¹¹Glory be to him forever and ever. Amen.

¹²I have had these few lines of encouragement written to you by Silvanus, our brother, whom I know to be trustworthy. For I wanted to remind you of the kindness of God really present in all this. Hold on to it.

¹³Greetings from the community in Babylon, gathered by God, and from my son, Mark.

¹⁴Greet one another with a friendly embrace. Peace to you all who are in Christ.

Phil 4:5; Ps 55:23; Mt 6:25

Eph 6:19

Rom 8:18; 2Cor 4:17; 1Thes 2:12

Acts 15:22

Rev 17:8

• 5.1 In the varied counsels that follow, note what concerns the elders, leaders and pastors of the community.

In persecution Peter also sees a work of the devil, who does his best to discourage those who hope in Christ.

It is a proven fact that when we get ready to make an important decision or to make some commitment in the service of Christ, many unexpected obstacles arise. The person who becomes intimidated loses everything. When he tries again to take some step, the devil will increase his attacks. These trials are common and to face them we need to be alert in our faith.

• 12. To remind you of the kindness of God (v. 12). This kindness, or grace, means God's whole plan to save us, all that came to us through Christ.

Babylon: in the language of the Christians of the time indicates "the great city," the center of pagan religions, namely, Rome (see Rev 17). Rome already has a community, the Church, at the time that Peter writes.

2 LETTER OF PETER

According to the prevailing opinion today, it is a later book, probably written around 100. So it is presented as a second letter of Peter and it does its best to convince us. If it is not by Peter, that would not prevent it from being the word of God even if, at times, it expresses thoughts that seem strange on Peter's lips.

Those who deny its authenticity lean, at times, on the idea that the letter duplicates many passages from the letter of Jude, a text surely written after the death of Peter and Paul (Jd 17-18). In fact, as the early Church used to say, it seems more natural to think that Jude took up the predictions already mentioned in Peter's second letter (3:3-4). Therefore, we cannot invoke this argument to deny its authenticity.

Its three chapters refer to three concerns of the Church of the time, when the generation of those formed by the apostles disappeared before the Church had set the main thrust of its organization. The author wants:

- to preserve the faith just as the witnesses of Jesus taught it,
- to fight against false teachers who distort the faith and also lead to immorality,
- to explain, through God's patience, why Christ has not returned yet.

1 ¹Symeon Peter, a servant and apostle of Jesus Christ, to those who have been sanctified by our God and Savior Jesus Christ and have received a faith as precious as ours:

²may grace and peace abound in you through the knowledge of God and of Jesus our Lord.

We share in the divine nature

³His divine power has given us everything we need for life and piety. First the knowledge of the One who called us through his own Glory and Might, by which we were given the most extraordinary and precious promises. ⁴Through them you share in the divine nature, after repelling the corruption and evil desires of this world.

⁵So, strive with the greatest determination and increase your faith with goodness, goodness with knowledge, ⁶knowledge with moderation, moderation with constancy, constancy with piety, ⁷piety with mutual affection, mutual affection with charity. ⁸If all these riches are in you so as to abound in you, you will not be idle and useless; you will rather be rooted in the knowledge of Jesus Christ our Lord. ⁹Whoever is not aware of this is blind and short-sighted and is forgetful of the cleansing of former sins.

¹⁰Therefore, brothers and sisters, strive more and more to respond to the call of God who chose you. If you do so, you will never stumble. ¹¹Moreover you will be generously granted entry to the eternal kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Gal 5:22

Jdt 1:5

¹²So I shall always remind you of these things, though you know them and remain firm in the truth that you have. ¹³It seems fitting that as long as I live in the tent of this body, I refresh your memory of them, ¹⁴knowing that my tent may soon be folded up, as our Lord Jesus Christ has shown me. ¹⁵I will, nonetheless, endeavor to see that after my departure, you will be constantly reminded of all this.

Jn 21:18

The foundation of faith

¹⁶Indeed, what we taught you about the power and the return of Christ Jesus our Lord was not drawn from myths or formulated theories. We ourselves were eyewitnesses of his majesty, ¹⁷when he received glory and honor from God the Father, when from the magnificent Glory this most extraordinary word came upon him: "This is my beloved Son, this is my Chosen One." ¹⁸We ourselves heard this voice from heaven when we were with him on the holy mountain.

Mk 9:2

¹⁹Therefore, we believe most firmly in the message of the prophets which you should consider rightly as a lamp shining in a dark place, until the break of day, when the Morning Star shines in your hearts.

²⁰Know this well: no prophecy of Scripture can be handed over to private interpretation, ²¹since no prophecy comes from human decision, for

2Tim 3:6;
1P 1:11

• 1.3 Christians tempted to become complacent are told two things:

- God's call is such a great favor that we cannot really understand it;
- it is not enough to have been called to believe: we must confirm this election by a truly holy life that prepares us to enter heaven.

You share in the divine nature (v. 4). This paragraph, with the texts of St. John, is the strongest expression of what we are and what we shall be. We have not merely been called to a good way of life that will be rewarded, to love a God who will be grateful to us. Jesus has come to reveal who we are: his brothers and sisters, members of a unique Humanity that is to become part of the eternal mystery of God. He was made human so that we become all that God is, nothing less.

What we taught you... was not drawn from myths or formulated theories (v. 16). Faith is not based on reasons and theories. We believe in what the apostles saw and in the prophets' words. It is true that through the centuries the understanding of the consequences of faith has developed, situating it within the realities of life; there has also been a constant effort to express what faith is in the language of our day. Nevertheless we continue holding and believing the mystery of Christ in the way the apostles believed and understood it.

The last sentence clearly says what we find in the Bible: all that is there was said on behalf of God and all is the work of the Holy Spirit. It does not say that the Holy Spirit dictated the books nor that he granted revelations to all the authors. One same spirit guided all when each author wrote in his own style, and according to the custom of the time, what seemed good to write. Each author was aware that he was expressing the faith of his people, but was not necessarily conscious that he was inspired. Yet the Spirit arranged everything so that all the books make one whole that becomes a unique witness needed by humankind in every age. The Scripture is at the same time the work of the Holy Spirit and human literature in the language of a particular age.

Therefore, no prophecy of Scripture can be handed over to private interpretation (v. 20). It is true that anyone, according to his intelligence and faith, can understand one text or another. The message, however, is the whole. When we try to see how statements fit together, to see the important lines or discover the spirit of the Bible, then only the Church and those who are spiritually alive in her can discern.

The Morning Star (v. 19). This refers to Christ (see Rev 22:16).

it was men of God, moved by the Holy Spirit, who spoke.

False teachers

Dt 13:2;
1Tim 4:1;
Jdt 1:4

2 • ¹Just as there have been false prophets in the midst of the people of Israel, so will there be false teachers among you. They will introduce harmful sects and, by denying the Master who saved them, they will bring upon themselves sudden perdition. ²Many, nonetheless, will imitate their vices and because of them the Way of Truth will be discredited. ³They will take advantage of you with deceitful words for the sake of money. But the judgement made upon them long ago is not idle, and the destruction awaiting them is not asleep.

1P 3:20

⁴In fact, God did not pardon the angels who sinned but cast them into hell, confining them in the dark pits, keeping them there until the Day of Judgment. ⁵Neither did he pardon the ancient world when he unleashed the waters of the flood upon the world of wicked people, but protected only Noah, the preacher of righteousness along with seven others. ⁶God also condemned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah, reducing them to ashes, to serve as a warning to the wicked in the future. ⁷But he saved Lot, a good man deeply afflicted by the unbridled conduct of those vicious people. ⁸For Lot, a righteous man who lived in their midst, suffered day after day in the goodness of his heart as he saw and heard of their crimes.

Jdt 1:7

⁹So, then, the Lord knows how to free from trial those who serve him and keep the wicked for punishment on the Day of Judgment.

Jdt 1:8

¹⁰He will do this especially for certain people who follow the baser desires of their nature and despise the Lord's majesty. Proud and daring they are not afraid of insulting fallen spirits ¹¹while the angels, who are superior to them in strength and power, do not permit themselves any injurious accusation in the presence of the Lord.

Jdt 1:10

¹²Those people are like irrational animals born to be caught and killed; after they have slandered what they cannot understand, they will end like animals ¹³and they will suffer the repayment of their wickedness.

Jdt 1:12

They delight giving themselves to deprivation even in the daytime; they are deceiving you even when they are sharing your table. ¹⁴With their eyes always looking for adultery, they do not tire of sinning and seducing weak souls. They are full of greed—an accursed people.

¹⁵They abandoned the right way and followed Balaam, son of Beor who was attached to what he gained from his wrongdoing. ¹⁶But he was rebuked for his sin: his she-ass began to speak with a human voice, stopping the prophet in his madness. ¹⁷These people are like waterless springs, clouds driven by a storm which move swiftly into the blackest darkness.

Num
22:7

Num
22:28

¹⁸With their boastful and empty discourses, they encourage the lust and impure desire of those who have just freed themselves from the common errors.

¹⁹They promise freedom when they themselves are slaves of corruption: for people are slaves to whatever dominates them. ²⁰Indeed,

• 2.1 This chapter dealing with false masters repeats, in part, the threats found in the Letter of Jude.

Mt 12:45 after being freed from worldly vices through the knowledge of the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, they returned to those vices and surrendered to them; and their present state has become worse than the first. ²¹It would have been better for them not to know the way of holiness than, knowing it, to turn away from the sacred doctrine that they had been taught. ²²In their case these proverbs are relevant: "The dog turns back to its own vomit," and: "Hardly has the pig been washed than it again wallows in the mud."

Pro
26:11;
Lk 12:47

Why is the second coming of Christ delayed?

3 ¹Dearly beloved, this is the second letter I write to you. In both of them I have intended to remind you of sound doctrine. ²Do not forget the words of the holy prophets and the teaching of our Lord and Savior, as you heard it through his apostles.

Jud 1:17

³Remember, first of all, that in the last days scoffers will appear, their mockery serving their evil desires. ⁴And they will say, "What has become of his promised coming? Since our fathers in faith died, everything still goes on as it was from the beginning of the world." ⁵Indeed, they deliberately ignore that in the beginning the heavens existed first and earth appeared from the water, taking its form by the word of God. ⁶By the same word of God, this world perished in the Flood. ⁷Likewise, the Word of God maintains the present heavens and earth until their destruction by fire; they are kept for the Day of Judgment when the godless will be destroyed. ⁸Do not forget, beloved, that with the Lord, one day is like a thousand years, and a thousand years is like one day. ⁹The Lord does not delay in fulfilling his promise, though some speak of delay; rather he gives you time because he does not want anyone to perish, but that all may come to conversion. ¹⁰The Day of the Lord is to come like a thief. Then the heavens will dissolve with a great noise; the elements will melt away by fire, and the earth with all that is on it will be burned up.

Ps 90:4

Hb 2:3;
Rom 2:4;
1Tim 2:4

1Thes
5:2;
Mt 24:43

¹¹Since all things are to vanish, how holy and religious your way of life must be, ¹²as you wait for the Day of God and long for its coming, when the heavens will dissolve in fire and the elements melt away in the heat. ¹³We wait for a new heaven and a new earth in which justice reigns, according to God's promise.

Is 65:17;
Rev 21:1

¹⁴Therefore, beloved, as you wait in expectation of this, strive that God

• 3.1 Two generations of Christians had already waited for the return of Jesus: a similar hope stimulated their perseverance. Now false teachers refute the words of the prophets (those who announce an imminent end) by citing daily events.

They sow doubt showing that the apostles also died and did not witness Christ's coming. The response is twofold. On one hand, God does not measure time as we do. He may present something as being very near and not fulfill it immediately. On the other hand, if to us the time seems long, it does not mean that we can settle in this world; we should make good use of the time given us for genuine conversion.

In our days the majority of Christians give little thought to the return of Christ: because we see it as a long way off, or because we do not understand its meaning? In reality it is always urgent to give ourselves totally.

The paragraph referring to Paul shows that already at that time Paul's letters had the same authority in the Church as the old sacred books or the Gospel, the "rest of Scripture." The Church was also concerned about the wrong interpretations that people might get from passages in which Paul did not express himself clearly.

may find you rooted in peace, without blemish or fault.

¹⁵And consider that God's patience is for our salvation, as our beloved brother Paul wrote to you, with the wisdom given him. ¹⁶He speaks of these things in all his letters. There are, however, some points in them that are difficult to understand, which people who are ignorant and immature in their faith twist, as they do with the rest of the Scriptures, to their own destruction.

¹⁷So then, dearly beloved, as you have been warned, be careful lest those people who have gone astray deceive you in turn and drag you along, making you stumble and finally fall away. ¹⁸Grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ: to him be glory, now and to the day of eternity. Amen.

This first letter of John, inseparable from his Gospel, reminds us that the Christian way is nothing less than a divinization: our own.

From all time the Christian ideal has seemed too pale or too narrow for many people. Without directly criticizing the values of Christianity and its benefits to humanity, they saw it as limiting people. We think of all those, like Marx, who affirmed that a real human liberation involves a struggle against faith. We think of those who today rely on science to widen the possibilities of life. We again think of all those who, shunning western activism, seek in oriental wisdom a way to the Absolute which they have failed to see in Christian faith.

Even for Christians, the sentimental religion springing from enthusiasm for Jesus, the good Master teaching universal love, often hides an ignorance of the ambitions of faith. For in Jesus it is God himself we want to reach, we are seekers of truth and we want to merge into this truth from which we have come.

John affirms in this first letter: If you have the Son of God you have total truth, you are on the way to authentic love and you are in communion with God himself.

However, perhaps, we are deceiving ourselves when we pretend to be in Christ. This is why John specifies the criteria, the conditions enabling us to verify if we are truly walking in the light and living in Love:

- In Christ we recognize God himself; yet we must always remember to interiorize his actions, his mission, his way of being human.
- We believe we have been reborn from God: that does not mean that we are above his commandments, nor that we should neglect daily efforts to be worthy of him.
- Faith has renewed our knowledge of God. What matters most is to understand his love and, for that, there is no better teaching than that of the cross.

This letter of John seeks to settle many doubts and confusion concerning Christian faith. It was written when “Gnosticism” or knowledge was beginning. Gnosticism involved an elaborate system that included many elements, already present in the so-called Asian religions, namely, from the Roman province of Asia, today’s Turkey. Paul had already encountered them some thirty years before (see Captivity Letters) and now John was noticing the expansion of Gnosticism.

The Gospel of John had freed from all ambiguity the faith in Christ, Son of God and divine person, born from God and having returned to God. But Gnostics were always ready to grasp onto beliefs they ran across in order to recast them into their endless tales. Gnostics tried to integrate the person of Jesus into their intellectual dialectics, their conflicts of angels and spiritual powers. Jesus did come from God although he was only a spirit. He only had a human appearance and he did not die for us. Redemption continues to be a process through which divine sparks come out of matter and what matters to them is to know the secrets of these celestial conflicts. Gnostics claimed to be spiritual and yet, while they condemned marriage, they did not see anything wrong with sexual freedom.

Therefore, it was necessary to reaffirm that Jesus was fully human: he was the Christ who had come in the flesh. Several times, the letter will refer to the sacrifice and to the blood of Jesus.

Some people think that this letter sought to correct some abusive interpretations that could be given of John's Gospel. It must have been written around 95–100.

2:13;
Jn 1:1;
1:14

1 • ¹This is what has been from the beginning, and what we have heard and have seen with our own eyes, what we have looked at and touched with our hands, I mean the Word who is Life...

Jn 1:4

²The Life made itself known, we have seen Eternal Life and we bear witness, and we are telling you of it. It was with the Father and made himself known to us.

Jn 17:20;
1Cor 1:9

³So we tell you what we have seen and heard, that you may be in fellowship with us, and us, with the Father and with his Son, Jesus Christ.

⁴And we write this that our joy may be complete.

Walk in the light

⁵We heard his message from him and announce it to you: God is light and there is no darkness in him.

• 1.1 The Word: see John 1:1. John will not speak about miracles, or revelations, or secrets jealously kept by some initiates. The truth that he relates to us is both simpler and more divine than all this: God, the Eternal Life, has come to live with us.

Life became visible. Do not look for miracles or miraculous powers. Do not expect fantastic revelations about the beyond. Life was revealed as the gift of the Father, the rebirth of a humanity without hope, the divine smile, the unexpected visit of the one seeking to share his life with humans (Pro 8:31). We will not find life in mere books, but through communion with those who have seen and experienced it before us, and who became his Church.

• 5. But if we walk in the light: this is the Christian life.

Over and beyond other truths which people discover, there is a light (an evidence or a presence) which is total Truth and which cannot be divided: one is or is not in the light. It does not give knowledge directly, but affects the whole person who acts, lives, and walks in the Light. Those walking in faith discover this light and find themselves freed from many obstacles:

– the partial vision of one who is enthusiastic for a cause but ignores other issues that are equally important, of one who orders one part of his life but leaves in disorder other parts;

⁶If we say we are in fellowship with him, while we walk in darkness, we lie instead of being in truth. ⁷But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we are in fellowship with one another, and the blood of Jesus, the Son of God, purifies us from all sin.

⁸If we say, “We have no sin,” we deceive ourselves and the truth is not in us. ⁹If we confess our sins, he who is faithful and just will forgive us our sins and cleanse us from all wickedness.

¹⁰If we say that we do not sin, we make God a liar, his word is not in us.

Fulfill the commandment of love

2 • ¹My little children, I write to you that you may not sin. But if anyone sins, we have an intercessor with the Father, Jesus Christ, the Just

Jn 8:12;
3:12

Heb 9:4;
Rev 1:5

Pro 20:9;
1K 8:46;
Job 9:2

Rom
8:34;
Heb 7:25

– the restlessness of one who does not have a goal and who silences his doubts by throwing himself into frantic activity;

– the sectarianism that prevents us from being “universal brothers and sisters.”

Little by little faith opens for us a global vision of human reality. The first criterion to know if we are walking in the light: have we given up sin? John here denies what certain people say: “Since we are Christians, we are united to God and so the sins of the body are not important.”

John declares that if we decide for God, we cannot continue to surrender to sin. Obviously, no one is without sin; we all need the salvation of Christ; but forgiveness itself compels us even more to stay away from sin.

John invites us to confess our sins to God, that is to say, to admit humbly before God that we have sinned, but with confidence in his kindness. If this attitude were not present, the sacrament of “confession” would be worthless. On the other hand, confessing our sins in the sacrament of penance helps us keep our hearts open to God.

• 2.1 Second criterion for love of God: to obey the commandments that are summarized in love. Do we perhaps pretend to know God and to believe? If so, it must be measured by the love we have for others.

One. ²He is the sacrificial victim for our sins and the sins of the whole world.

Col 1:20 ³How can we know that we know him? If we fulfill his commands.

⁴If you say, "I know him," but do not fulfill his commands, you are a liar and the truth is not in you. ⁵But if you keep his word, God's love is made complete in you. This is how we know that we are in him:

Jn 14:21 ⁶he who claims to live in him must live as he lived.

⁷My dear friends, I am not writing you a new commandment, but reminding you of an old one, one you had from the beginning. This old commandment is the word you have heard.

Jn 13:34; 15:12; Rom 13:12 ⁸But, in a way, I give it as a new commandment that is true in him and in you, because the darkness is passing away and the true light already shines.

Pro 4:18 ⁹If you claim to be in the light but hate your brother, you are still in darkness.

¹⁰If you love your brothers and sisters, you remain in the light and nothing in you will make you fall.

Jn 12:35 ¹¹But if you hate your brother you are in the dark and walk in darkness without knowing where you go, for the darkness has blinded you.

¹²My dear children, I write this to you: you have already received the forgiveness of your sins through the Name of Jesus. ¹³Fathers, I write this to you: you know him who is from the beginning. Young men, I write this to you: you have overcome the Evil One. My dear children, I write to you because you already know the Father.

¹⁴Fathers, I write to you because you know him who is from the beginning. Young men, I write to you because you are strong and the Word of God lives in you who have indeed overcome the Evil One.

• ¹⁵Do not love the world or what is in it. If anyone loves the world, the love of the Father is not in him.

Rom 12:2;
Jn 17:14;
Jas 4:4

¹⁶For everything in the world—
the craving of the flesh,
the greed of eyes
and people boasting of their superiority—all this belongs to the world, not to the Father.

¹⁷The world passes away with all its craving but those who do the will of God remain for ever.

1Cor 7:31

An old commandment, because it is the first one we learned in the Church; a new commandment, because the world must constantly, and in new ways, discover the power of love.

• 15. Third criterion: not to love the world. Note how John begins by rejoicing with his readers because they know the Father. It is not a matter of hating the world that Christ came to save (see commentary on Jn 3:17). Yet the life and history of people manifest a deep alienation: this is the power of the evil spirit. John calls "the world" all the evil current prevailing in it. According to John the world is the deceitful life which people live when they cease to seek the Father's will, and when they oppose Christ. Two contrary forces coexist in this world of ours and also in people: what comes from the Father and is forever; and what is planned and desired by humans when they forget their condition and dignity as children of God: greed and pride that lead them to death.

There is something more to say about this not loving the world. Even though all that comes from God is good: the sunlight, love, what emerges from human intelligence and hands, yet the whole creation is worth nothing if we compare it with God.

As long as we look upon the world as the great gift that God gave us and we feel accountable to him for its progress and development, the world is good for us. As soon as we consider the world as our thing, use it or neglect it according to our fancy, or if we think we can change it alone and by force, it becomes our worst enemy, an idol that enslaves us and

Reject the antichrist

2Thes
2:4;
1Tim 4:1

• ¹⁸My dear children, it is the last hour. You were told that an antichrist would come; but several antichrists have already come, by which we know that it is now the last hour.

Acts
20:30;
1Cor
11:19

¹⁹They went out from us though they did not really belong to us. Had they belonged to us, they would have remained with us. So it became clear that not all of us were really ours.

2Cor
1:21;
Jn 14:26

²⁰But you have the anointing from the Holy One, so that all of you have true wisdom.

Jn 8:44

²¹I write to you, not because you lack knowledge of the truth, but because you already know it, and lies have nothing in common with the truth. ²²Who is the liar?

The one who denies that Jesus is the Christ.

Mt
10:33;
Jn 5:23

This is an antichrist, who denies both the Father and the Son. ²³The one who denies the Son is without the Father, and those who acknowledge the Son also have the Father.

Jn 15:7

²⁴Let what you heard from the beginning remain in you. If what you heard from the beginning remains in you, you, too, will remain in the Son and in the Father. ²⁵And this is the promise he himself gave us: eternal life.

Jn 17:2

²⁶I write this to you thinking of those who try to lead you astray.

Jn 16:13

²⁷You received from him an anointing, and it remains in you, so you do not need someone to teach you. His anointing teaches you all things, it speaks the truth and does not lie to you; so remain in him, and keep what he has taught you.

1Cor 1:8

²⁸And now, my children, live in him, so that when he appears in his glory, we may be confident and not ashamed before him when he comes.

²⁹You know that he is the Just One: know then that anyone living justly is born of God.

3 • ¹See what singular love the Father has for us: we are called children of God, and we really are. This is why the world does not know us, because it did not know him.

Jn 16:3;
1Cor
1:21

is the source of rivalries. Christians commit themselves to the world (first case) but not with the world (second case). They keep their freedom as children of God or they are no longer sons and daughters because of their love for the world.

• 18. Fourth criterion: to be sure we are walking in the Light, we must reject the antichrist and remain steadfast in the faith and in what faith teaches. The believers of John's days knew that before the glorious return of Christ, an antichrist would appear. John says: the person who denies that Jesus is the Christ already is an antichrist. Today there are still many people who make a distinction: on one hand the man Jesus, lost in the mist of legend and on the other hand an idealized Christ adored by believers. John says: "The one who has come in history, he himself is eternal God."

You received from him an anointing, and it remains in you. John not only speaks of the anointing of oil in baptism and confirmation. "Christ" signifies precisely, "he who is anointed," and this anointing was the presence in him of the Spirit of God, his Father. John adds: "You cannot receive passively just any instruction in the Church, but you must discern whether the word of God is being faithfully transmitted."

His anointing (Spirit) teaches you all things. In writing that, John had in mind the prophets who were the animators of the churches: through their inspired words the Spirit taught the community (see Acts 14:2 and 1 Thes 5:19). Today the Spirit also maintains us in the truth through the leaders of the community and those who teach but we are not dispensed from seeking by ourselves the meaning of the Word and discerning what others tell us.

• 3.1 Here begins the second part of the letter: we are God's children and we must live as such. How do we prove that we are God's

Jn 1:12;
Rom 8:16;
Gal 4:4;
Phil 3:21;
Col 3:4;
Rev 22:4;
2Cor 3:18

²Beloved, we are God's children and what we shall be has not yet been shown. Yet when he appears in his glory, we know that we shall be like him, for then we shall see him as he is. ³All who have such a hope try to be pure as he is pure.

2Cor 7:1

⁴Anyone who commits a sin acts as an enemy of the law of God; any sin acts wickedly, because all sin is wickedness. ⁵You know that he came to take away our sins, and that there is no sin in him. ⁶Whoever remains in him has no sin, whoever sins has not seen or known him.

Jn 1:29;
1P 2:22

• ⁷My little children, do not be led astray; those who do what is right are upright, just as Jesus Christ is upright. ⁸But those who sin belong to the devil, for the devil sins from the beginning.

Jn 8:34;
Mk 1:24;
Jn 12:31

This is why the Son of God was shown to us, he was to undo the works of the devil.

⁹Those born of God do not sin, for the seed of God remains in them; they cannot sin because they are born of God.

¹⁰What is the way to recognize the children of God and those of the devil? The one who does not do what is right is not of God; so, too, the one who does not love his brother or sister.

¹¹For this is the message taught to you from the beginning: we must love one another. ¹²Do not imitate Cain who killed his brother, for he belonged to the Evil One. Why did he kill him? Because he himself did evil and his brother did good.

Jn 13:34

Heb 11:4

¹³So, be not surprised, brothers if the world hates us; ¹⁴we love our children? According to the same criteria that we have already seen: breaking away from sin, keeping the commandment of love, proclaiming our faith. There are many ways of saying we are God's children. One person might simply think: "God loves people" means that human beings have great dignity. Here John calls our attention to two points:

Jn 15:18;
5:24

– you are sons and daughters, but in order to become like God, do not seek anything else but to be perfect as God is perfect;

– you are children who will return to the Father. Do you really think about the unique and transcendent end for which God has chosen you? Being aware of this, let us understand that God purifies us in a thousand ways, because only in this way can we attain our goal.

We shall be like him: sharing all that God is and somehow becoming God with God (see 1 Cor 13:13). Those who now bear their lives of suffering with Christ will be transfigured like him (Mk 9; Col 3:4). Then the universe will reach its goal, having the children of God as its center (Rom 8:19) or better, the New Creature.

Those born of God do not sin (v. 9). This appears exaggerated, but being children of God is not a fantasy: we have really begun a life in truth and in love. To the person who has been reborn, it becomes impossible to commit real sin: to deliberately refuse to love, or to forgive or to continue to struggle. But we pray to the Father: "Lead us not..."

• 7. Keeping the commandment of love is what distinguishes God's children.

Most people are accustomed to thinking that the world is divided into two opposed factions. Some see an exploiter or exploited in every person. Others see only liberals and conservatives. Others see black and white. John tells us what is the dividing line between people: those who love and those who do not love. Because believers are in the camp of those who love, they will be persecuted. Their companions and compatriots will not forgive believers for not sharing their own hatred and sectarianism.

He who hates his brother is a murderer. All murders and massacres spring from hatred and grudges. When war suddenly devastates a country, it is due to the fact that many people were resentful toward others, and others, in even greater numbers, refused to make sacrifices to settle their difficulties and tensions.

The practice of love never weakens us as can happen with other forms of sacrifice done without love. Rather, it transforms us into God's likeness and we are no longer fearful or distrustful of him.

Every time it (conscience) reproaches us. Doubtless John wishes to say that God knows brothers and sisters, and with this we know that we have passed from death to life. The one who does not love remains in death.

Mt 5:21;
Jn 8:44

¹⁵The one who hates his brother is a murderer, and, as you know, eternal life does not remain in the murderer.

Jn 15:13

¹⁶This is how we have known what love is: he gave his life for us. We, too, ought to give our life for our brothers and sisters.

Dt 15:7;
Jas 2:15

¹⁷If anyone enjoys the riches of this world, but closes his heart when he sees his brother or sister in need, how will the love of God remain in him? ¹⁸My dear children, let us love not only with words and with our lips, but in truth and in deed.

¹⁹Then we shall know that we are of the truth and we may calm our conscience in his presence. ²⁰Every time it reproaches us, let us say: God is greater than our conscience, and he knows everything.

²¹When our conscience does not condemn us, dear friends, we may have complete confidence in God.

Mt 7:7;
Jn 15:7

²²Then whatever we ask we shall receive, since we keep his commands and do what pleases him.

²³His command is that we believe in the Name of his Son Jesus Christ and that we love one another, as he has commanded us.

Jn 6:29;
13:34;
1P 1:22

²⁴Whoever keeps his commands remains in God and God in him. It is by the Spirit God has given us that we know he lives in us.

Jn 14:23;
Rom 8:9

Do not trust every inspiration

4 • ¹My beloved, do not trust every inspiration. Test the spirits to see whether they come from God, because many false prophets are now in the world.

Dt 13:2;
Mt 7:15;
2P 2:1;
1Thes 5:20

²How will you recognize the spirit of God? Any spirit recognizing Jesus as the Christ who has taken our flesh is of God. ³But any spirit that does not recognize Jesus is not from God, it is the spirit of the antichrist. You have heard of his coming and even now he is in the world.

1Cor 12:3;
Rom 10:9

⁴You, my dear children, are of God and you have already overcome these people, because the one who is in you is more powerful than he who is in the world.

Mt 12:29

⁵They are of the world and the world inspires them and those of the world listen to them.

Jn 15:19;
17:14

and judges us better than we can ourselves. He does it with a love that is lacking in us. We should beware of the guilt feelings for faults which we have regretted and doubtless repaired: this form of anguish encloses us within ourselves instead of turning to God who knows what to do with ruined lives and make them new again.

To believe in the Name (v. 23), that is to say, in the divinity of Christ.

• 4.1 John underlined the role of the Holy Spirit to guide us in the truth, but now he is dealing with the case of the prophets who do not speak according to the faith received from the apostles through the Church.

There have always been conflicts between those in authority and those who speak freely. It should be clear that no inspired person would ever be able to speak against the traditional faith of the Church. What if it deals with ways of being or doing in the Church? Must we always support the people in charge in all circumstances? That would be to forget that the Gospel forms free people. We must never blindly follow the opinion of the pope, or the bishop, or the majority. It is our responsibility to think for ourselves and to evaluate according to the criteria of the Gospel.

Can we then favor those who seem to be guided by the Spirit? If the Holy Spirit really inspires them, however much they may criticize what must be criticized, they will never attempt to divide the Church. The community may expel them, but they will not become responsible for the break. Even when the local community rejects them, they will never be willing to separate themselves from the universal communion of the Church, which, with time, always recognizes true prophets.

Jn 18:37 ⁶We are of God and those who know God listen to us, but those who are not of God ignore us. This is how we know the spirit of truth and the spirit of error as well.

God-Love is the source of love

• ⁷My dear friends, let us love one another for love comes from God. Everyone who loves is born of God and knows God.

⁸Those who do not love have not known God, for God is love.

Jn 3:16 ⁹How did the love of God appear among us? God sent his only Son into this world that we might have life through him.

2Cor 5:19 ¹⁰This is love: not that we loved God but that he first loved us and sent his Son as an atoning sacrifice for our sins.

Mt 18:33 ¹¹Dear friends, if such has been the love of God, we, too, must love one another.

33:20; Jn 1:18; 1Tim 6:16 ¹²No one has ever seen God, but if we love one another, God lives in us, and his love comes to its perfection in us.

¹³How may we know that we live in God and he in us? Because God has given us his Spirit.

Jn 3:17 ¹⁴We ourselves have seen and declare that the Father sent his Son to save the world. ¹⁵Those who confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God remains in them and they in God.

¹⁶We have known the love of God and have believed in it. God is love. The one who lives in love, lives in God and God in him.

¹⁷When do we know that we have reached a perfect love? When in this world, we are like him in everything, and expect with confidence the Day of Judgment.

¹⁸There is no fear in love. Perfect love drives away fear, for fear has to do with punishment; those who fear do not know perfect love.

¹⁹So let us love one another, since he loved us first.

²⁰If you say, "I love God," while you hate your brother or sister, you are a liar. How can you love God whom you do not see, if you do not love your brother whom you see?

²¹We received from him this commandment: let those who love God also love their brothers.

Faith comes from God

5 • ¹All those who believe that Jesus is the Anointed, are born of God; whoever loves the Father,

• 7. Here we have the beginning of the third part of the letter: God-Love is the source of love and faith.

God is love (vv. 8 and 16). The supreme revelation, characteristic of the Christian faith. Other religions know of a God who is good and compassionate: no other religion has known that the dynamism of love moves the entire creation and that its source lies in God-Love.

In this beautiful text John insists on the inseparability of love of God and love of our neighbor. We all know this, but sometimes we might wonder why it is so. John gives us the paramount reason; love comes from God (v. 7). If we can love God, it is because God loved us first (v. 10); if we love each other it is because God's love extends among us (v. 12).

John also links love of God and faith in God:

a true Christian believer is somebody who begins by "believing in God's love, and that God is love" (v. 16).

He loved us first (v. 10): through his eternal predestination (Eph 1:4), the sending of his Son and through his sacrifice (Rom 5:8). If we are authentically loving, we never feel superior nor that we have merits, as do those who boast of their good works. We simply realize that the love of God works through us.

The lives of those who dedicate themselves lovingly to serving the abandoned, the sick, the elderly, and those no longer useful to society are justified and so are the lives of those who withdraw from ordinary life to dedicate themselves more totally to a more intimate love of God.

• 5.1 God-Love is the one who asks us to believe in his Son, and faith is a victory. John loves the Son. ²How may we know that we love the children of God? If we love God and fulfill his commands, ³for God's love requires us to keep his commands. In fact, his commandments are not a burden ⁴because all those born of God overcome the world. And the victory which overcomes the world is our faith. ⁵Who has overcome the world? The one who believes that Jesus is the Son of God.

Rom 5:8

Rom 8:15

⁶Jesus Christ was acknowledged through water, but also through blood.

Not only water but water and blood.

And the Spirit, too, witnesses to him for the Spirit is truth.

⁷There are then three testimonies:

⁸the Spirit, the water and the blood, and these three witnesses agree.

⁹If we accept human testimony, with greater reason must we accept that of God, given in favor of his Son.

¹⁰If you believe in the Son of God, you have God's testimony in you.

But those who do not believe make God a liar, since they do not believe his words when he witnesses to his Son.

¹¹What has God said? That he has granted us eternal life and this life is in his Son. ¹²The one who has the Son has life, the one who do not have the Son of God do not have life.

Keep yourselves from idols

• ¹³I write you, then, all these things that you may know that you have eternal life, all you who believe in the Name of the Son of God.

¹⁴Through him we are fully confident that whatever we ask, according to his will, he will grant us. ¹⁵If we know that he hears us whenever we

Mt 21:22;
Rev
12:11;
Jn 14:13

1Cor
15:57

Jn 19:34

Jn 3:33;
5:34

Jn 17:3

Jn 20:31

Jas 1:5

Mt
21:22;
Jn 14:13

wrote the book of Revelation to give hope to persecuted believers, showing them the victory they share with Christ simply because they believe in him. John repeats the same thing here in a different way.

Our greatest victory is to attain our inheritance as children of God and to reach the eternal life of God himself. Those who believe in Christ have already come to the Truth, to God.

How may we know that we love the children of God? John already told us: the person who loves God also loves his brothers and sisters. Here, however, John expresses it the other way around: those who love their brothers and sisters are known by the fact that they love God.

Many things are called love; there may be something of love in all of them, more or less. The love of God for us and the love that he gives us toward other people cannot be confused with other loves. The love springing from an authentic communion with God does not resemble sentimental love, blind and fickle. Rather, it is effective, both in the sense that it liberates others and it transforms us in Christ.

Verses 6-9 point out three complementary aspects of the Christian experience, which are first seen in Jesus himself. John characterizes them with three words:

- water: water is the symbol of cleanliness and of new life.

- blood: the blood of the sacrifice, the painful atonement for sin, the blood of martyrs.

- Spirit: the uncontainable power that animates Christ's witnesses; the amazing creativity of the people and institutions that are rooted in faith.

These three witness to Jesus Christ and they also characterize Christian salvation. We can easily see that they correspond to the three sacraments of baptism, eucharist and confirmation.

• 13. In this conclusion, John repeats what he said throughout the letter: you who believe, appreciate what you have. Do not underestimate the step you took in accepting Christ. Explore and look for the riches which are meant for you and which are found in "Him who loves us" (Rev 1:5).

I do not speak of praying about this (v. 16). This sentence is somehow short, John implies: "with the certainty that God will give life to the sinner." The will of God remains a mystery, whatever be the confidence we have in him.

ask, we know that we already have what we asked of him.

Mt
18:15;
Heb 6:4;
10:26

¹⁶If you see your brother committing sin, a sin which does not lead to death, pray for him, and God will give life to your brother. I speak, of course, of the sin which does not lead to death. There is also a sin that leads to death; I do not speak of praying about this. ¹⁷Every kind of wrongdoing is sin, but not all sin leads to death.

Jn 17:15

¹⁸We know that those born of God

do not sin, but the one who was born of God protects them and the evil one does not touch them.

• ¹⁹We know that we belong to God, while the whole world lies in evil.

Col 1:13

²⁰We know that the Son of God has come and has given us power to know the truth. We are in him who is true, his Son Jesus Christ. He is the true God and eternal life.

Jn 20:20;
Rom 9:5;
Tit 2:13

²¹My dear children, keep yourselves from idols.

• 19. The whole world lies in evil. As has already been mentioned, this world belongs to God who made it good. Nevertheless, this world is not simply a building site wherein we work. It is first the place where the evil one competes with God. The evil one does not side with any group, atheist or materialist or whatever else, but everywhere transforms the best things into destroying idols—even among those looking for a more perfect life: keep yourselves from idols. This warning of John at the end of this letter has special importance; it invites us to remain in the truth of the Word-of-God-made-man without allowing anything contrary to it, to enter. For the Church this is a permanent temptation—as well as for every Christian community—to make itself the center of everything, so that what matters is to recruit and to last. Then when institutions believe that unity is assured by increasing authority, political and financial support are sought and mission is replaced with buildings. There are a thousand ways of eluding what is provisional while the Spirit always feels more at ease with what is provisional. In so doing the Christian community, the whole Church becomes a thick wall between God and humans, all the more becoming an “idol” in wishing to be holy, obeyed and infallible in all its decisions. The Word became flesh, and the Church can only be the sacrament of God if she remains weak and vulnerable.

2 JOHN

Chosen lady: this is the way John greets the community of an unknown city. The Church is chosen and holy, just as the people in it are the chosen and holy ones of God.

John invites the people to have a steadfast and emphatic attitude toward those who do not accept the faith of the apostles. At the same time he reminds them of the fundamental law for Christians: love.

To remain zealously faithful to the Truth is to love Christ who entrusted this truth to us. We need the whole truth and not only what is most pleasing to people today.

¹I, the elder, to the chosen Lady and her children, whom I love sincerely—and with me all who know the truth—²because of this same truth which is and will be in us forever.

³Grace, mercy and peace be with you in the name of God the Father and of his Son, Christ Jesus, in truth and love.

⁴I rejoiced greatly on meeting some of your children who live in accordance with the truth, according to the command we have received from the Father. ⁵And now, I ask you, Lady—I write to you not a new commandment but that which we had from the beginning—I ask you: let us love one another.

⁶This is love: to walk according to his commandments. And this is the commandment: that you walk in love as you have learned from the beginning.

⁷Many deceivers have gone out into the world, people who do not acknowledge that Jesus is the Christ who came in the flesh. They are impostors and antichrists. ⁸Take care of yourselves that you do not lose the fruit of your labors, but receive a perfect reward. ⁹Everyone who goes beyond and does not remain within the teaching of Christ does not have God. The one who remains in the teaching has both the Father and the Son. ¹⁰If anyone comes to you and does not bring this teaching, do not receive him into your houses or even greet him. ¹¹Even in greeting him you would become an accomplice in his wicked deeds.

¹²I have many things to write to you, but I prefer not to use paper and ink. I hope to meet you and speak to you personally, that our joy may be full.

¹³The children of your chosen sister greet you.

3 JOHN

To the Christians who knew him, the apostle John was not “Saint John,” but a man. For a certain Diotrefes, to whom John gave the responsibility of a community that we do not know, John was a bothersome old man. In order to better dominate his church, Diotrefes was cutting off the relationship.

John, however, in his three letters, as in the Gospel, speaks of the “communion” which must exist among Christians. Any church or group must remain open to others, maintaining constant contact with them. Paul also insists on this responsibility: to welcome in their homes all Christians coming from other places in order to strengthen the bonds of the common faith.

¹I, the elder, to my dear friend Gaius, whom I love sincerely.

²Dear friend, may everything go well with you and may you enjoy health of body and soul. ³I greatly rejoiced with the friends who arrived and testified to your faithfulness to the truth, namely how you walk in the truth. ⁴Nothing gives me greater joy than to know that my children live in the truth.

⁵Beloved, you do well to care for the brothers and sisters as you do. I mean those coming from other places. ⁶They spoke of your charity before the assembled Church. It will be well to provide them with what they need to continue their journey, as if you did it for God. ⁷In reality, they have set out on the road for his name without accepting anything from the pagans. ⁸We should receive such persons, making ourselves their cooperators in the work of the truth.

⁹I have written these words to the Church. But Diotrefes, who is anxious to preside over it, does not acknowledge our authority. ¹⁰So when I come, I will not cease reproaching his manner of acting, since he discredited us with words of evil intent. And not content with that, he does not receive the friends and even restrains those who want to receive them, and expels them from the Church.

¹¹Dear friend, do not imitate evil, but only the good. Whoever does good is of God. Whoever does evil does not know God. ¹²Now about Demetrius: everyone praises him, even the truth itself. We, too, praise him, and you know that our testimony is true. ¹³I have many things to tell you, but I do not want to do it in writing. ¹⁴I hope to see you soon, and we will talk face to face.

¹⁵Peace be with you. Your friends greet you. Greet the friends for me, each one by name.

The Holy Spirit may have wanted to leave us the Letter of Jude so that we could appreciate the Gospels and other writings of the apostles better. We would have to be familiar with the literature of those days to know how complicated and incredible religious books were, both the books of the Jews and of the pagans. In comparison, the Gospels and Paul seem to belong to this century.

This letter which is attributed to the apostle Jude Thaddeus was written, in fact, about the end of the first century. It denounces the false teachers like those mentioned in the letters to Timothy and Titus.

Nevertheless, the comparisons and the examples which are used come from the Jewish books of the time. The Church had not yet defined which books were inspired by God and were part of the Bible. Besides the Old Testament, Christians used the religious literature of the Jews (for example, the Book of Enoch, the Testament of the Twelve Patriarchs, the Assumption of Moses). So there are many legends concerning ancient times which we find in this letter. In this literary form which seems rather antiquated to us, there is a strong call to preserve the integral faith of the apostles, which at the time was a serious concern of the Church. Therefore, a few years later, the author of 2nd Peter copied part of this letter.

Jas 1:1

¹Jude, servant of Jesus Christ and brother of James, to those called to the faith, beloved by God the Father and kept in Christ Jesus.

²May mercy, peace and love abound in you. ³Most beloved, I had wanted to write to you about the salvation we all share, but now I feel I must urge you to fight for the faith God has given once for all to the saints.

⁴Some individuals have slipped into your midst, godless people who were long ago marked down for condemnation. They make use of the grace of our God as a license for immorality and deny our only Master and Lord Jesus Christ.

⁵Although you may be aware of it, I wish to remind you that the Lord saved his people from the land of Egypt, but later delivered to death those who did not believe. ⁶He did the same with the angels who did not keep their rank but abandoned their dwelling places. God enclosed them in eternal prisons, in the pit of darkness until the great day of Judgment. ⁷Sodom and Gomorrah and the surrounding cities who prostituted themselves and were lured into unnatural unions are also a warning of 2P 2: 10-18 the punishment of eternal fire. ⁸In spite of all this, these people now do the same: in their ravings, they debase their bodies, scorn the celestial authorities, blaspheme against the angels.

Num
14:35

Dn 10:13; Rev 12:17 ⁹When the archangel Michael fought against the devil and disputed about the body of Moses, he did not dare insult him, but simply said, "May the Lord rebuke you!" ¹⁰Not so these people, they insult and scorn what they cannot understand; what they know by instinct like animals, they use for their corruption. ¹¹Woe to them! They follow the footsteps of Cain and like Balaam go astray because of money: they will finally perish like the rebellious Korah. ¹²When you celebrate your love-meals, they spoil everything, coming only for the food and shamelessly seeing to their own needs. They are like clouds carried along by the wind which never bring rain, like trees without fruit at the end of autumn, twice dead when uprooted. ¹³The scum of their vices are splashed like foam on the rough waves of the sea, they are like shooting stars which the thick darkness engulfs for ever. ¹⁴The patriarch Enoch, the seventh after Adam, said these words about them: The Lord comes with thousands of angels ¹⁵to judge everyone and call the wicked to account for all the evil deeds they committed; he will punish all the injurious words the impious sinners uttered against him. ¹⁶All these are discontented who curse their lot and follow their passions. Their mouth is full of arrogant words, and they flatter people for their own interest.

Zec 14:5

¹⁷But, most beloved, remember what the apostles of Christ Jesus, our Lord, announced to you. ¹⁸They said to you, "At the end of time, there will be scoffers led by their desires which are those of godless people." ¹⁹Actually, these people are those who cause divisions, they are worldly people and do not have the Holy Spirit.

²⁰But, dearly beloved, build your life on the foundation of your most holy faith, praying in the Holy Spirit. ²¹Remain firm in the love of God, welcoming the mercy of Jesus Christ, our Lord, which leads to eternal life.

²²Try to convince those who doubt; ²³others you will save, snatching them from condemnation. Treat the others with compassion but also with prudence, shunning even the clothes that touched their body.

²⁴To the one God who is able to keep you from all sin and bring you happy and without blemish before his own Glory, ²⁵to the one God who saves us through Jesus Christ, our Lord, to him be glory, honor, might and power, from past ages, now and forever. Amen.

2P 3:14

REVELATION

John, the Evangelist, brother of James the Martyr (Acts 12), was deported to Patmos island for the sake of faith. From there he sent us this “Revelation.” Skies opened, angels and tragedies, corruption of the well-to-do and the blood of martyrs: God’s judgment goes down the centuries. God’s glory has come near and only a curtain divides us. Everything is brought to an end in the heavenly city.

Why does Revelation have the reputation of being a mysterious book, hard to understand and why, for many people, does it have a terrifying meaning? Can it be because there, many seek secret figures and messages which might be adapted to current events as if John had announced them in detail?

If we want to avoid misunderstanding the images and the style of the Revelation of John we should first know that “revelations,” or “apocalypses” were a popular form of literature at the time of Jesus. There was an Apocalypse of Isaiah, one of Moses, and many others. It was a way of interpreting contemporary events wrapped up in formidable images, with visions and angels. The author of the book attributed it to a known prophet of the past, but only related events that were already known, trying to draw conclusions and showing what God wanted to achieve.

The style and the images of Revelation (Apocalypse) bewilder many people to the extent that today the term is mostly used to refer to worldwide tragedies. We are going to give the needed explanations, but from the beginning, we have to understand that John was answering the questions that his Christian contemporaries were asking, and questions that we are still asking ourselves today. Why didn’t the Savior bring justice and peace to the world and why do we see so much evil and suffering?

John answers that if centuries follow after Christ’s coming, this is not so that we may enjoy heaven on earth but rather, because this world is at stake in the conflict between good and evil. John probably wrote at the time of Emperor Domitian, namely, the start of the great Church persecutions in the Roman Empire. John is going to say, again and again, that being Christian means being faithful and if need be, being a martyr.

Understanding the importance of this conflict in today's history is much more useful than searching the Book of Revelation for secret messages that would surely enable us to expect extraordinary events and, perhaps, to have the chance to survive. We will better understand this Revelation if we interpret the visions, numbers and symbols according to the rules of apocalyptic literature. Then we shall see that the Revelation of Jesus Christ is neither difficult nor terrifying but full of joy and hope.

The risen Christ is the center of history; the world is the place of the struggle between the church, headed by Christ, and Satan's forces; Christians are called to give their witness with courage.

In this book we can see seven series, each with seven elements, in four major parts:

- the seven messages to the churches, chapters 1–3;
- the fulfillment of the Old Testament, chapters 4–11;
- the Church faces the Roman Empire, chapters 12–19;
- the last days and the heavenly Jerusalem, chapters 20–22.

We have attributed the Book of Revelation to John the Evangelist. In fact, there were many doubts on this point during the first two centuries. The western Church, differently from that in the East, did not see it as the work of John the Evangelist and while today's criticism does not raise major difficulties, it does raise many doubts. It is interesting to notice that the image of the sacrificed lamb, a central theme of the book, is found throughout the entire book. This theme, along with the same quotation from the prophet Zechariah (Rev 1:7), bears the personal mark of John in his Gospel (Jn 19:31-37).

1 • ¹ The Revelation of Jesus Christ.

God gave it to him to let his servants know what is soon to take place. He sent his angel to make it known to his servant, John,
² who reports everything he saw, for this is the word of God and the declaration of Jesus Christ.

³ Happy is the one who reads aloud these prophetic words, and happy those who hear them and treasure everything written here, for the time is near.

• ⁴ From John to the seven Churches of Asia:

receive grace and peace from him who is, who was and who is to come, and from the seven Spirits of God which are before his throne,

3:14

⁵ and from Jesus Christ, the faithful witness, the firstborn of the dead, the ruler of the kings of the earth.

Ps 89:28;
Col 1:15

To him who loves us and has washed away our sins with his own blood, ⁶ making us a kingdom and priests for God his Father, to him be the glory and power for ever and ever. Amen.

1P 2:9

⁷ See he comes with the clouds and everyone will see him, even those who pierced him; on his account all the nations of the earth will beat his breast. Yes. It will be so.

Dn 7:13;
Zec
12:10;
Mt 24:30

⁸ "I am the Alpha and the Omega," says the Lord God, he who is, who was and who is to come: the Master of the universe.

• ⁹ I, John, your brother, who shares with you, in Jesus, the sufferings, the kingdom and the patient endurance, was on the island of Patmos, because of the Word of God and witnessing to Jesus. ¹⁰ On the Lord's day, the Spirit took possession of me and I heard a voice behind me which sounded like a trumpet, ¹¹ "Write down all that you see, in a book, and send it to the seven Churches of Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamum, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia and Laodicea."

• 1.1 The time is near. This has been written first of all for John's first readers. Thus the idea of contemporary readers who would wish to read a description of current events into Revelation is unfounded.

• 4. John greets his readers, wishing them the peace that comes from the Father, Christ and the Holy Spirit. As soon as John has named the three divine Persons, all his praise goes to Christ. This was the newness that energized the early Christians so powerfully: Christ, God who came as a human.

The Seven Spirits means the fullness of God's Spirit.

The one who is, who was, and who is to come. This way of naming God expands what was revealed to Moses: "I am who am" (Ex 3). The living God is a God who is coming.

Then Christ is presented as the Messiah and Judge hoped for by the Jews. He comes with the clouds. In his trial, Jesus also referred to this text of the prophet Daniel (7:13).

All the nations of the earth will mourn his death. See this prophecy of the murdered Messiah: "the one they pierced" in Zechariah 12:10.

Alpha and Omega (that is A and Z). This suggests that God embraces all time.

Revelation is addressed to Christians who are beginning to suffer for their faith, and shows Christ to them, as the model they are imitating. Christ is the "servant and the witness of God the Father." Let us not forget that martyr means witness.

• 9. John had been condemned on account of his faith and was living in exile on Patmos. It was around the year 95.

John had this vision on the Lord's Day, that is, on Sunday, or the day of the resurrection. So this vision will be enlivened by the triumphant breath of the resurrection.

¹²I turned to see who was speaking to me; behind me were seven golden lampstands ¹³and, in the middle of these, I saw someone like a son of man, dressed in a long robe tied with a golden girdle.

Dn 7:9;
7:13

¹⁴His head and his hair are white as wool or as snow and his eyes are like flames of fire. ¹⁵His feet are like burnished bronze when it has been refined in a furnace. His voice is like the roaring of the waves.

Dn 10:5

Dn 10:6;
Ezk 1:24

¹⁶I saw seven stars in his right hand and a sharp, double-edged sword coming out of his mouth; his face shone like the sun in all its brilliance.

Is 44:6

¹⁷Seeing him, I fell at his feet like one dead but he touched me with his right hand and said, "Do not be afraid. It is I, the First and the Last.

Mt 16:18

¹⁸I am the living one; I was dead and now I am alive for ever and ever; and mine are the keys of death and the netherworld. ¹⁹Now write what you have seen, both what is and what is yet to come. ²⁰Know the secret of the seven stars you saw in my right hand and the seven golden lampstands: the seven stars are the angels of the seven Churches and the seven lampstands are the seven Churches.

The seven messages to the Churches

2 • ¹Write this to the angel of the Church in Ephesus, "Thus says the one who holds the seven stars in his right hand and who walks among the seven golden lampstands:

1:16;
1:12

• ²I know your works, your difficulties and your patient suffering. I know you cannot tolerate evildoers but have tested those who call themselves apostles and have proved

I saw someone like a son of man. This is a symbolic vision of Christ dressed as a priest, and with a golden sash as a king. His white hair is a symbol of his eternity. His feet like bronze means that no one will defeat him. Christ appears in the same way as Daniel represents God as the universal judge (see 7:9).

It is I, the First and the Last. By these words, Christ identifies with God himself. In the Bible, this is characteristic of God's way of speaking (see Is 44:6 and 12). The double-edged sword coming out of his mouth is the word of God that irresistibly penetrates the heart and is always fulfilled in events. It deals death as effectively as it saves.

There were more than seven churches in Asia. Seven represents fullness, and the seven churches, then, represent all the Christian communities. Seven is the perfect number and this is why in the book of Revelation, Christ's name is mentioned seven times, Jesus fourteen times, and the Lamb (who is Christ) twenty-eight times. There are seven prophecies of Christ's victory with his people and seven beatitudes like those of the Gospel: "Happy those..."

The stars, the angels and the lampstands: these three images may complement one another to designate a church, its bishops and believers together.

• 2.1 The seven following messages all begin with the words I know. Christ sees, knows and loves his Church. He begins by underscoring what is positive, then he reprimands. Christ remains invisible, but is the Lord of the universe and of history.

The messages reveal the difficulties these churches of Asia are facing:

– On one hand, there are hostilities coming from the Jews as well as from the pagans: they are a test of the believers' perseverance.

– On the other hand, we have the "Nicaitans," those Christians who, not wanting to be cut off from the pagans, accept participation with them in the banquets of the pagan temples where meat sacrificed to idols was eaten: this is a threat to faith.

– The last temptation is the one that comes with time: the love that was awakened in the first moments of conversion was growing cold.

• 2. Ephesus comes first since it is the mother Church. Paul preached there for two years (Acts 19:8). Later John lived there, thus extending his authority over the churches in the Asian province.

I know your works, your difficulties and your patient suffering. While the apostle was absent, the Church rejected the false prophets and preserved the true faith.

them to be liars. ³You have persevered and have suffered for my name without losing heart.

⁴Nevertheless, I have this complaint against you: you have lost your first love. ⁵Remember from where you have fallen and repent, and do what you used to do before. If not, I will come to you and remove your lampstand from its place; this I will do, unless you repent. ⁶Yet it is in your favor that you hate the doings of the Nicolaitans, which I also hate.

Gen 2:9;
Rev 22:2

⁷Let anyone who has ears listen to what the Spirit says to the Churches: To the victor I will give to eat of the tree of life which is in God's Paradise."

• ⁸Write this to the angel of the Church in Smyrna, "Thus says the

First and the Last, he who was dead and returned to life:

⁹I know your trials and your poverty: you are rich indeed. I know how you are slandered by those who pretend to be Jews but are not, for they are, in fact, the synagogue of Satan. ¹⁰Do not be afraid of what will happen to you. The devil will throw some of you into prison to test you and there will be ten days of trials. Remain faithful even to death and I will give you the crown of life.

Dn 1:12

¹¹Let anyone who has ears listen to what the Spirit says to the Churches: The victor has nothing to fear from the second death."

20:6;
21:8

• ¹²Write this to the angel of the Church in Pergamum, "Thus says the one who has the sharp, double-edged sword:

1:16;
19:15

You have lost your first love. How many small things—difficult to pinpoint—make us feel the fervor of a community, or, on the contrary, reveal that the essence of authentic, passionate and faithful love of God is missing! I will remove your lampstand: that is, your prestige as a mother Church.

The tree of life is eternal life (see Gen 2:9).

• 8. The church of Smyrna gathers poor people in an extremely rich city. In fact, it is rich in the eyes of God who is going to put it to the test so that it can be more productive.

There will be ten days of trials. The number ten is characteristic of the period during which evil ones rule. Thus it announces a trial lasting a short time.

The second death (see Rev 20:14). It means eternal condemnation, which separates the soul, not from the body but from God.

John means those Jews who did not believe in Jesus and recognize their Messiah. They are Jews, of course, but their community can no longer boast of this name. The Christian community, both Jews and converted Greeks, is the true remnant of Israel and the authentic descendants of Abraham.

• 12. Pergamum has the privilege of being an important center of pagan worship: it is "Satan's throne."

You cling firmly to my name. The name of Christ is "Lord." This is the period when the Roman emperors begin to have themselves called "Lord" and be adored like gods, thus forcing Christians to choose between emperor worship, imposed on everyone under the pain of severe punishment, and faithfulness to Christ.

The Church in Pergamum is privileged to have had among its members the first martyr of the province, Antipas, mentioned here. His courage in proclaiming his faith before pagan persecution does not prevent a pagan current from penetrating within the Church through the Nicolaitans mentioned earlier: by taking part in some pagan ceremonies and returning to the sexual freedom of the pagans, they are threatening to destroy the Church.

I will come soon to attack these people. In the early Church, the intervention of the Holy Spirit is felt. Prophets speak, point to a guilty party, and misfortunes soon occur.

The white stone is a sign of happiness. The new name (see Is 65:15) means the renewal of the Christian in the depth of his being: our living and growing in the faith is the beginning of a new personality that will appear clearly in heaven. The hidden manna (v. 17): Christ becomes power and source of life (Jn 6:48) for those who are faithful to him.

¹³I know where you live, where Satan's throne is, but you cling firmly to my name; you have not renounced me, not even in the days when Antipas, my faithful witness, was killed in your place, where Satan lives.

¹⁴Nevertheless, I have a few complaints against you: Some among you hold the teaching of Balaam, who taught Balak how to make the Israelites stumble by eating food sacrificed to idols and committing adultery. ¹⁵Also, among you some follow the teaching of the Nicolaitans. ¹⁶Therefore, repent; if not, I will come to you soon to attack these people with the sword of my mouth.

¹⁷Let anyone who has ears listen to what the Spirit says to the Churches: To the victor I will give the hidden manna. And I will also give a white stone with a new name written on it which no one knows except the one who receives it."

• ¹⁸Write this to the angel of the Church in Thyatira, "Thus says the Son of God whose eyes are like flames of fire and whose feet are like burnished bronze. ¹⁹I know your works: your love, faith, service, patient endurance and your later works, greater than the first.

²⁰Nevertheless, I have a complaint against you: you tolerate your Jezebel, this woman who calls herself a prophetess and is deceiving my servants; she teaches them prostitution and the eating of food sacrificed to idols. ²¹I have given her time to repent but she is unwilling to leave her prostitution. ²²So I am going to throw her onto a bed and inflict severe trials on her partners in adultery unless they repent of their evil. ²³I will strike her children dead and all the Churches will know that I am he who probes the heart and mind; I will give each of you what your conduct deserves.

²⁴Listen to me now, the rest of you in Thyatira. You do not hold with this teaching and have not learned 'the secrets,' as they are called which are, in fact, those of Satan. So I have no cause to reproach you, ²⁵only hold on to what you have, until I come. ²⁶To the victor who keeps to my ways to the end, I will give power over the nations, to rule them with an iron rod and shatter them like earthen pots; he will be like me, who received this power from my Father. ²⁸Moreover, I will give him the Morning Star.

²⁹Let anyone who has ears listen to what the Spirit says to the Churches."

3 • ¹Write this to the angel of the Church in Sardis, "Thus says he who holds the seven spirits of God and the seven stars:

I know your worth: you think you

• 18. In the Bible, Jezebel is the name of an impious woman (see 1 K 19) and here it refers to some Nicolaitan prophetess. Her lovers and sons are her followers.

Idolatry is often called adultery or prostitution: the believing people belong to God as a wife to her husband, and to be unfaithful is to prostitute oneself. In fact, those who worship idols do not usually respect the sexual discipline proceeding from faith. Thus when Revelation speaks of prostitution, we must understand both idolatry and sexual immorality.

He will rule them with an iron rod. By these words, the one who overcomes is promised a share in Christ's victory (see Ps 2); he will receive the Morning Star, that is to say, Christ himself (see Rev 22:16).

• 3.1 This is a brief message to a dying church. The universal Church has been promised that it will remain. Yet an individual church can disappear.

To be dressed in white means inner life: being clothed with Christ (see Eph 4:24). Throughout the book of Revelation, white means joy, strength, victory and eternal glory.

Num
22:2;
25:1-3;
1Cor
8:10;
2P 2:15

14:1;
Is 62:2;
65:15;
Jn 6:32

1K 16:31

Jer
11:20

Ps 2:8-9;
Rev
19:15

22:16;
Is 14:12;
2P 1:19

1:16;
Is 11:2

live but you are dead. ²Wake up and strengthen that which is not already dead. For I have found your works to be imperfect in the sight of my God.

^{16:15;}
^{Mt 24:42;}
^{1Thes}
^{5:2} ³Remember what you were taught; keep it and change your ways. If you do not repent I will come upon you like a thief at an hour you least expect.

^{Mt 10:32} ⁴Yet, there are some left in Sardis who have not soiled their robes; these will come with me, dressed in white, since they deserve it. ⁵The victor will be dressed in white and I will never erase his name from the book of life; instead, I will acknowledge it before my Father and his angels.

⁶Let anyone who has ears listen to what the Spirit says to the Churches.”

^{Is 22:22} • ⁷Write this to the angel of the Church in Philadelphia, “Thus says he who is holy and true, who holds the key of David; if he opens, nobody shuts and if he shuts nobody opens.

^{Col 4:3} ⁸I know your worth; I have opened a door before you, which nobody can close, because you have kept my Word and not renounced me, in spite of your lack of power. ⁹I am giving you some of the synagogue of Satan who call themselves Jews but they are only liars. I will make them fall at your feet and recognize that I have loved you.

^{Is 45:14;}
^{60:14}

¹⁰Because you have kept my words with patient endurance, I, for my part, will keep you safe in the hour of trial that is coming upon the whole world, to test the people of the earth. ¹¹I am coming soon; hold fast to what you have, lest anyone take your crown.

¹²I will make the victor into a column in the sanctuary of my God where he will stay forever. I will write on him the name of my God and the name of the city of my God, the new Jerusalem, which comes down from my God in heaven, and my own new name. ¹³Let anyone who has ears listen to what the Spirit says to the Churches.”

• ¹⁴Write this to the angel of the Church in Laodicea, “Thus says the Amen, the faithful and true witness, the beginning of God’s creation:

¹⁵I know your works: you are neither cold nor hot. Would that you were cold or hot! ¹⁶You are lukewarm, neither hot nor cold so I will spit you out of my mouth. ¹⁷You think you are rich and have piled up so much that you need nothing, but you do not realize that you are wretched and to be pitied, poor, blind and naked.

¹⁸I advise you to buy from me gold that has been tested by fire, so that you may be rich, and white

^{Gal 2:9;}
^{1Tim}
^{3:15;}
^{Rev}
^{21:2;}
^{Ezk}
^{48:35}

^{2Cor}
^{1:19;}
^{Pro 8:22;}
^{Jn 1:3;}
^{Col 1:15;}
^{Heb 1:2}

^{Is 55:1}

• 7. This is a message of consolation and optimism for those who work faithfully with the Holy Spirit, but who are troubled by the thousand difficulties of their ministry.

The one who holds the key of David (see Is 22:22). Christ has absolute power over the “house of David,” namely, his people. He prepares a fruitful ministry for those who were able to persevere in hard times when the fruits of their labors were not seen.

I have opened a door before you (v. 8) means: I have prepared a successful ministry. There is one condition: keeping the Word of God and being faithful to him.

• 14. You are neither cold nor hot. Neither unbelievers who remain cold toward a faith they do not share, nor believers who take God’s love seriously and show authentic surrender. We can easily imagine this community of nice, comfortable people. They were one more religious group, but not witnesses of Christ the victor.

Laodicea had hot and cold thermal waters. It was also in that city that eyewash famous for improving eyesight was made.

Amen means: it is true, or also: I commit myself this way. Christ is the Father’s Amen. His commitment to us is the fulfillment of God’s promises (see 2 Cor 1:20). Because Christ is the Amen, he calls us to a real commitment to God to realize his plans.

clothes to wear so that your nakedness may not shame you, and ointment for your eyes that you may see. ¹⁹I reprimand and correct all those I love. Be earnest and change your ways.

²⁰Look, I stand at the door and knock. If you hear my call and open the door, I will come in to you and have supper with you, and you with me. ²¹I will let the victor sit with me on my throne just as I was victorious and took my place with my Father on his throne. ²²Let anyone who has ears listen to what the Spirit says to the Churches.”

Lk 22:29;
Ps 110:1

Pro 3:12;
1Cor
11:32;
Jn 14:23

A LOOK AT THE PAST: CHRIST AND ISRAEL

The throne in heaven

4 ¹After this, I looked up to the wall of the sky and saw an open door. The voice which I had first heard speaking to me like a trumpet said, “Come up here and I will show you what will come in the future.”

²Immediately I was seized by the Spirit. There, in heaven, was a throne and one sitting on it. ³He who sat there looked like jasper and carnelian and round the throne was a rainbow resembling an emerald.

⁴In a circle around the throne are twenty-four thrones and seated on these are twenty-four elders, dressed in white clothes, with golden crowns on their heads. ⁵Flashes of lightning come forth from the throne, with voices and thunderclaps. Seven flaming torches burn before the throne; these are the seven spirits of God.

⁶Before the throne there is a platform, transparent like crystal. Around and beside the throne stand four living creatures, full of eyes, both in front and behind. ⁷The first living creature is like a lion, the second like a bull, the third has the face of a man and the fourth looks like a flying eagle. ⁸Each of the four living creatures has six wings full of eyes, all around as well as within; day and night they sing without ceasing,

*Holy, holy, holy is the Lord God,
master of the universe,
who was, and is and is to come.*

Mk 1:10;
Acts
10:11

Ezk
1:26;
10:1;
Is 61:1

Ezk
1:22;
1:5

Is 6:2-3

19:16

• 4.1 After these messages to the churches of Asian province, we have visions containing the meaning of history.

– In chapters 4–11, John delivers the meaning of the history of Israel up to the preaching of the Gospel.

– In chapters 12–21, he prepares us to understand the history we are living and the struggles of the Church.

To begin with, we need to know where we are going and why we are struggling. Those without goals will soon be swept away by conflicting currents. Therefore, before developing his vision of history, John shows us the unchanging center in which things and events have their origin and to which they return.

A door opened in the sky (v. 1). This figure of speech had at the time a precise meaning: that of a vision granted to the prophet (compare with: “He saw the heavens opened” Mk 1:10).

In heaven was a throne, and one sitting on it. That invisible someone from whom light and life radiate is the divine Being contemplated in its source, that is, the Father. His face cannot be described, but all the elements of nature are used to express something of the divine Being: the imposing force of the storm, the fascinating power of fire, the purity and freshness of water.

The elders are the saints of the Old Testament who represent the faithful people (see Is 24:23). The four living creatures refer to angels. These are poetic images to express what is most noble, strong, wise and quick. Their eyes, always alert, are focused on the center of the divine Being and they spread God’s energies throughout the universe (see Ezk 1).

⁹Whenever the living creatures give glory, honor and thanks to the One on the throne, he who lives for ever and ever, ¹⁰the twenty-four elders fall down before him and worship the One who lives for ever and ever. They lay their crowns in front of the throne and say, ¹¹Our Lord and God, worthy are you to receive glory, honor and power! For you have created all things; by your will they came to be and were made.

The coming of the Lamb

Is 29:11

5¹ Then I saw in the right hand of him who was seated on the throne a scroll written on both sides, sealed with seven seals. ²A mighty angel exclaimed in a loud voice, “Who is worthy to open this and break the seals?”

³But no one in heaven or on earth or in the netherworld was found able to open the book and read it. ⁴I wept much when I saw that no one was found worthy to open the book and read it. ⁵Then one of the elders said to me, “Do not weep. Look, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the Shoot of

Gen 49:8; Is 11:1

David, has conquered; he will open the book of the seven seals.”

⁶And I saw next to the throne with its four living creatures and the twenty-four elders a Lamb standing, although it had been slain. I saw him with seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven spirits of God sent out to all the earth.

Jn 1:29

⁷The Lamb moved forward and took the book from the right hand of him who was seated on the throne. ⁸When he took it, the four living creatures and the twenty-four elders bowed before the Lamb. They all held in their hands harps and golden cups full of incense which are the prayers of the holy ones.

⁹This is the new song they sang:

You are worthy to take the book and open its seals, for you were slain and by your blood you purchased for God people of every race, language and nation;
¹⁰and you made them a kingdom and priests for our God and they shall reign over the land.

14:3; Is 42:10

19:10; Is 61:6

¹¹I went on looking; I heard the

Dn 7:10

They sing without ceasing: Holy, Holy, Holy (v. 8). This is the first of the hymns found in Revelation. It is taken up from Isaiah 6:3.

Master of the universe. The Greek text uses this expression to translate “Sabaoth.” We know that the “Lord Sabaoth” is the Lord of Hosts and this refers to the many visible and unseen beings and forces of Heaven and earth. At the center, where God is and from where all things come, everything will be gathered up in thanksgiving to the Father when the lives of mortal beings are over. What will we do in heaven? All will be admiration, praise and amazing discovery of God’s infinity.

Note how John describes God’s mystery here by using images from Isaiah 6 and Ezekiel 1. As to the four animals, Christian art used them to represent the four evangelists: Matthew as the man; Mark, the lion; Luke, the bull; and John as the eagle.

• 5.1 The vision continues with the appearance of two new elements: the sealed Book and the Lamb. The history of Israel (which can be read in the Bible) and Christ.

John’s readers had a book, the Old Testament. For those among them of Jewish origins, it was the history of their people. It was also to be with the New Testament, the book of all the Christians, and in some way it contains the meaning of universal history, since this history was preparing for the salvation of all humankind.

Jerusalem had been destroyed some twenty years before, according to Jesus’ prophecy (Mk 13), and Christians of Jewish descent were asking themselves: If Christ is the promised Savior, why did the history of Israel end in such disasters? Why did the Jewish people, instructed by the Bible, not recognize their Savior?

noise of a multitude of angels gathered around the throne, the living creatures and the elders, numbering millions of millions, ¹²crying out with a loud voice:

Worthy is the Lamb who was slain to receive power and riches, wisdom and strength, honor, glory and praise.

¹³Then I heard the voice of the whole universe, heaven, earth, sea and the place of the dead; every creature cried out:

To him who sits upon the throne and to the Lamb be praise, honor, glory and power for ever and ever.

¹⁴And the four living creatures said, Amen, while the elders bowed down and worshiped.

The seven seals

6 ¹I saw the Lamb opening the first of the seven seals, and I heard one of the four living creatures cry out with a voice like thunder, "Come and see!"

²A white horse appeared, and its rider had a bow. He was crowned, and he went out as a conqueror and he will conquer.

³When he opened the second seal, I heard the second living creature cry out, "Come!" ⁴Then another horse the color of fire came out. Its rider was ordered to take peace away from the earth, that people might kill one another; so he was given a great sword.

⁵When he opened the third seal, I heard the third creature cry out, "Come!" This time it was a black horse, and its rider held a balance in his hand. ⁶Then from the midst of the four living creatures a voice was heard: "A measure of wheat for a piece of silver, and three measures of barley for a piece, as well! Do not spoil the oil or the wine."

⁷When he opened the fourth seal, I heard a cry from the fourth living creature, "Come!" ⁸A greenish horse

Here we are told that though the events are in the Book, the Book is sealed. No one was found able to understand God's plan for his people, or able to call God to account. Only Christ reveals the mystery of death and resurrection which is being realized in history, and only he can do so, since he himself surrendered to death for all: you are worthy to take the Book (v. 9).

Now, Christ can read the Book of the history and destiny of humankind (power, riches and wisdom: v. 12). Still more, he is now the owner of this Book, and in being rejected by Israel, a priestly people (Ex 19:6), he formed his own kingdom and priests, the Church (1 P 2:9), as is said in verse 10.

A Lamb standing, although it had been slain (v. 6). The vision brings us to the moment of the resurrection. While the Gospels relate the resurrection of Jesus, as his disciples knew it on earth, here we are in heaven to contemplate the risen Christ entering a glorious world. He is standing after being sacrificed, glorious, but forever marked by his Passion.

The seven horns and the seven eyes express the fullness of power and knowledge in the risen Christ. Before all the powers of the world and of heaven, on that day, he comes with authority to take the Book from the hands of the Father.

Let us note how on the day of the resurrection, the same praise previously addressed to God now goes to the Lamb: in being raised up, Christ appears with the glory befitting him: that of God.

• 6.1 The Lamb opens the seals. The risen Christ explains the great forces that give an impulse to sacred history. At the time of John's writing, the birth of the Church meant that the Old Testament centuries were over and, on the other hand, the Jewish nation had been ruined. This was the time to think things over.

The four horses symbolize the forces shaping biblical history.

The rider of the white horse is "the word of God." It represents God's words given to the prophets in the Old Testament. Christ, who is the word of God had not yet come; he would come later, riding the same white horse (Rev 19:11).

Phil 2:
7-9

Zec 6:1

Ezk 4:16

Jer 15:
2-4

Ezk
14:21

appeared, its rider was called Death, and the Netherworld rode behind him. He was allowed to utterly destroy by sword, famine, pestilence and wild beasts a fourth of the inhabitants of the earth.

⁹When he opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the spirits of those who proclaimed the word of God and were slain for its sake.

¹⁰They began to cry aloud, "Holy and righteous Lord, how long will it be before you render justice and avenge our blood on the inhabitants of the earth?" ¹¹Then each one of them was given a white garment, and they were told to wait a little while, until the number of their brothers and sisters and fellow servants who would be killed as they had been would be completed.

¹²And my vision continued. When the Lamb opened the sixth seal, there was a violent earthquake. The sun became black as a mourning dress, and the whole moon turned blood-red, ¹³and the stars in the sky fell to the earth like dry figs falling from a fig tree shaken by a hurricane. ¹⁴The sky was folded up like rolled parchment; there was no mountain or continent that was not removed from its place. ¹⁵The kings of the earth and their ministers, the generals, the rich and the powerful, and all the people, slaves as well as free persons, hid in caves or among rocks on the mountains, ¹⁶saying, "Fall on us, mountains and rocks, and hide us, for we are afraid of him who sits on the throne, and of the wrath of the Lamb. ¹⁷The great Day of his wrath has come, and who can endure it?"

144,000 from Israel and the great crowd from every nation

7 • ¹After this, there were four angels standing at the four corners of the earth, holding back the four winds to prevent their blowing against the earth, the sea and the trees. ²I saw another angel ascending from the sunrise, carrying the seal of the living God, and he cried out with a loud voice to the four angels empowered to harm the earth and the sea, ³"Do not harm the earth or the sea or the trees until we have sealed the servants of our God upon their foreheads."

⁴Then I heard the number of those marked with the seal: a hundred and forty-four thousand from all the tribes of the people of Israel:

The other three horses represent war, hunger and the plague. These are the great plagues troubling sinful people: they make them experience the need for God's salvation.

With the fifth seal another invisible power is discovered, one that moves sacred history: the demand for justice for the blood of martyrs. These martyrs, prior to Christ, already share in his victory (that is why they wear a white garment); yet they must wait to be joined by other martyrs, the Christian martyrs of the early Church, for God to bring about his justice (see Mt 23:35).

With the sixth seal we have the appearance of the signs and plagues which the prophets announced for the Day of the Lord, and which would be fulfilled in the destruction of Jerusalem (Mk 13:24).

• 7.1 Do not harm the earth or the sea or the trees until we have sealed the servants of our God (v. 3). John takes stock of these centuries of God's blessings and favors for his chosen people.

Seeing how the Jews as a whole did not accept Jesus, we might have the impression of a complete failure. John, however, presents an optimistic vision. The angels point out the elect. There are twelve thousand from each one of the tribes. We know that twelve is the number for fullness when it refers to the Jewish people. There were twelve tribes and this is why Jesus chose twelve apostles and we have to understand that the number of elect was the maximum, and that God was not disappointed.

Who are these elect? On one hand, they are the Jews who followed Jesus. They are also

Is 2:10

Hos
10:8;
Lk 23:30

Rom 2:5

Jer
49:363:12;
22:4;
9:4;
12:7Dt 32:43;
Zec 1:12;
Lk 18:7

14:13

Is 13:10;
Jl 3:4;
Mt 24:29

Is 34:4

⁵from the tribe of Judah, twelve thousand were sealed;
 from the tribe of Reuben, twelve thousand;
 from the tribe of Gad, twelve thousand;
⁶from the tribe of Asher, twelve thousand;
 from the tribe of Naphtali, twelve thousand;
 from the tribe of Manasseh, twelve thousand;
⁷from the tribe of Simeon, twelve thousand;
 from the tribe of Levi, twelve thousand;
 from the tribe of Issachar, twelve thousand;
⁸from the tribe of Zebulun, twelve thousand;
 from the tribe of Joseph, twelve thousand;
 from the tribe of Benjamin, twelve thousand.

Gen 15:5

⁹After this I saw a great crowd, impossible to count, from every nation, race, people and tongue, standing before the throne and the Lamb, clothed in white, with palm branches in their hands, ¹⁰and they cried out with a loud voice, "Who saves but our God who sits on the throne and the Lamb?"

¹¹All the angels were around the throne, the elders and the four living creatures; they then bowed before the throne with their faces to the ground to worship God. ¹²They said,

Amen. Praise, glory, wisdom, thanks, honor, power and strength to our God forever and ever. Amen!

¹³At that moment, one of the elders spoke up and said to me, "Who are these people clothed in white, and where did they come from?" ¹⁴I answered, "Sir, it is you who know this."

22:14

The elder replied, "They are those who have come out of the great persecution; they have washed and made their clothes white in the blood of the Lamb.

¹⁵This is why they stand before the throne of God and serve him day and night in his sanctuary.

Is 4:5

He who sits on the throne will spread his tent over them.

¹⁶Never again will they suffer hunger or thirst

Is 49:10

or be burned by the sun or any scorching wind.

¹⁷For the Lamb near the throne will be their Shepherd,

Ps 23:1;
Is 25:8

and he will bring them to springs of life-giving water, and God will wipe away their tears."

those who did not believe in him, through no fault of their own, but who were saved through his death and his resurrection.

Thus we have an inventory of the saved among God's people, Israel. Then a huge crowd that no one could count immediately appears.

After this I saw a great crowd. There are the new people gathered by the Messiah, the followers of Christ coming from all the nations of the world, who join the believers of the Old Testament.

A great crowd, impossible to count (v. 9). The salvation of humanity will be an incredible success, despite appearances that discourage us so often: the people of God are being formed everywhere.

They are those who come out of the great persecution (v. 14). This multitude of the saved are obviously not all martyrs, and yet John sees them depicted as martyrs. It is because every believer has a model in the martyrs who gave even their lives for their faith. Besides, John is speaking for Christians on the eve of the first great persecution.

Praise, glory and wisdom to our God (v. 12). This is another hymn to God our Savior.

Zep 1:7;
Zec 2:17

8 • ¹When the Lamb opened the seventh seal there was silence in heaven for about half an hour. ²Then I looked at the seven angels standing before God who were given seven trumpets.

Ezk 10:2

³Another angel came and stood before the altar of incense with a golden censer. He was given much incense to be offered with the prayers of all the holy ones, on the golden altar before the throne; ⁴and the cloud of incense rose with the prayers of the holy ones from the hands of the angel to the presence of God. ⁵Then the angel took the censer and filled it with burning coals from the altar, and threw them on the earth: and there came thunder, lightning and earthquakes.

The seven trumpets

9:23

• ⁶The seven angels with the seven trumpets prepared to sound them. ⁷When the first angel blew his trumpet, there came hail and fire, mixed with blood, which fell on the earth. And a third of the earth was burned up with a third of the trees and the green grass.

⁸When the second angel blew his trumpet, something like a great mountain was thrown into the sea, and a third of the sea was turned into blood. ⁹At once, a third of the living creatures in the sea died and a third of the ships perished.

¹⁰When the third angel sounded his trumpet, a great star fell from heaven, like a ball of fire, on a third of the rivers and springs. ¹¹The star is called Wormwood, and a third of the waters was turned into wormwood and many people died because of the water which had turned bitter.

¹²The fourth angel blew his trumpet, and a third of the sun, the moon and the stars was affected. Daylight decreased one third, and the light at night as well.

Jer
51:25;
7:20

Is 14:12

Those who sing God's praises may have already seen, during their lives, that all wisdom, power and strength could only come from above.

• 8.1 When the Lamb opened the seventh seal. We have just seen how the multitudes entered into sacred history. What will happen later? John does not know and the silence that occurs at that moment probably covers many centuries. Therefore, chapters 8 and 9 deal with the great trials that will be like a foretaste of judgment: an invasion of the powers of hell, unleashing of the plagues of violence and war...

Judgment was expected but this first vision of the people of Israel, welcoming the multitude of the baptized, concludes precisely then. In chapter 10, a second vision starts: it begins with the coming of Christ and it is totally oriented to the future. Then, we will have the conflicts of Satan and the Church.

The following chapters often present angels. We have already said that these angels are part of the images used in apocalyptic literature: we are in the presence of a world of images.

We should also add that John shares a conviction that is expressed throughout the Bible: God's creation is much broader than what we see and assess. Not only because it extends much further but also, because it is the theater of a tragedy whose actors are not only human beings. The spirits at God's service have a place in the events of history and even in our relationship with God (Rev 8:3). Remember Luke's reproach to the materialistic Sadducees: "They claim that there is neither resurrection, nor angels nor spirits" (Acts 23:8).

• 6. With the first four trumpets, punishment comes from the forces of nature that turn against sinners (see Wis 5:20-23). Our sins against creation lead us to death and according to the news, hundreds of millions of human beings are already living this apocalypse.

The fifth trumpet announces terrible conflicts. The images of these conflicts may be inspired from the terror that Parthians had sown in Palestine when their formidable archers had invaded it. In the Gospel, the prophecies about the end of Jerusalem had already seen in this an image of the end of the world. Here, the sixth trumpet announces the punishment of pagans.

¹³And my vision continued: I noticed an eagle flying through the highest heaven and crying with a loud voice, "Woe, woe, woe to the inhabitants of the land when the last three angels sound their trumpets."

of the abyss whose name in Hebrew is Abaddon or Apollyon in Greek (Destruction).

¹²The first woe has passed. Two others are to come.

¹³The sixth angel blew his trumpet. Then I heard a voice calling from the corners of the golden altar before God. ¹⁴It said to the sixth angel who had just sounded the trumpet, "Release the four angels chained at the banks of the great river Euphrates."

¹⁵And the four angels were released who had been waiting for this year, this month, this day and this hour, ready to utterly destroy a third of humankind. ¹⁶The number of the soldiers on horses was two hundred million; this is the number I heard.

¹⁷In my vision, I saw those horses and their riders: they wear breastplates the color of fire, hyacinth and sulfur. The heads of the horses look like lions' heads, and fire, smoke and sulfur come out of their mouths.

¹⁸Then a third of humankind was killed by these three plagues: fire, smoke and sulfur which the horses released through their mouths, ¹⁹for the power of the horses was both in their mouths and in their tails. Their tails, in fact, look like serpents, and their heads are able to inflict injury as well.

²⁰However, the rest of humankind who were not killed by these plagues did not renounce their way of life: they went on worshipping the demons, keeping those idols of gold, silver, bronze, stone and wood that cannot see, hear or walk. ²¹No, they did not repent of their crimes, or their sorcery, or their sexual immorality or their theft.

12:4 9 ¹And the fifth angel blew his trumpet. I then saw a star fall from heaven to earth. The star was given the key to the depths of the abyss. ²He opened the abyss, and a cloud of smoke rose as if from a great furnace which darkened the sun and the air.

Jl 1:1—
2:11;
10:12 ³Locusts came from this smoke and spread throughout the earth. They were given the same harmful power as the scorpions of the earth.

⁴Then they were told not to harm the meadows, the green grass or the trees, but only the people who do not bear the seal of God upon their foreheads. ⁵They were not to kill them, but only torture them for five months. This pain is like the sting of scorpions. ⁶In those days, people will look for death but will not find it; they will long to die, but death will elude them. ⁷These locusts look like horses equipped for battle; they wear golden crowns on their heads, and their faces are like those of human beings. ⁸Their hair is like women's hair, and their teeth like lion's teeth;

Jl 1:6 ⁹their chests are like iron breastplates; and the noise of their wings like the roar of an army of chariots and horses rushing for battle.

Jl 2:6 ¹⁰Their tails are like those of scorpions and have stings; the power they have to torture people for five months is in their tails. ¹¹These locusts have a king, who is the angel

16:12

Dn 5:4;
Ps
135:15

• 9.1 This chapter is one of those that most attracts curiosity and it gives to the word "apocalypse" the meaning that many people attribute to it: all the calamities on a world-scale. Throughout time, many people have wanted to read into it an exact description of their own time, to the degree that they were convinced that John thought only about them.

What has been proclaimed by the prophets is fulfilled

10^{•1} Then I saw another mighty angel coming down from heaven wrapped in a cloud. A rainbow was around his head, his face was like the sun and his legs like pillars of fire. ²I could see a small book open in his hand. He stood, his right foot planted on the sea and his left on the land, ³and called in a loud voice like the roaring of a lion. ⁴Then the seven thunders sounded their own message.

Dn 12:4

I was about to write what the seven thunders had sounded, when a voice from heaven said to me, “Keep the words of the seven thunders secret and do not write them down.”

⁵And the angel I saw standing on the sea and land, raised his right hand to heaven, ⁶swearing by him who lives for ever and ever, and who created the heavens, the earth, the sea and everything in them.

Dt 32:40

He said, “There is no more delay; ⁷as soon as the trumpet call of the seventh angel is heard, the mysterious plan of God will be fulfilled according to the good news he pro-

Rom 16:25;
Eph 1:9;
Col 1:26

claimed through his servants the prophets.”

⁸And the voice I had heard from heaven spoke again, saying to me, “Go near the angel who stands on the sea and on the land, and take the small book open in his hand.” ⁹So I approached the angel and asked him for the small book; he said to me, “Take it and eat; although it be sweet as honey in your mouth, it will be bitter to your stomach.”

¹⁰I took the small book from the hand of the angel, and ate it. It was sweet as honey in my mouth, but when I had eaten it, it turned bitter in my stomach. ¹¹Then I was told, “You must again proclaim God’s words about many peoples, nations, tongues and kings.”

Ezk 3:3

Jer 1:10

The two witnesses

11^{•1} Then I was given a staff like a measuring stick, and I was told, “Go and measure the temple of God and the altar, and count those who worship there. ²Do not bother to measure the outer courtyard, for this has been given to the pagans who will trample over the Holy City for

Ezk 40:3;
Zec 2:1

Lk 21:24

• 10.1 Once again, the end of everything was expected with the seventh trumpet. Yet, before it is sounded, suddenly the seven thunders proclaim a mysterious word for humankind and it is said that: The mysterious plan of God will be fulfilled just as it has been proclaimed (v. 7).

The secret word (v. 4) may very well be the news that the Word of God became human. As to the small book, it contains new events that will accompany the spread of the Gospel. This means that Christ’s coming does not put an end to history, nor does it bring heaven on earth.

John must eat the book, an expression that we already found in Ezekiel (2:8–3:4). It is both sweet and sour: the voice is sweet, but the task is difficult. Thus we understand that the history of Israel, imaged by the book of the seven seals (5:1), was not all of sacred history but only its first part, the Old Testament.

• 11.1 This is the beginning of Gospel times. During the forty years between Christ’s departure and the end of Jerusalem, Christ’s witnesses proclaimed the Gospel throughout the pagan world. This beginning of the time that Paul calls “time of the nations” was characterized in Palestine by continual crises. While God protects his true worshipers (those who are measured or set apart), the pagan Romans pressure and trample upon the outer courtyard representing most of the people of Israel who did not join the Church.

This page glorifies the Christian apostolate: its struggles, its martyrs and its reward.

The two witnesses personify Christian apostles of all times. Do not forget that Jesus sent his disciples two by two. The fact that there are two is also a reminder that there are a variety of ministries in the Church. The two witnesses are also the two most famous apostles, Peter and Paul, both killed in the Great City, Rome, forty-two months. ³Meanwhile, I will entrust my Word to my two witnesses who will proclaim it for one thousand two hundred and sixty days, dressed in sackcloth."

Zec 4:3 ⁴These are the two olive trees and the two lamps which are before the Lord of the earth. ⁵If anyone intends to harm them, fire will come out of their mouths to devour their enemies: this is how whoever intends to harm them will perish. ⁶They have the power to close the sky and hold back the rain during the time of their prophetic mission; they also have the power to change water into blood, and punish the earth with a thousand plagues, any time they wish.

Dn 7:25 ⁷But when my witnesses have fulfilled their mission, the beast that comes up from the abyss will make war upon them, and will conquer and kill them. ⁸Their dead bodies will lie in the square of the Great City which the believers figuratively call Sodom or Egypt, where their Lord was crucified. ⁹And their dead bodies will be exposed for three days and a half to people of all tribes, races, languages and nations who will be ordered not to have them buried.

¹⁰Then the inhabitants of the earth will rejoice, congratulate one another and exchange gifts among themselves because these two prophets were a torment to them.

¹¹But after those three and a half days, a spirit of life coming from God entered them. They then stood up, and those who looked at them were seized with great fear. ¹²A loud voice from heaven called them, "Come up here." So they went up to heaven in the midst of the clouds in the sight of their enemies.

¹³At that moment, there was a violent earthquake which destroyed a tenth of the city and claimed seven thousand victims. The rest were overcome with fear, and acknowledged the God of heaven.

¹⁴The second woe has passed. The third is coming soon.

• ¹⁵The seventh angel blew his trumpet, then loud voices resounded

2K 1:11

12:10;
Ps 2:2;
Dn 2:44

between the years 64-67. Peter, the first head of Jesus' Church, and Paul, the apostle to the pagan nations.

To understand what is said about them, it is useful to know that all the comparisons used are taken from the Bible, especially from the texts that glorify the great prophets Moses and Elijah:

– They will proclaim my word dressed in sackcloth. The apostle preaches repentance and a more austere life.

– One thousand two hundred and sixty days, that is to say, three and a half years, meaning a time of trials. Let us recall the three and a half years of drought in Elijah's time (Lk 4:25; James 5:17), the three and a half times of Daniel (7:25; 12:7).

– These are the two olive trees, meaning: they are precious in the eyes of God: see Zechariah 4.

– They have the power to close the sky, like Elijah, that is to say that God allows them to work miracles.

– When they have fulfilled their mission. The forces of evil will not overpower them before God allows it. Only then will martyrdom come.

– After three and a half days (again the symbolic figure for trials) they will be raised. They are already glorified by the Church that has its apostles and martyrs as mediators in heaven. They already share the resurrection of Christ and their enemies learn that, in killing Christ's witnesses, they did not destroy his work, which continues to grow victoriously.

Where do they die? The images point to both Jerusalem and Rome, meaning the Jews and the Romans in those first forty years of the Church. Stephen and James have been killed by the Jews; Peter and Paul, by the Romans, not to mention the rest of the early Christian martyrs.

• 15. With the blowing of the seventh trumpet the beginning of the kingdom of God in our world is announced. We see a heavenly in heaven: “The world has now become the kingdom of our God and of his Christ. He will reign for ever and ever.”

¹⁶The twenty-four elders who sit on their thrones before God bowed down to worship God, ¹⁷saying,

*We thank you, Lord God,
Master of the universe,
who are and who were,
for you have begun your reign, making use of your invincible* power.

¹⁸*The nations raged
but your wrath has come,*

Ps 2:1;
46:7

*the time to judge the dead and reward your servants the prophets,
the saints and those who honor
your Name—
whether great or small—and destroy those who destroy the earth.*

¹⁹Then the sanctuary of God in the heavens was opened, and the Ark of the Covenant of God could be seen inside the sanctuary. There were flashes of lightning, peals of thunder, an earthquake and a violent hail-storm.

15:5;
2Mac 2:8

TOWARDS THE FUTURE: THE WORLD AND THE CHURCH

The woman and the dragon

12 ¹A great sign appeared in heaven: a woman, clothed with the sun, with the moon under her feet and a crown of twelve stars on her head. ²She was pregnant and cried out in pain, looking to her time of delivery.

Ps 104:2;
Dt 6:10;
Gen
37:9;
3:16

Mic 4:9;
Is 7:14;
66:7

³Then another sign appeared: a huge, red dragon with seven heads and ten horns and wearing seven crowns on its heads. ⁴It had just swept along a third of the stars of heaven with its tail, throwing them down to the earth.

Dn 7:7;
8:10

The dragon stood in front of the temple that replaces the Jerusalem Temple; a new Ark symbolizes the new Covenant of God with people of every nation.

• 12.1 Here begins the second part of John’s vision. The Church has left the Jewish world and the horizon is expanded. The Church is going to win over the nations, by struggling against the power of the devil. We have the beginning of a series of seven signs or visions in the sky. The first two present the protagonists of sacred history, the Woman and the Dragon, the People of God and the Devil.

A woman appeared. She seems surrounded with glory, but she is suffering labor pains. This represents humanity. At the beginning of the Bible, it was represented by Eve, the woman who sinned. Now we see humanity the way God wanted it to be: suffering birth pains because our entire history is the painful preparation for our salvation. She gives birth to a boy, who is Christ himself. The Savior is the fruit of God’s love for humankind. Salvation comes from God and from people at the same time.

The woman represents humanity cooperating with God’s plans; it is also Mary who gives birth to Jesus; it is also the Church fleeing to the desert, that is, living spiritually withdrawn from the world and nourished by the Word of God during the persecutions: one thousand two hundred sixty days, or three and a half years (see 11:11).

The snake is the one of the first sin, except that it is better clothed. The seven heads indicate the multiplicity of its inventions; the ten horns (imperfect number) state that its power is surmountable. It was defeated in heaven, even though it managed in its fall to drag down a number of angels (a third of the stars). See 8:10.

As to the male child, Satan was preparing to destroy him on the cross, but when he rose he escaped from the evil of the serpent.

woman who was about to give birth, so that it might devour the child as soon as it was born. ⁵She gave birth to a male child, the one who is to rule all the nations with an iron scepter; then her child was seized and taken up to God and to his throne ⁶while the woman fled to the desert where God had prepared a place for her; there she would be looked after for one thousand two hundred and sixty days.

Ps 2:9

⁷War broke out in heaven with Michael and his angels battling with the dragon. The dragon fought back with his angels, ⁸but they were defeated and lost their place in heaven. ⁹The great dragon, the ancient serpent known as the devil or Satan, seducer of the whole world, was thrown out. He was hurled down to earth, together with his angels.

Dn 12:1; 10:13

¹⁰Then I heard a loud voice from heaven:

*Now has salvation come,
with the power and the kingdom of our God,
and the rule of his anointed.*

*For our brothers' accuser has been cast out,
who accused them night and day, before God.*

Gen 3:15

¹¹*They conquered him by the blood of the Lamb*

and by the word of their testimony, for they gave up their lives going to death.

¹²*Rejoice, therefore, O you heavens and you who dwell in them;
but woe to you, earth and sea,
for the devil has come to you in anger
knowing that he has but a little time.*

Is 44:25

¹³When the dragon saw that he had been thrown down to earth, he pursued the woman who had given birth to the male child. ¹⁴Then the woman was given the two wings of the great eagle so that she might fly into the desert where she would be looked after for three and a half years. ¹⁵The serpent poured water out of his mouth after the woman, to carry her away in the flood, ¹⁶but the earth came to her rescue: it opened its mouth and swallowed the flood which the dragon had poured from its mouth. ¹⁷Then the dragon was furious with the woman and went off to wage war on the rest of her children, those who keep God's commandments and bear witness to Jesus. ¹⁸And he stood on the seashore.

Gen 3:1

Is 40:31; 19:4;

The beast and the false prophet

13 ¹Then, I saw a beast rising out of the sea, with ten horns

Dn 7:3; 11:7;

• 7. God's plan for the world has just been revealed: the Son of God must become a human and rise as the Savior of all people. This mystery causes a double crisis: in the world of spirits (or angels) and in humankind.

The Jews imagined the angels were a huge army and they called their head Michael. Similarly, the devil is presented as the head of the army of rebellious angels, the stars fallen from heaven.

The following chapters will reveal the devil at work in history. He uses disguises and many substitutes. However, those who are ready to suffer for the truth will recognize him: they triumphed over him by the blood of the Lamb and by their courage in proclaiming him (v. 11).

• 13. Sin and rebellion against God began in the world of spirits. Being rejected from that world, the devil attacks those who keep the word of God, beginning with the best and most outstanding people in the Church. The struggle will never end. Those who dream of achieving peace in this world are forgetting the presence of the Evil One.

• 13.1 The devil tries to stop Christ's victory and to convince people that, in practice, Christ is not the master of life. If they wish to Dn 7:4 and seven heads, with ten crowns on its horns. On each head was a title challenging God. ²The beast I saw looked like a leopard, with paws like a bear and a mouth like a lion. The dragon passed on his power, his throne and his great authority to the beast.

Lk 4:6 ³One of its heads seemed to be fatally wounded but this wound healed. The whole earth wondered and they followed the beast. ⁴People prostrated themselves before the dragon who had given such authority to the beast and they prostrated themselves before the beast, saying, "Who is like the beast? Who can oppose it?"

Dn 7:8 ⁵The beast was given speech and it spoke boastful and blasphemous words against God; it was allowed to wield its power for forty-two months. ⁶It spoke blasphemies against God, his name and his sanctuary, that is, those who already dwell in heaven.

Dn 7:25 ⁷It was allowed to make war on the saints and to conquer them. It was given authority over people of every tribe, language and nation; ⁸this is why all the inhabitants of the earth will worship before it, those whose names have not been written in the book of life of the slain Lamb, since the foundation of the world.

Dn 12:1
Jer 15:2; ⁹Let anyone who has ears to hear, listen: ¹⁰*If your lot is the prison, to* live, they must surrender their freedom and their conscience to another lord, namely, political power.

First generation Christians lived in the Roman empire that, after two centuries of conquests and organized action, managed to bring under one ruler many different peoples. People were marveling at the "Roman peace" and the prosperity that followed. They did not know the dangers of a totalitarian society: when John was writing, the emperor Domitian had just imposed on all his subjects the obligation to honor him as a god.

Under these circumstances, Christians had to make painful choices. By confessing Christ, the Lord of life, they would face persecution. John points to their responsibility: to remain faithful to Christ and refuse to worship Caesar. A handful of Christians would victoriously face the totalitarian state: the Church would conquer by the blood of its martyrs.

This is the point of the present vision. The two animals represent the two powers that join forces in service of the Dragon, namely, the devil against the Church.

The first beast looked like a leopard (v. 2). It represents the persecuting power of the Roman empire, through images taken from Daniel 7:3-7. It comes from the sea, or the West, from Rome. The vitality and power of the Roman empire are like a caricature of the resurrection.

Then I saw another beast like the Lamb (v. 11). This beast comes from the continent, from the East, from Asia. It represents the religions that were competing with Christianity. They pretended to offer a heavenly salvation, but they did not condemn the sins of the Roman world, especially the corruption of society.

Speaking like the beast. These Asian religions were used, as are many religious groups in the world today. It is a fact that the agents of political pressure in the prosperous countries spend a great deal in the religious domain, and very often in the Third World; it is to paralyze the Church.

Persuading them to make a statue of the beast (v. 14). There was a religious movement behind the divinization of Rome and emperor worship. The cult of personality was not special only to the Roman Empire: it is deeply rooted in humans. Whatever its form it is threatening to the purity of faith.

The devil's tactic consists in joining strong power with an ideology that Christians cannot accept: this is what happens now in all the countries that have no respect for the most basic requirements of conscience. Harassed both by leaders and public opinion manipulated by modern techniques of propaganda, believers must face open or disguised persecution. Economic problems give new means of pressure to power groups that can condemn people to lose their bread-earning work: they can no longer buy or sell, obtain work or study (v. 17).

Six hundred sixty-six: In books of that time, it was a common device to assign a numerical value to every letter of the alphabet and to get the "number" of an individual. Six hundred

Rev 14:12 prison you will go; if your lot is to be killed by the sword, by the sword will you be slain. This is, for the holy ones, the time of endurance and faith.

Mt 7:15 ¹¹Then I saw another beast rise out of the earth, with two horns like the Lamb but speaking like the dragon. ¹²This second beast is totally at the service of the first one and enjoys its authority. So it makes the world and its inhabitants worship the first beast whose fatal wound has been healed. ¹³It works great wonders, even making fire descend from heaven to earth, in the sight of all.

Mt 24:24; 2Thes 2:9 Dn 3:5 ¹⁴Through these great wonders which it is able to do on behalf of the beast, it deceives the inhabitants of the earth, persuading them to make a statue of the beast which, although wounded by the sword, is still alive. ¹⁵It has been allowed to give a spirit to this statue; the statue of the beast speaks and those who refuse to worship it are killed. ¹⁶So this second beast makes everyone—great and small, rich and poor, free and enslaved—be branded on the right hand or on the forehead, ¹⁷and no one can buy or sell unless he has been branded with the name of the beast or with the number of its name.

¹⁸Let us see who is wise! If you are clever, you can interpret the number of the Beast; it is 666 and it is the name of a certain person.

144,000 on Mount Zion

14 ¹I was given another vision: The Lamb was standing on Mount Zion, surrounded by one hundred and forty-four thousand people who had his name and his Father's name written on their foreheads. ²A sound reverberated in heaven like the sound of the roaring of waves or deafening thunder; it was like a chorus of singers, accompanied by their harps.

14:9;
16:2

17:9

Ps 2:6;
Jl 3:5;
Ezk 9:4

sixty-six can be figured out many ways, but it may correspond to "Emperor Nero." We know that six means something imperfect: the one who tried to be seven (representing perfection) and did not make it.

We know that in the past some anti-Catholic polemicists wanted to make this number apply to the pope. These fantasies have nothing to do with the content of this paragraph. Besides, those who know how to play with the numerical value of names can easily apply the number 666 to any of the people they know, with just a little patience. Thus, this number 666, even written by John, should be seen as a game. It was also a way of not openly attacking the Roman emperor.

- 14.1 Facing the forces that Satan gathers in the Roman empire are the forces of Christ. The Beast must take advantage of the time granted to it, because Christ already rules and the judgment that will put an end to the persecuting power is being prepared.

The Lamb was standing on Mount Zion. Zion represents the Church, both the earthly and the heavenly Church. Christ rules in the Church in the very midst of those who are persecuted. Repression, chains and death do not reach the secret temple of every person, where Christ communicates his life and his presence.

The 144,000 point to the Christians in the Roman empire who remain firm in their faith. They are "the first redeemed" and they represent the believers of future centuries.

Some people who take everything literally state that the saved will number 144,000. Why do they not read 7:4-9 where 144,000 represents the elect "of the Jewish people," without mentioning a great crowd, impossible to count, from among all the other peoples?

They were chaste. In 7:9 the Christians were represented by martyrs; here John says virgins, and the word has two meanings, the same as the word adultery elsewhere: on one hand, they did not worship the Beast; and on the other hand, they were freed from the tyranny of sex.

They sing a new song. When the Lord saved Israel at the Red Sea, the people sang the Canticle of Moses (Ex 15:1). Now, believers and martyrs sing the New Song to celebrate their liberation from hatred, from their own weakness and from the fear of death, through Christ.

5:9;
Is 42:10

³They sing a new song before the throne, in the presence of the four living creatures and the elders, a song which no one can learn except the hundred and forty-four thousand who have been taken from the earth. ⁴They are those who were not defiled with women but were chaste; these are given to follow the Lamb wherever he goes. They are the first taken from humankind who are already of God and the Lamb. ⁵No deceit has been found in them; they are faultless.

Is 53:9;
Zep 3:13

• ⁶Then I saw another angel, flying high in the sky, sent to proclaim the definitive good news to the inhabitants of the earth, to every nation, race, language and people. ⁷He cried out with a loud voice, "Give God glory and honor, for the hour of his judgment has come. Worship him who made the heavens, the earth, the sea and all the waters."

Is 21:9;
Jer 25:25

⁸Another angel followed him, crying out, "Fallen is Babylon the great, fallen the prostitute who has made all the nations drunk with her unleashed prostitution!"

Mt 10:28

⁹A third angel then followed, shouting aloud, "If anyone worships the beast or its image or has his forehead or hand branded, ¹⁰he will also drink the wine of God's anger which has been prepared, undiluted, in the cup of his fury: he will be tortured by fire and brimstone, in the presence of the holy angels and the Lamb."

Gen 19:24;
Is 34:9

Is 34:10

¹¹The smoke of their torment goes up for ever and ever; for there is no rest, day or night, for those who worshiped the beast and its image, and for those who were branded with the mark of its name.

¹²This is the time for patient endurance among the holy ones, for those who keep the commandments of God and faith in Jesus. ¹³I heard someone from heaven say, "Write this: Happy from now on are the dead who have died in the Lord. The Spirit says: Let them rest from their labors; their good deeds go with them."

Is 57:1;
Heb 4:10

¹⁴Then I had this vision. I saw a white cloud and the one sitting on it like a son of man, wearing a golden crown on his head and a sharp sickle in his hand. ¹⁵An angel came out of the sanctuary, calling loudly to the one sitting on the cloud, "Put in your sickle and reap, for harvest time has come and the harvest of the earth is ripe." ¹⁶He who was sitting on the cloud swung his sickle at the earth and reaped the harvest.

Dn 7:13

Mt 13:39

¹⁷Then another angel, who also had a sharp sickle, came out of the

• 6. Evangelization eventually prepares the fall of the City and its idols (v. 8), foretold as lasting good news, but, for the time being, repression is unleashed against the witnesses of Jesus (v. 9).

The persecuting empire is called Babylon: in the Bible, this name symbolizes a power hostile to God. Its ruin will show how God judges unjust structures.

When major crises and the most atrocious wars occur, many people say, "This is the end of the world." So, when the Roman empire collapsed three hundred years after John, many people thought it was the end of civilization. With time, however, people saw that a larger field was opening up to the proclamation of the Gospel.

If anyone worships the beast... (v. 9). Here are stressed the strongest words in the Gospel on the necessity of proclaiming one's faith (Mt 10:28-33).

Happy from now on are the dead who have died in the Lord. John sees the victorious martyrs and other witnesses of Christ, and he encourages them by saying that, from the moment of their death, they already enjoy a share in the promised happiness. Their happiness will be complete at the resurrection: Philippians 1:23 and 2 Corinthians 5:8.

heavenly sanctuary. ¹⁸Still another angel, the one who has charge of the altar fire, emerged and shouted to the first who held the sharp sickle, "Swing your sharp sickle and reap the bunches of the vine of the earth for they are fully ripe." ¹⁹So the angel swung his sickle and gathered in the vintage, throwing all the grapes into the great winepress of the anger of God. ²⁰The grapes were trodden outside the city and blood flowed from the winepress, to the height of the horses' bridles and over an area of sixteen hundred furlongs.

19:15;
Is 63:1

15 ¹Then I saw another great and marvelous sign in the heavens: seven angels brought seven plagues which are the last, for with these the wrath of God will end. ²There was a sea of crystal mingled with fire, and the conquerors of the beast, of its name and the mark of its name stood by it.

4:6;
13:15

They had been given the celestial harps ³and they sang the song of Moses the servant of God and the song of the Lamb:

15:2

*Great and marvelous are your works,
O Lord,
God and Master of the universe.
Justice and truth guide your steps,
O King of the nations.*

Jer 10:7

⁴Lord, who will not give honor and glory to your Name?

*For you alone are holy.
All the nations will come and bow before you,*

for they have now seen your judgments.

The seven cups

• ⁵Then the sanctuary of the Tent of Divine Declarations was opened, ⁶and the seven angels bringing the seven plagues came out of the Sanctuary, clothed in pure and bright linen, with their waists girded with golden belts. ⁷One of the four living creatures gave the seven angels seven golden cups full of the wrath of God who lives for ever and ever. ⁸Then the sanctuary was filled with smoke that wraps God's glory and power, so that no one could enter until the seven plagues of the seven angels were completed.

14:10;
Jer
25:15

40:34;
1K 8:10;
Is 6:4

16 ¹I heard a loud voice calling from the sanctuary to the seven angels, "Go and empty on the earth the seven cups of the wrath of God."

²The first angel went to empty his cup on the earth, and malignant and painful sores appeared on the people who bore the mark of the beast and had bowed before its image. ³The second angel emptied his cup into the sea which turned into blood like that of the dead, and every living thing in the sea died.

7:17

⁴The third angel emptied his cup into the rivers and springs that turned into blood. ⁵And I heard the angel of the waters say, "You who are and who were, O Holy One, you are just in punishing them in this way;

7:19

• 15.5 Here we return to the awaited fall of Rome to see its religious meaning in a more developed form. The seven bowls combine images from the plagues of Egypt and various prophetic texts.

The Tent of Divine Declarations reminds us of the Tent (called: tent of meeting) that was Israel's sanctuary in the desert.

Armageddon (or the Hills of Megiddo, 16:16) recalled a famous defeat in Jewish history (2 K 23:29) and it is a symbol to predict the defeat of those who are assembled there. With this, John announces the inevitable judgment of God and the hour for destruction of the anti-Christian civilization ruling the world.

Ps 19:10

6 since they have shed the blood of your holy ones and the prophets, you have made them drink blood; they rightly deserved it.” 7 I heard another cry from the altar, “Yes, Lord and God, Master of the universe, your judgments are true and just.”

8 The fourth angel poured out his cup on the sun and its heat began to scorch people. 9 They were severely burned and began to insult God who has power over those plagues, instead of acknowledging him.

10:21

10 The fifth angel emptied his cup on the throne of the beast, and suddenly his kingdom was in darkness and the people bit their tongues in agony. 11 They insulted the Most High God for their pain and wounds, but they did not repent.

12 The sixth angel poured out his cup on the great river Euphrates; then its water was dried up, leaving a free passageway for the kings of the east. 13 I saw coming from the mouths of the monster, the beast and the false prophet, three unclean spirits which looked like frogs. 14 They are, in fact, spirits of demons that perform marvelous things and go to the kings of the whole world to gather them for battle on the great day of God, the Master of the universe.

3:3;
3:17;
1Thes
5:2

15 “Beware! I come like a thief; happy is the one who stays awake and does not take off his clothes; so he will not have to go naked and his whole body be exposed for all to see.”

16 Then they assembled them at the place called Armageddon in Hebrew (or the Hills of Megiddo).

17 The seventh angel emptied his cup into the air. Then a voice came forth from the throne and was heard outside the sanctuary, saying, “It is done.” 18 And there were flashes of lightning, peals of thunder and a violent earthquake. No, never has there been an earthquake so violent since people existed on earth. 19 The Great City was split into three, while the cities of the nations collapsed. For the time had come for Babylon the Great to be remembered before God and to be given the cup of the foaming wine of his anger.

4:5;
Dn 12:1;
Mk 13:19

20 Then the continents withdrew and the mountain ranges hid. 21 Great hailstones from heaven, as heavy as stones, dropped on the people, and the people insulted God because of this disastrous hailstorm, for it was truly a terrible plague.

6:14;
9:22

The judgment of Babylon

17 • 1 Then one of the seven angels of the seven cups came to me and said, “Now I will show you the judgment of the sovereign prostitute who dwells on the great waters. 2 She it is who let the kings of the earth sin with her; and with the wine of her lewdness the inhabitants of the earth have become drunk.”

Jer
51:13

18:3;
Is 23:17;
Jer 51:7

• 17.1 I will show you the judgment... God reveals the true value of the prosperous and powerful persecuting city.

To people living in the empire, Rome personified everything in the empire and its culture. When they came to the capital, they were dazzled by its buildings, its movement, theaters, lights, the life of its countless population. Thus it was not difficult for them to venerate Rome as a goddess.

The duration of the empire, with its reputation of being invincible and divine, is pure illusion, for the Beast, the evil one who supports it, passes away, unlike God who is and will come. Rome is described as a possessed woman. The purple, color of the emperors, and the gold, sign of their wealth, cover up its impurity and cruelty. At the same time it brings people to serve false gods and to murder martyrs.

To describe the near future of Rome, John uses symbols: some of them are easy to inter-³The angel brought me to the desert: it was a new vision. There a woman was seated on a red beast. The beast, which had seven heads and ten horns, covered itself with titles and statements that offend God. ⁴The woman was clothed in purple and scarlet, with ornaments of gold, precious stones and pearls. She held in her hands a golden cup full of loathsome idolatry and impure prostitution. ⁵Her name could be read on her forehead, written in a mysterious way: Babylon the Great, mother of prostitutes and of the loathsome idols of the whole world. ⁶And I saw that the woman was drunk with the blood of the holy ones and the martyrs of Jesus.

What I saw greatly surprised me, ⁷but the angel said to me, "Why are you surprised? I will reveal to you the secret of this woman and of the beast with seven heads and ten horns that she mounts. ⁸The beast you saw has been, though it IS not. It will come up from the abyss and then go to perdition. What a surprise for the inhabitants of the earth whose names are not written in the Book of Life from the creation of the world! They will marvel on discovering that the beast who has been IS not and passes away.

⁹Let us see if you guess: the seven heads are seven hills on which the woman sits. And they are also seven kings, ¹⁰five of which have already fallen, one is in power, and the seventh has not yet come but will remain only a short while. ¹¹The beast that has been but IS not can be considered as the eighth though it takes place among the seven; and it goes to perdition.

¹²The ten horns are ten kings who have not yet received power but will have authority for an hour with the beast. ¹³They all have only one aim and they place their authority and power at the service of the beast. ¹⁴They will fight against the Lamb, but the Lamb will conquer them, for he is Lord of lords and King of kings; and with him will be his followers who have been called and chosen and are faithful.

¹⁵The angel went on, "Those waters you saw, on which the prostitute is seated, are peoples, multitudes and nations of every language. ¹⁶The ten horns, and the beast itself, will plan evil against the prostitute. They will destroy her and leave her naked; they will eat her flesh and set her on fire. ¹⁷God makes use of them to carry out his plan, so he has inspired them with their common purpose and they will place their power at the service of the beast until the words of God are fulfilled. A last word: ¹⁸the woman you saw is the Great City which reigns over the kings of the whole world."

18 ¹After this I saw another angel coming down from heaven. So great was his authority that the whole earth was lit up with

Dn 7:24

Dt 10:17;
Rev 19:
11-21;
1Tim
6:15

Ezk
16:39

11:8

2Thes
2:7;
1P 5:13

Ezk
16:36

20:12

13:18

pret. The seven hills point to Rome without a doubt. The seven kings are a figure symbolic of the emperors.

The ten horns are the kings of the barbarian people allied with Rome. These satellites will be God's instruments in destroying it. Nevertheless, they will continue as forces hostile to the Church.

The Lamb and his followers will conquer them (v. 14). From now on, every believer is associated with Christ's victory, as long as she remains constant in her faith.

• 18.1 Fallen is Babylon the great! This is what the prophets shouted when they announced the fall of the oppressive city (see Jer 50 and 51). In prophesying the fall of Jerusalem, Jesus said: "Rejoice..." (Lk 21:28).

Depart from her, my people! Live in the world without being of the world, do the im-

14:8;
Is 21:9;
34:11

his glory. ²In a strong voice he cried out:

“Fallen is Babylon the great! Fallen! She has become a haunt of demons, a lodge for every unclean spirit, a nest for any filthy and disgusting bird.

³She has made all nations drunk with the wine of her lewdness, fornicated with kings of the earth, and glutted the world’s merchants with her wantonness and wealth.”

Is 48:20;
52:11;
Jer 50:8

⁴Then I heard another voice from heaven:

“Depart from her, my people, lest you share in her evil and so share in her punishments;

⁵for her sins are piled up to heaven, and God keeps count of her crimes.

⁶Give back to her as she has given, pay her twice for what she has done.

Let her drink a double portion of what she made others do.

⁷Give her as much torment and grief as the wantonness she enjoyed herself.

For she said to herself, ‘I sit as queen, I am not a widow, never will I go into mourning!’

⁸And so, suddenly, her plagues will come—death, mourning and famine.

She will be consumed by fire, for mighty is the Lord, the judge, who has passed sentence on her.”

⁹The kings who shared her luxury and committed adultery with her will

Gen
18:20

Is 47:8

Ezk
26:17;
27:28

possible to convert this society, its aspirations, its culture, but do not alienate your soul. When God’s judgment is made on these diseased structures, be ready to leave all and return to the desert, to poverty, rather than lying down among the dead of history (see Phil 3:20).

MUST WE LOOK FOR A GREAT BABYLON IN THE WORLD TODAY?

John saw the rule of the Beast in the Roman empire and he prophesied its fall. He said very little about what would come after.

In speaking about the empire that he knew, John teaches us how to view the empires of this century, for our world also is the theater of the struggle of the Dragon against the Woman. This Roman Empire created a civilization and a culture that we have inherited. The fact that John condemned it does not mean that everything in it was bad: let us remark, incidentally, that Christ wanted his apostles to establish the center of his Church precisely in Rome.

The great Babylon is of all times and is recognized in every power which pretends to give people a total solution to their problems while enclosing them in their net. We are leaving a century where many have identified it according to their personal point of view, be it international capitalism, or materialist socialism. It would be false to think that only one of these systems served the plans of the devil: the master of this world respects no frontiers and plays equally well on both sides. Atheist governments persecute the Church but very often the Church confronts violent or subtle persecution from the liberal classes or from dictatorships that pretend to be attached to Christian principles. A Church in which the best “good news” is for the poor will necessarily be persecuted by systems that produce millions of marginalized people.

We are used to a liberal style of life where no moral values exist any longer: what remains is the search for maximum pleasure in life with each one a “prostitute” to the gods he has fabricated or chosen. The apparent triumphs of our liberal world these last years may let us forget for a time its “ignorance of God” (Rom 1), as was the case of Rome. We must be sufficiently alert to foresee and hope for the judgment to come.

SHALL WE RELATE OUR LADY’S APPARITIONS TO APPROACHING JUDGMENT?

We have tried to show that the Revelation is not a description of what must precede the end of the world, but rather that it unveils the sense of history, either at the beginning or the end. Nevertheless, the sudden acceleration of the march of humanity is a fact: more has been achieved in a century than in thousands of former centuries and more in fifty years than in the course of the preceding century.

From another perspective, the density of human beings (more than 6 billions!) and the multiplication of materials they use have made human life increasingly complex and tense.

see the smoke as she burns, and they will weep and lament. ¹⁰They will nevertheless keep their distance, terrified at her punishment, and exclaim:

“Alas, alas! Great city that you are,
O Babylon, seat of power!
Your doom has come in a single hour!”

¹¹The merchants of the world will mourn over her, for they will lose a market for their goods—¹²their cargoes of gold and silver, precious stones and pearls, fine linen and purple garments, silk and scarlet cloth, fragrant wood, ivory pieces and expensive furniture, bronze, iron and marble, ¹³cinnamon and spices, perfume, myrrh and frankincense, wine and olive oil, fine flour and grain, cattle and sheep, horses and carriages, slaves and human lives. ¹⁴They will say:

“Gone is the fruit you longed for.
Gone are your luxury and splendor.
Never will you recover them, never!”

¹⁵The merchants who dealt in these goods, who grew rich from business with the city, will stand at a safe distance for fear of her punishment. Weeping and mourning, ¹⁶they will cry out:

“Woe, woe to the great city, to the linen and purple and scarlet you wore,
to your gold and pearls, your finery, ¹⁷your great wealth destroyed in an hour!”

Every captain and navigator, every sailor and seafarer, will stand afar, ¹⁸crying out on seeing the smoke going up as the city burns to the ground. “What city could have compared with this one?” ¹⁹They will pour dust on their heads and cry out in mourning:

“Alas, alas, great city, where all who had ships at sea grew rich through her trade!
In an hour she has been devastated.”

²⁰*Rejoice over her, O heavens!
Rejoice, prophets, saints and apostles!
God has rendered justice to you.*

²¹A powerful angel picked up a boulder the size of a large millstone and threw it into the sea, saying:

Each day offers more effective means of doing evil and submitting it to Satan. The important apparitions of Mary in the course of the last century are for some people further signs that we are approaching the end: should we agree with them?

With regard to the annunciation (Lk 1:26) we have shown that not only did God give Mary a mission but that he loved her in a special way. Mary and the Church are two expressions of God's plan of salvation. To both may be applied the sign of the Woman and the Dragon in chapter 12.

The plan of salvation however is constantly in danger: the greatest obstacles and delays come from the Church herself, so often blind to the demands of the Gospel while she intends to conquer the world. Why these heavy and alienating structures which finally make the Church a benefit mainly for clerics and learned people while closing it to the poor or to the masses?

It is not then surprising that the Virgin Mary uses the grace received from the Lord and intervenes from time to time to visit the poor. She does not bring a new message or revelation that many people expect (that is why many such revelations are forged and do very well). Mary re-speaks the words of the Gospel and in such a forceful way as to multiply conversions. The apparitions infer a failure of the Church: Mary comes to the help of her forgotten children. It is one of the channels through which the Holy Spirit is heard—the Spirit who has never finished repeating the Gospel through prophets and wonders.

If these apparitions have become more frequent it is perhaps because the Church is more threatened today; but if Satan is more active, it is probably because the end is near.

“With such violence will Babylon, the great city, be thrown down, never again to be seen.

²²Never again will tunes of harpists, minstrels, trumpeters and flutists be heard in you. Never again will an artisan of any trade be found in you. Never again will the noise of the mill be heard.

²³Never again will the light of a lamp shine in you. The voice of bridegroom and bride will never again be heard in you.

Because your traders were the world’s great and you led the nations astray by your magic spell. ²⁴In this city was found blood of prophets and saints—yes, the blood of all who have been slain on the earth.”

16:6;
Mt 23:35

Songs in heaven

19 ¹After this I heard what sounded like the loud singing of a great assembly in heaven:

Alleluia! Salvation, glory and might belong to our God, ²for his judgments are true and just.

He has condemned the great harlot who corrupted the world with her adultery.

He has avenged his servants’ blood shed by her hand in harlotry.

14:11;
Is 34:10

³Once more they sang: Alleluia! The smoke from her goes up for ever and ever!

⁴The twenty-four elders and the four living creatures fell down and worshiped God seated on the throne. And they cried: Amen! Alleluia!

⁵A voice came from the throne: “Praise our God, all you his servants, all you who revere him, both small and great!”

Ps
115:13

⁶Then I heard what sounded like a great crowd, like the roaring of the waves, like peals of thunder, answering:

Alleluia! The Lord now reigns, our Lord, the Master of the universe!

⁷Let us rejoice and be glad and give him glory!

Is 61:10

This is the time to celebrate the wedding of the Lamb, his bride has made herself ready.

⁸Fine linen, bright and clean, is given her to wear.

This linen stands for the good works of the holy ones.

⁹Then the angel told me, “Write: Happy are those invited to the wedding of the Lamb.” And he went on, “These are true words of God.”

Mt 22:1

¹⁰As I fell down at his feet to worship him, he said to me, “Beware, I am but a servant like you and your brothers who utter the testimonies of Jesus (these testimonies of Jesus are proclaimed through the spirit of the prophets). Worship God alone.”

22:8

The triumph of the word of God

¹¹Then I saw heaven opened and a white horse appeared. Its rider is the Faithful and True; he judges

Is 11:4;
1Jn 5:20

• 19.1 Triumphant songs in heaven.

The huge multitude rejoices over the prostitute’s condemnation and shouts “alleluia,” for the wedding of the Lamb is to take place.

Happy are those invited to the wedding of the Lamb (v. 9). Now John speaks of delight and joy when the noise of Babylon and its pleasures have ended. Its lights shine no more and the deeds of the “saints”—heroic actions or humble service—shine brightly.

At the end of the paragraph John criticizes the excessive interest in angels that was threatening to replace the worship of pagan gods; it is perhaps a new warning against the cult of personality in the Church itself (compare 19:10; 22:8; Acts 10:26).

• 11. Here we have the continuation of chapters 13, 14, 15 and 16, after the parenthesis of chapters 17 and 18. The seven anand wages just wars. ¹²His eyes are flames of fire; he wears many crowns and written on him is his own name, which no one can understand except himself. ¹³He is clothed in a cloak drenched in blood. His name is the Word of God.

1:14;
Dn 10:6;
Is 63:1;
Jn 1:1

¹⁴The armies of heaven clothed in pure white linen follow him on white horses. ¹⁵A sharp sword comes out of his mouth. With it he will strike the nations for he must rule them with an iron rod. He treads the winepress of the burning wrath of God, the Master of the universe. ¹⁶This is why this title is written on his cloak and on his thigh: King of kings and Lord of lords.

1:16;
Ps 2:9;
Is 63:3

Dt 10:17;
1Tim 6:15

¹⁷I also saw an angel standing in the sun. He cried out with a loud voice to all the birds of the air, "Come here to the great feast of God. ¹⁸Come and eat the flesh of kings, of generals and of the mighty; come and devour the soldier and his horse, flesh of all, both free and slaves, both small and great."

Ezk 39:17

¹⁹Then I saw the beast with the kings of the earth and their armies gathered together to fight against him who rides on the horse and his army. ²⁰But the beast was captured with the false prophet who served it and performed signs by which he deceived those who had received the mark of the beast and worshiped its statue. The two were thrown alive into the fiery lake of burning sulfur, and all ²¹the rest were killed by the sword which comes from the mouth of the rider who mounts the horse. And all the birds were fed with their flesh.

Ezk 39:20

The thousand years

20 ¹Then an angel came down from heaven, holding in his hand the key to the Abyss and a huge chain. ²He seized the monster, the ancient serpent, namely Satan or gels poured out the bowls of punishment for the Beast and the decisive encounter was expected. Then Christ appears.

12:9

His name is the Word of God (v. 13). He is the male child born of the woman, and he is to rule all the nations with an iron scepter (12:5). Christ comes triumphantly. His true name is Word, Word of God; this is his divine reality that only he understands. See John 1:1-14 in that respect.

The heavenly armies follow him: as Jesus announced several times (Mt 16:27).

The Word of God, powerful to conquer, at work to save, faithful to fulfill God's promises, truthful in what he says, the one who wages just wars. The just wars are the wars waged against the devil and his allies: the persecuting power (the Beast) and the doctrines providing opium instead of salvation (the false prophets).

This page is John's prophecy concerning the destruction of the persecuting Roman empire. It was fulfilled and that empire disappeared. In reading this page we are reminded of the defeats of the invincible Roman armies, and the breakdown of this huge body, whose soul was faith in the divinity of Rome and its Caesar-Emperor. Christ did not come to do battle against the Roman armies: a certain number of soldiers were already converted to the Christian faith. (Many young Christians enlisted in the army were the missionaries of Christ wherever they went and even had martyrs among them).

Instead, the victory announced by the Apocalypse was the victory of Christ and the martyrs who, through their sacrifice, destroyed the cruelty, injustice and immorality of the pagan world. A believer's daily struggle was the victory of Christ. The day came, however, when the Lord brought justice before the sight of everyone: Come; eat the flesh of kings and generals (v. 18).

- 20.1 This text is still used for many contradictory and confusing commentaries. Some think of an earthly paradise of a thousand years before heaven. This, however, would be going against all the clear teaching of the New Testament, affirming there is no intermediary period between this life and eternal life.

This vision may be another way of presenting our history, by stressing its positive aspects and successful evangelization. These thousand years stand for the time during which the the devil, and chained him for a thousand years. ³He threw him into the abyss and closed its gate with the key, then secured it with locks, that he might not deceive the nations in the future until the thousand years have passed. Then he will be released for a little while.

⁴There were thrones and seated on them were those with the power to judge. I then saw the spirits of those who had been beheaded for having held the teachings of Jesus and on account of the word of God. I saw all those who had refused to worship the beast or its image, or receive its mark on the forehead or on the hand. They returned to life and reigned with the Messiah for a thousand years. This is the first resurrection. ⁵The rest of the dead will not return to life before the end of the thousand years.

⁶Happy and holy is the one who shares in the first resurrection, for the second death has no power over them; they will be priests of God and of his Messiah and reign with him a thousand years.

⁷At the end of these thousand years, Satan will be released from his prison; ⁸then he will set out to deceive the nations of the four corners of the world, namely Gog and Magog, and gather them for war. What an army, so numerous like the sand of the seashore! ⁹They invaded the land and surrounded the camp of the holy ones, the most beloved city, but fire came down from heaven and devoured them.

¹⁰Then the devil, the seducer, was thrown into the lake of fire and sulfur, where the beast and the false prophet already were. Their torment will last day and night for ever and ever.

The last judgment

• ¹¹After that I saw a great and splendid throne and the one seated upon it. At once heaven and earth disappeared, leaving no trace. ¹²I saw the dead, both great and small, standing before the throne while books were opened. Another book, the Book of Life, was also opened. Then the dead were judged accord-

2Thes
2:9

Dn 7:9;
Mt
19:28;
1Cor 6:2

2Tim
2:12;
1P 2:9

Church, liberated from Jewish and Roman persecutions, evangelizes the world.

The growth of the Church marks the weakening of the devil's power: he is chained. A wave of thought and Christian action will renew the world. Let us think of the struggle against various forms of slavery, the restoration of manual work, a new appreciation of the dignity of women and of marriage, and respect for the human person and children.

I then saw the spirits of those who had been beheaded (v. 4). They are already sharing in the life and happiness of Christ, and in some way they share in his reign over history and, along with him, they are present in the life of the earthly Church. Let us think of the growing influence that people who committed themselves to a sacred and noble cause, have after their death.

At the end of these thousand years (v. 7). We do not know how long the world will last, nor how many cultures and empires will confront the Church. Yet John tells us about a last crisis during which the Church will seem submerged by the forces of evil (see 2 Thes 2:3). There is no description of what will happen: enough has already been said about the struggle of the Church against the agents of the devil for us to be able to imagine what it could be.

Fire came down from heaven (v. 9). This final offensive will be overcome just like the first one. Here the battle is described with images borrowed from Ezekiel, chapter 38.

• 11. Heaven and earth disappeared (v. 11). At the end of the world, we have the final judgment.

The books were opened (v. 12). Using images from the book of Daniel (7:10), John shows people being judged individually according to their actions. Everything is written in the book: what people did, said and thought.

Death and the netherworld were thrown (v. 14): this is a way of saying that Christ's final ing to the records of these books, that is, each one according to his works.

¹³The sea gave up the dead it had kept, as did death and the netherworld, so that all might be judged according to their works. ¹⁴Then death and the netherworld were thrown into the lake of fire. This lake of fire is the second death. ¹⁵All who were not recorded in the Book of Life were thrown into the lake of fire.

The new heaven and the new earth

21 ¹Then I saw a new heaven and a new earth. The first heaven and the first earth had passed away and no longer was there any sea. ²I saw the new Jerusalem, the holy city coming down from God, out of heaven, adorned as a bride prepared for her husband. ³A loud voice came from the throne, “Here is the dwelling of God among mortals: He will pitch his tent among them and they will be his people; he will be God-with-them.

⁴He will wipe every tear from their eyes. There shall be no more death or mourning, crying out or pain, for the world that was has passed away.”

⁵The One seated on the throne said, “See, I make all things new.”

And then he said to me, “Write these words because they are sure and true.”

⁶And he said to me: “It is already done! I am the Alpha and the Omega, the Beginning and the End. I myself will give the thirsty to drink without cost from the fountain of living water. ⁷Thus the winner will be rewarded: For him I shall be God and he will be my son.

⁸As for cowards, traitors, depraved, murderers, adulterers, sor-

Is 8:8

Is 25:8

2Cor 5:17

Is 55:1;
Jn 4:10;
7:37

2S 7:14

20:6;
20:14

1Cor 15:26;
15:54

Is 65:17;
66:22;
2P 3:13

Is 52:1;
61:10;
Gal 4:26

Lev 26:11;
Ezk 37:27;

victory consists in destroying death, which rules over the world as a consequence of sin (see 1 Cor 15:26).

The previous chapters spoke repeatedly of God’s judgment, against Jerusalem, or against the Roman power, or against the nations replacing it. Thus, the Apocalypse does not really stress the final judgment of the world that only recapitulates what has been said before. It prefers to describe the New Jerusalem coming from God: this is what we have in the last two visions that follow.

• 21.1 First vision of the heavenly Jerusalem. “Eye has not seen, ear has not heard what God has prepared for those who love him” (1 Cor 2:9).

The Bible began with a vision of the first creation in which God was conversing with Adam, his friend, in the garden of Eden. The Apocalypse ends with a more beautiful vision in which there is overflowing delight in God. Now I make all things new. The holy and permanent City of people has been built.

A new heaven and a new earth. The risen body of Christ was the principle of the new spiritual and material universe we were hoping for. Now, the power of his resurrection has transformed the whole world. It will not be a paradise for isolated “souls,” nor for pure angels, but a city of human beings: humans have fully become God’s children: he will be my son.

He will wipe every tear. God dwells among people and he pours his own happiness into them. The sufferings that filled so many lives, the martyrs’ tortures, the inner pain of repentant sinners, all this is over. Such joy and peace, as cannot be found in any place on earth, are finally found in the heart of God.

The second death (v. 8). Before this happens, eternal condemnation. Being forever deprived of God, locked in one’s sin and loneliness: a mystery for us. Human freedom is something so great and so real that God himself cannot force us to love him: those who have consciously and definitely left the path to life, will inherit the lake of burning sulphur.

The new Jerusalem comes down from God. Somehow, people tried to build the human community. At the end of history, they discover that along with them, God was building something much greater: a humanity gathered in the very life of God.

From now on. God, beginning and end, will never cease to give the water of life (Is 55:1; Jn 4:10). Our eternity in God cannot be immobile: which would soon bore us. God is pure creativity and to live in him is both to possess him and to be carried further into his mystery.

cerers, and idolaters—all those who live in falsehood, their place is the lake of burning sulfur. This is the second death.”

The new Jerusalem

19:7; 21:2 •⁹Then one of the seven angels came to me, one of those with the seven bowls full of the seven last plagues. And he said, “Come, I am going to show you the bride, the wife of the Lamb.”¹⁰ He took me up in a spiritual vision to a very high mountain and he showed me the holy city Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God. It shines with the glory of God,¹¹ like a precious jewel with the color of crystal-clear jasper.

¹²Its wall, large and high, has twelve gates; stationed at them are twelve angels. Over the gates are written the names of the twelve tribes of the sons of Israel.¹³ Three gates face the east; three gates face the north; three gates face the south and three face the west.¹⁴ The city wall stands on twelve foundation stones on which are written the names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb.

¹⁵The angel who was speaking to me had a golden measuring rod to measure the city, its gates and its wall.¹⁶ The city is laid out like a square: its length is the same as its breadth. He measured it with his rod and it was twelve thousand furlongs; its length, breadth and height are equal.¹⁷ Then he measured the wall: it was a hundred and forty-four cubits high. The angel used an ordinary measure.

¹⁸The wall is made of jasper and the city of pure gold, crystal-clear.¹⁹ The foundations of the wall are adorned with every kind of precious jewel: the first is jasper, the second sapphire, the third turquoise, the fourth emerald,²⁰ the fifth agate, the sixth ruby, the seventh chrysolite, the eighth beryl, the ninth topaz, the tenth chrysoprase, the eleventh hyacinth and the twelfth amethyst.²¹ The twelve gates are twelve pearls, each gate made of a single pearl and the square of the city is paved with gold as pure as transparent crystal.

²²I saw no temple in the city for the Lord God, Master of the universe, and the Lamb are themselves its temple.²³ The city has no need of the light of the sun or the moon, since

• 9. Second vision of the heavenly Jerusalem: God’s temple. There are two images at the heart of the Bible: the wedding banquet and the temple. After Jerusalem, the new bride, it is now the Holy City, God’s temple. People no longer need a temple when God is permanently present among them: reality replaces shadows.

Its length, breadth and height are equal (v. 16). A city built as a perfect pyramid: perfect and lasting. Its wall, a symbol of security: there is no more fear, not even our hidden fear, the fear of feeling life slipping away. The brightness of the city is that of jasper and its primary foundation is of jasper: jasper is the color attributed to God in the fourth chapter.

There are angels at the gates as in the Garden of Eden: all is guarded and enclosed within the divine mystery. The wall of holiness and truth rests upon the apostles: the truth of the New World was already contained in their words, namely, the testimony of Jesus’ apostles. The final city is the goal of humankind’s long pilgrimage; without knowing it, the just, the poor, the merciful, and those who are sorrowful have been longing for it: The nations will walk in its light.

There was a fountain of life in paradise. Lost through sin, people were always searching for it. Ezekiel had already written that the living water is the Spirit of God and Jesus promised it to the Samaritan woman. Now it flows from the heart of God-Trinity, from the throne of God and of the Lamb.

And they will reign forever (22:5). This is the final word and it is the seventh time it is said in Revelation.

19:7;
21:2

Is 60:1

Ezk
48:31

Eph 2:20

Is 54:11

Jn 2:19

Is 60:19

God's Glory is its light and the Lamb is its lamp.

Is 60:3 ²⁴ The nations will walk in its light and the kings of the earth will bring their treasures to it. ²⁵ Its gates will not be closed at sunset, for there will be no night there. ²⁶ It is there that the wealth and the most precious things of the nations will be brought. ²⁷ Nothing unclean will enter it, or anyone who does what is evil and false but only those whose names are written in the Lamb's Book of Life.

Ezk 47:1; Jn 7:38 22 ¹ Then he showed me the river of life, clear as crystal, gushing from the throne of God and of the Lamb. ² In the middle of the city, on both sides of the river are the trees of life producing fruit twelve times, once each month, the leaves of which are for healing the nations.

2:7; Gen 2:9; Ezk 47:12 ³ No longer will there be a curse; the throne of God and of the Lamb will be in the City and God's servants will live in his presence. ⁴ They will see his face and his name will be on their foreheads. ⁵ There will be no more night. They will not need the light of lamp or sun for God himself will be their light and they will reign forever.

I am coming soon

1Jn 3:2 ⁶ Then the angel said to me, "These words are sure and true; the Lord God who inspires the prophets has sent his angel to show his servants what must happen soon."

⁷ "I am coming soon! Happy are those who keep the prophetic words of this book."

⁸ I, John, saw and heard all this. When I had seen and heard them I fell at the feet of the angel who had shown me everything, to worship him. ⁹ But he said, "No, I am a fellow servant like you and your brothers, the prophets, and those who heed the words of this book. It is God you must worship."

¹⁰ He then said to me, "Do not keep secret the prophetic words of this book because the time is near. ¹¹ Let the sinner continue to sin and the defiled remain in his defilement; let the righteous continue to do what is right and he who is holy grow holier."

¹² "I am coming soon, bringing with me the salary I will pay to each one according to his deeds. ¹³ I am the Alpha and the Omega, the First and the Last, the Beginning and the End."

¹⁴ Happy are those who wash their robes for they will have free access to the tree of Life and enter the city through the gates. ¹⁵ Outside are the dogs, sorcerers, the immoral, murderers, idolaters and all who take pleasure in falsehood!

¹⁶ "I, Jesus, sent my angel to make known to you these revela-

• 22.6 I, John, saw and heard all this. Thus the Bible concludes, and we can recall the parable of the workers hired for the Lord's vineyard (Mt 20). The work in which prophets and writers participated in the course of a day is over. In the first hour the visions with which Genesis begins, and which briefly present the divine vocation of people and the purpose of the world, were written. In the final hour, John, after knowing Christ, the morning sun, has just seen humanity preparing to share the glory of God.

It is the final hour, the expected coming of Christ. We know, however, that the final hour may be extended and that the Groom may come late in the night: Christians are watchful, firm in their hope, even as they face the power of darkness.

• 17. Whoever thirsts, let him approach. We already read in 21:6 these words taken from Isaiah 55. The child becomes an adult when he gives up his unlimited wishes and accepts the limitations of reality. God sends us tions concerning the Churches. I am the Shoot and Offspring of David, the radiant Morning Star.”

21:6 • ¹⁷The Spirit and the Bride say, “Come!” Whoever hears let him say, “Come!” Whoever thirsts let him approach, and whoever desires, let him
Dt 4:2 freely take the water of life. ¹⁸As for me, I warn everyone who hears the prophetic words of this book: If anyone adds anything to them, God will pile on him the plagues described in this book. ¹⁹And if anyone takes away words from this book of prophecy, God will take from him his share in the tree of Life and the holy city described in this book.

²⁰He who has declared all this says, “Yes, I am coming soon.”

Amen! Come, Lord Jesus.

²¹May the grace of the Lord Jesus be with you all—

1Cor
16:22

back to childhood when he stirs up within us infinite desires. “Let it be done to you as you have asked,” that is, what you were able to desire and hope for and believe.

Desire is the way God prepares us for the great things he wants to give. It is our first consciousness of his work within us. Desires that are like the seeds of the parable. Many are sown that soon vanish, or we ourselves cut off their wings: “This is not for me, it is enough and safer to imitate the good common Christians.”

Yes, it is safer to live with limited desires, because desire can develop into thirst.

Many experience thirst for God but few are those who can bear it. We call it boredom, incapacity to share social life, and the remedy that people of goodwill usually offer to us is to plunge again into activity and to “come back to the onions of Egypt” (Num 11:15) or, in other words, to love the world. Better keep your thirst and let it grow, and reject any satisfaction that is less than the infinite of God. The time is coming when it will be said: Let him approach.

PAGE 1900 – BLANK

BRIEF LEXICON

PLACES, PEOPLE AND SOCIAL GROUPS BIBLICAL PERSONAGES BIBLICAL TERMS

- Aaron This personage, leader of a religious group in the desert, is called the brother of Moses Ex 4:14. He was considered as the ancestor and model of priests and especially of the High Priest of Jerusalem. Traditions regarding Aaron: Ex 4:14; 6:20; 7:12; 15:20; 24; 32; Num 12:1; 20:24. The sons of Aaron are the priests: Ex 28-31; Lev; Num; Chr; Lk 1:5. Also the house of Aaron: Ps 115;135. In the N.T., Aaron is only mentioned in Heb 5:4; 7:11 and 9:4.
- Abba Word of Aramaic origin meaning Father or Daddy: Mk 14:36; Rom 8:15; Gal 4:6.
- Abel The first victim of violence: Gen 4:2; Wis 10:3; Mt 23:35; 1 Jn 3:12. The N.T. sees him as the model of the just person: Heb 11:4; 12:24.
- Abiathar (or Ebyathar) 1 S 22:20; 23; 30; 2 S 15:27; 1 K 2:7; 2:26; Mk 2:26.
- Abigail Wife of Nabal of Carmel, then David's wife: 1 S 25; 2 S 2:2; 3:3.
- Abijah Son of Rehoboam, Mt 1:7. See Abijah and the list of Kings.
- Abimelech King of Guerar: Gen 20; 26:1 or of the Philistines: Gen 26; Ps 34:1. Another man with the same name was the son of Gideon Jdg 9:1.
- Abishag the Shunamite: 1 K 1:3; 2:17 and 21.
- Abner Saul's cousin and chief of his army: 1 S 14:51; 17:55; 2 S 2:8.
- Abomination Usually refers to an idol: 1 K 11:5; 2 K 23:13; Jer 4:1. The abominable idol of the invaders refers to the idol that Syrians placed in the Temple: 1 Mac 1:54; Dn 8:12; 9:27; 11:31; 12:11. See Mt 24:15.
- Abraham Tradition regarding Abraham: Gen 12-15. Even though he was a historical figure, we know very little about him: note Gen 11:26. The God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob: Gen 50:20; Ex 2:24; 3:6; 3:15; 6:3; 32:13; Num 32:11; Dt 1:8; Mt 22:32. Our father Abraham: Is 51:2; 63:16; Mt 3:9; Lk 1:55; 13:16; 16:25; Jn 8:39. Abraham's faith: Rom 4; Gal 3; Heb 11:8; James 2:21. Biblical Teaching 20-28.
- Absalom Son of David: 2 S 3:3; 14-18.
- Abyss It is the lower world, the part of the world over which God the Creator rules: Gen 1:2; Hg 3:10; Ps 36:7. The world of the dead: Ps 73:18; Sir 21:10. It also refers to the depths of the ocean and to the ocean itself: Ps 107:24; 2 Cor 11:25. Hell: Rev 9:11; 11:7; 17:8; in this case it translates Sheol.
- Acaron See Ekron.
- Acculturation It is the incarnation of the Christian faith and liturgy in a new culture. Faith and the Gospel leave aside what characterized the culture in which they were previously expressed in order to express themselves in a new culture, at the same time as the latter, that is baptized, becomes renewed through faith: Mk 16:15.
- Adam A collective noun in ancient Hebrew: people. Ben-Adam, son of Adam, means someone. Adam is the name given to the first man in the account of the garden of Eden: Gen 2 and 3. Ezekiel is called son of man by God in Ezk 2:1. See Son of man. In tradition, Adam would be the ancestor: Wis 10:1; Sir 33:10; 49:16; Lk 3:38; Rom 5:12; 1 Cor 15:22.
- Adonijah Son of David: 2 S 3:4; 1 K 1-2.
- Adonis Comes from Adon or Hadon meaning Lord. Syrian god of vegetation: see note in Is 17:2.

Adoption It was commonly practiced and gave all the rights of children. See notes in Ruth 3:1; Mt 1:18. God's adopted children: see note in Rom 8:15.

Adultery In a literal sense, see Ex 20:14 and Lev 20:10. In the sense of idolatry, see notes in Is 1:21 and Hos 1:2. In the N.T., see Mt 5:27; 19:9; Jn 4:18; 8:4; James 4:4 and Rev 2:22.

Aeneas A man healed by Peter: Acts 9:33.

Agabus Acts 11:28; 21:10.

Agape A Greek term meaning true and unselfish love. In the early Church, this term was used to refer to meals with the celebration of the Eucharist: 1 Col 11:11.

Ahab 1 K 16-22.

Ahaz King of Judah 2 K 16:1; Is 7:1.

Ai It means ruin. An ancient city destroyed by the Hyksos, long before the arrival of Joshua. The story of Jos 6-8 attributes the conquest and destruction of the city to Joshua.

Alexandria In the Nile delta. Main city of Egypt and of the Greek world at the time of the apostles. See introductions to Ecclesiastes, Wisdom and the note in Heb 1:1.

Alleluia! Praise God! This acclamation is found in the last psalms and in Revelation.

Alpha The letter A of the Greek alphabet and Omega is the last letter: see Rev 1:8.

Alphaeus One of the apostles is James, son of Alphaeus: Mt 10:3; Lk 6:15; Acts 1:13. Levi is called the son of Alphaeus in Mk 2:14.

Amalek Nomads of southern Palestine and hereditary enemies of Israel: Ex 17:15.

Amen I believe, I accept. See 2 Cor 1:20 and Rev 3:14.

Ammonites People of nomadic origin who settled down east of the river Jordan, taking advantage of the collapse of the kingdoms of Egypt and Mesopotamia around the 12th century B.C. They founded a kingdom whose capital was Rabbath-Ammon, today Amman in Jordan.

Amorites Nomadic population that prevailed at the beginning of the 2nd millennium in the kingdoms of Mesopotamia and Syria. The famous Hammurabi who will establish an empire in Babylon around 1800 B.C. was an Amorite, like Abraham and the Patriarchs.

Analogy It is a kind of comparison except, instead of comparing two things, it is the way things occur in very different fields. The grain of wheat that falls to the earth and apparently dies before producing a new plant is an analogy of what happens to us: Jn 12:24; 1 Cor 15:37. However, we do not look like a grain of wheat and we will never have leaves.

Ananias There are two of them: Acts 5:1 and 9:10, not to mention the others: Acts 24:1. Ananias and Sapphira: Acts 5:1.

Anakim Ancient inhabitants of Palestine considered to be giants by legend: Dt 2:21. See note in Num 13:22.

Anathema At the beginning, the word meant: separated, cut-off, and it was applied to all that belonged to God and could not fall into profane hands; it could be a person, a land, or something donated to God (Lev 27:21; Num 18:14). It could be a conquered city which would be burned down and its whole population massacred (Jos 7). Later on anathema would be the condemnation that excluded individuals from the people of God, designating them to be cursed (Rom 9:3; Gal 1:9).

Anathoth Village of priests and Jeremiah's homeland: Jer 1:1.

Andrew An apostle: Mk 1:16; 3:18; 13:3; Jn 1:35; 12:22.

Angels The word means messengers; in the Bible, it is found with different meanings. An angel is, at times, a way of speaking about some intervention of God (see commentary on Gen 16:1; Jdg 6:11; 2 K 19:35). But more often, it expresses the belief in superior beings who are surrounding God and are at His service; they are often called sons of God—the true translation in English would be: divine beings. (See Ps 29:1; 89:7). It is true that, at first, these divine beings were gods, but in Israel they were made the servants of the One God and never was there a question of doing without them. They were, then, superior beings connected with our universe but belonging to an invisible world. The Old Testament speaks of Seraphim (Is 6) and Cherubim (Ezk 1; 9:3)—“sacred monsters” in the religions of the Middle East—as the guards of God. Later on, angels would be seen as the messengers of God, in charge of guiding the nations and directing events: Dt 32:8; Dn 4:10 and 14. This was their major role in the New Testament: Eph 1:21. Likewise, angels are taking care of people who follow the will of God, as it was the case in Dn 2 and Tb 5:4. See Mt 18:10. In Revelation, they represent the faithful before God: Rev 8:3.

Antichrist A way of referring to a certain figure who, according to different traditions, would be the instrument of the devil before the coming of Christ: 2 Thes 2:6; 1 Jn 2:18. See also Rev. 13:11.

Antioch The name of several cities in the Near East. Antioch of Syria (today Antakya in Turkey). In 37, a Christian community was founded in this capital of the Roman province of Syria (Acts 11:19-30). Antioch of Pisidia, today a place in ruins, about 250 km southwest of Ankara. Paul and Barnabas evangelized this city around 46 (Acts 13:14-52).

Aphék At the intersection of two important roads: the Road of the Sea, starting in Egypt going north and of the road up to Jerusalem. It was there that Israel was defeated and the Ark was captured: 1 S 4. Rebuilt by Herod during the Hellenistic era, it became Antipatris, between Jerusalem and Caesarea. Paul was brought there when he was a prisoner: Acts 23:12-32.

Apocalypse This term means revelation. It refers not only to the Book of Revelation of the N.T. but it also applies to an entire category of books that claimed to reveal the meaning of the present time and to open a perspective on the future. See the Introductions to Revelation, Daniel and the commentary on Ezekiel 38.

Apocryphal Books that comment the biblical events but are not recognized by the Church as inspired books.

Apollo Acts 18:24; 1 Cor 1:12; Tit 3:13.

Apologetics This term refers to written works intended to defend the faith.

Apostasy It consists in renouncing one's identity as a believer or as a member of the people of God: 1 Mac 2:15; 2 Thes 2:3. See Heb 3:12 and 12:15.

Apostles This Greek word means Sent. At the time of Jesus, the one sent was in reality the representative of his master. Jesus probably gave this title to the first missionaries he sent throughout Galilee: Mk 3:13 and Lk 3:14. Later on, the apostles seem to be identified with the group of the Twelve. That is the reason why Jesus gave such importance to the formation of the Twelve. List of the Twelve: Mt 10:2; Acts 1:13. Their call: Jn 1:35-51; Lk 5:1-11. See also Biblical teaching 121, 122, 158, 163, 175, 180, 240.

Aquila and Priscilla Acts 18:2 and 26; 1 Cor 16:19; Rom 16:3.

Arabah It is the large north south depression that crosses the whole of Palestine and through which the Jordan River flows. The word refers especially to the southern part that extends to the gulf of Aqabah: Dt 1:1; 4:49; Jos 11:16; Jer 39:4.

Arad Important city of the Negeb. Its king is mentioned in the list of the kings conquered by Joshua: Jos 12:14. The Israelites had a provincial temple there. It was later destroyed during the reform of Hezekiah.

Aramaic From the same family as Hebrew, Aramaic became the common language of Israel after the return from the Exile, but Hebrew remained the sacred language. Jesus spoke Aramaic although he understood Hebrew and the first documents at the origin of our Gospels were written in Aramaic and in Hebrew.

Arameans People of nomadic origin who settled down north of the Lake of Tiberias around the 12th century B.C. They occupied approximately what is now the territory of Syria. At times, the Bible translates Arameans as Syrians. They formed several small independent kingdoms (1 K 20:24), the most important one being Damascus. They were neighbors of the kingdom of Israel with whom they were often at war: 1 K 20-22. Like Israel, they were finally defeated by the Kings of Assyria.

Ararat The country of Arartu refers to the region of the Caucasus; these mountains of the far north were the residence of gods, and this is the reason why the pre-biblical Noah had to land there: Gen 8:4; Is 14:13; Jer 51:27.

Areopagus Council of wise men of the city of Athens, in charge, among other things, of religious affairs. See note in Acts 17:22.

Ark This English word is the translation of two very different Hebrew term. One is the Ark of Noah (Gen 6-9) similar to the basket in which Moses was saved (Ex 2:3). The other one is the Ark of the Covenant: note in Ex 25:2.

Ark of the Covenant Acacia wooden case carried on a man's shoulders. Exodus 25:10-22 describes it at length. It was considered as a sign of the presence of God and thus, it was called the footstool of Yahweh (1 S 4-6; Ezk 43:7). It also contained the tablets of the Law received on Mt. Sinai and, according to a later tradition, a golden urn with a handful of manna deposited there and the staff of Aaron that blossomed in the desert. The Ark disappeared with the Temple in the year 587 B.C. and it was never rebuilt. Nevertheless, they reconstructed the propitiatory, or place of mercy, a golden carved slab that used to cover the ark and on which the blood for the expiation of sins was offered.

Asherah It was a sacred pole, symbol of the power of a god. It was placed in front of the god's statue in sanctuaries on the hills. The same word also refers to the effigy of Astarte (2 K 21:7).

Asia In the ancient texts and thus also in the N.T., Asia refers to the Roman province that covered the farthest western region of today's Turkey.

Ashkelon (or Ascalon) One of the five Philistine cities: 1 S 5:1; Zep 2:4; 1 Mac 10:86.

Assyria It covered both shores of the river Tigris along its middle course and it became a great empire between the 10th and 7th centuries. In 853, Shalmaneser was victorious over a coalition of the kings of Syria and Palestine, including the king of Samaria, Ahab, who proceeded to conquer Egypt. In the 8th century, Assyria destroyed the kingdom of Israel with its capital Samaria (Is 7). At the end of the following century, Assyria was completely destroyed by the Babylonians.

Astarte Main feminine goddess of the Canaanites. She presided over fertility and sensual love.

Athaliah Queen of Judah: 2 K 11.

Athens This city extended its intellectual radiance over the whole Mediterranean area. It was evangelized by Paul around 50 (Acts 17:16-34).

Azymes See Unleavened Bread.

Azazel The demon toward which a scapegoat was sent: Lev 16:10.

Baal or Lord. It was the name given to male divinities among the Canaanites. Their cult spread over Israel and was vigorously fought by the Prophets (1 K 18:20-40). Yahweh also received the title of Baal in ancient times (Hos 2:18).

Babylon City and countryside located in the region of Baghdad in Iraq. On several occasions, it was the capital of Mesopotamia. It is especially known as the empire of Nebuchadnezzar (605-562) that succeeded the one of Assyria. This king led two punitive military expeditions against the kingdom of Judah and, on the second one (in 587), he burned down the city and the temple of Jerusalem. He deported the elite of the country to Babylon: it was the Exile, or the Babylonian captivity, an event of primary importance in biblical history. When Babylon was taken by Cyrus and the Persians in 537, the Jews were able to return to their country.

Balaam He was the national prophet of the Ammonites. The book of Numbers combines two traditions about him. According to the first one, he proclaimed Israel's future (Num 31:16). According to the second one, he sought to place a curse on the Israelites and tempted them with prostitutes of the god of Peor (Num 31:16).

Posterity would only remember the second version: 2 P 2:15; Rev 2:14.

Baptism It is a rite used in many religions with a meaning of purification. To baptize is a Greek word meaning to wash or to immerse. Baptism appeared in the Bible with John the Baptizer. It would become the rite of entrance into the Church. Baptism of John and Baptism of Jesus: see commentary on Lk 3:15. Baptism of the Spirit: note in Acts 8:14. Baptism in the name of Jesus: Acts 19:1. Paul provides the meaning of Christian baptism in Rom 6:3 and Col 2:11. See 1 P 1.

Barabbas Mt 27:16; Jn 18:40.

Barnabas One of the first apostles aside from the Twelve; missionary with Paul: Acts 4:36; 9:27; 11:22; 13:1; 15:36.

Bartholomew An apostle: Mt 10:3.

Baruch The king's secretary at the time of Jeremiah (Jer 36:26). Also Jeremiah's secretary for the writing of his book: Jer 32; 36; 45. A book of the Bible, written 50 years before Jesus, is listed under the name of Baruch.

Bathsheba Uriah's wife. King David had her abducted and she became Solomon's mother 2 S 11:3; 1 K 1:11; Mt 1:6.

Beatitudes See Mt 5:1 and note; Lk 6:1. There are many formulas of beatitudes in Luke (11:28; 12:37...) and in Revelation: 1:3; 14:13; 16:15; 20:6...

Beelzebul Canaanite divinity whose name means: Baal, the Prince. Formerly venerated in the Philistine city of Ekron, due to his name, in the gospels, this divinity symbolizes the prince of demons (Mt 12:24).

Beersheba Main center of the Negeb, visited by the patriarchs: Gen 21:31; 22:19; 26:33; 46:5. Southernmost part of the territory of Israel; hence the expression: all of Israel from Dan to Beersheba. Place of pilgrimage of the Israelites of the north after the schism. Elijah took refuge there: 1 K 19:3.

Benedictus The Latin name of the canticle of Zechariah in Lk 1:68.

Benjamin Traditions regarding this last son of Jacob: Gen 35:18; 43:14; 49:27.

Bethany A village just outside of Jerusalem

(Jn 11:18) on the other side of the Mount of Olives. The raising of Lazarus (Jn 11) and the anointing by Mary (12:1) occurred there.

Bethel It may mean House of God (Gen 28:20). See Jdg 1:23 and Gen 35:6. A very ancient city with a sanctuary of the Canaanite god, Bethel. After the schism, king Jeroboam established a sanctuary there to rival the Jerusalem sanctuary (1 K 12:26).

Bethlehem It means house of the god Lamamu or house of bread. One of the centers of the tribe of Judah, 7 km south of Jerusalem. Place of origin of Ruth the Moabite (Ru 1:19), ancestor of David who was from Bethlehem (1 S 16). The prophet Micah said that the Messiah would come from Bethlehem: Mic 5:4. Jesus was born there in a place already identified at the end of the first century.

Bethsaida Village of fishermen on the shore of the Lake of Tiberias. Herod's son, Philip, transformed it into a city. The apostles Peter, Andrew and Philip were from Bethsaida (Jn 1:44). See also Mt 11:21.

Beth-shan (Beisan) An ancient Canaanite city to the far east of the Plain of Jezreel, near the Jordan. It became an industrial center opposed to the Israelites (1 S 31:10) with the settling of the Philistines. David conquered the city. Centuries later, it took the name of Scytopolis and became a center of Hellenism. The Romans made it the capital of the Decapolis (Mk 5:20; 7:31), a Greek province apart from the Jewish world.

The Bible All understand that it is the sacred book whose largest part is shared by Jews and Christians. The word means: The Books. This was the name given to the Scriptures of Israel when they were translated into Greek. Since the Church of the Apostles used the Greek version and presentation of these Scriptures, the word Bible took roots among Christians when, to the ancient collection, they added the books of the apostolic period that made up the New Testament. Catholic Bible and Protestant Bible: see Deuterocanonical.

Blasphemy The word blaspheme means: “to defame” or “to slander” (Jas 2:7). Most of the time, in the Bible, the word refers to a blasphemy that offends God or those consecrated to God (1 Mac 7:34; Tb 1:18; Rev 13:1. It was punishable by death: Lev 24:11 and it was the cause of Jesus’ condemnation (Mk 15:26; Jn 10:33; Mt 26:63). Blasphemy against the Holy Spirit: Mk 3:20.

Boaz The spouse of Ruth: Ruth.

Breaking of Bread At the institution of the Eucharist, Jesus took this rite that marked the start of the meal among the Jews (Mk 6:41; Acts 27:35); very soon this expression was commonly used to refer to the Eucharistic celebration (1 Cor 10:16).

Brothers of Jesus This is an expression used by the primitive Church to designate an influential and quite conservative group made up of the relatives and acquaintances of Jesus at Nazareth. In the Gospel, they are called “brothers” of Jesus according to the biblical use in the Hebrew as well as in the Greek texts. However, the Hebrew expressions referring to “blood brothers” was never applied to them. See commentary on Mk 3:31.

Caesar Nickname of Claudius Julius, conqueror of Gaul. His nephew Octavius wanted to be called Caesar Augustus (divine Caesar). After his death, Caesar was the way to refer to the emperor (Acts 25:12). After Augustus (Lk 2:1) and Tiberius (Lk 3:1), the N. T. knew Claudius and Nero without naming them.

Caesarea Mediterranean port built mostly by Herod. A new and magnificent city, at the head of the connections with Rome and the Mediterranean world. The Romans made it the capital of Palestine. Philip went there (Acts 8:40). Peter baptized Cornelius there (Acts 10) and he returned after his miraculous liberation (Acts 12:19). Paul often went there where he spent over two years in custody while waiting to appear before the emperor’s tribunal (Acts 23-26).

Caesarea Philippi Philip, the son of Herod the Great, gave this name to the city of Paneas (city of the god Pan) situated in the far north of Palestine and Philip made it his capital. Jesus took refuge in that province when he was no longer safe in Galilee that was under Herod Antipas: Mt 16:13.

Cain and Abel See Gen 4 and notes.

Caiaphas Lk 3:2; Mt 26:3; Jn 11:49.

Caleb Num 13:6; Jos 14:6.

Calendar Ancient Israel had a cycle of 12 lunar months of 29 or 30 days to which, from time to time, they added another month to make up for the delay vis-à-vis the solar year of 365 days 1/4. The year, then, started in autumn, at the end of the harvest, and the months had names of agricultural origin. From the Babylonian Exile, the Babylonian calendar, that begun in spring, was adopted; the months changed names and were known as first, second, third month, etc. Later on, the names of the Babylonian calendar were introduced: thus, the month of abib (ear of wheat: Ex 13:4) became Nisan. The civil year went back to the old system and Rosh Hashanah, the new year, was celebrated in September. However, the start of the religious year remained in the spring.

Cana A village of Galilee, 14 km north of Nazareth, on the ancient road from Nazareth to Capernaum. Two of Jesus’ miracles took place in Cana (Jn 2:1 and 4:46).

Canaan, Canaanites They were the early inhabitants of Palestine at the time when the Israelites entered the land. They were quite divided among themselves, a fact that facilitated the conquest. They already had more than a millennium of urban culture and the Israelites simply destroyed or copied many elements of their prosperity. The language of Canaan became Hebrew. Many religious customs were adopted from the Canaanites: feasts, sacred places but there was fierce opposition concerning faith in the one God, rejection of images and human sacrifices. The civilization of Canaan remained in Phoenicia, in the merchant cities of Tyre and Sidon. The word Canaanite refers sometimes to a Phoenician or a merchant (Mt 15:22; Zep 1:11). Later on, Simon the Canaanite (Mk 3:19) is the equivalent of Simon the zealot.

Canon It is a rule or a straight tube. The Canon of the Scriptures is the rule of the official list of the books constituting the Bible.

Capernaum It may mean beautiful village or village of rest. Small town a few kilometers west of the Jordan, on the shore of Lake of Tiberias. A border town between the territories of Herod Antipas and those of his brother Philip, it had a custom-house: Mt 9:9. Part of its resources came from fishing. Archeologists uncovered the remnants of the town of Jesus' time. The first church was built on the foundations of a private home that must have been Peter's house where Jesus stayed for a while: Mk 1:21, 29, 33; 2-1.

Carmel Mount Carmel, celebrated in Song 7:6 and Is 35:2, is easy to find on a map. Its summits are crowned with pines, vineyards and olive trees grow on its slopes. It was one of the early habitat of homo sapiens around 10,000 years ago. Already a sacred mountain in ancient times with Canaanite altars. The Bible primarily recalls that the prophet Elijah challenged the prophets of Baal and the fire falling from the sky: 1 K 18.

Catechesis It refers both to a course of Christian formation and to the contents of this teaching. Catechesis had a very important place in the early Church along with liturgy and preaching. If, as it seems probable, the main source of our gospels was written before the year 36, this document was conceived as a rule of catechesis for which the apostles were directly responsible. The Gospel is not a later echo of oral catecheses that are necessarily distorted: it is an official testimony giving to catechesis a solid basis from the start.

Catholic A Greek adjective meaning universal. By asserting its universality, the Latin church quickly distinguished itself from churches that became separated and subdivided. It was not only one, but it was able to embrace all people and every human reality. This Catholicity is opposed to the dream of a pyramidal church in which everything comes from above and such diverse personalities have to fit within frameworks foreseen for them. This Catholicity presupposes, at the same time, an understanding of the unifying role of Christ and of the diversity and tensions that are constantly renewed by the Spirit.

Cephas or Kephas This nickname means rock in Aramaic: Jn 1,42. The name is mentioned in 1 Cor 1:12; 3:22; 9:5; 15:5; Gal 1:18; 2:9-14. Peter is at the center of the first part of Acts 1-15.

Simon, named Cephas, will become Simon Peter in the Greek and Latin churches: Mt 16:16.

Chaldea This was the name given to lower Mesopotamia. Several cities, like Ur, had flourished there. At the time of Kings, Babylon had become the center of the area. Chaldeans, see Babylon.

Charisms Spiritual gifts given by God to each person for the good of the whole Church. Acts and Paul's letters relate manifestations of the Spirit accompanying baptism (Acts 8:13), the laying of hands (Acts 19:6) and giving life to the Christian assemblies (1 Cor 14:26). The action, always unforeseeable, of those inspired could disturb the assemblies and Paul intervened to establish harmony. He always prioritized the apostolic ministries and love. See 1 Cor 12 and 14, and their respective notes.

Cherubim In the Middle East, sacred monsters guarding the areas of the gods. They appear in Ezekiel's vision (Ezk 10; 28:16). There were also cherubim covering the ark of covenant with their wings (Ex 25:18-22).

Christ See: Messiah.

Christians The name appears in Acts 11:26 and again in Acts 26:28 and 1 P 4:16.

Church see Biblical Teaching 120-124.

Circumcision It must have come to the Orient with the migration of Egyptian populations toward the valley of the Nile. Practiced in Egypt in the 3rd and 2nd millennia, Israel considered circumcision as the sign of belonging to God. See Gen 17:9. When the Church began to admit non-Jewish people, the problem arose on whether or not to impose circumcision on them. Paul was especially opposed to it and the Council of Jerusalem (Acts 15) freed Christians coming from the Greek world from this imposition. The refusal to impose circumcision was very strongly motivated in Paul: it was the way of showing, even at the risk of scandal, what constituted the newness of the Christian faith (Gal 5:11).

Cisjordan Jordan, this side of the Jordan river. Seen from Jerusalem, it was the western part of the valley and, in a wider sense, Palestine. Seen from Persia or Mesopotamia, it was the land beyond the Jordan: Num 35:14; Ezra 7:25.

Cleophas (or Clopas) Lk 24:18; Jn 19:25.

Commandments See Law and Decalogue.

Communion It is the fraternal union among Christians and in Christ. It is communion with his sufferings (Phil 3:10), communion in the Spirit (2 Cor 13:13) and communion in the Eucharist: 1 Cor 10:16.

Consecration It is the rite by which a person or thing is, henceforth, made to belong to God. The Temple is consecrated: 1 K 8; priests and kings: Lev 8:1; Num 35:22; 2 K 9. The Messiah is the one who has been consecrated: Is 11:1. Christians consecrated to God: see saints.

Conversion In Hebrew, the verb to come back, to turn around became: to be converted. In Greek, it is the expression to change one's way of thinking. In the O.T., the prophets were asking for a return to the covenant at the heart of Deuteronomy: Dt 32 and 1 K 8:47. See Is 6 where conversion is related to the remnant. The return of the exiles to their land would go hand in hand with the return of the spirit to God: see Biblical Teaching 43. Conversion of the heart: Ezk 36: 22 and gift of the Spirit: 37:34. God converted his people: 1 K 18:37. In the New Testament, John the Baptist preached baptism and a change of ways: Mt 3:1. Jesus started the same way: see note in Mk 1:14. However, he would soon insist on hearts open to mercy: Mt. 9:13. Conversion and bap- tism: Acts 2:38; 26:20. Conversion always rejected: Is 6:10; Jn 12:40; Acts 28:26. Change your ways or you will perish: Lk 13:5.

Cornelius The Roman officer baptized by Peter: Acts 10.

Covenant This very word summarizes the whole faith of Israel as well as the Christian faith. A first covenant was given to humankind through Noah: Gen 9. The covenant was later given to Abraham (see commentary on Gn 15:1), then to Israel through the mediation of Moses (see commentary on Ex 19 and 24). Deuteronomy refers to a confirmation of this covenant in the land of Moab: Dt 28-60. The covenant was renewed by Joshua: Jos 8 and 24 and Josiah: 2 K 23. An eternal covenant was promised by Isaiah and Jeremiah: Is 55:3; Jer 32:40. Jeremiah showed that it would be a totally new covenant: Jer 31:31).

The New Covenant that God promised was celebrated by Jesus on the eve of his death (see commentary on Mk 14:12). The Letter to the Hebrews compares it to the first covenant with Israel (called old in 2 Cor 3:14): see Heb 7-10. Only part of Israel entered into this covenant that the Messiah was to bring to them but, in their place, converts from other nations had entered into it: Acts 15:16, Rom 11. In Greek, the same word meant covenant and testament: see Gal 3:15 and Heb 9:16. The New Testament is the book of the new covenant.

Cross A terrible torture that probably came from Persians. Romans used it only for slaves and foreign rebels. The fact that, in a thousand ways, the cross is connected with Christian faith in every country, manifests what pertains to biblical revelation. The people of God proclaimed in the world something that religions could not attain, namely, a knowledge that is the paradoxical wisdom of God-Love, the passing from the Infinite to zero. Without this step, there would be no real salvation for human beings. See 1 Cor 1:25.

Cyrus King of Persia. In 539, he defeated the last king of Babylon, Nabonidus. The following year, he authorized the Jews to return to Jerusalem. His role as liberator of Israel merited him to be presented as a Messiah in the text of Isaiah: Is 45:1.

Dan Situated to the far north of Palestine (see Beersheba). Jdg 17 and 18 present an account of its origin. After the schism, king Jeroboam established one of the sanctuaries of the kingdom in this sacred place of the Canaanites: 1 K 12:26.

Daniel Legendary sage (Ezk 14:14) to whom the book of Daniel is attributed.

David The true founder of the kingdom of Israel and of the dynasty that reigned in Jerusalem for four centuries: 1 S 16-30, 2 S (whole book), 1 K 1 and 2. Later, he was considered as the organizer of the cult and the author of the Psalms: 1 Chr 16-29. For the N.T., David, the founder of the Messianic dynasty, was one of the pre-figures of the Messiah: Mt 12:23; 22:43; Acts 2:25; 13:36; Rev 22:16.

Deaconesses The term is only found in Rom 16:1. See also Phil 4:2.

Deacons See Acts 6 and note. In his letter to the Philippians, Paul presents deacons as the assistants of the "episkopos" (or elders, responsible for the local church). The letter to Timothy indicates the prerequisites for this ministry (1 Tim 3:8-12).
The Abode of the Dead: see Sheol.

The Dead Sea A natural curiosity, this salt lake of 75 km long by 15 km wide is 400 meters below sea level. In the O.T., sometimes it is called the Salt Sea (Gen 14:3), the Sea of the Arabah (Dt 3:17), the Eastern Sea (Jl 2:20) or later, Lake Asphaltibis, due to the large amount of asphalt in its waters.

Death See Biblical Teachings 88, 90-94 and also Resurrection 140-142.

Deborah Rebekah's nurse: Gen 35:8. The prophetess who prepared Barak's victory was another Deborah: Jdg 4:5.

Decalogue See Ex 20:22 and note, and Dt 5. Also see Ex 34:1.

Demons See Devil.

Desert In the Bible, it refers either to the desert where nothing grows or to shepherds' arid lands that are only green in the spring.

Deuterocanonical books See the page following the book of Esther.

Deuteronomic This term refers to the literature and history written according to the spirit of the prophets. Deuteronomy may have been its introduction. Written in the last days of the kingdom of Judah, this history includes Joshua, Judges, Samuel and Kings. In other words, it goes from the conquest of the Promised Land to the loss of that land.

Devil Some Old Testament passages mention an adversary of God and of Israel, Satan in Hebrew, Diabolos in Greek, that is to say, the one who throws a monkey wrench in the works, or the accuser: 1 S 29:4; Job 1. In the last centuries before Christ, popular belief centered on demons, strange and bad spirits. The Greek word "daimon" can refer to a genial spirit, a deranged spirit (Jn 10:20), an evil spirit. Jesus drove out demons as Jewish exorcists were already doing (Lk 11:10, Acts 19:13) and he invited his disciples to share in his victory over impure spirits (Lk 9:1; 10:17). Jesus insinuated that the term demons referred to very different things (Mk 9:29) but he gave much more importance to the Devil, the adversary of God and of salvation (Mk 3:27; Lk 10:18). The Gospel of John, in particular, shows the spiritual and cosmic dimension of redemption: taking away the control of an alienated world from the devil (Jn 12:31; 14:30).

Diaspora or Dispersion This word indicated the collectivity of the Jewish people scattered throughout neighboring countries and especially in the Roman empire at the time of the beginning of the Christian era. They were more numerous than the Jews of Palestine. They were all convinced that, at the end of time, the whole of Israel would come together (Jn 7:35). Fruitless in Palestine after a few years, the Christian apostolate addressed the communities of the Diaspora: most of Paul's work took place among them. It was through the Jews of the Diaspora that he reached non-Jews. The word appeared in 1 P 1:1.

Disciple A term rarely used in the O.T. (Is 8:16; 50:4). A disciple is ordinarily someone who clings to a master and allows this master to form him (Pro 2:1; 8:32). Disciples appeared at the time of rabbis. But it was Jesus who gave the strongest meaning to this term because he taught with the authority of God: Mt 10:37; Mk 10:21. In the Gospel, there is frequent confusion between the words disciple and apostle (Mt 10:1), but not in Luke. The apostles (the Twelve of Jesus) were elected by him and remained with him: the disciples formed a fluctuating group of persons attached to him but not living in community with him. Among them, there were quite a few women (Lk 8:2). In Acts, the disciples are the Christians (Acts 21:16).

Divorce Concessions of the Law: Dt 24:1. The words of Jesus: Mt 5:31; 19:4. Paul's instructions: 1 Cor 7.

Doctrine Wherever there is a master, there is a doctrine. In the Old Testament, the term referred especially to the education of children and youth, presupposing the use of punishment. This is why doctrine should often be translated as discipline, reprimand (Pro 3:1; 4:13; 5:12).

Earthly Paradise See Gen 2 and 3 and the notes.

Ecumenism It comes from the Greek oikoumenè, inhabited (land). The meaning of the term was more geographical than human since the word humanity did not exist yet.

Edomites These nomads established south east of the Dead Sea settled down at the end of the 2nd millennium and they founded a kingdom that was often in conflict with Israel. The conflicts and massacres related in the Bible did not prevent the Israelites from acknowledging that they shared the same origin: they expressed it by pointing to Esau, a brother of Jacob, as their father: Gen 26:21.

Egypt The country developed around the Nile valley. Agriculture and culture followed the rhythm of the Nile's yearly floods watering the surrounding desert. The ancient empire began over 35 centuries before Christ. The pyramids and writing go back to that time. Absolute authority of the Pharaoh over the land except for what belonged to the priests. All the Old Testament was lived on a land that was coveted both by Egypt and the leaders of Mesopotamia. Both cultures confronted or completed each other in Israel.

Ekron Formed part of the Philistine federation dominating the fertile coastlands and in constant conflict with the Israelites of the mountainous region: Jos 13:3. It was the center for making olive oil. It was destroyed in 701 B.C. by the Assyrians of Sennacherib: Is 36.

El It means God in Hebrew (Gen 33:20). El was the first god, the god of heaven. The Bible uses the plural elohim, a more solemn form, to designate God.

Elamites People west of Lower Mesopotamia. In part, the Samaritans were formed of Elamites deported by the Assyrians: Ezra 4:9.

Elders They were the chiefs of nomadic clans at the beginning of the biblical history: later on, after the Israelites settled down, this term referred to the important landowners who became part of the Sanhedrin after returning from the Exile. When the synagogues started to be organized shortly before the time of Jesus, they were directed by a council of elders, and this was the way of government adopted by the first churches (Acts 11:30). The elders were men chosen for their maturity and their sense of responsibility (Acts 14:23); elected by the community and accepted by the hierarchy, they received the imposition of hands from the apostles in a direct or indirect way (1 Tim 5:17; Tit 1:5). They were entrusted with the task of guiding the community, giving them the word and presiding the Eucharist (Acts 20:17). In Greek, the word elder is presbyteros, from which the term "priest" comes, but it is clear that in our Church, the word no longer has the same meaning.

Eleazar Son and successor of Aaron: Num 3:4; Jos 14:1.

Elijah The great prophet of Israel: 1 K 17; 19:21; 21:17; 2 K 1:3. Elijah was taken up to heaven: 2 K 2:1; Sir 48:9; Mal 3:23. In the whole biblical tradition, Elijah represented the very essence of a prophet: Mt 11:14; 17:1-13.

Elisha The prophet, successor of Elijah, man of miracles: 1 K 19:16; 2 K 2:5; 9:1; Lk 4:27.

Elizabeth Mary's cousin and the mother of John the Baptist: Lk 1:5; 1:40-45.

Elohim See El. This Hebrew term is almost always used to refer to God. Rarely used to refer to foreign gods, sometimes it designates eminent people: Jn 10:34.

El Shaddai It seems that, at first, this Assyrian term referred to the god of the steppe (Gen 17:1; Ruth 1:20; Is 13:6). The use of this title had an ancient ring to it. Later on, it was used mostly in Job with the meaning Almighty.

Emmanuel (Immanuel) God-with-us is the name given to the infant announced as a sign of God by the prophet Isaiah (Is 7:14); Matthew applied this text to Jesus and from then on, in Christian tradition, Emmanuel was the name of the Savior.

Emmaus In a village called Amaus, 60 km northwest of Jerusalem, Judas Maccabeus won one of his victories (1 Mac 4). Later, enemies built a fortress there (1 Mac 9:50). We do not know if it was the same as the Emmaus of Lk 24. According to most manuscripts, Emmaus is 20 km from Jerusalem although a few texts indicate the same distance of 60 km.

En-gedi Source of the kid. It is about 200 meters above the Dead Sea. Water gushes forth and cascades down through vegetation and rocky land, making this place into a paradise: Song 1:14; Ezk 47:10; Sir 24:14. See 2 S 24:1.

Enoch A great ancestor linked to different traditions: Gen 4:17 and 5:18. He became famous in the days of apocalyptic literature Jdt 14.

Ephesus Capital of the Roman province of Asia, this city was located on the west coast of today's Turkey. There, Paul founded a Christian community around 55.

Ephod It is hard to know whether it was an article of clothing or a piece of furniture containing the sacred sticks called Urim and Thummim (Ezra 2:63) that were used to determine the will of God: Ex 28:6; 1 S 2:18; 14:18.

Epicureans Philosophers and disciples of Epicurus (Acts 17:18). This Greek philosopher sought to attain lasting pleasures rather passing ones and to control the impressions and desires of daily life.

Episkopos A Greek term meaning overseer. At the time of the apostles, it meant the person responsible for one or several communities of a city (hence the term bishop). See note in Acts 20:18 and Phil 1:1.

Eschatology A Greek term meaning last. It can refer to a person's destiny after this life, to a new world at the end of time or, more often, to the way we experience divine life here and now. See notes in Mk 13:1 and the discourses in the Gospel of John.

Essenes Like the Pharisees, they came from the movement of the Hasideans or Hasidim who renovated the spirit of faith a century and a half before. Like the Pharisees, they were committed to the Law and more than the Pharisees, they were enemies of the Sadducees. They were fatalists and did not believe in political action. They thought that God would intervene in order to eliminate all the "sons of darkness". They gathered in communities among which one, at least, called Qumran, lived in a monastic way in the desert on the shores of the Dead Sea.

Esther Heroine of the book of Esther that is related to the Jewish feast of Purim.

Eternity It is God the Father who has no beginning or end. Everything comes from God and returns to God (Rom 11:36). One of the aspects of a person develops in time, the other is in God and in eternity. God, love and eternity, endures: He Is. Eternity does not come after time. It is not permanence but instead, it is pure creativity. All the expressions we read in Ps 102:24-27 and in 2 P 3:8 should be seen as mere human stuttering.

Eucharist See Biblical teaching 188. See Lk 22:19; Jn 6:48; 1 Cor 11:17; Heb 8:1.

Evangelist It was one of the ministries of the early Church: see Acts 21:8; 2 Cor 8:18; 2 Tim 4:5. It is the title traditionally reserved for Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, the authors of the four gospels.

Excommunication It refers to exclusion from the community, the Church. See Rom 9:3; 1 Cor 5:3; 16:22; Gal 1:8; 1 Tim 1:20. See anathema.

Exegesis This word first meant to tell, then to explain. Exegesis is the art of shedding light on a text by way of literary, historical techniques and comparison with texts from another source. The techniques are numerous and they have clarified many aspects of biblical history. However, since these texts come from the faith and experience of a people different from others, exegesis never reveals the meaning of the texts to those who do not share the faith and experience of the people of God. Jesus is God's exegete: Jn 1:8.

Exile Period of the history of Israel that went from the destruction of Jerusalem in 587 to the time when the Israelites first returned in 538. For Israel, this trial meant a time of maturation, deepening and purification of their faith. See Bibl. Teach. 64 and 65.

Exorcism The action of driving out demons from the possessed. See devil.

Expiation It usually means appeasing God by sacrificing a victim: Lev 1:4; Rom 3:25; Heb 9:5; 1 Jn 2:2; Mt 20:28; Rom 5:20; 1 Tim 2:3 and 1 Jn 2:12. Jesus atoned for our sins.

Faith In Hebrew, this word has the same root as the verb to lean on and firm. In Greek, the word that served to express faith meant both the trust one could have in a debtor and the pledge engaged. Heb 11:1 gives us a dynamic definition of faith as holding on to what we hope for.

Fast It was part of the ritual of penance of certain Jewish feasts (Lev 16:29-31). It was practiced privately on certain occasions (Ps 35:13). Jesus fasted before the beginning of his mission (Mt 4:2). The disciples of John the Baptist fasted, as well as the Pharisees (Mt 9:14; Lk 18:12). In the primitive Church, fasting accompanied prayers at the time of important decisions (Acts 13:3; 14:23).

Feast of Tents (Booths or Tabernacles) See Jewish Feasts. For a week, people were living in tents made of branches in courtyards or on balconies in remembrance of their stay in the desert.

Firstborn As every first fruit, the firstborn son belongs to God (Num 8:17). On the 40th day, he was to be presented to God (Lk 2:22). But the Levites were considered to replace firstborn in the service of God. Nevertheless, this sacrifice of the firstborn was a common practice among the Canaanites, neighbors of Israel and for centuries, the prophets had fought against such a practice (Ex 13:13; Jer 19:1-9). One of the purposes of the narrative of the sacrifice of Isaac was to introduce the prohibition of the Bible in this matter (Gen 22). In the N.T., the word only appears to refer to Jesus as the firstborn of God and the firstborn for every creature: see note in Col 1:15.

Flavius Josephus He was born around 37 A.D. He participated in the war against the Romans but then, he turned back and worked with them. Welcomed in Rome after the fall of Jerusalem, he wrote the history of the Jews from the four centuries B.C. and the first century A.D.

Fraternal Correction See Mt 18:15, James 5:19.

Freedom A person's fundamental dimension. See notes on Gen 1:1; 2:7; 3:1; Sir 17. Freedom to choose life or death: Dt 30:15. Freedom to surrender to God: Is 50:4; Jer 1:4; 15:10; 20:7; Ps 40; Mk 14:36; Jn 4:32; 1 Cor 9:16; Phil 2:6.

Fundamentalism A trend that appeared in the United States around 1910. It presented the virginal birth of Jesus, his physical and bodily resurrection and his second coming as a judge, understood in a literal sense, as the foundations of the Christian faith. Fundamentalists read the text passively as they understand it in their own culture without wondering what the sacred author understood by it or what was meant.

Galilee The northern part of Palestine. Up-

- per Galilee (Mount Merom, 1,208 meters) is a rugged and closed area. On the other hand, the open valleys of Lower Galilee welcomed diverse people. Galilee means the district (of non-Jews): Is 8:23; Mt 2:22 and 4:4. We find this name after the Exile, especially in 1 Mac. Jews lived there along with other people. Jesus is the Galilean: Lk 22:59. When the kingdom of Israel disappeared, Galilee became first an Assyrian, then a Persian province. A century before Christ, Hasmoneans from Jerusalem took it back. At the time of Jesus, Herod Antipas ruled over it (Lk 3:1).
- Gamaliel A famous master at the time of Jesus. Paul owed him a great deal: Acts 5:34; 22:3.
- Gehenna A valley surrounding Jerusalem to the southwest. It was called the Hinnom Valley (Ben-Hinnom in Hebrew). In this place with many tombs, many Israelites immolated their sons in fire at the time of Jeremiah (Jer 7:31). Many pages from Jeremiah and other prophets condemned these practices (Jer 19:1-9). In the gospels, Gehenna is the image of hell (Mk 9:43).
- Genealogy A list of ancestors, or better still, the origins of people and institutions. See Gen 5:1; Mt 1:1.
- Gerasa The possessed man mentioned in Mk 5:1 (Lk 8:26) was from the Decapolis (Mk 5:20). Some manuscripts speak of the country of the Gerasenes, others of the Gadarenes. Gadara and Gerasa were in this region but they were not near the lake.
- Gerizim This mount (880 meters) and its twin Mt. Ebal (940 meters) form both sides of the mountain pass where the city of Shechem was situated. It was a sacred mountain for thousands of years. There, in the 4th century before Christ, the Samaritans built a temple to compete with the Jerusalem temple. John Hyrcanus had razed everything during the wars to reconquer and expand before the arrival of the Romans.
- Gethsemane The olive press. It is the name of a garden that Jesus knew on the Mount of Olives, east of Jerusalem. It is the place where Jesus taught the Our Father and where his agony occurred (Mt 26:26).
- Gezer An ancient Canaanite fortress overlooking the coastal plain 30 km west of Jerusalem and restored by Solomon (1 K 9:16). It is mentioned again at the time of the Maccabees, under the name of Gazara (1 Mac 13:53).
- Gibeon A very old Canaanite city whose sacred place was perhaps mentioned in 1 S 14:35 and 2 S 20:8. The miracle of Joshua stopping the sun took place in that city (Jos 10:13). It became one of the sanctuaries of Israel: 1 K 3:4.
- Gideon One of the most famous Judges: Jdg 6-8.
- Gnosis It means knowledge. Gnosis or Gnosticism refers to a religious current that came from the Greek world of the east at the end of the first century A.D. John's first letter had it in mind without naming it. Gnosticism spoke of a good and a bad God and it opposed light and darkness. The spirit is good and matter is bad. Souls had to get rid of matter to return to light. This Gnosticism came from ancient religious traditions that would reappear in the Manicheans and the Catharists of the Middle ages—and even in today's New Age. A Gnostic library of the 2nd and 3rd centuries has been found in Nag'-Hammadi.
- Goliath The Philistine giant (2 S 21:19) whom the legend of David later made its own: 1 S 17:4 and 23.
- Gospel It is the Good News. See Rom 1:1 and 1:17. It is not primarily a doctrine but rather the proclamation of a new time and of the manifestation of God in the person of his Son. The resurrection of Jesus is at the center of the message: 1 Cor 15:1. The four Gospels: see the Introduction to the N.T. Infancy gospels: two accounts of the infancy of Jesus in Mt 1-2 and Lk 1-2. Apocryphal gospels: later gospels that are not recognized by the Church as the authentic tradition of the apostles.
- Grace This word, originally meaning beauty (Ps 45:3) or goodness (Ex 12:36), quickly changed to signify favor. In the N.T., the word became pregnant with religious meaning. Thus, grace became the plan of salvation born of God's goodness (Lk 4:22; Acts 14:3; Rom 5:21). Grace can refer to the state of the creature reconciled with God (Rom 5:2). It also means the spiritual gifts of God (2 Cor 12:9; Gal 2:9) as well as the works blessed by God (2 Cor 8:19).

Hades In the Greek Bible, it is the equivalent of Sheol in Hebrew. It is the underground abode of the dead: Lk 10:5; 16:23. In the Bible, it is also the place of evil powers at the origin of attacks against God's work: Mt 16:18; Rev 6:8.

Hagar An Egyptian, Abraham's wife: Gen 16:1; 21:9; Gal 4:22-23.

Haman (part of the Amaleks). He was the "enemy" in the book of Esther.

Hannah Mother of Samuel: 1 S 1:2. However, men also have a similar name (Annas): Lk 3:2; Acts 4:6.

Hasideans or Hasidim The pious ones (1 Mac 2:42; 7:13; 2 Mac 14:6). Promoters of the renewal of faith in the second century B.C. before the Syrian persecutions. They fought against the effects of pagan Hellenism, rediscovered the prophets and the hope of the promise. They initiated the apocalyptic current and affirmed individual resurrection. The Pharisees and the Essenes came from this movement. Among other things, we owe the book of Daniel to them.

Hasmoneans It was the name given to the sovereigns, descendants from the family of the Maccabees, who reigned in Palestine during the 150 years before Christ.

Hazor About 15 km north of the Lake of Tiberias, it was at the intersection of the road of tin (brought from the Caucasus and from today's Afghanistan) and the road of copper that came from Cyprus and the islands of the Aegean Sea. Both metals were needed to produce bronze and they made Hazor prosperous. As archeology proved, Joshua took the city and burned it (Jos 11:13). Solomon made Hazor into one of the three major fortresses protecting his kingdom (1 R 9:15).

Healings See notes in Mt 9:35; Mk 5:33;

16:17; Lk 10:8. Healings are not always presented as miracles: see the distinction in 1 Cor 12:9. Gifts of healing, healing worked through the sacrament of the anointing of the sick (James 5:14) and miraculous healings, signs of the power of God acting through faith, have always abounded in the Church.

Heart See Biblical Teaching 83. One should never forget that, for the Hebrews, the heart did not mean affectivity (it is the soul attached to people and things) but rather, interiority. The promise of a new heart (Ezk 36) and the texts regarding the Spirit in our hearts (Rom 8:27) do not refer to generosity but instead, to interiority.

Heaven Hebraic culture opposed heaven and earth. The heavens, a vault extended over the earth (Gen 1:1; Is 51:16; Jer 10:12; Zec 12:1; Ps 136:6), represented the dwelling place of God, the highest heavens (Dt 10:14; 1 K 8:27). Yahweh became the God of Heaven at the time of the Persians (Ezra 5:11; Ne 1:4). Later on, the name of God was replaced by the Heaven: see notes on Mt 5:1 and 6:9. In the N.T., in heaven meant near God or in eternity: Lk 12:33; Eph 1:1.

Hebrew Until the founding of the monarchy, in the eyes of people with more culture, this word meant foreign nomads whose social status was considered as inferior (Ex 1:19; 1 S 4:9). Much later, at the time of the Greeks, this word applied to all that dealt with the Jewish language and culture as opposed to the Greek language and culture. The Jews from Palestinian origin were called Hebrews (Acts 6:1; 2 Cor 11:22).

Hebron A very ancient city (Num 13:22), about 20 km south of Jerusalem, a capital of Judah called then Kiriath-arba (city of the four clans): Gen 35:27. The sacred place of Mamre that Abraham and Jacob visited was there (Gen 13:18; 23:2; 37:14). It was there that God visited Abraham who bought the cave where Sarah and, later on, the patriarchs would be buried. Joshua conquered Hebron and gave it to Caleb (Jos 10:36 and 14:13).

David was made king of the tribe of Judah in Hebron (2 S 2:1).

Heliopolis See Is 19:6.

Hell See Biblical Teaching 258 and commentary on Mt 13:47 and 25:31.

Hellenism It is the Greek culture transplanted to the Middle East after Alexander's conquests: see Introductions to Ecclesiastes, Wisdom and Sirach. The Hellenism imposed by Syrian kings became persecuting: see 1st and 2nd Mac. It remained present in Palestine along with Hebraic culture. The Hellenists of the N.T. were Jewish or Christian believers of Greek culture and language, present in Palestine (Acts 6:1; 9:29).

Heresy In Greek, it is the same word as sect. For Christians, heretics are those who choose what they accept to believe from the traditional faith of the Church (Tit 3:10). They destroy faith (2 P 2:1) and they divide the Church.

Hermeneutics Theories and methodology regarding the interpretation of juridical, philosophical or religious texts. It guides the use of methods to help with the exegesis (explanation) of a text.

Herod Several kings reigned under this name. Herod the Great ruled Palestine from 37 to 4 B.C. The massacre of the Holy Innocents was attributed to him (Mt 2:7). Herod Antipas, son of Herod the Great, inherited part of his kingdom: Galilee and Perea. He ruled from 4 B.C. to 39 A.D. Jesus was brought before him (Lk 23:8-12). Herod Philip II, another son of Herod the Great is called Philip in Lk 3:1. Herod Agrippa I, grandson of Herod the Great ruled from 39 to 44 A.D.: see Acts 12:1-19. Herod Agrippa II ruled outside Palestine from 48 to 70 and he was the one Paul met at Caesarea (Acts 25 and 26). There is also Herod Philip I, son of Herod the Great. His wife Herodias left him for his half-brother Herod Antipas; she asked the latter for the head of John the Baptist (Mk 6:17-28).

Hezekiah A reformer king whose memory is linked to Isaiah: 2 K 18-20.

Hierarchy Sacred principle. In Greek, it is the order of sacred power. At first, it designated a classification of angels according to the various names that the Bible gave to celestial powers. Later, a similar order was sought on earth and comparable classifications of the different orders and ministries in the Church were established.

High Place As in many other religions, the Canaanites often built their places of worship on hilltops: 1 K 3:2; 12:31. With the Israelite domination, those sanctuaries became dedicated to the worship of Yahweh. However, old idolatrous practices remained and brought on them the condemnation of the prophets (2 K 12:4; Jer 19:5; Hos 11:18).

High Priest From the time of Solomon's kingdom, this term designated the chief of the priests and the one responsible for the service of the temple. He was considered as Aaron's successor (Lev 8-10). After returning from the Exile, the High Priest became the leader of the Jewish community: 1 Mac 10:15. At the time of Jesus, he presided over the Sanhedrin or Great Council. The Gospels speak also of the "High Priests," the main leaders of the service of the temple.

Hittites People of Anatolia (in today's Turkey) who were powerful in several periods of the 17th and 13th centuries B.C. In the 13th century, they took control of Syria and Palestine from Egypt but they soon fell before the invasion of the "People of the Sea" who included the Philistines of Palestine. They formed the aristocracy of the people of Canaan (Ezk 16:3).

Holocaust See Lev 1 and note.

Holy Place and Holy of Holies The Holy Place was the first hall of the temple of Jerusalem; inside were the altar of incense, the table of the bread of presence and the chandelier of 7 branches (Heb 9). A veil separated the Holy Place from the Holy of Holies, the most sacred hall of the temple, where the Ark of the Covenant was kept. After being taken by the Babylonians, the Holy of Holies remained empty.

Hyksos Asian nomads who dominated Egypt from 1850 to 1500 B.C. See Introduction to Exodus.

Hymn A religious poem meant to be sung with accompaniment.

Hypocrisy See commentary on Mt 6:1.

Icon The Greek term eikon (image) has the same meaning as eidolon (idol). However, these two terms went in different directions. An idol is a false deity whereas an Oriental icon is an image that is more theological than realistic. Oriental icons are images without depth and with an inverted perspective. They are like an open window on eternity. They show realities of which earthly events are only an image. Their colors and shapes have symbolic meanings.

Idol, Idolatry See commentaries on Ex 20:4.

Incarnation This word means to be made flesh and it reminds us of Jn 1:14. This mystery characterizes Christian faith and it continues to frighten many Christians because it teaches that the Son, God from God, one of the eternal faces of God-Love, was made flesh. See notes in Jn 1:1; Eph 1:1; Phil 1:6. Jesus is this Son or Word of God.

Inspiration This word means that the biblical texts are both the work of a human author and of the Spirit of God. See 1 P 3:16.

Isaac The traditions regarding this ancestor are found in Gen 17-27. In tradition, he remained the son of the promise: Gen 17:19; Rom 9:7; Heb 11:18.

The Islands This term is used in the O.T. to refer to the islands and peninsulas (Greece, Italy, Spain) in the Mediterranean Sea. It refers to the countries that would be called the Greek world (Is 11:11; 40:15; 51:5).

Israel It was the name of the ancestor to whom several tribes, who formed the people of Israel, were linked. He was later identified with Jacob, another ancestor (Gen 32:29). At the time of division of the kingdom of David and Solomon, the northern tribes kept the name of Israel while the southern kingdom became the kingdom of Judah. After the destruction of the northern kingdom, the southern people, the Judeans, became the only remnant of ancient Israel and they took back the name.

Jacob He was one of the great ancestors of the tribes. He was presented as a son of Isaac (Gen 25:21) and the story of his life is related in Gen 25:35.

Jairus Jesus raised his daughter from the dead: Mk 5:22.

James The N.T. refers to James as the son of Zebedee and brother of John, commonly called James the Elder (Mt 4:21). See Acts 1:13; 12:2.

There is also James, son of Cleophas and Mary, a relative of Mary (Mk 6:3 and John 19:25). This James, brother of the Lord, became the leader of the Palestine church: Acts 12:17; 15:13; 21:18; 1 Cor 15:7; Gal 1:19; 2:9-12; James 1:1; Jd 1:1. He is undoubtedly different from James, son of Alpheus (Mt 10:3; Acts 1:13).

Jehu King of Israel who reestablished Yahwism: 2 K 9 and 10.

Jericho City of the moon, it was also called the city of palm trees, a paradise in the Jordan Valley. The discovered sanctuary tower was one of the most ancient monuments in the world: 80 centuries B.C.! When Joshua arrived, all that was left of its walls was in ruins. The account of the procession that made the walls of the city fall down probably came from a yearly liturgy celebrating the miraculous crossing of the Jordan (Jos 3). See Joshua's curse in 6:26 and the way it was fulfilled in 1 K 16:34. At the time of Jesus, Jericho was Herod's winter residence. The two episodes of Zacchaeus and Bartimaeus occurred in Jericho (Lk 19:1 and 18:35).

Jeroboam The first king of the northern tribes at the time of the great separation or Schism: 1 K 11-14. Jeroboam II would be the last great king of Israel: 2 K 14:23.

Jerusalem According to Jdg 19:10, this city was called Jebus before the Israelite conquest. In fact, the name is very old. It may mean: the city or foundation of peace or more likely foundation of Salem (a divinity). Its conquest by David marked a decisive step in the history of Israel and of biblical revelation: see commentary on 2 S 5:1. Its miraculous liberation at the time

- of Hezekiah and Isaiah was equally important: Is 37:21; Ps 46 and 48. The image of Jerusalem, a city of peace, at times enslaved and at times free but just as disappointing, maintains alive the dream of the heavenly city promised by God (Is chapters 60-62). Its most beautiful description is found at the end of Revelation (chapter 21).
- Jesse David's father: 1 S 17:12; Is 11:1; Rom 15:12.
- Jethro Priest of Midian, Moses' father-in-law: Ex 3:1; 4:18. He was also called Reuel: Ex 2:18.
- Jew It is the English translation of the word Judean. See Judah.
- Jewish Feasts See Dt 16:1-15. Passover, linked to the feast of unleavened bread (commentary on Ex 12:15), was at the beginning of the harvest. The Feast of Weeks—Pentecost—referred to the thanksgiving at the end of the barley harvest. The Feast of the New Year took place in the fall (Lev 23:24), according to the old calendar. The Feast of Tents and the great day of Atonement (Lev 16) took place at the same time. Later on, the feast of the Dedication of the Temple was added (1 Mac 4:36-59), as well as the feast of Purim (Es 9:17). Almost all these feasts had an agricultural origin but they were given a religious meaning. Passover: departure from Egypt; Pentecost: gift of the Law; Feast of Tents: stay in Egypt: These feasts became a living catechism.
- Jezebel King Akab's wife: 1 K 16-21; 2 K 9. Image of corrupting and persecuting power: Rev 2:20.
- Joanna One of the women who followed Jesus: Lk 8:3; 24:10.
- John The brother of James and the son of Zebedee, one of the twelve apostles: Mk 1:16; Lk 8:51; 9:28; 22:8; Jn 13:23; 18:15; 19:26; 20:2; 21. According to a commonly shared opinion, he is the author of the 4th gospel, the book of Revelation and the 3 letters bearing his name. However, see the Introduction to John's Gospel.
- John (the evangelist?) Acts 1:13; 3:1-4; 3:11; 4:13-19; 8:14; Gal 2:9; Rev 1:1; 22:8.
- John Mark See Mark.
- John the Baptist He was the last and the greatest of all the prophets: Lk 1. He preached and baptized in the desert: 3:1-18; Jn 1:19-28; Lk 7:18-35; Jn 3:22-36; 10:41; Mt 17:21. With him, the O.T. came to an end. Like Moses, he led the people of God to the edge of the Promised Land, but he did not enter it because his mission stopped there (Jn 3:30). Jesus underlined John's greatness (Mt 11:11-14).
- Jonathan Son of Saul and friend of David whom he accompanied in his trials: 1 S 14-20. See 2 S 1.
- Jordan Its source is found at the foot of Mount Hermon in the north of Palestine and it runs southward disappearing in the waters of the Dead Sea. In the O.T., it represented the spiritual frontier of the promised land. The miraculous crossing of the Jordan, following the holy Ark, would remind Israel that the land was not conquered but given by God (Jos 3 to 5). In the N.T., the baptism of Jesus in the waters of the Jordan marked the beginning of his evangelical preaching (Acts 1:21-22).
- Joseph The story of Joseph, Jacob's son, sold by his brothers takes up the last third of Genesis: 37-50. Joseph is a prototype of the future Savior.
- Joseph The adoptive father of Jesus: Mt 1-2; Lk 1-2; 3:23; 4:22; Jn 6:42.
- Joseph of Arimathea: Mt 27:57; Jn 19:38.
- Joshua Aside from the book of Joshua, see Ex 17:9; Num 11:28; Dt 31:3; 34:9.
- Joshua Jozadak's son. A priest who played an important role in the rebuilding of the temple: Ezra 5; Hg 1:1; Zec 3.
- Josiah The holy and reformer king: 2 K 21:24; and chapters 22-23.
- Jubilee See Lev 25 and note.
- Judah It is the name of one of the twelve sons of Jacob, the one who was considered as the father of the tribe of Judah: Gen 29:35; 35:23; 49:8.
- Judah-Judea This term refers to one of the tribes of Israel (Num 10:14) and to the kingdom that remained with David's dynasty after the Schism of 931 B.C. It is the southern part of a mountainous range whose northern part is Samaria. It includes three very different regions:

1. The Plain of Shephelah to the west.

2. In the center, the Judean Mountains (over 1,000 meters) extend (40 km) from Bethlehem to Beersheba. Jerusalem is north, close to the border that separated the tribes of Judah and Benjamin.

3. The eastern part was called the wilderness of Judah. It slopes from Jerusalem to the Jordan and the Dead Sea with a 1,400 meter incline. It was the domain of shepherds.

The clans that were to form the tribe of Judah united under David's authority. It was then that a son of Jacob was attributed to them as their ancestor (Gen 29:35). Due to God's choice of David and Jerusalem (1 K 11:13), this southern area of Palestine became the heart of Israel. Its privileged vocation was inscribed in Jacob's blessings: Gen 49:8.

After the Romans occupied Palestine, the southern part, that corresponded more or less to the old tribe of Judah, received the name of Judea.

Judaizing, Judaizers The term appears in Gal 2:14. It refers to Christians who, in the early days of Christianity, did all they could in order not to be rejected by the Jewish community that did not accept Christ. They wanted the Church to recommend the observance of the O.T. laws. They were opposed to the proclamation of the utter newness of faith in Christ, namely, the belief in his divine person. They never stopped persecuting Paul. A Judaizing tendency still exists in the Church today. It often paralyzes efforts to evangelize. It is less concerned about revealing the Savior to all, and to Jews in the first place, than it is to silence anything that "could grieve the Jews."

Judas Iscariot One of the Twelve who betrayed Jesus: Mt 10:4; Lk 6:16; Jn 6:71; 12:4; 18:2; Mt 27:3.

Judas Maccabeus A hero of the national and religious resistance against the Syrian empire: 1 Mac 3:1 to 9:22; 2 Mac 8-15.

Judeo-Christians See Judaizers.

Judges In the Bible, the power to judge is not clearly distinguished from the power to govern: the same word means both things. Tribe leaders, city elders and kings were judges. Nevertheless, the Bible speaks of Judges appointed by the authorities, starting with Moses (Ex 18:13). In most cases, Levite priests were judges (Dt 21:5). In the Bible, there is a period of Judges (2S 7:7) during the first century when the tribes settled in Palestine. These Judges were leaders: see Introduction to Judges.

Justice (Justification) It is one of the words most frequently used in the Bible. Biblical history knows God as the one who renders justice. The God of Israel wants above all a just law and the observance of a just law. The meaning of the word justice expanded as people became more aware of the many exigencies of God's law. The term ended up by expressing the perfection of those who are just in God's eyes, those who please God because they do what is pleasing to God. The just are righteous persons.

In the N.T., the Greek word more commonly used means both justice and justification. A key word used by Paul to express both the renewal of people and their reconciliation with God through faith in Christ, the Savior. See commentaries on Rom 1:16.

Kadesh-barnea An oasis on the northern border of Israel where nomads used to stop. It had been a sacred place since ancient times. This was the place where Moses' companions shared their faith with other desert groups. In Num 13 and 14, the long stay in Kadesh-barnea (Dt 1:43) was seen as God's punishment. This will be recalled in Josh 10:41 and 14:6.

Kedar See note on Is 21:16.

Kerygma A Greek word meaning proclamation or preaching of a message. The message is at the heart of the Gospel. It is a call to believe in the gesture of the Father who sent his Son to reconcile the world.

Kingdom See Biblical Teaching 62-63 and 110-113.

- Knowledge When Paul used this term, he was often referring to the knowledge of mysteries that was expected of new religions coming from the east. To that, Paul would oppose mystical knowledge, the gift of the Spirit: 2 Cor 8:2. See also: Wisdom.
- Land This word can refer to the whole earth. The Land may also refer to Palestine, the land promised by God.
- Gift of Languages To praise God in languages we do not know is one of the gifts of the Holy Spirit: see Acts 2:11; 10:46; 19:6; 1 Cor 2:10; 12:30; 13:1; 14... See note in Acts 8:4.
- Law In the sense of all the rules and commandments: see Biblical Teaching 70-78. The word is also used to designate the first 5 books of the O.T., the Torah in Hebrew. The Gospel and the Law: see Mt 5:17; 5:20; 7:12; 22:40; Lk 16:16; 24:44; Jn 1:17; Rom 10:4. Faith and the Law: Rom 2-7; Gal 2:3. The Law and works: Rom 13:10; Gal 2:16; Eph 5:2; 1 Tim 1:8; James 1:25; 2:8.
- Lazarus The man raised by Jesus: Jn 11:1-14; 12:1. The same name would be given to the poor man of the parable narrated in Lk 16:20.
- Leah Jacob's wife: Gen 29:16; 30:9.
- Legion It refers to the largest unit of the Roman army, from 3,000 to 6,000 infantrymen, plus cavalrymen. A legion was divided into cohorts under the command of tribunes or commanders (Acts 21-24). Cohorts were subdivided into centuries (companies) under the command of centurions (Acts 10:1).
- Levi Name of one of the twelve sons of Jacob. He was presumed to be the father of the Levites: Gn 29:34; 49:4; Ex 6:16; Mal 2:5.
- Levi Name of one of the Twelve of Jesus: Mk 2:14; Lk 5:27.
- Levites Among the twelve tribes of Israel, the tribe of Levi was chosen to assure the service of worship (Ex 32:22; Num 3:12). The Jerusalem sanctuary was not the oldest one. There were sanctuaries of Yahweh all over the country (Bethel, Beer-sheba, Shechem, Mamre, Shiloh and many others). The priests of the tribe of Levi officiated in those temples and after the closing of the sanctuaries of the provinces under kings Hezekiah and Josiah, they came back to Jerusalem. However, the priests of the Holy City left them only secondary tasks (2 K 23:9). Those priests coming from the provinces were called Levites to differentiate them from the Jerusalem priests. All that refers to the Levites in the texts of the Pentateuch, Ezra and Chronicles was written after their return from the Exile.
- Levirate See Dt 25:5-10. See also the two examples of Tamar (Gen 38:6-9) and Ruth (Ru 2 and 3) as well as Mt 22:23-27.
- Libation A religious rite in which wine or oil is poured, usually on the altar, as an offering to God (Ex 29:40; Lev 2:1).
- Liberation See Introduction to Exodus; Ex 1-4; 15:22; Lev 25; Is 3:9; 58:1; Jer 34.
- Liberty See Freedom.
- Liturgy This term designates a celebration or a public act. The first Christian liturgies adopted many elements from the Sabbath liturgy of the synagogues: Scripture readings, interventions and commentaries, singing of Psalms. In addition to these, the Passover of the Lord and the manifestations of the Spirit were recalled (1 Cor 12 and 14), especially for baptism and for the Eucharist.
- Logos A Greek term too easily translated by word: see notes in Jn 1:1. In Greek philosophy, the logos was a reasonable principle that governed the world order and curbed individualities. In John, the Word did not come to repress. On the contrary, the Word was rejected. During the century before Jesus, Jews from Greek culture tended to approximate Wisdom and the Word of God: see Col 1:15. John alone identified the Son of God with God's Wisdom and Word by calling him the Logos in Jn 1:1; 1:14; Rev. 19:13.
- The Lord It translates as Yahweh in the Greek Bible. The title Lord was soon given to Jesus and all the biblical texts mentioning the Lord were applied to him. See Jn 1:1; 4:11; 13:2; 20:1; 20:8; 20:11.

- Lot Abraham's nephew: Gen 12:4; 13; 1; 19; 2 P 2:7.
- Love See Biblical teaching 50-53 and 220-228.
- Lydia A disciple of Paul: Acts 16:14; 16:40.
- Magdala Small port on the shores of Lake Tiberias. Mary Magdalene (Mary of Magdala) was from that city.
- Magdalene See Mary.
- Magic Always present as a persistent temptation, it was constantly and violently fought by the prophets in the O.T. (Dt 18:10; Is 2:6). Paul's preaching in Ephesus will help Christians to become aware of the futility of those practices (Acts 19:19).
- Magnificat In Latin it is the first word of the canticle of Mary (Lk 1:46-55). In the West, it designates this canticle.
- Mammon The Syrian god of business. We translate as money, or the god of money in Mt 6:24; Lk 16:9; 16:11; 16:13.
- Manasseh The ancestor, son of Joseph. A tribe with the same name was attributed to him: Gen 41:50-51; 48:1-20.
The persecutor king, son of Hezekiah: 2 K 21:1; his conversion: 2 Chr 33:1-20.
- Manna Food that was found in the desert. Tradition saw it as bread from heaven: Ex 16 and Num 11.
- Marana tha! An Aramaic expression: Come, Lord! 1 Cor 16:23; Rev 22:20.
- Mark One of the first disciples, mission companion of Paul and Barnabas and an evangelist: Acts 12:12, 25; 13:5-25; 15:37; Col 4:10; 2 Tim 4:11; Phlm 24.
- Marriage This term summarizes the goal of human history: Rev 21:9; see Is 49:1; 54:1 and notes; the Song of Songs (Introduction and 3:6); Jn 2:1; Eph 5:32. Marriage, the law of the beginning: Gen 1:24; Mt 5:38; 19:1; note in 10:1. Moses and divorce: Dt 24:1. Considered normal by the patriarchs and kings, polygamy would gradually disappear: Mal 2:13. Ezra and mixed marriages: Ezra 10:1; Ne 13:23; Tb 4:12. Marriage, divorce and virginity: 1 Cor 7:1; 7:8; 7:12; 7:25-38. Marriage, sacrament: Eph 5:22; 1 Thes 4:4.
- Martha Sister of Lazarus: Lk 10:38; Jn 11.
- Martha and Mary: Lk 10:38; Jn 11.
- Martyrs A Greek word meaning witnesses. For Christians, martyrs are those who were witnesses at the cost of their lives but without entering into the spirit of violence: Acts 7:57.
- Mary Transcription of the Hebrew Miryam. The mother of Jesus. See Biblical Teaching 106 to 108. Acts 1:14.
- Mary Mother of John Mark: Acts 12:12.
- Mary of Cleophas Mt 27:56; 28:1; Jn 19:25.
- Mary Magdalene Mt 27:56-61; 28:1; Lk 8:2; 24:10; Jn 12:3; 19:25; 20:1, 11.
- Masoretes From the Hebrew term massoret meaning tradition. They were Jewish experts who, for centuries (already over a century before Jesus), had been verifying the accuracy of the copies of biblical texts.
- Mattathias A hero of the faith at the time of the Syrian empire: 1 Mac 2.
- Matthew One of the Twelve: Mt 9:9; 10:3.
- Matthias He was elected by the apostles to take the place of Judas Iscariot: Acts 1:15-26.
- Megiddo A very ancient city. It was the necessary passage for any connection between Egypt, Asia Minor and Mesopotamia. One of the fortresses that Solomon restored thanks to forced labor (1 K 9:15). Josiah, the just king, died there before completing his work of reform: 2 K 23:29 and 2 Chr 35:21. Megiddo, a symbol of the confrontation of good and evil, is the meaning that John gives it in Rev 16:16.
- Melchizedek A legendary figure of the traditions regarding Abraham: Gen 14; Ps 110:4; Heb 5:6; 7:1-17.
- Mesopotamia It was the country between the two rivers, the Tigris and the Euphrates. The world oldest civilization, that of the Sumerians, developed there long before the year 3,000 B.C. Chaldea and Babylon were located in this plain, near the delta with Assyria, more north of the mountains. Ur in Chaldea is thought to be the departure point of Abraham, at a time when the Amorite tribes moved freely from the south (Ur) to the far north (Haran) of Mesopotamia.

Messiah Transcription of the Hebrew masiah, one who has been anointed. Kings were the first to be anointed (1 S 16:10; 13), then priests were anointed. See Lev 8:1; Num 35:22; Is 11:1 and Biblical Teaching 62-66. Jesus was recognized as the Messiah in his resurrection. Peter had already acknowledged him as the Messiah: Mt 16:16; Jn 6:68. In Greek, Messiah is translated by Christos, a title that would be linked to the name of Jesus.

Methuselah Gen 5:21.

Micah or Michea The name of two prophets from different times: Micah, the son of Imlah (1 K 22) and Micah of Moresheth, the author of the book of the same name: Mic 1:1.

Midianites Nomadic tribes established in the northwest of the Arabic peninsula. At the time of the Judges, they went as far as the Plain of Jezreel where Gideon defeated them (Jdg 6-8).

Midrash A Hebrew term meaning search, study. It deals with a commentary on Scripture on the basis of the reality of the time, as in Mt 2.

Millenarianism It refers to the expectation of an intermediary time between present history and eternal life. It would be somewhat like an earthly paradise under the authority of the Messiah: see text and note in Rev 20:1.

Ministers It is the translation of diakonos from which we get our term deacon. Both terms complement each other since the Greek indicates both service and responsibility. The apostles established ministers for the ordinary service of the Church. Other ministers shared their own duties and responsibilities. See Acts 14:1; 20:28 and Introduction to the pastoral letters. Qualities required of elders and deacons: 1 Tim 3:1; 5:3; Tit 1:5. See Priests.

Miracles An event that does not follow the norms of nature or that defies the laws of probability and leaves a message to believers. Miracles help with salvation and they also reveal something about God. In Hebrew and in Greek, a miracle may have different names. It is a sign, a wonder, a work of power, or all at the same time.

Faith, miracle and health: see notes in Mk 5:33; Lk 8:43; 17:11. Works of power: see the note in Mt 15:29. John will insist on the aspect of sign: Jn 2:11; 2:18; 4:54; 6:14; 12:18. Miracles are always present among the people of God: Acts 3:11; 9:34; 9:40; 19:10; 20:10; Rom 15:19; 1 Cor 12:12.

Miriam A prophetess whom the Bible remembered as Moses' sister: Ex 15:20; Num 12.

Mission A term that means sending forth. Being sent is the same word as apostle. Jesus was sent by the Father: Mt 10:40; 15:24; Lk 4:18; Jn 3:17; 6:44; 8:42; 17:3. The apostles were sent by Jesus: Jn 17:18; 20:21. The mission in Galilee: Mt 22:21; Lk 9:1; 10:1. Paul was sent: Acts 10:16; 13:2; Rom 10:15; 1 Cor 1:17; Gal 1:1. Paul's missions: see Paul. The universal mission: Mt 28:18; Mk 16:15; Acts 1:8.

Moabites Nomadic people who settled east of the Dead Sea in the 13th century B.C. Around 900 B.C., they gave themselves a king. The kingdom of Moab formed part of those neighbors with whom Israel was often in conflict.

Monotheism It is the belief in the One God. In fact, most religions believe in one Divinity over many gods. Strictly speaking, faith in the One God is more characteristic of Jews, Christians and Muslims who rely on a revelation from God. Belief in the One God is expressed in Dt 6:4, the creed of Jews. For Jews and Muslims, Christian belief in the Triune God weakens monotheism. For Christians, it makes us enter into God's mystery. This belief brought to the world a sense of person, the priority of love, the meaning of forgiveness and the discovery of a universal neighbor. It put an end to the fanaticism linked to revealed monotheism and it gave us access to a world that is beyond religion. See the notes in Gen 1:1; Ex 3:1; 20:1; Dt 4:1; Jn 1:1 and Eph 3:1.

Mordecai Esther's uncle in the book of the same name. He is also connected with the feast of Purim: Es 9:30.

Moses Chosen by God, he took the sons of Israel out of Egypt and led them to the edge of the Promised Land. The books of Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy relate the deeds of Moses as they were perceived by Israel. See Biblical Teaching 30 to 39.

Mystery In ordinary language, a mystery is something that is beyond our understanding. God and his work are beyond us: Job 42:1; Pro 30:2. The Son reveals God to us (Jn 1:18), earthly things and heavenly things (Jn 3:12). This being the case, the Greek word mysterion usually means a secret that is finally revealed: Mt 13:11; 1 Cor 4:1. This secret is primarily the entire plan of God for universal salvation: Eph 1:9; 3:3; Col 1:26.

Myth The Greek term refers to a fable. Myths are stories made up by popular tradition to convey, and at the same time, to conceal ancient facts in order to give us a reassuring vision of the present human situation and of society. The Middle East myths on the origins of the world are between the lines in the accounts of Gen 1-3; Ezk 28:11; Ps 74:13.

Naim A village on the north side of a hill in the Plain of Jezreel, not far from Nazareth. Shunem is on the other side. Elisha raised up a child in Shunem: 2 K 4:8. In Naim, Jesus restored a widow's son to life: Lk 7:11.

Name Regarding the use of this word to express the power of a superior being, God or a supernatural being, see the commentary on Mk 16:15. The Name of Yahweh is the irradiation of his power: Ex 23:21; Num 6:27; Ps 89:25.

Naomi Ruth's mother-in-law.

Nathan David's prophet. See 2 S 7:3-17; 12:1; 1 K 1:11.

Nathanael One of the first disciples of Jesus: Jn 1:45.

Nazareth A small village. Even though it is very old, it is not mentioned in the O.T. It is in a small hollow on a hill in Galilee, on the edge of the Plain of Jezreel. As we saw regarding Peter's house in Capernaum, it is quite possible that the Nazareth community gathered in "Mary's house." It is probably the place where Mary received the annunciation (Lk

1:26). A century later, a 'synagogal church' was built over that house. From then on, many buildings have replaced one another thereby confirming the authenticity of the place. Jesus grew up in Nazareth where he spent over thirty years. The Son of God, having come to full manhood, experienced the world in this corner of Galilee. Jesus is the Nazorean (Mt 2:23; 26:71; Lk 4:34; Jn 1:45) just as he is the Galilean (Mt 26:69; Lk 22:59).

Nazirite A man who was temporarily or permanently consecrated to God, abstained from alcoholic beverages and who did not cut his hair (Jdg 13:5; Lk 1:15).

Nebuchadnezzar From 605 to 562, he ruled over a vast empire with Babylon as the capital. He took over Jerusalem in 597 and returned for the second time in 587-586 when he completely destroyed the city and deported the rest of the inhabitants (2 K 24 and 25).

New Year's Day Strictly speaking, there was no New Year's Day feast in the O.T. However, in the fall or the beginning of the year for the Israelites, they used to celebrate the feast of the Harvest (Ex 23:16). Later on, they celebrated Rosh Hashana or the New Year.

Nicodemus A leader of the Jews and a disciple of Jesus: Jn 13:1; 7:50; 19:39.

Nineveh This Assyrian capital was the center of an insatiable empire from the 9th to the 7th centuries B.C. It extended its domination as far as Egypt and, in 721, it definitively ruined the kingdom of Israel with the capture of Samaria and the subsequent deportation. The biblical authors were not impressed by the artists, temples and the library of the city. Nineveh was the sinful city where Jonah was sent (Jon 3:2; 4:11) and the city of the oppressor where Tobit lived. The prophets were waiting for its fall (Nh 1:1; 3:7). In fact, its fall was quick and complete. Jesus said that it is possible to be worse than the Ninivites: Mt 12:41; Lk 11:30.

Noah The builder of the Ark and father of viniculture: Gen 5:29; 6-8. Noah is mentioned in Lk 17:26; 1 P 3:20; 2 P 2:5.

- Nunc Dimitis In Latin, the first words of Simeon's canticle in Lk 2:29.
- Oblation A religious offering. Part of it was offered in sacrifice and the other part was given to the priests as food (Lev 7:12-14).
- Omri A great king of Israel whom the prophets did not appreciate: 1 K 16:16.
- Onan Son of Judah: Gen 38:1-11. The protagonists of this story personify different clans who were at the origin of the tribe of Judah.
- Ophir An area famous for its gold (1 K 9:28; Job 22:24). Some have looked for it on the coasts of Arabia. It might have been in the Mediterranean area, most probably in Spain.
- Oracle It is the right word to designate God's response to a prophet's consultation. In the prophetic books, the expression "Oracle of Yahweh" became a refrain underlining their poems like the other refrain "the Word of Yahweh."
- Original Sin See Gen 3:14 and note.
- Orthodox or true faith. The Eastern churches have chosen this term to underscore their will to keep the authentic faith conveyed by the liturgy and tradition. Catholic and Orthodox Churches share the same faith. In spite of that, cultural differences and historical wounds have maintained tenacious conflicts.
- Pagan This word comes from the Latin paganus: peasant, countryman. The present meaning is due to the fact that, for centuries, only cities were evangelized in Europe while the countryside kept its traditions and gods.
- Palestine The name is derived from the Philistines who occupied the coast during the entire period of the kings. Its borders changed through the centuries depending on the hazards of history. The limits indicated in the Pentateuch were established after the return from the Exile and they were only reached during Solomon's rule.
- Pantocrator This Greek term is a translation of the Hebrew Sebaoth, the God of Hosts or the God of the universe: Rev 1:8.
- Papyrus A reed whose bark was made into paper on which one could write in ink.
- Parable See Mt 13:1; 13:34; Mk 4:10 and their respective notes.
- Paraclete In Greek, it means intercessor or defender. It is the title given to the Holy Spirit in Jn 14:16; 14:26; 15:26; 16:7 and to Jesus in 1 Jn 2:1.
- Parousia This Greek term is a translation of the Hebrew word visitation (to ask for explanations). The whole O.T. announces such visitations by God, namely, God's judgments on the world. With the N.T., the expected visitation is that of Jesus both as Judge and Savior (1 Thes 2:19).
- Passover It was originally a feast of nomadic people (Ex 5:1-4). Since the departure from Egypt coincided with this feast, it took on a new dimension for the following generations (Ex 13:8). When they came to the Promised Land, these people of shepherds became agricultural and the celebration of the first harvest would blend with the old feast of the sacrificed lamb. By passing from this world to his Father (Passover means passage) at Passover time, Jesus gave to this feast its definitive and total dimension (1 Cor 5:7). See also Mk 14:1 and note.
- Passover Lamb Each year, the immolation of the Passover Lamb and the ritual meal during which it was eaten reminded Israel of how God had liberated them from slavery to the Egyptians in order to lead them to the Promised Land: Ex 12:21-28. By his death on the cross, at the very hour in which Passover lambs were sacrificed in the temple, Jesus accomplished and transfigured all the Passover celebrations of the old covenant: Jn 19:35-36. Jesus is the Lamb of God: Jn 1:29 and note in Jn 19:31. See Rev 1:4 and the Introduction to Revelation.
- Pastors See Shepherds.
- Patriarchs This term refers to the great ancestors of the people of Israel who were clan leaders at the time of nomadic life, Abraham, Jacob and his sons (Acts 7:8) and also David, the ancestor of the kings (Acts 2:29). Some legendary heroes, like Enoch, were also included in this category.
- Paul His life: Acts 22:1; Phil 3:4-11; Acts

7:58; 8:3; 26:9; His conversion: Acts 9:1; Gal 1:15; 1 Tim 1:12; His missions: Acts 9:23; 11:25; 13-21; 2 Cor 11. Journey to Rome: Acts 21.

Peace The entire O.T. was yearning for peace because war and oppression had been its experience. It knew that peace came from God (Is 9:5; Mic 5:4; Is 53:5; 57:19) but it did not know that peace was for all. Peace usually meant that opponents were reduced to silence: Is 61:2; 63:1; 25:11. The Gospel builds peace on reconciliation in the conviction that God has already given salvation (Lk 2:14; 10:5; Acts 10:36). Jesus gave peace (Jn 14:27) but he also brought war (Lk 12:51) because God's call divides: Mt 5:11; 10:16. Christians wrestle with the power of darkness and, for them, peace is only temporary: Eph 6:1; 1 P 5:8.

Pentateuch A technical term that is often used to designate the first 5 books of the O.T.: Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy. These books were attributed to Moses. Although they often contain ancient traditions, as we know them, the texts were written after the return from the Exile. The laws found in these books were laws that governed the Jewish community after Ezra's reforms (Ne 8). These books are also called The Law.

Pentecost Originally this feast, called feast of Weeks, had a purely agricultural nature: 7 weeks after reaping the first ears of barley, the wheat harvest was celebrated. Toward the end of the O.T., however, this feast became linked to the remembrance of the Law given on Mt. Sinai. For the Church today, Pentecost does not recall the gift of the Law but instead the effusion of the Holy Spirit. See Acts 2:1.

Penuel The Jabbok river crossed this city near the Jordan. It is mentioned in Gen 32:32. In the 8th century B.C., Penuel had a sanctuary to preserve the memory and the prophecies of Balaam, an Ammonite prophet.

People In Hebrew, the peoples (or the nations) refers to all non-Israelites, while the people or the nation means only Israel. Therefore, depending on the cases, we can translate by foreigners or pagans. In the Greek world where Paul lived, the Jews used other terms: the circumcision referred to the Jewish collectivity and the foreskin, to the collectivity of non-Jewish people.

Persecutions In the O.T., 1 Mac 1; 2 Mac 4-7; Dn 3. In the N.T., Mt 5:11; 10:16-39; 24:9; Jn 15:18; 17:14; Acts 7:57; 9:1; 12:1. Paul under persecution: Gal 5:11 and the note; Phil 1:28; 1 Thes 2:14; 1 Tim 1:13; The Church and the Beast: Rev 13:16; 14:9. See Martyrs.

Peter His call: Jn 1:42; Mt 4:18; Lk 5:1. Peter, James and John: Mk 5:37; 9:2; 13:3; 14:33. Promises to Peter: Mt 16:13; Jn 21:15; Peter's faith: Jn 6:68; Lk 9:18; 22:31. Peter's denial: Mk 14:53. His apostolate: Acts 1:13-15; 2:14-40; chapters 3-12; 15:7; 1 P 1:1; 2 P 1:1. See also Cephas.

Pharisees The Pharisees (or separated) were one of the branches coming from the Hasideans or Hasidim who had renewed the spirit of faith a century and a half before (1 Mac 2:42). These lay people gave little importance to Temple worship and much more to the practice of the Law. They strongly insisted on the responsibility of individuals who are saved by their own merits, in the eyes of a just God who rewards. They were the party (and the sect) of the pure (Mt 16:6; 23:1; Mk 8:1 and notes). Many of the teachers of the Law belonged to this party (Mk 2:16). For over a century, they had been part of the Sanhedrin along with the Sadducees (Acts 23:7). After the national tragedy of 70, they became the undisputed guides of the nation and it was then that they excluded those who had been baptized from the Jewish community.

Phoenicia It was the northern part of the coastal plain of Palestine with the port cities of Tyre, Sidon and Byblos. Its inhabitants were Canaanites who lived from their trade. They traveled all over the Mediterranean. They invented the alphabet in the 14th century B.C. It was among them that Solomon looked for the wood and metal experts he needed to build the Temple and the palace. Thanks to their seamen, Solomon was able to send expeditions to Africa. The Phoenicians' prosperity aroused the envy of their neighbors. The prophets saw their pride and self-sufficiency and they threatened them with a judgment of God (Is 23; Ezk 27:32).

Philip One of the Seven: Acts 6:5; 8; 21:8.

Philip One of the Twelve: Mt 10:3; Jn 1:43; 12:21.

Philistines They formed part of the Sea Peoples who had come from Greece and the neighboring islands around the 13th century B.C. Driven back by the Egyptians of Ramses III, they settled down in the coastal plain of southern Palestine in the five districts of Gaza, Ashdod, Ashkelon, Accaron or Ekron and Gath (Jos 13:3; 1 S 6:4). They settled in the coastal plain at the same time as the Israelite nomads arrived from the interior and they were enemies of Israel for centuries. At that time, Palestine was in the iron age and, due to their monopoly on this metal, the Philistines were formidable enemies. We find references to them especially in the book of Judges and the two books of Samuel.

Pilate Pontius Pilate (Lk 3:1) was the Roman governor of Judea from 26 to 36 A.D. He was ruling at the time of the passion of Jesus (Lk 23:1; Jn 18:28). He was under the Roman legate who administered the present territories of Syria, Lebanon, Israel, occupied Palestine and Jordan.

Polygamy A common practice among the people of the ancient Eastern world, but in the course of the centuries, monogamy prevailed in Israel, first as an obligation for the High Priest and later, for everyone as it is attested in the last books of the O.T.

Polytheism It means acknowledging several gods. For a long time, the Israelites did not answer the question concerning the existence of other gods. What mattered to them was to serve Yahweh (Ex 20:3) and to have others as his subjects. The One God: Is 43:10; 45:21.

Possessed by the devil See Mk 1:23 and note.

Predestination See Rom 9:14 and note; Eph 1:1 and note.

Priests Priests of the Old Testament: see commentaries on Num 3:1 and 4:1. Leviticus and Numbers contain laws regarding priests and worship at the end of the monarchy and at the time of the Exile. The priestly families of the tribe of Levi had the monopoly on serving in the Jerusalem Temple. This service consisted of animal sacrifices, incense offering and blessings. The priests would take turns serving and after that, they would return to their villages (1 Chr) 24; Lk 1:8). Priests also served as judges. See Levites. For the New Testament, see commentaries on Acts 14:21 and Heb 9:1.

Priscilla See Aquila.

Prophets See the special Introduction just before Isaiah.

Proselytes This was the name given to pagans who converted to Judaism and who accepted the whole Law, starting with circumcision. By the second or third generation, they were considered completely Jewish.

Prostitution It existed in Israel as it did among other people but, in the biblical texts, it often became an image to express the people's infidelity to God: Is 1:21.

Ptolemais A Phoenician port north of Israel. It was also called Acco and Saint Jean d'Acre.

Pul In 2 K 15:19, it is the name given to Tiglath-pileser, king of Assyria.

Pure and Impure It was a fundamental classification in the world of Jesus and the apostles. See commentaries on Mk 7:14 and Acts 10.

Qumran See Essenes. The library of this Essene community was rediscovered in the last century. It provided countless documents from the first century B.C., including fragments or complete copies of all the books of the Bible.

Rabbi It comes from the Hebrew rab to designate a leader or a chief. At the time of the Gospel, this title was already applied to teachers of the Law who had disciples as in the case of John the Baptist (Jn 3:26) and Jesus (Mk 9:5). At a later time, rabbis would be ordained and officially recognized.

Rachel Jacob's favorite wife: Gen 29:15; 29 and 30; 35:16; Jer 31:15; Mt 2:18.

Rebekah Isaac's wife: Gen 29; 25:21; 27:5.

Redemption or ransom Israel is the people God acquired or purchased for himself by taking them out of Egypt (Dt 9:26). Later on, the Israelites betrayed God and sold themselves to do evil (Is 50:1) or God sold them to foreign people to punish them (Dt 32:30; Is 42:24). Then God decided to buy them back and to bring them again to the Promised Land. Jesus the Redeemer: see Biblical Teaching 130-137.

Rephaim It is the name traditionally given to the early inhabitants of Palestine long before the Israelites' arrival. They were considered as a race of giants (Dt 2:11).

Repudiation According to the Law (Dt 24:1), a husband could repudiate his wife but the reverse was not allowed. The husband had to give his wife a certificate of divorce to allow her to remarry. Jesus condemned that practice and insisted on the sanctity of marriage. See Mt 19:1-9.

Resurrection See Biblical Teaching 140-142.

Revelation It means to remove the veil. The whole Bible is revelation since it conveys the truth, the meaning, the way and the form of salvation that God had entrusted to his people and these were fully manifested in the person of Jesus. The people of God experienced and proclaimed this truth, way and salvation that cultures and religions could not attain. This revelation deals with God's mystery and his mysterious plan and, at the same time, it reveals our true nature to us: Jn 3:12.

Rock God is the rock: Dt 32-4; 32:31; Is 44:8; Ps 18:3; 28:1; 42:10; 89:27... Christ was the rock: 1 Cor 10:4. See Cephas.

Rome It was the capital of a vast empire comprising all the territories around the Mediterranean conquered little by little during the last three centuries B.C. Palestine had become part of this empire about 50 years before the birth of Christ. Therefore, for the Jewish people, Rome was the symbol of the occupying power and of all its evil consequences (Rev 17 and 18). Yet, people could not help admiring the success of this huge empire that was able to keep order and whose riches and law made Rome a unique city. By seeing Rome as the incarnation of the power of Satan, the book of Revelation revealed the other side of the world. See commentary on Rev 19:1.

Sabbath See Gen 2:3; Ex 20:8; Lev 25; Ne 10:32; 1 Mac 2:32; Is 56:2; 58:13; Jer 17:21.

Sabbatical Year As they passed from nomadic to agricultural life, the Israelites adopted the custom, probably existing before them, to allow the land to rest every 7 years, as the Sabbath ended the 7 days of the week. The priests and the prophets, then, insisted for each Sabbatical Year to be the occasion of remitting debts and of returning the lands to their former owners: Dt 15:1. In fact, this was like asking for the impossible and the law was never applied. To make the law more acceptable, they instituted the Jubilee Year every 50 years: see Lev 25 and its commentary.

Sacred Prostitution In pagan sanctuaries, priests and priestesses were available to the faithful: by uniting with them, the faithful thought that they were entering into communion with the divinity. The prophets condemned these practices: 2 K 23:7; Is 57:7.

Sacraments See Bibl. Teach. 180-189.

Sacrifice In Latin, the term means to make sacred. There were countless forms of sacrifice(s) through the years and there were also countless theories regarding them. Nomadic Hebrews sacrificed a lamb: see note on Ex 12:1. Later, in Canaan, they adopted many local religious customs: 1 S 1:4; 4:12. The laws about sacrifices contained in the Pentateuch were not from Moses. It was the ritual of the Jerusalem Temple after the Exile. The Letter to the Hebrews shows how this liturgy announced the sacrifice of Christ who gave his life to reconcile the world: see the notes in Heb 3:1 and 9:1.

The Sadducees They were one of the four sects or groups within Judaism at the time of Jesus. They came from influential priestly families, Zadok's descendants, who had taken over the office of the high priest at the time of the Exile (Ezk 44:15). Having religious authority and controlling most of the seats of the Sanhedrin, or great council, they dominated the political landscape. They tried to make the best use of the Roman occupation. The only salvation they acknowledged was that of the national community. They mistrusted the Prophets whose message risked breaking up their nationalistic spirit (Acts 23:8). They held on to the Pentateuch because it had the advantage of heavily stressing their privileges as priests (Mk 12:18 and note).

The Saints In Hebrew, the word kadosh (holy) applied to God and to divine beings. The saints were God's angels in Dn 4:10. When it is applied to people and things, the word means consecrated: Ex 39:30; Num 6:8. In the N.T., the Greek term agios (holy), also applies to a pure and noble life (1 Cor 7:34). Therefore, this word has two meanings: 1) It applies to the Church, the people God consecrated to himself and the saints are the people God has chosen and called: see the note in 1 Cor 1:1. 2) The baptized are told that their lives have to be holy, that is to say, perfect before God.

Salome Mt 27:56; Mk 15:40; Mt 20:20.

Salvation See Bibl. Teach. 160-166. The whole Bible deals with salvation. See Gen 3:15; Ex 15 (the God who saves); Is 45:8 (God's salvation blossoms from the earth); Mk 11 (the unexpected Savior); Lk 2:22 (paradoxical salvation) Lk 8:48 (your faith has saved you); Acts 4:12 (Christian salvation); Rom 14:9; 15:7; 1 Tim 2:4 (God wants all to be saved); 1 P 1:3 (the salvation of souls).

Samaria A city and province of central Palestine. Born of the 931 schism that separated it from Judah and from David's descendants, it was the seat of the kingdom of Israel: see Chronology, Kings. See 1 K 12 and 13. Samaria was captured by the Assyrians in 721 and the kingdom disappeared.

The Samaritan woman Jn 4:7.

Samaritans A mixed population made up of Israelites and people from different regions of the Near East. They had been brought in by the Assyrians after their victory over the northern kingdom in 721 B.C. Even though they lived in Palestine, the Samaritans were always suspicious to the Jews who profoundly despised them (Jn 4:9; Lk 17:16).

Samson A hero with legendary strength: Jdg 13-16.

Sanctuary When the Israelites arrived in Palestine, they found sanctuaries that were often outdoor sacred places on hills. When the Jerusalem Temple was built, those sanctuaries became less important and they were finally eliminated by Hezekiah and Josiah (2 K 23) in compliance with Dt 12. From then on, while the temple (or house) referred to all the buildings and courts, the sanctuary was only the building with the vestibule and the Holy of Holies: 1 K 6:5.

Sanhedrin It was the great council of the Jews at the time of Jesus. It was made up of 71 members representing the priestly families (the high priests), large landowners (the elders) and after Queen Alexandra (76-67 A.D.), the scribes who represented the Pharisees.

Sarah Abraham's wife (Gen 12:5) and mother of the son of the promise (Gen 17:15; 21:1). The N.T. associated her to the faith of Abraham: Heb 11:11; 1 P 3:6.

Satan See Devil.

Saul The first king of Israel: 1 S 9-31.

Scandal In Greek, it was a stumbling stone. The term is found in Is 8:14. In ordinary language, a scandal became what shocks the conscience and makes one doubt divine justice which prompts people to sin. See Mt 16:23; 18:18.

Scapegoat See Lev 16 and note.

Scribes See Teachers of the Law.

Sea of Bronze (Molten sea) It was the great round bowl mounted on 12 oxen in the esplanade across from the temple: 1 K 7:23.

It contained the water needed for purification. In Rev 4:6, we translate as platform.

Sea of Reeds It was the place where the Hebrews, under the leadership of Moses, were liberated: Ex 14:2. This sea of reeds usually refers to the Red Sea: Ex 10:19.

Sects At the time of Jesus, this word referred to the important groups or movements that divided the Jewish community. According to historian Flavius Josephus, their division was due to a different concept of freedom: in other words, to the way of responding to God's salvific plan. These four sects were: the Sadducees, Pharisees, Zealots and the Essenes. At the beginning, the Church was considered as a new sect of Judaism: Acts 24:14; 28:22. Later on, sects appeared within the church itself: Tit 3:10.

Sem or Shem The first son of Noah: Gen 5:32; 10:21.

Semitism What pertains to Semites, Arabs or Jews. Semitism refers to characteristic expression in their languages.

Sepphoris The Bible does not mention this city, the Roman capital of Galilee, only 8 km away from Nazareth. Jesus must have often gone there where he probably worked and learned the basics of the Greek that people spoke.

The Septuagint Abbreviated as LXX, it refers to the Greek version of the Bible that was done in Alexandria in the 3rd century B.C. It was the text that the apostles and the Church used in the Greek-speaking world and, in fact, in the whole Roman Empire for over three centuries.

Seraphim See Isaiah 6:1.

Servant of Yahweh The second part of the book of Isaiah has four extraordinary poems (Is 42:1-9; 49:1-7; 50:4-11; 52:13-53:12) depicting the perfect servant of Yahweh. From the very beginning, the Church recognized its Lord in the traits of this holy servant (Acts 3:13 and 26; 4:27 and 30).

Seth Son of Adam and Eve: Gen 4:25.

Shechem The Israelites chose this central and ancient city for their annual liturgy recalling the covenant: Dt 27:1-6 and Jos 8. The renewal of the covenant is mentioned in 2 Chr 29:10 and 34:31. The Assyrians destroyed the city but it was rebuilt in the 5th century B.C. During the merciless conflicts between Jews and Samaritans, Shechem was razed by John Hyrcanus 100 years before Christ.

Shekel It was a unit of weight that became a gold or silver coin. Six gold shekels were worth 50 silver ones. Half a shekel (for the sanctuary tax) was worth two drachmas (Mt 17:24).

Shekinah Dwelling or presence in Hebrew. The presence of God in his temple or his people.

Shema In Hebrew, it means listen. It is the first word of Dt 6:4. This text is considered as Israel's creed and according to Dt 6:7, it was to be recited in the morning and evening.

Sheol This was the name the Israelites gave to the abode of the dead. It was imagined as a dark place where the dead were like shadows, forgotten by God and without hope: 1 S 28:8; Is 38:10; Ezk 32.

Shepherds In the O.T., they refer to the authorities of the people of Israel: Jer 2:8; 3:15. In the prophets, God promised to become the Shepherd of his people (Jer 23; Ezk 34). The parable of the Good Shepherd: Jn 10:1. Jesus, the Shepherd of his people: Mt 15:24; Lk 15:3; Heb 13:20; 1 P 5:1. Shepherds in the Church: Jn 21:5; 1 P 5:1.

Shiloh For centuries, this small plain near the Jordan had been a sacred place for nomads. The Israelites built a sanctuary there for the Ark (1 S 1-2) and the tribes gathered there: Jos 18:1; Jdg 19-21.

Shunem See Naim.

Silas or Silvanus Paul's companion: Acts 15:22-40; 16:19; 17:14; 18:5; 2 Cor 1:19. He became Peter's secretary: 1 P 5:12.

Simeon One of the twelve tribes of Israel. It was the name of the old man who prophesied in Lk 2:25.

Simon Nicknamed Cephias, he was called Simon Peter in the Greek and Latin Church: Mt 16:16. See Peter.

Simony Making profit out of sacred things: see Acts 8:9.

Sin At first, this term referred to the rebellion against God in spite of the covenant with him. The meaning of sin becomes clearer throughout the Bible. Many victims were offered in order to obtain the forgiveness of sins (Lev 4:1; 8:1; 16:6) but the meaning of sin was becoming more interiorized: Ps 51. See also sacrifices and expiation. Sins and sin: see the note in Jn 8:31. The forgiveness of sin: see Mt 18:18 and the notes in Jn 20 and James 5:16.

Sinai or Horeb At the far south of the peninsula, separating Egypt from Palestine, a mountain with an altitude of 2,300 meters. It was considered as the most probable place of the manifestation of God to this people led by Moses (Ex 19).

Sinner This word had different meanings in Jesus' world. Sinners were those who did not observe the law of God out of ignorance or negligence. They were also the social categories whose activities seemed to be condemned by God, like tax collectors, prostitutes or even some professions that required a constant contact with impure people (non-Jews).

Sodom A desolate place, an enormous block of salt covered with rocks. It gave rise to many traditions: Gen 13:13; 18:23; 14:10; Ezk 16:49. Sodom is mentioned in Mt 10:15; 11:23 and 2 P 2:6.

Solomon Son of David and Bathsheba (2 S 12:24) and king of Israel: 1 K 1-11; 1 Chr 28-29 and 2 Chr 1-9. He had the first Temple of Jerusalem built. The Bible remembered him as a symbol of the past prosperity of the kingdom of Israel and as a wise man who started sapiential literature (Mt 6:29 and Lk 11:31). The Bible chose to ignore his lack of fidelity to Yahweh in the midst of his wives and of his wealth (1 K 12).

Son of Man In Hebrew: Son of Adam. In the plural, humankind. In the singular, a human being (Ps 49:3). In the O.T., the prophet Ezekiel is often addressed by God as 'son of man' (Ezk 21:1; 22:1; 23:1...). But it is in the vision of Daniel 7:13 that a "son of man" appeared on the clouds of heaven. He represented the people of God. Jesus applied this vision to himself (Lk 22:69) and that is probably the reason why he calls himself the Son of Man, especially when he speaks about his glorious return (Lk 9:26). When Jesus chose this title, he gave us one of the keys to the Christian interpretation of the Old Testament: what the prophets announced to the people of God was accomplished in Jesus. Note in Jn 5:27: the only place in which the N.T. says a son of man not the Son of Man.

Soul See Biblical Teaching 83 and notes in Mk 8:34 and 1 P 1:9.

Spirit In Greek and in Hebrew, it is primarily breath or wind. Then it takes on all the meanings of the English term spirit. Word and Spirit: Gen 1:1. The Spirit of God in the O.T.: Num 11:24 and Jdg 11:1. Wisdom and the Spirit: Wis 1:1 and 7:1. Being born of the Spirit: Jn 3:1 and 7:37. Baptism of the Spirit: Acts 8:14. The flesh and the Spirit: Rom 7:14 and 8:5. Freedom of the Spirit: Gal 4:1. The letter and the Spirit: 2 Cor 4:14. Worship in spirit and truth: Jn 4:24. Body, soul and spirit 1 Thes 5:23.

Stephen One of the first seven "deacons": Acts 6:5. The first martyr 6:8-81.

Sunday The Jewish week ended with the Sabbath (Gen 2:2). Therefore, Sunday was the first day of the week. The first Christians kept the day on which the Lord rose from the dead to celebrate the Eucharist (Acts 20:7). Sunday is a distortion from the Latin: dies dominicus, meaning the day of the Lord.

Susanna The heroine of the book of Daniel (Dn 13).

Suzanna One of the women who followed Jesus: Lk 8:3.

Synagogue The Hebrew word is almost the same as church. It means both the community and the place of worship. It was led by a council of officials: Mk 5:22; Acts 18:8 and 17. See the note in Mk 1:21 regarding worship in synagogues.

Tabitha Peter raised her up: Acts 9:36.

Tabor A relatively low mountain (600 meters), set like a hat over the Plain of Jez-reel. An ancient sacred place of the Canaanites. The northern tribes met there for their victory over the kings of Canaan (Jdg 4–5). It is the most likely setting of the transfiguration of Jesus: Mk 9:2.

Talent The Hebrew word means round. At first, it weighed 59 kilos but later, it was reduced to 48 and 35 kilos.

Talmud It refers to rabbinical commentaries on Scripture. The oldest ones were written at the same time as the gospels and they constituted the Mishnah: its authors were called the Tannaim. Later, they added commentaries on the Mishnah, known as the Gemara. It was an interpretation of the Law, looking for the literal meaning of the text and also a practical commentary that could go in two directions: moral applications (Halachah), development and ornament (Midrash).

Tamar Judah's daughter-in-law: Gen 38; Mt 1:3. In 2 S 13, Tamar was Absalom's sister.

Ta.Na.Kh It is the name of the Hebrew Bible. This name is made up of the first letter of the three major sections of the Bible: Torah (Law), Nabim (Prophets) and Ketubim (Writings).

Targum An Aramaic word meaning translation. An Aramaic rewriting of the Bible that started shortly before the time of Jesus, in a pastoral purpose for the sake of ordinary people who no longer understood Hebrew. It is a rather free translation that includes practical details on how to follow the Law.

Tarsis It is Spain. The ships of Tarsis were sea-going vessels that could cross the Mediterranean all the way to the Spanish coast.

Teachers of the Law or Scribes These middle class people were well-versed in the study of the Scriptures. As a rule, they belonged to the party of the Pharisees (Mk 2:16) and, since the time of queen Alexandra (76-67 B.C.), they formed part of the Sanhedrin. These teachers relied on the tradition that was starting to develop and that would soon be written in rabbinical books. They presided at religious services of the synagogue, gathered disciples, they were volunteer judges (Lk 12:46; 20:1) and they taught in the temple court (Lk 12:46; 20:1). Jesus was considered as a self-taught teacher of the law (Jn 7:15). This is the reason why his disciples called him rabbi (teacher): Mt 8:19; 9:11; 10:24.

Temple The Israelites had their first temple in Palestine. Planned by king David (2 S 7:2), it was built by Solomon. See the notes in 1 K 6:2 and 6:4. This temple (the Bible usually speaks of the House) replaced the Tent that had been protecting the Ark since the days in the desert (Ex 33:7; Num 16:18; Dt 31:14; 1 S 2:22; 1 K 8:4. Destroyed in 587 B.C., the Temple was rebuilt with meager means upon returning from the Exile. Magnificently rebuilt by Herod (Mt 24:1; Jn 2:20), it was burned and destroyed by the Romans in 70 A.D.

The Tent It was the sanctuary of the Hebrews in the desert. See Ex 25–40, the notes in 25:40 and Num 9:15. John used this figure in Jn 1:14.

Teraphim It may be a reference to the Urim and Thummim: see Ephod.

Testament See Covenant. See Gal 3:15 and Heb 9:16.

The Twelve See Apostles.

Lake of Tiberias The name (Jn 21:1) comes from the city of Tiberias (Jn 6:23) built on the lakeshore by Herod Antipas at the time of Jesus. In the Old Testament, it was called Sea of Kinnereth (Num 34:11; Dt 3:17; 1 K 15:20). In the New Testament, it is called Sea (Lake) of Gennesareth (Mt 14:34; Lk 5:1) or Sea of Galilee. The Jordan flows into this sea that is 15 km wide and 20 km long. Situated in the great depression, the surface of the lake is 200 meters below sea level.

Timnah Timnah was in Philistine territory: Jos 19:43; Jdg 14. South of the Dead Sea, another Timnah had copper mines, later called Solomon's mines. Gen 4:22 and Job 28:1 refer to this other Timnah. Everyone there was a slave of the Pharaoh and worked for him. Nearby, the temple of Hathor had a serpent as an idol: see the note in Num 21:4.

- Timothy Chosen by Paul: Acts 16:1. With Paul in Acts 17:14; 18:5; 19:22; 20:4. Mentioned in Rom 16:21; 1 Cor 4:17; 16:10; 2 Cor 1:1; 1:19; Phil 1:1; 2:19; Col 1:1; 1 Thes 1:1 and 3:2; 2 Thes 1:1; 1 Tim 1:2; Phlm 1; Heb 13:23.
- Tirzah A very ancient Canaanite city conquered by Joshua (Jos 12:24). After the schism, it became the capital of the northern kingdom for a short period (1 K 14:17; 16:24).
- Tithes See Dt 14:22 and note.
- Titus Paul's assistant; his relations with the Corinthians: 2 Cor 2:13; 7; 8; 12:18; the circumcision problem: Gal 2:1; mission in Dalmatia: 2 Tim 4:10.
- Tradition and Traditions The apostolic tradition refers to all the deeds, gestures and words of Jesus that the apostles handed down to the community. Like any community, the Church also has its traditions, rules and customs: Mk 7:1; Acts 23:6; 1 Cor 11:17; 11:23; Gal 1:12; 2 Tim 3:14.
- Transjordan Seen from Jerusalem, it is the land east of the Jordan River, today's Jordan. See Cisjordan.
- Tribes The twelve tribes of Israel, considered as the descendants of Jacob's twelve sons: see the notes in Gen 29:1; 35:23; 49:3. The list of the tribes in Num 1:18; Dt 33; Ezk 38; Rev 7:5. See also Mk 3:13.
- Trinity It is a way of naming God as he revealed himself in the Bible: the Father, the Son and the Spirit. See Jn 1:1; Eph 3:1; Jn 15:26. See also Monotheism.
- Tyre A Phoenician port and city in northern Palestine: see Is 23:1; 23:15. The king of Tyre, Hiram, was linked to all of Solomon's economic initiatives: 1 K 5:15; 9:11. With their international trade, warehouses and manufacturing centers, Tyre and Sidon were considered as beneficiaries of an ill-acquired wealth. In alliance with Tyre, the kings of Israel had supported Canaanite cults: 1 K 16:30; 21:25. Therefore, their punishment was expected: Ezk 26.
- Unleavened bread Bread without yeast. See Ex 12:15 and note. This was the name of a Canaanite agricultural feast that the Israelites adopted and combined with Passover.
- Urim The Urim and Thummim were small sticks that were thrown like dice to get an answer from God: see Ephod.
- Vices List of vices in the N.T.: Mk 7:21; Rom 1:26 and 29; 1 Cor 5:9 and 6:9; 2 Cor 12:20; 1 Tim 1:9.
- Virtues All the Christian virtues are prompted by the so-called theological or divine virtues: faith, hope and charity. See Bibl. Teach. 210-228.
- Vocation It means being called. The O.T. relates the calls of Moses (Ex 3:1), Gideon (Jdg 6:11), Samuel (1 S 3:1), Elisha (1 K 19:19), Isaiah (Is 6:1), Jeremiah (Jer 1:5), Ezekiel (Ezk 1:5) and Amos (Am 7:14). The N.T. relates the calls of Mary (Lk 1:26), the apostles (Mk 1:16; 2:1; 3:14; Lk 5:11) and Paul (Acts 9:1). The apostles showed that the faith of every baptized person was a response to being called and chosen by God: Rom 1:7; 8:28; 9:24; 1 Cor 1:9 and 26.
- Vulgate It was the name given to the Latin version of the Bible that was done in 360, by Saint Jerome, a Roman priest from Dalmatia (today's Bosnia). The Vulgate was the official version of the Latin Church until 1950.
- Way In the primitive church, the Way was the word used to refer to faith and to the Christian life (Acts 9:2; 18:26).
- Wisdom The third category of sacred books is that of the Wisdom or sapiential books. Divine Wisdom is presented as a person close to God in Pro 8:22 and Sir 24.
- Word of God We are to look for it in the Bible. But there is no Bible without God's people who live by it and bear witness to it.
- Yahweh Regarding the meaning of this name, see the notes in Ex 3:14 and 6:2. In the 4th century before Christ, the Jews stopped pronouncing this name although they kept it artificially in the text under the form of Jehovah. Since the 16th century, some bibles use Jehovah. More faithful to the Hebrew spirit, others use YHWH. Here we are keeping the divine name in the form that Israel, Moses and the prophets knew it and pronounced it for nine centuries.

Yahwist It is the name given to one of the documents combined in Genesis and Exodus. It is the oldest document going back to the time of Solomon.

Zacchaeus The tax collector: Lk 19:1.

Zadok A priest, friend of David (2 S 8:17; 15:24; 17:15). He sided with the party of Solomon (1 K 1) obtaining for his descendants the control of the Jerusalem clergy. Later on, the High Priest would be chosen among his descendants: Ezk 40:46; 43:19; 48:11.

Zealots The Zealots were as fanatic as the Essenes and as political as the Sadducees. Among them, there were quite a few Essenes who had come to the conclusion that weapons were more effective than prayers. At the time of the gospels, they were the heirs of a long tradition that, from Phinehas, the priest (Num 25:7), until the Maccabees, had defended the honor of Israel and national independence. Later on, they organized and played a decisive part in the uprising against Romans in 66.

Zechariah A common name in the Bible. It is the name of the prophet who was the author of a book with the same name. It is also the name of the father of John the Baptist: Lk 1:5; 1:59.

Zedekiah The last king of Judah: 2 K 24 and 25.

Zerubbabel A descendant of the kings of Judah, he was the leader of those who returned from the Exile, but his lineage was lost: Esd 3:2; 5:2; Ne 12:1; Hg 2:20; Mt 1:12; Lk 3:27.

Zion This term designates the old city of Jerusalem taken by David around the year 1,000 B.C. (2 S 5:6-10), but with time, Zion became synonymous with Jerusalem. In the N.T., it is the term used to refer to the heavenly Jerusalem. From Zion, we get the term Zionism, a movement that, for over a century, has brought dispersed Jews to colonize and to reconquer Palestine (Is 35:10; 62).

MEASURES AND MONEY

Length		Weight
Finger	2cm	Gera	0.6 grams
Palm	7.5 cm	Half-shekel	5.7 grams
Span	22 cm	Shekel	11.4 grams
Cubit	44 cm	Pound	326 grams
Fathom	185 cm	Mina	571 grams
Stadium	185 meters	Talent	34,272 kilos
Mile	1,609 meters
Capacity (solids)		(Liquids)
Tenth	4.5 liters	Pint	0.6 liters
Bushel	15 liters	Sixth	7.5 liters
Measure	45 liters	Measure	45 liters
Modias	450 liters	Modias	450 liters

Money It appeared in the Near East around the 8th century B.C. and after the return from captivity in biblical texts. The coins mentioned in the N.T. are Greek (tetradrachma, didrachma and drachma) or Roman (denarius, as and quadran).

Tetradrachma	about 16 grams of silver
Drachma and denarius	4 grams of silver
Obol	0.75 grams of silver
As	10 grams of bronze

See:	Calendar	Jewish Feasts
1 Nisan (abib)	March-April	Passover
		Feast of Unleavened Bread
		1st loaves
2 Iyar (Ziv)	April-May
3 Sivan	May-June	Pentecost
4 Tammuz June-July
5 Av	July-August
6 Elul	August-Sept.
7 Tishri	Sept-Oct.	New Year
(Ethanim)		Atonement
		Tents (Booths)
8 Marheshvan	Oct.-Nov.
(Bul)
9 Kislev	Nov.-Dec.	Dedication
10 Tevet	Dec.-Jan.
11 Shevat	Jan.-Feb.
12 Adar	Feb.-March	Purim

PAGE 1934 (BLANK)

BIBLICAL READINGS IN THE MASS

You have the bible in your hands. With the help of this perpetual liturgical calendar you will be able to use this bible as a Missal.

The Sunday Readings are in three cycles: A, B, C. Sundays also have three readings: the first reading is from the Old Testament, the second is ordinarily from one of the Epistles or Letters of the New Testament. In the three-year cycle almost all the Letters are read. The third reading is the Gospel. There is an “Evangelist of the Year”—Matthew is read on cycle A, Mark on cycle B, and Luke on cycle C. The gospel of John comes at various times in each liturgical year: on Advent and Lent Sundays and in some readings of cycle B year.

Weekly Masses have two readings: the first from the Old or New Testament and the Gospel. The first reading during ordinary weeks of the year (see chart below) is arranged in a two-year cycle. Series “I” is for the odd years (2011, 2013, 2015, etc.) and series “II” is for even years (2012, 2014, 2016, etc.).

The readings for weekdays are arranged semi-continuously or thematically depending on the presence of a theme for a particular season.

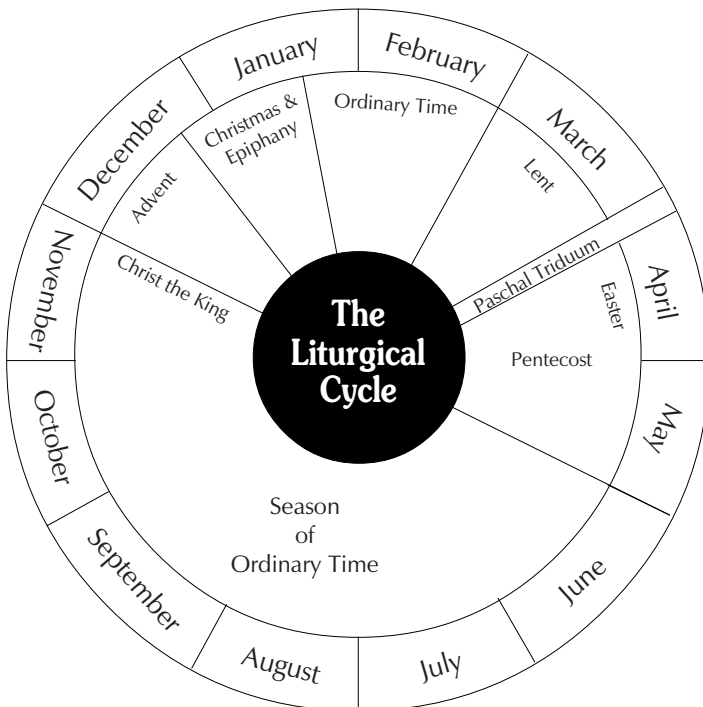

Table of Movable Liturgical Days

Year	Cycle	1st Sunday of Advent	Ash Wednesday	Easter Sunday	Ascension Sunday	Pentecost Sunday	Body and Blood of Christ	Ordinary Weeks of the Year
								Before Lent		After Pentecost
								Until	Week	From	Week
2011	A	November 27	March 9	April 24	---	June 12	---	Mar. 8	9	June 13	11
2012	B	December 2	Feb. 22	April 8	---	May 27	---	Feb. 21	7	May 28	8
2013	C	December 1	Feb. 23	March 31	---	May 19	---	Feb. 12	5	May 20	7
2014	A	November 30	March 5	April 20	---	June 8	---	Mar. 4	8	June 9	10
2015	B	November 29	Feb. 18	April 5	---	May 24	---	Feb. 17	6	May 25	8
2016	C	November 27	Feb. 10	March 27	---	May 15	---	Feb. 9	5	May 16	7
2017	A	December 3	March 1	April 16	---	June 4	---	Feb. 28	8	June 5	9
2018	B	December 2	Feb. 14	April 1	---	May 20	---	Feb. 13	6	May 21	7
2019	C	December 1	March 6	April 20	---	June 9	---	Mar. 5	6	June 10	10
2020	A	November 29	Feb. 26	April 12	---	May 31	---	Feb. 25	7	June 1	9
2021	B	November 28	Feb. 17	April 4	---	May 23	---	Feb. 16	6	May 24	8
2022	C	November 27	March 2	April 17	---	June 5	---	Mar. 1	8	June 6	10

READINGS FOR ADVENT & CHRISTMAS

	Date	1st	and	2nd Reading	Gospel
ADVENT TIME	1st SUNDAY of Advent	A. Is 2:1-5		Rom 13:11-14	Mt 24:37-44
		B. Is 63:16-17,19;64:2-7		1Cor 1:3-9	Mk 13:33-37
		C. Jer 33:14-16		1Thes 3:12—4:2	Lk 21:25-28,34-36
	1st Week of Advent	M	Is 2:1-5 (On Cycle A: Is 4:2-6)			Mt 8:5-11
		TU	Is 11:1-10			Lk 10:21-24
		W	Is 25:6-10			Mt 15:29-37
		T	Is 26:1-6			Mt 7:21,24-27
		F	Is 29:17-24			Mt 9:27-31
	S	Is 30:19-21,23-26			Mt 9:35—10: 8
	2nd SUNDAY of Advent	A. Is 11:1-10		Rom 15:4-9	Mt 3:1-12
		B. Is 40:1-5,9-11		2P 3:8-14	Mk 1:1-8
		C. Bar 5:1-9		Phil 1:4-6,8-11	Lk 3:1-6
	2nd Week of Advent	M	Is 35:1-10			Lk 5:17-26
		TU	Is 40:1-11			Mt 18:12-14
		W	Is 40:25-31			Mt 11:28-30
		T	Is 41:13-20			Mt 11:11-15
		F	Is 48:17-19			Mt 11:16-19
	S	Sir 48:1-4,9-11			Mt 17:10-13
3rd SUNDAY of Advent	A. Is 35: 1-6,10		James 5:7-10	Mt 11:2-11
	B. Is 61:1-2,10-11		1Thes 5:16-24	Jn 1:6-8,19-28
	C. Zep 3:14-18		Phil 4:4-7	Lk 3:10-18
3rd Week of Advent	M	Num 24:2-7,15-17			Mt 21:23-27
	TU	Zeph 3:1-2,9-13			Mt 21:28-32
	W	Is 45:6-8,18,21-25			Lk 7:18-23
	T	Is 54:1-10			Lk 7:24-30
	F	Is 56:1-3,6-8			Jn 5:33-36

From December 17 to January 7 the weekdays readings are as follows:

	17	Gen 49:2,8-10	Mt 1:1-17
	18	Jer 23:5-8	Mt 1:18-24
	19	Jdg 13:2-7,24-25	Lk 1:5-25
	20	Is 7:10-14	Lk 1:26-38
	21	Song 2:8-14 or Zeph 3:14-18	Lk 1:39-45

4th SUNDAY of Advent		A. Is 7:10-14 B. 2S 7:1-5,8-11,16 C. Mic 5:1-4	Rom 1:1-7 Rom 16:25-27 Heb 10:5-10	Mt 1:18-24 Lk 1:26-38 Lk 1:39-45
	22	1S 1:24-28		Lk 1:46-56
	23	Mal 3:1-4,23-24		Lk 1:57-66
	24	2S 7:1-5,8-11,16		Lk 1:67-79
Christmas	Midnight Dawn	Is 9:1-6 Is 62:11-12	Tit 2:11-14 Tit 3:4-7	Lk 2:1-14 Lk 2:15-20
Stephen, 1st Martyr	26	Acts 6:8-10;7:54-59		Mt 10:17-22
John, Apostle & Evan.	27	1Jn 1:1-4		Jn 20:2-8
Holy Innocents	28	1Jn 5—2:2		Mt 2:13-18
5th Day Octave	29	1Jn 2:3-11		Lk 2:22-35
6th Day Octave	30	1Jn 2:12-17		Lk 2:36-40
Holy Family (Sunday after Christmas or Dec. 30 if Xmas falls on Sunday)		Sir 3:2-6,12-14	Col 3:12-21	A. Mt 2:13-15,19-23 B. Lk 2:22-40 C. Lk 2:41-52
7th Day Octave Xmas	31	1Jn 2:18-21		Jn 1:1-18
Mary, Mother of God	1	Num 6:22-27	Gal 4:4-7	Lk 2:16-21
If before Epiphany	2	1Jn 2:22-28		Jn 1:19-28
If before Epiphany	3	1Jn 2:29—3:6		Jn 1:29-34
If before Epiphany	4	1Jn 3:7-10		Jn 1:35-42
If before Epiphany	5	1Jn 3:11-21		Jn 1:43-51
If before Epiphany	6	1Jn 5:5-13		Mk 1:7-11
If before Epiphany	7	1 Jn 5:14-21		Jn 2:1-12
Epiphany Sunday		Is 60:1-6	Eph 3:2-3,5-6	Mt 2:1-12
After Epiphany	M	1Jn 3:22—4:6		Mt 4:12-17,23-25
After Epiphany	TU	1Jn 4:7-10		Mk 6:34-44
After Epiphany	W	1Jn 4:11-18		Mk 6:45-52
After Epiphany	T	1Jn 4:19—5:4		Lk 4:14-22
After Epiphany	F	1Jn 5:5-13		Lk 5:12-16
After Epiphany	S	1Jn 5:14-21		Jn 3:22-30
Baptism of the Lord SUNDAY

From the Baptism of the Lord (Sunday after Epiphany) to Ash Wednesday runs the first part of the Ordinary Time: these can be four to nine weeks according to the date of Easter, which varies every year.

Year	Baptism of the Lord	Until Ash Wednesday
2011	January 9	March 8
2012	January 9	February 21
2013	January 13	February 12
2014	January 12	March 4
2015	January 11	February 17
2016	January 10	February 9

Year	Baptism of the Lord	Until Ash Wednesday
2017	January 9	February 28
2018	January 9	February 13
2019	January 13	March 5
2020	January 12	February 25
2021	January 10	February 16
2022	January 9	March 1

READINGS FOR LENT & EASTER

	Date	1st	and	2nd Reading	Gospel
LENT TIME	Ash Wednesday	Joel 2:12-18		2Cor 5:20—6:2	Mt 6:1-6,16-18
		T	Dt 30:15-20		Lk 9:22-25
		F	Is 58:1-9		Mt 9:14-15
		S	Is 58:9-14		Lk 5:27-32
	1st SUNDAY of Lent		A: Gen 2:7-9; 3:1-7 B: Gen 9:8-15 C: Dt 26:4-10	Rom 5:12-19 1P 3:18-22 Rom 10:8-13	Mt 4:1-11 Mk 1:12-15 Lk 4:1-13
	1st Week of Lent	M	Lev 19:1-2,11-18			Mt 25:31-46
		TU	Is 55:10-11			Mt 6:7-15
		W	Jonah 3:1-10			Lk 11:29-32
		T	Es C, 12,14-16,23-25			Mt 7:7-12
		F	Ezk 18:21-28			Mt 5:20-26
	S	Dt 26:16-19			Mt 5:43-48
	2nd SUNDAY of Lent		A. Gen 12:1-4 B. Gen 22:1-2,9,10-18 C. Gen 15:5-12,17-18	2Tim 1:8-10 Rom 8:31-34 Phil 3:17—4:1	Mt 17:1-9 Mk 9:2-10 Lk 9:28-36
	2nd Week of Lent	M	Dan 9:4-10			Lk 6:36-38
		TU	Is 1:10,16-20			Mt 23:1-12
		W	Jer 18:18-20			Mt 20:17-28
T		Jer 17:5-10			Lk 16:19-31
F		Gen 37:3-4,12-13,17-28			Mt 21:33-43,45-46
S	Mic 7:14-15,18-20			Lk 15:1-3,11-32
3rd SUNDAY of Lent		A. Ex 17:3-7 B. Ex 20:1-17 C. Ex 3:1-8,13-15	Rom 5:1-2,5-8 1Cor 1:22-25 1Cor 10:1-6,10-12	Jn 4:5-42 Jn 2:13-25 Lk 13:1-9
3rd Week of Lent	M	2Kgs 5:1-15			Lk 4:24-30
	TU	Dan 3:25,34-43			Mt 18:21-35
	W	Dt 4:1,5-9			Mt 5:17-19
	T	Jer 7:23-28			Lk 11:14-23
	F	Hos 14:2-10			Mk 12:28-34
S	Hos 6:1-6			Lk 18:9-14
4th SUNDAY of Lent		A. 1S 16:1,6-7,10-13 B. 2Chr 36:14-17,19-23 C. Jos 5:9,10-12	Eph 5:8-14 Eph 2:4-10 2Cor 5:17-21	Jn 9:1-41 Jn 3:14-21 Lk 15:1-3,11-32
LENT TIME 4th Week of Lent	M	Is 65:17-21			Jn 4:43-54
	TU	Ezk 47:1-12			Jn 5:1-3,5-16
	W	Is 49:8-15			Jn 5:17-30
	T	Ex 32:7-14			Jn 5:31-47
	F	Wis 2:1,12-22			Jn 7:1-2,10,25-30
S	Jer 11:18-20			Jn 7:40-53
5th SUNDAY of Lent		A. Ezk 37:12-14 B. Jer 31:31-34 C. Is 43:16-21	Rom 8:8-11 Heb 5:7-9 Phil 3:8-14	Jn 11:1-45 Jn 12:20-33 Jn 8:1-11
5th Week of Lent	M	Dn 13:41-62			Jn 8:1-11 C. Jn 8:12-20
	TU	Num 21:4-9			Jn 8:21-30
	W	Dn 3:14-20,91-92,95			Jn 8:31-42
	T	Gen 17:3-9			Jn 8:51-59
	F	Jer 20:10-13			Jn 10:31-42
	S	Ezk 37:21-28			Jn 11:45-57
PALM SUNDAY		Is 50:4-7	Phil 2:6-11	A. Mt 26:14—27:66 B. Mk 14:1—15:47 C. Lk 22:14—23:56

		M	Is 42:1-7	Jn 12:1-11
		TU	Is 49:1-6	Jn 13:21-33,36-38
		W	Is 50:4-9	Mt 26:14-25
	Holy Thursday		Ex 12:1-8,11-14	1Cor 11:23-26 Jn 13:1-15
	Good Friday		Is 52:13—53:12	Heb 4:14-16;5:7-9 Jn 18:1—19:42
	Easter Vigil		Gen 1:1—2:2	Ex 14:15—15:1 A. Mt 28:1-10 B. Mk 16:1-8 C. Lk 24:1-12
	EASTER SUNDAY		Acts 10:34,37-43	Col 3:1-4 Jn 20:1-9
1st Week of Easter		M	Acts 2:14,22-32	Mt 28:8-15
		TU	Acts 2:36-41	Jn 20:11-18
		W	Acts 3:1-10	Lk 24:13-35
		T	Acts 3:11-26	Lk 24:35-48
		F	Acts 4:1-12	Jn 21:1-14
	S	Acts 4:13-21	Mk 16:9-15
	2nd SUNDAY of Easter		A. Acts 2:42-47 B. Acts 4:32-35 C. Acts 5:12-16	1P 1:3-9 1Jn 5:1-6 Rev 1:9-13,17-19 Jn 20:19-31 Jn 20:19-31 Jn 20:19-31
EASTER TIME 2nd Week of Easter		M	Acts 4:23-31	Jn 3:1-8
		TU	Acts 4:32-37	Jn 3:7-15
		W	Acts 5:17-26	Jn 3:16-21
		T	Acts 5:27-33	Jn 3:31-36
		F	Acts 5:34-42	Jn 6:1-15
	S	Acts 6:1-7	Jn 6:16-21
	3rd SUNDAY of Easter		A. Acts 2:14,22-28 B. Acts 3:13-15,17-19 C. Acts 5:27-32,40-41	1P 1:17-21 1Jn 2:1-5 Rev 5:11-14 Lk 24:13-35 Lk 24:35-48 Jn 21:1-19
3rd Week of Easter		M	Acts 6:8-15	Jn 6:22-29
		TU	Acts 7:51—8:1	Jn 6:30-35
		W	Acts 8:1-8	Jn 6:35-40
		T	Acts 8:26-40	Jn 6:44-51
		F	Acts 9:1-20	Jn 6:52-59
	S	Acts 9:31-42	Jn 6:60-69
	4th SUNDAY of Easter		A. Acts 2:14,36-41 B. Acts 4:8-12 C. Acts 13:14,43-52	1P 2:20-25 1Jn 3:1-2 Rev 7:9,14-17 Jn 10:1-10 Jn 10:11-18 Jn 10:27-30
EASTER TIME 4th Week of Easter		M	Acts 11:1-18	Jn 10:1-10 A. Jn 10:11-18
		TU	Acts 11:19-26
		W	Acts 12:24—13:5	Jn 12:44-50
		T	Acts 13:13-25	Jn 13:16-20
		F	Acts 13:26-33	Jn 14:1-6
	S	Acts 13:44-52	Jn 14:7-14
	5th SUNDAY of Easter		A. Acts 6:1-7 B. Acts 9:26-31 C. Acts 14:21-27	1P 2:4-9 1Jn 3:18-24 Rev 21:1-5 Jn 14:1-12 Jn 15:1-8 Jn 13:31-33,34-35
5th Week of Easter		M	Acts 14:5-18	Jn 14:21-36
		TU	Acts 14:19-28	Jn 14:27-31
		W	Acts 15:1-6	Jn 15:1-8
		T	Acts 15:7-21	Jn 15:9-11
		F	Acts 15:22-31	Jn 15:12-17
	S	Acts 16:1-10	Jn 15:18-21
	6TH SUNDAY of Easter		A. Acts 8:5-8,14-17 B. Acts 10:25-26,34-48 C. Acts 15:1-2,22-29	1P 3:15-18 1Jn 4:7-10 Rev 21:10-14,22-23 Jn 14:15-21 Jn 15:9-17 Jn 14:23-29
6th Week of Easter		M	Acts 16:11-15	Jn 15:26—16:4
		TU	Acts 16:22-34	Jn 16:5-11
		W	Acts 17:15,22—18:1	Jn 16:12-15
		T	Acts 18:1-8	Jn 16:16-20

EASTER TIME		F	Acts 18:9-18	Jn 16:20-23
		S	Acts 18:23-28	Jn 16:23-28
	ASCENSION SUNDAY		Acts 1:1-11	A. Eph 1:17-23 B. Eph 4:1-13 C. Heb 9:24-28; 10:19-23	Mt 28:16-20 Mk 16:15-20 Lk 24:46-53
	7th Week of Easter	M	Acts 19:1-8		Jn 16:29-33
		TU	Acts 20:17-27		Jn 17:1-11
		W	Acts 20:28-38		Jn 17:11-19
		T	Acts 22:30; 23:6-11		Jn 17:20-26
		F	Acts 25:13-21		Jn 21:15-19
		S	Acts 28:16-20,30-31		Jn 21:20-25
	PENTECOST SUNDAY		Acts 2:1-11	A. 1Cor 12:3-7, 12-13 B. Gal 15:16-25 C. Rom 8:8-17	Jn 20:19-23 Jn 15:26—16:15 Jn 14:15-26
	TRINITY SUNDAY		A. Ex 34:4-6,8-9 2 B. Dt 4:32-34,39-40 C. Pro 8:22-31	Cor 13:11-13 Rom 8:14-17 Rom 5:1-5	Jn 3:16-18 Mt 28:16-20 Jn 16:12-15
	BODY & BLOOD OF CHRIST		A. Dt 8:2-3,14-16 B. Ex 24:3-8 C. Gen 14:18-20	1 Cor 10:16-17 He 9:11-15 1 Cor 11:23-26	Jn 6:51-58 Mk 14:12-16,22-26 Lk 9:11-17

FIRST PART OF THE ORDINARY TIME

In the ordinary, weekdays are distributed on a cycle of two years, year I and year II, which are in fact odd and even years. The year 2011 is I, 2012 is II.

Sundays, instead, are distributed on a cycle of three years: year A, year B, year C. Years 2011, 2014, 2017, ... are A.

		Date	1st	and	2nd Reading	Gospel
ORDINARY TIME	Baptism of the Lord		Is 42:1-7		Acts 10:34-38	A. Mt 3:13-17 B. Mk 1:7-11 C. Lk 3:15-16,21-22
	1st week	M	I	Heb 1:1-6	II	1S 1:1-8	Mk 1:14-20
		TU	I	Heb 2:5-12	II	1S 1:9-20	Mk 1:21-28
		W	I	Heb 2:14-18	II	1S 3:1-10,19-20	Mk 1:29-39
		T	I	Heb 3:7-14	II	1S 4:1-11	Mk 1:40-45
		F	I	Heb 4:1-5,11	II	1S 8:4-7,10-22	Mk 2:1-12
	S	I	Heb 4:12-16	II	1S 9:14,17-19; 10:1	Mk 2:13-17
	2nd SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Is 49:3,5-6 B. 1S 3:3-10,19 C. Is 62:1-5		1Cor 1:1-3 1Cor 6:13-15,17-20 1Cor 12:4-11	Jn 1:29-34 Jn 1:35-42 Jn 2:1-12
	2nd week	M	I	Heb 5:1-10	II	1S 15:16-23	Mk 2:18-22
		TU	I	Heb 6:10-20	II	1S 16:1-13	Mk 2:23-28
		W	I	Heb 7:1-3,15-17	II	1S 17:32-33,37,50-51	Mk 3:1-6
		T	I	Heb 7:25—8:6	II	1S 18:6-9; 19:1-7	Mk 3:7-12
		F	I	Heb 8:6-13	II	1S 24:3-21	Mk 3:13-19
	S	I	Heb 9:2-3,11-14	II	2S 1:14,11-12,19,23-27	Mk 3:20-21
	3rd SUNDAY Ord. Time		A. Is 8:23—9:3 B. Jon 3:1-5, 10 C. Ne 8:2-4,5-6,8-10		1Cor 1:10-13,17 1Cor 7:29-31 1Cor 12:12-30	Mt 4:12-23 Mk 1:14-20 Lk 1:1-4; 4:14-21
	3rd week	M	I	Heb 9:15,24-28	II	2S 5:1-7,10	Mk 3:22-30
		TU	I	Heb 10:1-10	II	2S 6:12-15,17-19	Mk 3:31-35
		W	I	Heb 10:11-18	II	2S 7:14-17	Mk 4:1-20
		T	I	Heb 10:19-25	II	2S 7:18-19,24-29	Mk 4:21-25
		F	I	Heb 10:32-39	II	2S 11:1-4,5-10,13-17	Mk 4:26-34
	S	I	Heb 11:1-2,8-19	II	2S 12:1-7,10-17	Mk 4:35-41

Year	4th Sunday Ordinary
2011	January 30
2012	January 29
2013	February 3
2014	February 2 (Presentation)

Year	4th Sunday Ordinary
2015	February 1
2016	January 31
2017	January 29
2018	January 28

Year	4th Sunday Ordinary
2019	February 3
2020	February 2 (Presentation)
2021	January 31
2022	January 30

ORDINARY TIME	4th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Zep 2:3; 3:12-13 B. Dt 18:15-20 C. Jer 1:4-5,17-19		1Cor 1:26-31 1Cor 7:32-35 1Cor 12:31—13:13	Mt 5:1-12 Mk 1:21-28 Lk 4:21-30
	4th week	M	I	Heb 11:32-40	II	2S 15:13-14,30;16:5-13	Mk 5:1-20
		TU	I	Heb 12:1-4	II	2S 18:9—19:3	Mk 5:21-43
		W	I	Heb 12:4-7,11-15	II	2S 24:2-9-17	Mk 6:1-6
		T	I	Heb 12:18-19,21-24	II	1K 2:1-4,10-12	Mk 6:7-13
		F	I	Heb 13:1-8	II	Sir 47:2-11	Mk 6:14-29
S	I	Heb 13:15-17,20-21	II	1K 3:4-13	Mk 6:30-34

ORDINARY TIME	5th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Is 58:7-10 B. Job 7:1-4,6-7 C. Is 6:1-2,3-8	1Cor 2:1-5 1Cor 9:16-23 1Cor 15:1-11	Mt 5:13-16 Mk 1:29-39 Lk 5:1-11
	5th week	M	I Gen 1:1-19	II 1K 8:1-7,9-13	Mk 6:53-56
		TU	I Gen 1:20—2:4	II 1K 8:22-23,27-30	Mk 7:1-13
		W	I Gen 2:5-9,15-17	II 1K 10:1-10	Mk 7:14-23
		T	I Gen 2:18-25	II 1K 11:4-13	Mk 7:24-30
		F	I Gen 3:1-8	II 1K 11:29-32; 12:19	Mk 7:31-37
		S	I Gen 3:9-24	II 1K 12:26-32;13:33-34	Mk 8:1-10

Remember that this first part of Ordinary time ends with Ash Wednesday. Some years it will still be in the 5th week; other years it will be in the 9th week. Anyway, Lenten time begins with Ash Wednesday.

ORDINARY TIME	6TH SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Sir 15:15-20 B. Lev13:1-2,44-46 C. Jer 17:5-8	1Cor 2:6-10 1Cor 10:31—11:1 1Cor 15:12,16-20	Mt 5:17-37 Mk 1:40-45 Lk 6:17,20-26
	6th week	M	I Gen 4:1-15,25	II James 1:1-11	Mk 8:11-13
		TU	I Gen 6:5-8; 7:1-5,10	II James 1:12-18	Mk 8:14-21
		W	I Gen 8:6-13,20-22	II James 1:19-27	Mk 8:22-26
		T	I Gen 9:1-13	II James 2:1-9	Mk 8:27-33
		F	I Gen 11:1-9	II James 2:14-24,26	Mk 8:34—9:1
		S	I Heb 11:1-7	II James 3:1-10	Mk 9:2-13
	7th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Lev 19:1-2,17-18 B. Is 43:18-19,21-22,24-25 C. 1S 26:2,7-9,12-13,22-23	1Cor 3:16-23 2Cor 1:18-22 1Cor 15:45-49	Mt 5:38-48 Mk 2:1-12 Lk 6:27-38
	7th week	M	I Sir 1:1-10	II James 3:13-18	Mk 9:14-29
		TU	I Sir 2:1-11	II James 4:1-10	Mk 9:30-37
		W	I Sir 4:11-19	II James 4:13-17	Mk 9:38-40
		T	I Sir 5:1-8	II James 5:1-6	Mk 9:41-50
		F	I Sir 6:5-17	II James 5:9-12	Mk 10:1-12
		S	I Sir 17:1-15	II James 5:13-20	Mk 10:13-16
	8th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Is 49:14-15 B. Hos 2:16-17,21-22 C. Sir 27:4-7	1Cor 4:1-5 2Cor 3:1-6 1Cor 15:54-58	Mt 6:24-34 Mk 2:18-22 Lk 6:39-45
	8th week	M	I Sir 17:19-27	II 1P1:3-9	Mk 10:17-27
		TU	I Sir 35:1-12	II 1P 1:10-16	Mk 10:28-31
		W	I Sir 36:1,5-6,10-17	II 1P 1:18-25	Mk 10:32-45
		T	I Sir 42:15-25	II 1P 2:2-5,9-12	Mk 10:46-52
		F	I Sir: 44:1,9-13	II 1P 4:7-13	Mk 11:1-12
S		I Sir 51:12-20	II Jd 17,20-25	Mk 11:27-33

SECOND PART OF THE ORDINARY TIME

In the ordinary, weekdays are distributed on a cycle of two years, year I and year II, which are in fact odd and even years. The year 2011 is I, 2012 is II.

Sundays, instead, are distributed on a cycle of three years: year A, year B, year C. Years 2011, 2014, 2017, 2020, ... are A.

This second part of Ordinary time begins with Pentecost and ends with the 1st Sunday of Advent. Depending on the date of Easter, this second part can begin earlier or later. When it begins with the 7th or 8th week, you find these weeks at the end of the First part of Ordinary Time before the Lenten time.

2nd part of Ordinary time begins with:

Year	Date	week number
2011	June 13	11th week
2012	May 28	8th week
2013	May 20	7th week
2014	June 9	10th week
2015	May 25	8th week
2016	May 16	7th week

2nd part of Ordinary time begins with:

Year	Date	week number
2017	June 5	9th week
2018	May 21	7th week
2019	June 10	10th week
2020	June 1	9th week
2021	May 24	8th week
2022	June 6	10th week

	Date	1st	and	2nd Reading	Gospel
ORDINARY TIME	9th SUNDAY Ordinary Time	A. Dt 11:18,26-28 B. Dt 5:12-15 C. 1K 8:41-43		Rom 3:21-25,28 2Cor 4:6-11 Gal 1:1-2,6-10	Mt 7:21-27 Mk 2:23—3:6 Lk 7:1-10
	9th week	M	I	Tb 1:1,2; 2:1-9	II 2P 1:2-7 Mk 12:1-12
		TU	I	Tb 2:9-14	II 2P 3:12-15,17-18 Mk 12:13-17
		W	I	Tb 3:1-11,16	II 2Tim 1:1-3,6-12 Mk 12:18-27
		T	I	Tb 6:11; 7:1,9-14; 8:4-7	II 2Tim 2:8-15 Mk 12:28-34
		F	I	Tb 11:5-15	II 2Tim 3:10-17 Mk 12:35-37
		S	I	Tb 12:1,5-15,20	II 2Tim 4:1-8 Mk 12:38-44
	10th SUNDAY Ordinary Time	A. Hos 6:3-6 B. Gen 3:9-15 C. 1K 17:17-24		Rom 4:18-25 2Cor 4:13—5:1 Gal 1:11-19	Mt 9:9-13 Mk 3:20-35 Lk 7:11-17
	10th week	M	I	2Cor 1:1-7	II 1K 17:1-7 Mt 5:1-12
		TU	I	2Cor 1:18-22	II 1K 17:7-16 Mt 5:13-16
		W	I	2Cor 3:4-11	II 1K 18:20-39 Mt 5:17-19
		T	I	2Cor 3:15—4:1,3-6	II 1K 18:41-46 Mt 5:20-26
		F	I	2Cor 4:7-15	II 1K 19:9,11-16 Mt 5:27-32
		S	I	2Cor 5:14-21	II 1K 19:19-21 Mt 5:33-37
	11th SUNDAY Ordinary Time	A. Ex 19:2-6 B. Ezk 17:22-24 C. 2S 12:7-10,13		Rom 5:6-11 2Cor 5:6-10 Gal 2:16,19-21	Mt 9:36—10:8 Mk 4:26-34 Lk 7:36—8:3
	11th week	M	I	2Cor 6:1-10	II 1K 21:1-16 Mt 5:38-42
		TU	I	2Cor 8:1-9	II 1K 21:17-29 Mt 5:43-48
		W	I	2Cor 9:6-11	II 2K 2:1,6-14 Mt 6:1-6
		T	I	2Cor 11:1-11	II Sir 48:1-14 Mt 6:7-15
		F	I	2Cor 11:18,21-30	II 2K 11:1-4,9-18,20 Mt 6:19-23
		S	I	2Cor 12:1-10	II 2Chr 24:17-25 Mt 6:24-34

ORDINARY TIME	12th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Jer 20:10-13 B. Job 38:1,8-11 C. Zec 12:10-11	Rom 5:12-15 2Cor 5:14-17 Gal 3:26-29	Mt 10:26-33 Mk 4:35-41 Lk 9:18-24
	12th week	M	I Gen 12:1-9	II 2K 17:5-8,13-15,18	Mt 7:1-5
		TU	I Gen 13:2,5-18	II 2K 19:9-11,14-21,31-36	Mt 7:6,12-14
		W	I Gen 15:1-12,17-18	II 2K 22:8-13; 23:1-3	Mt 7:15-20
		T	I Gen 16:1-12,15-16	II 2K 24:8-17	Mt 7:21-29
		F	I Gen 17:1,9-10,15-22	II 2K 25:1-12	Mt 8:1-4
		S	I Gen 18:1-15	II Lm 2:2,10-14,18-19	Mt 8:5-17
	13th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. 2K 4:8-11,14-16 B. Wis 1:13-15;2:23-24 C. 1K 19:16-21	Rom 6:3-4,8-11 2Cor 8:7,9,13-15 Gal 5:1,13-18	Mt 10:37-42 Mk 5:21-43 Lk 9:51-62
	13th week	M	I Gen 18:16-33	II Am 2:6-10,13-16	Mt 8:18-22
		TU	I Gen 19:15-29	II Am 3:1-8;4:11-12	Mt 8:23-27
		W	I Gen 21:5,8-20	II Am 5:14-15,21-24	Mt 8:28-34
		T	I Gen 22:1-19	II Am 7:10-17	Mt 9:1-8
		F	I Gen 23:1-4,19;24:1-8,62-67	II Am 8:4-6,9-12	Mt 9:9-13
		S	I Gen 27:1-5,15-29	II Am 9:11-15	Mt 9:14-17

If you are lost with week numbers, look at these hints. Depending on the year you find the 14th, the 18th and the 22nd Sunday at the following dates:

Year	14th	18th	22nd	Year	14th	18th	22nd
2011	July 3	July 31	August 28	2017	July 9	Aug 6 (transfl)	September 3
2012	July 8	August 5	September 2	2018	July 8	August 5	September 2
2013	July 7	August 4	September 1	2019	July 7	August 4	September 1
2014	July 6	August 3	August 31	2020	July 5	August 2	August 30
2015	July 5	August 2	August 30	2021	July 4	August 1	August 29
2016	July 3	July 31	August 28	2022	July 3	July 31	August 28

ORDINARY TIME	14th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Zec 9:9-10 B. Ezk 2:2-5 C. Is 66:10-14	Rom 8:9,11-13 2Cor 12:7-10 Gal 6:14-18	Mt 11:25-30 Mk 6:1-6 Lk 10:1-12,17-20
	14th week	M	I Gen 28:10-22	II Hos 2:16,17-18,21-22	Mt 9:18-26
		TU	I Gen 32:23-33	II Hos 8:4-7,11-13	Mt 9:32-38
		W	I Gen 41:55-57;42:5-7,17-24	II Hos 10:1-3,7-8,12	Mt 10:1-7
		T	I Gen 44:18-21,23-29; 45:1-5	II Hos 11:1,3-4,8-9	Mt 10:7-15
		F	I Gen 46:1-7,28-30	II Hos 14:2-10	Mt 10:16-23
		S	I Gen 49:29-33; 50:15-24	II Is 6:1-8	Mt 10:24-33
	15th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Is 55:10-11 B. Am 7:12-15 C. Dt 30:10-14	Rom 8:18-23 Eph 1:3-14 Col 1:15-20	Mt 13:1-23 Mk 6:7-13 Lk 10:25-37
	15th week	M	I Ex 1:8-14,22	II Is 1:10-17	Mt 10:34—11:1
		TU	I Ex 2:1-15	II Is 7:1-9	Mt 11:20-24
		W	I Ex 3:1-6,9-12	II Is 10:5-7,13-16	Mt 11:25-27
		T	I Ex 3:11-20	II Is 26:7-9,12,16-19	Mt 11:28-30
		F	I Ex 11:10—12:14	II Is 38:1-6,21-22,7-8	Mt 12:1-8
		S	I Ex 12:37-42	II Mic 2:1-5	Mt 12:14-21
	16th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Wis 12:13,16-19 B. Jer 23:1-6 C. Gen 18:1-10	Rom 8:26-27 Eph 2:13-18 Col 1:24-28	Mt 13:24-43 Mk 6:30-34 Lk 10:38-42
	16th week	M	I Ex 14:5-18	II Mic 6:1-4,6-8	Mt 12:38-42
		TU	I Ex 14:21—15:1	II Mic 7:14-15,18-20	Mt 12:46-50
		W	I Ex 16:1-5,9-15	II Jer 1:1,4-10	Mt 13:1-9
		T	I Ex 19:1-2,9-11,16-20	II Jer 2:1-3,7-8,12-13	Mt 13:10-17
		F	I Ex 20:1-17	II Jer 3:14-17	Mt 13:18-23
		S	I Ex 24:3-8	II Jer 7:1-11	Mt 13:24-30

ORDINARY TIME	17th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. 1K 3:5,7-12 B. 2K 4:42-44 C. Gen 18:20-32	Rom 8:28-30 Eph 4:1-6 Col 2:12-14	Mt 13:44-52 Jn 6:1-15 Lk 11:1-13
	17th week	M	I Ex 32:15-24,30-34	II Jer 13:1-11	Mt 13:31-35
		TU	I Ex 33:7-11; 34:5-9,28	II Jer 14:17-22	Mt 13:35-43
		W	I Ex 34:29-35	II Jer 15:10,16-21	Mt 13:44-46
		T	I Ex 40:16-21,34-38	II Jer 18:1-6	Mt 13:47-53
		F	I Lev 23:1,4-11,15-16,27,34-37	II Jer 26:1-9	Mt 13:54-58
	S	I Lev 25:1,8-17	II Jer 26:11-16,24	Mt 14:1-12
	18th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Is 55:1-3 B. Ex 16:2-4,12-15 C. Ecl 1:2; 2:21-23	Rom 8:35,37-39 Eph 4:17,20-24 Col 3:1-5,9-11	Mt 14:13-21 Jn 6:24-35 Lk 12:13-21
	18th week	M	I Num 11:4-15	II Jer 28:1-17	Mt 14:13-21
					Year A: Mt 14:22-36
		TU	I Num 12:1-13	II Jer 30:1-2,12-15,18-22	Mt 14:22-36
					Year A: Mt 15:1-2,10-14
		W	I Num 13:1,2,25;14:1,26-29,34-35	II Jer 31:1-7	Mt 15:21-28
		T	I Num 20:1-13	II Jer 31:31-34	Mt 16:13-23
	F	I Dt 4:32-40	II Nh 2:1,3; 3:1-3,6-7	Mt 16:24-28
	S	I Dt 6:4-13	II Hb 1:12—2:4	Mt 17:14-20
	19th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. 1K 19:9,11-13 B. 1K 19:4-8 C. Wis 18:6-9	Rom 9:1-5 Eph 4:30—5:2 Heb 11:1-2,8-19	Mt 14:22-33 Jn 6:41-51 Lk 12:32-48
	19th week	M	I Dt 10:12-22	II Ezk 1:2-5,24-28	Mt 17:22-27
		TU	I Dt 31:1-8	II Ezk 2:8—3:4	Mt 18:1-5,10,12-14
W		I Dt 34:1-12	II Ezk 9:1-7;10:18-22	Mt 18:15-20
T		I Jos 3:7-10,11,13-17	II Ezk 12:1-12	Mt 18:21—19:1
F		I Jos 24:1-13	II Ezk 16:1-15,60,63	Mt 19:3-12
S	I Jos 24:14-29	II Ezk 18:1,10-13,30-32	Mt 19:13-15
20th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Is 56:1,6-7 B. Pro 9:1-6 C. Jer 38:4-6,8-10	Rom 11:13-15,29-32 Eph 5:15-20 Heb 12:1-4	Mt 15:21-28 Jn 6:51-58 Lk 12:49-53
20th week	M	I Jdg 2:11-19	II Ezk 24:15-24	Mt 19:16-22
	TU	I Jdg 6:11-24	II Ezk 28:1-10	Mt 19:23-30
	W	I Jdg 9:6-15	II Ezk 34:1-11	Mt 20:1-16
	T	I Jdg 11:29-39	II Ezk 36:23-28	Mt 22:1-14
	F	I Ru 1:1,3-6,14-16,22	II Ezk 37:1-14	Mt 22:34-40
S	I Ru 2:1-3,8-11;4:13-17	II Ezk 43:1-7	Mt 23:1-12
21st SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Is 22:15,19-23 B. Jos 24:1-2,15-17,18 C. Is 66:18-21	Rom 11:33-36 Eph 5:21-32 Heb 12:5-7,11-13	Mt 16:13-20 Jn 6:60-69 Lk 13:22-30
21st week	M	I 1Thes 1:2-5,8-10	II 2Thes 1:1-5,11-12	Mt 23:13-22
	TU	I 1Thes 2:1-8	II 2Thes 2:1-3,14-16	Mt 23:23-26
	W	I 1Thes 2:9-13	II 2Thes 3:6-10,16-18	Mt 23:27-32
	T	I 1Thes 3:7-13	II 1Cor 1:1-9	Mt 24:42-51
	F	I 1Thes 4:1-8	II 1Cor 1:17-25	Mt 25:1-13
S	I 1Thes 4:9-12	II 1Cor 1:26-31	Mt 25:14-30
22nd SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Jer 20:7-9 B. Dt 4:1-2,6-8 C. Sir 3:17-18,20,28-29	Rom 12:1-2 James 1:17-18,21-22,27 Heb 12:18-19,22-24	Mt 16:21-27 Mk 7:1-8,14-15,21-23 Lk 14:1,7-14
22nd week	M	I 1Thes 4:13-18 II	1Cor 2:1-5	Lk 4:16-30
	TU	I 1Thes 5:1-6,9-11	II 1Cor 2:10-16	Lk 4:31-37
	W	I Col 1:1-8	II 1Cor 3:1-9	Lk 4:38-44
	T	I Col 1:9-14	II 1Cor 3:18-23	Lk 5:1-11
	F	I Col 1:15-20	II 1Cor 4:1-5	Lk 5:33-39
S	I Col 1:21-23	II 1Cor 4:9-15	Lk 6:1-5

ORDINARY TIME	23rd SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Ezk 33:7-9 B. Is 35:4-7 C. Wis 9:13-18	Rom 13:8-10 James 2:1-5 Phlm 9:10,12-17	Mt 18:15-20 Mk 7:31-37 Lk 14:25-33
	23rd week	M	I Col 1:24—2:3	II 1Cor 5:1-8	Lk 6:6-11
		TU	I Col 2:6-15	II 1Cor 6:1-11	Lk 6:12-19
		W	I Col 3:1-11	II 1Cor 7:25-31	Lk 6:20-26
		T	I Col 3:12-17	II 1Cor 8:1-7,11-13	Lk 6:27-38
		F	I 1Tim 1:1-2,12-14	II 1Cor 9:16-19,22-27	Lk 6:39-42
		S	I 1Tim 1:15-17	II 1Cor 10:14-22	Lk 6:43-49
	24th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Sir 27:30—28:7 B. Is 50:5-9 C. Ex 32:7-11,13-14	Rom 14:7-9 James 2:14-18 1Tim 1:12-17	Mt 18:21-35 Mk 8:27-35 Lk 15:1-32 or 15:1-10
	24th week	M	I 1Tim 2:1-8	II 1Cor 11:17-26,33	Lk 7:1-10
		TU	I 1Tim 3:1-13	II 1Cor 12:12-14,27-31	Lk 7:11-17
		W	I 1Tim 3:14-16	II 1Cor 12:31—13:13	Lk 7:31-35
		T	I 1Tim 4:12-16	II 1Cor 15:1-11	Lk 7:36-50
		F	I 1Tim 6:2-12	II 1Cor 15:12-20	Lk 8:1-3
		S	I 1Tim 6:13-16	II 1Cor 15:35-37,42-49	Lk 8:4-15
	25th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Is 55:6-9 B. Wis 2:17-20 C. Am 8:4-7	Phil 1:20-24,27 James 3:16—4:3 1Tim 2:1-8	Mt 20:1-16 Mk 9:30-37 Lk 16:1-13
	25th week	M	I Ezra 1:1-6	II Pro 3:27-34	Lk 8:16-18
		TU	I Ezra 6:7-8,12,14-20	II Pro 21:1-6,10-13	Lk 8:19-21
		W	I Ezra 9:5-9	II Pro 30:5-9	Lk 9:1-6
		T	I Hg 1:1-8	II Ecl 1:2-11	Lk 9:7-9
		F	I Hg 1:15—2:9	II Ecl 3:1-11	Lk 9:18-22
S		I Zec 2:5-9,14-15	II Ecl 11:9—12:8	Lk 9:43-45

If you are lost with week numbers, look at these hints. Depending on the year you find the 26th, the 30th and the 34th Sunday at the following dates:

Year	26th	30th	34th	Year	26th	30th	34th
2011	September 25	October 23	November 20	2017	October 1	October 29	November 26
2012	September 30	October 28	November 22	2018	September 30	October 28	November 25
2013	September 29	October 27	November 24	2019	September 29	October 27	November 24
2014	September 28	October 26	November 23	2020	September 27	October 25	November 22
2015	September 27	October 25	November 22	2021	September 26	October 24	November 21
2016	September 25	October 23	November 20	2022	September 25	October 23	November 20

ORDINARY TIME	26th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Ezk 18:25-28 B. Num 11:25-29 C. Am 6:1,4-7	Phil 2:1-11 James 5:1-6 1Tim 6:11-16	Mt 21:28-32 Mk 9:38-43,45,47-48 Lk 16:19-31
	26th week	M	I Zec 8:1-8	II Job 1:6-22	Lk 9:46-50
		TU	I Zec 8:20-23	II Job 3:1-3,11-17,20-23	Lk 9:51-56
		W	I Ne 2:1-8	II Job 9:1-12,14-16	Lk 9:57-62
		T	I Ne 8:1-4,5-6,7-12	II Job 19:21-27	Lk 10:1-12
		F	I Bar 1:15-22	II Job 38:1,12-21; 40:3-5	Lk 10:13-16
		S	I Bar 4:5-12,27-29	II Job 42:1-3,5-6,12-16	Lk 10:17-24
	27th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Is 5:1-7 B. Gen 2:18-24 C. Hb 1:2-3;2:2-4	Phil 4:6-9 Heb 2:9-11 2Tim 1:6-8,13-14	Mt 21:33-43 Mk 10:2-16 Lk 17:5-10
	27th week	M	I Jon 1:1—2:1,11	II Gal 1:6-12	Lk 10:25-37
		TU	I Jon 3:1-10	II Gal 1:13-24	Lk 10:38-42
		W	I Jon 4:1-11	II Gal 2:1-2,7-14	Lk 11:1-4
		T	I Mal 3:13-20	II Gal 3:1-5	Lk 11:5-13
		F	I Jl 1:13-15; 2:1-2	II Gal 3:7-14	Lk 11:15-26
		S	I Jl 4:12-21	II Gal 3:22-29	Lk 11:27-28

ORDINARY TIME	28th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Is 25:6-10 B. Wis 7:7-11 C. 2K 5:14-17	Phil 4:12-14,19-20 Heb 4:12-13 2Tim 2:8-13	Mt 22:1-14 Mk 10:17-30 Lk 17:11-19
	28th week	M	I Rom 1:1-7	II Gal 4:22,24,26-27,31—5:1	Lk 11:29-32
		TU	I Rom 1:16-25	II Gal 5:1-6	Lk 11:37-41
		W	I Rom 2:1-11	II Gal 5:18-25	Lk 11:42-46
		T	I Rom 3:21-29	II Eph 1:3-10	Lk 11:47-54
		F	I Rom 4:1-8	II Eph 1:11-14	Lk 12:1-7
		S	I Rom 4:13,16-18	II Eph 1:15-23	Lk 12:8-12
	29th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Is 45:1,4-6 B. Is 53:10-11 C. Ex 17:8-13	1Thes 1:1-5 Heb 4:14-16 2Tim 3:14—4:2	Mt 22:15-21 Mk 10:35-45 Lk 18:1-8
	29th week	M	I Rom 4:20-25	II Eph 2:1-10	Lk 12:13-21
		TU	I Rom 5:12,15,17-19,20-21	II Eph 2:12-22	Lk 12:35-38
		W	I Rom 6:12-18	II Eph 3:2-12	Lk 12:39-48
		T	I Rom 6:19-23	II Eph 3:14-21	Lk 12:49-53
		F	I Rom 7:18-25	II Eph 4:1-6	Lk 12:54-59
		S	I Rom 8:1-11	II Eph 4:7-16	Lk 13:1-9
	30th SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Ex 22:20-26 B. Jer 31:7-9 C. Sir 35:12-14,16-18	1Thes 1:5-10 Heb 5:1-6 2Tim 4:6-8,16-18	Mt 22:34-40 Mk 10:46-52 Lk 18:9-14
	30th week	M	I Rom 8:12-17	II Eph 4:32—5:8	Lk 13:10-17
		TU	I Rom 8:18-25	II Eph 5:21-33	Lk 13:18-21
		W	I Rom 8:26-30	II Eph 6:1-9	Lk 13:22-30
		T	I Rom 8:31-39	II Eph 6:10-20	Lk 13:31-35
F		I Rom 9:1-5	II Phil 1:1-11	Lk 14:1-6
S		I Rom 11:1-2,11-12,25-29	II Phil 1:18-26	Lk 14:1,7-11
31st SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Mal 1:14—2:2,8-10 B. Dt 6:2-6 C. Wis 11:22—12:1	1Thes 2:7-9,13 Heb 7:23-28 2Thes 1:11—2:2	Mt 23:1-12 Mk 12:28-34 Lk 19:1-10
31st week	M	I Rom 11:29-36	II Phil 2:1-4	Lk 14:12-14
	TU	I Rom 12:5-16	II Phil 2:5-11	Lk 14:15-24
	W	I Rom 13:8-10	II Phil 2:12-18	Lk 14:25-33
	T	I Rom 14:7-12	II Phil 3:3-8	Lk 15:1-10
	F	I Rom 15:14-21	II Phil 3:17—4:1	Lk 16:1-8
	S	I Rom 16:3-9,16,22-27	II Phil 4:10-19	Lk 16:9-15
32nd SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Wis 6:12-16 B. 1K 17:10-16 C. 2Mac 7:1-2,9-14	1Thes 4:13-17 Heb 9:24-28 2Thes 2:16—3:5	Mt 25:1-13 Mk 12:38-44 Lk 20:27-38
32nd week	M	I Wis 1:1-7	II Tit 1:1-9	Lk 17:1-6
	TU	I Wis 2:23—3:9	II Tit 2:1-8,11-14	Lk 17:7-10
	W	I Wis 6:2-11	II Tit 3:1-7	Lk 17:11-19
	T	I Wis 7:22—8:1	II Phlm 7-20	Lk 17:20-25
	F	I Wis 13:1-9	II 2Jn 4-9	Lk 17:26-37
	S	I Wis 18:14-16; 19:6-9	II 3Jn 5-8	Lk 18:1-8
33rd SUNDAY Ordinary Time		A. Pro 31:10-20,19-31 B. Dn 12:1-3 C. Mal 3:19-20	1Thes 5:1-6 Heb 10:11-14,18 2Thes 3:7-12	Mt 25:14-30 Mk 13:24-32 Lk 21:5-19
33rd week	M	I 1Mac 1:10-15,41-43,54-57,62-63	II Rev 1:1-4; 2:1-5	Lk 18:35-43
	TU	I 2Mac 6:18-31	II Rev 3:1-6,14-22	Lk 19:1-10
	W	I 2Mac 7:1,20-31	II Rev 4:1-11	Lk 19:11-28
	T	I 1Mac 2:15-29	II Rev 5:1-10	Lk 19:41-44
	F	I 1Mac 4:36-37,52-59	II Rev 10:8-11	Lk 19: 45-48
	S	I 1Mac 6:1-13	II Rev 11:4-12	Lk 20:27-40
Christ the King		A. Ezk 34:11-12,15-17 B. Dn 7:13-14 C. 2S 5:1-3	1Cor 15:20-26,28 Rev 1:5-8 Col 1:12-20	Mt 25:31-46 Jn 18:33-37 Lk 23:35-43

ORDINARY TIME	34th week	M	I Dn 1:1-6,8-20	II Rev 14:1-3,4-5	Lk 21:1-4
		TU	I Dn 2:31-45	II Rev 14:14-19	Lk 21:5-11
		W	I Dn 5:1-6,13-14,16-17,23-28	II Rev 15:1-4	Lk 21:12-19
		T	I Dn 6:12-28	II Rev 18:1-2,11-23;19:1-3,9	Lk 21:20-28
		F	I Dn 7:2-14	II Rev 20:1-4,11—21:2	Lk 21:29-33
	S	I Dn 7:15-27	II Rev 22:1-7	Lk 21:24-36
1st Sunday of Advent

The Old Testament

THE LAW (Pentateuch)

Genesis	55
Exodus	131
Leviticus	189
Numbers	225
Deuteronomy	271

PROPHETIC History

Joshua	315
Judges	343
1 Samuel	373
2 Samuel	412
1 Kings	443
2 Kings	484

Other Historical Books

1 Chronicles	523
2 Chronicles	548
Ezra	579
Nehemiah	592
1 Maccabees	609
2 Maccabees	644

PROPHETS

Isaiah	671
Jeremiah	761
Ezekiel	829

The Twelve Minors

Daniel	947
--------	-----

WRITINGS

Job	973
Proverbs	1015
Ecclesiastes	1041
Song of Songs	1051
Ruth	1063
Lamentations	1068
Esther	1075
Tobit	1090
Judith	1103
Baruch	1120
Wisdom	1127
Sirach	1147
Psalms	1193

The Twelve Minor Prophets
Hosea	885
Joel	896
Amos	900
Obadiah	908
Jonah	910
Micah	914
Nahum	920
Habakkuk	923
Zephaniah	927
Haggai	930
Zechariah	933
Malachi	943

The New Testament

The FOUR GOSPELS

Matthew	1319
Mark	1395
Luke	1451
John	1531
Acts	1589

PAUL'S LETTERS

Romans	1654
1 Corinthians	1691
2 Corinthians	1719
Galatians	1737
Ephesians	1751
Philippians	1764
Colossians	1772
Philemon	1780
1 Thessalonians	1782
2 Thessalonians	1789
1 Timothy	1793
2 Timothy	1802
Titus	1808
Hebrews	1813

CATHOLIC EPISTLES

James	1833
1 Peter	1841
2 Peter	1848
1 John	1853
2 John	1863
3 John	1864
Jude	1865
Revelation	1867

MAPS
Departure of Abraham	77
The Roads of Exodus	156
The 12 Tribes	330
The Kingdom of David and Solomon	521

Alphabetical Listing with Abbreviations

OLD TESTAMENT			NEW TESTAMENT
Amos	Am	900	Ruth	Ru	1063
Baruch	Bar	1120	1 Samuel	1 S	373
1 Chronicles	1 Chr	523	2 Samuel	2 S	412
2 Chronicles	2 Chr	548	Sirach	Sir	1147
Daniel	Dn	947	Song of Songs	Song	1051
Deuteronomy	Dt	271	Tobit	Tb	1090
Ecclesiastes	Ecl	1041	Wisdom of Solomon	Wis	1127
Esther	Es	1075	Zechariah	Zec	933
Exodus	Ex	131	Zephaniah	Zep	927
Ezekiel	Ezk	829	NEW TESTAMENT
Ezra	Ezra	579	Acts	Acts	1589
Genesis	Gen	55	Colossians	Col	1772
Habakkuk	Hb	923	1 Corinthians	1 Cor	1691
Haggai	Hg	930	2 Corinthians	2 Cor	1719
Hosea	Hos	885	Ephesians	Eph	1751
Isaiah	Is	671	Galatians	Gal	1737
Jeremiah	Jer	761	Hebrews	Heb	1813
Job	Job	973	James	Jas	1833
Joel	Jl	896	John	Jn	1531
Jonah	Jon	910	1 John	1 Jn	1853
Joshua	Jos	315	2 John	2 Jn	1863
Judges	Jdg	343	3 John	3 Jn	1864
Judith	Jdt	1103	Jude	Jd	1865
1 Kings	1 K	443	Luke	Lk	1451
2 Kings	2 K	484	Mark	Mk	1395
Lamentations	Lm	1068	Matthew	Mt	1319
Leviticus	Lev	189	1 Peter	1 P	1841
1 Maccabees	1 Mac	609	2 Peter	2 P	1848
2 Maccabees	2 Mac	644	Philemon	Phlm	1780
Malachi	Mal	943	Philippians	Phil	1764
Micah	Mic	914	Revelation	Rev	1867
Nahum	Nh	920	Romans	Rom	1654
Nehemiah	Ne	592	1 Thessalonians	1 Thes	1782
Numbers	Num	225	2 Thessalonians	2 Thes	1789
Obadiah	Ob	908	1 Timothy	1 Tim	1793
Proverbs	Pro	1015	2 Timothy	2 Tim	1802
Psalms	Ps	1193	Titus	Tit	1808

Artwork and Illustrations

Luziano Benedicto
Maria d.c. Zamora

Maps: Sobicain